CHELSEA RAIL PLANT HAS CHANGED HANDS

Hoover Steel Ball Company is Now Operating the Plant.

By action of the owners of about 80 per cent of the stock of the Chelsea Steel Ball Co., the entire plant and real estate of the concern was absorbed by the Hoover Steel Ball Co. of Ann Arbor Tuesday afternoon.

Through the terms of the purchase the Hoover company is given immediate possession, and the plant was started in operation Wednesday morning as a unit of the Ann Arbor plant.

The absorption of the plant by the Hoover interests will increase the value of the institution to this locality because of a decision to shunt hundreds of big orders which cannot be handled by the Ann Arbor plant, to the Chelsea plant.

It had been practically determined to abandon a large share of these orders for lower grade balls, and the policy of sending this business to the Chelsea plant will increase the work here to the fullest capacity, including the addition now in process of erection.

Hawkins-Merkel Wedding.

Deputy Leader, A very pretty wedding took place in St. Joseph's church Tuesday morning, October 21, when Miss Doris Hawkins of Sen and Edward Merkel of Webster, were united in marriage by Rev. Fr. Griffin. The bride was gowned in white Gorgotte crepe over lace. Her veil was held in place with a lace cap and she wore a corsage bouquet of pink roses. She was attended by her cousin, Miss Genevieve Cunningham, who wore blue albatross and a large picture hat. The bridegroom was attended by his brother, Joseph Merkel. After the ceremony, at the home of the bride's mother, Mrs. Mary Hawkins, a sumptuous breakfast was served to the immediate families after which Mr. and Mrs. Merkel left for a motor trip to Ohio, after which they will reside on the farm in Webster which the bridegroom recently purchased.

Mr. Merkel is a son of George Merkel of Sylvan.

A Business Change.

Adam Eppler, who has conducted a meat market in Chelsea for twenty-seven years, has sold his market to Fred G. Loeffler and Herbert Roy, both of whom are well known to residents here.

Mr. Eppler retains the buildings used in connection with the business. Messrs. Loeffler and Roy will take possession of the business, Monday, November 10. Both men are at present employed by F. C. Klingler and have had considerable experience in the meat business.

An Interesting Meeting.

The Washtenaw County Jersey Cattle Club met at the county agent's room in the court house in Ann Arbor last Wednesday evening to discuss matters pertaining to publicity for the Jersey cow, and the keeping of the boys and the girls on the farm.

The question arose, should we send our boys to the university and fit them for doctors, lawyers and preachers, and then expect them to remain on the farm, or should we get them interested in farm work and management by having them join a calf club and send them to the Agricultural College to fit them for better farming and better live stock breeders.

A very interesting talk was given along these lines by Dr. Waterman, of Ann Arbor.

An effort will be made by the Club to interest a number of boys and girls in a Jersey calf club. The American Jersey Cattle Club will donate $75 to be used as a prize to the boy or girl raising the best calf.

Parents would do well to give this matter a thought. It will be a step towards reducing the high cost of living. Unless something is done soon we will not have any young people on our farms.

SCHOOL NOTES.

The third and fourth grades enjoyed a hallowe'en party Wednesday afternoon. Popcorn, candy and apples were served.

The kindergarten had a Hallowe'en party Wednesday afternoon. The room was decorated with jack-o'-lanterns and other suitable decorations. Peanuts and candy were served, games were played and a very pleasant time was spent.

The less said about the football game between Manchester and Chelsea high school teams last Friday the better. The score was 42 to 0 in Chelsea's favor. Clinton high is coming here Friday with expectations of winning. They have a strong aggregation, and whipped Manchester 59 to 0, and while Chelsea did not run up such a score, it was the result of running in substitutes in the last half.

SEVERAL INJURED IN AUTOMOBILE ACCIDENTS

Cars Go Into Ditch Wrecking Them and Injuring Occupants.

Jackson News: An automobile accident in which two persons were injured and two automobiles thrown into the ditch occurred late Saturday night on the East Main street road near the rooming school house.

Vernie Mayett of Chelsea, and Miss Irene Badio, of Grass Lake, the persons injured in the smash, were driving east towards Chelsea. It is believed that they were either crowded from the road or became confused by lights from machines approaching from the east. One version of the accident has it that two machines were coming toward them, when the second machine attempted to pass the first, thus bringing the three cars opposite each other in the road. Mayett's car was almost entirely demolished and in going into the ditch was turned entirely around. The first car approaching from the east was also forced into the ditch, but was not damaged.

Early reports at the sheriff's office stated that both legs and one arm of the man were broken, besides serious injuries to the scalp. At the hospital however, it was said that no bones were broken and that the only injuries were scalp wounds. It was also reported that the woman was seriously injured, but this was also denied at the hospital, where it was said that she was only bruised and shaken.

Following the accident, thieves were on the scene and in the morning four tires, a spot light, and tools from the tool box were missing. An attempt evidently had been made to take the storage battery but, although the box was broken, the attempt was unsuccessful. The sheriff's department is at work on this phase of the affair.

The sheriff's department has been fortunate also in learning the license number of the car responsible for the accident and if a satisfactory settlement is not made it is possible that prosecution may follow.

Mr. Mayett was brought to his home at the Crescent hotel by his brother, Floyd Mayett, Monday afternoon.

Fred Hall, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Hall, of South Main street, had a very narrow escape from death last Friday morning, when the Michigan Portland Cement Co.'s auto which he was driving from the plant to Chelsea, was overturned at the culvert west of the residence of Alvin Baldwin. There was a dense fog and the machine struck the north railing of the culvert, turned over and landed at the foot of the embankment, and the young man was caught under it. His right forearm was broken and he received numerous bruises. He freed himself from the wreck, but it was nearly an hour and a half after the accident before he was discovered and brought to Chelsea.

Give the world the once over

LISTEN, fellows, to some straight talk. Many a man when he gets to be 40, misses something. He may have lots of money, and a fine family but— He never "got out and saw things". After he gets settled down, it's too late. Every man wants to see the world. No man likes to stand still all his life. The best time to TRAVEL is when you're young and lively—right NOW!

Right NOW your Uncle Sam is calling. "Shove off!" He wants men for his Navy. He's inviting you! It's the biggest chance you'll ever get to give the world the once over!

The Navy goes all over the world—wants the Seven Seas—squints at the six continents—that's its business. You stand to see more odd sights, wonderful scenery and strange people than you ever dreamed of.

You'll work hard while you work. You'll play hard while you play. You'll earn and learn. You'll get, in addition to "shore-leave", a 30-day straight vacation—which is more than the average bank president can count on.

You can join for two years. When you get through you'll be physically and mentally "tuned up" for the rest of your life. You'll be ready through and through for SUCCESS.

There's a Recruiting Station right near you. If you don't know where it is, your Postmaster will be glad to tell you.

Shove off! - Join the U.S. Navy

I turned my eyes over the sea—I could move them, at all events; how gloriously it was shining out there!

"Calypso! Calypso!" I cried. "Calypso!" and it seemed as though a giant's strength were in me—that I could reach the rocks apart. I made a mighty effort, and, whether or not my relaxing had made a readjustment of my position, I found that for some reason I could move forward again, and, with one desperate wriggle, I had my head through the narrow space.

CHAPTER IX.

Action.

I had seen, close in shore, a two-masted schooner under full sail sweeping by, as if pursued, and three negroes kneeling on deck, with leveled rifles. As I looked, a shot rang out, from my right, where I could not see, and one of the negroes rolled over.

At that moment, two other negroes emerged from the cabin hatchway, half dragging and half carrying a woman. She was struggling bravely, but in vain. The negroes—evidently acting under orders of a white man—were dragging her toward the mainmast. Her hair was bare, her hair in disorder, and one shoulder from which her dress had been torn in the struggle, gleamed white in the sunlight. Yet her eyes were flashing splendid scornful fires at her captors; and her laughter of defiance came stinging to me over the sea. It was then that I had cried "Calypso!" and wrenched myself free.

The next moment there came dashing in sight a sloop also under full canvas, and at its bow, a huge white man, with a leveled rifle that still smoked. At a glance, I knew him for Charlie Webster. He had been about to fire again, but as the man dragged Calypso forward, he paused, calm as a rock, waiting, with his keen sportsman's eyes on Tobias—as, for of course, it was he.

"You—coward!" I heard his voice roar across the rapidly diminishing distance between the two boats, for the sloop was running with power as well as sails.

Meanwhile, the men had lashed Calypso to the mast, and even in my agony my eyes recorded the glory of her beauty as she stood proudly there—the great sails spread above her, and the sea for her background.

"Now, do your worst," cried Tobias, his evil face white as wax in the sunlight.

"Fire, fire—don't be afraid," roared Calypso's voice, like singing gold. At the same instant, as she called Tobias sprang toward her with raised revolver.

"Another word, and I fire," shouted the voice of the brute.

But the rifle that never missed its mark spoke again. Tobias' arm fell mangled, and he staggered away screaming. Still once more, Charlie Webster's gun spoke, and the staggering figure fell with a crash on the deck.

"Now, boys, ready," I heard Charlie's voice roar out again, as the sloop tore alongside the schooner—where the rest of the negro crew with raised arms had fallen on their knees, crying for mercy.

All this I saw from the water, as I swam wildly toward the two boats, which now had closed on each other, a mass of thundering canvas, and screaming and cursing men—and Calypso there, like a beautiful statue, still lashed to the mast, a proud smile on her lovely lips.

Another moment, and Charlie had sprung aboard, and, seizing a knife from one of the screaming negroes, he cut her free.

His deep calm voice came to me over the water.

I saw Calypso and Charlie Webster stand a moment looking down at the figure of Tobias, prostrate at their feet.

"I am sorry I had to kill him," I heard Charlie's deep growl. "I meant to keep him for the hangman."

But suddenly I saw him start forward and stamp heavily on something. "No, you don't," I heard him roar—and I learned afterward that Tobias, though mortally wounded, was not yet dead, and that, as the two had stood looking down on him, they had seen his hand furtively moving toward the fallen revolver that lay a few inches from him on the deck.

"Not alive, you English brute!" he was heard to groan out, and, snatching free his wrist too swiftly to be prevented, he had gathered up all his remaining strength, and hurled himself over the side into the sea.

I was but a dozen yards away from him, as he fell; and, as he rose again, it was for his dying eyes to fix with a glare upon me. They dilated with terror, as though he had seen a ghost. Then he gave one strange scream, and fell back into the sea, and we saw him no more.

It will be easier for the reader to imagine, than for me to describe, the look on the faces of Calypso and Charlie Webster when they saw me appear at almost the same spot where poor Tobias had just gone bubbling

"Now, do your worst!" cried Tobias, down. Words I had none, for I was at the end of my strength, and I broke down and sobbed like a child.

"Thank God you are safe—my treasure, my treasure!" was all I could say, after they had lifted me aboard, and I lay face down on the deck, at her feet. Swiftly she knelt by my side, and caressed my shoulder with her dear hand.

All of which—particularly my reference to "my treasure"—must have been much to the bewilderment of the good simple-hearted Charlie, lowering, innocent-eyed, above us. I believe I stayed a little longer at her feet than I really had need to, for the comfort of her being so near and kind; but, presently, we were all aroused by a voice from the cliffs above. It was the "king," with his bodyguard, Erebus and the crew of the Flamingo—no Samson, alas! The sound of the firing had reached them in the woods, and they had come hurrying to discover its cause.

So we deferred asking our questions, and telling our several stories, till we were pulled ashore.

As Calypso was folded in her father's arms, he turned to me:

"Didn't I tell you that I knew my daughter?" he said.

"And I told you something too, O king," I replied—my eyes daring at last to rest on Calypso with the love and pride of my heart.

"And where on earth have you been, young man?" he asked, laughing. "Did Tobias kidnap you too?"

"Yes, very bad, as you will have seen, to astonish the king."

But, though it was hard to astonish and almost impossible to alarm him, his sense of wonder was quite another matter, and the boyish delight with which he listened to our several stories would have made it worth while to undergo tenfold the perils we had faced. Our stories, said the "king," were quite in the manner of "The Arabian Nights," dovetailing one into the other.

had been the eloquent witness, needed no further telling. He had done his brave best—poor fellow—but Tobias had had six men with him, and it was soon over. Her they had gagged and bound and carried in a sort of improvised sedan chair; Tobias had done the thing with a certain style and—she had to admit—with absolute courtesy.

When they had gone a mile or two from the house, he had had the gag taken from her mouth, and, on her promise not to attempt to escape (which was, of course, quite impossible) he had also had her unbound, so that her hurried journey through the woods was made as comfortable as possible.

They were making, she had gathered—and as we had surmised—for the northern shore, and, after about a three hours' march, she heard the sound of the sea. On the schooner she had found a cabin all nicely prepared for her—even dainty toilet necessaries—and an excellent dinner was served, on some quite pretty china, to her alone. Poor Tobias had seemed bent on showing—as he had said to Tom—that he was not the "currier" we had thought him.

After dinner, Tobias had respectfully asked leave for a few words with her. He had apologized for his action, but explained that it was necessary—the only way he had left, he said, of protecting his own interests, and safeguarding a treasure which belonged to him and no one else, if it belonged to any living man. It had seemed to her that it was a monomania with him.

While he had been talking, she had made up her mind what she would do. She would tell him the plain truth about her doubloons, and offer him what remained of them as a ransom.

This she did, and was able at last half to persuade him that, so far as anyone knew, that was all the treasure there was, and then the digging among the ruins of the old house was a mere fancy of her father's. There might be something there or not—and she went so far as to give her word of honor that, if anything was found, he should have his share of it.

Tobias had seemed impressed, and promised his answer in the morning, leaving her to sleep—with a sentry at her cabin door. She had slept soundly, and awakened only at dawn. As soon as she was up, Tobias had come to her, saying that he had accepted her offer, and asking her to direct him to her treasure.

This she had done, and, to avoid passing the settlement, they had taken the course round the eastern end of the island. As they had approached the cave (and here Calypso turned a quizzical smile on me, which no one, of course, understood but ourselves), a sloop was seen approaching them from the westward . . . and here she stopped and turned to Charlie Webster.

"Now," said the "king," "we shall hear the story of Apollo—or, let us say, rather Ajax—the Far-Partner—of the arrow that never missed its mark."

And Charlie Webster, mere at home with deeds than words, blushed and blushed through his part of the story, telling how—having called at the settlement—he had got our message from Sweeney, and was making up the coast for the hidden creek. He had spied what he felt sure was Tobias' schooner—he had called on him "in the king's name" to surrender—"I had in my pocket the warrant for his arrest," said Charlie, with innocent pride—"the d-d scoundrel!" but had been answered with bullets. He had been terribly frightened, he owned, when Calypso had been brought on deck, but she had given him courage—he paused to beam on her, a broad-faced admiration, for which he could find no words—and, as he had never yet missed a flying duck at I forget how many furlongs he oughtn't to have risked it.

And so his story came to an end, amid reassuring applause.

"Now," said the "king," "for the Story of the Disappearing Gentleman and the Lighted Lantern."

And then I told my story as it is already known to the reader, and I have to confess that, when I came to the cheerful of doubts and pieces of eight, I had a very attentive audience. The "king" was for starting off that very night. But, reminded of the difficult conclusion in which the treasure still lay, he was persuaded to wait till the morning.

"At dawn then," he said, "tomorrow—let me be the resy-footed dave!"—so he it. And now I am going to talk to Ajax the Far-Partner of duck shooting."

"But wait!" I cried. "Why did 'Jack Harlaway' go to Nassau?"

"Calypso" blushed. The "king" chuckled.

"I prefer not to be known in Nassau, yet some of my business has to be done there. Nor is it safe for beauty like Calypso's to go unprotected. So from time to time, 'Jack Harlaway' goes for us both! And now enough of explanations!" and he launched into talk of game and sport in various parts of the world, to the huge delight of the great simple-hearted Charlie.

But, after a time, other matters claimed the attention of his other auditors. During the flow of his discourse night had fallen. Calypso and I perceived that we were forgotten—so, by an impulse that seemed to be one, we rose and left them there, and stole out into the garden where the little fountain was dancing like a spirit under the moon, and the orange trees gave out their perfume on the night breeze. I took her hand, and we walked softly out into the moonlight, and looked down at the closed louises in the little pool. And then we took courage to look into each other's eyes.

"Calypso," I said, "when are you going to show me where you keep your doubloons?"—and I added, in a whisper, "Jack—when am I going to see you in boy's clothes again?"

And, with that, she was in my arms, and I felt her heart beating against my side.

"Oh! my treasure," I said—over so softly—"Calypso, my treasure."

POSTSCRIPT.

Now, such readers as have been "gentle" enough to follow me so far in my story, may possibly desire to be told what lay behind those other locked doors in the underground gallery where I so rarely laid my bones.

Those caverns, was afterward discovered, did actually communicate with Blackbeard's ruined mansion, and the "king," who has now rebuilt that mansion and lives in it in semi-feudal state with Calypso and me, is able to pass from one to the other by underground passages which are an unfailing source of romantic satisfaction to his dear, absurd soul.

As to whether or not the mansion and the treasure were actually Blackbeard's—that is, Edward Teach's—we are yet in doubt, though we prefer to believe that they were. At all events, we never found any evidence to connect them at all with Henry P. Tobias, whose second treasure, we have every reason to think, still remains undiscovered.

As for the sinister and ill-fated Henry P. Tobias, Jr., we have since learned—through Charlie Webster, who every now and again drops in with sailors from his sloop and carries off the "king" for duck hunting; that his real name was quite different; he must have assumed, as a noun de guerre, the name we knew him by, to give color to his claim. I am afraid, therefore, that he was a plain scoundrel, after all, though it seemed to me that I saw gleams in him of something better, and I shall always feel a sort of kindness toward him for the saving grace of gallant courtesy with which he invested his abduction of Calypso.

Calypso . . . She and I, just for fun, sometimes drop into Sweeney's store, and when she has made her purchases, she draws up from her bosom a little bag, and, looking softly at me, lays down on the counter—a golden doubloon; and Sweeney—who, doubtless, thinks us all a little crazy—smiles indulgently on our make-believe.

Sometimes, on our way home, we come upon Tom in the plantations, superintending a gang of the "king's" janissaries—among whom Erebus is still the blackest—for Tom is now the lord high steward of our estate. He beams on us in a fatherly way, and I lay my hand significantly on my left side to his huge delight. He flashes his white teeth and wags his head from side to side with inarticulate enjoyment of the allusion. For who knows? He may be right. In so mysterious a world the smallest cause may lead up to the most august results, and there is nothing too wonderful to happen.

(THE END.)

Key of Happiness. It is very difficult to realize it sometimes, and it is very hard on our pride to admit it when we do realize it, but it is a fact nevertheless, and a fact that we should get hold of us, and stay with us—that the joy and happiness and satisfaction of our lives depend very much more upon ourselves and the kind of people we are than upon the kind of things that happen to us. It is the kind of will we carry round with us, and the attitude of our mind and the temper of our spirit and decides whether our lives shall be happy and hopeful, and not the things that come to us. Given the right kind of will, the same attitude and the wholesome temper of soul, we shall be able to adjust ourselves to life with some comfort and satisfaction, no matter what its accidents and incidents, until they become quite satisfying. We carry the key of our own happiness ourselves and no one can give it to us or take it away.

Labor's Withdrawal From the Industrial Conference in Washington.

Coal Miners Reject Offer and Prepare to Strike—Government May Operate Mines—Senate Committee Adopts Strong Reservations to the Peace Treaty.

By EDWARD W. PICKARD.

After two weeks of discussion and negotiation, the industrial conference at Washington was abruptly disrupted Wednesday by the withdrawal of the labor delegation. Mr. Gompers led his bloc out of the conference because its resolution on collective bargaining was rejected. As he departed he declared the employers' group was adopting exactly the position assumed by the I. W. W.—that workers should not enter into agreements with employers—and that he had nothing further to submit. "You have defeated labor in its declaration here," he added, "but we will meet you again in conference, and when we do meet you there you will be glad to talk collective bargaining."

Spokesmen for the capital group decried the employers' group for opposing collective bargaining, but said the resolution submitted, if adopted, "would go out to the world as a concession on the part of the employers' group that they recognize the necessity of the amalgamation of all the industrial establishments in the country and the kind of collective bargaining that the labor unions insist upon as distinguished from other kinds."

The group representing the public approved the resolution, and it was beaten in the employers' group by only one vote, but the rules of the conference require a unanimous vote for the passage of any resolution. L. E. Sheppard of the railroad conductors charged that political motives inspired the action of some of the delegates, and to others it was apparent that the steel strike issues really were responsible for the attitude taken by the majority of the capital group.

President Wilson, on his sick bed, had dictated and signed a letter to the members of the conference pleading for continuance of the sessions until a solution of industrial relations was reached, and this was read by Chairman Lane, but it did not have the desired effect on Gompers and his colleagues. At first it was thought their withdrawal meant the breaking up of the conference, but the members of the public group said they would keep on with their work, and President Wilson sent another letter asking that this course be followed.

The failure, so far, of the industrial conference to accomplish anything is disappointing enough, but public attention is centered just now on another labor trouble that is imminent—the threatened strike of soft coal miners which is set for November 1. Secretary of Labor Wilson has been working desperately to avert this, and making a proposal that would grant the miners an increased wage, but that ignored their demand for a 36-hour week. The miners' committee formally rejected this offer, though it was thought the operators would agree to it, and the leaders of the miners left Washington at once to prepare for the struggle. The territory involved is the "central competitive district," including western Pennsylvania, Ohio, Indiana and Illinois.

Secretary Wilson and the other government officials directly involved in this matter did not emphasize their plans for the future, but they have indicated that if necessary, in order to insure a supply of coal to consumers, the mines will be kept open and operated by the government, with troops on guard. Congress also may intervene if the efforts of the government fail. Already in both cases and senate measures are being framed that would declare it a crime to incite a strike in coal mines. Senator Frelinghuysen was especially severe in his comment on the miners' demands, and took the occasion to denounce trade unionism under its present leadership as a "new auto-cracy" tending toward bolshevism.

On the surface there is little change in the steel strike situation, but the American Federation of Labor and some state labor associations, notably that of Illinois, came out strong for unlimited support of the strikers, both morally and financially. In the convention of the Illinois Federation of Labor a general strike was advocated in order to "stop the wheels of industry and bring Gary to his knees." The labor leaders are planning to spread the strike in various directions and released at the action of the officials of the railway brotherhoods giving the workers permission to take such action as they may find necessary in each district. This may mean the men operating the lines into steel plants will quit work.

Last Wednesday was the last day on which steel strikers could return to their jobs and save their seniority and pension rights, and many of them did go back to the mills.

The railroad workers of the country, who are demanding increased wages, time and a half overtime, the eight-hour day, and changes in working conditions, are preparing for a finish fight with the railroad administration, according to what Timothy Shea, chief of the strikers, told the administration's board of working conditions. Shea's data and claims were strongly combated by A. O. Wharton, who left the presidency of the railway employees, department of the American Federation of Labor to become a member of the board.

Director General Hines put a sudden end to the strike of express drivers in New York by threatening to fill their places with troops, but efforts to settle the longshoremen's strike there were futile and the food shortage in the metropolis grew worse daily with prices soaring. In order that there should be no further delay in government work on transports and other vessels, Secretary of War Baker sent a large number of troops to the port to take the places of strikers, and the latter were warned that interference with the soldiers would be met with bullets. The troops, it was declared by the army officials, would do only government work. Although some of the longshoremen's locals have voted to abandon the strike and "to be disapproved by their international officers, most of the men refuse to return to work unless they are given $1 an hour and $2 an hour for overtime.

The senate committee on foreign relations prepared the ground for the final battle over the treaty with Germany by adopting 14 reservations and a preamble to the resolution of ratification providing that America's participation in the pact shall not be effective until the reservations have been accepted by three of the four chief allied nations, Great Britain, France, Italy and Japan.

The reservations, which Senator Lodge said will be supported by a majority in the senate, are framed to accomplish the following:

To give the United States unqualified right of withdrawal from the league upon notice by congress.

To relieve the United States of any obligation to preserve the territorial integrity or political independence of any country under article X or to go to war under any article unless congress so decides by act or joint resolution.

To provide that no mandate may be accepted by the United States except by express authorization of congress.

To protect the sovereignty of the United States over domestic questions.

To declare the dissent of the United States over the European settlement.

To protect American exports to Germany from interference by the reparations commission unless congress approves.

To remove the United States from any obligation to contribute to the league's expenses unless congress authorizes such appropriation.

To reserve the right of the United States to decide for itself the size of its armament.

To reserve the right of the United States to refrain from entering into the economic boycott provided for in article 16 of the league covenant.

To invalidate any act of the league in so far as it affects the United States, unless the American representative on the league council or assembly has been confirmed by the senate.

To protect the rights of American citizens under the articles of the treaty dealing with debts and property.

To relieve the United States of any obligation to assume trusteeship for any of the German overseas possessions surrendered to the allied and associated powers.

To reserve the right of the United States to refuse to submit to the league any question affecting the vital interests and national honor of the United States.

Senator Hitchcock, speaking for the proponents of the treaty as it stands, said the reservations were utterly objectionable and that 40 Democrats would vote against ratification with such conditions. The preamble he considered especially objectionable.

Bringing up unexpected strength to the defense of Petrograd, the bolsheviks succeeded in postponing the fall of that city, though their officials moved to Moscow with all their records. At latest reports, the troops of the Russian northwest army were but a few miles from Petrograd and the fighting was severe. It is known that General Yudenitch's men are not well equipped, and they are not numerous; therefore the Finns are expecting that he will reconsider his refusal to accept the help they offered him some time ago. In the Volga region General Denikine claimed to have defeated the bolshevik near Kamshin, but the soviet government announced that Denikine's advance on Moscow from the south had been definitely stopped.

According to the British admiral, the story of the bombardment and capture of Kronstadt by British naval forces was untrue; but last week a message from Helsingfors said French warships had been shelling the fortress for several days. Two bolshevik torpedo boat destroyers attacked British and Estonian vessels in the Gulf of Finland and were promptly sunk.

The Letts continued their struggle for the possession of Riga with the Germans, who are under the command of Col. Avaloff-Hermund since Von der Goltz quit. The Germans claim to be carrying on their campaign against the bolshevik and to have offered an armistice to the Letts. They have been joined by an entire regiment that had been stationed at Thorn to guard the Germano-Polish frontier.

The American mission to Armenia under Major General Harbord arrived at Constantinople after a strenuous trip in the course of which the members, except Harbord, were captured by Kurds and held prisoners for several hours. Correspondents who have interviewed the commissioners say most of them are opposed to America's accepting a mandate for Armenia or any other part of the former Turkish empire unless the other powers first pledge themselves to a policy of hands off.

Premier Lloyd George found himself up against another "crisis" almost immediately after the opening of parliament. By an unexpected shift of the line-up the government was defeated on a minor amendment to a pending measure. But because only about half the members were present it was believed the cabinet would not consider it necessary to resign, as is customary when it finds itself outvoted.

The French military authorities have unearthed a great conspiracy to Alcazar-Lorraine having for its object the establishment of an autonomous republic. The leader has confessed it was financed by Germans and that a relative of Bethmann-Hollweg was the intermediary between the Berlin foreign office and the conspirators.

OF Women's Suits

We think every Suit in our department should now be closed out. There are a great many Chelsea customers that have wanted Suits this season that would not, or possibly could not, see their way clear to buy a Suit because of the cost. At these reduced prices now on these Suits, the price can't possibly keep any customer from having a Suit. Our regular prices have been very decidedly below city store prices, and at present reduced prices these Suits are about half the prices asked by city stores. Look them over and satisfy yourself. Only about 55 Suits left to select from.

He believes that there are some phases of the work which would be suitable for women, as, for instance, city forester positions, forest pathologist, and entomologist, or work in the government forestry department.

Expenditures for the county during the past nine months, according to a report filed with the board of supervisors by the auditors, amounted to $41,678.98, distributed as follows: County expenses, $19,146.56; county officers, $10,661.47; contagious $5,920.00; county building, $2,891.82; fuel and light, $3,058.80.

The D. J. C. Ry. has made Chelsea the headquarters for the work train crew of this division of the system. The cars and the equipment of the outfit were brought here the first of this week. This will bring at least four new families to Chelsea, and it looks as though the company would be compelled to build houses for them, as the demand is far in excess of the supply.

BREVITIES.

Brighton—At a session of the board of supervisors last week, it was voted to put the question of bonding the county for $600,000 for good roads up to the voters. A special election will be held for that purpose on Nov. 25 Brighton Argus.

Manchester—The county federation of women's organizations will be held in the Methodist church in this village, November 8. All women's organizations are invited. Each woman is asked to bring sandwiches and one other article for the dinner. Coffee, sugar and cream will be furnished by a local committee.

Manchester—The annual mission festival of Emanuel's church will be held on Sunday, November 2. Besides the pastor, Rev. Schoen, Rev. Paul Irion of Michigan City, Ind., former pastor of Bethel church in Freedom, and Mrs. Gotsch, a returned missionary from India, will speak. Manchester Enterprise.

Manchester—Farmers whose land has been drained and made suitable for raising crops are well satisfied that it pays to drain land, though the cost is sometimes more than they think it ought to be. The Enterprise has been informed of this by men who do no care to have their names mentioned for fear of being charged with bragging. Manchester Enterprise.

Brighton—We are likely to have a motorcycle esp parading up and down Grand River road in the near future to help keep drivers somewhere near, if not within, the bounds of the law. Sheriff Miller has been given the privilege of putting one on at any time he sees fit. It is said that such an officer is not an expensive proposition in fact he pays for his salary in the fines and fees collected from speeders. Brighton Argus.

Ann Arbor—It is anticipated that 100 high schools of the state will take part in the state championship debate series, conducted this year under the auspices of the extension service of the university. Already 87 schools have been entered. The question for debate this year is compulsory military training. Each school will take part in three debates to decide group championships. Four district championships will be settled. Two will be chosen to come to Ann Arbor to debate for the state championship. As trophies for the teams taking first and second in the state debates, the Oratorical association of the university will give loving cups.

THIS IS CERTAIN

The Proof That Chelsea Readers Cannot Deny.

What could furnish stronger evidence of the efficiency of any remedy than the test of time? Thousands of people testify that Doan's Kidney Pills have brought lasting results.

Home endorsement should prove undoubtedly the merit of this remedy. Years ago your friends and neighbors testified to the relief they had derived from the use of Doan's Kidney Pills. They now confirm their testimonials. They say time has completed the test.

Mrs. W. D. Arnold, E. Middle St., Chelsea, says: "I suffered greatly from dull, nagging backaches and distressing pains across my kidneys. My kidneys gave me a great deal of annoyance. I got Doan's Kidney Pills at Fenn's Drug Store and they helped me wonderfully. They removed the pains in my back and corrected my kidneys."

Over three years later Mrs. Arnold said: "My cure has been permanent and I give Doan's Kidney Pills all the credit."

TOO SHORT TO DO UP AND STILL FALLING

A little "Dandeline" stops your hair coming out and doubles its beauty.

To stop falling hair at once and rid the scalp of every particle of dandruff, get a small bottle of delightful "Dandeline" at any drug or toilet counter for a few cents, pour a little in your hand and rub it into the scalp. After several applications the hair usually stops coming out and you can't find any dandruff. Help your hair to grow strong, thick and long and become soft, glossy and twice as beautiful and abundant.—Adv.

If You Need a Medicine You Should Have the Best

Have you ever stopped to reason why it is that so many products that are extensively advertised, all at once drop out of sight and are soon forgotten? The reason is plain—the article did not fulfill the promise of the manufacturer. This applies more particularly to a medicine. A medicinal preparation that has real curative value almost sells itself, as like an endless chain system the remedy is recommended by those who have been benefited, to those who are in need of it. A prominent druggist says "Take for example Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, a preparation I have sold for many years and never hesitate to recommend, for in almost every case it shows excellent results, as many of my customers testify. No other kidney remedy has so large a sale."

According to sworn statements and verified testimony of thousands who have used the preparation, the success of Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root is due to the fact, so many people claim, that it fulfills almost every wish in overcoming kidney, liver and bladder ailments; corrects urinary troubles and neutralizes the uric acid which causes rheumatism. You may receive a sample bottle of Swamp-Root by Parcel Post. Address Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., and enclose ten cents; also mention this paper. Large and medium size bottles for sale at all drug stores.—Adv.

SIMPLICITY AND BEAUTY IN DAINY NEGLIGEEES

The average woman may have little use for very elaborate negligees, but for daintiness, loveliness of color and simplicity she has an instinctive longing. These always appeal to her and specialists in the manufacture of negligees understand this—so that the bulk of their output combines just these elements. "Negligee" is a term that includes a very wide variety of garments—inspired by the garb of many peoples—for it is in the seclusion of home that women may indulge themselves in the fanciful. Japan and China contribute much and we have interpreted their ideas to suit ourselves besides buying generously of their productions. France is an exhaustless source of inspiration and we use its wonderful creations all the time, adopting and adapting ideas according to our own needs.

Lower-like colors—pink, rose, blue, yellow, lavender, light and vivid greens, occasionally corse and rich reds, imagine the negligee shown at the left of the picture in any of these lovely colors and you will find yourself deciding as to which one would suit you best. In this model a long close-fitting and plain slip of box-plaited crepe-de-chine is the easiest thing that ever was to slip into. Over it there is a short kimono-like jacket—a slip-over garment—with scalloped edge buttonhole with embroidery silk, and small sprays of embroidered flowers scattered over it. It could hardly be simpler—or prettier.

The negligee at the right has a straight under-slip of charmeuse satin with a long-draped overgarment of the same material edged with lace. The material is gathered at the shoulders and sides and arranged in a drape that widens at the hips and narrows toward the bottom. It has the effect of a long coat with ribbon that ties across the front below the waistline, to confine it, but this is a one-piece negligee easy to get into and as pretty as any one can ask for. Autumn brides will be interested in these fine examples of American designing and so will every other woman who has eyes to see them.

Hats That Interpret Autumn

If, in all the varied styles in millinery, there is a single point in common, it is that fall hats interpret the season. They are rich, brilliant, generously trimmed, many of them superb and unusual, and they are refined. Three ultra-smart examples pictured in the group above may have been selected as exponents of the mode, but three hats selected at random would probably convey the same ideas. The hat at the right of the group is made of black satin ribbon, bordered with gold. The barette is mounted to a band of plain satin ribbon, overlaid with two rows of gold-edged ribbon, and this same ribbon makes the pointed pompadour at the left. Worn with this hat is an overblouse of silk voile made to match the hat by the addition of a collar and wide band of the embroidered ribbon. This hat might be named October.

A pretty velvet turban, with a hint of India in its shape and style, is of velvet that makes itself a background for clusters of grapes. These are made of satin, but then grapes of many varieties on autumn hats and metal tissues account for some of the most beautiful. Sometimes the colors are like those of nature and often they are entirely different. Besides the grapes a generous trimmer has allowed this rich turban a bow of narrow gold ribbon near the back. A hat and a veil of equal importance, at the left of the group, is to be classed among the unusual and pleasing things that the autumn shopper is always running into. Perhaps this veil was made for the hat, or the hat was made for the veil, or any rate the design shows the veil to be inseparable. This small turban has a crown of taupe brown velvet and a brim of plain dark brown velvet that supports the veil. Straps of velvet, fastened down over the veil at the front, back and sides. Veils and hats have had their fortunes cast together on many a hat this fall, where each would fall without the other, but to gether they make a success.

Nothing takes the joy out of life quicker than a disordered liver or waste-clogged bowels. Don't stay sick, officious, headachy, constipated. Save the Babies
INFANT MORTALITY is something frightful. We can hardly realize that of all the children born in civilized countries, twenty-two per cent., or nearly one-quarter, die before they reach one year; thirty-seven per cent., or more than one-third, before they are five, and one-half before they are fifteen!
We do not hesitate to say that a timely use of Castoria would save many of these precious lives. Neither do we hesitate to say that many of these infantile deaths are occasioned by the use of narcotic preparations. Drops, tinctures and soothing syrups sold for children's complaints contain more or less opium or morphine. They are, in considerable quantities, deadly poisons. In any quantity, they stupefy, retard circulation and lead to congestions, sickness, death. There can be no danger in the use of Castoria if it bears the signature of Chas. H. Fletcher as it contains no opiates or narcotics of any kind.
Genuine Castoria always bears the signature of Chas. H. Fletcher

MOVE TO REVISE CALENDAR
Advocates of Change Will Bring the Matter to Attention of League of Nations.
One of the first projects to be laid before the League of Nations, when it gets ready for new business, is one to revise the calendar and make it uniform throughout the world. Bureau officials of the United States, Switzerland and Great Britain got into touch with church officials before the war on the subject of calendar revision, and have kept up consideration of the matter since. Church leaders say an agreement has been reached and a uniform report is nearly ready to go to the league.
The calendar has not been revised before because of objections from the churches to dates for the great religious feasts. These objections are said to be removed. A fixed date for Easter, the adding of a thirteenth month, the making of every week begin with a Sunday and having exactly 28 days in each month—these are the main features agreed on. Church people favoring the revision say that if the league itself cannot act, it can designate a calendar congress to do so, to sit at Geneva.

Careless Driver Apparently Unable to See Wherein He Had Been Given Any Help.
The horse had run away, and was tangled up in the wire fence at the side of a muddy road. Its half-witted owner had kicked and sworn and tried to lift the animal till he was out of sorts and covered with mud.
A well-groomed man came along, took in the situation, and suggested: "Spring the fence back, then he can get his feet free."
The owner of the horse did as he was told. "Now give him a cut with the whip and he'll get up himself."
This the owner also did. Then he looked at the horse, up and ready for travel, looked at himself, covered with mud, and looked at the immaculate gentleman in the road. Wrath filled his soul.
"Well, he grumbled, "thank you just as much as if you'd helped me."

Middle Aged Women
Are Here Told the Best Remedy for Their Troubles.

Freemont, O.—"I was passing through the critical period of life, being forty-six years of age and had all the symptoms incident to that change—heat flashes, nervousness, and was in a general run down condition, so it was hard for me to do my work. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound was recommended to me as the best remedy for my troubles, which it surely proved to be. I feel better and stronger in every way since taking it, and the annoying symptoms have disappeared."—Mrs. M. GODDARD, 925 Napoleon St., Fremont, Ohio.
