Pathe

The Sweetest Tone Phonograph

The Pathe Sound Chamber and Amplifier is made of wood—the same valuable wood that is used in the highest priced violins and it is fastened together with wooden pegs and glue. Not a particle of metal enters into its construction—therefore you get a clear sweet tone without the metallic sound so commonly heard in common talking machines as many of the ordinary phonographs use an amplifier made of metal—it may be compared to a TIN HORN and the tone of these phonographs may be compared to that of a tin horn. Therefore when a dealer demonstrates a phonograph to you INSIST ON SEEING THE AMPLIFIER.

THIS is only one of the many points by which the Pathe excels other phonographs.

COME AGAIN, CYRIL

The following was taken from "Thumb-Nail Sketches," written by Cyril Arthur Player, in Detroit Sunday News:

If there were modern chroniclers of heroic journeys, as in the classic days of Aeneas and his fellows, Chelsea would be one of those pleasant ports in which the driven bark came to rest, and the captain and crew pulled themselves together after the rigors of the sea.

Not that there is much of Chelsea itself, but it forms the gateway to a pleasant land Washtenaw county, and comes, beautiful and serene, after the unpeppery dreariness of Jackson county. Any motorist will tell you that the International Highway running through Jackson county is paved with good intentions, laid badly. Moreover the villages along the highway have an air of studied pessimism, and take no pains to get an interesting front to the wayfarer.

Thus, after being tossed for thirty miles or so, and almost east away, the motorist glides with grateful heart and the remains of his tires into the easy approach to Chelsea.

The wise traveler, with a strain of poetry in him, will make this port at twilight or a few minutes later; he has had a hard day, and is pleasantly surprised by the sudden change in road-building; he glides into Chelsea and, to his grateful spirit, its shadows give a touch of mystery, soften a few stubborn chimneys in a canopy of gloom which may be trees, if he likes trees, or may be hills, if he prefers hills, or may be the void of night, if he has any fancy for voids.

As a matter of fact Chelsea is merely the welcoming outpost of the pretty country which fills Washtenaw and Livingston counties, and does not need to possess other charms. Its central square, literally a cross roads, with its four short stretches of stores is conventional to the point of primness, yet that is the suitable guise for the keeper of the gate, plain, business-like, modest.

There is nothing seamy or down-at-heel about Chelsea. The stores are fresh, the windows carefully arranged, and on an evening and especially Saturday evening, it is a busy mart for the countryside. If Chelsea has a weakness, it is for those stores which begin with a display of modish organs and end with a bale of dry goods, or start out with a cigar-counter and wander off in the background to a china and earthenware sales-room.

You can find toys in a grocery store at Chelsea; has anyone ever thought of that before? Who can deny the charm of shopping where you cannot definitely tell the contents of store until you have explored it from the window to the alley?

Standing, in the dusk, in the center of the village, you marvel at its frank, business-like air, its closely-built stores, and the amount of trade they represent. No gaps of closed fronts, or shuttered houses, everything opens wide to the passer-by. Chelsea, in fact, has the instincts of a metropolis in a doll's house community.

So much for Chelsea; leaving it there is the pleasant road to Ann Arbor and the garden of Michigan; a little to the north and there is the chain of lakes on the Huron and, so into Livingston county, Island Lake, Brighton, Howell, and bending northeast, Walled Lake, Orchard, Cass and Union Lakes and all their hundreds of associates.

The remarkable thing about Chelsea is that the bright little village does its very best to whisper all of this; you can feel quite distinctly that there is a good time coming, that the village would never be so confidently hospitable if it did not know that it had a right to promise fine things. Chelsea could not deceive, if it tried. It is an honest little place.

Although what is the message it has for persons coming the other way and leaving its pleasant streets for the sorrows of Jackson county has not yet been ascertained.

Soldiers Will Get Equipment.

Soldiers who did not receive their equipment upon discharge are now to be furnished with a full set, according to a statement of the war department. Many of the men desired to retain equipment, but they were compelled to turn in most of it and this resulted in widespread complaint. Now the war department has changed its policy and will furnish equipment to soldiers who make formal application for it.

According to the statement of the war department this is what soldiers will be furnished: One hat, one belt, one hat cord, olive drab shirt, service coat and ornaments, breeches, shoes, belt, leggings, socks, underwear, gloves, gas mask, barrack bag and three scarlet chevrons.

There will be no charge and both old and young are cordially urged to attend and get what they can from these gatherings.

SCHOOL NOTES.

This week Friday is the football game with Stockbridge. Come out and show your loyalty.

The English literature class is taking up "Macbeth." The first semester for intensive study.

The characters for the cast in the senior play, "Professor Pepp," have been selected. Watch for the date.

The American literature class is taking up the study of Dickens' "Tale of Two Cities." The classes are now here.

The football boys lost the game with Ypsilanti, though they did credit to themselves. They didn't lie down on the job.

Report cards were given out last week. Parents, your boy and your girl received a card. Insist upon seeing and signing that card. If there are failures, and there are, the time to look into it and get better results is now, not the end of the semester.

The general science class is now studying the composition of different land areas, with regard to the variety of rocks of which the crust of the earth is composed. They have at their disposal for examination only a few specimens. If any patron of the school has some metal, mineral, coral, sea shell, petrified pieces or curious stones which they would loan or donate the school, it would add greatly to the interest of these subjects.

The Latin I class have divided into two sides. Mabel Ellsworth and Irene Gilbert are the leaders. Kathryn Giltner, Anna Rogers, Elsie Heydlauf, Ralph Axtell, Paul Graber and John King are on Irene's side, Dorothy Dancer, Theodore Heschelwerth, Glenn Brooks, Paul Buchler, Alice Baldwin and Alura Foster are on Mabel's side. Every Friday we will have a vocabulary contest. December 11 the losing side will entertain the winners. This is an incentive to learn the vocabularies.

Last week Wednesday morning, the first chapel of the year was held in the assembly room. The music was in charge of Miss Speer and was enjoyed by all. Community singing gladdened the heart. Superintendent J. E. McCloskey took charge of the meeting proper. He gave a very interesting and instructive talk, called "Associations—Good and Evil." It was interesting because so well illustrated by a chemical experiment, and instructive because of the moral lessons. "Your associates influence you, though it may not be apparent at first." We plan to have chapel every week; nothing elaborate, but something helpful and conducive to good fellowship.

Are you interested in little folks? If you are, visit our kindergarten some morning or afternoon. We will sing for you, or tell you an interesting story in dramatization. Some of the grown up folks think we only play in kindergarten, but, really, that is not all we do. We like to work too, and build houses and engines and bridges with large blocks, which are put neatly away when we are through, and that is hard work, for each block large and small, has its place. We are learning to use our fingers with pasting and coloring and cutting, and our minds with observing and thinking. We are learning many interesting facts concerning everyday things, that we just took for granted before. Last week, seed dispersal proved interesting. We thought everything was going to die in the fall of the year, but instead, we have learned of the new life in every tiny seed. Especially is the truth of life manifest in the knowledge that one collection of caterpillars, which now seem so lifeless in their ugly cocoons, are not dead at all, but sleeping until spring, the time for butterflies. We are anxious for mother to visit us often, for we know she will like kindergarten.

Canning Cull Chickens.

Many Michigan housewives are making a double saving this fall by culling the non-producers from their poultry flocks and then canning the discarded birds for a winter meat supply. Home canning of poultry is entirely practical and is being practiced more and more by farm women of the state. By putting up their own chickens these women are assured of a meat supply which has been raised in the proper way and canned under sanitary conditions. Detailed information on canning poultry may be had by writing to the Home Demonstration Agent, Extension Division, M. A. C., East Lansing, Mich.

Rather Ominous.

Among the presents given to a rural bride was one from an old lady in the neighborhood with whom the bride and groom were prime favorites.

Some years before the old lady had accumulated a number of cardboard mottoes, which she worked and framed as occasion arose.

In cheerful blues and reds, suspended by a cord of the same colors, over the table on which the other presents were gathered, hung this motto: "Fight On, Fight Ever."

Your New Home

should be made artistic, sanitary and livable.

These walls should be Alabastined in the latest, up-to-the-minute nature color tints. Each room should reflect your own individuality and the treatment throughout be a complete perfect harmony in colors.

The walls of the old home, whether mansion or cottage, can be made just as attractive, just as sanitary, through the intelligent use of

Alabastine

Instead of kalsomine or wallpaper

How much better, when you have a new home, to start right than to have to correct errors afterward from former treatment with other materials, when you come to the use of Alabastine, as does nearly every one sooner or later.

Once your walls are Alabastined you can use any material over it should you desire, but having used Alabastine you will have no desire for any other treatment.

Alabastine is so easy to mix and apply — so lasting in its results — so absolutely sanitary — and so generally recognized as the proper decorative material in a class by itself that it is becoming difficult to manufacture fast enough to supply the demand.

Alabastine is a dry powder, put up in five-pound packages, white and beautiful tints, ready to mix and use by the addition of cold water, and with full directions on each package. Every package of genuine Alabastine has cross and circle printed in red.

Better write us for hand-made color designs and special suggestions. Give us your decorative problems and let us help you work them out.

Encouraging Bolshevism

Everything that falsely encourages unrest also encourages bolshevism.

Misunderstanding of American industrial organization, and of its benefits to mankind, leads to unrest, dissatisfaction, and radicalism.

For example, the Federal Trade Commission tells the public that the large packers had an agreed price for lard substitute (made of cotton-seed oil).

It reproduces letters taken from the files of one of the packers, showing that such agreed price existed.

But it failed to mention that the agreed price was determined at the request of and in co-operation with the Food Administration!

Even the Department of Justice, in its unjust attempt to create prejudice against the packers, has made public these same letters, with no explanation.

How long must this kind of misrepresentation continue? In so far as it is believed, it not only breeds discontent, but results in injustice to our industry.

ON THE FUNNYSIDE

Fatal Objection.

Newspaper mention the other day of a Trojan being sold at the Revue house auction brought to mind the story of the newly rich lady and the art dealer. On being shown a painting of the above named artist, she declared it wouldn't do, as she wanted the picture for her drawing room.

"But what is your objection to this one?" inquired the dealer.

"More," exclaimed the lady. "One couldn't have a coat in one's drawing room, you know." Boston Transcript.

Something at Stake.

"What are you shouting 'police' for?" asked the inquisitive old gentleman. "I don't see anybody trying to rob or beat you."

"Don't bother me," answered the citizen who was standing on a corner yelling with all his might. "A man from Sacramento let me have a dollar I couldn't raise up a cup in Tumbler if I yelled for half a day, and I'm just trying to win that money."

Diplomatic.

"Young man, did you kiss my daughter in the hall last night?" questioned the stern mother.

"I thought I did," replied the diplomatic young man. "But really, you look so young that I can't always tell you and your daughter apart."

Should Be Happy.

"What are you going to the doctor about?"

"Loss of appetite."

"Great Scott! Can't you play up a bit of back when it comes to you?"

WARM COATS

--- FOR ---

Fall Weather

We are displaying a big stock of newest models for Fall and Winter. These have been bought of several of the best New York City makers, and no other store owns their Women's Ready-to-Wear Garments at lower prices than this store.

Our selling costs are much lower in Chelsea than any city store, so we can well afford to sell you your Fall Coat at a great deal less than our city competitors.

We visit the New York market several times each season, and have access to all there is offered in the way of styles or values. The same styles shown in our department will be seen in all good city stores.

These coats include models in Melton cloth, Velour, Silvertone, Pebble and Cheviot. Some with and some without fur trimming, and with plush collars. Some are full silk lined, some lined but to the waist.

About one-half of our stock are exact reproductions of imported French models, and each garment carries the name of the French maker who originated the model. Some of the styles are quite novel and striking.

Prices Are $25.00 to $90.00

We call especial attention to our garments offered at $25.00 to $35.00. There will be no more of these at these prices after this lot is sold.

Ann Arbor Active work on the construction of the new million dollar hospital for the University of Michigan was begun last week with the start of excavating by C. J. Snyder & Sons, of Ann Arbor. It is estimated that between 25,000 and 30,000 yards of earth will be excavated from the site, according to Mr. Snyder. An average of 500 yards a day will be removed and it is expected that the work will consume about three months to complete. The area of the building is roughly estimated at two city blocks. Plans for the structure are said to be practically completed by the Detroit architects.

Ann Arbor Dr. Hugh Cabot of Boston, has been appointed professor of surgery in the University of Michigan medical school at the meeting of the Board of Regents which also considered with regret the resignation of Dr. Cyrenus Darling, for several years the efficient head of that department, who for some time has been anxious to resign his post in the university. Dr. Cabot comes from Boston and has been professor of a special branch of the Harvard university. During the war he was given charge of one of the largest English hospitals in France. The many friends of Dr. Darling grieve to learn of his retirement.

Brooklyn—C. C. Otis, who has purchased the old Albert Hoagland farm and orchard last winter, has rejuvenated the old orchard on the place with such success that it has this year produced a crop of the finest apples in what has been an off season for almost all orchards of this locality. The Grimes Golden apples from the Otis orchard took first prize at the Jackson fair, and some Fall Pippins marketed in Brookland deserve the highest praise that can be given this finest of fruits. He also has Spies, Baldwins, Greenings and other good varieties, much to the surprise of local residents who have never before seen a good crop come from orchard. Brooklyn Exponent.

Tecumseh Monday evening Mrs. William Willnow heard a noise in her cellar and had visions of all that delicious canned fruit being stolen. She hustled down cellar just in time to see a man make his escape through the outside cellar door. Grabbing an axe she first nailed that door up and up stairs and out of doors she rushed. She saw the man making a quick getaway through Jonas Waldron's yard and after him she ran. He dodged behind the school house and there his pursuer gave up the chase. Going back home she and the children were talking the affair over when in walked Mr. Willnow with a give-away smile. He "got his" alright, but said he had to drop that potato crate. So this is the story of that robbery in Willnow's cellar which has been going the rounds. Tecumseh Herald.

Tailoring Ancient Art.

The art of tailoring, in the western hemisphere, appears to have originated in connection with skin garments rather than those of cloth. In the North, throughout the remainder and carbon area, well-tailored skin garments were worn, completely covering the body. The Eskimos and the northern hunting Indians cut out pieces of skin and fitted them together in intricate patterns like a modern tailor. The tailoring art probably began in China, whence it spread to Europe, thence to the remainder hunters in Siberia and across from Asia into the new world. Among the Pacific coast the aboriginal Indians were but scantily clad and the natives of Patagonia usually wore only a breechcloth, although sometimes a caplike robe hanging from the shoulders was used. In Mexico and the Andes region where the art of weaving reached its height, garments retained the angular form in which they came from the loom.

Search For Potato Wart in Michigan The possibility that potato wart, a destructive foreign plant disease which was recently imported to this country from Europe, may have spread to Michigan has caused the Department of Agriculture to start a federal survey of the state in an effort to find any possible locations of the pest.

Dr. E. F. Woodcock of the botany department at the Michigan Agricultural College, is in charge of the work, and will cover all the important points of both the lower and the upper peninsulas.

Potato wart has been doing great damage to European potato crops, equally destructive to American and there is danger that it will prove fields if it gets a good start in the country.

As yet the only place where the disease has gained a foothold is in Pennsylvania, and a strict government quarantine is expected to stop its spread. The examinations in other parts of the country are a check upon a fresh outbreak in some new section.

In the potato wart disease the tuber is replaced by a cauliflower-like growth which quickly rots away. Any suspicious cases should be reported to the Plant Pathology Department of the Agricultural College for inspection.

A WORD WITH WOMEN

Valuable Advice for Chelsea Readers.

Many a woman endures with noble patience the daily misery of back-ache, pains about the hips, blue nervous spells, dizziness and urinary disorders, hopeless of relief because she doesn't know what is the matter.

It is not true that every pain in the back or hips is trouble "peculiar to the sex." Often when the kidneys get congested and inflamed, such aches and pains follow. Then help the weakened kidney. Don't expect them to get well alone.

Doan's Kidney Pills have won the praise of thousands of women. They are endorsed right in this locality. Read this woman's convincing statement:

Mrs. Elizabeth Haas, 913 S. Main st., Ann Arbor, Mich., says: "Some few years ago I found it necessary to use a kidney medicine. I was suffering from a weak and lame back and the least exertion made it ache. My kidneys acted irregularly, too. The first box of Doan's Kidney Pills helped me and I bought more. They cured the complaint and for over two years I have been perfectly well."

Price 50c at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Kidney Pills—the name that Mrs. Haas had. Foster-McBarn Co., Mfgs., Buffalo, N. Y. Adv.

Holland—Fire which was started by spontaneous combustion destroyed the main factory building of the Holland Aniline Dye Works. Firemen saved the offices, ice and engine buildings, but the loss is estimated at $150,000. The heads of the company announced that they will rebuild at once.

Ann Arbor—Ground has been broken for the new $1,000,000 University of Michigan hospital. It is estimated that from 25,000 to 35,000 yards of earth will have to be excavated from the site, and that it will take three months to complete the excavation alone. The area of the building is roughly estimated at two city blocks.

Muskegon—Howard F. Managan, returned soldier, used his uniform to take liquor away from bootleggers at the Crosby boat dock by saying he was a member of the state constabulary, the police declare. He had gone no farther than the end of the dock, however, when he was met and searched by two local police officers, who arrested him. He was sent to jail in default of $500 bail.

Holland—Officials of Holland Aniline Dye works, which was partially destroyed by fire here at an estimated loss of $150,000, announced that the plant will be rebuilt at once. The plant was built here shortly after the European war started and the supply of chemicals from Germany to the United States was cut off by the English blockade of the North sea. It was doing a profitable business.

Coldwater—The trial of Paul Haeck charged with killing Henry Walte, in Ironston, Mich., came to an unexpected end when he pleaded guilty. He was sentenced to the Michigan State Prison from one to 25 years, with recommendation for one year, by Judge Knowlen. The judge imposed a light sentence, he said, because of Haeck's good reputation and because, he was intoxicated when he shot Walte. The trial has dragged along since April 1917, because an important witness was with the Army in France.

Cheboygan—The August police record shows more drunks than the 16 months previous or since the state went dry.

Kalamazoo—Nick Praydica, an employee in the Kalamazoo Rolling Mills, was killed when his head was crushed between rollers.

He was out on bail from the local court and was arrested at Adrian recently on a charge of theft of a quantity of illicit whisky from the jail there.

Pontiac—Automobile thieves broke into the store of the Cook Mercantile Co., at Farmington, and loaded shoes and other goods estimated worth $1,500. Oakland County officers called and reported the marks left by the robbers would indicate that they belong to the same band that has been robbing country stores throughout this section of the state. Loss in these robberies is now estimated to total $50,000.

Lawton—This staid little village was stirred when a stranger left a suitcase in a restaurant. The proprietor called the marshal who carried the traveling bag with a supposed informal machine to an abandoned suit house, where it was left to blow itself to pieces. When the owner came to claim his property he was met by a deputy sheriff. The machinery proved to be a set of mechanical tools.

It took the county's first woman jury only 11 minutes to find Joseph Johnston not guilty of deserting his wife. The second woman jury returned a verdict of not guilty, in the case of Eugene Casbeer, charged with assault. Mrs. Mabel Balch, wife of former Mayor James H. Balch, was the forewoman of the jury in each case.

Every Day.

GARY SAYS NO COMPROMISE

Tells Senate Committee Corporation
Will Never Deal With Unions—
Lockout and Strike of Printers in New York—War Over Flume Is Imminent.

By EDWARD W. PICKARD.

President Wilson is a "very sick man," according to his physician, Rear Admiral Grayson. After a consultation with Drs. Dercum of Philadelphia and Ruffin and Stitt of Washington, it was announced that absolute rest was essential for some time. It was reported that an operation of some sort would be performed.

Despite the confident assertions of Fitzpatrick, Foster and other union leaders, the developments of the week in the steel strike went to strengthen the belief that the battle will be won by the employers. The mills at Gary kept increasing their production until it was said to have reached 50 per cent of the normal, and many other plants in that district, including South Chicago, reported that their workers were returning. The Indiana Steel company at Gary, for instance, was operating on Thursday with about 5,000 men, or half the usual force, and the Mack Manufacturing company, employing between 5,000 and 6,000 men, was preparing to reopen its plant with a large force. The strikers still out in that area were growing restless as they saw their fellow workers returning by the thousands, and feared they would lose their places permanently.

In the Pittsburgh region there was not much change in the situation. At the opening of the week the strike against the Bethlehem company, the largest independent steel concern in the country, began, but it was far from successful. A few of the company's departments in its various plants were closed, but most of them were operating as usual, though with somewhat reduced forces. The Pennsylvania state police had the situation well in hand and violence was quickly suppressed.

Judge Gary, appearing before the senate committee on labor, made it clear that there is no hope of arbitration or other amicable settlement of the strike, for the United States Steel corporation intends to fight the unions to a finish. He said the issue is the open shop against the closed shop, involving the right of employers to hire whom they please; that the closed shop is immoral, meaning decreased production, higher prices and national decay; that the Steel corporation will never recognize the unions or contract with them, and that it will never deal with union leaders as such. He declared the corporation does not object to its employees organizing, and is willing at all times to grant them hearings concerning grievances. He told of the wages paid the employees and what the corporation has done in the way of housing them. The average wages, excluding administration and selling forces, have advanced from $2.88 on July 1, 1914, to $3.27 on July 1, 1919.

Judge Gary was followed on the stand by William Z. Foster, who is considered by many as the real leader of the strike.

Another labor dispute that will be felt by the entire country is centered in New York. A simultaneous lockout and strike took place in some 250 printing and publishing plants which put out virtually all the trade publications and magazines issued in that city and a large percentage of the books. Ten thousand members of local printing trades unions were thrown out of work. The action followed the refusal of the employers to grant a 44-hour week effective at once and a weekly wage increase of $14. A large number of weekly and monthly magazines suspended publication to join the lockout. The international unions have denounced the strike and outlawed the strikers, and the employers announced their plants would remain closed until they could be operated with forces composed entirely of members of the international unions.

Great Britain, almost tied up by the great railway strike, saw a chance for peaceful settlement toward the end of the week when representatives of the transport workers and other trades went into conference with Premier Lloyd George. None of the railroad men were in the delegation. The allied unions were seeking a compromise as an alternative to going on a sympathetic strike. So far the government had been firm in its refusal to yield anything to the strikers, and many trains were being operated under armed guard. The use of soldiers in this way aroused the bitter protests of organized labor generally. As a consequence of the strike the United States shipping board stopped the clearance of vessels for England.

Labor in England has thought up something that it seems to have overlooked in this country. Union commissioners on some papers asserted the right to censor the news they set up so it would not be unfavorable to the strikers, and in at least one instance they compelled the withdrawal of an advertisement for men to take the places of those who had quit.

Before this appears in type D'Annunzio's Italians and the Jugo-Slavs may be openly at war. The rebel leader has said he considers such a state exists, and he and his followers apparently will welcome the outbreak of hostilities. At Spalato there already has been fighting, in which it was reported some 200 men were killed. Two American cruisers hurried there to restore order. D'Annunzio's army increases daily with the arrival of deserters from the regulars and he displayed his defiant spirit by refusing to treat with the government as long as Nitti remains at his head. He was planning a juncture of Italian troops at Zara and Sebenico and there were persistent rumors that unless the government yielded and supported him he would proclaim a new republic. The situation of the Italian government would be ridiculous if it were not so nearly tragic. Except for the Socialists, the people certainly are in sympathy with D'Annunzio's assertion that Rome must belong to Italy, and the demand is general that the supreme council of the allies ignore President Wilson and carry out that clause of the treaty of London, France and Great Britain have been only lukewarm in their support of Mr. Wilson, and probably would comply with the demand of the Italians if they could do so gracefully. However, the supreme council holds the position that, all else aside, it cannot afford to have its authority flouted by Italy, as that would open the way for Greece, Roumania, and even Germany and Bulgaria to take similar action in regions to which they lay claim.

It was stated unofficially in Washington that unless the Adriatic question was settled very soon the United States government might consider the advisability of withdrawing for the present any further material assistance to the other powers. Presumably this hint was designed to keep them in line with the president's policy.

The landing of Americans at Tarrad the expulsion of the Italians from that town was seized upon by the opponents of the administration with avidity. After a heated debate the senate adopted a resolution calling upon the president for an explanation. It appears the action was taken by Admiral Andrews at the request of an Italian admiral, and Admiral Knapp, commanding our naval forces in European waters, has reported that this intervention prevented bloodshed "which perhaps would have resulted in a state of actual war between Italy and Jugo-Slavia." That part of the Dalmatian coast was entrusted to the care of the Americans by the supreme council.

General von der Goltz still refuses to withdraw the German army from the Baltic region, and the government at Berlin, persisting in its contention that those troops are not under its control, has shut off their supplies, so it says. The supreme council's patience was exhausted and it authorized Marshal Foch to send an ultimatum to Berlin with the threat of a renewal of the blockade. Near the close of the week it was reported in Paris that the blockade had been put into effect. Von der Goltz has been grossly insulting to General Foch, representative of the allies in Rome, and has announced he would allow no Englishmen to remain in the Baltic territory occupied by German troops.

A Riga correspondent cables that the Latvian government has called to the colors all men between the ages of nineteen and twenty-seven. The intention presumably is to move against the Germans, and possibly an advance against Petrograd is contemplated, in conjunction with the Estonian army.

Omaha is hanging its head in shame because of the wild outbreak in which a negro prisoner was lynched. Mayor Ed Smith nearly murdered by the mob, and the handsome new county building set on fire. The local authorities being helpless, federal troops were hurried to the scene and quickly restored order. Smith is in a way a "reform" mayor, and decent Omaha people lay the blame for the rioting to a bitter newspaper campaign that has been carried on against him and his police force.

Still another race war broke out in Elaine, Ark., in which five whites and eleven negroes were killed. Troops were sent there, too. In Helena, near by, the situation was tense.

Because of Mr. Wilson's illness the plans for the tour of the king and queen of the Belgians was changed. They landed at New York Thursday, were officially received Friday, went sightseeing that day and Saturday, and then were to start on their trip through the country, stopping at Washington on the return to the East. For reasons not stated but not difficult to surmise, Chicago and Milwaukee were left out of the list of places where Albert and Elizabeth are to stop. Milwaukee's mayor says "to hell with all kings." Chicago's city council sent a rather pointed invitation. Its mayor needs no comment.

The president was comforted by the assurance of his supporters in the senate that that body would not accept any amendments or reservations to the peace treaty and covenant. Also he must have smiled when he heard of the doings at Ardmore, Okla., though of course he could not approve of them. The people of that untamed town warned Senator Reed to cancel his engagement to speak there against the treaty. He ignored the warning and when he appeared on the platform the lights were put out and he was showered with eggs and hissed and hoisted into silence.

The Fall amendments to the treaty, designed to eliminate the United States from participation in all the various international commissions created by it except that on reparations, came to a vote in the senate Friday and were beaten, as was expected. The opposition refused to regard the vote as an accurate test of the strength of the opposing factions, as a number of valid reservations voted against the amendments. The senate is now to take up in order the Moses amendment providing that whenever questions involving any part of the British empire come before the league, none of the British dominions or colonies shall vote; the Stimson amendment, and last the Johnson amendment. It is hoped a final vote on the treaty may be reached about November 1. However, there is danger of a long deadlock, as some administration senators have threatened that if the League reservations are adopted 40 Democrats will stand together to defeat the ratifying resolution. The Democrats would then try to get a vote on the question of unserved ratification, and it is claimed that from 35 to 40 Republicans can be counted on to vote against ratification without reservations.

BRITISH RAILWAY STRIKE IS ENDED

SETTLEMENT IS COMPROMISE—
WAR TIME PAY CONTINUES
ANOTHER YEAR.

TIEUP LASTED EIGHT DAYS

Most Important Feature of Strike
Was That It Passed Without
Rioting Or Loss of Life.

London—With dramatic suddenness, in the quiet of the London Sunday afternoon, it was announced to a knot of people waiting in Downing street that the great railway strike, which appeared to have brought the country almost to the brink of revolution, was settled, and that the strikers would resume work as quickly as possible.

The terms of the settlement are in the nature of a compromise. The National Union of Railwaymen agrees to call off the strike, and the government consents to a renewal of the negotiations, the continuance of the existing wage scale for another year, instead of six months, as previously offered, and the establishment of a minimum wage of 51 shillings while the cost of living is 110 per cent above the pre-war level.

The most important feature of the strike was that it passed without rioting or loss of life, except for the increased number of street accidents, which kept the ambulances busy. There were two or three unsuccessful attempts to wreck trains by displacing signals or by greasing the tracks and a few police court cases resulting from scuffles between strike pickets and paid or volunteer policemen who undertook to keep the railway services going.

In eight days of strike the railwaymen of the United Kingdom lost about ten millions in wages. There is no way of reckoning the cost of the strike to industry. What labor has gained in extending the present wage schedule six months, from March to September next year, represents about seven million dollars certainly for 100,000 low-pay workers. This they probably would have received without striking.

The leaders are rubbing their eyes and wondering if the end justified the means. Both sides claim to have won, but the curbstone view is that the whole struggle can be chalked up as a heavy debit for the country.

COL. DODD, FIELD CHIEF, KILLED

Three Others Seriously Hurt As Aeroplanes Smash to Ground.

Philadelphia—Fifteen minutes after Colonel Townsend Dodd, commander of Langley field, Virginia, had been killed in landing at the Institute Aviation field, near here, a second aeroplane made a bad landing and three other army officers were injured. Two of them, Major M. Davis and Lieutenant Charles R. Colt, seriously.

The aeroplanes were on their way to Mineola, L. I., from where it was planned to start 80 army aviators on a flight across the continent.

INDUSTRY CONFERENCE OPENS

Labor and Capital Meet in Effort to Reach Working Agreement.

Washington—The National Industry conference called by President Wilson "for the purpose of reaching some common ground of agreement and action with regard to the future conduct of industry," opened at the Pan-American building Monday afternoon with no delegation, except that representing labor, agreed upon a line of action.

The labor men, American Federation of Labor leaders and railroad brotherhood chiefs alike, demand the eight hour day, collective bargaining and living wage.

OPPOSES SERVICE MEN'S BONUS

Secretary of Treasury Says Another Bond Issue Would Be Necessary.

Washington—Granting an additional bonus to service men would mean the floating of another large Government bond issue, which the country is in no position to stand at present, Carter H. Glass, secretary of the treasury, told the special House budget committee.

Glass strongly opposed the bonus, claiming that a majority of the service men would consider it an affront to their patriotism at a time when the Government is sorely in need of funds.

New Wet Spell For Broadway.

New York—Acting, it is said, on one of Broadway's famous rumors that President Wilson would cast war-time prohibition into the discard by proclaiming demobilization complete, New York liquor dealers have started stocking up for a brief wet period until next January. With huge quantities of bonded whisky arriving here from Kentucky, restaurants and saloons began enrolling bartenders and waiters whom they had previously laid off.

DAIRY

PREVENT MOTTLES IN BUTTER

Primarily Caused by an Uneven Distribution of Salt or by Insufficient Working.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Mottled butter is frequently found on the market, and, even though it may be of very good flavor, it is strongly discriminated against by the purchaser. As this defect is one of workmanship, it can be overcome by the application of proper methods on the part of the buttermaker.

Mottles are caused primarily by an uneven distribution of salt in the butter. This may be produced by insufficient working of the butter or by churning, washing, and working it at a very low temperature, or by washing or working it at a temperature several degrees higher or lower than the churning temperature.

When the quantity of butter made in one churning is much less than usual it is necessary to work it a greater number of revolutions of the churn than usual in order to produce the same results on the butter.

Extremely low temperatures of churning, washing, and working should be avoided, because they produce so firm a butter that it is only with great difficulty that the salt can be worked uniformly into it. High temperatures of churning, washing, and working must also be avoided to prevent an abnormal loss of fat in the buttermilk and also the making of a greasy, leaky butter.

Great variations in temperature during the manufacturing process should always be avoided. Under normal conditions the temperature of the wash water should be the same as or within two degrees of that of the buttermilk.

FLY REPELLENT IS USEFUL

Spraying Should Not Be Done Just Before Milking, as Milk Absorbs Odors Very Rapidly.

The following homemade fly repellents to ease old brands at milking time are recommended by Horace Jones, instructor in dairy husbandry at South Dakota State college: (1) 100 parts fish oil, 50 parts oil of fat, and 1 part cedar carboxylic acid. Apply with a sprayer. (2) One pound common laundry soap, 4 gallons water, 1 gallon cedar petroleum, and 4 ounces powdered naphthalin. Dissolve the soap in the water and the naphthalin in the cedar petroleum.

Care should be taken that the spraying is not done immediately before milking as milk absorbs odors very readily. If the cows are milked in the stable the milk should be removed immediately after milking to a cool place where no odor of the fly repellent exists.

DAIRY NOTES

The pig and cow pasture should be separate.

Give the young calf an early chance to nibble at grass.

Spray religiously all stalls and whitewash all parts of the stable.

Dairy cows, or all milk cows for that matter, require large quantities of water.

Take good care of the calves, for more of them are needed on many farms.

There isn't much play about dairy but no other job pays better for hard work.

The heifer bred too early always remains stunted in growth and her milk flow is shortened for all time.

Keep dirt out of the milk. Strain through cotton or flax cloth. Use only clean, sterile strainer cloths.

"We needn't go any farther," said the "king." "It's the same all the way along to the mouth—all overgrown as you see, all the way, right out to the 'white water' as they call it—which is four miles of shoal sand that is seldom deeper than two fathoms, and which a nor'easter is liable to blow dry for a week or end. Naturally it's a hard place to find, and a hard place to get off!—and only two or three persons besides Sweeney—all of them our friends—know the way in. Tobias may know of it; but to know it is one thing, to find it is another matter. I could hardly be sure of it myself—if I were standing in from the channel-fringed coast line to go by."

"Now you see it? I brought you here, because words."

"Given yours, dear 'king,'" I laughed. "—could not explain what I suggested for us to do. You are interested in Tobias. Tobias is interested in you. I am interested in you both. And Calypso and I have a treasure to guard."

"I have still a treasure to seek," I said, half to myself.

"Now, to be practical. We can assume that Tobias is on the watch. I don't mean that he's around here just now, for before we left I spoke to Samson and Erebus and they will pass the word to four men blacker than themselves; therefore we can assume that this square mile or so is for the moment 'to ourselves.' But beyond our fence you may rely that Tobias and his mygrations—is that the word?"

"I have still a treasure to seek," I said, half to myself.

I don't mean that he's around here just now, for before we left I spoke to Samson and Erebus and they will pass the word to four men blacker than themselves; therefore we can assume that this square mile or so is for the moment 'to ourselves.' But beyond our fence you may rely that Tobias and his mygrations—is that the word?"

"I have still a treasure to seek," I said, half to myself.

anything more than the ship's cook, with the privilege of waiting upon me in the cabin at my meals. But of course he knew that I had quite another valuation of him, and as our eyes met I beckoned to him to draw closer to me.

"Tom," I said, "I have found my treasure."

"You don't say so, sir?"

"Quite true, Tom," I continued; "you shall see my treasure tomorrow; meanwhile read this note." Tom was so much to me that I wanted him to know all about the details of the enterprise we shared together, and in which he risked his life no less than I risked mine.

"Tom took up his spectacles from some recess of his trousers and applied himself to Charlie Webster's note. He read it as slowly, indeed, as if it had been, Samson's, and then folded it and handed it back to me without a word. But there was quite a young smile in his old eyes."

"The wonderful works of God," he said presently. "I guess, sir, we shall soon be able to ask him what he meant by that expression."

"Soon the long dark shore loomed ahead of us. I had reckoned it out about right. But the captain announced that we were in shoal water."

"How many feet?" I asked, and a boy threw out the lead.

"Sixteen and a half," he said.

"Go ahead," I called out.

"Do you want to go aground?" asked the captain.

For answer I pushed him aside and took the wheel. I had caught the smallest glimmer, like a night light, floating on the water.

"Drop the anchor," I called.

The light shore was clear and near at hand, about one hundred yards away, and there was the big murren and commotion of the long breakers over the dawning shoals. The tide was running out very fast, and the white sand coming ever nearer to our eyes in the moonlight and Samson's light, there, was keeping white and steady. With the thought of my treasure and the "king" so near by it was hard to resist the temptation to plunge in and follow my heart ashore. But I managed to control the boyish impulse, and presently we were all snug, and some of us snoring below decks, rocked in the long swells of the shoal water that gleamed tidally like an animated moonstone under the stars—old sailor curled up at my feet, just like old times.

I woke just as dawn was waking too, very still and whistless; for the threatening nor'easter had changed its mind, and the world was as quiet as though there weren't a human being in it. As the light grew I scanned the shore to see whether I could detect the entrance of the hidden creek; but, though I swept it up and down again and again, it continued to justify the "king's" boast. There was no sign of an opening anywhere. Nothing but a straight line of brush, with man-the anchors up, and the engine started at the slowest possible speed.

The tide was beginning to run in, so we needed very little way on us. I pointed out Samson to the captain, and, following the "king's" instructions, told him to steer straight for the negro. Samson stood there and called:

"All right, sir. Keep right on. You'll see your way in a minute."

And, sure enough, when we were barely fifty feet away from the shore, and there seemed nothing for it but to run dead aground, low down through the floating mangrove branches we caught sight of a narrow gleam starting inland, and in another moment or two our decks were swept with foliage as the Flamingo rustled in, like a bird to cover, through an opening in the bushes barely twice her beam; and there before us, snaking through the brush, was a lane of water which immediately began to broaden between palmetto-fringed banks, and was evidently deep enough for a much larger vessel.

"Plenty of water, sir," hailed Samson from the bank, grinning a huge welcome. "Keep a-going after me," and he started trotting along the creek side.

Samson went trotting along the twisting banks, we cautiously feeling our way after him, for something like a quarter of a mile; and then, coming round a sudden bend, the creek opened out into a sort of basin. On the left bank stood two large palmetto shanties, Samson indicated that there was our anchorage; and then, as we were almost alongside of them, the cherry halloos of a well-known voice hailed us. It was the "king"; and as I answered his welcome the morning suddenly rang for me—for there, too, was Calypso at his side.

The water ran so deep at the creek's side that we were able to moor the Flamingo right up against the bank, and when I had jumped ashore and greeted my friends, and the "king" had executed a brief characteristic fantasia on the manifold advantages of having a hidden pirate's creek in the family, he unfolded his plans, or rather that portion of them that was necessary at the moment.

CHAPTER VI.

An Old Enemy.

Charlie Webster's laconic note was naturally our chief topic over breakfast. "Tobias escaped—just heard he is on your island. Watch out. Will follow in a day or two." The "king" read it out, when I handed him the note across the table.

"Your friend writes like a true man of action," he added, "like Caesar;—and also the electric telegraph. We must send word to Sweeney by the look-out for him. I will send Samson the Redoubtable with a message to him this morning. Meanwhile we will smoke and think."

Then for the next hour the "king" thought—aloud; while Calypso and I sat and listened, occasionally drawing in a parenthesis of comment or suggestion. It was evident, we all agreed, that Calypso had been right. It had been Tobias and none other whose evil eye had sent her so breathless back to me, waiting in the shadow of the woods; and it was the same evil eye that had fallen culture-like on her golden doubloon exposed on Sweeney's counter.

It was clear that there were such coins on the island in somebody's possession. Then, when he had watched Calypso on her way home—and without any doubt been the spectator of our meeting at the edge of the wood though we had been unable to catch sight of him—there would of course be a suspicion in his mind that my quest might at least be approaching success, and that his ancestral millions might be almost in my hands. That there might be some other treasure on the island with which neither he nor his grandfather had any concern would not occur to him, nor would it be likely to trouble him if it did. My presence was enough to prove that the treasure was his—for was it not his treasure that I was after? Logic irrefutable! How was he to know that all the treasure so far discovered was that modest hoard—unearthed, as I heard, in the garden—the present whereabouts of which was known only to Calypso. The "king" had interrupted himself at this point of argument.

"By the way, Calypso, where is it?" he asked unexpectedly, to the sudden confusion of both of us. "Isn't it time you revealed your mysterious Aladdin's cave?"

At the word "cave" the submerged rose in Calypso's cheeks almost came to the surface of their beautiful olive. "Cave!" she corrected manfully, "who said it was a cave?"

"It was merely a figure of speech, which—if I may say so, my dear—might apply with equal fitness, say—to a silk stocking."

And Calypso laughed through another tide of rose-color.

"No, dad, not that, either. Never mind where it is. It is perfectly safe, I assure you."

"But are you sure, my dear? Wouldn't it be safer, after all, here in the house? How can you be certain that no one but yourself will accidentally discover it?"

"I am absolutely certain that no one will," she answered, with an emphasis on the last three words which sent a thrill through me, for I knew that it was meant for me. "Of course, dad," she added, "if you insist—you shall have it. But seriously I think it is safer where it is, and if I were

TREAT OATS AND WHEAT FOR SMUT

Reports Show That It Pays to Use Formaldehyde at Time of Planting Crops.

WORK OF DIFFERENT AGENTS

Practically None of Fields Given Treatment Showed Any Signs of Disease—Farmers of Porter County Lost $140,000.

Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.

Evidence that it pays to treat wheat and oats at the time of planting with formaldehyde to prevent smut is given in reports of a number of demonstrations conducted by Indiana county agents. Fields of oats in Dubois county, sown with seed treated with formaldehyde for smut as recommended by the United States department of agriculture and the State Agricultural college, showed practically none of the disease, while fields planted from seed not treated contained about 15 per cent smut, according to the local county agent's report.

Work in Warren County.

As a result of the demonstration conducted by the county agent in Warren county it was found that a

USED DIAMONDS AS COUNTERS

Miners Who Found Them in Brazil in 1726 Considered Them as Merely Pretty Pebbles.

The news from Brazil that a large company has been formed to work the diamond mines of that country on a more scientific scale in an effort to make Brazil once more an important factor in supplying the world's most popular gem, recalls one of history's richest jokes.

Diamonds were first discovered in Brazil in 1725. But with their pockets full of diamonds, the discoverers were unaware for two years that they had made a discovery.

Miners washing for gold in the Minas Geraes district picked up pretty pebbles from time to time. They thought them worthless and used them for counters in their card games. If they had no money they gambled for the pebbles, winning or losing, in blissful ignorance, a king's ransom in diamonds on the turn of a card.

A penniless adventurer drifted into the gold fields in 1727. Some of the miners staked him one evening to a handful of pebbles that he might sit in a card game. The others played with listless interest, but the newcomer played with care and skill. He had seen rough diamonds in India and knew what the pebbles were. As a result he won all the pebbles around the table.

He did not remain in the fields to wash for gold, but next day hurried to Rio Janeiro and took ship for Lisbon, where he sold his pebbles for a fortune and lived happily ever after. The rush of diamond hunters to Brazil which followed carried back to the miners in Minas Geraes the first intimation that they had been rich for two years without knowing it.

NO REFUGE IN BANKRUPTCY

In Olden Times Severe Penalties Were Meted Out to Men Unable to Pay Their Debts.

A curious custom was prevalent in France during the sixteenth and seventeenth centuries. Anyone who found it necessary to liquidate his affairs was obliged to wear a green cap—a humility to himself and a warning to others.

Those who made a hobby of getting rid of their indebtedness by way of the bankruptcy court should at all costs steer clear of China. Bankruptcies are almost unknown in that country, as they entail immediate execution.

A similar drastic punishment used to be meted out to delinquent in Japan.

To come nearer home, one need only go back to a little before the Act of 1914 to find that debtors in Scotland were obliged to wear garments of diverse colors, a suit of gray and yellow being the most common.

In Slam, a man unable to meet his liabilities was put in chains and compelled to work as a slave for his creditor. Should he escape, his wife, children, father or other relative were seized in his stead.

At one time bankrupts were considered criminal offenders even in England. As a matter of fact, certain cases of fraudulent bankruptcy have incurred the death penalty in this country. Any concealment of books or the secreting of property by a debtor was so punished. Under this law a man called John Perrot was hanged in 1761.—London Tit-Bits.

Something Saved.

A music teacher, giving a lesson to a careless pupil, was becoming impatient with her. Finally, at a most complicated part of a difficult piece, the pupil lifted her hands from the piano and searched for her handkerchief. It was the last straw. "Oh," exclaimed the teacher, "was there ever such a girl? You lose your position, you lose your fingerings, you lose your handkerchief—you lose everything!" "Oh, no," responded the pupil, with a twinkle in her eyes, "not everything! I haven't lost my temper!"

Lord John Russell.

During the years of my uncle's retirement I was much more in his company than had been possible when I was a schoolboy and he was foreign secretary or prime minister. Pembroke lodge became to me a second home; and I have no happier memory than of hours spent there by the side of one who had played bat, trap and ball with Charles Fox; had been traveling companion of Lord Holland; had corresponded with Tom Moore, debated with Francis Jeffrey, and dined with Doctor Parr; had visited Melrose abbey in the company of Sir Walter Scott, and criticized the netting of Mrs. Siddons; had conversed with Napoleon in his seclusion at Elba, and had ridden with the duke of Wellington along the lines of Torres Vedras.

—G. W. E. Russell.
