

THIRTEENTH YEAR—NO. 43

CHELSEA, MICHIGAN, TUESDAY, FEBRUARY 10, 1920.

$1.50 THE YEAR

OLD UNIVERSITY CHIMES

Have Rung Daily For Past 37 Years; First Bell Hung in 1844.

The campus chimes, at the University of Michigan in Ann Arbor, have become such a familiar sound to many in Ann Arbor and vicinity that they are scarcely noticed. Every day for the past 37 years these bells have been ringing the hours, half hours, and the quarter hours and so are a part of the history of Washtenaw county.

Byron Finney, reference librarian emeritus, has found no definite record of a bell until 1844, when it was decreed that "ringing the bell" should be included among the duties of the janitor.

The first bell used was borrowed from the Michigan Central railroad, which was at that time a state road. This bell was soon found to be inadequate, but, although the purchase of a new one was frequently discussed, no action was taken until 1870, when it was decided to secure a new bell by turning in the old one and paying the difference.

The new bell, which had a much louder tone than its predecessor, was used continually until the purchase of the Westminster Peal in 1883. This peal was a gift of Andrew D. White, then president of Cornell university, and, previously, of Cornell history at the University of Michigan.

After an extended investigation and correspondence, both in this country and Europe, the order for a peal of four bells weighing from 270 to 3071 pounds was given to the Clinton H. Meneely Bell company of Troy, N. Y. The chimes were accordingly brought to Ann Arbor and set up in the west tower of the library building, which had been completed that year. When the old library was demolished in 1917 the clock and bells were removed and, in the summer of that year, placed in the tower of the engineering shops. The new location, owing to the low height of the tower and the number of surrounding buildings, somewhat murred the tone which was said to compare favorably with the best peals in the country.

The pendulum is nearly 14 feet in length and weighs about 250 pounds. The operation of the clock and peal is carried on by a system of weights suspended in the four corners of the tower. Cables connected to the clock cause the bells to ring by operating iron hammers which strike the outside of the lower rim. It requires two janitors two hours each week to wind the clock and connected peals.

FILIAL SACRIFICE STORY.

Edward Layman of Benzie county, brought before Judge Sample of the Washtenaw county circuit court in Ann Arbor, charged with contempt of court because he neglected to pay certain fees and costs growing out of a suit for divorce instituted against him by his wife, Mildred, told the judge a story of his self-sacrifice. Mrs. Layman is 15 years her husband's senior. "I married that woman, your honor," said Layman, "to keep my father from making the mistake of marrying her. He was infatuated and bound to marry her. I sacrificed myself when I was 24 years old to marry this woman who was 39 years of age then in order to save my father. Later he remarried my mother."

KEEP THE ROADS OPEN

Growing Sentiment Favors Keeping Rural Roads Passable for Autos The Year Around.

The experience of the past few weeks, since the country roads have been practically blocked, has aroused considerable sentiment in favor of keeping the roads open for automobile traffic the year around.

Farmers generally, now depend upon the motor car for transportation to and from town; the doctors all use motor cars and have been seriously hampered in their work during the present epidemic of influenza because so many of the main country roads are blocked to motor travel.

Public welfare demands that the roads of the future be kept open in the winter, and that the snow be plowed or scraped out of the roadway for a width of 20 to 30 feet on all the main traveled roads, whenever necessary, to allow motor cars to travel.

THE LITTLE BRONZE BUTTON.

The following is published on the request of several old soldiers, veterans of the Civil war:

(Air, "Old Oaken Bucket")
How dear to the heart of each gray-headed soldier,
Are the thoughts of the days when we still wore the blue;
While memory recalls every trial and danger,
And scenes of the past are brought back to his view.
Though long since discarding our arms and equipments,
There's one thing a veteran most most surely will note;
The first thing he sees on the form of a comrade,
Is the little bronze button he wears on his coat.

Chorus: The little bronze button
The sacred bronze button
The Grand Army button
He wears on his coat.

"How much did it cost?" said a man to a soldier,
"That little flat button you wear on your coat?"
"Ten cents in good money," he answered the stranger,
"And four years of marching and fighting to boot."
The wealth of the world cannot purchase this emblem,
Except that the buyer once wore the brave blue;
And it shows to mankind the full marks of a hero,
A man who to honor and country was true.

Tremendous, awful, unthought of privation
Endured by the soldiers who fought in the war,
Declare in a measure the cost of the button,
As paid for in starving, in wounds or in scars.
Antietam, Malvern Hill, Franklin or Vicksburg, Gettysburg, Shilo or Petersburg Mine.

All tell of the cost of the Grand Army button
Made out of the cannon we took from their line.
Then let us be proud of the little bronze button
And wear it with spirit both loyal and bold;
Fraternally welcome each one who supports it,
With love in our hearts for the comrades of old.

Each day musters out whole battalions of wearers,
And soon will be missed the token but millions to come will remember with honor,
The men who'd the right that bronze button to wear.

JOHN CLARE YOUNG.

John Clare Young, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Young of Lyndon, died Monday morning, February 9, 1920. He was 19 years of age and one of the most popular and promising young men of that township. He was born in Lyndon, December 9, 1900.

He had only recently returned from three years service in the Samoan Islands and visited his parents en route to a new assignment at Newport News.

Besides his parents, Commander Snyder leaves a widow, who is also in the hospital at Newport suffering from pneumonia, a brother, R. E. Snyder of Detroit, and two sisters, Mrs. Otto Hans and Mrs. J. E. Walters of Ann Arbor.

A. J. May and family, Esther Barnes, Catherine and Lucile Carnes, and Ella Corser are on the sick list.

The annual meeting of the Presbyterian church was held Monday afternoon.

Footloose.

"I can let you have a room on the top floor, sir, if you don't mind sharing it with another gentleman," said the clerk.

"All right. But do you suppose the gentleman will retire early? I'm in need of sleep and don't want to be disturbed."

"You'll probably be able to get a good night's rest before the gentleman comes, sir. He's been stopping with us every spring for six or seven years and this is the first time he's ever made the trip without his wife."—Birmingham Age-Herald.

Dollars and Cents.
Counting it only in dollars and cents how much did that last cold cost you? A man may not always stop work when he has a cold, but perhaps it would be better if he did. It takes about ten days to get completely rid of a cold under the usual treatment. That time can be much shortened by taking Chamberlain's cough remedy and proper care of yourself. In fact, a bottle of this remedy in the house is a mighty good investment during the winter and spring months. Adv.

DEFENSE DOES NOT DENY TESTIMONY

NEWBERRY ATTORNEYS ADMIT TRUTH OF FIGURES AND FACTS AS SHOWN.

CONSPIRACY DENIED HOWEVER

Expenditure of Large Sums Admitted But Defense Contends Campaign Was Lawfully Conducted.

Grand Rapids—Great masses of facts, largely uncontroverted, and columns of figures, also largely uncontroverted, have been laid before the jury in the trial of Senator Newberry and others in the United States district court here.

Never perhaps has there been so little contest for so much testimony as there has been during the first few days in the Newberry trial. On the facts, thus far, there has been comparatively little dispute, but on the interpretation of those facts the dispute has been great.

These facts have been brought in by the department of justice as part of its tremendous effort to prove a conspiracy to violate federal and state laws in the Newberry senatorial campaign.

The main body of the facts is accepted by the defense not as tending to show conspiracy, but as a part of the record and the chronicle of a regular campaign which, the Newberry forces contend, was carried on in obedience to the law.

This has become the most characteristic phase of this extraordinary trial. The government, which charges conspiracy, brings in witnesses, adduces facts, adduces figures. The defense, which denies conspiracy, has let witness after witness go without cross-examination. The cross-examinations which have been conducted are usually conducted so as to develop more testimony, not to impeach on direct examination.

Martin W. Littleton, chief of the defense lawyers, objected steadily to the government testimony, on the general grounds that no conspiracy had been shown to exist and that the acts alleged concerning some of the defendants were therefore not binding on the others. The objection came so often that it became a matter of routine, and he had only to offer "the usual objection" to draw Judge Sessions' terse "denied" in reply.

Mr. Littleton also moved to strike out the testimony concerning the Detroit bank accounts because it did not show that Truman H. Newberry had either deposited or checked out or caused to be deposited or checked any of the funds. This was also overruled.

The sums discussed in connection with the Commonwealth bank accounts reach a total of about $175,000. The Newberry committee in 1918 reported primary campaign expenditures of $176,600, and in his opinion addressed to the jury Judge Martin conceded these figures to be incomplete.

The government, through the defendant-witness, Allan K. Moore, gave a glimpse of the range of the work done for Truman H. Newberry during the primary campaign, and the co-operation of different forces.

How Chas. H. Floyd suggested that Moore see Paul H. King, how King sent Moore to the late John D. Mangum; how Mangum sent Moore to the upper peninsula; how Roger Andrews of Menominee objected to Moore's working in that district; how Moore was sent to Benj. F. Reed of Bay City at Flint Sanitarium, and planned to go to some of the northern counties of the lower peninsula, were points brought out, and they showed how the Newberry headquarters directed the wide activities of its agents. Later Moore told the story of how he worked with Dr. William South, of Muskegon, and with the officers of the Railroad Men's Relief association, an organization of 10,000 to 14,000 members.

Allan K. Moore testified that he received $1,500 in salary in 20 weeks, and $1,296 for expenses, with between $500 and $900 to give to railroad men. However, in cross-examination Attorney Littleton brought out from the witness that the money paid to railroad men was paid for their work for distributing literature and circulating petitions, as compensation.

"Uncle Sam" on English Beer Labels. London.—A caricature of "Uncle Sam," with an elongated proboscis bearing the word "Prohibition," is soon to appear on labels pasted on every bottle, keg, cask and barrel of beer, wine or whiskey sold in Great Britain. The labels bear this inscription: "If prohibition wins there will be no more beer."

Jewelry to Pay War Debt. Suggestion. London.—The Daily Express has appealed to the people of England to surrender their gold jewelry and ornaments and hoarded coin so that the billion could be used to pay the British debt to the United States at once. "We have enough gold in the homes of this country to liquidate our American debt and pay off our foreign creditors," said the Daily Express. The newspaper suggests a bond issue to secure the indebtedness of the people who surrender their gold.

Selfridge Purchase Turned Down. Washington.—The appropriation bill allowing $35,000 for general construction work at Selfridge Field, Mt. Clemens, Mich., passed the Senate after having passed the House. No attempt was made to amend the bill to provide for the purchase of the Michigan field. The bill, as presented in the house, called for the purchase of the field, but the provision was struck out and only the amount necessary for immediate repair and construction work allowed.

ANTI-STRIKE CLAUSE KILLED

Cummins Railroad Bill Amended by House and Senate Committee.

Washington.—The House and Senate Conference Committees have agreed to eliminate the anti-strike clause in the Cummins Railroad bill, substituting a provision that in effect amounts to compulsory submission of wage disputes to a Federal board appointed by the President. Such disputes first would be considered by boards composed equally of employees and employers, but the findings of these boards must be approved by the board named by the President, which also would hear appeals in which agreements are not reached by other boards. All classes of employees would have representation on the lower boards.

It is planned to expedite the measure, which is designed to meet conditions growing out of the return of the railroads to their private owners, can be enacted into law by March 1, the date on which the Government will relinquish control.

STEEL UNIONS PLAN STORES

Expect to Run Chain of Co-Operative Shops to Cut Living Costs.

Pittsburgh.—Establishment of a chain of co-operative stores in steel centers to take the place of the commissary system, used during the strike, is planned by the national steel organizing committee of the American Federation of Labor.

J. D. Brown, secretary of the committee, announced that the stores would be operated as a part of the committee's continuation of its campaign to organize iron and steel workers. He said such stores would go far toward solving the high price question for workers, and would help the men save money.

GERMANS BALK AT DEMAND

Refuse to Extradite War Leaders for Trial by Allies.

Paris.—Relations between the Allies and Germany seem to have arrived at a crisis as a result of the Allies demand that German leaders accused of war crimes, be extradited.

The German cabinet in a statement given out for publication says that an overwhelming majority of the German people would oppose such action and if forced too far would precipitate the country into civil war.

The Allies demand that approximately 900 men, including the kaiser and army leaders, be delivered to them for trial.

U. S. WAR CASUALTIES 302,612

Corrected Figures Show Increase in Losses of A. E. F.

Washington—Corrected figures on casualties in the A. E. F., published by the war department, brought the total to 302,612, instead of 292,061, as shown in figures compiled from weekly reports furnished to the press. The corrected total was compiled by the adjutant general, after comparing his records with those from France.

The corrected figures were 221,069 wounded, 77,118 deaths, 4,432 captured by the enemy, and 3 missing in action. Casualties in Siberia were not included.

Europe Spending Billions for War

Washington.—Vast expenditures for military purposes are being made by Great Britain, France and other nations associated with the United States in the world war, while they profess to be unable to even pay the interest on the billions loaned them by this country. It was claimed by Senator Walsh, Democrat, Montana, in the Senate. Walsh said he understood Great Britain was preparing to spend $200,000,000 on aircraft alone.

Thief Returns Valuable Papers.

Detroit.—Introducing a thief with a conscience! While S. W. Patterson, of 558 Second boulevard, was at a meeting in St. Paul's cathedral a thief took his valuable fur coat that was hanging in the vestibule. In the overcoat pocket were some valuable papers and the owner regretted their loss more deeply than the loss of the garment. Opening his mail the next day Mr. Patterson discovered that the thief had returned the papers.

Scandinavia Stops Trade With Reds.

Copenhagen.—Danzark, Norway, Sweden, Finland and Holland have agreed that they will not resume trade with Soviet Russia before Russia's debt to nationals of those countries has been paid or guaranteed, it is learned here. An invitation to a conference to be held soon at Geneva will be issued to governments of all European countries and the United States and it is proposed to reach an agreement concerning action to be taken on this question.

U. S. Discounts 3-Cent Envelopes.

Washington.—Because of the paper shortage, as well as for economy, the Postoffice Department has authorized the sale, after special cancellation, of all unsold 3-cent stamped envelopes for use at the present letter postage rate. With the restoration of 2-cent postage, a large supply of 3-cent envelopes was left on the hands of postmasters.

Grange Advises Work to Cut H. C. L. Syracuse, N. Y.—Sherman J. Lowell, master of the National Grange, in a prepared statement, given out here, declares that it is the belief of the farmers of the country that the only way to reduce the cost of living is for every one to do "a reasonable day's work," and that the 44-hour week would never support even America, to say nothing of a hungry world.

Doughboys Pay 1000 Marks a Month. Coblenz.—The rate of exchange for the pay of American soldiers in the occupied territory has been fixed at 100 marks to the dollar, giving the doughboys 3,000 marks monthly. How Many Women Are Like This?

Can anything be more wearing for women than the ceaseless round of household duties? Oh! the monotony of it all—work and drudge; no time to be sick; tired, ailing, yet cannot stop. There comes a time when something "snaps" and they find themselves "simply worn out," and to make matters worse, have contracted serious feminine disorder which almost always follows the constant overtaxing of a woman's strength.

Then they should remember that there is no remedy like Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound—the experience of these two women establishes that fact:

Cedar Rapids, Ia.—"After the birth of my last child I had such painful spells that would unfit me entirely for my household work. I suffered for months and the doctor said that my trouble was organic ulcers and I would have to have an operation. That was an awful thing to me, with a young baby and four other children, so one day I thought of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and how it had helped my sister do my work for me as I was not able to walk. One day my aunt came to see me and told me about your medicine—said it cured her of the same thing. I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and used Lydia E. Pinkham's Sanative Wash and they have cured me. Now I do my own household work and I am able to take care of my house and family without any trouble or a day's pain. I am really and truly thankful to you for your medicine. I am forty-four years old and have not had a day's illness of any kind for three years."

Wills of the Washingtons

INTERIOR OF THE FAIRFAX COURTHOUSE

GEORGE WASHINGTON'S will and that of Martha Washington are side by side in the century-old brick courthouse at Fairfax, the capital of Fairfax county, Virginia. They are presumably secure against thieves and fire and, so far as may be, against time itself, since they rest in hermetically-sealed steel cases sunk in concrete and velvet curtains shut out the destructive light rays from the pages of the wills exposed through glass to the public view.

What more natural, inasmuch as these wills are priceless national documents and Mount Vernon is in Fairfax county?

Nevertheless, it was not always thus. Hence this story of the "Wills of the Washingtons."

George Washington's will was signed at Mount Vernon July 9, 1796, five months before his death. It is in his own handsome, fluent handwriting. It was filed for probate in 1800 in the Fairfax courthouse. It consists of 22 sheets about the size of foolscap, written on both sides.

Through all of a century he who ran so far as Fairfax courthouse might read at his leisure and with his own hands manipulate the original document and at his pleasure thumb and fumble it.

At the beginning of the Civil war the will was taken to Richmond, and there securely hidden. It was returned to Fairfax courthouse when peace had been restored. The years did not tend to its preservation. Its custodians added to its peril of complete obliteration by persistently folding it lengthwise, following the original fold of the clerk of 1800.

In time the pages cracked and divided along the lines of the creasing. Then some past and gone official undertook to repair the damage and prevent extension of it. Bits of glued paper and court plaster were put across the torn creases. As the years went by these patches themselves split, leaving the pages again to fall apart through the center.

Court authorities then decided that the broken pages should be sewn together. This rough and ready surgery was applied.

So gradually the manuscript went from bad to worse until most of its 42 pages were in deplorable condition and much of the beautifully written text was practically illegible. In 1910 Herbert Putnam, librarian of congress, asked the Fairfax county authorities for permission to make photographs of the will. They replied that the will was in such forlorn condition that a satisfactory series of photographs of its forty-two pages was impossible.

Mr. Putnam's personal inspection confirmed this dismal report.

Then came long and trying negotiations. The department of state offered to restore the Washington will as it had restored the Declaration of Independence. If the document were brought to the District of Columbia, the Fairfax officials, backed by the courts, decided that this was impossible; that since the Virginia general assembly would be necessary to enable them to consent to even a temporary removal.

Finally in 1916 Librarian Putnam and Gattard Hunt, chief of the division of manuscripts, hit upon a definite solution of the difficulty. In charge of the repair section of the manuscript division is William Berwick, said to be the greatest living expert in the restoration of old manuscripts. The Fairfax people, supported by Lawrence Washington and other connections of the first president's family, concurred in the suggestion that the will should be restored at the courthouse by "Dr." Berwick.

With infinite patience, with expert knowledge and profound sense of the importance of the patriotic undertaking, "Dr." Berwick began his surgery.

One by one the twenty-two sheets were separated and treated. The instruments employed were very thin, keen knives, camel-hair brushes, the inevitable paste pot, a metal tank for soaking the pages, a press, and last and most important of all, the gauze or crepe-line with which the mending is made secure and a new or tougher surface page obtained.

This gauze, an exquisitely fine texture of silk and linen, is extremely sticky to look at and demands the most delicate handling, but once applied over and beneath a page of writing or printing it renders it practically unalterable. Properly laid on it becomes so absorbed in the paper that it is hardly visible except under a magnifying glass. Consequently the original manuscript can be read as easily as if no additional substance had been used on it.

After the countless holes and tears had been filled the pages were soaked and pressed into perfect smoothness, delicate knives were employed to scrape away stains and foreign particles and finally the crepe-line applied.

The library of congress staff considers that Mr. Berwick accomplished nearly the impossible and worked almost a miracle in the complete restoration he effected. The authorities of Fairfax county, as evidence of appreciation of his work, had embossed in gold letters on the black morocco cover which now encases the will. "Restored in 1916. Under Authority of This Court, by William Berwick, Restorer of Manuscripts, Library of Congress." There is no other inscription on this cover except "The Last Will and Testament of Gen'l George Washington."

Washington began his will thus: "In the name of God, Amen! I, George Washington of Mount Vernon, a citizen of the United States and lately president of the same, do make, ordain and declare this instrument which is written with my own hand and every page thereof subscribed with my name to be my last Will & Testament, revoking all others."

Just the same, he omitted his signature from the bottom of page 23, which goes to show that even the model of all the ages was human.

Martha Washington's will is dated March 4, 1802, and was admitted to probate by the county court at Fairfax June 21, 1802. It remained in the old courthouse until the Civil war. Union forces occupied Fairfax in 1862 and the will disappeared. For more than 50 years the Fairfax county authorities could find no trace of it.

Upon the death of J. Pierpont Morgan in 1913 it became known that the missing will was one of the most-prized articles of his great collection of historic documents. Fairfax county thereupon undertook to regain possession of it.

J. Pierpont Morgan, Jr., declined to give up the will. He offered, however, to let Fairfax have a photographic reproduction, provided Fairfax would let him have a similar reproduction of George Washington's will.

This offer was declined. The Virginia legislature was then appealed to, with the result that an act was passed directing the attorney general of the state to bring suit to recover the original document. The bill was filed in the Supreme court.

In the meantime, in correspondence with the Virginia state authorities, Mr. Morgan first objected to the manner in which he had been approached, then offered to return the will provided it was placed at Mount Vernon instead and in a vault to be constructed by him. This and all other conditions were refused. Finally, in 1915, when the case was about to come to trial Mr. Morgan capitulated and handed over the will to the Fairfax county authorities.

Thereupon the secret of the disappearance and whereabouts of the will was cleared up. For, pasted on the fly-leaf of the handsome folder which the elder Morgan had used to protect the will, was found the following signed statement by the woman from whom he had purchased the document in 1803:

"Lieut. Col. David Thomson, commanding the Eighty-second regiment, Ohio Volunteer Infantry, was, during the spring or autumn of 1802, stationed at Fairfax courthouse, Va. His headquarters were in the courthouse building. The safes had previous to this been broken open by the Bleckers, a command of men noted for their reckless vandalism. The papers were on the floor and had been destroyed in large quantities (and) used to kindle fires. My father, going into the office, found his men shoveling the material from the floor for this use—called them to stop, and, looking over them, found the document in question. Just preceding his death, in 1802, he gave the document to me to be done with as I thought proper."
(Signed) MARY ESPY THOMSON,
2035 Irving avenue, South, Minneapolis, Minn."

Martha Washington's will is a long one, is written on pages of foolscap and is remarkably well preserved. Any one who doubts that Martha Washington was a good business woman should read the will.

Also, the will has a postscript, which shows that the wife of the "Father" of this country was also human.

Dwarfs in History

Dwarfs, until very recent days, have been highly regarded and much sought after. In far-away days kings have fought over dwarfs, and a court that possessed one was considered very fortunate and altogether stylish. Wealthy folk, even, competed with monarchs in the purchase of dwarfs as a sort of hall-mark of aristocracy. A row of tiny people in Equatorial Africa, the Akkas, were much prized by the early

Beautiful New Zealand

New Zealand is a land of mountains, gorges, rivers and fjords. The higher peaks of the south island are eternal snow capped and the glaciers of its southern Alps rival those of Switzerland. The surrounding seas are too cold for corals. Among the mountains of the north island volcanic fires are still active and the geysers and hot springs are little less impressive than those of the Yellowstone park.

Theodore's Bright Idea.

Theodore was fond of olives, but his father had forbidden him to eat them. At dinner one day, during his father's absence, a large dish of olives had been placed near Theodore's plate. He looked at it longingly and said: "Mamma, let's play a joke on daddy and eat some olives."

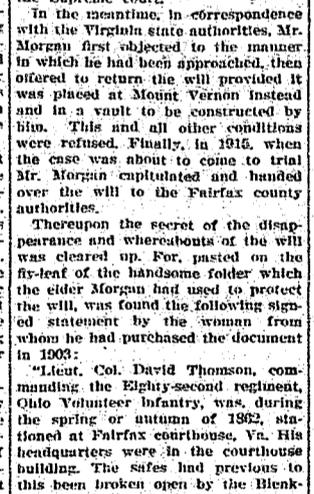

There are party dresses and party dresses; some of them of buffeta silk, some of georgette crepe and many of sheer white materials, for little maids from six to twelve. Crisp tulle is always pretty and it helps out when angles are sharp or colors more becoming than white. Everyone can wear georgette and nearly everyone looks well in voile or net, especially when they veil a favorite color in a silk slip.

The party frock pictured here happens to be of white net, but it would be just as dainty in voile or georgette. There is not much to say of it that is not told by a glance at the picture. It is so simply designed. That is the greatest of virtues in this season's styles, however, and is a good beginning for any frock. There are rows of beautifully precise tucks above the hem in the skirt and the bodice is merely a frivolous and glorified smock with pointed skirt and short sleeves. Little frills of net at the neck and sleeves and on the bottom of the smock make a happy ending for this brief story. A narrow ribbon girdle with ends might replace the plain belt, if any little girl should express a longing for an old favorite of this kind.

There are some pretty party dresses in which under bodices and sleeves of net are revealed by slips of crepe-de-chine that have only suspenders of the silk over the shoulders. These have narrow belts of the silk and the net depends upon tucks and puffs for adornment. Sleeves are elbow length or a little shorter. On crepe-de-chine and georgette frocks we are almost sure to find smocking and we shall not look far without running across the finest white and colored organdies in the most alluring of gay dresses. One of the prettiest ways in which organdy was ever used appears this season in dresses of gay fine cottons, in pink, blue or yellow, having the short bodice veiled with organdy, organly giraffe and sash with wide bow, and a narrow border of it at the bottom of the skirt.

Millinery Proclaims Spring

IN millinery shops winter is a thing of the past; early spring millinery is blooming in them, emanating certain flowers that peep up through the snow in northern climes. In the South spring has already arrived. But even when it is far off women like to anticipate its coming with hats that make cheerful promises.

Certain materials are adapted to these early spring—or more accurately—between seasons hats. Brilliant surfaces in fabrics and straws that look sturdily—whether they are or not, ribbons and fabrics and new productions that we are making the acquaintance of. One of these appears in the dignified hat for a nunton which appears at the top of the group. The shape is a black braid, called "blere," with a collar of wide black satin ribbon folded irregularly about its crown. Above this are two fluted bands, or frills, of a material called cellophane. It is black and brilliant in this hat, like jet, but one finds it on spring millinery in colors and both transparent and opaque. Flowers and fruits are made of it. Cellophane looks more like the strips of film used for making moving pictures than like a fabric and it is probably a very similar composition. It has been used in many ways or spring hats, both in the construction of them and for making trimmings.

Ribbon and narrow band used to gather make the pretty hat at the left, trimmed with two blossoms with stem and leaf, crocheted of wool yarn. There is no end of yarn on spring millinery, used in embroidered effects, other needle work and in yarn dowers or frills.

Net or crepe georgette find themselves associated with slipper straw in many a beautiful hat for early spring. The small, round straws have a very high luster and designers reveal exhaustless ingenuity in using them. In the hat at the right of the group above a round-cornered sailor of georgette has a band made of squares of slipper straw and a pattern of it applied to the brim. Slipper straw made a successful entry in the millinery drama two seasons ago. The difficulty of working it up makes the hats long in price, but that has not prevented them from growing in popularity.

The last hat in the group is one of many pretty and very practical hats made of Batavia cloth, which, with hair cloth, is a strong factor in the new styles. It has embroidered foliage outlined with raffia braid—and raffia is another item which must be reckoned with for spring. Handwork, above all things, dominates the new styles so that wool yarn, raffia, slipper straw and silk appear in embroideries in crocheted flowers and in the body of hats.

New York.—Camp Merritt, the largest embarkation and debarkation camp operated by the Army, 18 miles from Hoboken, near Englewood, N. J., established in August, 1917, handling 100,000 soldiers a month in the war, has been abolished.

Farm Loans Temporarily Suspended.

Washington.—Further loans from federal loan banks have been suspended until the constitutionality of the farm loan act has been determined by the supreme court. Commissioner Norris said the order did not affect loans for which applications have been received, but it shut off applications. The commissioner insisted that prospective borrowers be informed that the step was taken as a measure of protection to them.

Says Dodd's

Kidney Pills
Wonderful Remedy

Mrs. Della Olson, of New London, Wis. like many others, knows after experiencing the use of Dodd's Kidney Pills that they are unequalled. Here is what Mrs. Olson recently wrote us:

"I suffered with rheumatism for years. There was a gravel deposit in the urine and I had frequent headaches. I had dark circles around my eyes and was always tired. I bought a box of your Dodd's Kidney Pills and am glad I did, for I secured quick relief and think they are a wonderful remedy."

Mighty few people realize in time that kidney trouble is making its advances upon their health. They put off treatment—they say, "Oh, I'll be all right in a day or two." And the malady tightens its grip. Result: Bright Disease, hospital treatment, doctors' bills—often death.

When you have backache, dizziness, pain in loins, stiffness in stooping or lifting, spots before the eyes, sediment in secretion, rheumatic pains, or swollen joints, immediately start taking the kidneys by the regular use of the remedy endorsed by hundreds of users—DODD'S Kidney Pills.

If your druggist does not carry these, order direct, sending us the in quantity and mention your druggist's name.

Stop Whipping Bowels into Activity, but take "Cascarets"

Put aside the Salts, Pills, Castor Oil, or Purgative Waters that irritate and lash the bowels into action but which do not thoroughly cleanse, freshen and purify these drainage organs, and have no effect whatever upon the liver and stomach.

Keep your "insides" pure and fresh with Cascarets, which thoroughly cleanse the stomach; remove the undigested, sour food and foul gases, take the excess bile from the liver and carry out of the system all the constipated waste matter and poisons in the bowels which are keeping you half sick, headachy, and miserable.

Cascarets tonight will make you feel great by morning. They work while you sleep—never gripe, sicken or cause inconvenience. Cascarets cost so little too.—Adv.

OPEN NOSTRILS! END GOLD OR CATARRH

How to Get Relief When Head and Nose Are Stuffed Up.

Count fifty. Your cold in head or catch disappears. Your clogged nostrils will open, the air passages of your head will clear and you can breathe freely. No more snuffing, hawking, mucous discharge, dryness or headache, no struggling for breath at night.

Get a small bottle of Ely's Cream Balm from your druggist and apply a little of this fragrant antiseptic cream in your nostrils. It penetrates through every air passage of the head, soothing and healing the swollen or inflamed mucous membrane, giving you instant relief. Head colds and catarrh yield like magic. Don't stay stuffed-up and miserable. Relief is sure.—Adv.

Its Place.

"Can you tell me where a bit of water is?" "I guess it is generally found in the mouth of a river."

For the Children.
 Too much care cannot be exercised in selecting a cough medicine for the children. It should be pleasant to take, contain no harmful drug and most effectual in curing their coughs dy meets these conditions. It is a

LINER "ADS" EFFECTIVE.
 One of the most effective forms of advertising is in the "liner" or classified column where a n investment of a few cents is certain to give prompt results. Tribune liner ads are always run under the heading, "Wants, For Sale, To Rent," in the same position on the front page where they are easy to find and invariably catch the eye.
 Only five cents the line for the first insertion, 2 1/2 cents the line for each subsequent insertion. Next time you want to buy something, or have something for sale or rent, try a Tribune liner.

Catarrhal Deafness Cannot Be Cured by local applications as they cannot reach the desired portion of the ear.
 There is only one way to cure catarrhal deafness, and that is by a constitutional remedy. Catarrhal deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian tube.
 When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed deafness is the result. Unless the inflammation can be reduced and the tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever. Many cases of deafness are caused by catarrh, which is an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces. Hall's catarrh medicine acts thru the blood on the mucous surfaces of the system.
 We will give one hundred dollars for any case of catarrhal deafness that cannot be cured by Hall's catarrh medicine. Circulars free. All druggists, 76c.
