plays ALL makes of records without the aid of extra attachments. In fact for many years this was an exclusive Pathe feature.

But that is not enough. Most any phonograph today will play all types of records, but of what use is this unless EVERY record is played correctly?

Let us prove to you that we are fully justified in making the claim that The Pathe not only plays every record on the market, but PLAYS THEM BETTER THAN THE PHONOGRAPH FOR WHICH THEY WERE DESIGNED.

Here is an Out-and-Out Challenge.

Let us suggest that when you buy your phonograph, you go to some other dealer and ask him to send his phonograph and a selection of records to your home on trial. We will gladly do the same.

Then YOU play the SAME records on BOTH phonographs and let your EARS decide which you want. We have no outside salesmen so you will not be bothered by one, we rely absolutely on the TONE of The Pathe to sell itself.

SCHOOL NOTES.

"Professor Pepp." Watch.
The teachers of the school attend county institute at Ypsilanti this week Wednesday.

The football boys offered a nice box of candy to the girl who sold the most tickets to the game last Friday. Doris Whitaker sold over nine dollars worth, and won the prize.

The football game with Stockbridge last Friday resulted in the victorious score of 6-0 for Chelsea. The boys played a good game. This week Friday the team goes to Manchester to play.

This week the kindergarten children are interested in the lives and habits of squirrels. They wish the protection of our town pet squirrels from Mr. Hunter's men, during the hunting season.

Last Wednesday, the kindergarten helped celebrate the fifth birthday of Master Melvin Lesser. Mrs. Lesser treated the children to peanuts and candy, and Melvin was presented with the usual birthday cake.

The first Latin I contest resulted in a victory for Irene Gilbert's side. Both sides studied hard and fought fully. Alice Baldwin stood up longest for the losers, but Anna Rogers, who was the last on the winning side, won out. It was exciting. Each side is determined to win next time.

Last Friday evening a senior high party, conducted by the senior class, was held in Macaboe hall. Good music invited the young people to keep time in dance steps. Everyone had a good time. At the close of the party refreshments were served. We expect to have many good times this winter.

Lambrecht-Sargent Wedding

A very pretty wedding took place at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Lambrecht, on South Main street, at 5 o'clock Wednesday afternoon, October 15, 1919, when their daughter, Miss Alwena, and Mr. Emmett Sargent, of Jackson, were united in marriage. Rev. A. A. Schoen officiating.

The couple were attended by Mrs. Otmar Gerstler, of Ann Arbor, twin sister of the bride, and Mr. Orin Sargent, of Jackson, brother of the bridegroom. The bride has been a clerk in the department store of Vogel & Wurster for several years.

Following the ceremony, a wedding supper was served to the immediate relatives of the couple.

Mr. and Mrs. Sargent left on a trip to Niagara Falls, and on their return will be at home at 523 Wilkins street, Jackson.

J. W. Rheinfrank.

John William Rheinfrank died at his home on Park street, Tuesday evening, October 14, 1919, from an attack of heart trouble. He worked all the forenoon of that day at the Chelsea Screw Co's plant and was stricken on between 12 and 1 o'clock.

He was born in Bridgewater, May 22, 1857, and was united in marriage with Miss Kate Schenk, April 24, 1879. For the last 31 years Mr. and Mrs. Rheinfrank have resided in Chelsea. He was a member of the Macaboe, the German Workmen's Society.

He is survived by his wife, two half-brothers, Dr. Henry Rheinfrank of Parisburg, Ohio, and George Rheinfrank of Bridgewater.

The funeral will be held from the home at 10 o'clock Friday forenoon. Rev. A. A. Schoen officiating. Interment at Oak Grove cemetery.

A Unique Concert.

The concert held in the auditorium of the Methodist church Monday evening was a unique affair. The guests whose number included most of the music lovers of Chelsea, assembled delighted at the prospect of hearing a recital by the celebrated Mr. Glen Edison. But a surprise was in store for them. Not one Mr. Edison, but two sang to the spell-bound audience. And this phenomenon was brought about by means of a graceful cabinet which stood beside the artist on the platform, and matched the performance, tone for tone.

The first performance of the miracle was in the initial number on the program, when Mr. Edison, standing beside the cabinet, sang in unison with Mr. Edison's recreation of his own voice. In the midst of the song Mr. Edison's lips ceased to move but his song went on without a break. Slowly it dawned upon the audience that the artist was no longer singing, though his voice came forth to them as clear and sweet as ever. He sang again, and the only perceptible difference was the motion of his lips. He ceased, but his voice did not. Veritably it seemed that there were two singers upon the stage, two voices, but only one voice. For the tones which came from the New Edison matched those from the living artist so perfectly that it was impossible to detect any difference.

Mrs. E. T. Freeman will open her studio for class work in china painting on Saturday, October 18.

R. A. R. C. will meet with Mr. Van Buren, Monday evening, October 19.

CALL MADE FOR EIGHTY THOUSAND ENUMERATORS

It is Announced That It Will Need That Number to Take Census.

The director of the census, Hon. Sam. L. Rogers, announces that 80,000 enumerators will be needed to take the next census. The work begins on January 2 and will last about two weeks in cities, and a month or more in rural districts. Rates of pay will vary, depending upon the locality and character of the district to be canvassed. The average pay per enumerator at the census of 1910 was $70. At this coming census it will probably be not less than $100.

"Active, intelligent and reliable men and women, not less than 18 years of age, are needed for this task," said Director Rogers, "and, in a sense, this is a call for volunteers. The importance of a complete and reliable census, especially in these critical times when more than ever before perhaps we need complete data regarding population, conditions, tendencies, and resources, can hardly be over-emphasized. The reorganization of the social and economic structure and readjustment of international relations necessitated by the war must be based on accurate knowledge if we are to act wisely and deal justly with all classes and all interests. It is hoped, therefore that public-spirited energetic people throughout the country will volunteer to act as census enumerators even though they may not care for the positions so far as the pay is concerned. I should be sorry to think, and I do not believe, that all our patriotism was used up by the war and none left over for public service in times of peace."

Elmer Kirkby, of Jackson, supervisor of the census for the second district of Michigan, which includes the counties of Jackson, Lenawee, Washtenaw and Monroe, states that he will need about 170 enumerators for the district. Applications or requests for application forms should be sent to him at once.

As a test of their fitness for the work applicants will be required to fill out a sample schedule and will be duly notified of the time and place for this test. So far as practicable the place selected will be one which is easily accessible.

State Boosts County Taxes.

County Clerk Edwin Smith has received a statement from the state treasurer's department in which the figures for the 1919 taxes which the county pays to the state are set up, and which are over 91 per cent higher than those of a year ago.

According to the sheet received by the county clerk, this year's figures show $206,886.38 for state taxes as against last year's figures of $155,165.03.

This leaves a discrepancy in the figures of more than $100,000 which is the increase for this year.

RED CROSS NOTES.

Miss Howe is at Red Cross head quarters from 7 to 9 every Wednesday evening.

Fourteen dollars for nursing visits were collected and turned over to the Washtenaw County Red Cross.

If anyone has old clothing, clean rags, shoes, magazines, papers, etc., which can be spared, we can find use for them.

A clinic will be held at Red Cross headquarters the second Wednesday afternoon in each month. At the last clinic fifty per cent of the children examined were in a healthy condition.

During the month of September, 233 calls were made by Miss Ruth Howe, the Red Cross public health nurse. Fifty-four of these calls were nursing calls and 62 infant welfare.

For Roosevelt Memorial.

From the windows of homes, stores, and office buildings, and from the windshields of thousands of automobiles throughout the state, the likeness of Theodore Roosevelt is going to look out, as a reminder to the people of the nationwide campaign which, during the week of October 20 to 27, inclusive, will raise a fund of $5,000,000, of which Washtenaw county's quota is $3,500, to provide suitable memorials to the great American.

Paul H. King, chairman for Michigan, has announced that 300,000 window cards and automobile stickers have been ordered and will be distributed in every community by the state, county, city and township organizations which are setting forth the aims and purposes of the campaign. Both cards and stickers will contain a medallion portrait of Mr. Roosevelt, one of the best likenesses of the great man in existence, and brief sentiment with the dates of the intensive campaign.

The national campaign opens Monday, October 20, and continues for one week, ending on the birthday anniversary of the ex-president.

In Chelsea the campaign will be short. On Thursday, October 23, the pupils of the schools will raise their contributions and on the Saturday following the public will be given an opportunity to donate.

It is not the intention to seek large individual contributions, but rather to have a large number of small contributions.

Poultry Culling Profitable.

Two weeks ago, through the efforts of the Washtenaw county farm bureau, a number of poultry culling demonstrations were held in different parts of the county. At these demonstrations the farmers were shown how the work was done, so that they might be able to do their own work in the future. At these demonstrations 175 hens were culled out. These hens were kept for two weeks and at the end of that time they had laid only six eggs.

These demonstrations were held at the farms of J. F. Burkhart and A. J. Rentschler of Lodi; Ben Breitenwischer of Freedom; Chas. Maurer of Bridgewater; F. H. Hollis of Pittsfield and Chas. Braun of Ann Arbor.

Considerable interest is being manifested in this work. The county agricultural agent has had many requests for such work in different parts of the county this year. During the coming season more emphasis will be given this work so that within a short time the quality of the poultry of the county will be greatly improved. Requests for culling demonstrations should be sent directly to Mr. Osler, the county agricultural agent, Ann Arbor, Mich.

COVENANT OF THE LEAGUE OF NATIONS

Complete Text of This Important Document As It Was Signed at Paris and Which Is Now Causing Discussion in This Country.

The people of the United States have been asked, by both the proponents and the opponents of the peace treaty and League of Nations covenant, to give expression to their desires as to the ratification of the treaty as it stands or with amendments or reservations. Some of them have responded, at the meetings addressed by the president and by the opposing senators, or by communications to the president. But the vast majority of the people are handicapped by their ignorance of the matter. Probably not one in ten thousand has read the covenant of the League of Nations as it was presented to the senate, mainly because few have had the opportunity. In order that our readers may be prepared to do their full duty as citizens in regard to the controversy, the complete text of the covenant is herewith presented, and they are asked to read it carefully.

The high contracting parties, in order to promote international co-operation and to achieve international peace and security by the acceptance of obligations not to resort to war, by the prescription of open, just and honorable relations between nations, by the firm establishment of the understandings of international law as the actual basis of conduct among governments, and by the maintenance of justice and a scrupulous respect for all treaty obligations in the dealings of organized peoples with one another, have agreed to conclude the Covenant of the League of Nations.

ARTICLE 1.—The original members of the League of Nations shall be those of the signatories which are named in the annex to this covenant, and also such of those other states named in the annex as shall accede without reservation to this covenant. Such accession shall be effected by a declaration deposited with the secretariat within two months of the coming into force of the covenant. Notice thereof shall be sent to all other members of the league.

Any fully self-governing state, dominant or co-dominant, which is not an annex may become a member of the league if its admission is agreed to by two-thirds of the assembly, provided that it shall give satisfactory guarantees of its sincere intention to observe its international obligations, and shall accept such regulations as may be prescribed by the league in regard to its military, naval and air forces and armaments.

Any member of the league may, after two years' notice of its intention so to do, withdraw from the league, provided that it will fulfill all its obligations and all its obligations under this covenant shall have been fulfilled at the time of its withdrawal.

ARTICLE 2.—The action of the league under this covenant shall be directed through the instrumentality of an assembly and of a council, with a permanent secretariat.

ARTICLE 3.—The assembly shall consist of representatives of the members of the league.

The assembly shall meet at stated intervals and from time to time as occasion may require at the seat of the league or at such other place as may be decided upon.

The assembly may deal at its meetings with any matter within the sphere of action of the league or affecting the interests of the members of the league.

At meetings of the assembly each member of the league shall have one vote, and may have not more than three representatives.

ARTICLE 4.—The council shall consist of representatives of the principal allied and associated powers, together with representatives of four other members of the league. These four members of the league shall be elected by the assembly from time to time in its discretion. Until the appointment of the representatives of the four members of the league first selected by the assembly, representatives of Belgium, Brazil, Spain, and Greece shall be members of the council.

With the approval of the majority of the assembly, the council may name members of the league as associate representatives of the council; the council with like approval may increase the number of members of the league to be selected by the assembly for representation on the council.

The council shall meet from time to time as occasion may require, and at least once a year, at the seat of the league, or at such other place as may be decided upon.

The council may deal at its meetings with any matter within the sphere of action of the league or affecting the interests of the members of the league.

At meetings of the council, each member of the league represented on the council shall have one vote, and may have not more than one representative.

ARTICLE 5.—Except where otherwise expressly provided in this covenant or by the terms of the present treaty, decisions at any meeting of the assembly or of the council shall require the agreement of all the members of the league represented at the meeting.

ARTICLE 6.—The permanent secretariat shall be established at the seat of the league. The secretariat shall consist of a secretary general and such secretaries and staff as may be required.

The first meeting of the assembly, and the first meeting of the council, shall be summoned by the president of the United States of America.

HOW TO AVOID BACKACHE AND NERVOUSNESS

Told by Mrs. Lynch From Own Experience.

Providence, R. I.—"I was all run down in health, was nervous, had headaches, my back ached all the time. I was tired and had no ambition for anything. I had taken a number of medicines which did me no good. One day I read about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and what it had done for women, so I tried it. My nervousness and backache and headaches disappeared. I gained in weight and feel fine, so I can honestly recommend Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to any woman who is suffering as I was."—Mrs. ADELINA B. LYNCH, 100 Plain St., Providence, R. I.

Backache and nervousness are symptoms or nature's warnings, which indicate a functional disturbance or an unhealthy condition which often develops into a more serious ailment.

Women in this condition should not continue to drag along without help, but profit by Mrs. Lynch's experience, and try this famous root and herb remedy, Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound—and for special advice write to Lydia E. Pinkham Med. Co., Lynn, Mass.

CHAPTER VI.—Continued.

And then I came upon a photograph hanging over the writing desk—a tall, Spanish-looking young woman of remarkable beauty. It needed but one glance to realize that here was Calypso's mother, and as was natural I stood a long time gazing at the countenance that was so like the face which, from my first sight of it, had seemed the loveliest in the world. This was a flower that had been the mother of a flower. It was a face more primitive in its beauty, a little less touched with race than the one I loved, but the same fearless natural nobility was in it, and the figure had the same grace of pose, the same lithe strength of carriage.

Two or three days went by, but as yet there was no news of either Charlie Webster or Tobias. Nothing further had been heard of the latter in the settlement, and a careful patrolling of the neighborhood revealed no signs of him. Either his sailing away was a bona fide performance or he was lying low in some other part of the island—which of course would not be a difficult thing for him to do, as most of it was wilderness—and, as also, there were one or two caves on the deserted northern side where he could easily bide his time. Between that coast and us, however, lay some ten miles of scrub and mangrove swamps, and it was manifestly out of the question to patrol them too. There was nothing to do but wait and watch.

At last there came a message from Charlie Webster, another of his Cyprian notes: "Sorry delays few days longer. Any news?"

That seemed to decide the "king." "What do you say, Olysses," he said, "if we begin digging tomorrow? There are ten of us—with as many guns, four revolvers and plenty of cartridges—not counting Calypso, who is an excellent shot herself."

I agreed that nothing would please me better—so an early hour the following morning found us with the whole garrison—excepting Samson, whom it had been thought wise to leave at home as a bodyguard for Calypso—lined up at the old ruined mansion with picks and shovels and machetes, ready to commence operations.

We had worked for a week before we made a clearance of the ground floor. Then at last we came upon a solidly built stone staircase, winding downward. After clearing away the debris with which it was choked to a depth of some twenty or thirty steps, we came to a stout wooden door studded with nails.

"The dungeon at last," said the "king."

"The kitchen, I bet," said I. After some battering the door gave way with a crash, a maddening breath of air from the interior met our nostrils, and a cloud of bats flew in our faces and set the negroes screaming. A huge cavernous blackness was before us. The "king" called for lanterns.

As we raised these above our heads and peered into the darkness, we both gave a laugh.

"Yo—ho—ho—and a bottle of rum," rang the "king."

For all along the walls stood or lay prone on trestles, a silent company of bogheads, festooned with cobwebs like huge black wings. It was the pirates' wine cellar!

Such was our discovery for that day, but there is another matter which I must mention—the fact that some of the news of our excavation seemed to have got down to the settlement. It is a curious fact, as the "king" observed, that if a man should start to dig for gold in the center of Sahara, with no possible means of communicating with his fellows, on the third day there would not fail to be someone to drop in and remark on the fineness of the weather. So it was with us. As a general thing not once in a twelvemonth did a human being wander into that wilderness where the "king" had made his home. There was nothing to bring them there, and, as I have made clear, the way was not easy. Yet we had hardly begun work when one and another idly straggled in from the settlement and stood gazing at our curiosity at our labors.

Toward evening of the third day we came upon a passage leading out of one of the cellars; it had such a promising appearance that we kept at work later than usual, and the sun had set and night was rapidly falling as we turned homeward.

As we came in sight of the house we were struck by the peculiar hush about it, and there were no lights in the windows.

"No lights!" the "king" and I exclaimed together, involuntarily hurrying our steps, with a foreboding of what lay not what in our hearts. As we crossed the lawn the house loomed up dark and still and the door opening onto the loggia was a square of blackness in a gloom of shadows hardly less profound. Not a sound, not a sign of life!

"Calypso!" we both cried out, as we rushed across the loggia. "Calypso! where are you?"—but there was no answer; and then I, being ahead of the "king," stumbled over something dark lying across the doorway.

"Good heaven! what is this?" I cried, and bending down I saw that it was Samson.

"The 'king' struck a match. Yes! it was Samson, poor fellow, with a dagger firmly planted in his heart."

Near by something white caught my eye attached to the flint of the doorway. It was a piece of paper held there with a sailor's knife. I tore it off in a frenzy, and—the "king" striking another match—we read it together. It bore but a few words, written in all capital letters with a coarse pencil:

"WILL RETURN THE LADY IN EXCHANGE FOR THE TREASURE," and it was signed "H. P. T."

CHAPTER VII.

In Which I Lose My Way.

"The audacity of the fellow!" exclaimed the "king," who was the first to recover.

"But Calypso!" I cried.

The "king" laid his hand on my shoulder consolingly.

"Don't be afraid for her," he said. "I know my daughter."

"But I love her!" I cried, thus starting out in my anguish what I had designed to reveal in some tranquil chosen hour.

"I have loved her for twenty years," said the "king," exasperatingly calm. "Jack Harkaway" can take care of himself."

I was not even astonished at the time.

"But something must be done," I cried. "I will go to the commander at once and pause the settlement. Give me a lantern." I called to one of the negroes, who by this had come up to us, and were standing around in a terrified group. I waited only for it to be lit, and then, without a word, dashed wildly into the forest.

"Hidin' you better take someone with you?" I heard the "king" call after me, but I was too distraught to reply, plunging headlong through the tangled darkness—my brain boiling like a cauldron with anger and a thousand fears, and my heart stung, too with wild, unreasoning remorse.

After all, it was my doing.

"To think! to think! to think!" I cried aloud—leaving the rest unspoken.

I meant that it had all come of my insensate pursuit of that filthy treasure, when all the time the only treasure I coveted was Calypso herself. Poor old ignorant Tom had been right after all. Nothing good came of such enterprises. There was a curse upon them from the beginning. And then, as I thought of Tobias, my body shook so that I could hardly keep on walking, and next minute my hatred of him so nerve me up that I ran on through the brush like a madman, my clothes clutched at by the devilish vines and torn at every yard.

I fled past the scene of our excavations, looking more haunted than ever in the flashing gleam of the lantern. With an oath I left them behind, as the accused cause of all this evil; but I cannot have gone by them many yards when suddenly I felt the ground giving way beneath me with a violent jerk. My arms went up in a wild effort to save myself, and then, in a panic of fright, I felt myself shooting downward as one might fall down the shaft of a mine. Vainly I clutched at rocky walls as I sped down in the earth-smelling darkness. I seemed to be falling forever, and for a moment my head cleared and I had time to think of the crash that was coming at the end of my fall—a crash which,

I said to myself, must mean death. It came with sudden crunching pain, a swift tightening round my heart, as though black ropes were being lashed tightly about it, squeezing out my breath; then entire blackness engulfed me and I knew no more.

How long I lay there in the darkness I cannot tell. All I remember is suddenly opening my eyes on intense blackness and vaguely wondering where I was. My head seemed entirely detached from my body, of which so far I was unconscious. But presently the realization of it returned, and involuntarily I tried to move—to find with a sort of indifferent mild surprise that it was impossible.

So there I lay, oddly content, in the dark—the pungent smell of the earth my only sensation, and my head uselessly clear.

The remembrance of what had happened began to grow in force and keenness and, of a sudden, the thought of Calypso smote me like a sword! Spurred to desperate effort, I stood up on the instant and leaned against a rocky wall. Miracle of miracles! I could stand. I was not dead, after all. I was not, indeed, so far as I could tell, seriously hurt. Badly bruised, of course—but no bones broken. It seemed incredible, but it was so. The realization made me feel weak again, and I sat down with my back propped up against the rock, and waited for more strength.

Slowly my thoughts fumbled around the situation. Then, as by force of habit, my hand went to my pocket. God be praised! I had matches, and I cried with thankfulness, out of very weakness. But I still sat on in the dark for a while. I felt very tired. After thinking about it for a long time, I took out my precious matchbox, which unconsciously I had been lugging with my hand, and struck a light, looking about me in a dazed fashion.

The match burnt down to my fingers, and I threw it away, as the flame stung me. I had seen something of my surroundings, enough to last my tired brain for a minute or two. I was at the bottom of a sort of crevasse, a narrow cleft in the rocks which continued on in a slanting downward chasm into the darkness. It was a natural corridor, with a floor of white sand. The sand had accounted for my coming off without any broken bones.

After another minute or two I struck another match, and lo! another miracle. There was my lantern lying beside me. The glass of it was broken, but that was no matter. As I lit the wick my hopes leapt up with the flame. At the worst I had light.

I swung my lantern aloft, seeking the possibilities of a climb, but everywhere it was sheer, without a ledge or protuberance of any kind to take advantage of, and it was utterly devoid of vegetation—not a sign of a friendly shrub or root to hold by.

I had sense enough to know that I was too tired to think profitably, and drowsiness coming over me told me that an hour or two's sleep would give me the strength I needed to renew with a will and more chances of success my efforts to escape.

Light was too precious to waste, so I blew out my lantern, and curling up on the sand, almost instantly fell asleep. But before I lapsed into unconsciousness I had clutched hold of one sustaining thought in the darkness—the assurance of Calypso's safety, so confidently announced by her father: "Don't be afraid for her. I know my daughter." Whatever happened to me, she would come out all right. As her brave shape flashed before my mind's eye, down there under the earth, I could have no doubt of that.

My instinct had been right in giving way to my drowsiness, for I woke up from my sleep a new man. How long I had been there, of course, I had no means of knowing; but I fancy I must have slept a good while, for I felt so refreshed and full of determination to tackle my escape in good earnest.

I had hardly re-lit my lantern when its rays revealed something which it seemed impossible for anyone with eyes, however weary, to have overlooked.

In the right-hand corner of the little cavern, five or six feet above my head, was a dark hole, like the entrance to a tunnel, or, more properly speaking, a good-sized burrow—for it was scarcely more than a yard in diameter. It seemed to be something more than a mere cavity in the rock, for when I flashed my lantern up to it I could see no end. To climb up to it at first seemed difficult; but, providentially, I had a stout clasp knife in my pocket, and with this I cut a step or two in the porous rock, and so managed it. Lying flat on my stomach, I looked in.

It was, as I had thought, a narrow natural tunnel, snaking through the rocks—as often happens in those curious fantastic coral formations—for all the world, indeed, as if it had been made ages ago by some monstrous primeval serpent, a giant wormhole, no less, leading—heaven alone knew where.

There was just room to crawl along it on all fours, so I started cautiously, making sure I had my precious matches and my jackknife all safe.

I progressed, I should say, for some twenty or thirty yards, when, to my inexpressible relief, I came out, still on all fours, onto a spreading floor; then, standing up, I perceived that I was in a cave of considerable loftiness and some forty feet or so across. It was good to breathe again such comparatively free air; yet, as I looked about and made the circuit of the walls, I saw that I had but exchanged one prison for another. There was this difference, however: whereas there had only been one passageway from the cave I had just left, there were several similar outlets from that in which I now stood. Two or three of them proved to be nothing but alcoves that ran a few yards and then stopped.

But there were two close by each other which seemed to continue on. There was not much choice between them, but as both made in the same direction, so far as I could judge the direction in which I had so far progressed.

Vainly I Clutched at Rocky Walls.

I decided to take the larger one. It proved to be a passage much like the tunnel I had already traversed, only a little roomier, and therefore it was easier going, and, too, brought me out, as had the other, on another cavern—but one considerably larger in extent.

I had stumbled on something like a Monte Cristo suite of underground apartments. And here for a moment I released my imagination from her blinders, and allowed her to play around these strange halls. And in one of her suggestions there was some comfort. It was hardly likely that caverns of such extent had waited for me to discover them. They must surely have been known to Teuch, or whatever buccanier it was who had occupied the ruined mansion not so very far above ground.

I set about the more carefully to examine every nook and corner. Two iron staples imbedded in one of the walls, with rusting chains and manacles attached, were melancholy proof of one of the uses to which the place had once been put. Melancholy for certain unhappy souls long since freed of all mortal chains, but for me—need I say it?—exceedingly joyous. For if there had been a way to bring prisoners here it was none the less evident that there had been a way to take them out. But how and where? Again I searched every nook and cranny. There was no sign of entrance anywhere.

When a thought occurred to me. What if the entrance were after the manner of a medieval subterranean through the ceiling? There was a thought indeed to send one's hopes soaring. I ran in my eagerness through one cavern after another, holding my lantern aloft. That must be the solution. There could be no other way. I sought and sought, but alas! it was a false hope, and I threw myself down in a corner in despair, deciding that the prisoners must have been forced to crawl in as I had—though it was hardly like fallers to put themselves to such inconvenience.

I leaned back against the wall and gazed listlessly upward. Next moment I had bounded to my feet again. Surely I had seen some sort, regular lines running up the face of the rock, like a ladder. I raised my lantern. Sure enough, they were iron rungs set in the face of the rock, and they mounted up till I lost them in the obscurity, for the cave here must have been forty feet high. Blessed heaven! I was saved!

Memory Must Be Cultivated.

In any system of mental development, the memory must be cultivated at the outset, and that cultivation must continue unceasingly. It is fortunate indeed that every average person has a mind capable of excellent memory. It is only necessary that the native powers should be properly employed.

HALEY'S COMET 61 YEARS AGO

Is Same Terrible Wanderer in Space That Has Appeared Down the Ages.

The world was up all night September 12, 1910. Haley's comet blazed across the roof of the world. The "great comet," whose revolution occupied 222 years, was first seen in August, 1835, by a gentleman in Alabama; but Haley's comet, named after the astronomer who calculated its progress, is the same terrible wanderer in depths of space that has appeared down the ages, and to which successive names have been given—Haley's comet, Donati's comet, etc. From the records of history it seems that the comet appears to foretell some world disaster. It repeated before the fall of Jerusalem under Titus; in the reign of Louis the Debonair, 87, and the king died shortly after; it appeared before the death of Caesar, 43 B. C. Again it appeared three years after the capture of Constantinople by the Turks, 1453. It appeared in 1861, just before the Civil war, and in 1910, before the great war.

What is a comet? It is a member of the solar republic—a hirsute star, a vagabond orb, that travels at almost incalculable speed, whose tail is fifty-five million miles long—who approaches the sun, not to be consumed in it, but to draw from that radiant source the energy necessary for its future travels in the unknown abyss of the firmament. It has its own orbit which it follows. What mind dare follow that?

Marjorie's One Hundred.

Marjorie, aged 9, had not been having very satisfactory reports from school. The father finally said: "Marjorie, for the first 100 you get I'll give you a quarter."

Time went on, and the reward could not be claimed, for the child was taken violently ill. Her mother sent for the doctor. When he had gone Marjorie said: "Mamma, am I very ill?"

"No, dear; your temperature is a little over 100, but the doctor thinks you will be better in a day or so."

Smiles, broke through Marjorie's tears. "Now, mamma, I can have my quarter. Papa said he would give it to me if I could get 100 on anything."—Christian Advocate.

WAR RECORD OF LEVIATHAN

Monster Transport Carried Many Thousands of Soldiers to French Ports.

The giant transport Leviathan, following her arrival in New York harbor with Gen. Pershing and troops of the First Division, brought to a close her important service in helping with the war. The big ship, after being refitted for passenger service, is to be turned back to the United States shipping board, the agency which seized it when the United States entered the war. While the future of the ship is uncertain, it is reported that she will be assigned to American passenger trade between New York and Liverpool, with possible extension in the future of a service to Hamburg.

The Leviathan, formerly the Vaterland, the second largest ship in the world, was interned in New York by the Germans in 1914. She was "well-taken care of" to the extent of more than $1,000,000. After being reconditioned by American engineers, she was assigned as a transport, and during and since the war made 19 round trips on the Atlantic, carrying a total of 185,500 soldiers, of whom 98,321 were carried overseas through submarine-infested seas. She was always a mark for U-boats, but her speed and the armament with which she was equipped saved her.

THREE AVIATORS CROSS COUNTRY

LIEUTENANT MAYNARD COMES IN FIRST WITH LIEUTENANT KIEL SECOND.

TIME. LESS THAN 25 HOURS

Wrong Landing Made By Major Spatz
Beats Him Out of Second Place
By Three Minutes.

New York, Oct. 15. Lieut. H. W. Maynard, the "flying parson," Lieut. E. C. Kiel, a school teacher, and Maj. Carl Spatz, a soldier, were hailed as the new air pioneers. They were the first three men to fly from coast to coast in the trans-continental air derby.

Lieut. Maynard was the first to complete the epoch-making flight. He left Roosevelt Field, Mineola, N. Y., at 2:24 a. m. (Eastern time), Oct. 3, and arrived at the Presidio San Francisco, at 1:13 p. m. (Coast time) Oct. 1. His actual flying time was 24 hours, 58 minutes 55 1/2 seconds for the 2,701 miles, and his elapsed time was 75 hours 47 minutes.

Lieut. Kiel completed the journey from San Francisco to Roosevelt Field only 20 seconds behind Spatz.

When Maj. Spatz and his passenger, Sergt. Emmett Tanner, stepped from their machine the spectators learned of a wrong landing made at Hazelhurst. Maj. Spatz had been leading Lieut. Kiel by eight minutes—and the wrong landing enabled Kiel to reach Roosevelt Field ahead of him.

While Lieut. Kiel touched the ground at Roosevelt Field 20 seconds before Maj. Carl Spatz in the dash from West to East, Maj. Spatz was credited with second honors, having left San Francisco three minutes behind Lieut. Kiel.

Maynard, Kiel and Spatz piloted De Havilland Fours equipped with that type of engine, developing 400 horsepower. Their machines were capable of making 120 miles an hour, but this speed was exceeded several times under favorable wind conditions. Maynard averaged 105 1/2 miles an hour for the entire route.

Five men had met death. They are: Sergt. W. H. Nevitt, observer for Col. G. C. Brandt of Plane No. 4, which crashed at Deposit, N. Y. Wednesday; Maj. D. H. Crissey and Sergt. Virgil Thomas, whose plane No. 6, crashed at Salt Lake City; Lieut. E. V. Walsh; No. 63, fell at Ovid Pass; North D. McClellan, observer for Maj. A. L. Sneed of plane No. 24, which made a bad landing at Buffalo.

Under the rules there was no Sunday flying, so both east and west-bound aviators rested Sunday.

The return flight was undertaken according to the same rules and regulations which governed the first half.

URGES LABOR BE GIVEN VOICE

Rockefeller, Jr., Offers Resolution At U. S. Industrial Conference.

Washington, Oct. 15. John D. Rockefeller, Jr., a representative of the public, proposed in a resolution that the National Industrial Conference approve "the principle of representation in industry under which employees shall have an effective voice in determining their terms of employment and their working and living conditions."

The first concrete act of the conference was the adoption of a motion by Charles L. Chubb, a representative of the public, that a committee of nine be appointed to investigate the high cost of living. The committee will be composed of three members of each group—capital, labor and the public.

An immediate industrial truce, to continue three months; creation of an arbitration board by the President and Congress, and immediate arbitration of the steel strike were among proposals made. The first two were presented by representatives of the public and the last by the labor group.

HOPE TO AVERT COAL STRIKE

Miners and Operators Declare Willingness to Attempt Settlement.

Philadelphia, Oct. 15. Although the conference between bituminous coal operators and miners, which was held here last week, ended in a deadlock and it was announced that a general strike would be called for November 1, there were indications Sunday that the difficulties would yet be adjusted.

Both sides officially declared their willingness to meet again and it was strongly indicated that a third interest, probably officials in Washington, would bring the two together.

France Needs No Help to Rebuild.

Cleveland, Oct. 15. No need need any raw materials from America to rebuild her ruined towns. William G. Sharp, former American ambassador to that country, declared before the Cleveland Chamber of Industry, it would not pay to ship it. "We are not—nor is any other nation going to supply the material for rebuilding these ruined towns because they have the raw materials they use, lath and plaster, literally in their backyards."

BETTER LIVE STOCK CRUSADE

Nation-wide Campaign to Eliminate Scrub Sires From Breeding—Emblem Given Owner.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

"Better Sires—Better Stock."

This is the slogan of a national better-live-stock crusade, to get actively in motion October 1, that is announced by the United States department of agriculture, working in cooperation with the state agricultural colleges and other agencies interested in livestock improvement. The campaign looks forward to the future food needs of this country's increasing population and results from long and careful observation of the live-stock industry in this country, and was planned after extensive consultation with specialists and breeders. The plan is to hasten the replacement of the multitude of scrub domestic animals in the United States with good purebred or high-grade stock, and also to improve the quality of purebreds themselves. The goal in view is greater efficiency in production.

Campus Virginia E—Yearly Production as Two-Year-Old: Milk, 8,312 Lbs.; Butterfat, 508.7 Lbs.

The campaign will be the first organized crusade in a large country to improve all live stock simultaneously. It will interfere in no way with any work in live-stock improvement now being conducted, but makes all the work more definite and effective by providing official recognition for progressive breeders.

The campaign will be supervised from the department of agriculture in Washington, and in each state by the state agricultural college. County agents and other field workers of the department of agriculture and of the state colleges will handle the campaign locally. Every live-stock owner actively co-operating and keeping and using none but purebred sires of good quality will be given an emblem as an official recognition of merit.

KEEP DAIRY UTENSILS CLEAN

This Precaution Should Be Observed Throughout Year, but Especially in Warm Weather.

Utensils that come in contact with milk or cream must be kept perfectly clean. This precaution should be observed throughout the year, but especially during the warm weather, says the University of Missouri College of Agriculture. Wash them by first rinsing in cold water and then by using hot water and a brush. Washing powder suitable for use in the dairy should contain no grease. Ordinary salt-soda used in small amounts is a good dairy cleanser. After washing the utensils with hot water, rinse thoroughly with boiling water and place them where they will come in contact with the direct rays of the sun. This place should be free from flies.

In washing the large milk cans, be sure that the inside of the shoulder of the can is rubbed with the brush, as this is the most difficult part to clean.

LESSEN DANGER FROM FEVER

Diversity of Opinion on Advisability of Removing All Milk From Cow's Udder.

Opinion is not unanimous on the advisability of removing all the milk from the udder after the calf has drawn its first meal. It is urged by those who oppose the complete emptying of the bag that only a part should be removed. The belief is that as nature's plan is only to take a little away there is less danger from milk fever than when the bag is milked clean.

THEY TURNED AWAY DAZEDLY

Young Couple in Search of an Apartment Run into Unusual Landlord.

They were swapping yarns at the Athletic club the other night and Frank Carbutt told this one, though he doesn't wish for its veracity.

"The young husband touched the landlord's doorknob lightly and his wife just as timidly sought his hand, when the door swung open and a fierce, bewhiskered man confronted them."

"Have you an apartment to rent?" piped the young husband.

"Have you any children?" roared the landlord, running a sinewy hand through his whiskers.

"No," replied the young husband, promptly.

"Any dogs?" blarneyed the landlord.

"Not a one," chirped the young wife.

"Well, then," said the landlord triumphantly, "you can't get in here. We never rent apartments to people who haven't children or dogs."

The door slammed in their faces and they turned away dazedly.
