America's Immortals

Most striking instances of gallantry for which the Distinguished Service Cross has been awarded

On the war department's records there is a roll of "America's Immortals." It is the roll of officers and men to whom there has been awarded the Distinguished Service Cross in recognition of acts of unusual gallantry in action. Behind each of these awards is a story of surpassing bravery that deserves the widest publicity, but pages of newspaper space would be required to print them all. Officers attached to General Pershing's staff have selected from the hundreds of official reports a number that typify most strikingly the gallantry and spirit of self-sacrifice that made America's army invincible. Here are a few of them:

THOMAS O. NEIBOUR,

Private, Company M, 167th Infantry. Private Neibour, whose home is at Sugar City, Idaho, was decorated for conspicuous gallantry in action near Landreux-St. Georges, France, October 16, 1918. On the afternoon of October 16, when the Côte de Châtillon had just been gained after bitter fighting, and the summit of that strong bulwark in the千里 Stalling was being organized, Private Neibour was sent on patrol with his automatic rifle squad to eliminate enemy machine gun nests. As Private Neibour gained the ridge he set up his automatic rifle and was directly thereafter wounded in both legs by fire from a hostile machine gun on his flank. The advance wave of the enemy troops counter-attacking had about gained the ridge and although practically cut off and surrounded, the remainder of his detachment being killed or wounded, this gallant soldier kept his automatic rifle in operation to such effect that by his own efforts and by fire from the skirmish line of his company at least 300 yards in his rear, the attack was checked. The enemy were being halted and lying prone, four of the enemy attacked Private Neibour at close quarters. These he killed. He then moved along among the enemy lying on the ground about him, in the midst of the fire from his own lines, and by his coolness and gallantry captured eleven prisoners at the point of his pistol and, although painfully wounded, brought them back to our lines. The counter-attack in full force was arrested, to a large extent, by the single efforts of this soldier, whose heroic exploits took place against the skyline in full view of his entire battalion.

EDWARD C. ALLWORTH,

Captain, 60th Infantry. Capt. Allworth won the Distinguished Service Cross for bravery in action at Clercy-le-Petit, France, November 5, 1918. While his company was crossing the Meuse river and canal at a bridgehead opposite Clercy-le-Petit, the bridge over the canal was destroyed by shell fire and Capt. Allworth's command became separated, part of it being on the east bank of the canal and the remainder on the west bank. Seeing his advance units making slow headway up the steep slope ahead, this officer mounted the canal bank and called for his men to follow. Plunging in he swam across the canal under fire from the enemy, followed by his men. Inspiring his men by his example of gallantry, he led them up the slope, joining the hard-pressed platoons in front. By his personal leadership he forced the enemy back for more than a kilometer, overcoming machine gun nests and capturing a hundred prisoners, whose number exceeded that of the men in his command. The exceptional courage and leadership displayed by Capt. Allworth made possible the re-establishment of a bridgehead over the canal and the successful advance of other troops. Capt. Allworth's home is at C. 240rd, Washington.

LOUIS CUKELA,

Lieutenant, 5th Regiment, U. S. M. C. Lieutenant Cukela was decorated for conspicuous gallantry near Villers-Cotterets, France, July 18, 1918. When his company, advancing through a wood, met with strong resistance from an enemy strong point Lieutenant Cukela, then a sergeant, crawled out from the flank and made his way toward the German life in the face of heavy fire, disregarding the warnings of his comrades. He succeeded in getting behind the enemy position. Rushing a machine gun emplacement, he killed the crew with his bayonet. With German hand grenades he then bombed out the remaining portion of the strong point. His home is in Minneapolis, Minn.

SYDNEY G. GUMPERTZ,

First Sergeant, Company E, 132nd Infantry. Sergeant Gumpertz was decorated for gallantry beyond the call of duty in action in the Bois de Porces, France, September 26, 1918. When the advancing line was held up by machine gun fire, Sergeant Gumpertz left the platoon of which he was in command and started through a heavy barrage toward the machine gun nest. His two companions soon became casualties from bursting shells, but Sergeant Gumpertz continued on alone in the face of direct fire from the machine gun. Jumping into the nest and silenced the gun, capturing nine of the crew. Sergeant Gumpertz's home is at 701 West 178th street, New York city.

CHARLES F. HOFFMAN,

Gunnery Sergeant, 49th Company, 5th Regiment, U. S. M. C. Sergeant Hoffman received the Distinguished Service Cross for an act of conspicuous gallantry in action with the enemy near Chateau-Thierry, France, June 6, 1918. Immediately after the company in which Sergeant Hoffman belonged had reached its objective on Hill 142, several counter-attacks were launched against the line before the new position had been consolidated. Sergeant Hoffman was attempting to organize a position on the north slope of the hill when he saw twelve of the enemy, armed with five light machine guns, crawling toward his group. Giving the alarm, he rushed at the hostile detachment, bayoneted the two leaders, and forced the others to flee, abandoning their guns. His quick initiative and courage routed the enemy from a position from which they could have swept the hill with machine gun fire and forced the withdrawal of our forces. His home is in Brooklyn, N. Y.

THEODORE PETERSEN,

Sergeant, Med. Det. 151st Field Artillery. Sergeant Petersen (deceased) was decorated for conspicuous gallantry in action at Peronne, France, March 5, 1918. Mortally wounded during an enemy bombardment, Sergeant Petersen, though himself too weak to minister to other wounded soldiers, directed his associates in treating the wounded and refused to receive assistance himself until all the others were cared for. When gas shells began to fall in the vicinity he directed the men in adjusting their masks and was the first to test for gas. He continued to supervise the treatment of the wounded, despite the fact that he was suffering great pain, until the arrival of the surgeon, who sent him to the rear. He died on reaching the hospital. His mother, Mrs. N. J. Petersen, lives at 99 Central avenue, Oshkosh, Wis.

JAMES D. HERIOT,

Corporal, Company I, 118th Infantry. Corp. Heriot, who lived near Providence, S. C., was decorated for conspicuous bravery, resulting in his death, at Vaux-Audigny, France, October 12, 1918. Corp. Heriot, with four other soldiers, organized a combat group, and attacked an enemy machine gun nest which had been inflicting heavy casualties on his company. In the advance two of his men were killed, and because of heavy fire from all sides, the remaining two sought shelter. Unmindful of the hazard attached to his mission, Corp. Heriot, with fixed bayonet, alone charged the machine gun, making his way through the fire for a distance of thirty yards, and forcing the enemy to surrender. During this exploit he received several wounds in the arm, and later in the same day, while charging another nest, he was killed.

DONALD M. CALL,

Second Lieutenant, Company B, Tank Corps. Lieut. Call was decorated for conspicuous bravery in action near Varennes, France, September 26, 1918. During an operation against enemy machine gun nests west of Varennes, Lieut. Call, then corporal, was in a tank with an officer, when half of the turret was knocked off by a direct artillery hit. Choked by gas from the high explosive shell, he left the tank and took cover in a shell hole thirty yards away. Seeing that the officer did not follow, and thinking that he might be alive, Corp. Call returned to the tank under intense machine gun and shell fire and carried the officer over a mile under machine gun and sniper fire to safety. Lieut. Call's home is at Larchmont Manor, N. Y.

CHARLES DISALVO,

Private, Company B, 354th Infantry. Private Disalvo (deceased) was decorated for conspicuous gallantry in action near Remonville, France, November 1, 1918. When the combat group, of which he was a member, had been halted by enemy machine guns, Private Disalvo alone charged forward. Attacking the nest, he killed one gunner and forced the rest to surrender. His act enabled the group to continue their advance. During the charge on the nest he was so seriously wounded that he died on the field. His widow lives at 3305 Arlington avenue, St. Louis, Mo.

JOHN J. KELLY,

Private 7th Company, 6th Regiment, U. S. M. C. Private Kelly was decorated for gallantry in action at Blanc Mont Ridge, France, October 3, 1918. Private Kelly ran through our own barrage 100 yards in advance of the front line and attacked an enemy machine gun nest, killing the gunner with a grenade, shooting another member of the crew with his pistol and returned through the barrage with eight prisoners. Private Kelly's home is at 6140 Kimbark avenue, Chicago, Ill.

TESTING FUEL SYSTEM AND ADJUSTING CARBURETOR IN OPERATING AN ENGINE

A Gasoline Engine Furnishing Power to Pump Water.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

When an examination has shown that a good spark is being obtained at the right time, the next step is to see whether the engine is receiving the proper mixture of fuel and air. Many carburetors are made so that it is easy to remove the cover and see whether there is gasoline in the bowl, and where this is possible it is the easiest way to determine whether the fuel supply is all right up to that point. Other types of carburetor have tight covers, but are equipped with small petcocks, by opening which one can determine whether a supply of fuel is available.

If there is no fuel in the carburetor, either the tank is empty or there is some obstruction in the pipe line between the tank and the carburetor.

Water in Gasoline System.

To see that the carburetor contains a liquid which looks like gasoline, however, is not enough, as water and gasoline look very much alike, and it is not at all uncommon for water to be present in the gasoline system. Neither does this water always enter the system when it is being filled, as is generally supposed. It is often the result of condensation of moisture on the sides of the gasoline tank, which runs down and settles at the lowest points in the system. This may be in the bottom of the carburetor, in the supply pipe, or in the strainer, or settling chamber. Where strainers or settling chambers are provided, these should be drained and cleaned frequently, especially in cold weather, when any water present may cause considerable trouble by freezing.

For Removing Water.

A petcock on the carburetor is a good means for removing any water which may have settled at the bottom of the bowl of the carburetor, and which, when present, will cause difficulty in starting. When making a test in this way, it is usually advisable to allow enough gasoline to run through to make sure that the carburetor has a full supply, as sometimes a partial stoppage of the pipe will allow a small amount of gasoline to get by into the carburetor, but not enough to allow the engine to start easily. Allowing a half-cupful of fuel to run through it eliminates this possibility. It is easy to ascertain whether water is present in the carburetor by catching in a glass bottle or tumbler the liquid which runs through when the petcock is open. Any water present will settle at the bottom of the glass and a thin line will be visible between the water and the gasoline.

Air Is Important.

It is not enough merely to have fuel in the carburetor; it must be mixed with the proper amount of air as it is drawn into the combustion chamber. It sometimes happens that the needle valve is closed or stopped with dirt, and that while there is fuel in the carburetor none can get into the combustion chamber. If the engine has a petcock leading into the combustion chamber, by opening this and cranking the engine a few times one can tell by smelling the escaping air whether gasoline is entering the chamber. The same result can be obtained by smelling the exhaust when the engine is turned over, or by removing a spark plug, closing the hole during the suction stroke and opening it during the compression stroke.

Make Engine Start.

By alternately opening and closing the needle valve, first being careful to note the original position so that it will be possible to readjust it if necessary, it is easy to see whether a different mixture will make the engine start. Or, when there is doubt whether enough fuel is entering the cylinder, a small quantity of gasoline (about a teaspoonful) may be poured into the combustion chamber through the priming cock or spark-plug hole and allowed to stand for a minute or two to vaporize and mix with the air before cranking the engine. If then one or two explosions occur and no more, it is an indication that only the priming has burned, and that fuel is not being furnished in sufficient quantity through the carburetor.

Mixture Too Rich.

It sometimes happens that too rich a mixture of fuel and air enters the combustion chamber, which is practically as bad as no fuel at all, as the rich mixture cannot be exploded by the spark. This does not often happen with a cold engine and with the grades of fuel now on the market, but it is not at all uncommon with a warm engine. There are several ways of overcoming this difficulty. Closing the needle valve and cranking the engine a few times will remove the rich mixture quickly and replace it with practically pure air. Removing a spark plug or opening a petcock leading into the combustion chamber and then cranking the engine slowly a few times, may answer the purpose, although as long as the needle valve is open some fuel will continue to be drawn into the cylinders.

Testing the Compression.

It seldom happens that the compression of an engine suddenly becomes so poor through ordinary wear as to make it impossible to start with the methods commonly used. An open valve, however, will bring about this result. Anyone who has ever started a gasoline engine when it was in good working order should be able to tell at once whether the compression is entirely gone as soon as he undertakes to crank the engine. When compression suddenly fails it is probable that the trouble is due to leaky piston rings or valves and the remedy is usually obvious when once the cause is located. The hiss made by the escaping air during the compression stroke is often enough to indicate the place where it is escaping.

PROPER VARIETY OF COTTON

Campaign Being Waged in Louisiana to Secure Planting of Only High-Yielding Varieties.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Because the best yielding varieties of cotton produce 20, 30, and even 40 per cent more than the poor varieties, as shown by experienced results, a campaign is being waged in Louisiana by the State Agricultural college, in co-operation with the United States department of agriculture, to secure the planting of only high-yielding varieties. It is emphasized that whatever variety is planted, it should be pure; that is, every stalk should be similar in appearance and in productive capacity to every other stalk. The mixed or hybrid variety will never do this, for many of the stalks will be barren or will be "shy" producers. It is also emphasized that the cotton grower should not depend wholly upon improved seed as his means for increasing yields, for a fertile soil is the most important feature in successful cotton growing. "It is a very poor policy," say officials in charge of the campaign, "to plant very poor land in cotton at all."

WHITELASH FOR HEN HOUSE

Disinfectant Given to Put Coop and Fixtures in Sanitary Condition—Use Pump.

The following disinfectant whitelash may be used to put the poultry house and fixtures in a sanitary condition: Five quarts cream of lime, one quart kerosene, one pint coal tar disinfectant and equal parts of water. This is applied with a force pump if possible, as this method will drive the material into every part of the interior of the house. The doors and windows are left open for a couple of hours in order that the house may become thoroughly dry. The floor and nests are then retiered and the birds allowed to go back into the house.

MAINTAIN A FARM WOODLOT

Proven by Experience That 10 Per Cent of Farm Area Should Be Devoted to Trees.

No farm acre should be idle. All land may be made to respond with that product which it is most capable of sustaining. In the case of the non-agricultural and rough farm land, a portion of it may be maintained in a farm woodlot. Experience has proved that 10 per cent of the farm area should be maintained in tree cover, used for woodlot purposes. Still other land thinly set with trees or without forest cover, but agriculturally unprofitable, may well be devoted to special tree crops, and among these are the nut-bearing trees.

"KAISER" PEA CHANGES NAME

Variety Known as "McAdams" and Are as Widely Distributed as Liberty Bonds.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Farmers who want to buy quantities of the variety of field pea introduced several years ago by the United States department of agriculture from Germany, and then known as the "Kaiser" pea, will save trouble by not using that name any more. These peas are now known as "McAdams," and they are as widely distributed through the Northwest as Liberty bonds, which caused the substitution in nomenclature.

The time is at hand for taking out summer clothes that have been packed away and packing away winter garments that are to do further service in another season. And this is the time, of all times, to go out after that frightful pest, the moth, that works so much havoc from year to year, and to kill off insects and eggs. All garments that can be washed and ironed should be made clean by this process before packing, and the ironing is to be thoroughly done with a hot iron. Garments cleaned by several immersions in gasoline may be relied upon to be free of animal life, and sunlight is fatal, it is said, to the moth, so a good airing in sun and wind will be practical for garments that will not fade.

But the moth takes up its abode in closets, baseboards, door and window casings, and all sorts of crevices; in carpets, furniture and hangings, and is hard to dislodge.

Gasoline is a very effective destroyer of the insect and its eggs and does no harm to the furniture, woodwork or hangings that are washed with it. It is a dangerous remedy to handle unless the right precautions are taken, but it will make a flash of moths in furniture and is the most convenient remedy to use.

Choose a clear, bright day and have all the doors and windows in the rooms to be treated wide open. See that there is no fire or burning gas jet in the house or flame from any source. Take an oil can, with a long spout or an old tea kettle, and pour a stream of gasoline along all crevices where the moths might be lodged. Gasoline may be sprayed over chairs, couches, or anywhere else that is difficult to get at. Hangings should be sprayed and then hung in the wind to allow the odor to blow away. Closets should have very special and thorough going over, as moths find lodgment in them, more frequently than in any other parts of the house. Let windows and doors remain open until the odor of the gasoline has escaped.

Fumigating with sulphur is another remedy that ought to kill the pests. A closet that is infected may be rid of them by burning sulphur candles in it. Close the door and stop up the cracks about it after the candles are lit. Set three or four of them on the floor and let them burn to the bottom. After the fumigating, air the closet thoroughly. In the meantime examine the clothes taken from it and treat suspected pieces to a dose of gasoline.

Dainty Aprons of Silk.

Just why serving afternoon tea requires a silken apron is a mystery, but that the little accessory is altogether fascinating and adds charm to the most enchanting of hostesses is very clear. Picture a straight knee-length apron of white taffeta striped in inch-wide ribbon of black velvet and banded and sashed with the same. Why, it's irresistible! Such a frivolity makes an unusual gift. The width of these aprons is generous; the edges all but meeting at the back. A pretty one for home use can be made from an old silk frock, for, of course, any color is permissible.

Brocade Jersey Sweater.

Some of the smart new sweaters are made of a sort of jersey silk brocade into a soft pattern. These sweaters are made with great simplicity; depending on the attractiveness of the fabric to give them charm.

Georgette Blouses Hold Center of Stage

Sometimes alone and sometimes in the company of other fine fabrics, georgette crepe in blouses continues to hold the center of the stage in spring styles. Its part in the drama of fashions is unimpeded and made interesting by all sorts of embellishments. Silk embroidery—bead embroidery, needlework, lace—in frills and insets—tucks and other dainties, small buttons, are all among the available things that contribute toward the success of the star performer. And the variety of designs is interesting. In fact, if variety is the spice of life in fashions, then life is highly spiced this spring, whenever way one may look.

One cannot stray far in a water shop without coming upon blouses in the darker colored crepe among the many in white, pink and flesh. And among the darker waists there are always navy blue models that inspire a longing to possess them in every woman of well-regulated taste. The always lovely combination of navy blue and beige is here again, and navy with American Beauty glows among the successes of the season's color combinations. Beige combines well with many stronger colors.

In the blouse pictured a vest of satin, and odd cuffs of it, matching the crepe in color, help out in the construction of the model. Satin-covered buttons and both silk and bead embroidery make a rich finish for it. It is a good choice when one is looking for a dressy blouse to match a tailored suit in color.

For utility blouses voile deserves to be given much consideration. It is as dainty as georgette and will stand the strain of wear and constant laundering better than anything else. It pays to buy a fine quality and to put handwork into its making and decoration, since these are the things that make a blouse high grade.

Julia Bottomley

For the Young Girl.

Simple evening dresses and dance frocks play an important part in the wardrobe of the young woman and, for the spring, pompadour taffetas are very popular. Easter is quite late this year and evening frocks selected for post-Easter festivities may be very summery in character. When pompadour taffeta is selected, only the one material is used, except where filmy net is used to drape the top of bodice and edge the short puffed taffeta sleeves. Many charming little dance frocks are made of fine white net, trimmed fancifully with puffings of taffeta ribbon applied in boy's knot designs, etc., on both skirt and bodice.

Oilcloth Bags and Rag Bags.

Oilcloth shopping bags, made of black, shiny oilcloth, gaily painted with brilliant flowers in red, yellow, green and blue, are decidedly cheerful and make the task of marketing a brighter one.

HELD CHILDREN'S HANDS ON STOVE

Chicago Father Uses Unusual Method of Pedagogy in Rearing Family.

Chicago.—Three small children, who were the unconscious cause of the arrest of their father, Joseph Bessinger of Chicago, cowered behind the skirts of their mother in court while the prisoner explained to the judge the method of pedagogy he used in rearing his family. Little Frank, Michael and Susie showed their scabby hands with the marks of the burns they received a month ago when their father punished them.

Bessinger admitted that, angered by the loss of a pair of curtains to which the children had set fire while playing with matches, he held their hands on a hot stove while they screamed with pain.

"I wanted to teach them a lesson," he declared.

Despite the sympathy bestowed on the children by the court attaches, Mrs. Bessinger defended her husband, who was fined $200 and costs, but the payment of the fine was postponed while an investigation was made.

"He earns our living," the mother declared. "Don't send him to prison."

MANIAC WRECKS A CHURCH

Smashes Stained Windows and Pews in Pennsylvania Institution With Crowbar.

Philadelphia.—Becoming violently insane while seated in a hotel in Carbondale, August Puren, thirty-three years old, standing more than six feet in height and of a most powerful physique, ran wild through the streets and did considerable damage to the post office and the Presbyterian church before he was subdued.

Puren first dashed into the post office, where he smashed every window in the building. Rushing from the post office he picked up an iron crowbar on the street and entered the fashionable Presbyterian church.

Here he smashed the pulpit, church pews, stained glass windows, and tore the pulpit Bible and hymn books to shreds until five policemen subdued him.

He said he was depressed because his sweetheart had jilted him.

Longs 50 Years for Drink; Curiosity Is Now Satisfied

All his married life of 50 years John O'Reilly, seventy, of Kansas City, Mo., had been intending to get drunk, just to see how it would feel. Knowing nationwide prohibition was coming John decided delay was dangerous, so he carried out his long-cherished ambition.

Mrs. O'Reilly had him arrested. Husband and wife faced Judge Casimer Welch in court. John was a "good-natured" drunk, she said.

"In that case I'll release him," said the judge. "I'll never do it again, judge; my curiosity has been satisfied," O'Reilly said.

KEPT VOW NEVER TO WED

Wealthy Bachelor Left Gift to Girl Who Had Rejected Him Years Ago.

New Bedford, Mass.—"I shall never marry another woman," Charles Wallace told the sweetheart of his boyhood, Miss Nancy Butler, when she broke off their engagement in New Bedford, Mass., many years ago. Miss Butler soon after moved to Providence, R. I., where she was twice married. Fourteen years ago she saw Mr. Wallace for the last time.

A few days ago she was notified that Mr. Wallace had died in Manchester, N. H., a wealthy bachelor, and that in his will he had made a bequest of $10,000 and his automobile to the woman he had loved in his youth.

Forgot What He Needed.

From the Republican, Mt. Gilead, Ohio: The editor had an interesting experience some time ago, when a young man came to this office and asked for a copy of the Morrow County Republican. He scrutinized it carefully when a copy was handed him, and then said: "Now I know!"

"What is it that you were looking for?" we then inquired. "My wife sent me after a bottle of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy, and I forgot the name. I went to several stores and the clerks named over everything in the line on the shelf except Chamberlain's. I'll try again, and I'll never go home without Chamberlain's Cough Remedy."

The Republican would suggest to the proprietors of stores, that they post their clerks, and never let them substitute. Customers lose faith in stores where substituting is permitted, to say nothing of the injustice to makers of good goods and the disappointment of customers. Adv.
