PINKNEY DOES HER-SELF PROUD FRIDAY

A Howling Mob There Assaults Chelsea Football Players.

Chelsea has changed its opinion in regard to its feelings towards Pinkney, and has decided that instead of being a village with lofty ideals and peopled with gentlemen, it really is a nest of roughnecks and people who do not wish to see fair play.

Friday afternoon, the Chelsea high school football team was scheduled to play Pinkney high. According to the agreement between the superintendents of the two schools, only high school students were to be allowed to play, but the Pinkney superintendent fell down sadly in the manner of living up to the agreement.

Chelsea made a touchdown in the first few minutes of play, and at the beginning of the second quarter several new faces were seen in the Pinkney lineup.

Chelsea immediately protested and the game was stopped and proof was asked to show that the new players were high school students, which was not forthcoming, and the Chelsea boys refused to continue the game.

The entire Chelsea crowd, both players and rooters, started for their automobiles, when a mob of Pinkneyites surrounded them and proceeded to maltreat both players and their friends. Ernest Mohrlock was knocked down and was literally kicked by the ruffians and his nose was broken. Others of the party were struck and kicked, and the young ladies of the company suffered indignities.

Sunday, John Kalmbach, M. J. Dunkel, Supt. McCloskey and Howard Brooks drove a Pinkney and discovered considerable testimony to show that the plan had been to run in "ringers" who would fight.

The matter will be laid before the authorities of both Washtenaw and Livingston counties and something will be doing before long.

Fair Price Committee Appointed.

Prosecuting Attorney Jacob Fahrner has named a "fair price" committee to ascertain how much profiteering is going on in this county and what is meant by "fair prices." H. E. Brown, Barbara Dewey and Mrs. Brown of Ann Arbor and Mrs. Hatch of Ypsilanti are members of the committee. The committee is authorized to make such investigations and price setting as it may deem proper. The prosecutor will act.

Congregational Church Raises Money.

In 1917 the National Council of the Congregational church appointed a committee of one hundred, mostly laymen, to raise a fund of five million dollars for aged and disabled ministers. This committee worked out a carefully planned campaign and representatives are now visiting the Congregational churches in order to raise the money. The raising of this fund is to be completed by 1920 and is part of the Forward movement program of the Congregational church.

Mr. E. C. Young, of Cleveland, Ohio, spoke in behalf of this cause at the local Congregational church last Sunday morning. The quota for the Chelsea society was set at $1,000, but at this time the society has subscribed $1,510. The church is true to the spirit of this community, which never does things by half.

Auto Owners Will Pay Higher Rates.

Announcement has been made of radical changes in motor car registration fees for 1920, from the office of the secretary of state at Lansing.

According to the new rates, both pleasure cars and commercial cars, this latter class including passenger cars, ambulances and trucks, will be charged at a higher rate than formerly. In the case of pleasure cars, the old rate was 25 cents per horse-power and 25 cents per hundredweight. This rate has been changed for 1920, so that pleasure cars will be charged the same rate per horsepower, but 35 cents per hundredweight. For example, a small car which cost $9.25 to register and license this year, will cost $10.75 for 1920.

A light truck, to follow with the same example, which cost $5.70 to license this year, will cost $11.10, basing the figures on the supposition that light truck weighs 1600 pounds.

Heretofore, commercial cars were charged 15 cents per horse power and 15 cents per hundredweight, but the new fee regulation makes the rate 25 cents per horse power and 25 cents per hundredweight.

A Regular Visitor.

"Shuf, shuf, shuf, shuf." Jimmie McCormick is once more in town, much to the perturbation of the supervisor. Time was when Jimmie was a tall, up-standing young fellow, but now it is hard for the old fellow to get about, even with the aid of his cane. He is stopping at his old apartment in the village lockup, and makes his daily pilgrimages about the village. Jimmie is not a resident of Chelsea, but stops at Elise, in Wayne county most of the time, and how he manages to get out here so frequently causes the supervisor considerable thought, as he will soon be called upon to get Jimmie a railroad ticket. The small boys get considerable sport out of trying to bother him, but there is always a twinkle in his eye, even though he raises his cudgel as though to strike them. It surely seems as though each visit would be Jimmie's last, but he always turns up smiling.

George A. Miller.

Word was received in Chelsea Friday morning of the sudden death of George A. Miller, of Chicago.

Mr. Miller was born in Chelsea, March 31, 1864, and spent the earlier part of his life in Lyndon township. For the past twenty-one years he has resided in Chicago, where he made for himself a host of friends.

He was united in marriage to Sarah Fredericks Gihney of Chicago, in August, 1912, and was bereft of his wife two years later.

He is survived by his mother, Mrs. George Miller, four brothers, E. J. Miller, Louis J., and John P. Miller of Chicago, and Charles W., of Ithaca, Michigan, and five sisters, Sr. M. Ignatius, O. S. D., St. Clair, Mich., Mary J., Margaret E. Anna T. and Lena J., and one niece, Josephine M. Miller of Chelsea.

The funeral was held Monday at 10 a. m., from St. Mary church, Rev. Fr. Van Dyke officiating. Interment in the family lot in Mt. Olivet cemetery.

He was a member of the Knights of Columbus, Catholic Order of Foresters, Holy Name Society, St. Joseph's Sodality and A. A. of S. E. & E. R. A. of A.

The out of town friends who attended the funeral were Mrs. M. J. Condon, Miss Powell and Frank Quintan of Detroit, Mrs. J. F. Quintan, Miss Margaret Quintan, J. P. Foster, Miss Ida Fennell of Ann Arbor, Mr. and Mrs. D. E. Hoey and G. P. Gorman of Dexter.

Every census has disclosed the fact there are more men in the United States than women.

AUTOMOBILE WRECK CLAIMS A VICTIM

Former Chelsea Girl Meets Death When Automobile Skids.

Mrs. B. M. Burbank, of Detroit, 32 years of age, daughter of Fred Gilbert of Chelsea, was instantly killed in an automobile wreck about six miles east of Ypsilanti, Sunday night.

Mrs. Burbank drove to Chelsea Friday to get some canned fruit at the homes of her sisters, Mrs. F. C. Mensing and Mrs. Fred Gentner, and other produce which she was to take to her home.

After dinner, Sunday, at the home of her brother, Howard Gilbert, of Garfield street, Mrs. Burbank and Clarence Gilbert drove to Ann Arbor, where Mr. Burbank was to meet her. The difference in time used in Detroit confused them and Mr. Burbank, thinking that she had driven through to Detroit, returned home. After waiting in Ann Arbor for some time, Mrs. Burbank telephoned to her husband, who went to Ann Arbor a second time.

At 9 o'clock they started for Detroit. Near Sheldon another automobile approaching from the east cast its blinding light into the eyes of Mr. Burbank. Rain had been falling and the road was slippery, and when he applied his brakes his machine skidded and was struck by the other machine, throwing the Burbank auto into the ditch, pinning the occupants down. The driver of the other car did not stop.

Passing automobilists discovered the machine in the ditch and went to the assistance of the passengers. Mr. Burbank was taken out and when Mrs. Burbank was removed it was found that she had been instantly killed.

Her remains were taken to Detroit, where the funeral was held at 10 o'clock Wednesday morning, Rev. P. W. Dierberger, of Chelsea, conducting the services.

Mr. and Mrs. Burbank were married last Easter Sunday. Mr. Burbank is sales manager for the Gordon Motor Co., of Detroit.

Besides her husband, Mrs. Burbank is survived by her father, two brothers, two sisters and one half-brother.

Boys and Girls' Clubs.

The boys' and girls' summer club projects consisting of pig clubs, poultry clubs, garden clubs, canning clubs and other clubs have been completed. There have been many 100 per cent clubs that have turned in their reports and stories. The reports are all complete, interesting and instructive.

Thirty-three clubs were organized and they have completed their work with a very high percentage of finishers. Washtenaw county will stand high with the rest of the counties in the state in boys' and girls' club work achievements.

The county champions for the different club projects will soon be determined. A committee of three men will be chosen to look over the large pile of reports and determine the winners in the county on their merits. The boy or girl that has a complete detailed report, a good profit and an excellent story will be chosen county champion.

Announcement of the winners, will be given out at the county round-up, which will be held December 6. There will be a banquet at noon served by the ladies at the Methodist church parlors, Ann Arbor.

There will be several prominent speakers, both of boys and girls and adults from the county and state. Under the direction of Mrs. M. Lowber, a pageant will be given by the boys and girls of the Ann Arbor city garden clubs. Several good songs and stunts will be given by the club groups. Prizes and certificates of achievement will be issued to the boys and girls that have been determined finishers. The large loving cup which was won at the state fair by the state champion live stock judging team will be presented to the team.

During the past week Miss Elda Robb, of the state department, and the county club leader have been busy organizing winter club projects, consisting of hot lunch clubs, garment making clubs, handicraft clubs and call clubs. Thirteen clubs have been organized in new communities. The organization of clubs will be continued until all communities that desire club work have been completed.

A heavy concentration on ages ending in five and zero are always reported at a census. The census bureau has made many efforts to overcome this inaccurate tendency on the part of people when stating ages.

GOLD-COIN SCALES A RELIC

Missouri Man Has Device That Was in Daily Use in That State Many Years Ago.

A gold-coin scales of the type so useful to merchants in the middle of the nineteenth century is one of the relics kept by Jeff Davis of Booneville. Modern methods of exchange have rendered the scales useless, but it is in as good condition as it was when his grandfather used it at Cole Neck sixty years ago.

At the time B. B. Brereton set up his little store at Cole Neck, just a half mile north of what is now Clinton City, the pioneers were crossing the plains in search of gold. Gold "sweating" was common. Particles of gold dust were removed from the coin so that its value rather than its appearance suffered. The merchant had to be constantly on the lookout for underweight coins when dealing with such a class of trade.

A pair of scales was bought by Mr. Brereton for this purpose. A brass weight was used in balancing the scales to get the exact weight of the coin. But the weight test was not the only one applied. A slot of varying size in each receptacle on the scales. The slots were for the $1, $2.50, $3, $5, $10 and $20 coins. Coins failing to fit exactly in their respective slots were rejected.—Booneville (Mo.) Republican.

Perfects Radio Device.

According to a leading Norwegian newspaper, Engineer Hermod Peterson has patented a device for the production of electrical current for radio telegraphy.

The electricity is received by an accumulator, which releases it at certain intervals. The system is sparkless, and the sounds are clearer than in the older inventions, says the Scientific American. The clearness of sound depends upon the regularity of the current, and with this system the current is released with a mathematical exactness.

The device has further advantages in that it is cheaper, simpler and more durable than those now in use. If the claims for this invention prove well founded, it is thought that it will mark a distinct step in advance of what has so far been accomplished in this line, and hence its possibilities are creating considerable interest in the radio world.

Mt. Clemens—Before a jury of farmers in circuit court, about 20 witnesses testified against Henry Johnson, accused of having murdered Mrs. Ida Artist at her home in Romeo six weeks ago. One witness identified a cap said to belong to Johnson, found on a bed in the murdered woman's room. Johnson's former roommate identified a letter written to him by Johnson declaring: "I will not allow any woman to kill me and I will murder any woman doing so." Johnson was found guilty of the murder.

DAIRY FACTS

SCHOOLS TAKE UP DAIRYING

Bulletin Published by Department of Agriculture Has Twelve Lessons on Subject.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

To add impetus to the teaching of dairying in elementary rural schools Bulletin No. 783, just published, contains 12 lessons on the subject. With each lesson are given helpful directions for home projects that may be worked out with profit to every community and with real educational value to pupils. Practically all the subject material for class use and instructions for home projects can be found in available bulletins either free or at small cost, but teachers and pupils are advised to use additional sources of information, such as the printed matter from dairy cattle breeders' associations, books on dairying, and farm and dairy journals.

According to the bulletin teachers of agriculture are agreed that instruction on that subject should follow certain definite lines—it should be seasonal, be local in its interests, meet the needs of the pupils, and be practical. The home-project plan affords the best means of meeting these conditions, especially the practical side, for by it the pupil works out for himself the principles and theories taught in the classroom.

The term "home project," applied to instruction in elementary and supplementary agriculture, includes as requisites a plan for home work and related instruction in agriculture at the school. It should be a problem new to the pupil; the parent and pupil should agree with the teacher on the plan; some competent person must supervise the home work; detailed records of time, method, cost, and income must be honestly kept; and a written report based on the record should be submitted to the teacher.

One of the means by which teachers may learn the dairy interests of the district is a dairy survey. The pupils may assist in obtaining this information, but first-hand knowledge obtained by the teacher will be valuable. This survey should tell the kind of farm (crop or stock), purpose of dairy cows (commercial or home use), breeds of cattle, feeds raised, feeds purchased, milk records kept, how milk is tested, how milk is disposed of, and dairy conveniences. Information should be tabulated as it is collected. In addition the teacher with the pupils' help should prepare charts showing the points of a typical dairy cow, samples of dairy records showing how they should be kept, directions showing the food value of milk, and drawings showing a section of the model dairy farm, milk house, etc.

The bulletin contains lessons, giving sources of material, on the following subjects: Producing clean milk, care of milk and cream, weighing milk, testing milk, keeping of records and marketing dairy products, profit and loss (good and poor cows), judging and purchasing stock, care in handling of the dairy cow and barn, butter manufacture, food value of milk and its use in the home, making cottage cheese, cooking with milk products, and the use of milk as a supplement to other foods.

Rural Schools Teach How to Select Good Dairy Cows.

tion should be tabulated as it is collected. In addition the teacher with the pupils' help should prepare charts showing the points of a typical dairy cow, samples of dairy records showing how they should be kept, directions showing the food value of milk, and drawings showing a section of the model dairy farm, milk house, etc.

GOOD RATION FOR DAIRY COW

Ohio State University Recommends Mixture of Ground Corn, Oats, Bran, Gluten and Meal.

A good dairy ration recommended by the dairy department of the Ohio State university is made of the following grains: Ground corn, one part; oats, one part; bran, one part; gluten, one part; cottonseed meal, half a part; linseed oil meal, three-fourths part. Feed one pound of this mixture to each two to four pounds of milk, depending upon the percentage of butterfat. This should be fed in connection with silage, clover or alfalfa hay and either sugar beets or sweet pulp. Soy bean hay is also desirable.

TORPEDOED!

Don't blast your Liver and Bowels, but take "Cascarets."

You men and women who can't get feeling right—who have headache, coated tongue, bad taste and foul breath, dizziness, can't sleep, are listless, nervous and upset, bothered with a sick, gassy, disordered stomach and colds.

Are you keeping your liver and bowels clean with Cascarets, or shocking your insides every few days with Calomel, Salts, Oil and violent pills? Cascarets work while you sleep; they cleanse the stomach, remove the sour, undigested, fermenting food and foul gases; take the excess bile from the liver and carry out of the system all the constipated waste matter and poison in the bowels. Cascarets never gripe, sicken or cause inconvenience and Cascarets cost so little too.—Adv.

Large Audience Mystified

Tries Vainly to Detect Difference Between Voice of Famous Baritone and RE-CREATIONS by Edison's New Phonograph

Those present at the Methodist church recently saw Glen Ellison walk onto the stage. They saw him take his position next to a beautiful cabinet. They saw his lips give voice to the opening lines of Roaming in the Gloaming. Then suddenly his lips were still—but the song kept flowing on.

How came this? They were hearing Mr. Ellison's voice, yet Mr. Ellison was not singing. The entire audience gasped as it slowly realized that it had been unable to distinguish between Mr. Ellison's voice and the RE-CREATION of that voice by the New Edison.

That was the daring test undertaken by Thomas A. Edison. He sought to prove that no difference exists between the voice of the living artist and its RE-CREATION by the New Edison. The musically cultured of Chelsea were invited to pass judgment. No test could have been more exacting.

Glen Ellison made comparison after comparison. The mystified audience tried vainly to catch a difference between the original rendition and its RE-CREATION by the New Edison. No one could tell one from the other.

It was a triumph whole and complete for the New Edison.

The NEW EDISON

"The Phonograph With A Soul"

The instrument used in the test is the regular model which sells for $285 (in Canada, $310). It is an exact duplicate of the Laboratory Model which Mr. Edison perfected after spending one Million Dollars in experi-

The New Edison alone of all phonographs is capable of sustaining this test. Until Mr. Edison knew it would do so he regarded his work as unfinished.

BREVITIES

Brooklyn A short circuit in the Brooklyn bank burglar alarm system furnished a few thrills about an hour after the bank closed Saturday night and brought out the shotgun squad. Miss Jennie Miers was first inside the bank to see what was the matter. — Brooklyn Exponent.

Ypsilanti Deputy Sheriff John F. Connors, who for a number of years has been connected with the sheriff's force, was appointed chief of police of the city of Ypsilanti at the meeting of the city commissioners held last week. Deputy Connors will continue his duties with the sheriff until November 30, his appointment becoming effective December 1.

Ypsilanti Professor Arthur G. Erickson, assistant instructor in mathematics at the Normal college here, has been appointed superintendent of schools for Ypsilanti, to succeed W. R. Arbaugh, who leaves for Detroit to become head of the Detroit-Wayne county educational system. Professor Erickson will assume his duties on December 1.

Unadilla Better education received a well deserved boost from the voters of Unadilla township at the special election last Monday, when they decided to adopt the centralized school system to convert the township from nine school districts of the old order into one consolidated district comprising the entire township. The total number of votes cast was 290, of which two ballots were mutilated and not counted. Of the 288 ballots counted, 193 were in favor and only 85 were against changing. Pinckney Dispatch.

Jackson The Michigan state prison wants 324 men returned to its gates and offers rewards of $21,000 for their return, according to the new reward book, the first in three years, just issued. This book contains photographs and descriptions of the escaped prisoners, numbering 85, and 239 parole violators. Rewards of $50 each are offered for the parole violators and $100 each for the escaped men, with the exception of one offer of $1,000 for the return of Harry Bushnell, charged with murder while serving as a trusty.

Jackson Over two years ago a warrant was made out for John Doe, charged with stealing a quarter of beef from the farm of Hugh D. Sweet, Waterloo, Thursday, Burt McLean of Stockbridge was brought before Justice Stearns to face the charge. He demanded an examination, which was set for December first, with bail fixed at $500, which likely will be furnished. Sweet says someone came to his farm about two years ago last March and killed a heifer in the field, took a quarter of beef from it and left the carcass lying in the field. — Jackson News.

Ann Arbor The University of Michigan is offering highways transportation courses next year to train men to meet the needs of phenomenal expansion in highways improvements and motor transport, upon which the United States is entering. Classes will start January 24 to 31, immediately following the forthcoming highways transport conference at Chicago. A great many men who will attend the conference have made arrangements to come to Ann Arbor for the course. Prof. Arthur H. Blanchard will direct the classes. This is the first course of the kind to be given in any university in the United States.

Jackson The temperate weather prevailing Friday and Saturday is most unusual for this time of the year. Old residents say that ever since the Crouch murder, November 21, 1883, its anniversary night has been marked by the same brand of weather, cold, windy, with mist and sleet storms. Friday night was damp, but not as cold as usual. The Crouch murder has been forgotten by most of the residents of this county, but a few of Jackson's pioneers remember the awful deaths of Jacob Crouch, Mr. and Mrs. Henry White, and Mr. Polley, a cattle buyer who was a visitor at the Crouch home. The crime was committed thirty-six years ago last Friday, but although many persons were brought to trial there was no evidence that would convict any one and the murderer is still unknown. The trial lasted nearly six months and attracted county-wide attention. Jackson News.

Secretary of State Vaughan, in answer to inquiries, has stated that farmers are not required by law to obtain chauffeurs' licenses when coming to town with potatoes. The letter states further that "it has been necessary to place a liberal construction on the term 'chauffeur,' in issuing licenses for the same." Secretary Vaughan says he does not think it was the intent of the legislature to require any person operating his own car for his own use to have a chauffeur's license, but only when carrying passengers or trucking for others for hire.

FLU CAUSED PRESIDENT WILSON'S SICKNESS

Physicians claim that President Wilson is suffering from neurasthenia or nervous exhaustion. This, they claim, is the after effect of an attack of influenza which he had last April, while he was in Paris attending the Peace conference. There are hundreds of thousands of people today who are still suffering some bad effect from last year's attack of influenza.

Doctors are agreed that the Flu is coming back this Fall, and now that cooler weather is here, they are afraid it will break out any time. Even if one recovers from the Flu, the after effects are terrible. The only sure thing to do is to prevent the Flu.

Influenza can be prevented; last year's results prove that. As a preventive for Flu, Turpo has been a pronounced success. Turpo is an effective germicide, combining the old-fashioned remedies of turpentine (which has always been known as the best home germicide), camphor and menthol in a pure mineral base. These ingredients have long been recognized as effective germicides, as well as having really wonderful qualities in relieving colds and congestions. Snuff a little Turpo up the nostrils several times a day, and the Flu germs will have little chance of getting a lodging and breeding place. Many physicians and hospitals use and recommend Turpo.

The fact that there have been cases of "flu" already reported makes it important that you prepare now. Buy a thirty-cent jar of Turpo, while your druggist has a supply on hand, and use as directed. Last year druggists could not supply the demand. Remember that Turpo is a preventive, not a cure for influenza. Take care of yourself.—Adv.

NEWS REVIEW OF CURRENT EVENTS

Treaty and Covenant of League Killed for Present by the Action of the Senate.

BOTH SIDES DISOWN BLAME

Ratification With Modified Reservations May Come at Next Session—Efforts to Avert Coal Shortage Disaster—President Wilson Summons New Industrial Conference.

By EDWARD W. PICKARD.

The treaty with Germany, including the covenant of the League of Nations, is dead for the present so far as the United States is concerned. Everyone knows that, but opinions as to who killed it differ irreconcilably.

The lethal dose administered to the pact in the senate was compounded of stubbornness, desire for revenge, personal pride, partisanship and desire to protect America against the more or less imaginary plots of foreign nations. Who contributed these various elements the reader can tell as well as the writer.

The firmness of the president and his most ardent supporters lasted just a little too long. Otherwise a compromise might have been reached which would have been measurably satisfactory to all except a few irreconcilables—so few that they would have been snowed under. But when Senator Hitchcock took to Mr. Wilson in his sick room the news that Senator Lodge and his followers had adopted the committee list of reservations, the president declared he would pigeonhole the treaty if it were ratified in that shape, and asked the Democratic senators to vote solidly against the ratification. He gave no hint that he would accept any compromise, and the Republicans, with the few Democrats who had stood with them all through the fight, thereupon brought the matter to a final vote at once.

For four and a half hours there were roll calls and parliamentary maneuvers in the course of which Hitchcock vainly tried to get a vote on a mild reservation resolution, but the Republicans were too angry to listen to him. Twice the senate voted on the Lodge resolution of ratification with reservations and twice it was defeated, the first time by 39 to 55 and the second time by 41 to 51. Between these roll calls a vote was taken on Underwood's resolution for unqualified ratification. This was beaten, 38 to 53. On the Lodge resolution 13 Republicans voted in the negative both times. These senators had declared themselves against the treaty and league unreservedly. The mild reservation Republicans could have been captured for a compromise if Mr. Wilson and Senator Hitchcock had started on that line earlier, but as it was Lodge was able to hold them in line throughout.

While the treaty is admittedly dead, it may be brought to life at the regular session which begins Monday, December 1. If President Wilson re-submits it to the senate and shows a disposition to accept modified reservations, it is not unlikely that it will be ratified in such a way that the other powers will acquiesce. The alternative before the senate will be adoption of the resolution introduced by Senator Lodge just before adjournment Wednesday night and referred to the committee on foreign relations with out debate. This declares the state of war between the United States and Germany to be at an end. It requires the concurrence of the house but, according to general practice, no action by the president follows.

Senator Borah, one of the irreconcilables, who wants to keep the United States wholly aloof from the affairs of the rest of the world, predicts that the treaty, with the league covenant included, and with the Lodge reservations somewhat modified, will ultimately be ratified. According to Mr. Hitchcock, none of the reservations are objectionable chiefly because of the language in which they are couched. Advice from London and Paris lead to the belief that if such objections were removed the other great powers would not hesitate to accept the American reservations. They all feel that without the participation of the United States the League of Nations would be a phantom thing, and in the words of General Smuts: "The machinery of the league is wanted to save civilization from dissolving into fragments, from falling into decay. It alone can save tottering Europe."

One London correspondent says most Englishmen with a knowledge of world affairs would not be displeased to see the league plan fail, because they desire an Anglo-Franco-American alliance rather than a league in which every little nation would have equal powers with the great nations.

French officials were disappointed but not surprised by the action of the American senate. They are more interested just now in the fate of the Franco-American defense pact. It is taken for granted that the allied powers will put the Versailles treaty into effect not later than December 1. Before this is done, Germany must sign the protocol to the treaty. The German delegates are objecting to the provision requiring them to make reparation for the warships sunk in Scapa Flow and want to argue the question.

So far the government's legal victory over the striking coal miners has proved but hollow. The union leaders said no court action could compel the men to work, and up to the present they have made good on that proposition. In some fields some mines have resumed operation, but the number is so small that the situation is growing decidedly desperate. Many trains have been cancelled and industries all over the country are becoming alarmed.

When he opened the conference between the operators and the mine union leaders in Washington, Secretary of Labor Wilson told them they must get together. Later Fuel Administrator Garfield laid before the scale committees figures that demonstrated these two things:

That the 60 per cent increase demanded by the miners is unreasonable and impossible.

That the operators have a margin heretofore paid out in excess profit taxes upon which to base an increase of wages to the miners without necessitating a rise in the price of coal to the public.

Dr. Garfield then told the conferees that the country must and should have coal, and while he uttered no threats, it was the belief in Washington that if an agreement were not reached, the government would resort to extreme measures. What those would be can only be conjectured, though it may be it would follow the example of Kansas and North Dakota, where the state has taken over the operation of the mines by proclamation of the governor. Again it can only be guessed how, in such case, laborers would be obtained.

Meanwhile Director General Hines of the railroad administration is doing everything possible to conserve the nation's supply of coal and to distribute it equitably. He has forbidden any unnecessary use of fuel by railroads and industrial plants. Also he has placed a censorship on all news concerning the coal situation because, he said, of false rumors that had been attributed to officials of the administration. Mr. Hines is especially endeavoring to keep as much traffic and industry moving as is possible and is revising freight traffic to reduce unnecessary mileage. The announced priority for allowances and deliveries is being continued. So far there has been no embargo placed on freight.

In Colorado another strike of coal miners was called on Friday by the district president because of allegations that not all the striking miners had been given re-employment. Those who were not taken back, said the operators, were connected with the I. W. W. Hundreds of miners in the New River fields of West Virginia who had returned to work quit again because the operators had discontinued the "check off" system for the collection of union dues.

President Wilson has taken the advice of the group representing the public in the recent fuel industrial conference and has called another, the delegates to which are not divided up into groups. He has invited 17 men to be members of this new conference and has asked them to meet in Washington on December 1. The citizens thus honored are:

Secretary Wilson of the labor department; former United States Attorney General Thomas W. Gregory; former United States Attorney General George W. Wickersham; former Food Administrator Herbert C. Hoover; former Secretary Oscar S. Strauss of the commerce department; Henry M. Robinson of Pasadena, Cal.; Prof. Frank W. Taussig, former chairman of the tariff commission; former Governor Samuel W. McCall of Massachusetts; former Governor Martin H. Glynn of New York; former Governor Henry C. Stuart of Virginia; Dr. W. O. Thompson of Ohio State university; Richard Hooker of Springfield, Mass.; George T. Shide of St. Paul; Julius Rosenwald of Chicago; Owen D. Young of New York city; H. J. Waters of Manhattan, Kan.; Stanley King of Boston.

In his letter of invitation the president says: "It is not expected that you will deal directly with any condition which exists today, but that you may be fortunate enough to find such ways as will avoid the repetition of these deplorable conditions."

The bolsheviks, while still ostensibly trying for peace with the Baltic nations and ultimately with the entente, are scoring decided successes against the Russian armies that oppose them. Kolchak and his Siberian forces have been driven further east and have given up Omsk, the seat of their government, and several other important cities. The soviet commanders claim to have captured 28,000 of Kolchak's men at Omsk. General Denikin also has given ground before the bolsheviks in southwestern Russia. The campaign of General Yudenitch against Petrograd has collapsed and after retreating to Estonia he resigned his command in the effort to avoid internment of his troops by the Estonians. Some 20,000 of his men, it is reported, joined the bolshevik army.

In Vladivostok there was a two days' rebellion headed by General Galda. After bloody combats in the streets and suburbs Galda was wounded and captured and the revolt was quelled.

D'Annunzio pulled off another spectacular stunt, which may or may not mean anything. Leaving Fiume, he proceeded with some warships to Zara where amidst the plaudits of the populace he formally added the Dalmatian coast to the Italian domain. Spalato, he promised, should come next.

The general elections in France resulted in a great rout of the radicals. They lost many seats in the chamber and Clemenceau's victory was so pronounced that his elevation to the presidency of France is considered not unlikely.

Real trouble with Mexico looms as a result of the arrest of Consular Agent Jenkins at Puebla on charges connected with his abduction and ransom. The government warned Mexico that Jenkins must be released and that any further molestation of him would seriously affect the relations between the United States and Mexico, for which the government of Mexico would assume sole responsibility. The Mexicans accused Jenkins of collusion with the bandits who kidnaped him.

At the request of the government the Supreme court is expediting its hearing of the cases for and against the war-time prohibition act and the enforcement law. Arguments began Thursday and the court promised an early decision. In this connection it was officially stated that the president would make no move to rescind the war-time prohibition act until peace had been formally declared. It is now predicted that the "wet" period, if there is any, will be very short.

Secretary of the Treasury Glass has entered the senate as successor to the late Senator Martin of Virginia. Mr. Glass accepted the appointment on the advice of President Wilson. It was said his place at the head of the treasury would be filled by John Skelton Williams, whose appointment as controller of the currency has not been confirmed by the senate.

SOLUTION IS PUT UP TO GARFIELD

OPERATION OF MINES WANT GOVERNMENT TO ASSUME RISK OF RESULTS.

MINERS ACCEPT WILSON PLAN

Administrator to Confer With Other Department Heads Before Replying.

Washington—Refusing to accept proposals made by Secretary of Labor Wilson as a basis for further negotiations, soft coal operators of the central competitive field have rested their case with Fuel Administrator Garfield, whose official approval is necessary to validate any new wage agreement.

The public would not stand for a wage advance above their offer of 15 cents per ton to coal diggers and 20 per cent to day laborers, the operators asserted. They refused to make further overtures or even to reinstate their proposition, unless the government, through the fuel administration assumed responsibility for the added burden to the nation's fuel bill.

Dr. Garfield notified the mine owners that he would not meet their committee, of which Thomas T. Brewster is chairman, until after he has consulted with Attorney General Palmer, Director General Hines and Judge C. B. Ames, assistant attorney general. It was considered likely the negotiations might have to go over until after the cabinet meeting, when, it was expected, a policy to get the mines back into operation before the threatening coal famine brings disaster, will be worked out.

Operators' representatives authorized the statements that in their opinion figures on which Secretary Wilson based his proposals, showing living costs in the coal regions, were partisan. The secretary told the sub-scale committee that he did not speak for the government.

Dr. Garfield is said to have told individual operators that the offer made by them is as large as present conditions justify.

John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers, charged the operators with "criminal delaying" the negotiations through a "conspiracy" on the part of "powerful interests" including both mine owners and others, who "have been openly opposing settlement."

Following a two-hour session of the miners, Mr. Lewis announced the workers had accepted Secretary Wilson's proposal. This proposition, provided for a flat increase in mining rates of 27.12 cents per ton, a flat increase in day wages of $1.55, and an increase in yards and dead work of $1.61 per cent.

Mr. Lewis also announced the miners stood on their counter-proposal for a seven-hour day, a Saturday half-holiday, and reference of all international disputes back to the districts in which they originate for settlement.

Some of the operators, including members of the scale committees of the central competitive field, Mr. Lewis said, have indicated a willingness to make a separate "treaty of peace" without waiting for concerted action. He said he had agreed to sign separate contracts.

BROKEN TRAIN HITS STREET CAR

Towerman Failed to Notice Second Section in Danger Zone.

Grand Rapids—Glenn Wilson, 28 years old, street car conductor, and George Krul, 33, a railroad conductor, were seriously injured, possibly fatally, and nearly a score of passengers received minor hurts when a street car was struck by the second section of a Pere Marquette freight train.

The train, just before it reached the crossing, broke in two sections. When the first section passed through the gates the tower man signalled the car to go ahead. The second section, which was obscured in the darkness, struck the rear vestibule of the street car and turned it around parallel to the railroad track.

Wilson and Krul, who were standing in the vestibule, were badly lacerated by broken glass.

Other passengers going down town for Saturday night shopping were also hurt by glass and thrown against the side of the car.

Disturbs His Bath.
Bay City, Mich.—Telford E. Hill, manager of the Mueller Chleery company's plant, was taking a bath in his home adjoining the plant when a freight car crashed through the house and against the wall of the bathroom. The wall fell and a coal car came to view. There had been two cars standing on the short switch and when the train crew attempted to place more there the cars were sent through the house. No one was injured by the accident.

Innkeeper Evidently Had Implicit Faith in the Punctuality of His Coming Guest.

An old Englishman, James Scott by name, traveled about on business until he was nearly eighty years of age. He became celebrated for his punctuality and methodical habits. Upon one occasion a gentleman stopped at an inn much frequented by Mr. Scott and saw a fine fowl cooking.

"That looks very good," said the hungry guest. "You may serve that for my dinner."

"You cannot have that, sir," replied the landlord. "That is being cooked for Mr. Scott, the traveler."

"I know Mr. Scott very well," said the gentleman. "Is he stopping here?"

"Oh, no, sir," answered the landlord. "But six months ago he ordered a fowl to be ready for him at precisely two o'clock today, and we are expecting him every minute."

"A MILLION DOLLARS IN MY STOCKING—"

Synopsis:—While in the little French town of Vevay, where the "staid, proper spinster" who tells the story is spending a vacation, she is asked to allow a young girl, Claire de Raveland, to be her companion back to the United States. Although forming an attachment to the girl, the heroine takes a dislike to Monsieur de Raveland, Claire's father, and declines. On the boat she meets Claire in the care of a casual acquaintance, Mrs. Delario, whom she had met while each was purchasing a pair of slippers, exactly alike, which figure largely in subsequent events. When they reach New York, where Claire was to have been met by her mother, the latter does not appear, and Claire perforce goes to Mrs. Delario's home. In the confusion of the custom house, the spinster carries off one of Mrs. Delario's slippers. Through that happening she learns later that some one unknown to her has been in her flat. Calling on Mrs. Delario, that lady shows her some remarkable gems, believing them to be rubies, but which are really blood-red diamonds, and easily worth a million dollars. Mrs. Delario admits the gems were embezzled, but offers no explanation. While they are talking, a pounding on the door throws them into consternation.

CHAPTER IV.

The Wicked Flee.

I confess I was frightened when I thought of the diamonds and only two women alone in the house—apparently—to guard them, but Mrs. Delario was terrified.

"These stones"—she looked about the room despairingly. "Where can I hide them? And we two women alone in the house—"

Again the ring—a long, long rattle; whoever it was meant to get in. Followed a pounding on the door.

Mrs. Delario, though deathly white, was now composed and ready to meet the emergency, whatever it was. Mechanically she slipped the elastic over the box and rose.

"I'll go to the door," she decided. "It's better to see who it is, anyway. Perhaps it's only a district messenger. If it isn't—if it should be officers—they might break in the door."

And with that she whisked up her skirt and tucked the box down into her stocking.

I had risen and was preparing to follow her out, feeling she might need me, but she turned and said for me to wait behind the door out of sight and listen.

She left me. I heard the front door open just as the pounding began again. She asked, "What is it?" and a man's voice answered, "Does Eugene Delario live here?" She said he did, and demanded what was wanted of him. The man's voice said, "I must see him at once."

And then, to my amazement, I heard her tell the man, "I'm sorry, but you can't—tonight; he's sick in bed."

"I rather think I can see him, then," was the retort. "And I will."

There followed, well, not quite a scuffle but a very active shuffling of feet, and the man pushed his way into the house in spite of her, pushing her aside from the door, which he shut with a bang and a "Now, then." Sententious began to "tick-toe" down my spine.

"In which room is the young man sick?" demanded the voice.

"I tell you you can't see him—I refuse to let you go upstairs. What right have you forcing yourself into my house this way and demanding to see my sick son?" she asked angrily.

"Now, lady, be reasonable and I'll show you," he replied in a tone meant to conciliate. I heard a rattle of paper.

"A warrant!" she gasped.

"That's what," he said. "Want to see my badge?" There was a slight rustle as I assumed he showed it to her, for she gasped, "An officer—a warrant!" and seemed to sway on the spot.

"Now, lady," he began, still conciliating, "you don't want to make any more trouble for yourself than's necessary. I got to do my duty—and it isn't always pleasant—but I got to do it. It ain't my fault if I got to arrest your son—I ain't doing it to spite you, nor him—he didn't steal any diamonds off me, you know."

"Steal any diamonds?" she interrupted. "He never stole a diamond in his life. Neyer!"

I fancied the man shrugging as he answered, "So much the better for him if he didn't steal them—I'm sure I hope for your sake he didn't, though it looks bad, him trying to sell them to the very parties that knew all about them."

"Oh, and I could see her clinging to the banister. She was evidently at a loss what to do.

I understood in a flash what had happened—this man or an accomplice was the one who had followed her son home from the Maiden Lane dealer's yesterday. He evidently thought he was making headway, for he went on.

"Now see here, lady, you take it from me—the parties that are pressing this case don't care for publicity any more than do you—or your son does. It would ruin him if it got into the papers, to say nothing of his service time for it—"

"Serving time! My God!" broke from her involuntarily.

"Of course he'll serve time if it's proved on him," her visitor assured her.

She gave a sob. I was wrought up. It was all I could do to keep my place and not join her and help defy the man; but his next words held me listening.

"If he'll give back the stones he showed yesterday, or tell where he's taken them, I can get this settled off for you."

court and nobody will be the wiser—if you don't say anything. See?"

"It isn't true!" she cried. "My son never stole a cent's worth of anything in his life."

"Here's the warrant."

"Arrest him if you will, but the law will prove him innocent—if there's law in the land, and I sometimes doubt it."

"But hadn't you better talk to him first? It won't hurt to hear what he has to say, and if it can be arranged on the quiet—"

"I shall not talk to him! Do you think I would insult my son by asking him if he stole diamonds?"

Followed a silence. Then the man's voice, "Well, if you won't I suppose you won't. But you'll regret it."

"I won't."

"Then I'll have to do it myself. Which room is he sick in?"

"The third floor back—but you can't go up," and she planted herself across his way.

I saw his hand reach out and remove hers from the banister and as he passed her she sank on the lowest step and began to sob. I may have counted six when Mrs. Delario whipped into the scene room, my coat on her arm.

"Quick—you must go," she whispered. "You must hide my diamonds."

I gasped and asked, "How?"

"While he's upstairs trying to get into a locked room."

She was dragging my coat on my arms and saying at the same time, "It's a fake—that man isn't an officer. I knew it was coming—I saw it clairvoyantly when Eugene came home. Hurry—hurry!"

She cut me short. "You can! He doesn't know you're here—he didn't see you. You can get away while he's breaking in the door and looking for Eugene. I'll have time to telephone the police. Only go—go immediately—before he sees you."

She whisked up her skirts as she spoke, pulled the box out of her stocking and thrust it in my hands. "I can't," I felt I simply couldn't take the responsibility.

"But they're mine—I swear to God they're mine," she cried, evidently thinking the man's words had convinced me that the stones were stolen.

"I tell you you can't see him—I refuse to let you go upstairs. What right have you forcing yourself into my house this way and demanding to see my sick son?" she asked angrily.

"Now, lady, be reasonable and I'll show you," he replied in a tone meant to conciliate. I heard a rattle of paper.

"A warrant!" she gasped.

"That's what," he said. "Want to see my badge?" There was a slight rustle as I assumed he showed it to her, for she gasped, "An officer—a warrant!" and seemed to sway on the spot.

"Now, lady," he began, still conciliating, "you don't want to make any more trouble for yourself than's necessary. I got to do my duty—and it isn't always pleasant—but I got to do it. It ain't my fault if I got to arrest your son—I ain't doing it to spite you, nor him—he didn't steal any diamonds off me, you know."

"Steal any diamonds?" she interrupted. "He never stole a diamond in his life. Neyer!"

I fancied the man shrugging as he answered, "So much the better for him if he didn't steal them—I'm sure I hope for your sake he didn't, though it looks bad, him trying to sell them to the very parties that knew all about them."

"Oh, and I could see her clinging to the banister. She was evidently at a loss what to do.

snatched off her thin slipper, and the last glimpse I got of her as I turned the corner showed her ramming it into the crack of the front door to hold it open.

What she did next she told me later, but I may as well put it in here. I was out of sight when the man blustered up to where she stood in the open door, looking up and down the street for somebody to call.

"You may as well tell that young man of yours," growled he, "that if he don't let me in I'll break the door in."

"I don't think you will," she said calmly. "Now go."

"Not till I get what I came for," he said, taking hold of the door and trying to shove it and finding it mysteriously wedged open.

"Well, you'll not do that this trip," said she with spirit. "He isn't there—and he wasn't there. He was in the sitting room at the end of the hall—"

she pointed to the scene room, the door of which he could see stood open—"and while you were trotting upstairs he ran out for a policeman. If you don't believe it wait and see for yourself."

At that the fellow seized her arm and tried to pull her back into the house and shut the door, but found it still wedged open, he could not see with what, as he was on the inside. But the moment he laid hands on her she began to scream, "Help! Help!" as loudly as ever she could.

He didn't wait to see what happened—as a matter of fact nothing happened, for there wasn't a soul in sight on West End avenue when she screamed.

"I'll have a squad of police here myself to 'help' you if that's what you're after," he lunged back as a parting threat when he backed down the steps and disappeared around the same corner that had just hidden me. But that was the last she heard of him that night. She pulled her slipper out of the crack and shut the door. Then she went all to pieces and had a cry.

As for me, when I left the house, I crossed the street, turned south and into the first cross-street I came to. It seemed as though everybody knew I had a million dollars in my stocking and was just waiting to nab me, or hand me over to the next policeman.

But as nothing happened I became a little more coherent, though I had the feeling I was being followed all the time, yet I couldn't spot my shadow. My whole energy of mind was bent on giving my pursuer the slip. When at last I spied a subway station I jumped off the car, made a bolt of it for the stairs, rushed past the ticket chopper, throwing a nickel into his box, boarded a train that fortunately proved to be a north-bound express; got off at the next station and took a local; got out and took another express and got on for good when the guard bawled, "Hudd'n-forty-five," walked round the block where I live, and when there wasn't a living soul in sight ducked into the front door of my apartment house.

The elevator was rattling down from upstairs but I didn't wait for it. I tipped up the stairs, the descending elevator drowning the sound of my steps. I let myself in, put up the chain-bolt and took a long breath. Then my knees suddenly crumpled up under me and I went all to pieces in a heap.

It was almost two o'clock before I found strength enough to address, and I was so dazed I could hardly get my clothes off. While I was doing it I had brief thoughts of keeping on my stockings and taking the diamonds to bed with me; but I decided no—there's a limit to one's obligations in a case like this; if burglars come to burgle—and have you ever noticed how very near a burglar feels when you have a million dollars in the house?—I'll let them burgle. I'll not help, but I'll not hinder; life is too uncertain at its best. So I set the box on the edge of the dining room table, conveniently, where burglars who were looking for just such a shabby little box filled with diamonds couldn't fail to see it the instant they flinched the front door off its hinges, or got in from the fire escape, or crawled up the kitchen dumb waiter, or came down the gas log into the fireplace.

And then I went to bed—and slept, expecting to find that box exactly where I put it.

"Oh Please Keep Them Just a Little Longer."

before I heard the scene room door open and the rattle of skirts that told me the sinner was leaving.

Mrs. Delario showed her out and then came into the reception room, looking pasty and unnatural. I held the box in my hand, ready for her. When she saw me—and it—I thought she would faint.

"No—no—don't!" she cried, as I attempted to give it to her. She struggled for breath for a few minutes, but regaining her composure she apologized for the way she'd acted, saying that the shock of the night before had left her unstrung and that seeing the stones again in the house, when she thought they were safe, had been too much for her; and then she told me how she'd foiled the thief the night before and had afterward rushed to the telephone and warned her son—who was spending the evening with his fiancée—not to come home, but to go to a hotel under an assumed name. Which she hoped he'd done, but didn't know.

"Oh, if I could only see—if I could only see for myself and my dear ones," she burst out. "Like the doctor, I can help others but not myself," and she sank down on the sofa, murmuring, "If I could only see—if it were some body else—"

"No," she said, "people don't understand—except professionals—that it's almost impossible for clairvoyants to get anything for themselves, or those very near to them. I can't even read for sitters after I come to know them very well. There's something—a kind of a veil—comes up—" she broke off in her explanation and went to the front door and looked out.

"I'm nervous and all unstrung," she excused, coming back and sitting down.

I made a motion to give her the box, only to see her draw back with the same frightened look and protesting gesture.

"You aren't going to desert me, are you?" she cried. "Oh, please—I beg of you—I implore you—keep them just a little longer—"

Trouble follows the trail of the blood-red diamonds.

Christmas Presents You Can Make

Holiday Gift Suggestions for the Handy Needlewoman

By JULIA BOTTOMLEY

For a Little Boy

An "aviator" coat and cap made of chinilla, elderdown, or other thick, soft fabric will make a fine gift for a little boy. The round cap has earflaps attached and the coat is provided with a collar that may be turned up about the face. Such an outfit will fill a youngster's heart with pride and insure him against the cold.

For a Tiny Girl

A bonnet, scarf and muff of satin, trimmed with imitation ermine fur, is enough to make the eyes and heart of any little girl dance at Christmas time. Here is a set that loving mothers or aunts who know how to sew can make without much trouble. Sets for muffs are sold at the department stores. The scarf fastens with a snap fastener at the throat, and the muff is suspended on a silk cord.

Household Finery

A dark-brown willow basket lined with silk and decked out with ribbons and ribbon roses in two colors cannot fail to please its recipient at Christmas time, be she young or old. It is a luxurious bit of furnishing that can be used for many things.

A tray or screen, like that shown in the picture, is made of silk tapestry gold lace and glass, over any suitable foundation. Trays of this kind in sizes that correspond to a dinner plate or smaller look very much at home on a dressing table among other pretty luxuries.

Silk Toilet Bag

Never was anything finer for a Christmas gift than the bag filled with toilet requisites, shown above. It is made of dark silk, having a figure printed on it, and lined with plain satin. The bag closes by means of a silk cord that runs through a casing and emerges, through slashes, in loops at the opposite sides. In the center of the bag a smaller bag incloses a box of face powder and set about this are pockets containing all needed articles for the toilet. Besides, there is a money or jewel bag to be suspended about the neck when the owner of the toilet bag goes traveling.

Gifts for Grandparents

One is a reading glass, which will prove useful, when ordinary spectacles fail to reveal to the eyes that are growing old. Below is something pretty and useful for grandmamma. It is a bouquet made of paper flowers, and in the heart of each flower is something needful for sewing or darning. The center of one flower is a small spool of black thread; in others are loops of tape, pins, needles, hooks and eyes.

Dainty Bonbon Boxes

There are many lovely bonbon boxes among gifts on display in the shops. Here are two of them—a round one covered with handsome cretonne which is glued to the foundation. The box is lined with a plush silk and the lid is edged with gold lace. It contains a small glass dish for holding the candies.

The square box is covered with silk and has a fringe of finely placed chiffon about it. Over this there is a tiny vine of very narrow ribbon formed into leaves with little roses set between them. Gold lace finishes the sides and top of this box and with the ribbon vine, makes an ornament for the center of the top.

Pretty Candle Shades

Both the pretty candle shades shown here are made of crepe paper cut to simulate flower petals. They are only two of many equally pretty designs. Two strongly contrasting colors are used for the shade at the left as red and white, or green and red. Three shades of rose appear in the pretty affair at the right in which small curly petals that look like sweet peas are glued to a plain foundation of pink paper. A gas paper butterfly is perched at the right side of the shade.

Trinkets for the Tree

Birds and butterflies cut from crepe paper are mounted on cardboard cut to conform to them and provided with a bit of wire at the back to fasten them to the Christmas tree.

Candy is converted into figures of Santa Claus by pasting on cotton hair and whiskers and painting eyes and nose with white paint. A cone made of heavy colored paper is decked out with bows of cheap gauze ribbon and all of these homemade trinkets for the Christmas tree appear in the picture above. It is great fun to get ready for Santa Claus by making such things

HOW MRS. BOYD AVOIDED AN OPERATION

Canton, Ohio.—"I suffered from a female trouble which caused me much suffering, and two doctors decided that I would have to go through an operation before I could get well."

"My mother, who had been helped by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, advised me to try it before submitting to an operation. It relieved me from my trouble, so I can do my house work without any difficulty. I advise any woman who is afflicted with female troubles to give Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a trial and it will do us much for them." Mrs. MARY BOYD, 1421 5th St., N. E., Canton, Ohio.

Sometimes there are serious conditions where a hospital operation is the only alternative, but on the other hand so many women have been cured by this famous root and herb remedy, Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, that doctors have said that an operation was unnecessary—every woman who wants to avoid an operation should give it a fair trial before submitting to such a trying ordeal.

If complications exist, write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Mass., for advice. The result of many years' experience is at your service.
