You Expect to Give Them.

IN BARK TANNING the hides are hung in a still vat filled with bark liquor. After forty days they are removed and stuffed with paraffine and heavy greases. They are then hung up to dry until the stuffing is set. After that they are placed on a glass table and buffed by hand. They are then sorted, colored and finished. It takes several months for this process. Bark tanned leathers are well adapted for barnyard use.

IN CHROME TANNING the hides are hung in a bath of bi-chromate of potash. They are then drained so that the tanning may set. This process is much shorter than the bark tanning. Chrome leather is essentially adapted for dry weather wear and should not be used in moisture where ammonia will disintegrate the fibre. Chrome leather stuffed with greases are well fitted for wet wear.

Constitution Day Proclamation.

Wednesday, September 17, will mark the anniversary of the adoption of our federal constitution and that day will be generally observed throughout the nation as Constitution Day.

The Constitution of the United States is the great charter of American liberties. Through conformity to its principles we have enjoyed, as have the people of no other land, the blessings of civil and religious liberty, and in these days of world-wide readjustment it is well that we should take time to study its provisions and consider its effect upon our history and development.

Therefore, I, Albert E. Sleeper, governor of the state of Michigan, do hereby designate Wednesday, September 17, 1919, as Constitution Day.

I particularly urge that the day be fittingly celebrated in all the communities of our state and that local committees be organized for this purpose.

I request that the day be observed also in all the schools of the state, that the constitution be read and such other exercises carried out as will impress the minds of the pupils with its tremendous significance and importance.

I request, too, that Sunday, September 14, 1919, be observed as Constitution Sunday in all the churches of Michigan.

Given under my hand at the capital in Lansing this 3rd day of September, A. D. 1919.

ALBERT E. SLEEPER,
Governor.

A Mystery Cruise.

Through the courtesy of A. G. Faist local sales agent of the Overland Automobile Co., and the Simons Sales Co., Michigan distributors of the Overland cars, the editor of the Standard enjoyed a day's outing last Friday, being a member of a party of nearly 400 representing the entire dealer organization in Michigan. The party left Detroit Friday morning for a one day "mystery" cruise on the steamer Greyhound. The destination of the boat was kept a secret, but after a four-hour ride the party landed in Toledo, where they were taken to the Overland plant, where the dealers were given an opportunity to see the new Overland "4" and the Wyllis Knight "1", which the Simons Sales Co. will distribute in the future. Mr. Faist and N. H. Cook were members of the party.

Lunch and dinner were served on the boat, and it was nearly midnight when the boat docked in Detroit.

Victory Day at the County Fair.

The plans have been completed for the biggest celebration ever held in Washtenaw county for Tuesday, September 16. This is Victory Day celebration in honor of the service men and will be held the first day of the county fair.

The Community Service and fair society, working together with the board of directors can assure the people of Washtenaw county that the celebration held in honor of Washtenaw service men will be a never-to-be-forgotten day in the annals of the county.

Arrangements have been completed with the authorities at Camp Custer for seven car loads of war material to be used in the Victory parade. An entire company of soldiers from Camp Custer will accompany the material and appear in the parade, fully equipped to go over the top.

At noon, a gigantic barbecue will be served to all returned service men. After the barbecue will be a program of free entertainment, including an exhibition by the famous guidless wonder. This horse races a mile without driver, sulky or bridle in competition with another race horse.

There will be a number of athletic stunts pulled off by the service men, including wrestling, boxing and other activities. As a feature of the entertainment, the Newton Fire Works Co. of Chicago, will put on what they positively guarantee to be the finest display of set pieces ever shown in the state. This program of fireworks will be given afternoon and evening.

The evening entertainment will consist of dancing on the big temporary floor. A number of first-class shows will be on the grounds with all the amusements which go to make a first class fair.

The annual Foster family reunion was held Sunday at the Cavanaugh Lake summer home of E. J. Foster, of Grass Lake. There were about thirty members of the family present and a picnic dinner was served. Those present from a distance were A. E. Foster and Circuit Court Commissioner Walsh, of Owosso.

EX-SERVICE MEN

WERE HONORED

Victory Day Celebration Monday Was Grand Success.

Monday was just the right sort of a day for the big Victory Day celebration at which time the people of Chelsea and the townships of Sylvan, Lima, Lyndon, and Dexter gave expression to their feelings towards the returned service men.

Activities started early and continued until late at night, when the festivities ended with the big dance at Maccabee hall.

The parade formed at 10:30 o'clock and was a grand one, and showed the effects of much thought and plenty of hard work on the part of those participating.

The parade was led by Herbert W. Schenk riding his beautiful white horse. He was followed by a "tank" made by the Lewis Spring & Axle Co. Then came the civil war veterans in automobiles; a float bearing the Goddess of Liberty; wounded ex-service men from Dexter in auto; martial band; ex-service men under command of Lieut. A. A. Palmer; the Chelsea Home Guards under command of B. B. Turnbull; W. R. C. in automobiles; Red Cross; Home Nursing class; members of the village council in auto; Border Cities Pipe Band; Chelsea Fire Department motor truck; Hollier six; Palmer Motor Sales Co. float drawn by Fordson tractor; Chelsea Roller Mills; Order Eastern Star; Boehm & Albers; Ladies of the Maccabees; Pythian Sisters; boys and girls on bicycles; school children; W. P. Schenk, Case tractor; A. G. Faist Cletrac and Overland "4". There were also a number of private automobiles which were beautifully decorated.

In the afternoon the Hollier Band gave one of its excellent concerts, under the direction of F. H. Lewis.

This was followed by the sport contests, as follows:

50 yard dash, boys 1st, L. Nichols;

2d, Leo Tuttle.

100 yard dash 1st, Clare Rowe; 2d,

Clare Fenn.

50 yard dash, girls 1st, Edith Trolley; 2d, Margaret Canfield.

Pie eating contest—1st, Philip

Hoffman; 2d, Roland Reidel.

Relay race, between overseas men and states men, won by the latter.

Snake race, between overseas and states men, the latter being winners.

Tug of war, between overseas and states men. States men won.

N. S. Potter presided during the speechmaking. The first speaker was

Rev. H. G. Pearce, pastor of the M. E.

church, who was a Y. M. C. A. worker overseas. He was followed by Rev.

P. W. Dierberger, pastor of the Congregational church. Sergt. Carl Lehman, of Ann Arbor, who saw overseas service, was the next speaker, and he was followed by James Stewart, of Cleveland. Everybody waited for the address by Col. Gansser, of Bay City, of the 32d Division, and no one was disappointed.

Lieut. Goff gave several exhibitions of fancy flying with his aeroplane, and he carried a number of passengers during the day, one of whom was a woman, Miss Zita Foster of Grass

Lake. The only passenger who was taken through series of stunts was Verne Fordyce.

At 6:30 the ladies gave the boys a banquet in the dining room of the M.

E. church, which had been beautifully decorated with red, white and blue bunting, flags, and golden rod, which bore many words of praise, many expressing the sentiment that it was the proudest piece of decorating ever presented in Chelsea.

One hundred of the ex-service men were fed, and with the members of the G. A. R., the bands, and the ladies, about two hundred sat down to the tables and partook of a meal for which Chelsea women are justly famed.

In the evening, the Hollier Band gave another concert, and a number of vaudeville numbers were given,

Mr. Garrett, of Detroit, cousin of the bride, officiating. Only immediate relatives were present and the wedding was carried out in simplicity. The attendants were Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Vaughn. The bride's gown was in French colors, pink charmeuse covered with blue marquisette. She wore a corsage bouquet of bridal roses. Mrs. Vaughn wore gray silk draped in georgette and wore a corsage bouquet of sweet peas. An informal luncheon was served after which Dr. and Mrs. Drudge left for a boat trip east and down the Hudson river. Dexter Leader.—Dr. Drudge is a graduate of the Chelsea high school and for several months practiced his profession in Chelsea, in Dr. H. H. Avery's office, going from here to Detroit.

BREVITIES

Ypsilanti—Several skulls have been found at the Clark and Turner gravel pit. One had silver plates resting on the front and back, supposed to be part of a helmet. There is an emblem and a French inscription on the front plate. Several buckles and a long piece of silk were also discovered. The relics will be given to the Normal college.

Jackson—Eighteen cattle were killed in Jackson slaughter houses Monday that reacted to tuberculin test. All were tested by veterinarians of the vicinity, including representatives of the recently organized Central Michigan Veterinary Medical association. Appraised value was set upon the cattle for reimbursement of the farmers by the state.

Brighton—The first airplane that ever paid Brighton a visit dropped into town last Friday afternoon, landing in the northwest part of town, on the Rich Roberts farm. It was an unintentional visit, the aviators being on their way to Detroit and were out of gas. It wasn't but a few minutes before half of the townspeople were on the scene. —Brighton Argus.

Tecumseh—One woman coming down the street blessed (?) the oil on Chicago street yesterday in rather stout language. Her hat, a pretty white sailor, blew off and over the sticky mess it rolled, landing wrong side up in a nice black puddle. The pristine beauty of that hat is gone beyond recall, but it is the end of the straw hat season anyway. —Tecumseh Herald.

Saline—A serious fire occurred at the home of Sebastian Finkbeiner Monday evening, when Fred Dietrich was about to fill the tank on the auto with gasoline. An explosion took place which resulted in the burning of the tool shed with all the tools, the hen house, containing about one hundred hens. The barn was saved by the strenuous efforts of neighbors who arrived upon the scene opportunely. —Saline Observer.

Ann Arbor—Lock up that automobile if you want to retain possession. Indications point to a land-flee business being done in automobile thefts in this locality and Chief of Police Thomas O'Brien is warning owners not to leave their machines parked, without locking them. Twenty-seven notices of stolen cars, all of them from towns within a radius of less than 100 miles, were received at police headquarters Monday morning.

Tecumseh—The paved highway is assured as far as the number of signatures to the petition is concerned. Enough property owners along the route have realized fully the easy manner to procure the improvement and the great benefit to be derived therefrom that they did not need any coaxing to place their names on the paper. The desire to make the petition as nearly unanimous as possible has kept the committees busy longer than really necessary. —Tecumseh Herald.

Jackson—Thomas Thomas pleaded guilty to a charge of stealing chickens when arraigned in justice court Friday morning and was sentenced to 90 days in jail. Testimony had been taken in court a week ago, when a plea of not guilty was entered but rather than go through the ordeal again his plea was changed. It is said there are a number of charges pending against Thomas which will be pressed when he finishes his present jail sentence. —Jackson News.

Ann Arbor—Myrtle Wilson, 25, and Lee Jim, Chinese restaurant proprietor, are being held in the county jail under bonds of $2,000 on a charge of contributing to the delinquency of a minor. The pair were arrested by policemen after they had created a great deal of noise in the Jim restaurant on Washington street early in the morning of Tuesday. It is said that a 15-year old girl is connected with the case, and that some very interesting revelations will be forthcoming within a day or two. The Wilson woman is described as "a blond, with grey eyes," on the sheriff's blotter and has been employed as a waitress in Jim's place of business on Washington street. —Ann Arbor Times News.

Saline—Wednesday, of last week, a group of 100 farmers in the vicinity of Saline organized a cooperative live stock shipping association for the purpose of marketing their own livestock. A few weeks ago the first meeting was held at Saline and Mr. Tennant, state director of market work, outlined to the farmers in that community the need and advantage of cooperative marketing of live stock. As a result of the meeting membership agreements were circulated in the community and 100 farmers signified their intention to become charter members of such an organization. At the meeting Wednesday evening the organization was completed and the following directors were elected: Andrew C. Katzmaler, F. B. Schable, Ambruster, Albert Haus, Wilbur Cornish and John Finkbeiner.

Jackson—C. Z. Potter, president of the Jackson Chamber of Commerce went to Toledo last week and fell among thieves. He and his brother-in-law Cassel Purcell, left late Friday night from that city enroute by auto to Fremont, O. They took on board a passenger who had overheard that they were going to Fremont and who later held them up, being joined by other thugs when the car was stopped. They took about $1,000 from Potter and $57 from Purcell. Not only that but they collected their watches and even their cuff buttons. This after beating them up for resistance. Later as they were making their way back to the city sore and sad they were picked up by the Toledo police and thrown into jail as suspicious characters and possibly yeggmen whom the policemen were pursuing. They were not allowed to establish their identity until next day when the secretary of the Toledo Chamber of Commerce came to their rescue.

FEAST FOLLOWS ARAB FAST

Institution of the East Much Resembles the Christian Observance of Lenten Season.

As the Mohammedan year is a lunar one, the months rotate through the different seasons, and the fast of Ramadan becomes a severe affliction upon the faithful when the month happens to fall in the hot days of summer. The sick, travelers and soldiers in time of war are temporarily released from this duty, as well as nursing women and others to whom it might prove injurious. The fast is followed by the feast of Idraam, which was established by Mohammed, who seems to have been guided by the Christian institution of Lent, which in the early church varied from four to six weeks. On this day every family of the true believers offers a sheep to God, and the streets of the cities are filled with men carrying the destined victims on their backs. Among the Arabs the festival begins at four in the morning, when great crowds collect at the residence of the nearest pasha or bey, awaiting his appearance in the court of the palace. At five o'clock his highness enters, accompanied by members of his family and his staff; cannon are fired, the peculiar bands of the East play suitable airs, and the chief captain announces that the hour of sacrifice has arrived, and that his highness, after prayer, will be present at this act. All then adjourn to the mosque, and when the sacrifice is over the pasha re-enters the court, and those of high rank kiss his hand; the inferior slightly touching it with their lips. This occupies about an hour, when all retire to take coffee, the captain thanking the crowd for their presence as a mark of attachment to their ruler.

Joy in Conquest.

Life's master-key does for its possessor what is impossible to those who do not have it. No future is too far-boding for men of the right mental fiber to fear. Weaklings falter and turn back. Men of talent turned to right channels delight in meeting what has brought failure to the many. It offers to them a chance to try the really hard things. They alone test the skill and prove the motto. Such men bring wealth out of defeat, and rejoice in the struggle. It's no wonder they step forward and try what has brought failure to others. It's the mental sense of conquest that crowns effort with success and makes man king in the world. It's your right.—Exchange.

St. Clements—Many Michigan communities situated on rivers or streams capable of developing water power, will have Ford auxiliary automobile and tractor plants, according to Ernest G. Liebold, general secretary of the Ford Motor company. The object is to distribute the manufacture of parts of its automobiles and tractors throughout the state. According to the plans, factories will be built along rivers and streams regardless whether the energy produced is only 30 horsepower or 1,000.

Detroit—Jacob Cook, age 88, oldest employe of the United States revenue department, having served 56 years in the local office, died at Geoffrey farm, near Monroe, his old home. In more than half a century he was absent from his duties but twice, once to attend a wedding and again to attend the funeral of his wife, who died in 1918. He was appointed to the revenue service in 1863 and since that time had made daily trips to Detroit, returning home in the evening. It is estimated that he traveled more than 1,225,000 miles in that period.

Coldwater—W. D. Cowell, city attorney, has resigned in favor of Stanley Wease, former attorney, who has just returned from the Army.

Escanaba—Harold Burgeson was bound over to Circuit Court, held fixed at $1,000, when he was arrested while in possession of 48 bottles of liquor.

Holland—The arrest of two engineers for speeding, Peter Marquette through Holland has resulted in slackening the speed of trains entering the city.

Potosky—Charles and Martin, sons of Mrs. Charles Lee, of Curtis, were both fatally scalded when the mother, while carrying a pan of hot water, tripped on the former.

Flint—Robbers, who broke into the garage at the home of Matthew Davidson, automobile dealer, stole his two cars and a pocketbook with $60 which he had left in one of the machines.

Kalamazoo—Wages of teamsters employed by the city have been hoisted to $1 an hour by action of the city commission. Teamsters whose wagons are furnished by the city will be paid only 55 cents an hour.

Big Rapids—Announcement is made here that Harry Widdiomb is to reforest a 20-acre farm west of Highland View and give it to the city as a municipal forest. White and red pine will be planted on 10 acres this fall.

Adrian—The road program for next year will be the heaviest ever undertaken in Lenawee County. The county road commissioners hope to sell from 30 to 40 miles of road this winter. If enough contractors can be found.

Sturgis—A will depositing the estate of William Grobisher, directs that $250,000 be expended for the erection of a memorial hospital. Patients will be given free treatment. If unable to pay and the profit, if any, will be used for improvements.

Coldwater—Mrs. Dulcie Keene, of this city, with other passengers, was turned off her train in the middle of a desert 50 miles from San Bernardino, Calif., during the recent railroad strike. The trip to that city was made overland without food.

Grand Rapids—Alexander Delinger, 45 years old, of Grandville, was seriously injured at Elmbrook, when a tube of dynamite with which he was trying to make a whistle, exploded in his hand, severing the hand and his face and burning his body.

Potosky—In the Christopher, of St. Francis monastery, sustained a broken leg and internal injuries and Otto Amundt, a carpenter, two broken legs and internal injuries when a scaffold collapsed while they were shingling the Sisters' house. They fell 25 feet.

Bay City—While Fred Martin of Lindsay was cutting corn with a machine, his three-year-old son Joseph, came out to see his father at work. The child, unseen by the father, was caught in the knives of the binder and its right arm and leg were cut off.

Coldwater—Although the will of Thomas W. Fegles, filed for probate here, leaves half of his estate to Mima Hamblin, Battle Creek, Mrs. Hamblin will get practically nothing. In a deed Fegles gave nearly all his property to William H. Gould. Mrs. Hamblin is trying to have the deed set aside.

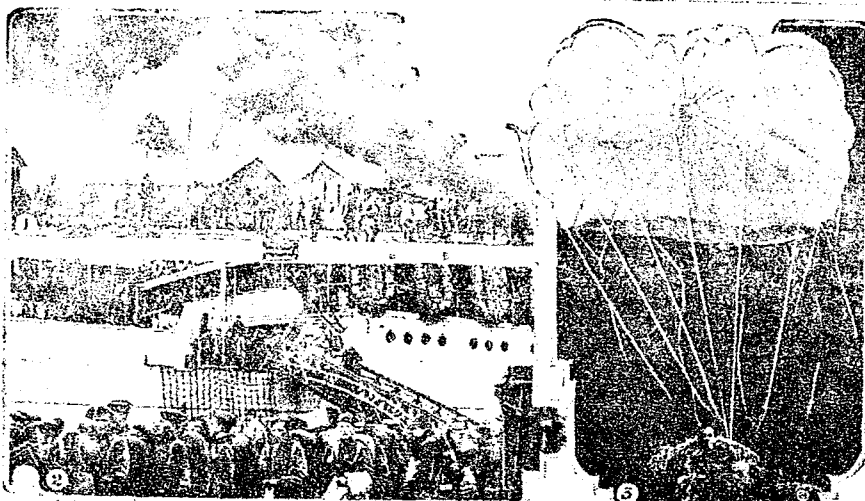

Albion—Leaving a note at his sister's home saying he was going to start life over again elsewhere, and taking with him cooking implements and a quantity of food, William Hartman, 13 years old, leader of a gang of small boys who committed a series of robberies of local stores and offices, has disappeared.

Detroit—Estimates showing that $1,702.95 a year, or $141.57 a month, is the minimum upon which a working man can support a family of five in comfort in Detroit have just been completed by the Visiting Housekeepers' association. These figures show a decided increase from $1,445.96 a year, which was the minimum of the budget compiled in March.

Grand Rapids—Fifteen truck dealers representing 13 western Michigan cities, entered trucks in the first ship-by-truck tour of the Association of Commerce. During the 200-mile trip visits were made to Marne, Coopersville, Nunica, Grand Haven, Mackinac, Cassovilla, Kent City, Sparta, Cedar Springs, Greenville, Belding, Ionia, Sarnac, Lowell, Alto, Freeport, Hastings and Middleville and Moline.

Detroit—Joseph Lauron, 33 years old, an "ethical" daylight burglar with a college education, was arrested by Detectives. Lauron is said to have confessed that he is the man who robbed 150 homes of valuable worth, according to his own estimates, a minimum of $30,000. The police say the value is nearer $45,000. He pawned jewelry he took here, he is alleged to have said because he needed money to pay the big bill of a lawyer who got him off with a sentence of only 90 days in Milwaukee, where he operated last.

Owosso—That wholesalers and retailers in Michigan are bringing pressure to bear on Attorney-General Grosbeck to call off the state high cost of living investigation before Judge Weston in Lansing, was the assertion of Ray Durham, assistant attorney-general in the recent food investigation here. Food dealers, Mr. Durham says, have told the attorney-general that publicity as to methods and prices is making his miserable for them. Prosecuting Attorney Matthews, has appointed a "fair price committee" to investigate profiteering here.

President Wilson on His Tour to Argue Peace Treaty Case
Before the People.

HE ACCEPTS NO COMPROMISE

Senate Committee Votes to Report
Pact With Reservations—Supreme Court Sends Ultimatum to Rumania and Warning to Germany—Industrial Conference Planned.

By EDWARD W. PICKARD.

President Wilson is on his way, telling the people of the United States face to face how excellent a document is the peace treaty with the incorporated League of Nations covenant, and how necessary to the welfare of the world it is that it should be ratified by the senate speedily. Beginning his address at Indianapolis, Ind., he continued to Kansas City, St. Louis, Kansas City and Des Moines, and he is now proceeding on westward by the northern route. Before leaving Washington Mr. Wilson had a final conference with Senator Hitchcock and issued instructions to his supporters to make a fight to a finish for ratification of the treaty just as it stands.

Senator Hitchcock on the same day addressed the senate on the question, hotly denouncing the opponents of the treaty, even those who favor only mild reservations. He declared the real purpose of the majority on the foreign relations committee was to kill the pact entirely, and indeed there seems to be justification for that assertion. Senator Knox's proposal that the treaty be rejected and a separate peace made with Germany, he said, was an insane mixture of poltroonery and folly. Mr. Hitchcock took direct issue with those who complain that the United States will derive no advantages and benefits from the treaty as it is. They evidently have no conception, he said, of the enormous benefits America will get from it, and intimated these would come through the operations of the reparations commission, though how, and what they would be, he neglected to explain.

The senate committee on foreign relations voted to recommend the ratification of the treaty by the senate with four important modifications. These reservations provide for unconditional right to withdraw from the League of Nations; assumption of no obligation to guarantee territorial integrity of nations; or to employ troops for coercive purposes; or to accept mandates except under the direction of congress; full freedom to determine what questions are domestic and therefore not subject to consideration by the league; exemption of the Monroe doctrine from consideration by the league and declaration that the United States is sole interpreter of that doctrine.

Senator Shields of Tennessee, Democrat, joined the majority in voting for all the reservations except that relating to article X. Senator McMahon of North Dakota voted against the first two reservations. On the last two the vote was 11 to 6.

The committee resolution stipulates that the treaty ratification by the United States shall not take effect until the American reservations have been accepted by three of the four other great powers: Great Britain, France, Italy and Japan.

The hearings granted the representatives of small and dissatisfied peoples by the foreign relations committee must be regarded as largely political bunk. The spokesmen for the Irish, of course made the loudest noise, demanding that the senate reject the treaty entire, but the Republican senators know, as do most Americans, that the Irish question is none of our business; moreover, many of us have the Irish already are tolerably free and in the way of being free very soon.

As for the Chinese, if Yosuke Matsukata, a member of the Japanese peace delegation, is to be believed, the wind will soon be taken out of the sails of those who are shouting against the Shantung settlement. He thinks Japan will open negotiations in a very few weeks for the settling of the Shantung question in a way that will satisfy everyone. Tokyo will offer to restore the territory to China, withdrawing all Japanese troops, stipulating that the peninsula shall be open to international trade and that there shall be an international settlement at Tsing-Tao, and that the Shantung railway shall be operated by a Sino-Japanese joint corporation. There are reasons to believe the Chinese government is not nearly so angry over the Shantung affair as the American opponents of the treaty pretend to be.

Hungary continues to present the most annoying problems now before the peace conference. The Rumanian occupants of the country so far have been absolutely defiant of the orders of the supreme council and are said to be plundering it in a most shameful way. Finally the exasperated council last week dispatched to the Rumanians an ultimatum couched in drastic terms, demanding that they evacuate Hungary and hand over to the allies for proper distribution all the goods they have requisitioned. The Rumanian diplomatic representatives in the allied capitals also were summoned by the foreign ministers who impressed on them the seriousness of the situation that would arise if their government should refuse to comply. The position of the Rumanians is that what they call the war between them and the Hungarians is a new affair and that the allied conference has nothing to do with it.

In Budapest they were trying hard to establish a government that the allies would recognize. Friedrich offered to resign in favor of a coalition cabinet formed by Heinrich, a wholesale hardware merchant, on certain conditions. All Jews are barred from the Heinrich ministry, but all other classes and parties are represented.

Serbia officially denied the report of a general revolt of the Montenegrins, but neutral observers who have arrived in Paris from the Black Mountain country declare the Serbs are fast wiping out the loyal people of Montenegro and that they can be saved only by military intervention by American and Great Britain. These observers assert that much of the food Hoover sent into that country fell into the hands of the Serbs and that no Montenegrins can obtain supplies unless they denounce his own country and swear allegiance to King Peter of Serbia.

Late reports from the Ukraine said Petlura and Denikin were closing in on Kiev and apparently were about to take that important city from the bolsheviks. The Reds claim the capture of Dubovka, on the lower Volga, and also announced that Admiral Kolchak had evacuated Omsk and established his government at Irkutsk, 1,500 miles further east. Kolchak has issued a stirring appeal to all loyal Russians to rejoin the ranks, and his representatives have been granted the privilege of recruiting in Japan. The Estonians had the bolshevik armies in so tight a hole that the League government offered to make peace with them. Trotsky, addressing the Petrograd soviet, said the bolsheviks must stand impregnable in the defense of that city. The reports that General Gough, the British commander, was about to attack Petrograd appear to have been untrue. The Poles also, using tanks for the first time, whipped the bolsheviks capturing the fortified town of Bobruisk and 700 prisoners.

The supreme council handed to Austria the final peace terms and a long reply to the protests of the Austrian delegates. The note impressed on the Austrians the fact that they were primarily responsible for the outbreak of the great war and cannot escape retribution by claiming they have thrown off the yoke of the Hapsburgs. The people of Austria Hungary, it said, had given full support to the ultimatum to Serbia and to the prosecution of the war, and for years had supported the militarist plot of Germany for the domination of Europe. As it is left by the treaty, Austria will be an unimportant "republic" of some 6,000,000. The decision whether it shall be permitted to join Germany is left to the League of Nations. When the supreme council read the new German constitution the other day it found it in provision for the representation of Austria in the German reichsrath. This being contrary to the Versailles treaty, the German government was told that the article must be changed within a fortnight or the allies would undertake a further occupation of the left bank of the Rhine. The Berlin press thereupon warned the allies of the danger of precipitating a new revolt of the German people. The Pan-Germans, by no means suppressed, held a union conference recently in Berlin which was participated in by Austrians, and laid plans for the restoration of the imperial government, union with Austria and the recovery of the lands ceded by the peace treaty.

Marshal Foch has determined the territory which the American troops will occupy permanently in the Rhineland. It will be about twice as great in extent as that occupied by them recently.

Just before starting out on his speaking tour President Wilson announced that a general conference on industrial and economic questions would be held in Washington early in October. Already a number of leaders of finance, manufacturing, labor and agriculture have been invited and the list will be enlarged from time to time. The president and members of his cabinet will take part in the discussions, and it is the hope and belief of Mr. Wilson and indeed of everyone that the sessions of this round table will have decisive beneficial results in the way of stabilizing industrial conditions. Certainly much good should come of the frank interchange of opinions and suggestions that is planned.

In general the labor situation is unchanged, pending the president's tour, the war on high prices and the above mentioned conference. At the same time the radical elements are keeping busy, and it may be the threatened strike of steel workers will come any day.

Quick to resent attacks on the packing industry, several big clubs and associations of Chicago have gone on record against the proposed restrictive legislation by congress. The secretary of the Chicago board of trade said its members were united in opposition to the licensing features of the pending bills, believing the whole licensing system was wrong, or, if right, should be applied to all business. All of these organizations seem to assume that the reports of the federal trade commission against the packers are based on full of falsehood.

The senate has passed the highly important bill providing for the lease of public lands with deposits of oil, coal, gas, phosphate and sodium, and the measure has gone to the house. Senator Leonard of Wisconsin says the bill goes further in the protection of the public interest than any other bill ever proposed in the senate or house. Other senators charged that it was framed in the interest of the Standard Oil company. It places the leasing of all lands in the hands of the secretary of the interior and fixes the minimum and maximum royalties. One amendment adopted compels constituent companies of the Standard Oil company to sell their product at the same price in all parts of the country, and another is designed to force those companies to become independent in fact as well as in name.

Mexican soldiers in the Carranza uniform provided the latest complication in the Mexican situation by shooting at an American army airplane that was patrolling the border near Laredo, Tex. One of the aviators, Capt. Davis W. McNabb, was wounded. The Mexican authorities said the machine was over Mexican territory at the time; the American officials on the ground denied this, and the administration at Washington patiently awaited further information. The American army is growing restive under the evident contempt in which it is held by Mexico.

DES MOINES GREETSPRESIDENT WILSON

Chief Magistrate Rests Over Sunday at Iowa's Capital.

ATTENDS CHURCH SERVICES

Huge Crowds Accord Most Cordial Reception—In Speech at Auditorium President Asks Peace to Follow the Bolsheviks.

On Board the President's Special, Des Moines, Ia., Sept. 8.—President Wilson left here last night on the first lap of his journey into the great Northwest. Happy at the reception accorded him here the president had the first breathing spell of his long trip. The only fly in the ointment was the news from Washington that Senators Cummins and Kenyon, Iowa's senators, had joined the ranks of the extreme reservationists.

This did not keep the president from enjoying a comfortable and restful day. He arose late in the morning, went with Mrs. Wilson to the Central Presbyterian church where he heard a sermon by Rev. Frank Chalmers McKee, one of his students at Princeton, and in the afternoon he took a long motor ride through the Iowa capital.

Des Moines Extends Self.
Des Moines in its welcome to the president extended itself. The streets were crowded with thousands of persons all anxious to do honor to the nation's chief executive.

For the first time in telling of the award of Shantung to Japan, he said that for this country to recover it instantly for China, we would have to fight not only Japan but France and Great Britain as well. The president received applause from 7,000 persons who comprised his audience every 30 seconds. This constitutes the most friendly reception on the trip.

The president is satisfied with the results he thus far has achieved. He believes that the speech he delivered to the members of the chamber of commerce at St. Louis is the best he yet has made and for this reason he expressed the hope he may be able to address reasonably small audiences in the future.

Aside from the particular features of the treaty there was much interest here in the president's words last night on labor. The president has replied to Samuel Gompers' telegram regarding the threatened strike of the steel workers but the reply has not been made public. "One of the difficulties in our labor situation," said the president, "is that there are some employers who will not meet their employees face to face and talk with them."

Among Home Folks.
The president was grateful for the respite here. From now until next Sunday when he reaches Seattle, he will be constantly on the go.

Although this is a strong Republican county, the president was among "home folks." One of his uncles, the late Governor William Daniel Wilson, a pioneer of Iowa, lived in Des Moines. He was the oldest brother of President Wilson's father.

Another thing that the president liked about Iowa is that, besides raising corn, they raise babies out this way. There are 22 husky youngsters, 21 white and one black whose first names are Woodrow Wilson.

Would Foll Reds.
A possibility that bolshevism may spread in threatening proportions to the United States, unless the peace treaty is ratified promptly, was suggested in the president's address here.

The whole world was waiting anxiously, he said, while the poison which had wrecked Russia was spreading among peoples who did not yet know what guarantees there were to be for liberty in the new world.

Liberty and capital in the United States, he asserted, could not proceed intelligently with their settlements, nor could great problems like the railroad situation be solved while the suspense continued.

Monroe Doctrine Safe.
Mr. Wilson defended the Shantung provision of the treaty and said the league covenant section referring to the Monroe doctrine had been inserted to "give the Monroe doctrine right of way in the Western hemisphere." He declared it would do so.

The Monroe doctrine provision, he said, had been objected to as vague because it referred to "such regional understandings as the Monroe doctrine." This language was used, he said, because the other delegates thought it wise to make a specific reference to a policy of one country without leaving the way open for other nations to develop similar policies in their own localities.

The president last night, as in Kansas City, severely arraigned those who opposed the treaty. He said he had the greatest respect for the United States senate, but that there were some members of that body who were opposing the treaty for private reasons. The others, who were conscientious, he described as "ignorant." Mr. Wilson also stated that the issue "was greater than the senate," and that he was "prepared to fight it out in office or out of office, to the end."

Big Crowd at Kansas City.
At Kansas City the president appeared to a great crowd to support the peace treaty as a charter for a new order of world affairs. Making his third speech for the treaty in Missouri to a capacity audience, President Wilson spoke in Convention hall, said to accommodate 20,000. When the president, accompanied by Mrs. Wilson, appeared on the platform the crowd of which each person had a small American flag, arose and cheered for more than two minutes. President Wilson had been cheered as the presidential party paraded through four miles of the city's streets to Convention hall. Mr. Wilson was introduced by H. A. Parsons, president of the Kansas City Chamber of Commerce.

The special train bearing President Wilson and his party arrived from St. Louis at 9:05. The train was held at the outskirts of the city for an hour before coming into Union station.

Long before the president and his party were met by the reception committee a large crowd gathered on the station plaza where the parade through downtown streets started. Led by the Seventh Regiment band, three companies of troops and a machine gun battalion, the party left Union station in automobiles shortly after the arrival of the train.

Speaks Twice at St. Louis.

St. Louis, Sept. 8.—President Wilson left no doubt in the minds of his audience here that he means to obtain the ratification of the peace treaty. He made two addresses, both to capacity crowds and to the first, in referring to the men in the senate opposing the treaty, he said in cold, crisp language:

"They are absolutely contemptible quitters if they don't see the game through."

His words electrified the 1,500 men and women in the roof garden of the Hotel Statler, brought them to their feet, sent them clapping chairs and tables, and precipitated a roar that had force enough to disturb the calm waters of the Mississippi. Beautiful sunshine, combined with a soft breeze and most of the population of St. Louis had the effect of making the president's second day out of Washington the most enjoyable thus far of the trip. The crowds gave the president and Mrs. Wilson a great reception and the city was decked in gala attire in honor of the guest. From the railroad station to the Hotel Statler, where the president spent a restful afternoon before appearing at the Coliseum, he was driven through cheering throngs. The people were glad to see him and showed their happiness in scores of ways.

Big Crowd at Indianapolis.

Indianapolis, Sept. 8.—President Wilson's address in the Coliseum of the state fair grounds here was practically a failure because of the size of the crowd on hand to hear him.

It was estimated at 12,000 to 15,000 persons and was so huge it was unmanageable. Added to this feature was the unfortunate occurrence which befell Governor Goodrich of Indiana, who was intended to introduce the president. The governor made the mistake of talking too long and the crowd resented it, causing great confusion.

The president was escorted to the Coliseum at the state fair grounds here by a committee which included Gov. James P. Goodrich, Mayor Jewett, Indianapolis; Thomas Taggart, former Gov. Samuel L. Ralston, and Franklin McCray, president of the Indiana branch of the League to Enforce Peace. Thousands of persons, including many visitors to the state fair, crowded the streets and cheered lustily as the president passed.

What the President Said.
"I have come upon a very sober errand—indeed, I have come to report to you upon the work which the representatives of the United States attempted to do at the conference of peace on the other side of the sea, because I realize, my fellow citizens, that my colleagues and I, in the task we attempted over there, were your servants."

Thus the president opened his address, continuing: "We went there with a distinct errand, which it was our duty to perform in the spirit which you have displayed in the prosecution of the war and in conceiving the purposes and objects of that war."

After recalling some of the circumstances of the war and the conditions under which the treaty was formulated, the president said:

"I want to point out to you what apparently has escaped the attention of some of the critics of the League of Nations, that the heart of the League of Nations does not lie in any of the portions which have been discussed in public debate. "The great bulk of the provisions of that covenant contained these engagements and promises on the part of the states which undertook to become members of it."

"That in no circumstances will they go to war without first having either submitted the question to arbitration—in which case they agree to abide by the result, or having submitted the question to discussion by the council of the League of Nations, in which case they will allow six months for the discussion, and engage not to go to war until three months after the council has announced its opinion upon the subject under dispute."

"So that the heart of the covenant of the league is that the nations solemnly covenant not to go to war for nine months after a controversy becomes acute."

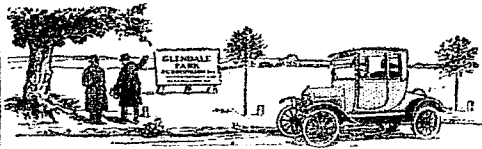

Later, taking up article X, he said: "You have heard a great deal about article X of the covenant of the League of Nations. Article X speaks the conscience of the world. Article X is the article which goes to the heart of this whole bad business."

On many lines the trains have been running in two sections and on nearly every train it has been necessary to place three or four extra cars. This increased travel is attributed to the ending of vacation season, to traffic to and from the state fair at Detroit, and to other local causes.

Get the Big Idea.

God said, "Let there be light" and there was light. That was thousands of years ago and man has been dependent upon light ever since. He has never been able to work in the dark; he requires light and plenty of it. Darkness depresses, semi-darkness reduces a man's vitality, poor light impairs his efficiency. Light properly diffused is essential to his welfare, his happiness, and his work. The Latley Light fills the bill. See Roebin & Alther, Wilkinson Building, Chelsea for further particulars.

"JUST A GIRL."

Epilogue:—The man who tells this story, call him the hero, for a start, is visiting his friend, John Saunders, British official in Nassau, Bahama Islands. Charles Webster, a local merchant, collector, the hero of friends, Saunders produces a written document purporting to be the deceased statement of Henry P. Tobias, a successful pirate made by him in 1879. It gives two spots where two millions and a half of treasure were buried by him and his companions. The concentration of the three friends is overboard by a pack-matched stranger. The document disappears. Saunders, however, has a copy. The hero, determined to seek the buried treasure, chartered a schooner. The pack-matched man is taken on as a passenger. On the voyage somebody captures the treasure map. The hero and the passenger clash, the passenger leaving a manifesto bearing the signature, "Henry P. Tobias, Jr." The hero lands on Dead Man's Shore. There is a fight, which is followed by several funerals. The hero finds a cave containing the skeletons of two pirates and a massive chest—empty save for a few pieces of eight scattered on the bottom. The hero returns to Nassau and by good luck learns the location of Short Shift Island. Webster buys the yawl Flamingo, and he and the hero sail for Short Shift Island. As the Flamingo leaves the wharf, a young fellow, "Jack Harkaway," jumps aboard and is allowed to remain. Jack proves an interesting and mysterious passenger. The adventures hunt ducks on Andros Island, with an eye out for Tobias.

Resides, I had my wonderful young friend, to whom I grew daily more attached. I found myself feeling drawn to him as I can imagine a young father is drawn to a young son! and sometimes I seemed to see in his eyes the suggestion of a confidence he was on the edge of making me—a whimsical, pondering expression, as though wondering whether he dare to tell me or not.

"What is it, Jack?" I asked him for once when, early in our acquaintance, we had asked him what we were to call him, he had answered with a laugh: "Oh, call me Jack—Jack Harkaway. That is my name when I go on adventures. Tell me your adventure names. I don't want your prosaic every-day names." "Well," I had replied, entering into the boy's humor, "my friend here is Sir Francis Drake, and I, well—I'm Sir Henry Morgan."

"What is it, Jack?" I repeated. But he shook his head.

"No," he replied, "I like you ever so much—and I wish I could; but I mustn't."

"Somebody else's secret, eh?" I ventured.

"Yes!" And he added: "This time it's mine, too. But—some day perhaps, who knows?" He broke off in boyish confusion.

"All right, dear Jack," I said, patting his shoulder, "take your own time. We're friends anyway."

"That we are," responded the lad, with a fine glow.

I mustn't be too hard on Charlie, for Charlie had another object in his trip besides duck. As a certain poet briefly puts it, he had anticipated also "the hunting of man." In addition, though it is against the law of those Britanna Islands, he had promised me a flamingo or two for decorative purposes. However, flamingoes and Tobias alike kept out of gunshot and, as the week grew toward its end, Charlie began to grow a little restive.

"It looks," he murmured one evening, as we had completed our fourteenth meal of roast duck, and were musing over our after-duck cigars, "it looks as if I am not going to have any use for this."

He had taken a paper from his pocket. It was a warrant with which he had provided himself, empowering him to arrest the said Henry P. Tobias, or the person passing under that name, on two counts: First, that of sedition practices, with intent to spread treason among his majesty's subjects, and, second that of wilful murder on the high seas.

Charlie put the warrant back into his pocket and gazed disgustedly across the creek, where the loveliest of young moons was rising behind a fringe of the homeless, barbaric brush.

"There was never such a place in the world," he asserted, "to hide in—or get lost in—or to starve in. I have often thought that it would make the most effective prison in the world."

The young moon rose and rose, while Charlie sat in the dusk of our shanty, like a meditative mountain, saying nothing, the glowing end of his cigar occasionally hinting at the circumstance of his face.

"I'll get him, all the same," he said presently, coming out of a sort of trance, in which, as I understood later, his mind had been making a geographical survey of our neighborhood, going up and down every creek and corner on a radius of fifty miles.

So we sought our respective cottages; but I had scarcely begun to undress when a foolish accident for which I was responsible happened, an accident that might have had serious consequences, and which, as a matter of fact did have—though not at the moment.

Neglecting everything a man should do to his gun when he is finished with it for the day, I had left two cartridges in it, left the trigger on the hair-trigger of eternity, and other enormities for which Charlie presently, and quite rightly, rebuked me with profanity; in short, my big toe tripped over the beast as it stood carelessly against the wall of my cabin, and, as it fell, I received the contents in the fleshy part of my shoulder.

The explosion brought the whole crew out of their shanty, in a state of gesticulating nature and, as Charlie, growling like a bear, was helping to bring first aid, suddenly our young friend Jack—whose romantic youth preferred sleeping outside in a hammock slung between two palm trees—put him aside.

"I know better how to do this than you, Sir Francis," he said, laughing. "Let's have a look at your medicine chest, and give me the hint quick."

So Jack took charge and acted with such confidence and skill—finally binding up my wound, which was but a slight one—that Charlie stood by dumbfounded and with a curious soft look in his face which I didn't understand till later.

"Then Jack looked up for a moment and caught Charlie's wondering look; and it seemed to me that he changed color and looked frightened."

"Sir Francis is jealous," he said; "but I've finished now. I guess you'll sleep all right after that dose I gave you. Good night. . . ." And he slipped away.

Jack had proved himself a practiced surgeon and, as he predicted, I slept well—so well and so far into next morning that Charlie at last had to wake me.

"What do you think?" were his first words.

"Why, what?" I asked, sitting up and wincing from my wounded shoulder.

"Our young friend has skipped in the night! Gone off on that little nigger sloop that dropped in here yesterday afternoon, I guess."

"You don't mean it?"

"No doubt of it—I wonder whether you've had the same thought as I had. You know I always said there was a mystery about that boy? Did you notice the way he bound your shoulder last night?"

"What of it?"

"Did you ever see a man bind a wound like that?"

"What do you mean?"

"I mean simply that the mystery about our Jack Harkaway was just this: Jack Harkaway was no boy at all—but just a girl; a trick of a devil-girl!"

CHAPTER V.

Better Than Duck.

Charlie Webster's discovery—if discovery it was—of "Jack Harkaway's" true sex seemed so far plausible in that it accounted not only for much that had seemed mysterious about him, but also (though this I did not mention to Charlie) it accounted for certain dim feelings of my own, of which, before, I had been scarcely conscious.

But we were not long left to continue our speculations, being presently interrupted by the arrival of exciting news in the form of a note from Father Scorpion.

Father Scorpion's note simply confirmed his conjecture that it was Tobias who had bought rum at Behring's Point and that he was probably somewhere in the network of creeks and mud lagoons in our neighborhood. Charlie thought the news over.

"I'll tell you what we'll do," he said presently. "I'm going to leave you here—and I'm going to charter the sponger out there. Turner's sponger has two outlets; this and Goose river, ten miles down the shore. Now, if Tobias is inside here he can only get out either down here or down Goose river. I am going down in the sponger to the mouth of Goose river, to keep watch there, and you must stay where you are and keep watch here. Between the two of us a week will starve him out."

So it was settled, and presently Charlie went along with two of his best guns and Sailor, in the rowboat, and I saw him no more for a week.

At the end of the week the wind was blowing strong from the west and the tides ran high. About noon we caught sight of triumphant sails making up the river. It was Charlie back again.

"Got him!" was all he said, as he reaved ashore.

Sailor was with him in the rowboat, but I noticed that he was limping, going on three legs.

"Yes!" said Charlie. "It's lucky for Tobias he only got Sailor's foot, or, by the living God I'd have stood my trial for manslaughter, or whatever they call it. It'll soon be all right, old man," he said, taking Sailor's wounded paw in his hand, "soon he'll be all right." Sailor wagged his tail vigorously, to show that a gunshot through one of his legs was a mere nothing.

"Yes!" said Charlie, as we sat at lunch in the shack, under the tamarind tree; "we've got him safe there under decks all right; chained up like a bunny. If he can get away, I'll believe in the devil."

"Won't you tell me about it?" I asked.

"Not much to tell; too easy altogether. I waited a couple of days at the mouth of Goose river. Then I got tired and left the sponger with the captain and two or three men, while I went up the river with a couple of guns and Sailor, and a man to pole the skiff—just for some duck-shooting, you know. We lay low for two days on the marshes and then Sailor got sniffing the wind one morning, as if there was something around he didn't care much for. He grew more and more excited and, at last, we neared a certain mangrove cove to which all the time he had been pointing, he barked two or three times and I let him go. Poor old fellow!"

As he told the story, Sailor, who seemed to understand every word, rubbed his head against his master's hand.

"He went into the mangroves, just as he'd go after duck, but he'd hardly gone in when there were two shots and he came out limping, making for me. But by this I was close up to the mangroves myself, and in another minute I was inside; and there was Tobias—his gun at his shoulder. He had a pot at me, but before he could try another I knocked him down with my fire and—Well, we've got him all right. And now you can go after your treasure as soon as you like. I'll take him over to Nassau and you can foot around for the next month or so. Of course we'll need you at the trial, but that won't come off for a couple of months. Meanwhile, you can let me know where you are, in case I should need to get hold of you."

"All right, old man," I said, "but I wish you were coming along with me."

"I've got all the treasure I want," laughed Charlie. "Send me word where you are, as soon as you get a chance; and good luck to you, old chap, and your doubloons and pieces of eight!"

Then he walked down to his rowboat and soon he was aboard the sponger. Her sails ran up and they were off down stream—poor Tobias, manacled, somewhere between decks.

"See you in Nassau!" I shouted.

"Right-o!"

Book III

CHAPTER I.

In Which We Gather Shells—and Other Matters.

With Charlie gone and duck-shooting not being one of my passions, there was nothing to detain me in Andros. So we were soon under way, out of the river, and heading north up the western shore of the big mountainous island. We had some fifty miles to make before we reached its northern extremity—and, all the way, we redoubled had more than two fathoms of water, and the coast was the same interminable line of mangroves and thick palms, with occasional clumps of pine trees, and here and there the mouth of a creek, leading into duck-hunted swamps.

At last we came to a little foam fringed cove, where it was conceivable that the shyest and rarest shell would choose to make its home—a tiny aristocrat, driven out of the broad tideways by the coarser ambitions and the ruler strength of great mollusks that feed and grow fat and house themselves in crude contrivances of uncouthly striving horn.

It was impossible to imagine a cove better answering to my conchologist's description of Short Shift Island. Its situation and general character, too, bore out the stories. On landing, also, we found that it answered in two important particulars to Tobias' narrative. We found, as he had declared, that there was good water there for passing ships. Also, we found, in addition to the usual scrub, that rubber-wood trees grew there very plentifully, particularly, as he said, on the highest part of the island. So, having talked it all over with Tom, I decided that here we would stay for a time and try our luck.

But, first, having heard from the sponger captain that he was on route for Nassau, I gave him a letter to Charlie Webster, telling him of our whereabouts, in case he should have sudden need of me with regard to Tobias.

The reader may recall that Tobias' narrative in reference to his second "pot" of one million dollars had run: "On the highest point of this Short Shift Island is a large cabbage-wood stump, and twenty feet south of that stump is the treasure, buried five feet deep and can be found without difficulty." But which was the highest point? There were several hillsides that might claim to be that—at about equal in height.

However, as the high points of the island were only seven in all, it was no difficult matter to try them all out, one by one, as we had plenty of time and plenty of hands for the work. For, of course, it would have been idle to attempt any concealment of my object from the crew. Therefore, I took them from their shell-gathering and, having duly measured out twenty feet south from each promising cabbage-wood stump, set them to work. They worked with a will, for I promised them a generous share of whatever we found.

Alas! it was an expensive promise, for, when we had duly turned up the ground, not only twenty feet, but thirty, forty and fifty feet, not only south but north, east and west of the various cabbage-wood stumps on the seven various eminences, we were none of us the richer by a single piece of eight. Then we tried the other cabbage-wood stumps on lower ground, and any other likely-looking spots, till, after working for nearly a fortnight, we must have dug up most of the island.

And then Tom came to me with the news that our provisions were beginning to give out. As it was, he said, before we returned to Nassau, we should have to put in at Flying Fish Cove—a small settlement on the larger island some five miles to the north—for the purchase of various necessities.

"All right, Tom," I said, "I guess the game is up! Let's start out tomorrow morning. You may as well have your sucking fish back, Tom," I said, laughing in self-disgust. "I shall have no more need of it. I am through with treasure hunting."

"I'd keep it little longer, sir," answered Tom; "you never know."

I had made up my mind to start on the homeward trip early the following morning, but something happened that very evening to change my plans. I had dropped into the little settlement's one store, to buy some tobacco, the only kind that Charlie Webster declared fit to smoke.

I stayed chatting with the storekeeper—a lean, astute-looking Englishman, with the un-English name of Sweeney—who made a pretty good thing of selling his motley merchandise to the poor natives, on the good old business principle of supplying goods of the poorest possible quality at the highest possible prices.

While he was attending a little group of customers I had wandered toward the back of the store, curiously examining the thousand and one commodities which supplied the strange needs of humanity here in this lost corner of the world; and, thus occupied, I was diverted by a voice like sudden music, a voice oddly rich and laughing and confident for such grim and sinister surroundings. It was one, too, which I seemed to have heard before, and not so very long ago. When I turned in its direction I was immediately arrested, as one always is by any splendor of vitality; for a startling contrast indeed—to the spiritless, furtive figures that had been coming and going hither—was this superb young creature, tall and lithe, with proudly carried head on glorious shoulders.

Her skin was a golden olive, and it had been hard to say which was the more intensely black—her hair, or the proud eyes which, turning presently to my direction, seemed to strike upon me as with an actual impact of soft fire.

An entrancing girl and an ancient gold piece.

National Anthem.

"The Star-Spangled Banner" is now regarded as our national anthem; that of England, "God Save the King"; France, "The Marseillaise." The other allies apparently have no distinguishing title for their national airs. The national air of Italy is known to us simply as the "Italian National Hymn" and that of Portugal as the "National Air of Portugal," etc.

PERSHING GIVEN ROYAL WELCOME

COMMANDER OF AMERICAN ARMY
SIGNALLY HONORED ON RETURN TO U. S.

GREAT GUNS BOOM SALUTE

Thanks of Nation Extended to Leader of Victorious Host As He Steps
On Home Shores.

New York, America welcomed General Pershing home Monday.

Honored by foreign rulers and governments, the commander-in-chief of the mightiest army that ever fought its way to victory under the Stars and Stripes, returned to his own folk to meet a greater honor than any single potentate or power could confer—the thanks of the world's greatest democracy to the man who had planned the decisive blow in democracy's supreme fight against tyranny. The stern-faced soldier who had maintained his iron self-control amid the shambles of the Meuse and the blood-drenched forest of Argonne was not proof against the tribute of praise and gratitude which was roared from hundreds of thousands of the throats and hearts of his fellow citizens.

His voice trembled with emotion as he responded to the greetings extended by Secretary of War Baker in his own behalf and that of the president, as well as the welcoming addresses of representatives of the senate and house, the state and city.

When the man who led America's millions to victory in France arrived in New York harbor he was met by a fleet of navy destroyers, and welcoming craft. As soon as the Leviathan was sighted ships and forts guarding the bay boomed out a 17-gun salute, and a few minutes later official web-comers and newspaper men boarded the transport at quarantine.

BANDITS MAKE BIG BANK HAUL

Take $12,000 in Cash and Securities
In Daylight Robbery at Erie.

Erie, Mich.—Covering Cashier Fred Buysa, of the Erie bank, with revolvers, five bandits who entered the bank just before noon Monday, Sept. 8, forced him to open a safe in his private office, then struck him down with a blunt instrument and threw him into the bank vault, while they made their escape in an automobile with $6,000 in cash and about the same amount in securities.

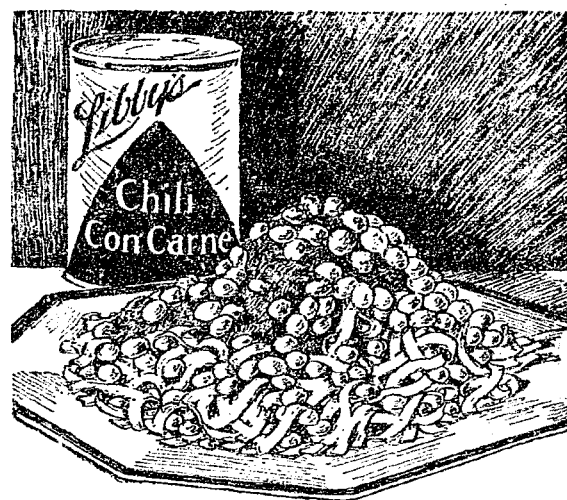

One of the party, evidently an emissary, entered the bank a few minutes before and was given change for a $2 bill. On their return, three of the bandits approached the cashier, while two stood in the lobby as a precaution against surprises. When Buysa threw up his hands as commanded, two of the men jumped the railing setting apart his private office, and after forcing him to open the safe, bound him and struck him in the forehead.

Another man, named Minney, entered the bank at this time, and with the cashier, he was thrown in the vault.

Cashier Buysa succeeded in making his way out of the vault in about 10 minutes, having destroyed the combination with a chisel kept inside. The bandits, however, had fled in a high-powered automobile, taking with them their loot. They later were seen on the Dixie highway exchanging their clothing, after which they proceeded in the direction of Point Place, a roundabout route leading to the Ohio border.

Gigantic Air Motor 1,002-Horsepower.

London, Ont.—An airplane engine said to be the largest in the world, of 1,000 nominal horsepower, developing 900 horsepower at normal working speeds, has recently been put under its first test at Wolverhampton, England. The engine has 12 cylinders arranged "V" fashion and weighs less than 3,000 lbs. and spun on a new special airplane are to be built to suit the engine, while it is also probable that it will be fitted to some of the late giant airships.

PUT MATTER TO THE TEST

Maid's Practical Demonstration That Her Employer Was Wrong in Statement She Had Made.

"Jealousy," said Dr. Mary Morgan Lockwood in a lecture on domestic science in Chicago—"jealousy is a horrible thing."

"It isn't only lovers that get jealous. Let me tell you a story."

"I once had a capable cook and an incapable parlor maid. My husband rushed into my study one morning and said:

"Grab your medicine case and come quickly. The cook's hair is all turned off."

"Grimacing! How did it happen?"

"Jealousy," said my husband. "The parlor maid overheard you say last night that she couldn't hold a candle to the cook."

"Well?"

"Well, she did!"

"Yes, my son."

Girls!

Don't forget the County Community Service girls' exhibit. Every town in the county will be represented, so get into the spirit and have your own town put on the best display.

The girls individually are urged to take the responsibility upon themselves to make their particular community stand forth in this exhibit. Most every girl must have at least some one thing in hand work that she can send. What about sending that knitted or crocheted sweater, piece of tatting, fille lace, embroidered towels, etc.? Why, there are scores of things to exhibit along all these lines, so look your treasures over, label and mark specifically and send them to the Y. W. C. A., 343 South Fourth Avenue, Ann Arbor, on or before the 15th of September. Don't hesitate. Do it now.

All articles for the exhibit will be well taken care of.

LALLEY LIGHT and POWER

Owners Tell How Lalley Saves for Them

When we tell you that Lalley Electric Light and Power will save you money and time and labor, we merely repeat what Lalley owners say.

They have written hundreds of letters to the Lalley factory, which leave no doubt as to Lalley savings.

The Lalley saves in a dozen ways - by pumping water, by running farm machinery, by washing and ironing and sweeping, churning and separating cream, and so on.

If you use it for nothing but its wonderful electric light - you save.

The fact of Lalley savings simply can't be dodged. Neither can the fact that you lose money every day and every week you put off your purchase.

It is entirely in your own interest that we are urging you to buy your Lalley now.

You will learn that for yourself later on.

We want you to save all you possibly can with your Lalley plant; and your own impulse should be in the same direction.

Come in and see us today, or telephone us to come to you if you can't get away.
