Oliver No. 26

The Oliver No. 26 sulky is a two wheel horse lift sulky plow. That is, when the operator wishes to raise the bottom from the ground he merely presses a foot trip which puts into operation the lifting mechanism. The lifting mechanism operates so that when the bottom has been raised to the proper height, the latch dog automatically unlocks, rendering impossible a break through some mistake on the part of the driver. The horse lift features saves the operator the hard work of raising and lowering the bottoms every time he comes to the end of the field or a turn. It is also particularly desirable for work in extremely hard plowing conditions, and for use on rough and uneven land because it can be backed easily.

RED CROSS NOTES.

A pre-school age clinic will be held at Chelsea Red Cross headquarters in the Wilkinson building, from 1 to 4 o'clock Wednesday afternoon, April 14.

Miss Howe, the local Red Cross nurse, reports that during the month of March the total number of calls made were 310, of which 162 were nursing calls; total amount of fees, $34; Metropolitan Life Insurance nursing calls, $19.50.

On Monday afternoon a meeting of the local Red Cross nursing committees was held in the Chelsea Red Cross headquarters. Those present were Mr. Homer Stofor, representing Dexter and Lyndon townships; Mrs. A. J. Easton, Lima; Mrs. N. W. Laird, Sylvan. Mrs. Boyington, county supervisor of committees, was present.

To Buy Road Building Equipment. Ann Arbor Times News: A joint meeting of the Jackson county and Washtenaw county boards of the road commission and members of the state highway department was held Friday to plan for the purchase of equipment for work on the road between Ann Arbor and Jackson. The work is already started, according to reports from the office of J. J. Cox, county roads engineer, and final arrangements were made for handling it.

It is expected it will be completed about January 1, 1922, which date will mark the completion of the largest single road project ever undertaken in Michigan. It will be known as the federal aid project, No. 35. The work is to be done on force account by the counties of Washtenaw and Jackson under the supervision of Mr. Cox.

Sylvan Township Meeting.

There was not a very large attendance at the annual township meeting at the town hall, Monday afternoon. The clerk's report was read and accepted. The following appropriations were then voted: Contingent fund, $3,000; highway improvement fund, $2,000; road repair fund, $2,000; poor fund, $1,000; town hall fund, $700; for the use on the main streets leading into the village of Chelsea, $1,000.

STORM PUTS END TO EASTER HOPES

Sunday's Storm Worst Recorded for Any Easter.

Great damage was done by Sunday's snow storm, especially to the feelings of those who had their Easter finery ready for wear. Instead of the marvelous creations over which much time had been spent, mid-winter wraps were in evidence.

The heaviest fall of snow of the year was the result of the storm, and a portion of the time the air was so full of snow that objects a short distance away could not be seen.

Orchardists generally state that it will not injure the orchards, for the trees have not yet reached the bud state. The warm weather of March they declare was premature and its continuation for a few days more would have brought the trees into blossom so early that the set fruit could hardly hope to escape frosts later.

Board of Supervisors.

Rehearsals for Katcha-Koo Under Way.

The cast for Katcha-Koo which is to be given Friday and Saturday evenings, April 16 and 17, under the auspices of the Eastern Star, is practically completed, rehearsals being held each day and evening under the direction of Miss Myrtle McCoy, representing the John B. Rogers Producing Co. The cast and choruses are rapidly rounding into "form" and most professional-like performances may be expected.

Katcha-Koo receives its name from one of the leading characters in the extravaganza. An American aviator lost in India masquerades as an Oriental fakir, "Katcha-Koo," and all sorts of complications result. This role is taken by Vance Ogden. Other characters are the Maharajah of Hunge, an East Indian Romeo, portrayed by Everett Benton; Dick Horton and Harry Bradstone, two young American adventurers, George Naekel and E. D. Brown; Mrs. Chattie Gaddin, a wealthy American widow, Mrs. Edith Weber, and her two charming daughters, Dolly, Miss Spring, and Prudence, Miss Florence Penn; Sojah, the widow of a wizard, and Urbanah, High Priestess of the Temple, are comedy character roles assumed by Miss Kathryn Hooker and Miss Nica Rood. The four wives of the Maharajah are played by the Misses Winifred Benton, Ruth Spiegelsberg, Erma Mohrlock and Gladys Shepherd. Besides the principles, many attractive chorus groups and dances distinguish the production. Among these are the Oriental veil dancers, the auld lang syne group, the Susquehanna Sue Group, the polo dancers, and groups representing the allied nations. There is a wonderful patriotic finale, which is said to fairly take an audience off their feet.

Place the soiled clothes—anything from heavy blankets to the finest lingerie or even your fine lace curtains—in the large revolving zinc cylinder, press the button, and a few minutes later they are thoroughly cleaned and ready for the sturdy, electric driven wringer, to pass to the rinse water. This done, refill the cylinder and start in motion, swing the wringer to next position and pass the rinsed clothes through to the basket. All this while the next portion of washing placed in the zinc cylinder is being cleaned ready for the wringer, swing back its first position.

A WORLD REBUILT

By the Golden Rule not by the rule of Gold

THIRTY denominations of the Church are uniting in a simultaneous campaign in the week of April 25th-May 2nd.

They are uniting because the task before the Church is too great for any one denomination; because there must be no duplication of effort; no waste.

These churches know that the world needs many things; but it needs Faith most of all.

They know that there can be no final solution of our economic problems that is not a spiritual solution, based on the teachings of Jesus Christ and His Golden Rule.

They have had the courage to survey the whole task, and to ask for a budget large enough to sustain (1) the work abroad, (2) the work at home including the church's part in the huge task of Americanization, (3) the colleges and (4) hospitals supported by the Churches, (5) the religious training of the young, and to provide (6) a living wage for the Church's ministers.

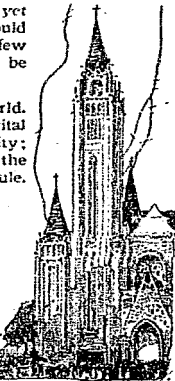

The budget is large in the aggregate; yet if each person who loves America would increase his contribution by only a few dollars the whole amount would be easily subscribed.

We face the task of rebuilding the world. Let the cornerstone be a strong and vital church in every American community; and the measuring rod by which the builders build must be the Golden Rule.

Running On Three Wheels

It is easier to pull a loaded wagon that has only three wheels than it is to run a business without sufficient income to meet expenses. Each may struggle along for a time but neither can travel fast or far, and the strain is sure to be great.

A business that lacks the revenue to pay for the best materials and workers can not give the best service. When the service suffers all users of the service also suffer.

That is the problem now facing your telephone company. Unless it secures rates that make it possible to purchase necessary material and pay wages that will hold good employees, it can not give you good service.

The future of your telephone service rests on the securing of fair rates. The public must decide.

BREVITIES

Pinckney—While feeding wood to his buzz saw on Frank Mower's farm Leo Lavey misjudged the distance of the saw and the result is a severely injured hand. No fingers are gone, but there is danger of one finger becoming permanently stiffened.—Pinckney Dispatch.

Saline—Herbert F. Hutzler is the owner of a certified copy of that part of the records of the U. S. Land Office showing the plat of the township of Lodi dated nearly one hundred years ago. The plat gives the names of the owners of the various pieces making up the township and the dates they acquired title.—Saline Observer.

Pinckney—Thomas Shehan is now carrying the mail to and from the depot and postoffice. In answer to the advertisement asking for bids for this work his price and that of Patrick Kennedy were for the same amount, $408 per annum. The officials at Washington decided the matter by lot and the contract was thus given to Mr. Shehan.—Pinckney Dispatch.

Ann Arbor—Letter are being received through the local postoffice which are similar to the old Spanish swindle which has been worked for years. The letters purport to come from men who are imprisoned in Madrid, Spain, and who ask for aid in recovering riches in other countries. They promise the person large sums after the riches are recovered. H. J. Abbott has issued a warning to all Ann Arbor people to be on their guard against this swindling scheme.

Milan—The business men of Milan are showing much interest in the organization of a Milan Building and Loan Association. Plans are under way for the organization of an association that will be capitalized from about one hundred and fifty thousand to two hundred thousand dollars. Although no definite plans of organization have been completed more than twenty-five of Milan's business men have made known their intention to buy stock in the new project.—Milan Leader.

Ann Arbor—As an appreciation of his work as president of the University of Michigan, the undergraduate women of the university on Saturday presented Dr. H. B. Hutchins, for ten years University of Michigan's chief executive, with a solid silver water pitcher. The presentation was made by Miss Margaret Chapin, of Detroit, president of the Women's League. Judge James Murfin, one of the Detroit regents of the university, made a short address, in which he lauded the splendid work of the president. The president, taken wholly by surprise, responded briefly.

In the decalogue of thrift, put out by the American Bankers' association, is to keep a bank account, not carry extreme sums about the person or hide them away like a miser. There is a large measure of common sense in the advice thus given. There would be large protection to property and wealth if it was applied by the public. For weeks one can scarcely pick up a paper from any city without seeing stories of robberies where large sums of currency had been lost. It is folly to carry large sums on the person. The fact that it is carried is certain to become known. That means trouble, possible loss of life when robbery is tried. Put your money in a bank. Pay your bills by check, and protect yourself from attack.

The amount of work that is good for a man is not so hard to determine. If he has put himself into the job doing his—well, his best—with pep and enthusiasm, until he is so tired he wants to go home and chop some wood, eat supper, walk a few miles and then sleep soundly eight hours, he has probably done enough for one day.

Lansing.—According to reports from Washington the income tax collection in Michigan amounted to $29,379,091.

Lansing.—A proclamation issued by Governor Sleeper calls upon all communities to adopt eastern standard time during spring and summer.

Saginaw.—Saginaw has gone back to eastern standard time, with all except steam railroads and circuit court and justice courts operating under that time.

Powdermill.—A double funeral was held here for Mr. and Mrs. William Caskey. Mrs. Caskey, 67 years, died of typhoid pneumonia, and Mr. Caskey, 68, was stricken while he was arranging for the burial of his wife.

Big Rapids.—As an expression of appreciation of former business relations with farmers, D. Mansfield Remus has offered his elevator and coal yards at Rodney to the Rodney Co-operative association at a big personal sacrifice.

Charlotte.—Petitions have been circulated in Olivet and Bellevue asking that the Michigan Public Utilities or Michigan State Telephone Co. to relocate free toll service between the two. Free toll prevailed for 16 years, until last summer.

Gadillac.—The old potato crop in Michigan will last until the new crop comes from the South if producers do not ship too rapidly, the Michigan Potato Growers' Exchange experts here say. The price will remain around $5.75 for the rest of the season, it is expected.

Charlotte.—Mrs. Eva Martens, of Nashville, attempted to ford Quaker Brook, swollen by spring floods. The buggy upset, throwing Mrs. Martens and her small son into the water. Mrs. Martens was able to save her and the boy. A crate of eggs was rescued with only one egg broken.

Lansing.—Harry Lake, in years old, was struck and killed and Vincent Mackinder was injured by an automobile while they were removing a rope from a car parked on the street. The driver fled after the accident. The automobile was stolen and was later found with broken windshield.

Lansing.—L. Whitney Watkins, Manchester, member of the state board of agriculture, announced here that he would not be a candidate for the nomination of Governor on the Republican ticket. This decision, he says, is due to the labor problem on his large farm which requires his attention.

Pontiac.—Pontiac business frontage values were given another boost when the National block, owned by A. L. Moore, local attorney, sold at $500,000 a foot, the deal aggregating more than $382,000. The property had been held by Mr. Moore less than 60 days and was purchased in the neighborhood of $250,000 a foot.

Flint.—Coal mining operations will be started here within a few weeks by the West Side Coal company, composed of Cleveland and Chicago operators, who have taken over leases in the west end of the city formerly held by What Cheer Mining company. The coal deposit covers a square mile, and is estimated to contain 4,000,000 tons.

Lansing.—During the calendar year 1919, the state paid $91,924.96 to owners of condemned cattle, when 1,447 animals were slaughtered in tuberculosis tests, according to statistics of the livestock commission. In that period 26,337 animals were tested and of this total, only 1,350 were classified as reactors, placing this percentage remarkably low at 5.9 per cent.

Grand Rapids.—According to a jury's verdict in divorcement in the case of Shugell company against Walter Shay, a husband is not responsible for debts contracted by his wife without his consent. Mrs. Shay, without his knowledge, purchased $55 worth of wearing apparel and then left him. The company sought to collect but the jury found no cause for action.

Kalamazoo.—"Michigan Baptists will volunteer $3,500,000." This telegram sent out from the state headquarters of the Michigan Baptist association to the National headquarters in New York, makes Michigan the first state in the Union to volunteer a definite pledge to the proposed $100,000,000 fund, which is the Baptists' share of the $336,777,572 fund to be raised by the Inter Church World Movement.

Owosso.—The board of education has decided to ask the people to vote a bond issue for the erection of a new high school to cost $250,000.

Lansing.—Establishment of a traffic department to serve all farmers of the state, with headquarters in Grand Rapids, has been decided on by the Michigan State Farm Bureau. Priority of service will be given to organizations of Farm Bureau members, but any farmers' organizations will get the benefit of the department's activities.

Grand Rapids.—Employers and employees in America must cooperate in increasing production, as a means to continued prosperity, says Ole Hanson, former mayor of Seattle, Wash., who declares that if this is not done men will soon be "begging for food instead of sneaking away from jobs." The man who downed the Seattle I. W. O. does not lay the present unpopularity to the door of bolshevism, but rather to the old law of supply and demand. He is preaching a warning to organized labor to use its power carefully.

Adrian.—Adrian has changed to eastern standard time under provisions of a resolution adopted by the city commission.

Pontiac.—George Smith, 25 years old, a laborer, was burned to death in a fire which destroyed the hospital building of the Public Seminary, at Orchard Lake.

Bay City.—While pursuing a mule, Edward James, Farmer, a minor, came in contact with a heavily charged electric wire in one of the mine entries and was instantly killed.

Ironia.—Harold Larson fought through Chateau-Thierry with the Red Arrow Division unhurt, but he fell out of a second story recreation office while washing a window and was seriously injured.

Monroe.—Leases covering 500 acres owned by farmers in Raisinville and Ida Townships, and running to Arthur Coe and William M. George, of Toledo, for drilling for oil and gas, have been filed here.

Detroit.—Eleven crippled children were severely bruised and shaken and a police officer seriously injured when a patrol wagon in which the children were being collected to go to school was struck by an automobile driven by Jesse B. McBride.

Pontiac.—Sixteen automobiles belonging to the Oakland Motor Car company burned while standing loaded in flat cars on the Grand Trunk siding north of the city. Sparks from a locomotive ignited the canvas covers used over the machines.

Standish.—The 9-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Bradish, of Turner, was accidentally shot just over the eye with a .32-caliber rifle by his brother, who was playing with the gun. He was rushed to Bay City hospital, where an operation was performed.

Kalamazoo.—On the ground that women can not act as jurors until the federal constitution has been amended, Attorney Harry Howard has filed a motion for a retrial of the case against Glenn Townsend, who was recently found guilty of manslaughter.

Grand Rapids.—The city's net budget as it was submitted to the commission amounts to $1,818,636.27, an increase of nearly $550,000 over last year's budget. The increase is represented almost entirely by higher wages. The board of education's budget is $1,567,376.50.

Detroit.—The renumbering of the city's dwellings as authorized by the city council has been begun by employees of the department of public works. It is estimated that at least 700,000 numbers will be changed. These numbers will not become official until 90 days after Aug. 1.

Detroit.—Deportation orders for 120 persons arrested by officers of the department of justice several months ago have finally been received by John L. Prentiss, chief immigration officer, from the department of labor, Washington. Sixty-six orders for the release of men arrested have also been received.

Grand Rapids.—Unless the movement of farmers to the city is immediately arrested America will be importing food from other countries within the next five years, says John I. Gibson, secretary of the Western Michigan Development bureau, one of the speakers at the farm short course school held throughout western Michigan.

Kalamazoo.—Judge Welmer, in circuit court has decided it is cruel for a wife to refuse her husband a kiss upon his return from France. Benjamin Everett Edwards sought a divorce on such grounds. After taking the case under advisement for several weeks, the court ruled the wife's conduct constituted extreme cruelty and granted the former soldier a divorce.

Big Rapids.—While preaching in the Rushfield church, here, Rev. A. L. Howlett of Lakeview, was struck by a bolt of lightning. Members of the congregation carried his stiffened body outside of the church to a pool of water. After immersion in the water the minister regained consciousness two hours later and will recover. Rev. Howlett's left side was badly burned.

Detroit.—Word of the suspension by the American Federation of Labor of the United Brotherhood of Maintenance of Way and Railway Shop Laborers has been received here. The refusal of the organization to relinquish jurisdiction over workers who, in the opinion of the central labor body, should belong to other international unions, is said to be the reason for the suspension.

Lansing.—Twenty-eight hundred deaths from cancer in Michigan during the calendar year of 1919 shows a rapid increase in the disease, according to figures compiled by vital statistics. In 1918 cancer claimed 2,781 deaths, in 1917 was fatal to 2,665. In 1919, deaths from cancer aggregated 6.3 per cent of the total in the state from all causes, as compared with 5.2 per cent in 1918 and 5.7 per cent in 1917. These are considerably above the United States percentage in 1915 which was 4.4.

Owosso.—Because Ray Patchell, Grand Trunk freight conductor, had four cars in interstate transit in his train when he was killed here last fall, the claim of his widow under the Workmen's Compensation Law was rejected. Courts have held that workmen employed in interstate commerce do not come under the compensation law of the railroad men in the state have no protection, excepting under the Federal Liability Law, under which they say it is difficult to obtain a judgment.

Nerves All Unstrung

"But Doan's Made Life Again Worth Living" Says Mrs. Harris

"I was in excellent health until my kidneys weakened," says Mrs. N. A. Harris, 409 Indiana St., Niles, Mich. "The kidney secretions builded me and passed as often I couldn't get a moment's rest. My back ached and for days at a time I was unable to do my work. I finally turned to Doan's and I feel like a new man."

"I lost strength and weight and as a result I became a nervous wreck. Head aches and dizzy spells added to my distress. My sight blurred. Hands and feet were swollen and puffy sacs came under my eyes. I lost hope of being well again. Finally a neighbor brought me a box of Doan's Kidney Pills, and later I got several boxes. My troubles began to lessen and soon I could sleep all night and wake up refreshed and happy and life was again worth living. I am now a strong, healthy woman and owe my health and happiness to Doan's. Sisters to be sure, J. A. DEARDORFF, Notary Public. Get Doan's at Any Store, 60c a Box. DOAN'S KIDNEY PILLS. FOSTER-MILBURN CO., BUFFALO, N. Y."

Balked His Desire. A gentleman and his wife were visiting some college buildings erected by wealthy alumni. Presently they came to a noble hall, over the main entrance of which was a tablet reading, "Erected by John C. Black, as a memorial to his beloved wife."

"Oh," he said with a sigh, "that is what I should like to do for my wife."

"And for the life of him he couldn't understand why his wife suddenly became cold to him."

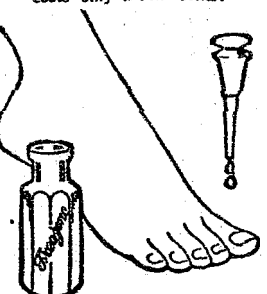

Purged Tongue, Bad Taste, Indigestion, Sallow Skin, and Malignant Headaches come from a torpid liver and sluggish bowels, which cause the stomach to become filled with undigested food, which sours and ferments, forming acids, gases, and poisons. Cascarets tonight will give your bilious liver and constipated bowels a thorough cleansing and straighten you out by morning. Cascarets never sicken or inconvenience you like nasty Calomel, Salts, Oil, or gripping Pills. They work while you sleep. Adv.

Possibly So. "This is kinda funny," commented Mrs. Field in the midst of her perusal of the village newspaper. "The editor of the Torch of Liberty refers right here to the hydrant-headed octopus of Wall street. Do you suppose that is a typographical error, or don't the editor know any better?"

"Oh, probably he means to insinuate that the octopus has water on the brain," replied honest Farmer Field. —Kansas City Star.

Lift off Corns!

Doesn't hurt a bit and Freezone costs only a few cents.

With your fingers! You can lift off any hard corn, soft corn, or corn between the toes, and the hard skin callosities from bottom of feet. A tiny bottle of "Freezone" costs little at any drug store; apply a few drops upon the corn or callous. Instantly it stops hurting, then shortly you lift that bothersome corn or callous right off, root and all, without one bit of pain or soreness. Truly! No humbug!—Adv.

JOHNSON EASILY WINS NOMINATION

CALIFORNIAN IS SELECTED BY MICHIGAN VOTERS TO HEAD REPUBLICAN TICKET.

EDWARDS IS DEMOCRATS' PICK

Heavy Vote in Wayne County Offsets Returns in Country—Marx Is Republican Committeeman.

Detroit. Herman W. Johnson is Michigan's choice for the Republican nomination for President. Johnson's tremendous lead in Wayne County, where he polled more votes than the other six candidates combined, gave him a sweeping victory.

Throughout the state, Johnson and Wood ran fairly close for the Republican choice, but in Wayne county Johnson went with such smashing strides that his totals put him far in the lead.

On the Democratic side, Edwards, the "Avowed" "wet" candidate seemed a sure winner although led at the start by Hoover and Bryan.

Wayne county added greatly in putting Edwards to the fore, as Bryan was leading Edwards out in the state for second choice. While Hoover was making the leading fight in Democratic ranks, he was playing a poor part in the Republican ranks.

Governor Lowden, of Illinois, ran a bad third throughout the state, although he crowded Wood for second place in Wayne. Hoover was lost in the state on the Republican ticket but ran a close fourth to Lowden. Pershing and Foindecker were out of the running.

Lowden's lack of showing is attributed to the light vote throughout the state, the farmers, with whom he was accounted strongest, failing to come out. Sunday's storm was given as the reason, roads being in bad condition.

Former Governor Fred M. Warner, who established what looked like a safe lead for Republican national committeeman out in the state, was beaten out by the Wayne vote by former Mayor Oscar B. Marx, of Detroit. Hal Smith, of Detroit, ran Mayor Marx a close second in Wayne, but did so little out in the state that he was easily outdistanced by the two leaders. State Senator Arthur Wood ran neck and neck with Smith for second place in Wayne, dropping heavily out in the state as well.

The minor presidential candidates on the Republican side—Pershing, Foindecker and Hoover—at no time figured in the running, while the lesser Democrats—McAdoo and A. Mitchell Palmer—were never near a possible chance to figure.

Former Recorder William F. Connolly, of Detroit, was the unopposed Democratic choice for national committeeman.

Mayor Couzens' municipal street railway ordinance won in Detroit, polling 63 per cent of the vote.

One of the unexpected developments of the day's voting in Detroit was the exhaustion of the city's supply of Socialist party primary ballots in the middle of the afternoon. These ballots bore the name of Eugene V. Debs as the candidate for the party's presidential nomination.

Voting was heavy in the townships throughout Wayne county, despite the unpleasantness of the weather. Interest had been aroused in the presidential primary contests and this, combined with the contests for township offices, made for a heavy vote.

The presidential contest drew out more women than ordinarily have voted in the county, most of them desiring to have a voice in the selection of an aspirant to the White House.

CENTRALIA SLAYING CASE ENDS

Seven I. W. W. Members Get 25 to 40 Years or Killing Soldier.

Montesano, Wash.—Seven I. W. W. members, convicted here March 13 of second degree murder for the slaying of Warren O. Grimm, Centralia armistice day parade victim, were sentenced to not less than 25 years nor more than 40 years each in the state penitentiary by Judge John M. Wilson after he had denied a defense motion for a new trial.

The men who were sentenced were Britt Smith, Ray Becker, James McInerney, Bert Hild, Eugene Barnett, John Lamb and O. C. Bland.

Fined For Smoking On Street Car. St. Louis.—Benjamin A. Bodmer, 21 years old, a foundry worker, was fined $25 by Police Judge Utner for smoking on a street car, all of the windows of which were closed. The technical charge was disturbing the peace.

Exported Shoes Imported Again. Seattle, Wash.—More than 250,000 pairs of men's shoes, shipped from the United States to Vladivostok two years ago, have been unloaded here for shipment to New York, where they will be put on American markets. The shoes were returned to the United States, shipping agents said, when Russian importers found they could not pay for them. Since they were exported, it was said, their value has increased so much that they were re-shipped to this country at a profit.

MOTHER GRAY'S SWEET POWDERS FOR CHILDREN

Used by Mothers for over 30 years

Are pleasant to take and a certain relief. They tend to break up a cold in 24 hours, act on the stomach, liver and bowels and tend to correct intestinal disorders and destroy worms. 10,000 testimonials like the following from mothers and friends of children tell of relief. Originals are on file to our offices:

"I think MOTHER GRAY'S SWEET POWDERS FOR CHILDREN are grand. They were recommended to me by a doctor. I am giving them to my little three year old girl who is very puffy, and she is picking up wonderfully."

Get a package from your druggist for use when needed. Do Not Accept Any Substitute for MOTHER GRAY'S SWEET POWDERS.

Justification. "The Artist—This statue is 'The Disk Thrower.' Wonderfully lifelike pose! The Other Fellow—Yep! I reckon that disk is one of the jazz records. Don't blame him a bit for chucking it."

LOOK AT ASPIRIN If the name "Bayer" is on tablets, you can get relief without fear.

When the Bayer Company introduced Aspirin over eighteen years ago, physicians soon proved it a marvelous help in relieving Rheumatism, Colds, Headache, Neuralgia, Earache, Toothache, Lumbago, Neuritis, Arthritis, Joints, and Pain in general.

To get this same genuine, world-famous Aspirin, you must ask for "Bayer Tablets of Aspirin," marked with the "Bayer Cross." You will find safe and proper directions in every unbroken package.

Handy tin boxes of 12 tablets cost only a few cents. Druggists also sell larger "Bayer" packages. Aspirin is the trade mark of Bayer Manufacture of Monocarbonylchloride of Salicylic acid.—Adv.

Stunned. "If labor persists in its arrogance," said the town man, "the time will come when the hired man who does a full and honest day's work will be denounced as a traitor by his class."

"The hired man who does—good gosh!—what?" astoundedly yelled Farmer Doughter.—Kansas City Star.

FRECKLES

Now is the Time to Get Rid of These Ugly Spots.

There is no longer the slightest need of feeling ashamed of your freckles, as Othine Othine Othine is guaranteed to remove these annoying spots.

Simply get an ounce of Othine—double strength—from your druggist, and apply a little of it at night and morning, and you should soon see that even the worst freckles have begun to disappear, while the lighter ones have vanished entirely. It is lighter than more than one ounce is needed to completely clear the skin and gain a beautiful complexion.

Be sure to ask for the double strength Othine, as this is sold under guarantee of money back if it fails to remove freckles.

Rare Sugar Found in Honey. Investigation of certain stores of crystallized honey found in various places in Pennsylvania where the bees had died from starvation led to the discovery of a quantity of rare sugar, known as melezitose, which has been extracted and purified and placed at the disposal of the bureau of chemistry. The weekly news letter of the department of agriculture says that melezitose is one of the rarest sugars. Minute quantities of it have been available to men of science for many years, but the supply has never been sufficient to permit of extensive experimentation. Now the United States department has several kilograms.

Her Meaning. "I heard that pretty little woman say the other day that she was going to do her best to make her Billy's life perfectly happy. She must be very much in love with her husband."

"That wasn't her husband she was talking about; it was her pet poodle."

The United States' Many Wars. The United States regular army has engaged in more than a hundred wars or military campaigns; about nine-tenths of them being with Indian tribes.—Independent, New York.

No Wonder. "I tell you, that girl rings true."

"No wonder, when she's a belle." —Baltimore American.

When used as a cloak religion is a misfit on most people.

Mr. Tucker was born in Freedom, was a graduate of the law department of the University of Michigan, and left here forty-five years ago. He is survived by his wife, four children, one brother and two sisters.

Since the railroads reverted to private ownership the Michigan public utilities commission has received a number of inquiries concerning the legal rate of fare in this state. The legislature a year ago made the rate for passenger fare two and one-half cents per mile, but the railroads continue to charge three cents. William M. Smith, chairman of the public utilities commission, explained that provision was made by the government in turning the roads back to private ownership that no state regulations should interfere with present operating conditions for a period of six months. The state rate of two and one-half cents per mile will not be effective until September 1, 1920.

THE VALLEY of the GIANTS

By PETER B. KYNE

Author of "Cappy Ricks"

Copyright by Peter B. Kyne

MODERN LIFE AMONG THE OLD, OLD REDWOODS

Here's good reading—a stirring tale by an able author about red-blooded people in an unique environment. Peter B. Kyne is as indigenous as the redwoods of which he writes with loving appreciation. Nevertheless, he has sailed the Pacific, been a soldier in the Philippines, and has served as a captain in France with the A. E. F. And the sheer merit of his literary workmanship has given this clerk in a California country store deserved nation-wide popularity as a short-story writer and novelist.

The characters in "The Valley of the Giants" are flesh-and-blood people—Americans—the sort we know—our kind: John Cardigan, pioneer lumberman among the redwoods, a strong man with a great heart, the soul of a dreamer and the unshaken faith of the frontiersman; he loves his redwoods even while he cuts his way to fortune through them. Colonel Pennington, the modern captain of industry, with no more conscience than a circular saw, no bowels of compassion, and contempt for the law except as a means of camouflage. Bryce Cardigan, present-generation American of the right kind, who takes up the fight when his father falls in the fray and successfully battles against odds to save his heritage, even while his heart is divided between his blind sire and his dearest enemy. Shirley Sumner, niece of Colonel Pennington, a first-class American girl, with a mind of her own, a heart, red blood and good sportsmanship.

And the story is as timely as its environment is unique. There is only one redwood country, and when the California redwoods are gone the redwoods are gone from the earth. John Cardigan and his like have laid most of them low, and threaten those that remain. So it is that a great cry has gone up from the people to save for future generations some of those forest giants that were full-grown when Christ was born—with their cousins the sequoias they are the oldest and biggest living things of earth. So it is that the "Save the Redwoods" league has sprung into existence. So it is that congress is investigating the conditions preparatory to legislation for the establishment of a Redwoods national park.

The American of the future will be able to see the Big Trees (Sequoia gigantea) in all their glory; Yosemite, Sequoia and General Grant national parks assure that. But unless money is provided for the purchase of a great grove of redwoods (Sequoia sempervirens) by congress, California or public subscription the redwoods are doomed to the ax and saw, with the exception of a few small and inadequate preserves. And among these same redwoods lies "The Valley of the Giants."

CHAPTER I.

In the summer of 1850 a topsail schooner slipped into the cove under Trinidad head and dropped anchor at the edge of the kelp-fields. Fifteen minutes later her small-boat deposited on the beach a man armed with long squirrel rifle and an axe, and carrying food and clothing in a brown canvas pack. From the beach he watched the boat return and saw the schooner weigh anchor and stand out to sea before the northwest trades. When she had disappeared from his ken, he swung his pack to his head and powerful back and strode resolutely into the timber at the mouth of the river.

The man was John Cardigan, in that lonely, hostile land he was the first pioneer. This is the tale of Cardigan and Cardigan's son, for in his chosen land the pioneer leader in the gigantic task of leaving a path was to know the bliss of woman's love and of parenthood, and the sorrow that comes of the loss of a perfect mate; he was to know the tremendous joy of accomplishment and worldly success after infinite labor; and in the sunset of life he was to know the dull despair of failure and ruin. Because of these things there is a tale to be told, the tale of Cardigan's son, who, when his sire fell in the fray, took up the fight to save his heritage—a tale of life with its love and hate, its battle, victory, defeat, labor, joy, and sorrow, a tale of that unconquerable spirit of youth which spurred Bryce Cardigan to lead a forlorn hope for the sake not of wealth but of an ideal. Here, then, is the tale of Cardigan's redwoods:

Along the coast of California, through the secret valleys and over the rounded foothills of the Coast Range, extends a belt of timber of an average width of thirty miles. In approaching it from the Oregon line the first tree looms suddenly against the horizon—an outpost, as it were, of the host of giants whose column stretches south nearly four hundred miles to where the last of the rugged mountains eternal sentry-keep on the coast of the mountains overlooking Monterey bay. Far in the interior of the state, beyond the fertile San Joaquin valley the effect of this vast array holds a small secret on the west slope of the Sierras.

These are the redwood forests of California, the only trees of their kind in the world and indigenous only to those two areas within the state. Notwithstanding sixty years of attrition, there remain in this section of the redwood belt thousands upon thousands of acres of virgin timber that had already attained a vigorous growth when Christ was crucified. In sizes ranging from five to twenty feet in diameter, the brown trunks rise perpendicularly to a height of from ninety to a hundred and fifty feet before putting forth a single limb, which frequently is more massive than the growth which men call a tree in the forests of Michigan. Scattered between the giants, like subjects around their king, one finds noble fir, spruce, or pines, with some Valparaiso live oak, black oak, pepperwood, madrone, yew, and cedar.

John Cardigan settled in Humboldt county, where the sequoia sempervirens attains the pinnacle of its glory, and with the best for conquest but in his blood, he flung upon a quarter-section of the timber almost on the shore of Humboldt bay—land upon which a city subsequently was to be built. With his double-bit axe and crosscut saw John Cardigan brought the first of the redwood giants crashing to the earth above which it had towered for twenty centuries, and in the form of split posts, railroad ties, pickets, and shakes, the fallen giant was hauled to tidewater in ox-drawn wagons and shipped to San Francisco. In the little two-masted coasting schooners of the period. Here, by the abominable magic of barter and trade, the dismembered tree was transmuted into dollars and cents and returned to Humboldt county to assist John Cardigan in his task of leaving an empire out of a wilderness.

Time passed, John Cardigan no longer swung an axe or dragged a crosscut saw through a fallen redwood. He was an employer of labor now, well known in San Francisco as a manufacturer of split-redwood products, the purchasers sending their own schooners for the cargo. And presently John Cardigan mortgaged all of his timber holdings with a San Francisco bank, made a heap of his winnings, and like a true adventurer staked his all on a new venture—the first sawmill in Humboldt county. The timber for it were hauled out by hand; the boards and planks were whipsawed.

It was a tiny mill, judged by present-day standards, for in a fourteen-hour working day John Cardigan and his men could not cut more than twenty thousand feet of lumber. Nevertheless, when Cardigan looked at his mill, his great heart would swell with pride.

"There," said John Cardigan to himself exultingly when a long-drawn yell told him his elder saw was biting into the first redwood log to be milled since the world began, "I shall build a city and call it Sequoia. By tomorrow I shall have cut sufficient timber to make a start. First I shall build for my employees better homes than the rude shacks and tent-houses they now occupy; then I shall build myself a fine residence with six rooms, and the room that faces the bay shall be the parlor. When I can afford it, I shall build more houses. I shall encourage tradesmen to set up in business in Sequoia and to my city I shall present a church and a school-house. We shall have a volunteer fire department, and if God is good, I shall, at a later date, get out some long-length fire-timber and build a schooner to freight my lumber to market. And she shall have three masts instead of two, and carry half a million feet of lumber instead of two hundred thousand. First, however, I must build a steam tugboat to tow my schooner in and out over Humboldt bar. And after that—ah, well! That is sufficient for the present."

Thus did John Cardigan dream, and as he dreamed he worked. The city of Sequoia was born with the Argonaut's six-room mansion of rough redwood boards and a dozen three-room cabins with lean-to kitchens; and the tradespeople came when John Cardigan, with something of the largeness of his own redwood trees, gave them ground and lumber in order to encourage the building of their enterprises. Also the dream of the school-house and the church came true, as did the steam tugboat and the schooner with three masts.

At forty John Cardigan was younger than most men at thirty, albeit he worked fourteen hours a day, slept eight, and consumed the remaining two at his meals. But through all those fruitful years of toil he had still found time to dream, and the spell of the redwoods had lost none of its potency.

At forty-two Cardigan was the first mayor of Sequoia. At forty-four he was standing on his dock one day, watching his tug kick into her berth the first square-rigged ship that had ever come to Humboldt for foreign delivery. She was a big bark-built clipper, and her master a lusty Dutchman, a widower with one daughter who had come with him around the Horn. John Cardigan saw this girl come up on the quarter-deck and stand by with a heaving-lie in her hand; calmly she fixed her glance upon him, and as the ship was shunted in closer to the dock she made the east to Cardigan. He caught the light heaving-lie, hauled in the heavy Manila stern-line to which it was attached, and slipped the loop of the mooring-cable over the dolphin at the end of the dock.

"Some men wanted aft here to take up the slack of the stern-line on the windlass, sir," he shouted to the skipper, who was walking around on top of the house. "That girl can't haul her in alone."

"Cat! I'm short-handed," the skipper replied. "Jump aboard and help her."

Cardigan made a long leap from the dock to the ship's rail, balanced there lightly a moment, and sprang to the deck. He inserted a belaying-pin in the windlass, paused and looked at the girl. "Raise a chantey," he suggested. Instantly she lifted a sweet contralto in that rollicking old ballad of the sea—"Blow the Man Down."

Round the windlass Cardigan walked, steadily and easily, and the girl's eyes widened in wonder as he did the work of three powerful men. When the ship had been warped in and the slack of the line made fast on the bits, she said:

"Please run fore'd and help my father with the hoistings. You're worth three foremen hands. Indeed, I didn't expect to see a sailor on this dock."

"I had to come around the Horn to get here, Miss," he explained, "and when a man hasn't money to pay for his passage, he needs must work it."

"I'm the second mate," she explained. "We had a succession of sales from the Falklands to the Evangelists, and there the mate got her in troups and she took three big ones over the tariff and out at eight o'clock. Working short-handed, we couldn't get any canvas on her to speak of long voyage, you know, and the rest of the crew got seamy."

"You're a brave girl," he told her. "And you're a first-class A. B.," she replied. "If you're looking for a berth, my father will be glad to ship you."

"Sorry, but I can't go," he called as he turned toward the companion ladder. "I'm Cardigan, and I own this sawmill and must stay here and look after it."

There was a light, exultant feeling in his middle-aged heart as he scowled along the deck. The girl had a wonderful dark wavy hair and brown eyes, with a milk-white skin that sun and wind had sought in vain to bleach. And for all her girlhood she was a woman—bred from a race (his own people) to whom danger and despair merely furnished a tonic for their courage. What a mate for a man! And she looked at him proudly.

They were married before the ship was loaded, and on a knoll of the bogged-over lands back of the town and commanding a view of the bay, with the dark-forested hills in back and the little second-growth redwoods flourishing in the front yard, he built her the finest home in Sequoia. Here his son Bryce was born, and here, two days later, the now-mate made the supreme sacrifice of maternity.

For half a day following the destruction of his Eden John Cardigan sat dumbly beside his wife, his great hand caressing the unborn head whose every thought for three years had been his happiness and comfort. Then the doctor came to him and mentioned the matter of funeral arrangements.

Cardigan looked up at him blankly. "Funeral arrangements?" He passed his gnarled hand over his leonine head. "Ah, yes, I suppose so. I shall attend to it."

He rose and left the house, walking with bowed head out of Sequoia, up the abandoned and decaying skid-road through the second-growth redwoods to the dark green blur that marked the old timber, up the skid-road recently swamped from the landing to the down timber where the crosscut men and barkpeelers were at work, on into the green timber where the woods-boss and his men were chopping.

"Come with me, McTavish," he said to his woods-boss. They passed through a narrow gap between two low hills and emerged in a long narrow valley where the redwoods grew thickly and where the smallest tree was not less than fifteen feet in diameter and two hundred and fifty feet tall. McTavish followed at his master's heels as they penetrated this grove, making their way with difficulty through the underbrush until they came at length to a little amphitheater, a clearing perhaps a hundred feet in diameter, oval-shaped and surrounded by a wall of redwoods of such dimensions that even McTavish, who was no stranger to those natural marvels, was struck with wonder.

"McTavish," Cardigan said, "she died this morning."

"I'm sore distressed for you, sir," the woods-boss answered. "We'd a whizzer in the camp yesterday that the lass was like to be in a bad way."

Cardigan scuffed with his foot a clear space in the brown litter. "Take two men from the section-gang, McTavish," he ordered, "and have them dig her grave here; then swing a trail through the underbrush and out to the donkey-landing, so we can carry her in. The funeral will be private."

McTavish nodded. "Any further orders, sir?"

"Yes. When you come to that little gap in the hills, cease your logging and bear off yonder." He waved his hand. "I'm not going to cut the timber in this valley. You see, McTavish, what it is. The trees here—ah, man, I haven't the heart to destroy God's most wonderful handiwork. Besides, she loved this spot, McTavish, and she called the valley her Valley of the Giants. I—I gave it to her for a wedding present because she had a bit of a dream that some day the town I started would grow up to yonder gap, and when that time came and we could afford it, I was in her mind to give her Valley of the Giants to Sequoia for a city park, all hidden away here and unsuspected."

"She loved it, McTavish, I was our playhouse, McTavish, and I who am no longer young—I who never played until I met her—I—I'm a bit foolish, I fear, but I found rest and comfort here, McTavish, even before I met her, and I'm thinking I'll have to come here often for the same. She was like this sunbeam, McTavish. She—she—"

"Ah," murmured McTavish huskily. "I ken. Ye wouldn't gie her a common or a public spot in which to wait for ye. An' ye'll be shuttin' down the mill an' losin' camp an' layin' off the hands in her honor for a bit?"

"Until after the funeral, McTavish. And tell your men they'll be paid for the lost time. That will be all, lad."

When McTavish was gone, John Cardigan sat down on a small sugarpine windfall, his head held slightly to one side while he listened to that which in the redwoods is not sound but rather the absence of it. And as he listened, he absorbed a subtle comfort from those huge brown trees, so emblematic of immortality; in the thought he grew close to his Maker, and presently found that peace which he sought. Love such as theirs could never die. . . . The tears came at last.

At sundown he walked home bearing an armful of rhododendrons and dogwood blossoms, which he arranged in the room where she lay. Then he sought the nurse who had attended her.

"I'd like to hold my son," he said gently. "May I?"

She brought him the baby and placed it in his great arms that trembled so; he sat down and gazed long and earnestly at this flesh of his flesh and blood of his blood. "You'll have her hair and skin and eyes," he murmured. "My son, my son, I shall love you so, for now I must love for two. Sorrow I shall keep from you, please God, and happiness and worldly comfort shall I leave you when I go to her." He nuzzled his grizzled cheek against the baby's face. "Just you and my trees," he whispered. "Just you and my trees to help me to hang on to a plucky finish."

For love and patience had come to him late in life, and so had his first great sorrow; therefore, since he was not accustomed to these heritages of all flesh, he would have to adjust himself to the change. But his son and his trees—ah, yes they would help.

And he would gather more redwoods now!

CHAPTER II.

A young half-breed digger woman, who had suffered the loss of the latest of her numerous progeny two days prior to Mrs. Cardigan's death, was installed in the house as nurse to John Cardigan's son, whom he called Bryce, the family name of his mother's people. A Mrs. Tully, widow of Cardigan's first engineer in the mill, was engaged as housekeeper and cook; and with his domestic establishment re-organized along these simple lines, John Cardigan turned with added eagerness to his business affairs, hoping between them and his boy to salvage as much as possible from what seemed to him, in the first pangs of his loneliness and desolation, the wreckage of his life.

While Bryce was in swaddling clothes he was known only to those females of Sequoia to whom his half-breed foster mother proudly exhibited him when taking him abroad for an airing in his perambulator. With his advent into company, however, and the assumption of his American prerogative of free speech, his father developed the habit of bringing the child down to the mill office, to which he added a playroom that connected with his private office. Hence, prior to his second birthday, Bryce divined that his father was closer to him than motherly Mrs. Tully or the half-breed girl. Moreover, his father took him on wonderful journeys which no other member of the household had even suggested.

Drought, cloudburst and blindness threaten to bring to naught John Cardigan's fifty years of endeavor.

Scottish Center of Industry. Dundee ranks as one of the leading industrial and commercial centers in northeastern and central Scotland. The district of Dundee is the center of the pure industry in the United Kingdom and practically all the raw jute imported into the country, which averages 1,200,000 bales annually, is consumed there. It is the staple industry of Dundee and employs normally about 35,000 workers.

On the Other Side. Little Philip had cried all night with toothache and upon receiving a nickel the next morning he went as usual to get candy again. His aunt, on coming home, and finding he had brought candy with her nickel, asked him: "Why, Philip, I thought you weren't ever going to eat candy again?" To which he replied: "Well, auntie, I'm not eating this candy on the toothache side."

You Can Not Be Deceived! This Package Protects You

You want Alabastine. Alabastine results alone will satisfy you. Alabastine results can be secured with no other material.

The Cross and Circle printed in red on the package is your guarantee of quality and results.

Alabastine is artistic, sanitary, durable and economical. Alabastine will permit you to put your own individuality in your home, match your rugs and furnishings and have complete color harmony in all your rooms. Combining and intermixing the different tints enables you to secure unlimited color effects.

Alabastine requires only pure, cold water to mix and can be used on all interior surfaces, plaster, wallboard, over smoked and grimy painted walls, or even over wall paper that is solid and has no raised figures or outline colors. Best paint dealers everywhere sell Alabastine. Write us direct rather than take a substitute.

FOUND HIS OCCUPATION GONE

Wearry Wanderer Another Victim of the Horrors of War, as He Explained to Housewife.

Women don't feed troops readily nowadays, with work so plentiful and men so badly needed in almost all occupations, and a tramp has to be a bit brighter than formerly with his excuses if he "gets by" the average housewife with a hard-luck tale. One that came to the back door of a Muncie residence the other day will not fail to make good in his particular "profession" anywhere.

"I'm out of work," he explained to Mrs. Housewife, as she stood frowning down on him, "because the war destroyed the only occupation I ever had been taught—the occupation my father taught me and that I always had followed until this terrible war came on."

"What was your job the war ended?" asked Mrs. Housewife, a shade of interest and even of commiseration entering her voice as she spoke. "Tramping, mum," was the almost tearful reply.—Indianapolis News.

Varied Cimes, Varied Habits.

Natives of hot climates who spend much time in the water rarely use soap except for a shave or shampoo. The Eskimo is a reckless bather during the fishing season, when he is forced to wade to disentangle his nets, but his wife and family think handling wet nets absolves them from further bathing rites.

Awkward. Speaking of names, we heard the other day of a man named William Arrinnee, and every time he told it to a woman she took it for a proposal.—Exchange.

Important to Mothers. Examine carefully every bottle of CASTORIA, that famous old remedy for infants and children, and see that it bears the Signature of Dr. J. C. Fletcher.

In Use for Over 30 Years. Children Cry for Fletcher's Castoria.

DON'T WHINE IN SICK ROOM

Remember to Carry Cheer, Not Sympathy to Those Who Are Temporarily "Shut In."

Every one is called upon now and then to visit the sick room. Conditions surrounding the bedside visitations present a wide variation. There is one rule that holds good under all conditions, and that is to carry cheer and sunshine—not a long face, but a smile. If the patients are able talk to them of what is going on outside. Help them to forget themselves. A man who for over twenty years had been paralyzed, was visited by a friend who was profuse in expressing his sympathy and regret at the sick man's helplessness. As he was about to leave, the afflicted man said, "Come again, won't you, but when you do please forget to tell me that you are sorry for me as every one tells me that. I've heard it every day for twenty years. Help me to forget it. Bring me a breath of the outside world."

Flowers are always a gracious help in making the sickroom a place of cheer. A book or a magazine also helps.—Thrift Magazine.

Signs of It.

"I am sure that man is coming here with a bill."

"What makes you think that?"

"He has such a collected manner."

It's surprising how much respect a worthless man is capable of generaling for himself.

A friend in need clings to you for all you are worth.

For Middle-Aged—Men and Women

It isn't always on-coming old age that causes men and women in the middle years of life to slow up and feel a loss of ambition and energy. Weak or disordered kidneys do not filter waste matter and impurities out of the blood as they should, and backache, tired feeling, lameness, stiff joints, sore muscles, rheumatic pains, biliousness, irritation of the bladder, puffiness under the eyes or other symptom or ailment appears.

SHE WAS GREATLY BENEFITED
"I feel so much better than I did before I got Foley Kidney Pills. They are fine and you may use my name in your advertisement, I am glad to help you, as your medicine helped me greatly. I truly hope some one else who needs it will get some of your medicine. Your Kidney Pills are wonderful. I cannot thank you enough for them." Laura Perry, 1540 Twigg St., Augusta, Ga.

FOLEY KIDNEY PILLS

strengthen the kidneys, stimulate the bladder and tone up the liver. They help the kidneys remove the accumulated poisons and soothe and heal the passages. When the kidneys and urinary tract are doing their work perfectly, the whole system is benefited and restored to health and strength. Why suffer when a reliable remedy can be so easily had?
