STATE STAYS DRY BY BIG MAJORITY

The Dry Majority in Sylvan Township Was 528.

The dry majority in the state is reported to about 115,000. In Washtenaw county it totaled 6,829. In the entire county only four voting precincts cast a majority vote for the amendment, the townships of Freedom and Lodi, and the second and fifth wards of Ann Arbor.

The county road system was adopted by a majority of 10,629.

At the election in Sylvan Monday, there were 1105 votes cast out of a registration of 1300. For the state ticket the republicans cast 691, democrats 221, social party 24, prohibition 31.

As there was no democratic township nomination made the republicans had everything their own way.

The amendment authorizing the state to borrow money for highway purpose and issue bonds therefor, received 637 yes, and 279 no.

The amendment in regard to the increase or decrease of salaries of public officers received 286 for, and 578 against.

The "wet" amendment received 265 for and 794 against. The wet vote was two less than two years ago.

The county road system question received 682 for, and 198 against.

At the township meeting the clerk read the annual report, after which the supervisor announced the board's recommendations. The first was that there be $2,000 raised in the contingent fund, $2,000 in the highway improvement fund, $1,500 in the road repair fund, $500 in the town hall fund, $800 in the poor fund. These were all voted with the exception of the road repair fund, which was increased to $2,000.

The following special appropriations were voted:

That $200 be raised for gravel for road from Musbach's corner to Cavanaugh lake; $500 for work on road south and west from Wolf's corner to the township line; $500 for the road from Kelly's crossing west to C. Kalmbach's woods; $200 for the road south from the M. C. R. R. to the territorial road, known as the Hoppe road; $500 for gravel for Washington street in the village of Chelsea.

Lincoln Township.

In this township the republicans elected everything with the exception of clerk. The following was the vote:

Supervisor, R. T. Wheelock, r, 184, F. C. Haist, d, 155; clerk, Irven Weiss, r, 133, Paul Nicholas, d, 205; treasurer, Oscar Lindauer, r, 183, Fred Weink d, 154; highway commissioner, W. W. Patterson, r, 173, Emanuel Wacker, d, 163; justice of the peace, E. D. Chipman, r, 187, Wm. Pidd, d, 148; member board of review Sherman Pierce, r, 187, Emanuel Eisenman, d, 150. On the wine and beer amendment there were 107 for and 212 against; on the bonding proposition there were 175 yes and 204 no; on the county road system there were 201 for and 88 against.

Lyndon.

The entire republican ticket was elected in Lyndon. The result follows:

Supervisor, W. B. Collins, r, 137, James Howlett, d, 123; clerk, Spencer Boyce, r, 143, John Prendergast, d, 117; treasurer, E. E. Rowe, r, 151, Florence Greening, d, 106; highway commissioner, Grant Kimmel, r, 132, H. V. Watts, d, 127; justice of the peace, D. N. Collins, r, 149, E. H. McKernan, d, 110; member board of review, Theodore Mohrlock, r, 149, Geo. Beaman, d, 110; overseer highways, John W. Hart, r, 145, Herbert Young, d, 115; constables, Wm. Hudson, Arthur Allen, Ralph Hudson, Walter Bond, republicans.

The bonding amendment received 114 for and 128 against; in regard to officers' salaries, 135 for and 113 against; on the wet amendment there were 71 for and 182 against; on the county road system there were 101 yes and 93 no.

Freedom.

The entire republican ticket was elected in Freedom, as follows:

Supervisor, B. Bertie, r, 180, E. Loefler, d, 72; clerk, Ken Breitenwecker, r, 166, Gutlich Hornung, d, 57; treasurer, Oscar Stahler, r, 140, Harold Roller, d, 110; highway commissioner, Ernest Mann, r, 171, R. W. Sedt, d, 76; justice of the peace, W. H. Eisenman, r, 153, Lewis Geyer, d, 97; member board of review, John Heuser, r, 153, Christ Gran, d, 96; overseer of highways, Henry Orbring, r, 166, Henry Steffany, d, 88; constables, Wm. Altengrunt, r, Oscar Stahler, r, Wm. Glutz, r, Oscar Buss, r.

NEWS OF "OUR BOYS"

Dear Mr. Hoover: It is surprising how swiftly the time flies by. It does not seem so long ago since I wrote you last. I have kept a diary of all my mail received and sent out, and unless I have forgotten to make an entry of it, I find that I have not written you a letter since September 8, 1918, so I must ask your pardon for such tardiness, and I will endeavor to give you a few lines of interest from that date, over six months ago.

At my last writing our section was living at Borsio, at the foot of Mt. Grappa, and I was driving up the mountain. As I described my work and Mt. Grappa in the former letter, I will not take up your space and time in repeating same again.

Things dragged along quietly up to Grappa until the preparations for the big offensive began, and believe me, when the Italians began getting ready to "blow things up" the roads for miles were packed with troops, auto trucks loaded with ammunition, great numbers of tractors pulling cannon of every conceivable caliber, fuel, etc., up the mountain.

On the morning of October 24, at 5 o'clock the Italians launched their offensive, and I cannot put into words the amount of noise made by these cannon being fired from every corner and hole in that huge mountain. The flashes lit up the sky and made it like daylight, and a heavy thunder continued for several hours, and about noon the wounded began to come in, and everything we had on wheels was put into service.

Of course during this time the Austrians were replying in great style with their artillery. One shot landed right over the posts on the peak of Grappa, an exploding shrapnel, and killed nine and wounded fifty-six. I'll say that shell paid for itself. The roads closer to the front (that is, about, half way up the mountain) were strewn with dead and dying men and mules. The sight was horrible.

One of my companions was driving along the road going up to the peak for another load, and a shell came about thirty yards ahead of him. Three men were coming down the road and were blown to pieces, all that could be found was one foot in a shoe, and a big hole in the road.

We had twelve ambulances running twenty-four hours a day from the 24th to the 28th inclusive and carried 2,285 wounded, traveling over 7319 miles, so you will see we were not idle. Thank God, that was the last offensive and was very successful.

The second or third day after the Italians started and went over the top, the enemy could not be found. They beat a hasty retreat, leaving their wounded for us to take care of. Saturday, November 9, I took a trip to Vicenza to do some shopping and give the town the "once over." I had a fine time.

November 14 I was sent with another driver to Arten and Fontasso, the other side of Mt. Grappa and across the Piave river to hunt the sick. The post was discontinued on that same day. While there, however, I collected some more souvenirs, among them being some kind of hay and herb, which was all the Austrians and inhabitants around here got to eat for months, and many were dying from starvation.

Tuesday, November 19, we went sightseeing through this same town of Ponte Della Sera, in English, "The Bridge of Evening," thence on to Arsio, Primolano, Cisono, Coticella, Pove and down through the Brenta Valley. A most interesting trip of seventy miles.

November 27th about fourteen of us paid a visit to Venice and had our dinner on the U. S. S. Birmingham, and it was a treat to be once again in conversation with someone who could talk a regular language.

Venice is nothing like as pretty as the pictures would have you believe, the war probably being to blame for some of it. If a fellow was to try to run a Ford in some of those alleys I think he would say that was one place a fiver couldn't go. There are no streets there, only alleys about three feet wide and canals. Of course I had a ride in a gondola.

On November 26, twenty-seven of us were presented with the Italian war cross for our part on Mt. Grappa. The medal is very plain and neat, being on a blue and white ribbon, and made of bronze. I think I am the only Chelsea boy on the Italian front and to receive their war cross.

On December 14 five others and myself were detailed to drive six ambulances from Borsio and follow the Italian troops, artillery and infantry, toward Udine. This trip afforded me a wonderful opportunity to see the country in passing, as we had to drive about three miles an hour through the day, and at night transport the men taken sick en route to the rear. I will give a few names of the towns passed through, which are on most maps of Italy: Paderobba; across the Piave river to Falza Di Biave; Susegana; Conegli-

KILLED BY BULLET FROM MACHINE GUN

Corporal Herbert McKune Was Killed in Great Battle.

Mrs. H. T. McKune, of Lyndon, received the following confirmation of the death of her son, Herbert, who was a member of the U. S. Marines: Niederbreitbach, Germany, March 6, 1919.

Mrs. H. T. McKune, Chelsea, Michigan. My Dear Mrs. McKune:—

I have your letter of February 11, regarding your son, Corporal Herbert McKune.

What you want me to tell you I know is just the facts as I know them, so I will recount the happenings of that day just as they were. In the action of October 4th, your son was wounded quite seriously in the left breast by a machine gun bullet. He was carried to the rear to a first aid station where he was bandaged up and placed in an ambulance going to the hospital, but before he reached there he had passed away.

His wound was a clean one caused by a steel jacketed bullet, which does not tear or mutilate. Your son was in one of the best divisions in the A. E. F., and one of the hardest hit.

Your sorrow is great I am sure, but as you no doubt know before this, your son was wounded in one of the greatest battles of the war, where our losses were heavy, that he fought bravely to the last and died fighting for a cause that he knew was right.

Very truly yours,
Gy. Sergt. W. T. Bennett.

KILLED IN AUTO ACCIDENT.

The friends of Miss Celia Mullen of Detroit, were shocked Saturday to learn that she had been killed in an automobile accident the night before. She was on her way to Toledo with a friend, Mrs. Corie Guza, whose home was in Toledo, when the automobile left the road at a curve and she was pinned beneath the machine.

Miss Mullen was born in Chelsea, April 12, 1891, and was the youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James T. Mullen, for many years residents of Chelsea.

She was graduated from the Chelsea high school with the class of 1909. For the past eight years she has resided in Detroit.

She is survived by her mother, two brothers, Henry and John, three sisters, Mrs. F. P. Girard and Miss Rose Mullen, all residents of Detroit, and Mrs. Fred Barth, of Lima. Mrs. G. E. Sumner, of Chelsea, is an aunt.

The remains were brought here on Monday morning and the funeral was held at St. Mary church, Rev. Father VanDyke conducting the services. Interment at Mt. Olivet cemetery.

MICHAEL J. HOWE.

Michael J. Howe was born in Sylvan township, March 30, 1866, and died on Saturday, April 5, 1919, of heart trouble.

Mr. Howe was well known here, having made his home in this vicinity until four years ago when with his family he moved to Detroit.

He was united in marriage with Miss Mary E. Wade, October 24, 1894. He is survived by his wife, three sons, one of whom is with the army in France, and three daughters, and three sisters.

The remains were brought here Tuesday morning and the funeral was held in St. Mary church, Rev. Father VanDyke conducting the services. Interment at Mt. Olivet cemetery.

For Colds, Coughs or Influenza

Do you feel weak and unequal to the work ahead of you? Do you still cough a little, or does your nose bother you? Are you pale? Is your blood thin and watery? Better put your body into shape. Build strong!

An old, reliable blood-maker and health tonic made from wild roots and herbs, is Dr. Figue's Golden Medical Discovery. This "nature remedy" comes in tablet or liquid form. It will build up your body, cure your cold, and protect you from disease germs which lurk everywhere. One of the active ingredients of this transparent, odorless and tasteless wild cherry bark with stimulants, which is as good for the lungs and for coughs, also Oregon grape root, blood root, worm root, Queen's root, — all skillfully combined in the Medical Discovery. These roots have a direct action on the stomach, improving digestion and assimilation. These herbal extracts in the "Discovery" aid in blood-making, and are best for scrofula. By improving the blood they aid in throwing off an attack of influenza.

Catarh should be treated, first, as a blood disease, with this alternative. Then, in addition, the nose should be washed daily with Dr. Figue's Catarrh Remedy. Send for trial pkg. of Medical Discovery Tablets or Catarrh Tablets to Dr. Figue, Invalids' Hotel, Buffalo, N. Y.

In a Fix

"What are you puzzling over, John?" asked his wife.

"Why, that Mrs. Newrich we gave the St. Bernard pup to writes asking if it should be fed on meat or dog biscuits."

"Well, on biscuits, shouldn't it?"

"Yes, but she spells biscuit with a 'k' and if I spelled the word right it might hurt her feelings."

"Oh, say meat, then."

"But she spells meat with two 'e's'."

Result of Work

"Maud Ketchum's hands do not show any signs of toil." "The one with the engagement ring on it does."

Health Was Shattered

Mrs. Hayes Was Discouraged Until Doan's Made Her Well.

"I was in awful shape from kidney trouble," says Mrs. Frank Hayes, 41 Davenport St., Boston, Mass. "When I got up out of a chair, I felt as though someone had stuck a knife into the small of my back and it fairly took my breath away."

"The kidney secretions passed often and only a little at a time. They were so acrid that I would sometimes feel as though I could hear a black arrow. They deposited brickbat-like sediment and their odor was something awful. My complexion became sallow and I had large boils under my eyes."

"I was troubled with spells of gasping for breath and had such dizzy attacks I often fell right over. Spots floated before my eyes and I got so nervous I couldn't stand any noise. I cried over nothing at all, became irritable and imagined all sorts of things. My health was shattered and I was quite discouraged."

"I continued to grow worse in spite of any treatment and came pretty near dying several times. After several months of this horror, I heard about Doan's Kidney Pills. I used a dozen boxes of Doan's and was cured. I was entirely well and have enjoyed good health ever since."

HOW CAN YOU TELL YOUR FAVORITE TOBACCO?

As Plain as the Nose on Your Face—Just Smell It

Smokers do not have to put tobacco in their pipes to find out if they like it. They can just rub the tobacco between the palms of their hands and smell it. The nose is an infallible guide to smoking enjoyment.

All smoking tobaccos employ some flavoring "to improve the flavor and burning qualities of the leaves." To quote the Encyclopedia Britannica: "Naturally, there is considerable difference in the kind of flavorings used, and the nose quickly detects this difference. TUXEDO tobacco uses the purest, most wholesome, and delicious of all flavorings—chocolate. And the almost universal liking for chocolate in a great measure explains the widespread popularity of TUXEDO tobacco."

Carefully aged, old Burley tobacco, plus a dash of pure chocolate, gives TUXEDO tobacco a pure fragrance your nose can quickly distinguish from any other tobacco. Try it and see.

Frocks for Little Girls

The very pretty styles in dresses for little girls have tempted many mothers this spring into buying ready-made outfits for their small daughters. The utmost that can be done with gingham, chambray, dimities, and all the thin white fabrics as well, has been done by the designers of these enticing frocks, and that is saying a great deal. Busy mothers of today, no matter how exacting their taste in clothes, are able to buy an entire outfit for the little girl's summer wardrobe, for among the displays there are frocks of all varieties of material in abundance of differing designs and prices.

There is a saving of the cost of labor in making children's frocks at home and this is an item that is considered in many households where the sewing is done by members of the family. The three pretty dresses shown here are examples of good designing and the materials they are made of may be found in all the good stores. They are cut at all different to make. One of the frocks is a checked gingham with a white ground and crossbar in a color, light green, pink, and blue are the most popular color combinations with white, but there are tan and white, red and white, lavender and white, and others to select from. The gingham frock is made with a plain waist and short sleeves. It has a "halter" neck, with a wide plaited front of organdy and a surprise front with a short band set on it having three flat buttons at each end.

Dimity or an English print will make a pretty frock like the figured cotton dress pictured. This also has a plain waist with a wide girdle of the goods and a sailor collar with a narrow lace about the edge. Flat tabs stitched to the waist at each side make a very neat finish besides adding strength and durability to the dress.

There are many sorts of white goods that will serve to make the white frock shown in the picture. The box-pleat at each side and short sleeves, odd pockets and organdy collar and cuffs, decorated with fancy stitching, make this pretty model interesting.

Covert Cloth Popular

Covert cloth riding habits are said to be the thing for the coming season.

Ruffles and Frills

Ruffles except for sport wear show more and more ruffles and frills.

A Charm to Summer

There is a lot of satisfaction in a plain and becoming silk hat, and they are made in many shapes of different character so that every one may be suited. They live one over from season to season, and stand a little buffeting by the weather, without much injury. They are always ready for putting on, traveling by land, and make a most sea-going bit of headwear. One smart silk hat at the beginning of the spring season will prove a good millinery investment. Two of these silk hats are shown here, with a third hat of hair braid, very different from them in every way.

A pretty tan of navy blue tulle gives itself in the ranks of jaunty shapes with a small tan crown placed on a rakish angle on a wide head band. This model is shown with narrow braid of silk or chenille, couched on in a cross-hatch pattern as pictured or having this decoration replaced with narrow, cross-hatch tucks. A long silk tassel at the side dangles in the most irresponsible manner possible. This is a saucy hat. The other model in black tulle is much more dignified. It has a brim covered with knife-plated silk and a full, soft draped crown. Its trimmings is a short length of silk fringe set on at the side of the top crown. This is a sensible and serviceable hat made on a becoming shape.

The remaining example of headwear for summer is a wide-brimmed hair braid model made with a band of the braid. It has a wide flange of georgette about the under-brim, and is made in white and light pastel colors with the flange matching the braid. Velvet ribbon is extended from the top of the hat to the band and there is a wreath of flowers about the crown. Once more we have flower trimmed millinery along with other revivals of beautiful styles of the past. Hats like this add a charm to summer.

CLUB WORK WILL START BOY ON ROAD TO SUCCESS IN PRODUCTION OF BEST POULTRY

A Meeting of a Typical Poultry Club.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

That organized, agricultural club work among boys and girls is something more than a contest which ends with the season, but a continuous, constructive piece of work which eventually leads the club members into the business of farming and home-making is illustrated by the accomplishments of a poultry club member in Vermont.

Work of Vermont Boy.

In 1912 John Alexander joined the Vermont Poultry club in spite of the opposition of members of his own family, and in a number of instances, discouraging words from friends and neighbors who did not understand what club work meant to the American boy. He started with only a few settings of eggs, but two years later he was well on the road to success, for he had become the champion in his county in club work, having produced the best grade of birds and the most profit from his investment. In 1914 he exhibited some of his birds at the county fair, the poultry show and the state fair, and succeeded in winning a number of ribbons and first prizes. The following year he became the champion poultry club member of his state and was sent to New York city to the National Education association to tell how he did his work and what he thought of it. The following year he again won the state championship.

By this time his reputation in the poultry industry had spread to other states and he was selling settings of eggs throughout New England direct to consumers, and had built up a trade in the sale of birds for breeding purposes.

One year later, in 1917, he started out with a business of his own, using his own business cards, his own business stationery, and expanding his poultry plant two-fold. He became manager not only of his own poultry plant, which he developed rapidly, but found time to take a position as superintendent of the poultry farm at one of the state institutions.

WAY TO KEEP COUNTY ORGANIZATION ALIVE

Too Many Activities Are Liable to Result in Failure.

Some of Projects to Be Undertaken include Road Improvement, Agricultural Fairs, Improved Breeds of Stock, Etc.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

One important thing to be borne in mind is that no organization will continue to exist that does not have some definite plan of work and some definite purpose to accomplish. It should be remembered, however, that too many activities may result in failure. A few well-defined policies or purposes successfully carried to conclusion will mean permanency and success for these organizations. Those responsible for the county organization should lay their plans well into the future, and keep interest in the various local clubs active. Road improvement, county agricultural fairs, rural telephone systems, improved or consolidated schools, vocational education, standardized out-put and care for the county, improved breeds of live stock especially adapted to local conditions, cooperative marketing, public entertainments, and social welfare are some of the projects being undertaken by county organizations. It is not believed to be advisable for a county to undertake more than two or three of these at a time, or least not the first season.

Whatever is undertaken should be done well before new projects are launched. Get the movement well under way and it will be carried forward by its own momentum. The hard work will come at the start. After it is started all you will have to do will be to direct it into the proper channels.

WATER SUPPLY IS IMPORTANT

There Should Be Plenty for Home and Barn and It Should Be as Handy as Possible.

The water supply is very important. Not only should there be plenty of water for the home and the barn, but it should be convenient. Why not put in a system of water pipes and put water under pressure in the house and barn? You will find it so satisfactory that you are likely to wonder how you managed to get along without water handy.

PLANT COWPEAS WITH CORN

Nothing to Equal Them for Fattening or More Economical—Excellent for Horses.

In planting cowpeas with corn they are used mostly for pasture, especially for hogs. It is a question if anything is equal to them for fattening, or more economical. When properly cured for hay there is nothing better than cowpeas for dairy cows, and they also make excellent feed for horses. They are fine for pigs, mixed with corn, but for this the running kind is the most foliage, are the best.

SELECTION OF BEST VARIETIES OF SEED

Importance Is Indicated in Number of Experiments.

Variation of Yields Found at Different Western Stations With Wheat, Oats and Barley—Results of Experiments.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

The importance of selecting a crop variety that is suited to the section in which it is grown is indicated in a number of varietal experiments conducted at various field stations last year. In co-operative experiments at the Dickinson station, North Dakota, a number of varieties of common wheat, grown under similar conditions produced yields which varied from 19.4 bushels an acre to 11.3 bushels. The variations in yields of varieties of durum wheat were from 20.2 bushels an acre to 13.2 bushels. A wide variation was obtained in similar experiments with oats, the range being from 49.5 bushels to 35.4 bushels; with barley, 73.1 bushels to 41.4 bushels.

At the Cheyenne field station in Wyoming varietal experiments with winter wheat gave yields which ranged from an average of 55.5 bushels an acre to 28.4 bushels; with spring wheat, 41.2 bushels to 15.4 bushels; with oats, 70.6 bushels to 35.4 bushels; with barley, 73.1 bushels to 41.4 bushels.

At the Nepht station in Utah, co-operative results with varieties of winter wheat showed a variation ranging from 22.3 bushels an acre to 2.2 bushels, and with spring wheat from 15.7 bushels to 6.3 bushels.

Similar experiments conducted in California with wheat showed a variation in yield ranging from 50 bushels an acre to 12.5 bushels. In a series of years the average yields of varieties usually do not vary so widely as these yields of a single year, but it is generally found that certain varieties give better average yields than others and are therefore more profitable.

MAKE WAR ON INSECT PESTS

Rubbish, Fence Corners, Hedge Rows and Accumulations of Vegetation Should Be Cleaned Up.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

During spring much may be accomplished in the control of certain insects affecting cereal and forage crops. Many of these insects spend the winter in rubbish, in fence corners, along hedge rows, and in accumulations of dried vegetation. For this reason, these should be thoroughly cleaned up and burned in order to kill the insects hiding therein.

In the upper Mississippi basin west of the river grasshopper eggs are frequently laid in large numbers along ditch banks, in creek tows, and in other limited uncultivated areas where they may be destroyed by disking thoroughly during the winter months. This method should be followed for destroying the eggs.

Acid-Stomach Steals Strength and Good Feelings From Millions

One of the worst features of acid-stomach is the real cause of the trouble. Naturally, the sensible thing to do is to strike right at the very cause of this trouble and clean the excess acid out of the stomach. There is a quick, easy way to do this. A wonderful new remedy quickly removes the excess acid without the slightest discomfort. It is EATONIC. Made in the form of tablets—they are good to eat—just like a bit of candy. They literally absorb the injurious excess acid and carry it away through the intestines. They also drive the blast out of the body—in fact you can fairly feel it work. Make a test of EATONIC in your own case today. Get a big box of EATONIC from your druggist. See for yourself how surely it brings quick relief in those painful attacks of indigestion, bitter heartburn, belching, disgusting food repeating, that awful bloated, lumpy feeling after eating and other stomach miseries. Banish all your stomach troubles so completely that you forget you have a stomach. Then you can eat what you like and digest your food in comfort without fear of distressing after effects.

If EATONIC does not relieve you, it will not cost you a penny. For can return it to your druggist and get your money back. So if you have the slightest question about your health—if you feel you are not getting all the strength out of your food—if you are not feeling lit-up, ready for your work, full of vim and vigor—do give EATONIC a fair trial this very day and see how much better you will feel.

Grow Wheat in Western Canada

One Crop Often Pays for the Land

Western Canada offers the greatest advantages to home seekers. Large profits are assured. You can buy on easy payment terms.

Fertile Land at $15 to $30 per Acre—Land similar to that which through many years has averaged from 20 to 45 bushels of wheat to the acre. Hundreds of acres are on record where in Western Canada a single crop has paid the cost of land and production. The Government of the Dominion and provinces of Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta want the farmer to prosper, and extend every possible encouragement and help to Grain Growing and Stock Raising.

Though Western Canada offers land at such low figures, the high prices of grain, cattle, sheep and hogs will remain.

Look for the purchase of stock may be had at low interest. There are good schools, best of market, free schools, churches, splendid climate, low taxation (none on improvements), the farmer to prosper, and extend every possible encouragement and help to Grain Growing and Stock Raising.

THIS LIFE MERELY PATCHWORK MEN OF SCIENCE PUZZLED

Pleasant to Think That in the By-and-By All Things Will Have Full Completion.

Life at best seems only a patchwork. By the time the artist learns to paint a picture which is considered worth while, his hand has become shaky, nervous or palsied and he cannot paint the thing in his heart for which, all his life, he had been preparing. By the time the business man has earned enough money to keep him in comfort for the rest of his days he has often lost his capacity to enjoy the fruits of his labor. When the mother has raised her boy to manhood her offspring leaves her for the sake of someone he loves better, and by the time the man learns to really appreciate his mother she is taken from him. Nothing seems ever quite finished, quite mature, quite as it should be in this world. Perhaps in the by-and-by on another planet we shall all find that every incomplete thought and work of our lives has been fitted into the completed temple of life which we may then inhabit forever.—Los Angeles Times.

Total premiums on fire insurance policies written in Michigan last year amounted to $14,749,490, while the total fire loss in the state was $5,146,071. The loss ratio of all 1918 policies writing fire insurance in last year was $5.58 per cent.

If You Need a Medicine You Should Have the Best

Have you ever stopped to reason why it is that so many products that are extensively advertised, all at once drop out of sight and are soon forgotten? The reason is plain—the article did not fulfill the promise of the manufacturer. This applies more particularly to a medicine.

A medicinal preparation that has real curative value almost sells itself, as like an endless chain system the remedy is recommended by those who have been benefited, to those who are in need of it.

A prominent druggist says "Take for example Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, a preparation I have sold for many years and never hesitate to recommend for in almost every case it shows excellent results, as many of my customers testify. No other kidney remedy has so large a sale."

According to sworn statements and verified testimony of thousands who have used the preparation, the success of Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root is due to the fact so many people claim, that it fulfills almost every wish in overcoming kidney, liver and bladder ailments; corrects urinary troubles and neutralizes the uric acid which causes rheumatism.

You may receive a sample bottle of Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root by Parcel Post, Address: Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., and enclose ten cents; also mention this paper. Large and medium size bottles for sale at all drug stores.—Adv.

The Usual Thing.

"Eh-ah! Spring is almost in hand," admitted the landlord of the Terminus tavern. "Those gents over yonder on the stony side of the court house are engaged in garden talk. They are settling each other as to what vegetables are the most profitable and the surest to yield abundantly, those that are the least affected by dry weather or long wet spells, and those which will soonest produce food for the table."

"Ah! Then there will be a great deal of gardening done this spring?" commented the suspicious guest.

"No. They will do a great deal of talking about doing a great deal of gardening until it is too late to do any, and then they will put it off until next spring."

—Kansas City Star.

BOSCHEE'S SYRUP

Why use ordinary cough remedies when Boschee's Syrup has been used so successfully for fifty-one years in all parts of the United States for coughs, bronchitis, colds settled in the throat, especially lung troubles? It gives the patient a good night's rest, free from coughing, with easy expectation in the morning, gives nature a chance to soothe the inflamed parts, throw off the disease, helping the patient to regain his health. Made in America and sold for more than half a century.—Adv.

Faith in Britain.

Through the darkest days of war the inhabitants of Lille never lost hope that their town would come to be delivered from the invader by the British army.

An English officer remarked to his French host in that town that the people of Lille must have learned a fair amount of German during the enemy occupation. "On the contrary, monsieur," was the quick reply, "as soon as the Boche entered our town we set ourselves to learn English."

—Montreal Herald.

The Substitute.

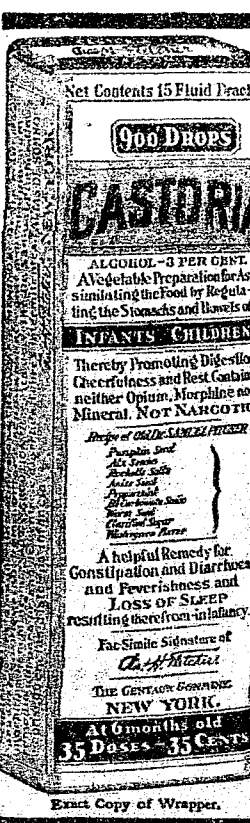

"Was that man who talks so much really overseas?"

"Not quite."

"What do you mean by that?"

"He is frequently half-sens over."

A rose by any other name would be just as expensive in midwinter.

Mr. and Mrs. L. G. Palmer spent Sunday in Ypsilanti.

H. E. Cooper, of Lansing, was a Chelsea visitor Monday.

Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Collins spent Monday in Detroit.

Mrs. Ed. Donahue, of Ann Arbor, spent the week-end with friends here.

Mrs. H. M. Amour and Mrs. P. W. Dierberger spent Wednesday in Ann Arbor.

Miss Margaret Sager, of Jackson, spent Sunday with Miss Regina Eppler.

Miss Dorothy Dancer spent the last of the week with relatives in Jackson.

Mr. and Mrs. William Atkinson and son George spent the week-end in Detroit.

Fred Breesande, of Detroit, spent the week-end with Mr. and Mrs. Fred Kantelemer.

Mrs. Wm. Campbell and Mrs. J. S. Gorman spent the first of the week in Grand Rapids.

Mrs. Wm. Cramer, of Cleveland, Ohio, is a guest at the home of her brother, Lewis Eisenman.

Dr. L. V. Riemschneider, of Detroit, and a party of friends, spent Sunday at Cavanaugh Lake.

Mrs. E. R. Chambers, who has been spending the winter at Hattiesburg, Miss., has returned to her home.

Mrs. Jns. Taylor and granddaughter, of Kalamazoo and granddaughter, the week with Mrs. J. C. Taylor.

Mrs. Wm. J. Balmer has gone for a short visit to her daughter's, Mrs. Chas. Scott Luzzon, at Port Huron.

Dr. Balmer was in Detroit Thursday attending a meeting of the board of managers of the Old Peoples' Home.

Mrs. R. W. Soot and daughter, of Freedom, are spending this week at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Lewick.

L. K. Taylor and son Russell of Detroit, spent Sunday with Mrs. J. C. Taylor. The young man has just returned from France.

A SMALL SIZED TORNADO.

For several hours this forenoon there was an exhibit on the Michigan Central tracks of several cars of war relics in charge of a guard of twenty returned soldiers and sailors.

There was a whippet or "baby" tank, anti-aircraft guns, siege guns, the famous French 75's, as well as trench mortars, howitzers, grenades, torpedoes, helmets and breastplates which were taken in battle. The exhibit was free to the public, and is to advertise the coming Victory loan.

Brooklyn—William Waterman took an hour to take a picture of the public square the other night. This is slower than Bill's usual speed but it was just right for the picture. He placed the camera in his stairway, opened the camera's right eye at midnight, closed it at 1 a. m. and the moonlight did the rest. The tones are softer than in a daylight picture and there are no flares on the square. Brooklyn Exponent.

Philip Kelley, of Cement City, has taken over the Rawleigh Remedy route formerly had by C. A. Capen through this locality, and will soon be meeting old friends of these remedies.

A WORD WITH WOMEN

Valuable Advice for Chelsea Readers.

Many a woman endures with noble patience the daily misery of backache, pains about the hips, blue, nervous spells, dizziness and urinary disorders, hopeless of relief because she doesn't know what is the matter.

It is not true that every pain in the back or hips is trouble "peculiar to the sex." Often when the kidneys get congested and inflamed, such aches and pains follow.

Then help the weakened kidneys. Don't expect them to get well alone.

Don't's Kidney Pills have won the praise of thousands of women. They are endorsed right in this locality. Read this woman's convincing statement:

Mrs. Elizabeth Haas, 543 S. Main St., Ann Arbor, says: "Some few years ago I found it necessary to use a kidney medicine. I was suffering from a weak and lame back and the least exertion made it ache. My kidneys acted irregularly too. The first box of Don't's Kidney Pills helped me and I bought more. They cured the complaint and for over two years I have been perfectly well."

Price 60c at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy, get Don't's Kidney Pills—the same that Mrs. Haas had. Foster-Milburn Co., Mfrs., Buffalo, N. Y.—Adv.

NEWS OF "OUR BOYS".

also; San Fior, Snelio; Casarsa, across the Tagliamento river to Morotto Di Tomba ten miles west of Udine.

I will not forget Falze di Piave very quickly, as another fellow and I started out from there about 5:30 p. m. with two loads of sick for Susagana. The hospital was full and they sent us to a place called Santa Lucia. We got lost on the road, as this was country we had never seen before, and when we did get there everything was shot to pieces and we had to drive to Treviso, where we finally got rid of them. We got back to Falze di Piave at 9 o'clock the following morning after driving all night and covering over 80 miles of new territory.

While at Merotto di Tomba I had my furlough and visited Rome, Naples, Pompeii, Mt. Vesuvius and Florence and had a wonderful time. Time does not permit me to commence any comment on what I saw. I was very busy running around every minute seeing all I could.

I have visited Udine quite often, and that city sure suffered in the war.

Another trip we took was into Austria to see one of the seven wonders of the world a very large cave, seven kilometers long and over 12,000 years old, at Adelsbrunn. I was also in Gorizia, Trieste, Monfalcone and Palmanova. I saw the first gas street lights I have seen in Italy in Trieste. This trip was on February 8 and 9 by ambulance.

February 23 we moved from Merotto di Tomba to Fanna, a little village at the foot of the mountains, about thirty miles west from the former town. This was a very pretty little place and about the cleanest one I have been in in Italy. They spoke German very freely.

March 7 we rejoined our section, after being away eleven weeks.

The section moved from Bors to Tricemo about six and one-half miles northeast of Udine, at the end of December.

March 8 we turned all our ambulances and trucks into headquarters, our first step towards coming home. I hope we will soon be back in the good old U. S. A. In the paper enclosed you will find marked, copy of a letter we six received for our services during our eleven weeks.

In addition to our war cruises, we have received a second citation which entitles us to wear the bronze crown of Victor Emanuel on our war cross ribbons. In all I have had a part in three citations.

Our food and surroundings continue to be the best. The weather cannot be beat, sunshine day in and day out. I am glad to say I am feeling in the best of health and anxiously waiting to return home.

I have written more now than I intended to when I sat down, and I think this will give you some idea how I am putting in my time. Now I will conclude with kindest regards to all my old friends.

Private John T. Willis, Section 527, U. S. A. Ambulance Service, American Exp. Forces, with Italian Army, Italy.

The following is the article mentioned in the above letter:

To the Command of the Ambulance Section of the American Army at Tricemo, (Section 527):

At the time when the six ambulances of the American Army subjected to this command came to serve with the Sanitation section of the 15th Infantry Division, it pleased me to address to the personnel of the Ambulance Service my warmest praises for the humanitarian work accomplished with willingness and spirit.

During the epoch days of the offensive of October, 1918, on Mt. Pertica, it was day and night indefatigable in the eager transportation of the numerous wounded, the majority of whom were carried in litters from the top of Grappa and from Cason Meda to the dressing stations of Romano Alto and of Crespano, heedless of the dangers of the artillery fire and of the hardships of the climate; afterwards it has shown the same zeal in the service of moving of the sick during the long transfer march of the Division from Bors-Crespano to Selegliano Merotto di Tomba during last December.

Moreover it has always maintained the most soldierly discipline and had the purest sentiment of comradeship for Italian soldiers. For these manifestations of a willingness and spirit of submission to discipline in work and conduct, it is my duty to express to the personnel of the six American ambulances my most sincere and heartfelt praises.

The Major General in Command of the 15th Infantry Division.

(Signed) Zampelli.

Drys Show Remarkable Gain Throughout State Since Election of 1916

ELECTION RETURNS FAVOR GOOD ROADS

REPUBLICANS CARRY STATE TICKET BY BIG MAJORITY—IDEAL DAY FOR VOTING.

WOMEN POLL BIG VOTE

Election Returns Coming in Slowly, Do to Large Vote Recorded Throughout Michigan.

Detroit—With returns struggling in, slowly from only a few precincts at midnight the D. U. R. purchase plan seemed to be leading a losing battle, though a close one, and the wet was apparently failing to make any such tremendous gains in Detroit and Wayne counties as they had hoped for while their proposition was being "smoked under" in the state returns.

Edward T. Fitzgerald announced that on unofficial returns from 15 scattered precincts the purchase plan had polled a trifling under 50 per cent of the vote. The proposition needs 60 per cent to carry.

First Official Figures.

Thirteen precincts, official, give the plan 1,917 yes and 535 no.

Fourteen scattered precincts of the city on the wet and dry amendment give 1,618 yes and 564 no.

Remembering of streets proposition had a vote of nearly three to one in the affirmative, with the bells tolling showing 1,292 yes and 499 no.

The highway bond amendment, as shown by 14 precincts of the city, showed 1,537 yes to 576 no.

Can seem to be making a runaway race for county auditor, on the face of the returns from the first 14 precincts, with 1,134 to 555.

Republicans were sweeping the rest of the ticket by a two to one vote.

Michigan women made their real formal debut into politics with a vengeance Monday, the March primaries having served as a satisfactory dress rehearsal for the big event which overshadowed all else in the feminine mind—even wash day.

State Election.

Early returns from all over Michigan indicate that at Monday's election the dry forces won decisively in their battle against the beer and wine amendment, and that the Republican ticket won by its usual large majority and that the good roads amendment was carried by an overwhelming figure.

Two hundred and eighty precincts out of the 2,369 in the state gave: Dry 51,262; Wet 32,812.

These figures include no returns from Detroit or Wayne county, which up to 11 o'clock were still absent except for two precincts. Both these precincts indicated small gains for the wet, by no means sufficient to make any headway against the overwhelming dry majority in the state.

The second precinct of the Fourth ward of Detroit, wet by a large majority, added only 35 votes for the wet majority as compared with the 1916 vote.

Flint and Kalamazoo Dry.

The surprise of the day came from such cities as Flint and Kalamazoo. Genesee county complete gave the drys a majority of 2,600 in 1916; Monday, 18 out of 22 precincts in Flint city alone gave the drys 7,085, as against 2,960 for the wet.

Kalamazoo county in 1916 gave 1,960 majority to the drys; Monday 76 out of 87 precincts in the county gave the drys 10,888 and the wet 4,622, nearly half the city being included in these figures.

In the Second precinct of the Second ward of Flint, the inspectors kept the voters of the women separate with the rather unexpected result that the vote showed the women voting 428 dry and 44 wet, while the men voted 261 dry and 221 wet.

Wayne to Dry Majority.

While the dry figures out in the state will be extremely high, it is expected that when the Detroit figures come in, the wet will make their showing.

One precinct in Wayne county, outside of Detroit, showed a decided reversal of form, the wet carrying it by 8 votes, where in 1916 the drys had a comfortable majority.

Kent county, Bay county and Saginaw, and a few other counties are expected to give largely increased wet majorities, but scarcely the most optimistic of the wets were at midnight claiming a victory. A substantial reduction in the dry majority of two years ago was, however, claimed. Macomb county, wet in 1916 by about 1,400, indicated on about one third of its vote, as increased wet majority of about 23 1/2 per cent.

Republican Ticket Safe.

The Republican ticket appeared safe by good figures, including the superintendent of public instruction—Thomas Johnson, of Coldwater, who ran on slips in the place of Fred L. Keeler, deceased. The slips apparently were put on in ample time in every county of the state except one or two. In some precincts in Detroit the slips did not arrive in time for the early voting, but the Republican majority will be such as to carry Johnson through at figures somewhat lower than the general ticket.

The Democrats, it is expected, will contest the election in the courts in favor of Dr. Mary Hinsdale, of Grand Rapids, their candidate.

The proposal to amend the constitution so that the salaries of judges of the supreme court may be changed during their term of office was apparently defeated the rural majorities against it being very heavy.

The good roads amendment went over the top overwhelmingly—120 of the 2,368 precincts of the state having empowered the legislature to issue bonds up to $50,000,000 by 24,956 for 8,204 against.

South Haven Mayor Defeated.

South Haven—Edwin A. Twitchell was elected mayor on the union ticket over Mayor Henry H. Serenich, candidate for re-election on the independent ticket. City Clerk Newton was re-elected. South Haven city voted dry by about 500, and favored the highway bonds by about the same majority.

Wexford Drys Win 3 to 1.

Cadillac—Sixteen out of 21 Wexford precincts on the beer and wine amendment gave: Yes, 1,229; no, 336; good roads, 15 precincts gave: Yes, 2,573; no, 1,129. Scattering returns indicate a Republican victory by 2 to 1.

Small Wet Majority For Grand Rapids.

Grand Rapids—Early returns indicated this city would give a small majority for the beer and wine amendment to the state constitution. Returns will be late owing to the unusually large vote, estimated at around 40,000. Women outnumbered men voters in many precincts.

Chippewa Drys in Lead.

Sault Ste. Marie—Twelve out of 25 precincts in Chippewa county, all but one of them rural, gave for the sober amendment, yes 568, no 1,561; road amendment, yes 1,711, no 822; the salary amendment was lost.

John P. Connolly was elected city commissioner.

Greenville Goes Dry.

Greenville—Republicans elected the entire city ticket with the exception of supervisor in the Third ward, Litch and winning over James Callaghan. The following were elected: Byron C. Tower, mayor; Ralph Walker, city clerk; George Underhill, city treasurer. The city gave a big majority dry.

Cadillac City Goes to Drys.

Cadillac—Cadillac's total vote on the wine and beer amendment gave the drys 3,551, wets 788.

Drys Ahead in Macomb.

Macomb—Macomb county, 11 precincts out of 24, voted on beer and wine amendment—for 1,820, against 2,325. Good roads amendment, for 2,548, against 2,178.

Regents—Ludwig L. Hubbard, 3,487; Benjamin S. Hanchett, 3,249; Elsie Gaylord Huston 1,331; Elva Conistock Boltwood 1,931.

Board of Agriculture—Dora H. Stockman 3,576; L. Whitney Watkins 3,495; George Whigham 1,782; Herbert E. Livermore 1,920.

Superintendent of public instruction—Thomas E. Johnson 3,572; Mary Hinsdale 1,815.

Port Huron Women Vote "Dry."

Port Huron—As unusually heavy vote was polled in this city and scores of women were at the polls early to cast their ballot. The indications are that all spring election records will be broken. From sentiment at voting booths, apparently a majority of the women voted "dry." The good roads amendment is expected to receive a large majority in this district.

South Haven in Dry Column.

South Haven—South Haven city went dry by about 500. Returns show a favorable vote for the good roads amendment by about the same majority.

Manistee City Goes Against Wets.

Manistee—Returns from five precincts out of seven in the city gave for good roads 953, against 376; for the wine and beer amendment 476, against 956. Dr. Clinton C. Webb was elected to the city commission. Elbert M. Gervod, re-elected county school commissioner.

Mason County Won By Drys.

Ludington—Three out of 22 precincts in Mason county gave wine and beer 396 yes, 700 no. Five precincts gave good roads, yes 1,105, no 598. State ticket given normal Republican majority. Ludington endorsed issue of $150,000 bonds for industrial purposes.

Adrian Municipal Heads Defeated.

Adrian—The Adrian city election contained one of the greatest surprises in years when all the candidates for re-election were defeated and a new municipal governing body was elected. Mayor James H. Baker was defeated by John C. Howell by a majority of more than 300 wets.

Oakland Voted "Dry" Belief.

Pontiac—The Oakland county vote was unusually heavy. Pontiac city had several important issues of its own which brought out the vote, revision of the city charter; a $325,000 sewer bonding issue and increase of mayor's salary. Indications are that the beer and wine amendment was lost and the state road bonds carried in Oakland.

Howell Re-elects Old Heads.

Howell—Howell city administration, headed by Mayor Charles H. Cotter, was re-elected and the city named one woman constable, Mrs. B. L. Walker. Clerk Stephen G. Aldrich; Treasurer Platt and Trustees H. M. Spencer and H. M. Wagon were re-elected.

Monroe Drys Gain Lead.

Monroe—Six out of 22 Monroe county precincts, most of them rural, gave wets 718, drys 1,260; good roads: Yes, 1,260; no, 730; for regents, Hanchett, 1,913; Hubbard, 912; Huston, 1,038; Boltwood, 975; for board of agriculture, Stockman, 1,912; Watkins, 1,910; Winegar, 1,097; Livermore, 965; for superintendent of public instruction, Johnson, 1,962; Hinsdale, 1,096.

Shiawassee Goes Dry.

Owosso—Out of Shiawassee's 28 precincts, 18, including Owosso complete, gave 6,008 votes against the beer and wine amendment against 1,984 for it. Twelve precincts on good roads stood: Yes, 3,730; no, 1,464. Eight on supreme court judges salaries: Yes, 331; no, 1,351. The Republican state ticket carried the county by from 3,000 to 4,000 majority.

Iron County Drys Lead.

Crystal Falls—Four precincts out of 17 in Iron county give wet 381, dry 454. The same precincts in 1916 gave a wet majority of 12.

Cheboygan—Wet, 205; Dry, 457.

Cheboygan—Five precincts out of 25 gave wet, 205, dry 478; good roads, Yes 260; No 71. Senator Herbert Baker and Representative F. B. Aldrich were both defeated as supervisors. Dr. M. J. Cain, Democrat, defeated former Senator Mink, by 151.

American Filers Honored.

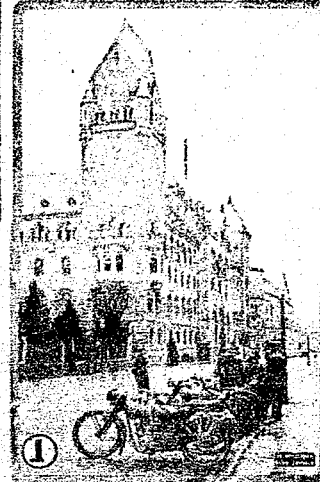

Paris—A tablet commemorating the names of members of the Lafayette Squadron who died for France has just been finished at Sevres. It was modeled by a French artist and executed under the direction of Sidney B. Volz, secretary of the foreign service committee of the Aero Club of America. The tablet is to be shown in the trophy room of the Aero Club and also at the aeronautical exhibition in Atlantic City in May. Eventually it will be placed in New York.

Training School For Michigan.

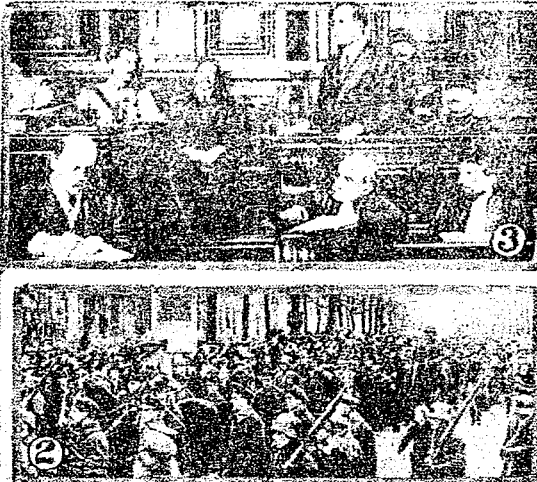

Muskegon—An Army physical training camp, backed by Chicago men, co-operating with the government, which will supply all equipment, has been located here, the Lake Harbor Resort property, four miles south of the city, having been found ideal for the purpose. The ultimate object of the plan, as outlined by the Chicago interests backing it, is the establishment of a national system of physical military training, for all high schools able to maintain it.

Atlantic Flight Delayed.

St. John, N. P. Indications that Harry G. Hawker and Lieut. Commander Mackenzie Greig, British aviators, to cross the Atlantic, would not be able to start on April 10, as planned. The ground in the vicinity of their hangar at Mount Pearl, a few miles from this city, is still soaked from the winter snow and early spring rains and it will be several days before a machine can run over it. The aviators and their assistants are busy assembling their planes.

NEWS REVIEW OF CURRENT EVENTS

Effects of German Protests and Threats Seen in Doings of the Treaty Makers.

WILSON URGING MORE SPEED

Advisability of Coming to Terms With Hungary and Russia Seriously Considered—Counter-Revolution Against Bolshevism—Bloody Strike Riots in German Cities.

By EDWARD W. PICKARD.

Prodded by the public opinion of most of the world, and particularly by the insistence of President Wilson, the peace delegates in Paris speeded up their work last week and really accomplished something. Mr. Wilson, it is reliably reported, told them that if results were not forthcoming soon he might reveal to the public the real causes of the delay, and just before that he issued a statement denouncing the discussions over the league of nations were to blame in that respect. No one nation, said Mr. Wilson, was solely to be blamed for holding up the peace treaty, but disputes from Paris make it fairly clear that many of the hitches have been due to the disparity between what the French demand and what the Americans, sometimes backed by the British, are willing to propose on the conquered Germans.

If present indications go for anything, these same heated hints are going to come out of the peace conference in fairly good shape. The "Big Four" last week concerned themselves mainly with the major questions of reputation, the west bank of the Rhine, Danzig and the Italian frontier. Unofficially, Germany has been taking part in the conference, and its arguments, presented by public officials, the national assembly and the press, seem to be having decided effect. Though France still asserts that the Allies should be required to pay the last penny that can be got out of them, and in this is supported by the public opinion of most of the civilized world, the peace delegates, influenced apparently by the American representatives, have been scaling down the amount of indemnity more and more until the prediction now is that it will be less than $20,000,000,000. How Germany shall pay and how long a time shall be given her proves so complicated a question that it was considered probable last week that all that will be left for decision by a commission after peace has been declared, Germany has a gold reserve of more than $500,000,000, and likely a part of this will be demanded as a cash payment to be disbursed in the devastated regions of Belgium and France.

When the matter of the Rhineland was taken up the effect of the German protests again was evident. It was virtually decided that there shall be no buffer republic on the left bank of the Rhine, but that that region shall be neutralized and policed by allied troops until the indemnities are paid; that the Saar coal basin shall not be allotted to France, but shall remain under German sovereignty, though its products shall go to the French for a certain period of years. It is presumed that French and Belgian troops would hold the left bank of the Rhine, since the British have insufficient forces for the purpose and America does not wish to leave any soldiers in Europe after the treaty is signed. King Albert of Belgium went to Paris last week, probably to discuss his country's share in this occupation. He called on Colonel House and President Wilson.

Marshal Foch was sent to Spa Wednesday with full instructions for ending the dispute concerning Danzig. The allies wished to have General Haller and his Polish divisions landed at that port, and the Germans declared that they could not permit it; and the matter of Danzig was left.

Before Foch had begun his negotiations a correspondent in Paris called that the "Big Four" had decided that Danzig should be made a free port and added that it was reported the disposition of the Vistula valley would be left to a plebiscite.

A Rome paper asserted that the Italian frontier question had been settled favorably to Italy by the peace delegates.

The infrequent communiques of the peace conference are about as interesting as excerpts from an almanac, and less informative. One bit of news was given out—the fact that General Smuts had been dispatched to Hungary to study the situation there. This did not please the Paris press, which saw in it only another delay. It had been hoped that General Mangin would be sent east to deal with the Hungarians. Official advice from Budapest were to the effect that the new soviet government was establishing itself and maintaining order, and that it was disposed to make large concessions to the allies in return for food and fuel. It was supposed Smuts would open negotiations for an amicable agreement. Bela Kun and his associates insist their government is communist rather than bolshevistic. The fact remains that Kun is in constant communication with Lenin, whose secretary he formerly was.

The allied delegates also were said to be considering the advisability of coming to an understanding with the Russian soviet government and permitting it to get food and materials. This, Lenin says, is all he wants; if it is granted his government can make good, and then the allies can recognize it. If they wish to, he declares he is willing to make peace without including Hungary in the pact and will then cease fighting and stop propaganda work in other countries. All this, it was reported, sounded good to the peace-makers in view of the threats of Germany to form an alliance with Russia or to allow itself to go bolshevistic. If the terms of the treaty should not be to their liking, meanwhile the soviet troops of Russia were very busy carrying out their threat to shut down operations on all fronts as soon as the weather permitted. They began a rather formidable invasion of East Prussia and were met there by a German army which has been organized by Von Hindenburg. They continued their operations in the south and made repeated and heavy attacks on the allied forces in the Archangel region. There, however, they had little success.

But the northern Russian situation is considered serious by the allies is evidenced by the fact that the British government announced that reinforcements would immediately follow the American troops then on the way to North Russia.

Official Russian wireless messages that came from Petrograd Thursday may change the Russian situation materially. They told of an anti-bolshevik strike of the railway and transport men which had stopped communications and prevented the city from getting any bread. Other dispatches said the bolsheviks and social revolutionaries had actually started a revolt against the bolshevik regime and that Lenin and Trotsky had come to a definite break over the former's insistence on some sort of a treaty with England, France and the United States. Trotsky, of course, holds the military control, and he is regarded as in a stronger position than Lenin, especially so long as he can provide his troops with sufficient food.

Interesting if not important is the intercepted wireless message from Tikhomirov, Russian foreign minister, to Bela Kun of Hungary, saying: "The revolutionary movement certainly is gaining in America. American newspapers say the states of New York, Pennsylvania, Indiana, Illinois and Michigan are especially impregnated by bolshevism. A riot has taken place in Philadelphia, which certainly must be attributed to bolshevik influence."

Poland is sending distress calls because of the actions of Von Hindenburg's army in eastern Germany. Three troops, besides conquering the advancing Russians, are said to be pillaging upper Silesia, destroying its industries systematically and taking everything from the factories.

Evidently the Huns do not intend the Poles shall find anything of value left in this territory if they are awarded it by the peace conference. It is a case of Belgium and northern France over again.

Aggie setting out to ascertain the effect government, the Spartacists and minority socialists of Germany have started general strikes in Berlin, Frankfurt, Stuttgart and other cities. Bloody riots ensued in some places, notably Frankfurt, where several hundred persons were reported to have been killed. Ten thousand workmen there paraded the streets and looted a great warehouse that was full of foodstuffs and then battled with the government forces sent against them. The German troops opposite the Coblenz bridgehead occupied by the Americans were moved toward Frankfurt, after permission was obtained from the French military authorities in the Mayence bridgehead zone to enter the disturbed city. The streets of Stuttgart were filled with great crowds and with troops and there was much shooting; the government, at last accounts, was master of the situation there. Martial law was proclaimed throughout the entire Rhineland. The strikers demanded that Germany resume diplomatic relations with Russia at once. In Berlin, though the leaders of organized labor were supporting the government, more than 150,000 workers were out by Thursday night and more struck later. Reuters' correspondent in Berlin says sympathizing with Spartacism is spreading among the better classes, including officials, teachers, clerks and people in similar walks of life. They are all thoroughly discontented and argue that things cannot well be worse than they are, while bolshevism at least opens prospects of better things some day for their children in the way of food. The people assert that the only way the poor can be persuaded of the fallacy of bolshevism is by giving them liberal food rations, especially meat, bread and fats. The correspondent quoted said there was much talk of the imminence of a new coup.

The evident aim of the Spartacists was to upset or greatly disturb the government before the meeting of the soviet congress called for this week. This assembly is fraught with peril for Foch and his associates, for the delegates may not take at its face value Scheideemann's promise that the soviet principle shall be "anchored firmly" in the constitution.

The covenant of the league of nations was completed last week and submitted by the drafting committee to the commission. What was done with the various amendments suggested was not announced. Organized labor in Great Britain at its national conference adopted resolutions demanding that the league plan be incorporated in the peace treaty and proposing certain changes in the covenant. It asked that the principle of self-determination be extended to all colonies and dependencies, which, of course, would include India, Egypt and presumably Ireland; it also asked that conscription be definitely prohibited and that the principle of universal military training and service be adopted in its stead. This will be of interest to union labor of the United States, which always has fiercely opposed anything like universal military training.

From far-off Abyssinia comes news of two revolts against the government, one headed by a grandson of King Johannes II, who died in 1889, and the other by the governor of Dolomieu, wherever that may be. It is said the Abyssinian government will send a delegation to Paris to ask for the admission of the country to the league of nations. Spain also has announced its adherence to the league when it is constituted.

Political interest in the United States last week centered in Chicago, where William Hale Thompson was re-elected mayor, despite his wretched record. His victory gives him the position of commanding position in the Republican affairs of Illinois, according to its claims, and there is talk again of trying to obtain for him the nomination for the presidency. Probably no other aspirant for that honor is worried by this.

CRISIS NEAR IN PEACE CONFERENCE

PRESIDENT WILSON REFUSES COMPROMISE. PRECIPITATES GRAVE SITUATION; FULL PUBLICITY TO BE GIVEN.

MAY RETURN HOME AT ONCE

Orders Sent to Steamer George Washington to Proceed to Brest Immediately, Regardless of Schedule.

Paris.—President Wilson intends to compel the peace commission to make peace immediately upon the terms which their respective governments already have accepted. Failing in this, the president proposes that the United States shall its foreign affairs in its own way and upon its own initiative.

That is what Mr. Wilson's hurry call to the steamer George Washington means. Orders were sent to that ship through the navy department to proceed to Brest immediately, regardless of schedule.

May Leave in 10 Days.

This will make it possible for the president to start back to Washington within 10 days if necessary.

(Note—What has been said above about President Wilson's intentions is not the writer's personal opinion, but was told him by officials of the American peace commission, though they refused to comment specifically upon the order to the U. S. S. George Washington. These officials were emphatic in their statement that the president is unwilling any longer to allow certain of his associates representing other nations to "pass the buck" to him and accuse him of being responsible for the delays. The American commissioners declare that if his present plan fails, the president will insist that the time has arrived when the American position must be afforded complete publicity not alone in the United States but throughout the world.)

Critical Stage Reached.

This is the most exciting day of the peace conference since the attack on Clemenceau. Since early morning the army of correspondents has been kept feverishly on the "qui vive." Something big is in the air; no one dares guess what it is. Yet everyone feels this is the critical day in the world's history, far more critical than any of the darkest days of the great war.

Decision—one way or the other—is at hand. It may not, probably will not be made known immediately, especially if it means final agreement.

UKRAINE MASSACRE THE JEWS

Four Thousand Were Killed Or Wounded in the City of Proskurav Says Report.

New York—A story of almost unbelievable massacres of Jews by government troops in the Ukraine was cabled to the Jewish Morning Journal, this city, by its staff correspondent at London. Both the correspondent and the management of the newspaper vouch for it as authentic.

Four thousand Jews were killed or wounded in the city of Proskurav, according to the dispatch. In another town, Felstin, 800 Jews were killed, and the number of wounded runs into the thousands.

Starving and stirred to uncontrollable fury by stories spread by anti-semitic propaganda to the effect that the Jews were hoarding foodstuffs, Ukrainian government troops launched into wild orgies of massacre, pillage and destruction, the correspondent says.

TRAIN HITS AUTO; ONE DEAD

One Victim of Mishap Has 100 Stitches in Head.

Albion.—Paul Sedowitch, Russian melder, aged 32, was instantly killed and Nikent Lewchuk, also a Russian melder, working in an Albion factory, lies seriously injured at the Albion city hospital, as the result of running into a fast Michigan Central train.

The men were driving in an auto and ran headlong into the train which was going 40 miles an hour. The car was smashed to bits, parts of it being thrown 100 feet.

Lewchuk's body was wrapped around a telephone pole and in spite of stitches taken in his scalp, is said to have a chance to live.

Miserly Actress Killed.

Chicago.—The body of an old woman, crushed by an automobile at a street crossing, was identified as that of Maria Leavitt, known as Maria Rose to the stage back in the days of Fanny Davisport and Lily Langtry. As a dancer and singer of the time she was known in every theater of the country. Neighbors, where she made her home in a basement, said she left staggering from hunger to beg food. Maria Leavitt was known outside of poverty row.

RANKS WITH WORLD'S GREAT

Achievements of Sir Isaac Newton
Give Him an Assured Place
Among Immortals.

According to a legend, which, however, is seriously considered by certain authorities, in the year 1655 the fall of an apple as Newton sat in his garden suggested the most magnificent of his subsequent discoveries—the law of universal gravitation. On his first attempt to explain the lunar and planetary motions he employed an estimate then in use of the radius of the earth which, based on the value of a degree of latitude then prevalent, was so erroneous as to produce a discrepancy between the real force of gravity and that required by theory to explain the motions and indicated only an approximate verification of his theory. Accordingly, he abandoned for a number of years the hypothesis that a homogeneous sphere behaved as if all matter was concentrated at its center, and took up other studies, consisting of investigations of the nature of light and the construction of telescopes. He also propounded new theories on light and color. Newton died March 29, 1727 (old style), and his remains were interred in Westminster-abbey.

AS YOUNG AS YOUR KIDNEYS

The secret of youth is ELIMINATION OF POISONS from your body. This done, you can live to be a hundred and enjoy the privilege of life as much as much "pep" as you did when in the springtime of youth. Keep your body in good condition, that's the secret.

Watch the kidneys. They filter and purify the blood, all of which blood passes through them once every three minutes. Keep them clean and in proper working condition and you will never feel old. Drive the poisonous wastes and deadly acid accumulations from your system. Take GOLD MEDAL HARTMAN'S OIL CAPSULES and you will always be in good condition. You will feel strong and vigorous, with steady nerves and elastic muscles. GOLD MEDAL HARTMAN'S OIL CAPSULES are imported direct from the laboratories at Hartman, Holland.

They are a reliable remedy which has been used by the sturdy Dutch for over 200 years, and has helped them to develop into one of the strongest and healthiest races of the world. Get them from your druggist. Do not take a substitute. Get the sealed packages—three sizes—Adv.

Whiskers Reappearing.
A noticeable feature in masculine appearance is the increasing fashion of whiskers. At present they are only small affairs of the Albert variety, made popular by the prince consort. The whisker is no longer than two fingers' breadth, but there is no telling what dimensions these side products of the war may assume.

It is an army fashion, just as beards were an aftergrowth of the Grimes. The present whisker originated among officers whose right arm, stiff or impaired through wounds, cannot be raised easily to the level of the ear, and so prevents a clean shave to the top of the cheek.—London Chronicle.

Agitation.
"I wish they'd quit saying prices 'will go down,'" said the thrifty woman. "It's well meant."

"No doubt. But every time the announcement is made it seems to scare all the people I deal with into making hay while the sun shines."

CHAPTER I.

The First Wayfarer and the Second Wayfarer Meet and Part on the Highway.

A solitary figure trudged along the narrow road that wound its serpentine way through the dismal, forbidding depths of the forest—a man who, though weary and footsore, lagged not in his swift, resolute advance. Night was coming on, and with it the no uncertain prospects of a storm.

He came to the "pike" and there was a signpost. A huge, crudely painted hand pointed to the left, and on what was intended to be the sleeve of a very stiff and undiminished arm these words were printed in scaly white: "Hart's Tavern. Food for Man and Beast. Also Gasoline. Established 1788. 1 Mile."

On the opposite side of the "pike" in the angle formed by a junction with the narrow mountain road, stood an humble signpost, lettered so indistinctly that it deserved the compassion of all observers because of its humility. Scarcely in his hurried passage, the tall stranger drew near this shrinking friend to the uncertain traveler, and was suddenly aware of another presence in the roadway.

A woman appeared, as if from nowhere, almost at his side. He drew back to let her pass. She stopped before the little signpost, and together they made out the faint directions.

To the right and up the mountain road Frogs Corner lay four miles and a half away. Hart's Tavern was six miles back over the road which the man had traveled. Two miles and a half down the turnpike was Spanish Falls, a railway station, and four miles above the crossroads where the man and woman stood peering through the darkness at the lone signpost reposed the village of St. Elizabeth. Hart's Tavern was on the road to St. Elizabeth, and the man, with barely a glance at his fellow traveler, started briskly off in that direction.

He knew that these wild mountain storms moved swiftly; his chance of reaching the tavern ahead of the deluge was exceedingly slim. His long, powerful legs had carried him twenty or thirty paces before he came to a sudden halt.

What of this lone woman who traversed the highway? His first glimpse of her had been extremely casual—indeed, he had paid no attention to her at all, so eager was he to read the directions and be on his way.

She was standing quite still in front of the signpost, peering up the road toward Frogs Corner—confronted by a steep climb that led into black and sinister underlands above the narrow strip of pasture bordering the pike.

The fierce wind plumed her skirts to her slender body as she leaned against the gate, gripping her hat tightly with one hand and straining under the weight of the bag in the other. The ends of a veil whipped furiously about her head, and, even in the gathering darkness, he could see a strand or two of hair keeping them company.

Retracing his steps, he called out to her above the gale:

"Can I be of any assistance to you?"

She turned quickly. He saw that the veil was drawn tightly over her face.

"No, thank you," she replied. Her voice, despite a certain nervous note, was soft and clear and gentle—the voice and speech of a well-bred person who was young and resolute.

"Pardon me, but have you much farther to go? The storm will soon be upon us, and—surely you will not consider me presumptuous—I don't like the idea of your being caught out in—"

"What is to be done about it?" she inquired, resignedly. "I must go on. I can't wait here, you know, to be washed back to the place I started from."

He smiled. She had wit as well as determination.

"If I can be of the least assistance to you pray don't hesitate to command me. I am a sort of tramp, you might say, and I travel as well by night as by day—so don't feel that you are putting me to any inconvenience. Are you by any chance bound for Hart's Tavern? If so, I will be glad to lag behind and carry your bag."

"You are very good, but I am not bound for Hart's Tavern, wherever that may be. Thank you, just the same. You appear to be an uncommonly decent tramp, and it isn't because I am afraid you might make off with my belongings." She added the last by way of apology.

He smiled—and then frowned as he cast an uneasy look at the black clouds now rolling ominously up over the mountain ridge.

"By Jove, we're going to catch it good and hard," he exclaimed. "Better take my advice. These storms are terrible. I know, for I've encountered half a dozen of them in the past week. They fairly tear one to pieces. You are a stranger in these parts?"

"Yes. The railway station is a few miles below here. I have walked all the way. There was no one to meet me. You are a stranger also, so it is useless to inquire if you know whether this road leads to Green Fancy."

"Green Fancy? Sounds attractive. I'm sorry I can't enlighten you." He drew a small electric torch from his pocket and directed its slender ray upon the signpost.

"It is on the road to Frogs Corner," she explained nervously. "A mile and a half, so I am told. It isn't on the signpost. It is a house, not a village. Thank you for your kindness. And I am not at all frightened," she added, raising her voice slightly.

"But you are," he cried. "You're scared half out of your wits. You couldn't fool me. I'd be scared myself at the thought of venturing into those woods up yonder."

He Drew a Small Electric Torch From His Pocket and Directed Its Slender Ray Upon the Sign Post.

"Well, then, I am frightened," she confessed plaintively. "Almost out of my boots."

"That settles it," he said flatly. "You shall not undertake it."

"Oh, but I must. I am expected. It is imperative."

"If you are expected why didn't someone meet you at the station? Seems to me."

"Hark! Do you hear—doesn't that sound like an automobile—ah!" The hoarse hunk of an automobile horn rose above the howling wind, and an instant later two faint lights came rushing toward them along a bend in the mountain road. "Better late than never," she cried, her voice vibrant once more.

He grasped her arm and jerked her out of the path of the oncoming machine, whose driver was sending it along at a mad rate, regardless of ruts and stones and curves. The car careened as it swung into the pike, skidded alarmingly, and then the brakes were jammed down. Attended by a vast grinding of gears and wheels, the rattling old car came to a stop fifty feet or more beyond them.

"I'd sooner walk than take my chances in an antiquated rattlesnake like that," said the tall wayfarer, bending quite close to her ear. "It will fall to pieces before you—"

But she was running down the road toward the car, calling out sharply to the driver. He stooped over and took up the traveling bag she had dropped in her haste and excitement. It was heavy, amazingly heavy.

"I shouldn't like to carry that a mile and a half," he said to himself.

The voice of the belated driver came to his ears on the swift wind. It was high-pitched and unmistakably apologetic. He could not hear what she was saying to him, but there wasn't much doubt as to the nature of her remarks. She was roundly upbraiding him.

Urged to action by thoughts of his own plight he hurried to her side and said:

"Excuse me, please. You dropped something. Shall I put it up in front or in the tonneau?"

The whimsical note in his voice brought a quick, responsive laugh from her lips.

"Thank you so much. I am frightfully careless with my valuables. Would you mind putting it in behind? Thanks!" Her tone altered completely as she ordered the man to turn the car around—"And be quick about it," she added.

The first drops of rain pelted down from the now thoroughly black dome above them, striking in the road with the sharpness of pebbles.

"Lucky it's a linotype," said the tall traveler. "Better hop in. We'll be getting it hard in a second or two."

"You must let me take you on to the Tavern in the car," she said. "Turn about is fair play. I cannot allow you to—"

"Never mind about me," he broke in cheerfully. He had been wondering if she would make the offer, and he felt better now that she had done so. "I'm accustomed to roughing it. I don't mind a soaking. I've had hundreds of 'em."

"Just the same you shall not have one tonight," she announced firmly. "Get in behind. I shall sit with the driver."

If anyone had told him that this rattling, dilapidated automobile—ten years old, at the very least, he would have sworn—was capable of covering the mile in less than two minutes he would have laughed in his face. Almost before he realized that they were on the way up the straight, dark road the lights in the windows of Hart's Tavern came into view. Once more the bounding, swaying car came to a stop under brakes, and he was relaxing after the strain of the most hair-raising ride he had ever experienced.

Not a word had been spoken during the trip. The front windows were lowered. The driver—an old, hatchet-faced man—had uttered a single word before throwing in the clutch at the crossroads in response to the young woman's crisp command to drive to Hart's Tavern. That word was uttered under his breath and it is not necessary to repeat it here.

The wayfarer lost no time in climbing out of the car. As he leaped to the ground and raised his green hat he took a second look at the automobile—a look of mingled wonder and respect. It was an old-fashioned, high-powered car, capable, despite its antiquity, of astonishing speed in any sort of going.

"For heaven's sake," he began, shouting to her above the roar of the wind and rain, "don't let him drive like that over these hills."

"You're getting wet," she cried out, a thrill in her voice. "Good night—and thank you!"

"Look out!" rasped the unpleasant driver, and in a twinkling the man in the road jumped hastily to one side as the car shot backward with a jerk, curved sharply, stopped for the fraction of a second, and then bounded forward again, headed for the crossroads.

"Thanks!" shouted the late passenger after the receding tail light, and dashed up the steps to the porch that ran the full length of Hart's Tavern.

A huge old-fashioned lantern hung above the portal, creaking and straining in the wind, dragging at its stout supports and threatening every instant to break loose and go frolicking away with the storm.

He lifted the latch and, being a tall man, involuntarily stooped as he passed through the door, a needless precaution, for giant mountain-alpacas had entered there before him and without bending their arrogant heads.

CHAPTER II.

The First Wayfarer Lays His Pack Aside and Falls in With Friends.

The little hall in which he found himself was the "office" through which all men must pass who came as guests to Hart's Tavern. A steep, angular staircase took up one end of the room. Set in beneath its upper turn was the counter over which the business of the house was transacted, and behind this a man was engaged in the peaceful occupation of snuffing a cornish pipe.

An open door to the right of the stairway gave entrance to a room from which came the sound of a deep, sonorous voice employed in what turned out to be a conversational solo. To the left another door led to what was evidently the dining room. The glance that the stranger sent in that direction revealed two or three tables covered with white cloths.

"Can you put me up for the night?" he inquired, advancing to the counter. "You look like a fellow who'd want a room with bath," drawled the man behind the counter, surveying the applicant from head to foot. "Which we ain't got," he added.

"I'll be satisfied to have a room with a bed," said the other.

"Sign here," was the laconic response.

"Can I have supper?"

"Food for man and beast," said the other patiently. He slapped his palm upon a cracked old bell and then looked at the fresh name on the page. "Thomas K. Barnes, New York," he read aloud. He eyed the newcomer once more. "My name is Jones—Putnam Jones. I run this place. My father-in-law grandfather run it before me. I'll meet you, Mr. Barnes. We have a bottle here named Hart's. What's your ideal for footin' it this time of the year?"

"I do something like this every spring. A month or six weeks of it puts me in line shape for a vacation later on," supplied Mr. Barnes whimsically.

Mr. Jones allowed a grin to steal over his scamed face. He reinserted the cornish pipe and took a couple of pulls at it.

"I never been to New York, but it must be a heavenly place for a vacation. If a fellow can judge by what some of my present boarders have to say about it. It's a sort of play actor's paradise, ain't it?"

"It is paradise to every actor who happens to be on the road, Mr. Jones," said Barnes, slipping his big pack from his shoulders and letting it slide to the floor.

"Hear that feller in the taproom talkin'?" Well, he is one of the leading actors in New York—in the world, for that matter. He's been talkin' about Broadway for nearly a week now, steady."

"May I inquire what he is doing up here in the wilds?"

"At present he ain't doing anything except talk. Last week he was treddin' the boards, as he puts it himself. Bustled. Up the line. Showed last Saturday night in Hornville, eighteen miles north of here, and immediately after the performance him and his whole troupe started to walk back to New York, a good four hundred mile. They started out the back way of the open house, and nobody missed 'em till next mornin' except the sheriff, and he didn't miss 'em till they'd got over the county line into our ballwick. Four of 'em are still stoppin' here, just because I ain't got the heart to turn 'em out n'er the spare money to buy 'em tickets to New York. Here comes one of 'em now. Mr. Dillingford, will you show this gentleman to room eleven and carry his baggage up for him? And maybe he'll want a pitcher of warm water to wash and shave in." He turned to the new guest and smiled apologetically. "We're a little short o' help just now, Mr. Barnes, and Mr. Dillingford has kindly consented to—"

"My word!" gasped Mr. Dillingford, staring at the register. "Someone from little old New York, my word, sir, you— Won't you have a word, little something to drink with me before you—"

"He wants something to eat," interrupted Mr. Jones sharply. "Tell Mr. Bacon to step up to his room and take the order."

"All right, old chap—nothing easier," said Mr. Dillingford, "Just climb up the elevator, Mr. Barnes. We do this to get up an appetite. When did you leave New York?"

Taking up a lighted kerosene lamp and the heavy pack, Mr. Clarence Dillingford led the way up the stairs. He was a chubby individual of indeterminate age. At a glance you would have said he was under twenty-one; a second look would have convinced you that he was nearer forty-one.

Depositing Barnes' pack on a chair in the little bedroom at the end of the hall upstairs he favored the guest with a perfectly unabashed grin.

"I'm not doing this to oblige old man Jones, you know. I won't attempt to deceive you. I'm working out a daily board bill. Chuck three times a day and a bed to sleep in—that's what I'm doing it for, so don't get it into your head that I applied for the job. Let me look at you. I want to get a good square peep at a man who has the means to go somewhere and yet is too good enough to come to this god-awful place of his own free will and accord. Darn it, you look intelligent. I don't get you at all. What's the matter? Are you a fugitive from justice?"

Barnes find the theatrical people entertaining, but as the storm rages does a good deal of thinking about the mysterious girl bound for Green Fancy.

Mystery in Plant's Presence.

The Chilean provinces of Atacama, Tarapaca and Tena are in the rainless region, or desert country west of the Andes, and are entirely devoid of vegetation. The winds in all of this region are from the east, and in passing over the elevated perpetual snows of the Andes are stripped of their moisture and arrive on the coast perfectly dry. The last rain, a slight shower which fell in Antofagasta, in Atacama province, was the first rain which had fallen in 16 years. The last rain which fell in Iquique, in Tarapaca province, was the first in 24 years. With both of these showers a notable phenomenon occurred. The hills back of these cities assumed a green tint from a little plant which sprang up almost in a night. The query is: "From where did this plant come?"

BOY

CALL FOR SOLDIER LEADERS

Recognizing in the program of the Boy Scouts of America one of the greatest movements toward the making of good citizens, and training soldiers in their fundamental requirements, the war department of the United States has issued an official circular designed to assist in the present nation-wide campaign to secure a large number of new scout leaders.

The circular is signed by Gen. Peyton C. March, chief of staff, by order of Secretary of War Baker, and carries the official stamp of Adj. Gen. P. C. Harris.

This is the highest official honor paid the Boy Scouts since congress granted the organization a federal charter on June 15, 1916, and in the same month, under section 125 of the army reorganization law, the Boy Scouts of America were given permission to wear uniforms similar to those worn by the men of the United States army.

The circular reads as follows:

"SCOUTMASTERS FOR THE BOY SCOUTS OF AMERICA: A request has been received by the war department from the chief of the Boy Scouts of America for assistance in the matter of obtaining the services of officers and enlisted men returning from overseas as scoutmasters."

"The attention of returning army officers and enlisted men who have the necessary qualifications is directed to the opportunity which the boy scouts affords for them to further serve their country after discharge."

"The war department is in full accord with the purposes of this movement and desires to assist. It is felt that the co-operation of a large number of officers and enlisted men who have seen service in France will inspire the boys with patriotism and a spirit of devotion to their country as nothing else can do."

"This circular will be brought to the attention of officers and men at demobilization camps."

BOY SCOUTS SAVE CRACOW.

The thrilling story of how the boy scouts of Cracow saved their city, Poland's most ancient and noblest center, was made public in Washington by Polish agents.

Although the famous boy scout movement brought invaluable aid to the allies, particularly in England, the records of the international organization bear no brighter or more courageous example of heroism than that of the Polish boys who shouldered rifles and guarded the ancient hearths of their fathers.

When the Austrian empire fell, the Austrian officials and soldiers in Cracow vanished at once. The city was left without leadership.

It was then that two scoutmasters, trained as officers, rallied the boy scouts. They were assigned to fixed posts and within a few hours were policing the city with a military precision and dash that soon checked all efforts at looting and lawlessness.

The boys guarded the public buildings, military depots and other points, including stores of high explosives which were sufficient to have wrecked the city should they have fallen into the hands of the "reds."

THE SCOUT IS TRUSTWORTHY.

The quality of trustworthiness in the one that all business men are looking for in their help. If the boss tells a fellow to do something he wants to know that when the times comes the job will be done.

It is the fellow who is easy with his promises but short on his performance that causes more delay and disappointment and trouble generally than any other.

Money or property can be replaced or made good, but time—time—once gone is gone and there is no return possible. Scouts should be careful of their promises; make them carefully and keep them religiously.

DOINGS OF THE BOY SCOUTS

Wilton McNair, a boy scout of Lewisburg, W. Va., rescued an eight-year-old boy from in front of a passenger train.

During a recent hike on Staten Island the scouts of Bayonne, N. J., discovered a forest fire about a quarter of a mile from the road. The whistle sounded for action and every scout was in a few minutes busy fighting the fire, which they soon extinguished.

The death knell has sounded for all prairie dogs living within five miles of Denver according to plans made by the boy scouts. They plan to poison the little animals and convert the fat into soap grease.

SCOUTS' PUBLIC INVESTURE

A public investiture ceremony took place in Knoxville, Tenn. Twelve candles represent the twelve scout laws. Each scout to turn lights his candle and repeats a law. Three candles in the candleabra in the center represent the three points of the scout oath. These are lighted by a deputy commissioner while all repeat the oath.

This service has been held four times on Sunday afternoons in a Knoxville theater, with increasing public interest.

WOMAN WORKS
15 HOURS A DAY

Marvelous Story of Woman's Change from Weakness to Strength by Taking Druggist's Advice.

Peru, Ind.—"I suffered from a displacement with backache and dragging down pains so badly that at times I could not get on my feet and it did not seem as though I could stand it. I tried different medicines without any benefit and several doctors told me nothing but an operation would do me any good. My druggist told me of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I took it the first week and I am now well and strong. I got up in the morning at four o'clock, do my housework, then go to a factory and work all day, come home and get supper and feel good. I don't know how Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done for me."—Mrs. ANNA METERIANO, 36 West 10th St., Peru, Ind.

Women who suffer from any such ailments should not fail to try this famous root and herb remedy, Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Japan in the War.
Japan entered the war because of a treaty with Great Britain, concluded in 1902. The original alliance precluded the Russo-Japanese war. In 1905 the alliance was further extended to provide for the defense of British interests in India and Afghanistan, while England agreed to give Japan a free hand on Korea. In 1911 it was again modified by the agreement that Great Britain should not be bound to aid Japan against any power with whom she had a treaty of arbitration—thus excluding the United States as a possible enemy. The alliance has been extended to 1921.
