EXAMINER WAS IN CHELSEA.

S. S. Galiber, of Detroit, naturalization examiner of the United States department of labor, spent Friday evening at the Standard office, going over the first papers of several applicants for citizenship preliminary to the regular examination for final papers. Letters had been mailed to these men but had not been received, calling them to Ann Arbor on that day. When they failed to show up Mr. Galiber concluded the notices had gone astray, and decided to come to Chelsea and make the examination. Among the questions asked were what they had done in regard to their purchases of Liberty bonds and other patriotic activities. The Chelsea men were able to give good accounts of themselves in every respect.

MOTHERS' DAY PROCLAMATION.

In naming Sunday, May 11, 1919 as Mothers' Day, Governor Sleeper says:

"If ever there was a time to yield homage to the mothers of our land that time is now. The spirit of devotion and sacrifice and service they manifested during long months of cruel war is beyond all praise. With aching hearts they gave their sons to die, if need be, that our cherished liberties might be preserved, but they hid the ache and pain and went bravely and calmly about their allotted tasks. This year then, of all years, when peace has come to bless the world, we should thankfully observe the day that is specially marked in honor of the mothers of America, living and dead.

"And let us rejoice with them that do rejoice and weep with those that weep. Many a Michigan mother's heart will sing with joy as our Michigan boys return from afar; and we joy with them in their joy. There will be many a mother too, alas, whose heart will bridge the seas and journey on to find a grave in Flanders or in France or in far Archangel, there to place a wreath of loving remembrance for the boy who will not come back; and to these mourning mothers we tender our deepest sympathy, while we sorrow with them in their sorrow.

"Therefore, that we may pay a special tribute of affection to the mothers who still live and honor the memory of those who have gone from us, I, Albert E. Sleeper, Governor of the State of Michigan, do hereby designate and set aside Sunday, May 11th next, as Mothers' Day, and I call upon our people, old and young, to gather in their several places of worship and take part in services appropriate to the day, and, by the wearing of a red flower for the living mother and a white for the dear departed, to symbolize their love and reverence for the mothers of the nation.

"Let us suggest too that absent sons and daughters take this occasion to visit, if possible, the mother in the old home, or, where such a visit is impossible, that they send a message of cheer and greeting. By this may mothers know that in the rush of affairs they are not forgotten.

"In accordance with a resolution of the Congress of the United States, I further request the people of Michigan on the day aforesaid to display the United States flag in their homes and in other suitable places, as a fitting expression of their desire to pay homage to American motherhood."

RED CROSS NOTES.

The final sewing quota was sent to Ann Arbor May 1. The quilting quota being unusually large is still unfinished. We still have twenty pairs of children's stockings to be given out. Will not some of our knitters volunteer to help complete the quota? Proceed yarn of Mrs. Mary L. Boyd.

REVIVAL MEETINGS.

The revival meetings under way at the Methodist church are now in full swing. Notwithstanding the downpour of rain last Sunday the audiences were good and the Kerr Brothers, in song and sermon, made a good impression.

The audiences and interest have been growing each evening since and promise by next Sunday to reach an unusual climax.

A special feature of next Sunday's services will be a double-header at 3 o'clock in the afternoon. One in the Congregational church for women only, and one in the Methodist church for men only.

The morning service of that day will be in response to the governor's call to all the churches. It is Mothers' Day and motherhood as well as womanhood is to be honored, especially in this hour of the return of peace, and in view of the sacrifices made by the home for God and humanity.

The week night services are to be continued each evening this week and next, except Saturdays, at 7:45.

The Kerr Brothers have no special pleading for denominational distinctions, no traps to catch the unwary. They are manly men with distinct human interest; open, brotherly and kindly in spirit and message. All pastors and people are cordially welcomed, and only the interest of our citizens and community is sought.

We believe a time of great privilege and blessing is on, and bespeak the hearty co-operation of the whole countryside.

WELHOFF-HENNE MARRIAGE.

The marriage of Miss Lydia A. Wellhoff, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Wellhoff, of South Main street, and Mr. Walter D. Henne, of Ann Arbor, took place at St. Paul's parsonage, Chelsea, at 5 o'clock Monday afternoon, May 5, 1919, Rev. A. A. Schoen officiating. The couple were attended by Mr. and Mrs. Norman Terry, of Ann Arbor, the latter being a sister of the bride. Following the ceremony a six o'clock dinner was served to the immediate friends of the couple at the home of the bride's parents. Mrs. Henne is well known, having been an efficient employee of the Freeman store for several years. Mr. and Mrs. Henne left immediately after dinner for their home in Ann Arbor.

LOOK OUT FOR POOR SEED.

A warning that seed of a very low grade is being shipped into Michigan by three or four mail order dealers in nearby states is being sent out by the state seed laboratory at East Lansing. Complaints from all parts of the state indicate the sale of a large amount of this impure seed, much of which is in violation of the Michigan seed law. Clover and timothy seeds are those with which the most of the trouble is being experienced.

More than thirty kinds of weed seeds, on an average, have been found in samples tested by Miss Bertha Hollister, state seed analyst. Noxious weeds, such as dodder and Canada thistle, have been found freely in the samples, making the situation especially serious. While the Michigan seed law can handle violations of the law which occur in the state, it has no power to take action against firms doing business outside the state.

The remedy for the present situation is for the farmer and the small dealers of the state to trade with Michigan dealers or with responsible firms outside the state. In every case where seed is purchased for sowing, the buyer should demand an analysis at the time of purchase or should send a sample to the state seed laboratory, East Lansing, so that a test can be made to determine the weed content.

THE MIDNIGHT PATROL.

"It has long been my ambition to provide the motion picture theatres and public with a drama based upon the heroism of the American policeman," said Thomas H. Ince, producer and director of "The Midnight Patrol," which Select Pictures announces for the Princess Theatre on Wednesday, May 14, in a recent interview. "Soldiers and sailors have I paid tribute to in stories on the screen. Yet, in my honest opinion, the conscientious, honest, hard-working policeman is as deserving of the nation's gratitude as anyone else. While we give praise to the boys 'over there,' we must not lose sight of the valiant boys 'over here.' They, too, are willing to 'go over the top,' and that is one of the reasons I have produced 'The Midnight Patrol.' This picture is a vivid and realistic story of the excellent work done by the police of a big western city in breaking up a gang of Chinese opium smugglers.

Wilson Consents to Compromise on the Japanese Claims to Rights in Shantung.

GERMANS ARE IN VERSAILLES

Meet Representatives of the Allies and Present Credentials—Plan for Trying Former Kaiser—Great Bomb Plot in America Attributed to Radicals.

By EDWARD W. PICKARD.

In the interest of an early peace and of the successful organization of the league of nations, President Wilson relaxed last week somewhat from his hitherto uncompromising attitude in the matter of secret treaties and self-determination. As a result the controversy over Kiau-Chau and the Shantung peninsula was ended in favor of Japan, which is to get all the old German concessions and grants. The Chinese delegation argued and protested in vain, and there was an intimation that, though it would not withdraw from the conference, it would appeal to the United States senate.

Viscount Chinda successfully objected to the publication of the treaty of 1915 which was imposed on China, and the two countries will be left to agree on the details of carrying out that pact and the agreement of 1918. The understanding is that the city of Kiau-Chau will be given back to China, but that Japan will retain the port privileges. More important are the rights Japan obtains in the Shantung district, including the most valuable railway and mineral concessions.

Since Great Britain virtually refused to support the American contention in favor of China and evidently intended to stand by her Japanese ally, and as Japan made it clear that if her demands were rejected she would not remain in either the peace conference or the league of nations, there was nothing for Mr. Wilson to do but yield, and thus one of the most serious disputes of the conference was settled. The American delegation considered the agreement the best possible to be obtained, and confidence is felt that the league of nations will be able to protect China's rights fully in the future. The Japanese military forces are to be withdrawn from Shantung as speedily as possible.

If the Italian controversy can be settled as well as this, the peace makers may certainly congratulate themselves, but at this writing the end of that dispute is not in sight. The Italian delegation, returning home, was accorded wildly enthusiastic receptions everywhere, and the parliament gave Premier Orlando a vote of confidence, only a small group of Socialists opposing. It was expected that Orlando and his colleagues, strengthened by this vote, would go back to Paris and resume their efforts to put through the Italian claims; but Wilson, Lloyd George and Clemenceau, according to reports, were as firm as ever in the determination that Fiume should not be given to Italy. The probable outcome, it was predicted, would be the internationalization of that port.

In his memorandum to Orlando, Mr. Wilson said the town of Volpa should belong to Italy, and this has raised another row. Volpa is an Albanian port, and the Albanian delegation said its seizure by Italy would start a movement that would mean the dismemberment of Albania. Already the Greeks and Serbians were claiming parts of that country, because of Mr. Wilson's stand concerning Volpa.

Among the minor difficulties of the peace conference was a protest by the Belgian delegates against the indemnity arrangements. It had been provided that Belgium should receive $500,000,000 as a part of the five billion that Germany is to be required to pay. But the Belgians said that this was not enough, and that they should receive more.

cause it left undecided the proportion of the total reparations money to be allotted to them, and the Brussels government decided its delegates could not sign a treaty that did not provide for a complete fulfillment of the promises made Belgium by her allies.

These and several other matters having delayed the completion of the peace treaty, it could not be presented to the Germans last week, but this ceremony, it was believed, would take place Monday. The German plenipotentiaries arrived at Versailles on Wednesday and were received by a representative of the French foreign ministry with cold but carefully studied-out formality, after which they were housed in the Hotel des Reservoirs. On Thursday they handed over their credentials to an allied commission headed by Jules Cambon, and the same day witnessed their first formal meeting with the allied peace commissioners as represented by a special committee that included Americans.

Though these Germans are called plenipotentiaries, there was some doubt last week as to the adequacy of their powers and especially as to their qualifications to speak and act for Bavaria. Examination into this matter, it was said, might further delay the presentation of the peace terms. It is understood the Germans will be given enough time to study the treaty and to transmit it to the national assembly at Weimar, but that its terms would not be subject to any material modifications at their demand. Should the Germans refuse to sign the treaty their further resistance to the allies could be, but little more than passive, and doubtless Marshal Foch has in hand full plans to meet that situation. These, presumably, would include the occupation of more German territory, the seizure of more material resources and the continuation of the blockade. Prominent Huas are quoted daily in protest against the "harshness" of the terms, which they aver will only throw Germany into the hands of the bolsheviks. An argument that already has lost most of its force. The publication of the terms which Herr Erzberger had drawn up to be imposed on the allies after their defeat doesn't tend to increase the spirit of leniency toward the Huas, for they were planning to impose on France and Belgium the most crushing of terms.

That the former kaiser will be tried for at least some of his crimes seemed reasonably certain, since the commission on responsibility recommended that he be arraigned before an international tribunal "not for an offense against national law, but for a supreme offense against international morality and the sanctity of treaties." This decision was reached despite the sentimental protests of the Japanese and the painfully technical objections of Mr. Lansing. The viewpoint of the Japanese is easily understandable, since for them to admit that a kaiser of Germany is responsible for his actions to anyone short of divinity would be knocking off one of the legs of their own emperor's throne. Perhaps Mr. Lansing could make his position clear to a committee of the bar association, but the layman can scarcely comprehend it.

According to the recommendation of the commission, offenders of lesser rank are to be tried before tribunals of the country or countries whose nationals suffered by their crimes. The German government is required to furnish all documents and information in its possession necessary to discover the offenders and fix their responsibility. The Netherlands government is to be asked to surrender the ex-kaiser, and the German government is called on to give up all the other accused persons.

The revised covenant of the league of nations was made public Monday and at a plenary session of the peace conference it was adopted unanimously on motion of President Wilson. He first explained to the delegates all the changes that had been made and the reasons therefor. Italy was not present at the meeting, but it was included among the charter members of the league. The French and Japanese amendments were offered and discussed, but were not adopted. The revised covenant, which was adopted, was a compromise between the original and the amendments.

mond was made secretary general of the league and the representatives of Brazil, Belgium, Greece and Spain, were selected temporarily to represent the lesser powers. At once began the making of plans for the first meeting of the league, and it was admitted that this would be held in Washington in October next. In the White House, under the presidency of Mr. Wilson. At that time the assembly will complete the organization and the next session will be held in Geneva, the permanent seat of the league.

Republican senators who are still unsatisfied with the league covenant—and they are rather numerous—agreed to hold a conference on the question as soon as the president issued the call for an extra session of congress. They are determined that the covenant shall be further amended, and some of them favor a plan to try to dislodge it from the peace treaty. The latter, they agree, must not be finally delayed, and they are a unit in demanding the early return of all American troops from foreign lands. Half a dozen or more of the original opponents of the league in the senate will support the amended covenant, but some of the Republican leaders assert that there are still 33 on the list of those who will not accept it.

Once more we are asked to believe that the bolshevik regime in Russia is waning, and according to the story, Lenin and Trotsky have sought in vain for assurances of asylum in various European countries. Petrograd is being evacuated by the bolsheviks, say dispatches from Heligoland, and the government is sending away many of the inhabitants. On their western and northern fronts the soviet forces met with decided reverses, but their leaders claimed these were counter-balanced by gains in the South.

The soviet government of Munich at last accounts was still holding out, but the city was being closely surrounded by troops of the German government and the rule of the communists, it was said, was near its end. Elsewhere in Germany it was the same old story of repeated outbreaks of the Spartacists, street fights and riots, and strikes.

The sensation of the week in the United States was the uncovering of a grisly plot to assassinate leading citizens in all parts of the country. Several scores of cleverly constructed bombs were mailed from New York city to members of the cabinet, senators, representatives, judges and wealthy men, and only the failure to attach sufficient postage prevented the murder or maiming of many of the intended victims. Practically all of those whose death was thus sought have been concerned in some way with the prosecution or deportation of members of the I. W. W. and other radicals, so the source of the bombs is not far to seek. The Reds had threatened a demonstration on May 1 in behalf of Thomas J. Mooney and others convicted of the San Francisco bomb outrage, and Eugene V. Debs, when sent to prison for violating the espionage act, had voiced a similar threat. Investigation showed the bombs had been mailed on different days with the evident plan that they should be received by the victims on the same day. The Socialists denied any part in the plot or any knowledge of it, but its discovery and the general feeling of indignation it aroused resulted in the suppression of their plans for elaborate May day celebrations in various cities.

Two great disasters occurred last week on opposite sides of the globe. In San Salvador there was a severe earthquake which resulted in great loss of life and property, though its extent is not yet fully known. A large section of Yokohama was swept by fire, fully 2,000 buildings being destroyed, including part of the business district.

What might be regarded as a disaster for many also hit the United States, for the tax on luxuries went into effect on May 1. This boosts the cost of innumerable articles if the price is in excess of specified sums, and also applies to soft drinks, cigarettes, amusements, candy and other things that have a high price.

Stock Raising in Western Canada is as profitable as Grain Growing

In Western Canada Grain Growing is a profit maker. Raising Cattle, Sheep and Hogs leaves certain success. It's easy to prosper where you can raise 20 to 45 bu. of wheat to the acre and buy on easy terms.

Land at $15 to $30 Per Acre—Good Grazing Land at Much Less.

Railways and Land Companies offer unusual inducements to homesteaders to settle in Western Canada and enjoy her prosperity. Loans made for the purchase of stock or other farming requirements can be had at low interest. The Governments of the Dominion and Provinces of Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta extend every encouragement to the farmer and ranchman. You can obtain excellent land at low prices on easy terms, and get high prices for your grain, cattle, sheep and hogs—low taxes (none on stock), free schools, churches, splendid climate and sure crops.

Officers and Men Alike Recognize in General Pershing Qualities That Compel Their Affection.

"Why do we swear by Pershing?" countered a staff officer in Washington one day in response to a question. "Well, I guess it's because he's the real thing—a regular American, if you know what I mean."

"You can easily figure out the rest of him," he is by the stories they tell of him. I was with him when he was on his way to Washington to receive his orders for France. On the way, we passed through the town in which he lived when he was a boy. On the station platform was the same old negro porter Pershing had thrown stones at in his boyhood. The general chatted with the old man. Afterward I asked the porter what happened. He said: "He don't wanted to know all 'bout the folks he used know, 'n' when he was gettin' on the car again he picked up a pebble as big as my thumb 'n' hove it at me. Jus' like he hater when he was an ornery kid."

Ford

THE UNIVERSAL CAR

The Ford One Ton Truck may well be classed as an agricultural necessity. It fits into and fills so many wants on the farm. It is a reliable bearer of farm burdens, not only doing the work of several horses quicker and better than the horse, and does not "eat its head off" when not working. The aggressive farmer has only to consider the possibilities of the Ford truck and he is ready to buy one. We judge this to be so from the way farmers are buying them. Truck Chassis $550 F. O. B. GREEN FANCY LIARS.

Synopsis:—Thomas K. Barnes, a wealthy young New Yorker, on a walking trip in New England near the Canadian border, is given a lift in an automobile by a mysterious and attractive girl bound for a house called Green Fancy. At Earl's tavern Barnes finds a stranded troupe of "barn-storming" actors, of which London Rushcroft is the star and "Miss Thackeray" the leading lady. They are doing hotel work for their board. He learns Green Fancy is a house of mystery. That night two mounted men leave the tavern under odd circumstances. One is shot dead near by; the other is brought back dying. The sheriff detains Barnes. Green Fancy guests appear and say the mystery does not concern Green Fancy.

The two men looked at him, plainly perplexed.

"When was all this?" inquired De Soia.

"Early last evening. He picked up your latest guest at the corner, and she insisted in his driving me to the tavern before the storm broke. I've been terribly anxious about her. She must have been caught out in all that blizzard."

"What's this you are saying, Mr. Barnes?" said De Soia, frowning.

No guest arrived at Green Fancy last evening, nor was one expected.

Barnes stared. "Do you mean to say that she didn't get there, after all?"

"She? A woman, was it?" demanded O'Dowd. "Indeed, if she said she was coming to Green Fancy she was coming. Are you sure it was old Peter who gave you that jolly ride?"

"No, I am not sure," said Barnes anxiously. "She was not, having walked from the station below. I met her at the corner and she asked me if I knew how far it was to Green Fancy, or something like that. Said she was going there. Then along came the automobile, rattling down this very road—an ancient Panhard driven by an old caddy. She seemed to think it was all right to hop in and trust herself to him, although she'd never seen him before."

"The antique Panhard fits in all right," said O'Dowd. "But I'm hanged if the woman fits at all. No such person arrived at Green Fancy last night."

"Did you get a square look at the driver's face?" demanded De Soia.

"It was almost too dark to see, but he was old, hunched-backed, and spoke with an accent."

"Then it couldn't have been Peter," said De Soia positively. "He's old, right enough, but he is as big as a full moon, and he is Yankee in his tone. My god, Barnes, the plot thickens! A woman has been added to the mystery. Now, what the devil is she and what has become of her?"

CHAPTER VI.

Charity Begins Far From Home, and a Street in the Wildwood Follows.

Mr. Rushcroft was furious when he arose at eleven o'clock on the morning after the double murder, having slept like a top through all of the confusion. He looked all over the place, vocal castigations falling right and left on the guilty and the innocent without distinction.

"I don't see how you managed to sleep through it," Barnes broke in. "You must have an unusually clear conscience, Mr. Rushcroft."

"I haven't any conscience at all, sir," roared the star. "I had an unusually full stomach, that's what was the matter with me. I take oath now, sir, never to eat again as long as I live. A man who cannot govern his beastly appetite ought to defy it, if nothing else."

"I gather from that remark that you regretted breakfast this morning?"

"Breakfast, sir? In God's name, I implore you not to refer to anything so disgusting as stewed prunes and bacon at a time like this. My mind is—"

"How about luncheon? Will you join me at twelve-thirty?"

"That's quite another matter," said Mr. Rushcroft readily. "Luncheon is an aesthetic tribute to the physical intelligence of man, if you know what I mean. I shall be delighted to join you. Twelve-thirty, did you say?"

"I would give you great pleasure if your daughter would also grace the festive board. I think it is too bad that she has to go about in the gown she wears, Mr. Rushcroft," said Barnes. "She's much too splendid for that. I have a proposition I'd like to make to you later on. I cannot make it, however, without consulting Miss Thackeray's feelings."

"My dear fellow," began Barnes, "let me tell you, I am not at all sure that I can make it."

frequently reads in books about it coming like this, at first sight, but, damn, I never dreamed that it ever really happened. Count on me! She ought to leave the stage, the dear child. No more fitted to it than an Easter lily. Her place is in the home, the—"

"Good Lord, I am not thinking of—"

And Barnes, against, stopped before blurted out the words that leaped to his lips. "I mean to say this is a proposition that may also affect your excellent companion, Bacon and Dillingford, as well as yourself."

At twelve-thirty sharp Barnes came down from his room freshly shaved and brushed, to find not only Mr. Rushcroft and Miss Thackeray awaiting him in the office, but the Messrs. Dillingford and Bacon as well.

"I took the liberty, old fellow," said Rushcroft, addressing Barnes, "of asking my excellent co-workers to join us in our request."

"Delighted to have you with us, gentlemen," said Barnes affably.

The sole topic of conversation for the first half hour was the mysterious slaying of their fellow lodgers. Mr. Rushcroft complained bitterly of the outrageous, high-handed action of the coroner and sheriff in imposing upon him and his company the same restrictions that had been applied to Barnes. They were not to leave the county until the authorities gave the word. One would have thought, to hear the star's indignant lamentations, that he and his party were in a position to depart when they pleased. It would have been difficult to imagine that he was not actually rolling in money instead of being absolutely penniless.

Barnes had been immersed in his own thoughts for some time. A slight frown, as of reflection, darkened his eyes. Suddenly, perhaps impulsively, he interrupted Mr. Rushcroft's flow of eloquence.

"Have you any objection, Mr. Rushcroft, to a more or less personal question concerning your own private—er—misfortunes?" he asked, leaning forward.

For a moment one could have heard a pin drop. Mr. Rushcroft evidently held his breath. There could be no mistake about that.

"It's rather delicate, but would you mind telling me just how much you were stuck up for by the—er—was it a writ of attachment?"

"It was," said the star. "A writ of injunction, you might as well substitute. The act of a polluted, impudent, parsimonious—what shall I say? Well, I will be as simple as possible—hotel keeper. Ninety-seven dollars and forty cents. For that pitiful amount he subjected me to—"

"Well, that isn't so bad," said Barnes, vastly relieved. He was eagerly watching Miss Thackeray's half-averted face as he ventured upon the proposition he had decided to put before them. "I am prepared and willing to advance this amount, Mr. Rushcroft, and to take your personal note as security."

Rushcroft leaned back in his chair and stuck his thumbs in the armbolts of his vest. He displayed no undue elation. Instead he affected profound calculations. His daughter shot a swift, searching look at the would-be Samaritan. There was a heightened color in her cheeks.

"Moreover, I shall be happy to increase the amount of the loan sufficiently to cover your return at once to New York, if you so desire—by train," Barnes smiled as he added the last two words.

"Extremely kind of you, my dear Barnes," said the actor, running his fingers through his hair. "Your faith in me is most gratifying. I—I really don't know what to say to you, sir."

"May I inquire just how you expect to profit by this transaction, Mr. Barnes?" Miss Thackeray asked steadily.

He started, catching her meaning.

"My dear Miss Thackeray," he exclaimed, "this transaction is solely between your father and me. I shall have no other claim to press."

"I wish I could believe that," she said.

"You may believe it," he assured her.

"It isn't the usual course," she said quietly, and her face brightened. "You are not like most men, Mr. Barnes."

"My dear child," said Rushcroft, "you must leave this matter to our friend and me. I fancy I know a honest man when I see him. My dear fellow, fortune is but temporarily frowning upon me. In a few weeks I shall be on my feet again, slipping along on the crest of the wave. I dare say I can return the money to you in a month or six weeks. If—"

"Oh, father!" cried Miss Thackeray. "We'll make it six months, and I'll pay any rate of interest you desire. Six per cent, eight per cent, ten per—"

"Six per cent, sir, and we will make it a year from date."

"Agreed. Get up and dance for us, Dilly. We shall be in New York tomorrow."

"You forget the dictatorial sheriff," said Barnes.

"My dear fellow," began Barnes, "let me tell you, I am not at all sure that I can make it."

"My dear fellow," began Barnes, "let me tell you, I am not at all sure that I can make it."

"The carter!" barked Mr. Rushcroft. It was arranged that Dillingford and Bacon were to go to Horaville in a hired motor that afternoon, secure the judgment, pay the costs, and attend to the removal of the personal belongings of the stranded quartette from the hotel to Harry's Tavern.

The younger actors stoutly refused to accept Barnes' offer to pay their board while at the Tavern. That, they declared, would be charity, and they preferred their friendship and respect to anything of that sort. Miss Thackeray, however, was to be immediately relieved of her position as chambermaid. She was to become a paying guest.

Rushcroft took the whole affair with the most noteworthy complacency. He seemed to regard it as his due, or more properly speaking as if he were doing Barnes a great favor in allowing him to lend money to a person of his importance.

"A thought has just come to me, my dear fellow," he remarked as they arose from table. "With the proper kind of backing I could put over one of the most stupendous things the theater has known in fifty years. I don't mind saying to you—although it's rather a sub rosa—that I have written a play—a four-act drama that will pack the biggest house on Broadway to the roof for as many months as we'd care to stay. Perhaps you will allow me to talk it over with you a little later on. You will be interested, I'm sure."

"Well, I'm tremendously relieved," said Barnes slowly.

"And so am I," said O'Dowd with conviction. "I have seen this heroine of my latest romance. She's a good-looking girl. I'm not surprised that she kept her veil down. If you were to leave it to me, though, I'd say that it's a sin to carry a veil so far as all that. You see what I mean, don't you?" His rich laugh came over the wire.

"Perfectly. Thank you for letting me know. My mind is at rest. Good-by." As he hung up the receiver he said to himself, "You are a most affable, convincing chap, Mr. O'Dowd, but I don't believe a word you say. That woman is no lady's maid, and you've known all the time that she was there."

At four o'clock he set out alone for a tramp up the mountain road in which the two men had been shot down. His mind was quite clear. Room and Paul were not ordinary robbers. They were, no doubt, honest men. He would have said that they were thieves bent on burglarizing Green Fancy were it not for the disclosures of Miss Thackeray and the very convincing proof that they were not shot by the same man.

It was not beyond reason—indeed, it was quite probable—that they were trying to cross the border; in that event their real operations would be confined to the Canadian side of the line. He could not free himself of the suspicion that Green Fancy possessed the key to the situation. Room and his companion could not have had the slightest interest in his movements up to the instant he encountered the young woman at the crossroads. His busy brain suddenly suffered the shock of a distinct conclusion. Was she a fellow conspirator? Was she the inside worker at Green Fancy in a well-laid plan to ride the place?

Could it be possible that she was the confederate of these painstaking agents who lurked with sinister patience outside the very gates of the place called Green Fancy?

His ramble carried him far beyond the spot where Room's body was found and where young Conley had come upon the tethered horses. His eager, curious gaze swept the forest to the left of the road in search of Green Fancy. Overcome by a rush, daring impulse, he clambered over the stake and rider fence and snatched the big tree which so far had obscured the house from view. The trees were very thickly on the slope, and they were unusually large. He progressed deeper into the wood. At the end of what must have been a mile he halted. There was no sign of habitation, no indication that man had ever penetrated so far into the forest. As he was on the point of retracing his steps toward the road his gaze fell upon a huge moss-covered rock less than a hundred yards away. He stared, and gradually it began to take on angles and planes and recesses of the most astounding symmetry. Under his widening gaze it was transformed into a substantial object of cubes and gables and—yes, windows.

He was looking upon the strange home of the even stranger Mr. Curtis—Green Fancier.

Now he understood why it was called Green Fancy. Its surroundings were no greener than itself; it seemed to melt into the foliage, to become a part of the natural landscape. Mountain ivy literally enveloped it. Exposed sections of the house were painted green; the floors were green; the leafy porches and their columns, the chimney pots, the window hangings—all were the color of the unchanging forest. And it was a place of huge dimensions, low and long and rambling.

"God," he said to himself, "what manner of crank is he who would bury himself like this? Of all the crazy ideas I ever—"

His reflections ended there. A worn, an crossed his vision; a woman striding slowly toward him through the intricate avenues of the wildwood.

Barnes met "Mrs. Van Dyke's maid," and the mystery deepens.

Longfellow Justly Popular.

Longfellow is justly popular as the poet who, above all other poets of this country, has expressed with a varied and finished art the simple, natural, elemental affections and sentiments. His literary productions are confined almost entirely to those in poetic form. Hyperion, a rather florid romance, and Kavanagh, a romance of somewhat better quality, are the two exceptions. His well-known "Psalm of Life," "The Song of Halloway," "Evangeline," and many other poems have made his name a familiar household word, and every schoolboy is familiar with "The Village Blacksmith," "The Wreck of the Ship," which are the melodious phrasing of thoughts and feelings dear to the children even of a larger growth.

Kettledrum is Old.

The Greeks and Romans danced to the accompaniment of the tympanum—from which our modern kettledrum has been adapted—but failed to apply this instrument of percussion to warfare, and it is not till the seventh century that the Moors and Saracens of Spain introduced the drum among European soldiers, having themselves acquired it from the Hindus through Persian traders. The ancient word "tympanum" or the French "tambour" is the source of our word "kettledrum."

Need of a Cash Register.

Mr. M— is not always as regular in his accounts as he might be. In spite of that, however, he was recently elected to carry the contribution basket at his church, but there was much opposition, particularly from the men, who had known him to juggle various other accounts over which he had had charge. Finally the grocer voted his objection in this way: "I don't think we'd better let him carry that basket unless we have a cash register attached to it."

WITH AN EYE TO THE FUTURE

Prima Donna Had Good Business Reasons for Asking for Slight Change in Contract.

Senator Lodge sounded the warning that the artists of the league of nations should be weighed carefully before being adopted. He asserted that too many of them might well jeopardize our future.

"Indeed," we may well follow the example of the prima donna who was reading a rough draft of her new contract.

"When she came to the paragraph providing that she should have transportation for herself, her maid, her dog and six gazelles, her husband, she drew a line through the signature name."

"Just make that husband," she said. "Yes, madam," assented the manager, but may I ask why?"

"The other husband and every other husband," she answered.

Needless Alarm.

Junior had not been in the best of health, and when he seemed well on the way to recovery, his mother took extra precautions to guard him against possibilities of an influenza attack.

One evening the anxious mother was startled when she entered Junior's room and found the little chap in bed, snoring with red eyes and victory.

"Goodness, gracious!" she cried, "do you feel sick, dearie?"

"No, mamma," Junior replied. "But you seem to have caught a dreadful cold."

"I haven't any cold."

"But your nose and your eyes?"

"From under the covers Junior poked a nose."

"It is Uncle Tom's Cabin," mamma," he said, "and I have just been reading about poor little Ben."—Youngstown Telegram.

Women Need Swamp-Root.

Thousands of women have kidney and bladder trouble and never suspect it. Women's complaints often prove to be nothing else but kidney trouble, or the result of kidney or bladder disease.

If the kidneys are not in a healthy condition, they may cause the other organs to become diseased.

Pain in the back, headache, loss of appetite, nervousness, are often times symptoms of kidney trouble.

Don't delay starting treatment. Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, a physician's prescription, obtained at any drug store, may be just the remedy needed to overcome such conditions.

Get a medium or large size bottle immediately from any drug store.

However, if you wish first to test this great preparation send ten cents to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., for a sample bottle. When writing be sure and mention this paper.—Adv.

Need of a Cash Register.

Mr. M— is not always as regular in his accounts as he might be. In spite of that, however, he was recently elected to carry the contribution basket at his church, but there was much opposition, particularly from the men, who had known him to juggle various other accounts over which he had had charge. Finally the grocer voted his objection in this way: "I don't think we'd better let him carry that basket unless we have a cash register attached to it."

Probably no man in America was ever

Pierce, of Buffalo, N. Y. The cases that came to him run into many thousands, giving him an experience that rarely comes to any one man. Dr. Pierce found that in nearly every case there were certain vegetable growths which rarely failed to give prompt relief in those feminine disorders from which so many women suffer. He combined these roots and herbs into a temperance medicine that he called Dr. Pierce's Favorite Pres-

COLUMBUS FIRE TRAPS SLEEPERS

SEVERAL DIE, SCORES BADLY

Columbus, Oh.—Between seven and ten persons died, a dozen others are in hospitals in a serious condition and a score more were badly hurt in a fire in Broad and Front streets, in the heart of downtown Columbus, at midnight Tuesday.

Men, women and children jumped from upper floors into life nets. One baby was thrown from the third floor and caught in the arms of a youth aiding the firemen.

Scores of women who jumped from upper apartments of the seven-story building have been taken to hospitals seriously injured.

A dozen small children and babies in arms were tossed from windows.
The entire upper half of the building was a mass of flames and it will be days before it is known how many

DAIRY

TIME TO IMPROVE PASTURES

Clean Up by Cutting Off Brush, Briars and Weeds—Reseeding Bare Spots is Favored.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Spring is the desirable time of year for the improvement of pastures.
Large areas of permanent pasture would respond to proper methods of improvement which might include the following:

Keep the pastures clean by cutting off brush, briars and weeds. Large stumps, stones and dead trees should also be removed.

Those areas used for pasture that would permit harrowing and disking at the time of reseeding, applying lime, fertilizers and manure, etc., may be greatly benefited. In some sections terracing may be practiced with satisfactory results.

The application of lime, acid phosphate and manure can always be relied upon in most sections as a means of adding the necessary increased fertility.

Reseeding, particularly in bare spots, is to be recommended. White and Japan clover, bermuda, berds grass, carpet grass and blue grass in favored sections are commonly used.
As a rule reseeded pastures should be lightly grazed the first year. At all times it is advisable to keep the cattle off of the grass in the spring until well

Work Done in the Spring to Improve Pastures Will Insure Greater Supply of Feed Later.

started. Closer grazing during the rest of the season may be practiced where this has been done. It is also advisable to turn cattle off the pasture earlier in the fall than is commonly practiced.

DAIRY COW IS ECONOMICAL

Utilizes Coarse Materials, Inedible to Humans, and Turns Them Into Food Material.

Two facts stand out prominently as reasons for the increased production and use of milk. The first is that milk as purchased on the market usually supplies food material together with the growth-producing elements more economically than either meat or eggs. The second reason is that the dairy cow is the most economical producer of animal food. One great law of food conservation is to turn inedible feeds into edible foods in the cheapest possible manner. The dairy cow will utilize coarse materials, inedible to humans—such as grass, cornstalks and hay—and will turn them into milk. Other farm animals also are converters of coarse roughage into edible foods, but are not so efficient as the dairy cow.

GOOD FOR SCOURS IN CALF

Mixture of Formaldehyde and Water Is Recommended—Cut Down the Amount of Milk Fed.

This is good for scours in calves:
One ounce of formaldehyde (use 46 per cent formaldehyde), 16 ounces of water, mix, give one teaspoonful for each pound of milk fed to calf, stir in the milk. Cut down on the amount of milk being fed. This for two weeks is generally enough. Follow with two-ounce dose of castor oil if constipated.

FEED GRAIN TO YOUNG CALF

When Changed From Whole to Skimmed Milk Little Grain Should Be Put in Youngster's Mouth.

When the calf is changed from whole milk to skim milk, it will begin to eat grain. Place a little grain in its mouth after each feeding of milk. It will soon learn to eat the grain without assistance. The grain should not be fed with the milk. The calf should be allowed to masticate the grain.

TO PREVENT DISEASE GERMS

Healthy, Tuberculin-Tested Cows
First Essential—Pure
Is Important.

To prevent the entrance of germs into milk, health tested cows, free from infection or danger, are essential. Healthy mentality and good health are essential to the dairy cow.

ficient to remove every hard corn, soft

Criticism.

Billy Sunday tells with gusto of the subtle criticism a pretty Philadelphia girl once passed on his informal preaching methods.

The revivalist halted at the end of an impassioned Philadelphia harangue, rolled down his sleeves, put on his coat and said:

"And now, dear friends, are there any questions?"

"All the congregation was silent except the pretty girl. She asked from her front pew:

"May I smoke?"

Indigestion, Gas and Bloat From Acid-Stomach

An acid-stomach cannot digest food properly. Instead, the food sours and ferments, and passing into the intestines, becomes a breeding place for countless millions of deadly germs—toxic poisons they are called. These poisons are absorbed into the system and cause untold misery. So, you see, it is just acid-stomach, nothing else, that makes so many people weak, listless and unfit; saps their strength and energy; robs them of their vigor and vitality. Billiousness, bad liver, nervousness, blinding, splitting headaches, rheumatism, lumbago, sciatica—these and many other still more serious ailments often are traced to the common source—an acid-stomach.

CENTRAL COUNTING BOARD.

A bill giving cities and villages in Michigan the right to create central counting boards to expedite the getting of results at elections, was passed by both houses of the state legislature. Under the present system of counting the ballots the ballot boxes are all closed and sealed when the polls are closed, after which the counting begins. The new act provides for the sealing of the boxes, two or three times during the day and bringing the votes in to the central counting board, which will have the work completed or nearly so by the time the polls close, leaving only the ballots cast during the last period remaining to be counted.

Tobacco users in Chelsea who bought the tobacco cure that an agent has been selling here are cautioned to follow directions closely. The nitrate of silver, which is the basis of the cure, is a poison, lunar caustic, and the antidote is common salt. The directions that accompany the cure say use strong salt and water in the mouth and teeth morning and night while taking the remedy. The salt and water is so simple that it is feared that some persons might neglect to use it, not knowing that it is an antidote for the deadly poison, silver nitrate.

Home endorsement should prove undoubtedly the merit of this remedy. Years ago your friends and neighbors testified to the relief they had derived from the use of Doan's Kidney Pills. They now confirm their testimonials. They say time has completed the test.

Mrs. W. D. Arnold, E. Middle St., Chelsea, says: "I suffered greatly from nagging, dull backaches and distressing pains across my kidneys. My kidneys gave me a great deal of annoyance. I got Doan's Kidney Pills at Fena's Drug Store and they helped me wonderfully. They removed the pain in my back and corrected my kidneys."

Over three years later Mrs. Arnold said: "My cure has been permanent and I give Doan's Kidney Pills all the credit."

Price 60c, at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Kidney Pills—the same that Mrs. Arnold had. Foster-Milburn Co., Mfgs., Buffalo, N. Y.—Adv.
