February Very Peculiar Month.
February, 1920, will be a peculiar month.

February 1 falls on Sunday, as does February 29, the last day of the month.

There will be seven holidays in February—that is, for bankers and others, but for the common workman but five.

There are five Sundays in February and the customary two legal holidays—Abraham Lincoln's Birthday and the anniversary of the birth of George Washington.

Such a February has not been experienced since 1880, and there will not be a similar one until 1948, statistical fiends declare.

Leap year is the reason.

Half-VanNatter Marriage.

On Saturday evening, January 31, 1920, at 8 o'clock, at the home of the bridegroom's sister, Mrs. Roy Harris, on McKinley street, occurred the wedding of Miss Hannah Hall, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Hall, and Mr. Charles VanNatter, both of Chelsea. Rev. H. R. Beatty reading the Episcopal ring ceremony. Both Mr. and Mrs. VanNatter are well and favorably known in Chelsea. Mr. VanNatter having recently returned from overseas, now being employed by the Lewis Spring & Axle Co. and Mrs. VanNatter has been the pleasing clerk at the postoffice. They have gone to housekeeping in the residence of Mrs. A. A. Harper on East street. They have the best wishes of a large circle of friends.

Mrs. J. F. McMillan.

Frances Jane Stocking was born in the state of New York, April 4, 1853, and died at her home in Lima township, Monday, February 2, 1920.

She was united in marriage with J. F. McMillan, April 15, 1875, and for many years they have resided on the farm in Lima where she died.

She is survived by her husband, an adopted daughter, one sister, three nephews and one niece.

The funeral was held at 2 o'clock this afternoon from the Chelsea M. E. church, Rev. H. R. Beatty officiating. Burial at Oak Grove cemetery.

Sheep Dipping Held Important.

That one of the most important factors in the successful management of sheep is clean skin and fleece, kept in a healthy condition and free from parasites is the opinion of Prof. G. A. Brown, head of the animal husbandry department of the Michigan Agricultural college. Dipping is held as the proper method of keeping the flock in the desired condition.

"The external parasites that often cause serious losses are the tick, the louse, and the scab mite," says Professor Brown. "The flock should be dipped immediately upon discovery of infestation with scab and the dipping repeated in ten days. Every flock should be dipped twice each year to keep the skin and fleece in a healthy condition as well as to destroy ticks and lice."

"Any one of the standard dips on the market will prove satisfactory. At the college we have found the coal tar dips especially satisfactory. The water used in mixing the dip should be warmed to a temperature of 90 degrees Fahrenheit and each sheep held in the solution for two minutes, the head being immersed just before the sheep leaves the vat."

Josef Hofmann at Ann Arbor.

Josef Hofmann, the distinguished pianist, will make his Ann Arbor debut in the choral union series in Hill Auditorium, Ann Arbor on the evening of February 10.

He has had a most interesting career. He was born in Russia and at an early age made a sensation as child prodigy, winning ovations not only in the capitals of Europe, but throughout the music centers of America. Unlike many musical prodigies, however, his great talent continued to thrive and each succeeding year, won more laurels for him. For many years since attaining manhood, he has been ranked among the very foremost masters of his instrument.

He has chosen a brilliant program for his Ann Arbor appearance. Special interurban cars will leave the Auditorium, east and west, immediately after the concert.

SCHOOL NOTES.

FREEMAN'S

LET every American, every lover of liberty, every well-wisher of his posterity, swear by the blood of the Revolution never to violate in the least particular the laws of the country and never to tolerate their violation by others. Let reverence for the laws be breathed by every American mother to the lisping babe that prattles on her lap; let it be taught in the schools, in seminaries and in colleges; let it be written in primers, in spelling books, and in almanacs; let it be preached from the pupils, proclaimed in legislative halls and enforced in courts of justice. And, in short, let become the political religion of the Nation; and let the old and the young, the rich and the poor, the grave and the gay of all sexes and tongues and colors and conditions, sacrifice unceasingly upon its altars.—Abraham Lincoln.

Earning Power

The return of the telephone properties to their owners means that they must be financed, in the future as in the past, by private capital.

To make this possible the Telephone Company must be able to show an earning power that will produce revenue sufficient:

- To provide modern equipment;
- To maintain the property in perfect condition;
- To pay fair wages to experienced and skillful employees;
- To provide reserves to replace worn-out property;
- To pay the heavily increased taxes;
- To pay bond interest and a fair dividend to stockholders.

The earning power rests on the rate schedule. If costs increase, rates must correspondingly increase. If, later on, costs are lowered, the rates will be lowered also.

BREVITIES

Brighton—H. A. Branch, proprietor of Kilmhurst Poultry Farm, of this village, is making use of electric lights in his poultry houses, for the purpose of increasing the returns from the flock, and finds the results are very gratifying. Brighton Argus.

Jackson—School boys and all boys under 17 years of age must stay out of Jackson pool rooms, or proprietors of those places will be handled roughly by the city, announced Chief of Police Hudson Saturday as he sent several large placards to every pool room in the city, which reads as follows: "No one under 17 years of age or who is attending school permitted in this place. By order of chief of police."

Sharon—The river and pond are said to be full of carp. A number of years ago a man named Jacquemain from Detroit, leased Thorne's lake in Manchester township and stocked it with carp, expecting after they had grown to proper size to seine the lake and ship the big ones to New York, where they are in demand by Jews and poor people. These carp have come down the creek into the river and are a nuisance. Sharon Cor. Manchester Enterprise.

Jackson—Interest in the consolidated school system has been rapidly growing throughout the county and it is expected several of the townships will vote on the proposition before summer, according to W. W. McLain, county school commissioner. He said that in at least six townships committees had been appointed to call on the taxpayers and learn the exact sentiment of each before putting the question to a vote. Many of the committees have stated, however, that elections may be held to decide the proposition before July 1. Jackson News.

Jackson—The grandstand at the fair grounds was completely destroyed by fire early Tuesday morning. A number of automobiles were stored on the ground floor of the stand and none were saved. The stand is a total loss. The stand was one of the landmarks of Jackson and was built in the early '80s. How the blaze started is not known, but when the firemen arrived the conflagration had gained such headway that it was impossible to hold it in check, and the men contented themselves with keeping the fire from spreading to adjoining buildings on Blackstone street. Thirty-five cars stored in the building by F. P. Miller of the Miller Auto Sales company were a total loss.

Brooklyn—Cement City Masons came to Brooklyn Monday evening and gave A. C. Deer his third degree. Supper was served at eight o'clock to the company of 75 and the initiation ceremony followed. Among the guests of the evening was Geo. Drewitt of Australia who has lately come to the Cement City factory as mechanical engineer. Mr. Drewitt told many interesting things as to Masonry in Australia. Lodges there are limited to 100 members and applicants must wait for death or demit to secure any consideration as to membership. There are so called "white lodges" of women members in Australia, who claim to trace the origin of Masonry back before the time of King Solomon. He says that the present king of England is not a Mason, but his son who has recently visited America is a member of Kitchener Lodge of Cairo, Egypt, which the speaker had recently visited. Brooklyn Exponent.

The Velvet is twice as big shown here

"No Rheumatics" is a Mighty 'oor Reason for Wearing a Wooden Leg

NO sting or hot burnin' is a mighty weak-kneed recommendation for tobacco. But when tobacco is mild and cool, and yet as full of "fun" as a barrel of monkeys—well, that's another story—that's Velvet.

And 'cause why?

'Cause Velvet is brought up—not jerked up by the hair. It's raised as carefully as a favorite child. It's cured in the big fresh air. And it mellows away for two years in wooden hogsheds 'til it's smooth and rich as cream. The wonder would be if Velvet wasn't a whacking good pipe smoke.

"Let Nature mellow yo' tobacco an' that tobacco will shore mellow yo' nature," says Velvet Joe. And he's pretty nearly right.

NATURE-AGEING in the wood does more to make tobacco friendly than any camouflage you can cover it with—and don't you forget it. See, taste, smell, feel the "real tobaccoconess" in Velvet. Why, you can almost hear it. Velvet's the tobacco you can judge with your eyes wide open and specs on.

There's a whole lot in Nature's way of making good tobacco better. And it's all in Velvet.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Frees Another Woman From Suffering.

Bayonne, N. J.—"Before I was married I suffered a great deal with periodical pains. I had pains in my side and back and also headaches, and got so weak I could not do anything. I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and soon felt better. Now I am married and have two little boys. Before the first one came I was weak and nervous, could not eat, was dizzy. After I took the Vegetable Compound I could work and eat. Now I am strong and recommend your medicine to my friends."—Mrs. ANNA SLEVA, 25 East 17th Street, Bayonne, N. J.

"Billy, dear, do listen to reason for half a second. What are we going to tell the president? We haven't got the whole story even yet out of him!" I pointed in the direction of the dining room—"and there mustn't be any gap in it. We've got to see Mrs. Delario and get her evidence—we've got to see Claire."

"He'll make her say anything."

"You and I can break her down under cross-examination. You see, we haven't a thing but his word."

"And the diamonds," Billy interrupted. "I'm taking your word for those—you didn't see fit to show 'em to me."

His tone was a trifle sarcastic, indicating that there might still be some legitimate doubt as to the existence of the stones in question, in spite of all the adventure over them; but I ignored it and went on: "He made one slip—I saw it at the time, and now I can't remember what it was. It went slap out of my head and it was important—something about . . . No, I can't remember. It was a sort of key to something else—"

"Can't you think?" urged Billy. "Every little detail's important now. And lordy-lord—what a story, and my scoop!"

The reporter was romping around in Billy's inside, determined to push the story to a finish; while romping around in my inside was my natural caution. Why should we do anything to warn the Emperor William? He might deny everything and say he never even heard of the diamonds! Yes, one false step would make Billy and me the laughing-stock of diplomatic circles throughout the world. We must get all our proof before we divulged the secret on which the fate of our nation depended.

The net result of our hurried colloquy was that we returned to the dining room and silently relieved the still-suffering monsieur of his handcuffs. Which done, Billy presented him with leave of absence from our society in the words:

"Monsieur, you are free to go," and added a courtly bow.

I bowed also. Thus we signified with all the manners we possessed that the interview, pleasing as it had been, was at an end.

Our action—simple enough to us and in line with the plan we'd just napped out for getting at the truth—left monsieur as dazed as anything we'd done. Inexplicably, we had abruptly cut him adrift, without threats or explanations and without—the diamonds! I smiled and said, quite as though he'd been drinking tea with me: "I'll say good night to you, monsieur." With that, I held out my hand.

Monsieur did not rise. He did not take my offered hand. He stared—a really frightened, childish stare, first at me, then at Billy. He had been dismissed—every second he longer remained marked him a trespasser. Yet he remained, glued to his chair and dumb. Speech seemed to have deserted him. Twice he essayed it, but the words stuck in his throat and he looked to us to help him out.

"Billy Dear, Do Listen to Reason."

The clock chimed the four-quarters to nine and then the hour. Monsieur spoke.

"I have placed myself in your position as American and I appreciate your feeling," he began, and he went on to tell us as a man he grieved for us; how as a would-be friend he grieved for us; how as the emperor's messenger he grieved for us; and how I—in the innocent carrying off of a slipper from the curious house—one of a pair in which his daughter had, at his command, secreted a box of diamonds belonging to the emperor—had brought myself within the circle of implacable, all-seeing, all-avenging and never-ending wrath, whether the diamonds were lost, strayed, stolen from me, or drowned in the sea; wrath that would follow me and my name forever, world without end, amen.

"All right, let it," I replied curtly. "But would it not be better to consider?" urged monsieur. "Ze wraas of ze emperor is terrible. Consider, madame, I beg you to consider. Ze diamonds zat you have found in zat slipper you have ze misfortune to carry off. Consider to give zem back."

"They were not in the slipper I carried off."

Monsieur positively jumped. "Zey were not in zat slipper?"

"Yes—on my word of honor as a gentleman, monsieur, I tell you those diamonds were not in the slipper I carried off."

"Mon Dieu!" he said under his breath. "Madame Delario must have zem—in spite of her denial—in spite of zat I search ze entire house—and herself—and find also ze slipper in her wardrobe as she would not leave it if she find zee diamonds."

"But she may not have found them—they may have fallen out and got lost—"

"Impossible—impossible," he interrupted. "I have examined those zee slippers—you see it is zat way: My daughter have glue ze box in one, safe, and on an evening you tell Madame Delario to wear zee slippers and Claire have but just time to remove ze box and she returns it to ze zipper slipper. It is zat little accident—and some words from yourself—zat convince me it is yourself who has found zee diamonds."

"No, monsieur. When you accused me of robbing Claire of jewelry I hadn't the least idea what you meant. I suppose you accused Mrs. Delario of the same thing? Didn't you accuse her of taking jewels from Claire—just as you did me—without specifying what kind of jewels?"

"Oui—yes. Naturally, I do not specify, for ze reason if she find ze diamonds, she know to what I refer; but if you have find zem, I do not tell for what I seek."

"Well, that's it, I do believe!" I exclaimed in the tone of having discovered the key to the whole difficulty. "You said jewels and she thought you meant what we should mean by it—as we use the word, we think of pins, bracelets, pendants, made-up articles, you understand."

"Ah, so zat is ze way of it!" he cried, popping off his chair in a hurry. "I see it is some error of idiom of ze language zat cause all ze trouble. I go immediately to ze estimable Madame Delario and explain all to her."

He took up his hat, which Billy had picked up off the floor after the scolding and laid on the dining-room table.

"Oh, monsieur—you a diplomat!" I slipped off. "And you think you can go to an American citizen after such accusations as you've made and say: 'It was all a mistake,' and settle everything?"

"But I apologize for ze mistake," he urged, as though his sweet apology paid for everything he'd done and brought forth a box of diamonds on a salver, here-they-are-thank-you-for-taking-them.

I laughed. "Suppose she won't accept your apology?" I asked, and before he got a reply, I added: "She probably won't even see you—not after the way you treated her."

"I bet she doesn't even see you," Billy supported, seeing my drive. "What are you going to do?" He was anxious to make monsieur commit himself.

Monsieur twisted his hands nervously and I kept the ball rolling by observing slyly: "You have just told us that the most profound secrecy must be maintained, so you cannot call in the police. But there is one thing you can do—"

He asked breathlessly, "And zat is—?"

"Go straight to the president and lay the whole case before him."

Monsieur looked as if he'd fallen in a faint at my feet.

"Ze president—mon Dieu!" He used his handkerchief over his face. "Madame—in pity—out of ze kindness of your so kind heart—I srow myself on your mercy—! De Ravenol—and I ask you to help me in ze recovery of zee diamonds in secret. I ask it for ze sake of Claire. I ask on my knee—"

And the man was actually preparing to do it, too! But I, not being used to that sort of demonstration and feeling it as anything but a compliment that he felt he had to go such lengths to propitiate me—for I like to think myself at least decently approachable on common humane grounds—responded to his near-kneel with a peremptory, "Don't do it!" and a look and gesture that showed him he could save the histrionics. "How can I help you?" I questioned.

"It is a case for—diplomacy—in dealing wif ze lady; and I ask—as a so great favor—zat you see Madame Delario and discover ze truth from her, if she have find ze little box—and persuade her to her duty to return it."

The net result of the remainder of the interview was that monsieur promised to relieve both Mrs. Delario and me of all espionage immediately—dismiss his solitary detective who was shadowing me—bring Claire to the house the next evening for a full confession of her part of the smuggling; while I promised to see Mrs. Delario the first thing in the morning and use all my influence with her.

"I think that is all—this evening," said I sweetly, giving him the hint to go.

I at once got Billy's coat and hat from my wardrobe, where they were hidden, and coming through the hall I managed to signal him to go along with monsieur.

They left together—apparently on the best of terms.

"Tomorrow I'll decide about going to the president," thought I, turning out the lights. "I've got everything all my own way now and nothing is going to happen tonight—that's one thing to be thankful for." And with these and similar fatuous maunders and self-congratulations I tumbled into bed without even bothering to lock the kitchen door.

CHAPTER XIV.

"The Jewels Are Mine."

To this day I've never quite recovered from the astonishment and chagrin when on waking up in the morning I reviewed the case with a refreshed mind and realized with what ease De Ravenol had imprisoned both Mrs. Delario and me in our own homes and had us quaking in our boots in fear of our very lives!

Monsieur had managed Mrs. Delario even better than he had me—he had merely left a detective in her house to watch her by day and lock her up by night. In fact, she'd actually invited the detective in proof of her innocence; for when monsieur had accused her of stealing jewels she saw in her mind's eye—just as I did—trinkets, jewelry; and the idea that he was referring to seven unset diamonds caged in her slipper never entered her head.

"You have accused me of a shocking crime—a crime that offends every principle of decency as well as morals," she told him with spirit, "and I now insist that you convince yourself of my innocence before you leave the house. Here is the key to my bedroom—here is the passkey to all the other rooms. Have your man watch me while you examine everything—everything—and then you must get a woman to search me."

This unsolicited action, her flat denial and his finding the slipper where she'd carelessly dropped it in her wardrobe threw the scent on me. In two hours monsieur convinced himself that she did not have the diamonds and knew nothing about them, and he then requested her—as the proof of her noncomplicity—to let him lock her in her room and send for me! And she didn't dare to refuse!

And there you have, simple as simple could be, the whole of it. I had her side of the story when I saw her Sunday morning as monsieur's messenger. But I had enough of the story before I went to her to feel pretty well chagrined; yet sad, too, as I thought of the disappointment I had in store for her when I told her that Emperor William owned her "find" and how the diamonds came to be in her slipper.

I confess I didn't like very much the way she'd lied to me about the uncle abroad who had left them to her. Still—it was an understandable lie; since she'd found the diamonds and didn't know who owned them she felt they belonged to her as much as if they'd been left her in a will.

Mrs. Delario herself admitted me, gave a gasp when she saw who it was, and whisked me into the seance room and locked the door on us before we exchanged a syllable.

We sank into chairs. I felt as if a tidal wave had swept from under me and left me not even hanging up in a coconut tree but sitting still in peaceful security. It was she who got us down from the high peaks to the levels where conversation can go afoot without falling off, by asking, "And how are you—after it all?" to which I replied, "But how are you—after it all?" and we both laughed.

Her laugh died away into an impatient frown. "You never heard any thing like it," she cried. "He came here with a detective—and it wasn't five minutes after you got out of this house, Monday—and accused me—of stealing Claire's bracelets!"

"Bracelets?" I echoed.

"Yes—me."

I said "Oh," slowly. I hadn't expected she'd grind the word jewels quite so fine.

"Did you ever hear anything quite so outrageous?" she rushed on. "To come here and say I robbed his child of jewelry! I can't believe she had any jewelry, anyway—it was all a trumped-up story to get something out of me; but I was so ignorant—and she poured out the whole tale."

"Well, it's all over," she concluded. "I didn't care how much monsieur searched—I knew I hadn't robbed Claire, and I knew that so long as you had my diamonds they were safe. I didn't worry after the first day or so."

She said "my diamonds," and now I had to tell her!

"Mrs. Delario there seems to be a misunderstanding about those diamonds," I began suavely.

She gave a start and asked, "How, misunderstanding? You mean they're not worth all you said? Well—you didn't tell me positively they were worth—that." She seemed to hesitate at "a million dollars," which is what I said.

"Oh, yes—I still stick to that—that's the worst of it: they are worth it—that's what made them shining targets for that thief."

"Thief!" she cried. "You say 'thief,' too! Then he was, after all!" She was very much excited, and repeated the word several times with a kind of joy and ran on rapidly: "I wouldn't tell you what I thought about him, but I knew he was a thief. I knew it in Paris—I knew it in Antwerp—it was in Antwerp—after I'd made all the arrangements to bring Claire over—that I heard it clairaudiently. 'De Ravenol is a thief.' I knew it here—in this very room—the first time he came." And then she smiled at me benignantly: "And thanks to you he didn't get my diamonds, so we're safe—Claire's safe—she'll never know the truth about her father from me."

"Claire never had any jewelry—the whole accusation was trumped up to give the chance to rob me. But how under the sun did he know I had these diamonds?"

"He says he put them there—or at least Claire did—in your slipper," I blurted.

Her hands flew to her heart. "Never!" she cried. "Never in the world!"

"And he says they're his," I persisted, feeling I'd got my opening at last. I put it that way partly to disabuse her mind of the idea that monsieur was a thief; partly to save her from the too sudden shock of the Emperor William. I saw I'd have to let her down gradually.

"They're mine," she returned vehemently. "I swore to you they were mine. I swear to you again—now—here—in the sight of God—they are mine. Consider—" her tone was an appeal now. "If they had not been mine—if I had stolen them from Claire—would I have shown them to you? Would I have asked you to help me dispose of them?"

I was forced to admit, "No—of course not—I had already taken that into consideration."

"Yes—I grant you that you honestly believe they're yours," I admitted. "But what I've got to know is, how they came to be yours."

She told me then, hesitating no longer, the unbelievable story—unbelievable by every modern standard and from every scientific point of view, explaining why she'd prevaricated in the first instance about her uncle. It wasn't, after all, quite what you'd call by so harsh a name as lying.

Best Preparation for Writer.
"Read the Bible for illumination, knowledge and power," said Dana; "Gulliver's Travels for detail," and Robert Louis Stevenson for style. Any man or woman who will make a study of the Bible, and who will analyze Gulliver's Travels, and sing Robert Louis Stevenson into his heart, will become a good writer, provided there is also natural talent to start with.

A railroad in England supplies toys for children taking long journeys, to relieve the monotony of riding.

The KITCHEN CABINET

Finish every day and be done with it. You have done what you could, some blunders and absurdities no doubt crept in; forget them as soon as you can. Tomorrow is a new day; you shall begin it well and serenely and with too high a spirit to be cumbered with your old nonsense.—Emerson.

SEASONABLE DISHES.

At this season of the year a salad is just as acceptable as at any other time of the year. The following will be found a little out of the ordinary:

Italian Salad.—Cut one carrot and one turnip into slices and let cook in boiling broth or soup until done. When cold, add two cold, boiled potatoes and one cooked beet, cut in strips. Add a tablespoonful of chopped or scraped onion pulp, and mix. Pour over the following sauce and garnish with water cress:

Lombarda Sauce.—Cook one-fourth cupful of flour in one-fourth cupful of hot butter; add half a teaspoonful of salt, one-fourth teaspoonful of paprika and one cupful of jellied chicken broth; stir until boiling hot. Set over butter and heat in one-fourth of a cupful of butter, beaten to a cream with two egg yolks and the juice of half a lemon. As soon as the egg is cooked, beat in three-fourths of a cupful of thick tomato sauce. When cold and ready to use, add one teaspoonful of parsley, chopped very fine.

Hot Apple Dessert.—Pare, quarter, core and slice five or six apples. Put these in a serving dish suitable for the oven, in layers, with seeded raisins and one cupful of sugar; cover and bake until the apple is tender. Remove the cover and set marshmallows over the top of the apples; return the dish to the oven for the browning of the marshmallows. Serve hot, with or without cream.

Fresh Fish Salad.—Flake baked or boiled fish while hot. For a pint of fish, cut six olives very thin lengthwise; to them add a tablespoonful of capers, a teaspoonful of onion pulp, half a teaspoonful of salt, a tablespoonful of lemon juice and two tablespoonfuls of olive oil. Mix, then pour over the fish; mix with two forks, to avoid crushing; let stand in a cool place until ready to serve. Serve on lettuce leaves with mayonnaise in a bowl. Garnish with pickled beets.

The common things of life are all so dear; The moon's soft rays that through the leaves do shine, The morning's sun on glistening waves so clear, The clouds of gorgeous hue are mine and thine.

—Edith Louise Farrell.

ECONOMIES IN THE HOME.

It hardly seems necessary to mention that four sacks of the large size may be bleached and used for various things. Open the seams and hem and you have fine dish towels. The small-sized sugar sacks may be used to hold lettuce after it has been washed and is ready for the table. Put into the sack, it may lay on the ice. Small salt sacks are fine for holding herbs and dried seeds, for use in various ways.

Tea grounds make a fine brightener of carpets. Use them dampened with water, and sweep lightly with a broom.

Old underwear makes fine wash cloths, and stockings of any kind or color, cut in strips and fitted into a mop, will answer, when treated with a good oil, as a dust mop.

When nuts are dry and tasteless, breaking into bits when cracked, soak them for an hour or two in hot water before cracking. They will be like fresh nuts.

When a broom is worn on one side, dip it in hot suds on wash day, and while soft and wet cut with a sharp hatchet or scissors.

Always mix such dry mixtures as cornstarch with sugar when making a sauce, as the sugar keeps it from lumping when the water is added.

Add a dash of salt to most fruits; it saves sugar and brings out the flavor. This is true of fresh or dried fruits.

When making a custard, cook it as usual if it is a boiled custard, and take out a portion, to which may be added various seasonings like in a salad dressing; the remainder may be sweetened and flavored, and two dishes are ready with one cooking.

Stretching the meat flavor is a great economy. When preparing hamburger, add a cupful of cooked oatmeal, seasonings, and either cook it in a flat cake or small cakes. The cereal will not be noticed, and the dish will be fully as satisfying. Any cereal, such as rice or other cooked breakfast foods, may be used equally as well.

Take the strips from the ends and sides of table linen which is badly worn, and make into napkins. One may have six or eight good-looking napkins which are well worth the trouble of hemming. The best of the cloth left may be hemmed for various uses, and even the ragged portions may be quilted, by a few stitches on the machine, for dishcloths.

Red Hair.

A perturbed correspondent of the Indianapolis News raises an interesting question. Do women, he wishes to know, shun red-headed men and, if so, why? His own hair is of the hue sometimes thoughtlessly and inaccurately described as carrot colored. Hence the query is of vital personal importance. He has given the matrimonial question "serious consideration," but each time has been met with discouragement due, he believes, solely to the tinge of his hair. The matter is one calling for the thoughtful attention of the philosopher and the sociologist. If women generally are frowning on the matrimonial offers of red-haired men, the future of the race is threatened. Was it not a red-haired man who fired the first shot in the American war against the Hun? Society cannot afford to lose the red-head temperament because of the perplexing perversity of marriageable women. The red-head will be needed for the next war, or if there is no next war, whenever and wherever trouble is brewing.

Red Sandstone.

Colorado is full of wonderful red sandstone rocks. They are lined and grooved and stippled over with fine dots; they are worn and hollowed and curved into innumerable grotesque shapes; from the tiny stone which you can hold in your hand to the sharp colossal wall, hundreds of feet high, which no man can climb, there is not an inch which does not look as if for millions of years it had been worked by tools. Yet no hand, no tool, has been there. Grains of sand have done it all—grains of sand blowing and eddying in wind currents. —Helen Hunt Jackson.

Ants That Plant.

A species of ants living on the semi-arid plains of Texas cultivate areas of grass about their dwellings. On the cultivated space, which may have an area of ten to fifteen feet, only one kind of grass is allowed to grow, and it is said that the seeds of this grass are planted by the ants. Roads are laid out regularly, radiating from the hill across the plain, and the shoots of undesirable plants are promptly nibbled off as fast as they appear among the crops. When the harvest of the protected grass is ripe the ants collect the seeds and convey them along a radiating highway to the little rooms in their hills. Interesting and wonderful is the economy of these tiny insects. They may, when the colonies are large and numerous enough, do considerable damage to grain in fields where their mounds are reared and the clearings made.

KEEP THE KIDNEYS WELL.

Health is Worth Saving and Some Chelsea People Know How to Save It.

Many Chelsea people take their lives in their hands by neglecting the kidneys when they know these organs need help. Weak kidneys are responsible for a vast amount of suffering and ill health, but there is no need to suffer nor to remain in danger. Use Doan's Kidney Pills—a remedy that has helped thousands of kindred sufferers. Ask your neighbor.

The following statement leaves no ground for doubt.

Mrs. F. B. Oakly, 103 Williams St., Jackson, Mich., says: "My kidneys were irregular in action and I had dull headaches. Doan's Kidney Pills quickly relieved the trouble and I have had no return of it."

Several drivers of automobiles in transit Tuesday, endeavored to mix whisky and gasoline with disastrous results to their cars. One of them smashed a wheel near the Cement works, and a couple of others "raced" their engines for about two hours, while standing on the streets, burning out the bearings and otherwise damaging the motors.

NOT IMPRESSED BY SPHINX

Modern Reporter Refuses to See Anything Wonderful in the Lady's Appearance.

Admitting that "a mouth 7½ feet wide is not a rosebud, nor an ear 4½ feet high a seashell," a modern reporter in Egypt is impressed by the fact that the Sphinx does not seem nearly so impressive as he had expected. After all, the creature is only 150 feet long and its face only 14 feet wide! Perhaps the environment made a difference, for the Sphinx, as she today rests in the sands of the desert, has a very different stage setting from that of a few years ago. The black tents of the Bedouin have gone, and their place taken by the white and khaki tents of the British, pitched north and west of the Pyramids. Trolley cars run to within some hundred yards of the Sphinx, and automobiles travel the motoring road to the base of the Great Pyramid; from the apex of the Pyramid of Cheops four long antennae of a British wireless apparatus stretch down to the ground. For a short time during the troubles in Egypt the neighborhood of the Sphinx saw a reversion to lawlessness, and Bedouins only the other day swooped in from the desert and attacked a party of sight-seeing British at the Pyramids. Dwarfed by the Pyramids, the latest visitor who has recorded his impression found the Sphinx "disappointing," and decided that so far from having a "cryptic expression," her stone countenance has no expression whatever.—Christian Science Monitor.

How Sardines Are Taken.

Sardines are taken in a peculiar way. A small-meshed net made of very fine blue thread is dropped into the water astern of a rowing boat. Two men pull the boat steadily along, while a third stands up and throws bait on each side of the net.

As the sardines try to pass through the meshes to reach the bait they are caught by the gills. Every now and again the men "haul in," detach the entangled fish, then cast out the net once more. Sometimes as many as five or six thousand fishes per day are thus taken, and the catch brings high prices.

But the value of these is discounted by the growing cost of bait. For this purpose salted cods' roe is used. It has to be obtained from Norway, and the price rises continually. The sardine does not mind this. Being some what of an epicure, it insists upon cods' roe or nothing.

Cost him what it may, the Breton fisher must bait with cods' roe or he will get no sardines.

If You Need a Medicine You Should Have the Best

Have you ever stopped to reason why it is that so many products that are extensively advertised, all at once drop out of sight and are soon forgotten? The reason is plain—the article did not fulfill the promises of the manufacturer. This applies more particularly to a medicine. A medicinal preparation that has real curative value almost sells itself, as like an endless chain system the remedy is recommended by those who have been benefited, to those who are in need of it.

A prominent druggist says: "Take for example Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, a preparation I have sold for many years and never hesitate to recommend, for in almost every case it shows excellent results, as many of my customers testify. No other kidney remedy has so large a sale."

According to sworn statements and verified testimony of thousands who have used the preparation, the success of Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root is due to the fact, so many people claim, that it fulfills almost every wish in overcoming kidney, liver and bladder ailments, corrects urinary troubles and neutralizes the uric acid which causes rheumatism.

You may receive a sample bottle of Swamp-Root by Parcel Post. Address Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., and enclose ten cents; also mention this paper. Large and medium size bottles for sale at all drug stores.—Adv.

Cautiously Stated.
The American officers who came to the courts at Cannes to compete for the army tennis championship were required on their arrival to report to Colonel Johnson, the organizer. When one competitor came in, Colonel Johnson, according to American Lawn Tennis, looked up and said:

"Are you a tennis player?"
The lieutenant looked a little bashful and replied:

"Well, I think I am—at least, I have orders to prove it."

Don't stay stuffed-up! Quit blowing and snuffing! A dose of "Pape's Cold Compound," taken every two hours until three doses are taken usually breaks up a cold and ends all gripe misery. The very first dose opens your clogged-up nostrils and the air passages of the head; stops nose running; relieves the headache, dullness, feverishness, sneezing, soreness and stiffness. "Pape's Cold Compound" is the quickest, surest relief known and costs only a few cents at drug stores. It acts without assistance. Tastes nice. Contains no quinine. Insist on Pape's! Ad.

Must Be a Fine School.
The six-year-old granddaughter of Judge D. W. Henry of Terre Haute had started to school in the training school of the Indiana state normal. William C. Hall, who lives across the street from the little girl, is trustee for the Indiana state normal and a great friend of the little girl. One morning, when her mother was taking her to school, she noticed Mr. Hall going up the steps to the main building. Looking up at her mother she said: "Gee, this must be a fine school if Mr. Hall goes to school here."—Indianapolis News.

IF BACK HURTS USE SALTS FOR KIDNEYS

Eat less meat if kidneys feel like lead or bladder bothers.

Most folks forget that the kidneys, like the bowels, get sluggish and clogged and need a flushing occasionally, else we have backache and dull misery in the kidney region, severe headaches, rheumatic twinges, torpid liver, acid stomach, sleeplessness and all sorts of bladder disorders.

You simply must keep your kidneys active and clean, and the moment you feel an ache or pain in the kidney region, get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any good drug store here, take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days, and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salt is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and is harmless to flush clogged kidneys and stimulates them to normal activity. It also neutralizes the acids in the urine so it no longer irritates, thus ending bladder disorders.

Jad Salts is harmless; inexpensive; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which everybody should take now and then to keep the kidneys clean, thus avoiding serious complications.

A well-known local druggist says he sells lots of Jad Salts to folks who believe in overcoming kidney trouble while it is only trouble.—Adv.

Idea of Russia for the Russians to Govern as They Please Gains Headway.

GOMPERS SCORES BOLSHIEVISM

Germany Objects to Extradition of Accused Officers and Soldiers—Jugo-Slavs Reject Adriatic Compromise—Edwin T. Meredith Appointed Secretary of Agriculture.

By EDWARD W. PICKARD.
Russia—including Siberia—for the Russians, to do with as they please and govern as they please, is the slogan that seems likely to win in the vast realm that the czars once ruled. And though just now the bolsheviks are the controlling faction in almost all of European Russia, and in much of Siberia, they are discarding much of their "bolshevism" and other factions are coming around to the belief that, if they cease fighting, the most radical leaders will speedily lose their power and the country will settle down under a liberal government and will be able to make peace with the rest of the world. In southern Europe the Don Cossacks are still holding out, though with waning chances of success. In Siberia, when the Czech forces have departed, the liberal Russians will find themselves opposed only by the reactionaries who have the support of Japan. The latest cables from Vladivostok tell of an abortive revolution there by soldiers who feared they were to be disarmed by the Japanese troops, and therefore started an uprising against the liberals who had planned to take over the government peacefully. The rebels were taken prisoner by General Rozanoff's student officers, after which Rozanoff proclaimed amnesty for all political prisoners and let the peasant prisoners go home with their arms. The Siberians, it is said, believe that their country will join hands with the Moscow soviet government as soon as the Japanese have left, and that bolshevism will then rapidly disappear. How soon the Japanese troops will depart is not known. The American evacuation is already under way.

Delayed dispatches from South Russia say the Cossack federation which met in Ekaterinodar decided that they would continue to fight the bolsheviks unless their independence were recognized. They wanted Denikin to remain as their commander in chief with the understanding that he should have no voice in civil affairs. This proposition he probably rejected, as later dispatches said he and his staff had taken refuge on a British vessel at Constantinople. Meanwhile the bolsheviks moving westward from the Caspian were threatening the Cossacks in the flank and rear.

Admiral Kolchuk, it develops, surrendered to the Siberian revolutionists on the advice of General Janin, the Czech commander, in order to avert a fight in which the Czechs might have been annihilated. Kolchuk is to be tried by court-martial. Russian officers under Semenov's command are so enraged against the Czechs that they have formed a league whose slogan is "Have Janin's blood."

In England organized labor continues to urge complete and immediate peace with soviet Russia, at the same time disclaiming any belief in the soundness of the political and social theories on which the soviet government is based.

Realizing how bolshevik propaganda in America is impeding the American Federation of Labor, its president, Samuel Gompers, has come out with an article in which he condemns bolshevism "completely, finally and for all time." He thinks that the propaganda which emanates from those who say they are quite free from Russian influences and Russian pay is especially dangerous, and he declares their arguments that we should not pass judgment on bolshevism until we know more about it and see more of its results. Mr. Gompers addressed himself particularly to trades unionists, and he tells them that the bolsheviks have split up the reserve funds of trade unions, throttled the labor press, killed labor organizations, split up trade unions as a class and put down strikes by force of arms and by executions. The constitution of soviet Russia, he adds, provides for and enforces compulsory labor. It may be this pronouncement by the great labor leader will have a beneficial effect on those union labor men of this country who have been submitting too much to the leadership of disloyal radicals; but there are signs that Mr. Gompers' influence is declining somewhat.

Although the German government, as such, is ostensibly doing all it can to carry out the terms of the treaty, many of the individual members of it are openly in sympathy with the general sentiment throughout the country against the surrender of officers and others for trial by the allies on charges growing out of their misdeeds during the war. Great mass meetings to protest against such action are being held in Berlin, and while the government does not officially countenance them, it does not prevent them and various high officials have declared that they will not take part in the surrender of the accused. The Ebert government has sent a note to the allies urging them to abandon their demands in this matter on the ground that execution of article 228 of the treaty would certainly cause political and economic troubles in Germany that would seriously hamper production. It suggests that the trials of the accused persons be held in Germany with the participation of allied representatives.

What will be done in the matter of Holland's refusal to extradite the former kaiser is not settled. The juristic experts at the supreme council took up the study of the case anew and it is believed the council dispatched another note to the Dutch last week.

Probably connected with the agitation against the extradition of officers and soldiers was the attempt on the life of Matthias Erzberger, German minister of finance, who signed the armistice terms. He was seriously wounded by a student. The incident was succeeded by rumors of a coming monarchist uprising and Minister of Defense Noske filled the strategic positions in Berlin with troops. The revolt failed to materialize.

The troublesome Adriatic problem is not yet solved. In response to the ultimatum of the supreme council, the Jugo-Slav government sent a note rejecting the compromise that had been offered by Italy and agreed to by the other great powers. The reply from Belgrade was couched in conciliatory terms, however, and left the way open for further discussion. The suggested solution was based on the pact of London, and the Jugo-Slavs say that as this treaty was secret they cannot consider a solution based on a pact which they have never had an opportunity to examine and discuss. They suggest a new basis of compromise along the lines of President Wilson's proposals. Indeed, all through this quarrel the Jugo-Slavs have justified their stand by that taken by Mr. Wilson, and they still seem to think that our president can enforce his views on Great Britain, France and Italy, though just how this can be done it is not easy to see.

So far Hungary has declined to sign the peace terms submitted by the allies. She says she cannot fulfill the demands made, and cannot agree to the loss of territory. Premier Huszar, addressing a meeting of women Wednesday, declared that Hungary would be a monarchy, without doubt, and that the new king would be chosen immediately after the national assembly convenes. In the recent elections the national Christian party was overwhelmingly successful, the socialists declining to vote.

President Wilson, in a letter written to Secretary Glass, has made an appeal to congress to pass the bill granting credits of $150,000,000 for Poland, Austria and Armenia to alleviate conditions in those countries. He says: "It is unthinkable to me that we should withhold from those people, who are in such mental and physical distress, the assistance which can be rendered by making available on credit a small proportion of our exportable surplus of food which would alleviate the situation."

Prospects of agreement in the senate on the peace treaty dwindled still further last week. The bipartisan committee, unofficial, was looked to by the more hopeful for a solution of the tangle, but the chances were not good. Article ten and the Monroe doctrine clause were the sticking points. Senator Hitchcock, peevish by the continued delay, threatened to take the whole matter before the senate in open session, but later said he would not do that until all hope of settlement by private negotiation had failed. Other senators said nothing would be gained by throwing the treaty back into the senate in the near future.

The president has "promoted" Secretary of Agriculture Houston to succeed Mr. Glass as secretary of the treasury, and has appointed Edwin T. Meredith of Iowa to the place Mr. Houston will vacate. The changes will take effect as soon as Mr. Glass is sworn in as senator. The new secretary of agriculture is both a practical farmer and a business man. He is the editor of Successful Farming and before establishing that paper was publisher of the Farmers' Tribune. He is president of the Associated Advertising Clubs of the World, a director of the Chicago Federal Reserve bank and was one of the excess profits advisers of the treasury department appointed in 1917. He has said that one of his first undertakings as head of the department of agriculture will be to try to work out some method of getting crops to market "without too much lost motion." There has been evidence that Mr. Houston was not very popular with the farmers, and the change is counted on by the leaders of the Democratic party to restore good relations between the farmers and the administration.

It was said in Washington that Secretary of the Interior Lane desires to retire from the cabinet in the near future. There has been no suggestion as to his successor.

Three favorite sons dropped out of the race for the Republican presidential nomination last week. They were Governors Goodrich of Indiana, Sprout of Pennsylvania and Coolidge of Massachusetts. The managers of the Wood, Lowden and Johnson booms renewed their activity in the chase for delegates. The boom for Hoover, though still restricted, gave indications of early expansion. In that connection a statement by Secretary Daniels to a graduating class in Philadelphia is interesting. Said he:

"I can tell you who the next president is going to be. Do you want me to tell you who he is? I don't know whether he belongs to my party or yours. If he has one drop of reactionary blood he will not have a chance of election. No old-fashioned politician will do. He must be progressive and meet the new conditions."

When reporters asked Secretary Daniels who he meant, he smiled. Asked if the name of the man he had in mind has been included among those suggested as presidential candidates, Mr. Daniels replied: "We will not discuss that."

SEIZED LIQUOR IS GIVEN AWAY BY U.S.

FEDERAL AGENTS IN DETROIT
DISTRIBUTE BOOZE TO HOSPITALS.

HOPE TO CHECK "FLU" EPIDEMIC

Aimed to Get It to Needy. Without Charge—Robbery Attempt Frustrated by Officers.

Detroit.—The first issue of whiskey from the seized stores, made by the United States marshal's office Monday was a small quantity to St. Joseph's sanitarium, Mt. Clemens. Following this, the city physicians were given whiskey, and then hospitals were served, according to the number of patients and their needs.

Many physicians, including representatives of the United States Navy, applied for liquor, but it was given only to institutions and to the city physicians. In this way it was hoped to get a better distribution, and to insure that the poor will be able to get it without costs. Physicians can, in an emergency, apply to the marshal's office or obtain whiskey from the city physicians.

None was distributed direct from the marshal's office, but was issued by warehouse, on orders from the office.

Eight armed men made a bold effort to steal and move by motor trucks the contraband whiskey and liquors in the government storehouse on West Larned street Sunday evening. The watchmen had been overpowered and the cases of liquor piled up near the door for loading into the cars when federal agents arrived on the scene. A revolver battle followed during which the robbers made their escape in three automobiles. Arthur L. Barkley, chief of the bureau of investigation of the department of justice, had received a tip of the raid just in time. None of the liquor was taken.

NEW SKYSCRAPER FOR DETROIT

Bank to Erect 24 Story Building On Hotel Pontchartrain Site.

Detroit.—Contracts have been let by the First and Old Detroit National Bank for the 24-story building it will erect on the Hotel Pontchartrain site. The estimated cost of the building with the site, is $8,000,000.

Work of raising the 14-story Hotel Pontchartrain will start this month. The entire structure, including the steel work, will come down. There is approximately 19,500 square feet in the ground site.

In addition to the First and Old Detroit National Bank, the building will house the Central Savings Bank, which is affiliated with the First and Old Detroit National Bank, the First National Co., the security underwriting and sales organization owned by the First and Old Detroit National Bank interests and other affiliated interests. The balance of the building will be rented for offices.

600 SINN FEIN LEADERS JAILED

British Make Wholesale Arrest of Irish Republicans.

Dublin.—About 600 persons were arrested by the British military authorities throughout Ireland last Saturday in the biggest and most drastic series of raids that has yet been undertaken against the Sinn Fein.

Among the captives were many Sinn Fein officials who were elected to office in the recent local elections throughout Ireland.

When the councils of Dublin, Cork and other places elected Sinn Fein mayors they refused to appoint sheriffs, because this would have necessitated swearing allegiance to the king.

RAILS COST U. S. $700,000,000

Government Shows Huge Deficit from
Two-Year Control of Lines

Washington.—Operation of the railroads, Pullman lines, express companies and waterways, united under federal control, has cost the nation approximately $700,000,000 since they were taken over two years ago, according to official calculation.

Figures made public by the railroad administration revealed a net loss of $594,200,000 from railroad operation alone in the two-year period. Statistics gathered from official sources as to operating costs of the Pullman lines and waterways and express companies while operated by the government, show the addition of $100,000,000 to the transportation costs.

Jap Pays to Remain in Jail.

Los Angeles, Calif.—Acquitted on a charge of murder, O. Kaneda went back to jail here for an indefinite stay, at his own request, paying bond to the sheriff for the privilege of remaining. Kaneda was accused of having caused the death of another Japanese here recently. He was discharged after his trial, but his attorney told the court that the man feared the vengeance of friends of the deceased and wanted permission to stay in jail until he could leave the city.

NAME "BAYER" ON GENUINE ASPIRIN

Take tablets only as told in each "Bayer" package.

The "Bayer Cross" is the thumbprint of genuine "Bayer Tablets of Aspirin." It protects you against imitations and identifies the genuine Aspirin prescribed by physicians for over eighteen years.

Always buy an unbroken package of "Bayer Tablets of Aspirin" which con-

THANKFUL HE DIDN'T STOP MEANT TO SERVE AS BEACON

After Such a "Break" There Was Only
One Bright Spot Left in Drummer's Memory.

For many years I had been calling on a good customer of mine in a small town in Iowa. In charge of the military department was a scrawny, gawky "lady-in-waiting," who had given me cause for considerable annoyance by her spinsterly propensities.

Once I made that town after a prolonged absence, and missing this woman I breezily inquired of the proprietor what become of her.

"She went off and got married," replied the proprietor.

"Got married?" I exclaimed. "Who-inell would marry her?"

"I did," was the quiet reply.

I allowed no grass to grow under my feet, but quickly packed my grip and departed, never to return to that store again. Only one bright memory remains with me now—I never stopped to apologize.—Exchange.

A Number of Them.

Horace—Did any man ever kiss you before I did?

Helen—Yes, dear.

Horace—Tell me his name so I can beat him up!

Helen—I'm afraid that he might be too many for you.

A man sometimes loses his head, but a woman never loses her tongue.

Statue of Liberty at New York Is Not Fulfilling Original Purpose of Designer.

The statue of Liberty, in New York harbor, is electrically illuminated—that is, so flooded with light as to be rendered brightly visible at night.

Originally, however, the idea was to make it serve as a beacon, and for this purpose the "flame" of the lady's torch was cut at the sides, the openings fitted with glass, and nine duplex arc lamps placed inside.

Thus was obtained a light which, upheld at a height of 305 feet above the water, was visible 24 miles out at sea, or ten miles beyond the anchorage of the outside lightship. Its maintenance was assigned to the government lighthouse board.

But the lighthouse board declared that it had little or no usefulness as an aid to navigation, its value being purely sentimental, and in 1902 the light was extinguished, the business of illuminating the statue being handed over to the war department.

Unanswerable.

"I hope you didn't take a second piece of cake, Ethel," said the mother to the young daughter, who had been visiting a friend for tea.

"Yes, I did, mother," replied the child. "You told me never to contradict, and the lady said: 'I know you'll have another piece of cake,' so what could I say?"

Michigan Happenings

Albion—An American Legion woman's auxiliary will be formed here to aid Patrick Leo Hanlon post.

Standish—The harvest of natural ice in this district is complete, a superior grade of ice from 16 to 20 inches thick having been secured.

Hart—Mrs. Mary Rankin, deputy county treasurer for nine years, has announced her candidacy for the Republican nomination as treasurer of Oceana County.

Ionia—Bernard Shay, of Ionia, had a tooth pulled last week and died to such an extent that he died. He was a son of Mr. and Mrs. John Shay, of Orange, and had been working in Portland.

Grand Rapids—Lyman A. Lilly, for five years secretary and treasurer of the West Michigan State Fair association, defeated Dr. S. D. Dodson, a candidate to succeed himself as president of the association.

Rochester—Ella Wintersaine, bookkeeper for the Edison Co. at Rochester, was killed when the auto in which she was riding with George Thompson was struck by a D. U. R. limited. Thompson escaped.

Grand Rapids—Miss Gertrude Failing, 44, school teacher in this city, died at her home in this city, of sleeping sickness. She had been ill two weeks. This is the first fatal case reported in Grand Rapids.

Battle Creek—Found seriously ill and alone in her room, without fire or other comforts, Mrs. F. M. Aguilar, 60, was hurried to Nichols hospital by the police. She died a few hours later from a complication of diseases and exposure.

Lansing—John H. Bopp, of the Bopp Brothers meat market, may lose the sight of an eye as a result of a can of paint exploding when he attempted to open it. The lid was blown against his glasses and glass entering the eye ball.

Port Huron—The first robin was discovered last week by E. W. Smith, 918 Lapeer avenue. The bird attracted attention when he fluttered to a window sill of the Smith home. H. W. Emigh of Lexington also declares that he saw a robin in his yard.

Owosso—While the state Beet Growers association is preparing for a series of meetings to enlist farmers in the fight to obtain what they term a fair price for their beets for 1920, the Owosso Sugar company has announced it has contracted for 22,500 acres of beets for next year, virtually all it can handle.

Sand Lake—Demanding a 30 per cent increase on their contract salaries, Sand Lake school teachers, went on strike when their demands were ignored by the board of education. The teachers were recently paid a $50 bonus, but they considered this inadequate in face of the steady increase in cost of living.

Grand Rapids—A constitutional amendment which would permit the federal government to return to the respective states a portion of the income tax which it collects was recommended by William S. Linton of Saginaw, a member of the state tax commission, in an address to the Kent county board of supervisors.

Kalamazoo—H. A. Crawford, head of the Lull Carriage Co. of this city, has been elected president of the Kalamazoo Motor Corporation, manufacturers of the Kalamazoo motor truck. The capital stock of the corporation has been increased from $250,000 to $1,000,000. The minimum production for 1920 is placed at 1,000 trucks.

Saginaw—Nearly $100,000 is left to the Saginaw general hospital, $10,000 to St. John's Episcopal church, and about $400,000 to relatives by the will of William S. Fish of Detroit and Saginaw. The estate is estimated at $500,000. The will will be contested by Smith V. Fish of Detroit, a nephew, and Mr. Fish's guardian for several years.

Port Huron—Pleading guilty to murder in the first degree, Leo Paquette told in circuit court here how he killed John La France, Fair Haven, hermit, for his money. He said he and Harry Bonnie planned to get La France's money, and told how he fired the fatal shots on the night of Dec. 28. Bonnie's plea of guilty, made previously, was changed to not guilty by the court, and he will stand trial.

Bay City—R. A. Bostwick, of Traverse City, and R. E. Ellsworth, of Alpena, deputy fish and game wardens, have concluded their investigation of conditions surrounding the killing of fish in Saginaw river, but give no conclusions. City Chemist Harrison is analyzing water with the idea of discovering the nature of the pollution, which it is alleged came from sugar factory refuse. Hundreds of tons of fish have been killed by the poison.

Detroit—Desire to enter a more lucrative employment is ascribed by Frank Cody, superintendent of schools as the reason for the resignation of 33 men and 213 women teachers during the last six months. Mr. Cody further says that if the present ratio of resignations continues until June, 10 per cent of the Detroit teaching staff will have resigned by that time. According to statistics the normal percentage of resignations per year is 8.5 per cent. Under conditions prevailing this year two men have resigned to every man the year before.

Ann Arbor—In a raid 14 Greeks, who claimed to be celebrating the Greek new year, were arrested on the charge of gambling. When arraigned in justice court each was fined $8.15.

St. Johns—Clinton county board of supervisors passed a resolution condemning the state constabulary as a needless expense and ordered a copy of the same forwarded to Representative Hunter and State Senator Defue.

Hilledale—Jesse Grant, aged 35, living three miles south of Quincy, was almost instantly killed when working to clear snow drifts from the roads. A switch engine on the New York Central struck him, cutting a big gash in the scalp and almost severing one leg.

Grand Rapids—David Dunlap, 55, Plainfield township farmer, was burned to death in his farm home when the structure was destroyed by fire. He was fighting the flames on the second floor of the house when the brick chimney toppled over, burying him beneath it.

Port Huron—Mrs. Julia Odette, St. Clair county pioneer and believed to be the oldest woman in the state, died at her home in Avoca, aged 103. Mrs. Odette was in possession of her faculties up to within a few days of her passing. She is survived by one son, Louis Odette, himself an aged man.

Kalamazoo—It was not until one of the women of the family demanded of a strange man what business he had on a ladder opposite her window, that B. W. Rasmussen became aware that the house was a mass of flames. The strange man was a fireman who was mounting to the roof with a line of fire hose.

Saginaw—The Consumers' Power Co. plans to expend approximately $5,000,000 for the erection of a steam electric generating plant at Zilwaukee, a mile from the Saginaw limits. If the $50,000,000 bond issue and its consolidation plans with the Michigan Light Co. are approved by the state utilities commission.

Charlotte—Eaton county has a war chest fund of $60,000 and does not know how to dispose of it. According to petitions being circulated, Charlotte proposes to turn its share over to the Irvin Greenwald American Legion post, while Benton township wants to use the township funds for a community house at Potterville.

Detroit—Eli Nedelau and his wife Flora, 345 Meldrum avenue, were assessed $2,621.32 taxes by internal revenue officers for operating two stills in the basement of their home. Seventy-six gallons of finished whisky were found. The couple, Rumanians, had their goods packed, ready to go back to their native country.

Kalamazoo—Basing his action on Judge Root's decision holding the city commission was elected by an unconstitutional method, Charles Struble, former chief of police, has notified the commission he will make a fight to reclaim the office from which he was dismissed a month ago by Harry Freeman, city manager.

Adrian—The first south-bound passenger train to reach Adrian on the Dundee branch of the New York Central railroad since November, 1917, arrived in the city last week, bearing over 80 persons from Onsted, who made the trip in celebration of the resumption of service and were the guests of the chamber of commerce here.

Flint—Plans for the erection of new factory buildings and extensions to the Buick plant in Flint to cost approximately $7,500,000 were announced following the annual meeting of the board of directors of the Buick Motor Co., at which H. H. Bassett was elected president and general manager to succeed Walter P. Chrysler, resigned.

Kalamazoo—A full congregation saw the inauguration of a motion picture feature as a regular part of the weekly service at the First Presbyterian church, one of the biggest in the city. If the experiment continues successful, motion picture shows will be given in the church several nights every week. Films will not be confined to religious production.

Ann Arbor—Adoption of a standard plan whereby pupils of public schools of Michigan can be gauged in physical fitness was made by state physical directors. The "pulse recovery" test, in which the subject runs "in place" 15 seconds, then rests for a two-minute period, after which the pulse is supposed to be normal, was devised for girls. A more strenuous test was planned for boys.

Big Rapids—Investigation into the death of 17-year-old Grace Enyart, at the private hospital of Dr. Albert Patterson, of Chippewa Lake, has been begun by the authorities. The girl had been at the hospital since the middle of December, at which time the doctor says she presented herself for treatment. The authorities believe that an illegal operation had been performed some time before the girl went to Dr. Patterson's hospital for treatment.

Lansing—The Michigan State Telephone company, in an order issued by the Michigan public utilities commission, is ordered to bring all its books, records, files and accounts of every description into Michigan and to keep them in its office in Detroit, where they will be accessible for auditors and accountants of the commission at any time. At present some of the commission's order is based on the application of the company to issue new securities. A hearing is to be held Feb. 12.

PIG, NOT BRITISH COLONEL

Italy's Chamber Gets Laugh Over Story of Mistaken Identity of "Drowned Personage."

Rome.—In the general debate on the reply to the king's speech, Count Frola, who, although the ex-mayor of Turin, belongs to the socialist group, denounced several abuses in the army.

He declared that while during the war the front trenches had not sufficient automobiles to transport the wounded to hospitals, there were plenty of automobiles to transport officers to theaters in neighboring towns.

When in Albania, Frola said, his general had a pig farm from which he sent daily suckling pigs in automobiles, accompanied by an officer, to Santa Quaranta, from which port the pigs were shipped on a transport to friends of the general in Italy. A daily telegram was sent from Santa Quaranta to the general announcing the arrival of the pigs, which were designated as "personages."

Once a pig was drowned, Frola continued, and the telegram to the general read "personage drowned."

Unfortunately an English colonel was due to arrive, so the general believed the victim to be the colonel and ordered an inquiry into the drowning which lasted 15 days.

The entire chamber was convulsed with laughter over this revelation.

Rough Sea Cured Deafness.

Paris.—A new cure for deafness has been discovered by M. Ignace, under-secretary of state, who accompanied Premier Clemenceau to London recently. The channel was unusually rough and M. Ignace suffered terribly from seasickness, but when he landed at Dover he found he had fully recovered from deafness with which he had been afflicted for years. Specialists have begun experimenting with patients in a specially constructed chair of the type formerly used in physical tests of army aviators.

SHIFTS LUNCH TO SAVE COAL

Vienna Orders Some to Eat at 11:30 and Others Must Dine at 12:30 P. M.

Vienna, Austria.—As a further economy in coal, the city government has altered Vienna's age-old custom of the midday meal hour. Instead, households in even numbered houses must dine at 11:30 a. m., and those in odd numbers at 12:30 p. m. As most of the houses are very dark at this season, even at midday, lighting is necessary, and it is hoped by this measure to avoid excessive pressure on the power plants between noon and 1 p. m.

Kindled Fire With Bonds.

East Hurlington, N. J.—Shortly after stuffing a quantity of paper in the stove to kindle a fire, Harry Woolman missed $4,500 in negotiable bonds which he brought home with him. A search failed to reveal them and now Woolman thinks they were a part of the supposed waste paper with which he kindled the fire.

Kin of Famous Nurse

Is Victim of Thief

London.—Miss Florence Nightingale Shore, a second cousin of England's "Lady of the Lamp," is near death from wounds inflicted by an unknown person while she was traveling by train from London to Rezhil.

Miss Shore, who did distinguished nursing service during the war, is about fifty years of age.

When the train arrived at Lewes, Miss Shore was found in an unconscious condition with a wound in her head. Her money and railway tickets had been taken.

Miss Shore has not regained consciousness and so far no clue was found to the supposed assailant.

ported him dead. By the time his identity was established the wife had moved, leaving no trace. As it was supposed she was in Brighton, Morris was sent there and ordered to walk about, with a paper pinned to him bearing his name.

He had been walking for two hours that morning when his wife saw him. When she had him back she quickly changed her black gown for one of bright blue. Since then the memory of Morris has wonderfully improved, and his full recovery is fully expected.

Thousands Frozen to Death.

Washington.—A blizzard which swept across Eastonia, Russia, on New Year's day froze thousands to death. The bodies of 300 refugees were found in a forest. Many babies were frozen at their mothers' breasts, according to word received by American Red Cross workers at Revel.

LOVE CURED SHELL SHOCK

British Soldier, Wounded More Than a Year Ago, Has Memory Restored by Wife.

Brighton, England.—Loss of memory through shell shock and inability to disclose his identity took a happy turn a few days ago in the case of Charles Edward Morris, who became reunited with his wife in this city. He had been reported dead, and the supposed widow had taken employment as a waitress in a shop.

Changing to look through the shop door while a soldier in uniform was passing, Mrs. Morris, with a cry of delight, darted out and caught him by the arm. He stared blankly at her at first. Then, slowly recognizing her, he took her in his arms.

Private Morris had suffered shell shock more than a year ago. When sent to hospital in Mons, Belgium, his identity was unknown. Not hearing of him, the regimental authorities re-
