

Ford

THE UNIVERSAL CAR

Don't Depend on Spring Deliveries

Spring deliveries of Ford cars have never been certain, and they should not be depended upon. Demand has always been greater for Ford cars than the supply or production. So, if you would be sure of having a Ford car, buy it now while deliveries are possible. Don't wait—next month is an uncertainty.

Only a limited, specified number of cars has been allotted to this territory. That allotment cannot be increased, because the demand all over the country is greater than the supply or production. Get your order in now, and you will be one of those who is sure of a Ford car out of our allotment.

It's first come—first served. All orders are filled in rotation. So, if you would be forehanded, if you would be certain of having a Ford car when you want it—then you will buy a Ford car now. A signed order with us is your protection. It is the result of the wisdom of looking ahead.

If you buy a Ford car now, don't think you have to "store" it. The Ford is a car made to serve its owner for business or pleasure throughout the entire year. Ford owners have long since come to recognize the fact. It is no longer popular to "lay-up" your car for the winter. Buy a Ford car now, and use it now.

After Three Physicians Failed

Dodd's Kidney Pills Give Prompt Relief

Here's one of the many unsolicited testimonials which have been received from patients who have been relieved of their kidney troubles and have been able to get on with their lives. It is a testimonial from a man who has been suffering from kidney trouble for several years and who has been treated by three different physicians without any result.

Mr. B. A. Burchard of Boston, Ind. writes: "In the year 1913 I was very low with a severe attack of kidney trouble. I had been treated by three different physicians and had given up expecting relief at any moment. But I found out that Dodd's Kidney Pills were the only thing that would help me. I took a box of Dodd's Kidney Pills and took a dose each day and the next day I felt a great deal better. After a week I felt in good luck and I was able to get on with my life. I continued using them for a time and they cured me."

This was four years ago and I can truthfully say I have never yet been troubled with the same disease. A severe attack of kidney trouble is a very serious matter and it is a good idea to get it right at once. Dodd's Kidney Pills are a very good medicine and they are sold in every drug store. If your dealer can't supply you send me in stamps to the Dodd's Medicine Co., Buffalo, N. Y. Tell us the name of your druggist.

Well, Well! "I suppose," said the man who was buying a parrot, "that it will be easier for the bird to learn short words?" "Oh, not at all!" the dealer responded cheerfully. "I've found that they take most naturally to polysyllables."

AS A TONIC

Milwaukee, Wis.—"For the last twenty years I have used Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery at times, as a general tonic, with excellent results. One bottle in the spring and one in the fall are usually sufficient. It has given me added strength and endurance and has greatly aided me in following the strenuous life of a freight handler. I have also found Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets very beneficial and mild in action."

I have been through Dr. Pierce's Invalids' Hotel and Surgical Institute in Buffalo, N. Y., and have found everything as represented. The pictures, their size of their building and the quality of the food. I have been through Dr. Pierce's Invalids' Hotel and Surgical Institute in Buffalo, N. COUGH CURED. Mayville, Mich.—"I feel it my duty to write this. Four months ago I was a very sick man. I had a cough that would not stop and I had lost my appetite. I had been treated by three different physicians and had given up expecting relief at any moment. But I found out that Dodd's Kidney Pills were the only thing that would help me. I took a box of Dodd's Kidney Pills and took a dose each day and the next day I felt a great deal better. After a week I felt in good luck and I was able to get on with my life. I continued using them for a time and they cured me."

A BLOOD PURIFIER. Cured Inflammatory Rheumatism. Jackson, Mich.—"I feel it my duty to write a testimonial in behalf of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, for the sake of suffering humanity. A year ago this past winter I suffered with inflammatory rheumatism. I suffered about five months and then began the use of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. After taking five bottles of the above named medicine, I was completely cured. I have not been troubled with rheumatism since."

As a blood purifier and for the system generally, I have never found a better medicine. —FRANK GUNN, 1801 E. Main St.

CHAPTER XI.—Continued.

I was obliged to spin some sort of a plausible yarn to save appearances, and when I handed him my letter with the diamonds and begged him to mail it for me I knew I was saved. But I have never yet attempted to count up the loss those diamonds cost me!

It was now a little after ten and there was nothing for me to do but wait and shiver. I began to think coherently—to appreciate what monsieur himself was getting into by calling the police or the customs authorities to help him steal Mrs. Delario's diamonds.

And yet I saw perfectly he could do it! Where he had her was that she'd smuggled the stones. He knew it—I knew it—Claire knew it. And if he were bold enough to steal them from her in just that way I wasn't sure but she was timid enough to let him do it.

I suddenly remembered what George had told me about his renting the flat. "Why, the man was here before we were!" I exclaimed. "He took a faster steamer—he was all ready to carry through the job when we landed!"

And with that I suddenly remembered another thing that had entirely slipped my mind: while our baggage was being examined—or rather not examined—and Claire was weeping—and everybody was flying round and asking everybody if he'd seen her mother—an elderly man in a big fur automobile coat, the cellar up about his face and his cap down over his brow—a man with a flowing white beard and flashing, black, beady eyes—a man on crutches—had stood opposite us, watching.

As I looked at him I had the quick impression that there was something wrong about him—that he was there, perhaps, to steal from the incoming baggage in the confusion. The next moment my eye fell on a turquoise-headed slipper—hers or mine, I didn't know—which had fallen down between our suitcases. The old gentleman had his eye on it also.

I saw his hand come out of his big pocket and reach, cautiously, slowly. My own hand shot out and grabbed the slipper from under his nose, and I gave him a double-barreled glare. I hadn't finished the glare when my cousin came hurrying to tell me to be quick, our baggage was through.

I had, as I say, forgotten the whole incident, but—THE MAN IN DISGUISE WAS MONSIEUR-DE RAYE-NOL.

I knew it then—he confessed it later; he had expected to get those diamonds into his clutches while they were actually going through the customs inspection. I bounced out of my chair with one glad whoop—"Eureka!—I have found it!" and pranced to my bedroom. I had the key to the whole puzzle—"one of those slippers!"

When I asked Mrs. Delario that afternoon over the telephone how she got the diamonds through the customs house she replied, "One of those slippers we got in Paris is lost." Those were the words she said; what she really communicated was, "One of those slippers we got in Paris is lost."

The tones of her voice—the significant pauses—had been ignored by me then. But add "in" and drop "is lost" and she answered my question—she told me as plain as plain could be that she had smuggled the diamonds through the customs house "in one of the slippers."

Easy enough! I snatched them from beside my bed. Easy enough—with those high insteps. So that was how she did it!

Claire had been snooping till she found out where the diamonds were—that was what her father sent her over for. But she was not to steal the diamonds herself—the risk of her being caught with the goods was too great—that was her father's job; she was to give the signal—he was to get the stones. And why hadn't her mother met her, unless to create the confusion for Mrs. Delario and me that would make it possible for him to turn the trick? Why had he come over by a faster steamer except to be ready for it?

It's precisely what he did. I learned it all later. He came over ahead of us, passed himself off in disguise, and forged credentials as an Italian government secret service agent tracing an old master that had been recently stolen from one of the Italian museums and that was known to be coming to America—smuggled, of course—"in charge of a certain woman, whom he knew by sight."

To carry out this pose he had already met several incoming steamers and he was prepared to step up to Mrs. Delario, demand to search her baggage and then—once turn of his hand and he could have walked off with her diamonds in his pocket, shed his disguise and let her whistle for them. Instead of that he got a glare from me—one twist of my hand and I had "one of those slippers"—he didn't know which and he didn't dare to speak for fear I'd recognize him!

And thus his whole plot fell to the ground—also all my interesting occult mystery about three rotating slippers that toed the wall of their own accord after they'd been set beat to the wall and then walked out of a locked flat and then came home and hid in my wardrobe.

Monsieur had turned the slippers when he set them down hurriedly—the suggestion of all the other slippers, too to the wall, had been too strong for his memory of three slippers heel to the wall after he had picked them up. That was his one inexcusable blunder in the whole affair—it had set me watching.

But Claire a thief!—or the accomplice of a thief! That high-bred girl—that rare, accomplished child!

I couldn't believe it! I wouldn't believe it. She was acting in good faith whatever she did. Perhaps he had convinced her that the diamonds were hers—that Mrs. Delario was robbing him! I felt it then the boldest, cleverest plot I had ever heard of—I actually admired him for the daring and the intellectuality of it—as a feat it stimulated me.

Yes, once having the key to it in the slipper, I saw the whole plot as plain as day; the one point puzzling me was: how did monsieur know I had the diamonds now? I couldn't make that out at all—not if I believed Mrs. Delario hadn't told him, and I thought she was the only other living person who knew it. Well, I had them, and I'd keep them for all of monsieur until I returned them to her.

At a quarter after six or thereabouts I heard the front bell ring three two's I told Billy Rivers to use as his signal, and I skinned along the hall in my Eureka frame of mind—never once thought of precautions or of calling through first and making sure it was Billy—and flung the door open wide.

As the door flew back I realized the fool thing I'd done; and then without even looking to see who it was I caught the door and tried to shut it again. But he pushed. I looked, then cried "Billy!" and grabbed him by the arm. I knew I didn't deserve it—it ought by the rights of romance to have been the villain.

"Oh, Billy—my deliverer—you dear!" I gasped the minute the door was shut. "I declare you're good enough to kiss!" and with that—I up and did it! Billy was embarrassed. He appraised my salutation at, "Aw—say—" and a sheepish grin; so I felt obliged to add, as I dragged him along the hall, "But I used to kiss you years and years ago."

"Why, so you did—in my Stone age," acknowledged Billy, his tone implying that he'd passed through some sort of civilization since; and with that he thrust a big package in my hands, saying laconically, "Some cats."

"Some cats!" I gurgled, remembering suddenly that I was starving. "Billy—I could kiss you again!"

"Aw—say—" he parried, and grabbed the package and began tearing off the wrapper. "It's so sudden—but thank you ever so much, and for heaven's sake tell me what's happened! I'll bust if you don't!"

"I've run off with a million dollars' worth of diamonds, that's all." For a minute Billy looked as if he thought I'd run off with my senses;

Billy Was Embarrassed.

then he observed in that sootily, condensed tone a very sane young person uses to a respected elder whose mind is wandering:

"I think you'd better eat something—immediately." (Full period here.) It says, "We'll talk about what you when you're feeling more yourself." "Where's your can opener?"

I was so hungry at the sight of food that little panicky pains ran round my insides and up my throat, and I pranced into the kitchen for the opener and plates, leaving Billy to think what he pleased about my mental state. I had the wit, though, to tell him "Bah!" Just at that moment Mrs. Thing-a-majig began her supper-time performance. Little had I ever dreamed that her daily torture of an otherwise ineffective piano would sometimes prove a blessing to me. Billy whispered hoarsely, "What's that? The villain trying to get in?"

I said, "Mrs. Thing-a-majig believes it's music, lucky for us—we can now breathe out loud without fear of the villain. He may be listening at the front door—but he'll hear nothing while she operates."

Billy forked a lot of chicken onto my plate and commanded me to go to it, and I grabbed a roll out of his box and said:

"Billy, he tried to murder me." "He?"

"That man—he was waiting for me with a dagger that night—look here!" I jumped up and got the dagger from my penholder tray—"he dropped it on the floor."

"Gee whizz!" he cried, taking the dagger from me; and then he demanded, "Who?"

"That man—De Rave-nol." "De Rave-nol?—you mean that man in Paris who wanted you to bring the pretty daughter over with you and you wouldn't?"

"Yes—that's the one. He was a diamond thief—that's what he was!" I blew off. "He was in the act of stealing a million dollars' worth of diamonds. And I fooled him!"

"Wow! You did?" "I should say I did! And what's more, I've got the diamonds here—there—behind you in those hydrants."

"Wow!" he whooped, and before I knew what he was doing he was out of his chair, his hand on the glass. "Don't touch them!" I shrieked. "Wow!" he cried, dropping his hand and jumping back. "Do they bite?"

"No—they sting. They prick your very soul. But, Billy—stop wowing—I'm watched."

He sat down with the command, "Divulge the dread secret," and between bites I told him the whole story up to Eureka, and brought in the slipper to prove it.

He was still staring when I got through and asked him, "And now how am I going to get those beastly things out of the house and where am I going to get them to? She doesn't dare to have them at her house."

"Oh, I can take them away and hide 'em, if that's all you want," he answered carelessly.

"It isn't all," I retorted, a bit indignant. "It's only the beginning of a new chapter of misery for the whole of us—it's throwing the responsibility on you without getting me out of the net—it won't save me from being kidnapped and searched and maybe murdered to keep my mouth shut."

Billy nodded at that and said, "You're right."

He took a cigarette out of his case and with a short, "May I?" lighted up and began to blow rings, gazing at them abstractedly. I nibbled crumbs. After I'd stood his silence for half a cigarette, I repeated my question and told him, "We've got to do something right off—now—tonight."

"Of course." He smoked another quarter and threw the cigarette with energy into the empty chicken tin, bouncing up as he spoke.

"What are we going to do?" he gave forth masterfully. "We're going to trap that bold man all by our little own selves—you and I. And we'll give him one nice lesson on stealing diamonds from defenseless women—and threatening you."

"But we've got to hurry," I urged. "I can't live this way much longer—it's simply killing me!"

"Sure," Billy agreed, suppressing a smile at me. "I'm hurrying all I can. I calculate to have your 'mossos' in hand tomorrow night." And he unfolded his plot and I entered into it with fervor. The truth is Billy and I were having the fun of our lives.

The scheme was to decoy monsieur to the flat by a letter from Mrs. Delario indicating where the diamonds were hidden: we barked on his remembering the one place he hadn't searched—the hydrants; and if he got the tip we believed he'd return the moment I went out.

After some discussion Billy and I decided not to take Mrs. Delario into our confidence, not knowing how she'd act in the crisis, which necessitated our initiating her writing. The only sample of her writing we had was her address in my notebook and some titles of books on spiritualism she'd wished me to read. But the sample did us, and the joint literary efforts of myself and Billy produced the following—this purporting to be from me to her:

My Dear Mrs. Delario: Since he searched everything but the bunch of hydrants as I told you over the telephone Tuesday—(this struck me as an exquisitely neat, convincing touch, for his detective must have reported both that I telephoned and the number of the call)—I thought the same place would continue safe in case of a second invasion. I got a fresh bunch, so you will know where if anything happens to me. If so, come and get them at once; break in the flat if you have to.

I am going to try to see you Saturday night for final arrangements if I can slip out without being seen. Expect me between eight and ten. Be sure to be alone so we can talk. I will hold to my promise—nothing to you if you will help me to dispose of guns—drop.

"Guns drop?" was Billy's touch—be-declared that "mossos" would read it "diamonds" sure as anything.

And this, purporting to be from her to him:

Monsieur: I have refused to have anything to do with this matter since I know the truth of the ownership. Under the circumstances, I feel it is foolish to try to hold on. Get the hydrants while she is at my house tonight, and the trouble will be over for everybody.

I typed my own letter with a carbon copy while Billy laboriously produced the one from Mrs. Delario.

The decoy letters we sent to the hotel where monsieur was staying. The rest of our plan was this: Billy was to "steak it" upstairs and get into the flat; I was then to get on my traps, go down in the elevator, telling George I was going out for the evening—sc he'd report it to monsieur; wait in the lower hall for a mythical automobile till George went up with the car, and then creep up the stairs.

"This time tomorrow night I'll present you with a nice 'mossos' in hand cuffs," affirmed Billy confidently.

"Suppose he doesn't come? Or suppose he murders me tonight?"

"Oh, the guns!" He snatched up his overcoat and dived into the pocket. He laid two revolvers on the table, saying cheerfully: "He will come and he won't murder you—not if you keep your wits about you. They're loaded."

He slipped the coat on. He was going in high feather; but my heart sank at the prospect of another night and that man lurking in the house.

"Keep a stiff upper lip—heroism is the greatest diamond robbery of the century!" he bantered. "I'll be here at six tomorrow." He picked up his hat.

"Oh, I'm all right," I returned more chivalantly, feeling suddenly knock-kneed yet determined I'd not let Billy suspect it.

I rang for the elevator, and while the car was rumbling up Billy plied away in the darkness of the stairs back of it. He must have reached only the first turn when I heard him exclaim, "Oh! Excuse me! I never saw you!"

Followed the word, "Pardon!" and I recognized monsieur's voice!

WIFE SUSPECTED IN POISON CASE

SHERIFF SAYS TWO PEOPLE WILL BE UNDER ARREST SOON.

MARRIED HUSBAND'S BROTHER

Witnesses Bring Out Evidence Indicating Plain Case of Murder.

After prolonged examination of three persons now detained in the Mt. Pleasant jail, Sheriff Coon said that important information had been obtained favoring the two suspects to a serious degree and a third in important particulars.

The widow of the murdered man was taken from the jail where she had been in custody to the Blanchard undertaking establishment where she was confronted with the body of her former husband in an effort by the officers to gain additional information.

Swiftly the story of the killing by poison of Henry Donaldson is being told by the several witnesses that have come forward or are being located by investigators. The illness from which he died lasted but nine days, or even less than that, for there was a period between two severe attacks of the mysterious illness in which Donaldson was able to get up and about the little town of Blanchard.

Officers declare there had grown up in the latter months of Henry Donaldson's life a friction between himself and his younger brother, based on the alleged friendship of Elmer "Dyke" Donaldson, who married his brother's widow, 13 days after Henry's funeral, for Mrs. Donaldson. The man now dead is said to have frequently objected to what he believed to be attentions by Elmer to his wife.

About two weeks before he died Henry Donaldson went to Lansing to bring his wife to Blanchard from the home of Mrs. Donaldson's father, William Wright, one of the three people now detained by the Isabella county authorities, the other two being Mrs. Donaldson and her present husband, Elmer Donaldson.

On the journey from Lansing to Blanchard, Henry Donaldson was taken violently ill. He had severe pains in the back followed by semi-paralysis of the legs. After arriving home he recovered sufficiently to get out of bed, but a couple of days later was down again in such a serious condition that Dr. E. Dawson, who was called in, summoned Dr. J. Purden, of Elmore, for consultation. Despite the efforts of the two physicians, the ailing man did not yield to treatment and died in great agony.

So remarkable and unusual were the symptoms that Dr. Dawson was almost at a loss to make out the death certificate. Once during his final illness, Donaldson asked what was the matter with him and Dr. Dawson admits he could not say. And just before he died the sick man turned dark yellow.

HOW IS YOUR EXPRESSION?

Well to Remember Sometimes That a Man is Apt to Be Judged by His Looks.

What kind of expression do you wear habitually? Is it sour, morose, repellent? Is it a mean, stinging, contemptible, uncharitable, intolerant expression? Do you wear the expression of a bulldog, a grasping, greedy, hungry expression, which indicates an avaricious nature? Do you go about among the members of your family with a thunder-cloud expression, with a melancholy, despondent, hopeless look on your face? Do you wear the sunshine expression which radiates good cheer and hope, which indicates a feeling of good will and of helpfulness? These questions are asked by a keen student of nature, writing in a recent publication.

Do you stifle and look happier when you approach them, or do they shrink from you and feel a chilly, rootless sensation come over them as they see you approach? It makes all the difference in the world to you and to those whom you influence, what kind of expression you wear.—The Continent.

Believes People Desire Ratification.

"I do not believe that this is what the people of this country wish or will be satisfied with. Personally, I do not accept the action of the United States as the decision of the nation. I have asserted from the first that the overwhelming majority of the people of this country desire the ratification of the treaty and my impression is that effect has recently been confirmed by the unmistakable evidences of public opinion given during my visit to seventeen of the states."

"I have endeavored to make it plain that if the senate wishes to say what the undoubted meaning of the league is, I shall have no objection. There can be no reasonable objection to interpretations accompanying the act of ratification itself. But when the treaty is acted upon, I must know whether it means that we have ratified or rejected it."

"Submit Treaty to People."

"We cannot rewrite this treaty. We must take it without changes which alter its meaning, or leave it, and then, after the rest of the world has signed it, we must face the unthinkable task of making another and separate kind of treaty with Germany."

CHIEF EXECUTIVE AND W. J. BRYAN CLASH ON LEAGUE

Sharp Differences of Opinion May Result in Split in Democratic Party.

WILSON FOR POPULAR VOTE

Strongly Advocates That the People Should Cast Their Ballots on Peace Treaty—"Commoner" Would Compromise.

Washington, Jan. 8.—A direct, sharp difference of opinion between President Wilson and William J. Bryan over whether the League of Nations should be made an issue at the coming election marked the Jackson day deliberations of the Democratic party chiefs.

President Wilson, in his message read to the diners, said that the "clear and single way out" was to submit the question to the voters as "a great and solemn referendum."

Mr. Bryan held that the Democratic party could not go before the country on the issue, because it involved a delay of fourteen months, and meant success only if the Democrats captured a two-thirds majority of the senate.

President Wilson's Letter.

Congratulating the party upon the opportunity offered to be of service to the country in the matter of the League of Nations, inasmuch as its "ideas best fit it for the task of leadership in such a work," the chief executive wrote practically as follows:

"The United States enjoyed the spiritual leadership of the world until the senate of the United States failed to ratify the treaty by which the belligerent nations sought to effect the settlements for which they had fought throughout the war."

"It is inconceivable that at this supreme crisis and final turning point in the international relations of the whole world, when the results of the great war are by no means determined and are still questionable and dependent upon events which no man can foresee or count upon, the United States should withdraw from the concert of progressive and enlightened nations by which Germany was defeated and all similar governments (if the world be so unhappy as to contain any) warned of the certain consequences of any attempt of a like iniquity, and yet that is the effect of the course the senate of the United States has taken with regard to the treaty of Versailles."

"We Are Still at War."

"Germany is beaten, but we are still at war with her, and the old stage is reset for a repetition of the old plot. It is now ready for the resumption of the old offensive and defensive alliances which made settled peace impossible."

"Without the covenant of the league of nations there may be as many secret treaties as ever, to destroy the confidence of governments in each other, and their validity cannot be questioned. None of the objects we professed to be fighting for has been secured or can be made certain of without this nation's ratification of the treaty."

World Peace Depends on U. S.

"The question is whether this country will enter and enter wholeheartedly. If it does not do so the United States and Germany will play a tone hand in the world. The maintenance of the peace of the world and the effective execution of the treaty depend upon the whole-hearted participation of the United States. I am not stating that as a matter of power. The point is that the United States is the only nation which has sufficient moral force with the rest of the world to guarantee the substitution of discussion for war. If we keep out of this agreement, if we do not give our guarantee, then another attempt will be made to crush the new nations of Europe."

Believes People Desire Ratification.

"I do not believe that this is what the people of this country wish or will be satisfied with. Personally, I do not accept the action of the United States as the decision of the nation. I have asserted from the first that the overwhelming majority of the people of this country desire the ratification of the treaty and my impression is that effect has recently been confirmed by the unmistakable evidences of public opinion given during my visit to seventeen of the states."

"I have endeavored to make it plain that if the senate wishes to say what the undoubted meaning of the league is, I shall have no objection. There can be no reasonable objection to interpretations accompanying the act of ratification itself. But when the treaty is acted upon, I must know whether it means that we have ratified or rejected it."

"Submit Treaty to People."

"We cannot rewrite this treaty. We must take it without changes which alter its meaning, or leave it, and then, after the rest of the world has signed it, we must face the unthinkable task of making another and separate kind of treaty with Germany."

"If there is any doubt as to what the people of the country think on this vital matter, the clear and single way out is to submit it for determination at the next election to the voters of the nation, to give the next election the form of a great and solemn referendum, a referendum as to the part the United States is to play in completing the settlements of the war and in the prevention in the future of such outrages as Germany attempted to perpetrate.

No Moral Right to "Retreat."

"We have no more moral right to refuse now to take part in the execution and administration of these settlements than we had to refuse to take part in the fighting of the last few weeks of the war, which brought victory and made it possible to dictate to Germany what the settlements should be."

"The world has been made safe for democracy, but democracy has not been finally vindicated. All sorts of crimes are being committed in its name, all sorts of preposterous pervasions of its doctrines and practices are being attempted."

"This, in my judgment, is to be the great privilege of the democracy of the United States, to show that it can lead the way in the solution of the great social and industrial problems of our time, and lead the way to a happy settled order of life as well as to political liberty."

"The program for this achievement we must attempt to formulate, and in carrying it out we shall do more than can be done in any other way to sweep out of existence the tyrannous and arbitrary forms of power, which are now masquerading under the name of popular government."

MR. BRYAN'S POSITION.

William Jennings Bryan, in that part of his address which had to do with the party's position on the League of Nations, said:

"A democratic president was the spokesman of the United States in holding out to a war-torn world the hope of universal peace, and he brought back from Paris the covenant of a League of Nations that provides means for settling international disputes without a resort to force. He did the best he could, and succeeded better than we had any right to expect, when we remember that he fought single-handed against the selfish interests of the world."

"The Republican party, in control of the senate, instead of ratifying at once, or promptly proposing changes, that it deemed necessary, has flouted while civilization has been threatened with conflagration. It could have adopted its reservations as well have months ago as later, but it permitted endless debates while suffering humanity waited."

Compromise or Issue at Polls.

"The Democratic plan has been rejected, and we must face the situation as it is. We must either secure such compromises as may be possible, or present the issue to the country. The latter course would mean a delay of at least 14 months, and then success only in case of our securing a two-thirds majority in the senate."

"We cannot afford, either as citizens or as members of the party, to share with the Republican party responsibility for further delay; we cannot go before the country on the issue that such an appeal would present."

"The Republicans have a majority in the senate, and therefore can by right dictate the senate's course. Being in the minority, we cannot demand the right to decide the terms upon which the senate will consent to ratification."

"Our nation has spent 100,000 precious lives and more than $20,000,000,000 to make the world safe for democracy, and the one fundamental principle of democracy is the right of the majority to rule. It applies to the senate and to the house as well as to the people."

"According to the Constitution, a treaty is ratified by a two-thirds vote, but the Democratic party cannot afford to take advantage of the Constitutional right of a minority to prevent a ratification. A majority of congress can declare war. Shall we make it more difficult to conclude a treaty than to enter a war?"

"Neither can we go before the country on the issue raised by article X. If we do not intend to impair the right of congress to decide the question of peace or war when the time for action arises, how can we insist upon a moral obligation to go to war which can have no force or value except as it does impair the independence of congress? We owe it to the world to join in an honest effort to put an end to war forever, and that effort should be made at the earliest possible moment."

Should Raise Voice for Justice.

"What plan can a Democratic party, have other than one that contemplates the popular election of those delegates who, in the influence they will exert, will be next in importance to the president himself?"

"And what policy can the Democratic party have within the League of Nations other than one of absolute independence and impartiality between the league members and the league?"

"Our nation's voice should at all times be raised in behalf of equal and exact justice between nations as the only basis of permanent peace; it should be raised in defense of the right of self-determination and in proclaiming a spirit of brotherhood as universal as the peace which we advocate."

"We have domestic problems also which offer an opportunity to render large service, and one objection to thrusting the treaty into the campaign is that it would divert attention from questions demanding immediate consideration."

Fertile Land at $15 to $30 an Acre—land similar to that which through many years has yielded from 20 to 40 bushels of wheat to the acre. Hundreds of farmers in Western Canada have raised crops in a single season worth more than the whole cost of their land. With such crops come prosperity, independence, good homes, and all the comforts and conveniences which make for happy living.

Farm Gardens—Poultry—Dairying are sources of income second only to grain growing and stock raising. Good climate, good neighbors, churches, schools, rural telephone, etc., give you the opportunities of a new land with the conveniences of old settled districts.

Serbia to Build Long Canal.

According to a news item in the Athens Progress the Serbian government has decided to construct a canal from the Danube to Salonika. The canal is to begin at the confluence of the Danube and the Morava, follow the course of the Morava in Serbia, then join the valley of the Vardar, following the river to the vicinity of Salonika. The total length of the canal will be 600 kilometers (373 miles).

Put aside the Salts, Oil, Calomel, or Pills and take "Cascarets."

Are you keeping your bowels, liver, and stomach clean, pure and fresh with Cascarets, or merely whipping them into action every few days with Salts, Cathartic Pills, Oil, or Purgative Waters?

Stop having a bowel wash-day. Let Cascarets gently cleanse and regulate the stomach, remove the sour and fermenting food and foul gases, take the excess bile from the liver and carry out of the colon and bowels all the constipated waste matter and poisons so you can straighten up.

Cascarets tonight will make you feel great by morning. They work while you sleep—never gripe, sicken, or cause any inconvenience, and cost so little too.—Adv.

GOT HOMES AT SMALL COST

Fortunate Purchasers Profited by the Dismantling of Government-Built Munition Plants.

To select a dwelling from a large stock of samples, buy it "over the counter" at a bargain price, and then pack it on a motortruck to be sent home, is a novel solution of the housing problem, says Popular Mechanics Magazine. That is literally what has been happening recently, however, in a number of communities where munition-plant housing facilities are being dismantled by the government. All the purchasers needs is a vacant lot, of course, and a foundation for his new home.

Near Cincinnati more than 200 four-room houses were sold in two days at the remarkable price of $200 each, their original cost to the government having been over $1,500. Purchasers of these houses have been able to get concrete block foundations built for an average price of $225 and to secure truck and trailer delivery within five miles for $120, making a total cost of $550 for a well-built home.

A Team of Horses Won't Accomplish Much Unless It's Hitched Up

Every farmer knows that and every progressive farmer realizes that he must team up with his fellow agriculturalists if either of them is going to get the most out of the business of farming.

THE MICHIGAN STATE FARM BUREAU

—is going to harness the farmers of Michigan into one unit for the purpose of pulling agriculture out of danger into prosperity. The drive starts in Washtenaw County soon. Any day you may expect to be visited by farmers, who know the farmers' problems and how the re-organized Farm Bureau is going to solve them. Every farmer in Washtenaw County will be visited and given an opportunity to join the Farm Bureau Federation, which must have the solid support of the majority of the agriculturalists of the state to act most efficiently and successfully in promoting farm interests.

A SQUARE DEAL—THAT'S ALL

The major aims of the Michigan State Farm Bureau are to improve marketing and transportation conditions—correlate and strengthen activities of all existing farm organizations—get closer to the consumer and teach the general public farmers are not rolling in wealth as is the city belief—promote rural educational methods and advise farmers of everything pertinent to their welfare—deal with measures rather than men in politics and insist constantly on a "square deal" for agriculture—help the farmer get competent labor at a reasonable wage—in short, to do anything and everything that will make farming more profitable and attractive.

But You Can't Get Something For Nothing

Everybody knows that. So to supply necessary funds to carry on this great work the membership fee is set at $10—$5 to the County Bureau and $5 to the State.

In Illinois 85 per cent of the farmers have enrolled in the Farm Bureau organization, which has a program identical to Michigan, but Michigan is going over the top closer to 100 per cent. Washtenaw County is one of the counties leading the way
