Howard Walz Badly Bruised When His Car Turtled Just South North Lake Corner.

Howard Walz, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Walz of this place, was painfully injured and had a narrow escape from death early Monday morning when his automobile overturned on the Chelsea-North Lake road, just south of the North Lake corner.

He was returning from the Frazier farm at North Lake at the time and must have been driving at high speed as the tracks showed that the car careened from side to side of the road before it finally turned completely over and landed crossways of the road in an upright position. One of the rear wheels was broken.

The top was down and Mr. Walz was thrown clear of the car and probably struck on his hip. He is badly bruised and was unconscious for some time, and lay in the road until daylight when he was found and taken to the Eisenbeiser home nearby. Later, he was removed to the home of his parents in this place.

Fortunately, no bones were broken, but his hip is badly swollen and he suffered considerably from the shock and from the numerous bruises.

ACCIDENT AT FRANCISCO

Michigan Central Freight Conductor Dies From Injuries.

W. B. Mamie of Detroit, a Michigan Central freight conductor, was fatally injured Saturday afternoon when he was knocked from the side of his train and fell beneath the wheels of the way car, dying about two hours after the accident.

The freight train, west bound, was running on the siding at the time, and Mamie was leaning out from the forward step of the way car, presumably to hand some papers to the agent at Francisco. He was struck by a post and knocked from his car and under the wheels. The unfortunate man's left leg was cut off above the knee and the fingers of his left hand mashed. He was rushed to the Foote Memorial hospital in a special car, but died about two hours after his arrival there.

Mr. Mamie lived in Detroit and is survived by his widow and four children. He was well known by local railroad men.

THE UNIVERSAL CAR

Initiation "Ford" parts are being sold by many mail-order houses, down-town stores and garages in unsuspecting Ford owners as "Ford" parts. But they are not Genuine Ford parts made by the Ford Motor Company. They are made by concerns who have no connection whatsoever with the Ford Motor Company. These imitation parts are not even made from the same grade of steel, or under the same formulas used by the Ford Company. They are counterfeit parts. Tests have shown them to break when the genuine Ford parts didn't even bend, and they generally are from thirty-five to one hundred per cent lower in quality.

The Authorized Ford Dealer is your protection. As such, we handle nothing but the Genuine Ford parts. They are made from the famous Ford Vanadium Steel and each part—according to its use—is heat-treated in the way that will give it the longest wearing qualities. ## THE AMERICAN LEGION

(Copy for This Department Supplied by National Headquarters of the American Legion.)

THE WORK IN PATERNALISM

Policy of Adopting Orphaned Children is Arousing Interest All Over the Country.

A total of three French war orphans, two girls and a boy, had already been assured of adoption in the American Legion's campaign for continuation of the late A. E. F.'s overseas paternalism, by contributions received at national headquarters of the Legion up to the close of business on May 25.

The forty-two members of the national headquarters staff of the Legion contributed $150 for adoption of the first two orphans, and the American Red Cross will be asked to select for them a boy and a girl wait as mascots for the next year or more.

Miss Lula B. Vize, a member of the headquarters staff, assisted in raising the money for the orphans.

The first post to send in its $75 contribution to the fund was Karl Ross post No. 16, Stockton, Cal. In a letter of transmittal, Ted Cloudsley, a member of the post and editor of the San Joaquin Legion, official American Legion newspaper of San Joaquin county, Cal., writes in part:

"We were told that there was a wide range of choice for us, so I hope you can secure us our war orphan a little Alsace-Lorraine girl of from six to ten years whose father was killed in battle. You see, we have a big post here and a big twice-a-month newspaper and such a little orphan would suit the boys best because of the sentiment attached."

"Please be sure that we receive the little one's picture and address. We will put her picture in our publication and would like to have her write to us. At Christmas time, too, we will be able to remember her."

THE RETURN OF THE DEAD

Red Cross Will Send Advance Notification of Arrival of Bodies From Over There.

The American Red Cross, as an especial courtesy to the American Legion, hereafter will send advance notification of the arrival of the bodies of American soldiers from overseas to posts of the Legion in towns and cities in which reinterment is to be made.

The Red Cross home service in each community will receive notice from Hoboken and in turn notify the relatives of the decedent and inform the Legion. Information will be received in time for local posts to make arrangements for the reception of the bodies and to provide for the funeral honors due their dead comrades. Where there is more than one Legion post in a community, the county headquarters of the Legion will be notified, that it may designate the post or posts which shall render the honor.

Attends Vocational Conference.

At the request of Uel W. Lunkin, chief of the division of rehabilitation of the Federal Board for Vocational Education, Gerald J. Murphy, national vocational officer of the American Legion, was designated by the national commander, Franklin D'Olier, as the legion's representative to attend a recent conference of the board's district vocational officers at Washington, D. C., recently. The legion has inaugurated a plan of co-operation with the federal board, extending to each of the more than 9,000 posts of the organization in every state and community throughout the United States and many foreign countries, by which thousands of disabled ex-service men are being rounded up and gotten into immediate training every week. Plans for continuing the campaign until every pending case is definitely settled and all eligible persons are receiving the vocational training to which they are entitled, were laid at the conference.

Who Gen. George Crook Was.
The latest issue of The Crook Whizz-Bang, published bi-monthly at Chicago by Gen. George Crook Post No. 434, American Legion, contains an interesting biographical sketch of the military leader of Civil war fame after whom the post is named. "He fought the Indians tooth and nail as commander of the departments of the Platte and Arizona," the article reads. "His last official duties were performed as head of the Department of Missouri."

Will Erect Memorial Building.
Rice-Hamilton Post No. 20 of Russellville, Ark., is planning the erection of a $75,000 memorial building, $50,000 of the amount being already subscribed. The post has 150 members.

SERVICE RECORD OF NATION

City, County and State Histories Will Afford Voluminous and Valuable Data.

If the present progress in making county and city and state war histories is maintained, there will be a vast library of local "who-who in the war" books by the year 2020.

Not only are towns, counties and states preparing their own war histories, but colleges and schools of all kinds also are getting up collective service records. Large industrial concerns are doing the same thing.

Best results in history making seem to have been achieved in counties, where the records of the county draft board served as a starting point and where all other sources of information have been utilized. Livingston county, Illinois, furnishes a typical example of a county which has been painstaking in its effort to compile a reliable war history.

A committee of seven was appointed in this county to have charge of the soldiers' and sailors' record. Before the records of the local exemption board were closed, a list was compiled of all registrants of the county who had entered the service by enlistment or induction, the date of entry into the service and the camp to which they were first sent. Newspaper notices were combed to obtain as many additional names as possible. The list was then published in the newspaper with the request that all names not included be reported to the war records committee.

A questionnaire then was mailed to each service man or woman. Follow-up letters were used to insure the return of the questionnaires. The questionnaires had spaces for practically all the information which appears on the soldier's discharge certificate and for many other details, such as citations in full and special honors. A special section will be devoted to the records of those who died in service. Their photographs will be included.

LAUDS SPIRIT OF MEMBERS

Hilton Brown, Jr., Post No. 85, of Indianapolis, Composed of Union Men, Applauds Expose.

The Hilton U. Brown, Jr., Post No. 85 of the American Legion at Indianapolis, composed mostly of members of organized labor, recently adopted the following resolution:

"WHEREAS, Several members and prospective members of the Hilton U. Brown, Jr., Post (No. 85, Indiana) American Legion, have been asked by outsiders to drop their membership in the legion or to refrain from making application for membership because of the imagined incompatibility of membership in the legion held simultaneously with membership in a labor organization; and,

"WHEREAS, Most of the members of the aforesaid post are also members of labor organizations in the printing trades; and,

"WHEREAS, It is fair to assume that they have been able to find out by experience whether there is anything in the oath or obligations of either their union or the legion which in any way interferes with or compromises the objects of the other in its particular field of activities; and,

"WHEREAS, The members of the aforesaid post regret the credence given to false rumors that the legion is in any way committed to a policy at variance with a cordial and wholesome attitude toward all staunch American citizens eligible to membership;

"THEREFORE, Be It Resolved, That the Hilton U. Brown, Jr., Post (No. 85, Ind.) American Legion, condemn the misrepresentations which have falsely defined its attitude toward free thought and free action within the limits of the law, and applauds the spirit of its members and prospective members who exposed the insidious practices of anti-American agitators and stood on the rights of free men."

Father is Appreciative.

A striking tribute to the Legion's humanitarianism was recently paid by J. J. Gater of Clarksburg, W. Va., in an address at exercises under the auspices of the Parrish post of that city. Mr. Gater told how his son, contracted tuberculosis in the service and was discharged and sent to his home in a dying condition. The Legion's service division at national headquarters took charge of the case, obtained proper medical treatment and compensation and back pay. "Today, through the efforts of the American Legion," the father said, "my son is living and everything is in as good condition as could be expected. Any movement that has for its object the extending of the helping hand to comrades in need is a noble and worthy movement." The address was published in full in the Potomac Herald, official journal of the National Brotherhood of Operative Pottery and East Liverpool (O.) Trade and Labor council.

R-r-revenge!

Passing through a military hospital, a distinguished visitor saw a horribly wounded private from one of the Irish regiments. "When are you going to send that man back to the States?" he inquired. "He ain't going back to the States—he's got 'back to the front," an orderly informed him. "Back in the front?" exclaimed the visitor. "But, man, he's in awful shape!" "Yes," replied the orderly, "and he thinks he knows who done it."

DADDY'S EVENING FAIRY TALE

MR. AND MRS. ROBIN.

"I told you," said Daddy, "of the parent robins who had their nest under the eaves by a balcony where a lady used to sit most of the days sewing and reading."

"Well, after the little ones grew strong enough to go out with their family and by themselves they all did a great deal of marketing."

"Robins know where the best worms are to be found in the lawn, just as ladies know where the best lettuce is to be found, and which grocers have the best vegetables and which fruit men have the best fruit for sale."

"One day a man from the city came with his wife to visit the lady of the balcony. He was so glad to be where there was a lawn and green grass that he whistled for very joy."

"Mr. and Mrs. Robin put their heads on one side and listened and then put their heads on the other side and listened."

"Isn't it nice," said Mr. Robin, "to think he is enjoying it so?" "Ah, yes," said Mrs. Robin, "I fear sometimes we get a little selfish and forgetful of all the creatures who are not fortunate enough to have green lawns; and cool baths when it is dry weather, in little pans of water which are fixed here for us."

"We have so much that is lovely. And above, we can see the clouds moving along, going so rapidly along! After the rain they dash across the sky, clearing it all up for the fine weather, chasing the dark clouds away."

"It makes us sing when the sun shines and when the rain comes and cools off things. But I think, dear Mr. Robin, it would be nice if you sang one of your best songs for the city people."

"You could just let the city man, who is so happy at the sight of the country that he is whistling for very joy, know that even the little robins are glad to help make the holiday a pleasant one. Why don't you sing him a song?"

"I will," said dear, obliging little Mr. Robin.

"So he sang a song, and the man stopped whistling and listened, and then, when it was through, he tried to whistle notes as the robin had sung, and Mrs. Robin chimed and said: "That is fine, fine. We love to hear you whistle and to hear the joyful sounds in your voice!"

"Do look around and see how the whole garden is welcoming you. There are the hens and chickens—not real hens and chickens, but the yellow flowers which are called hens and chickens. Don't they make the garden look lovely and old-fashioned and dear?"

"And there are the single pink roses and the white roses which were set out here years and years ago by a dear little girl who is now a grandmother with growing grandchildren. Aren't she put out a very joy?"

"And while this month has been colder than it usually is at this time of the year, we haven't had to suffer with the heat and the flowers have all come out, helped by good Mr. Sun."

"If you look down the garden path you will find a great big rose—a beautiful pink rose—and around it are many little roses coming out. That is Mother Pink Rose and those are her little baby buds which are coming out soon, and there are four pink roses, great big ones, on the bush next to it."

"The gay yellow marigolds, so bright and happy, are coming out each day, and so are the nasturtiums, which make such lovely decorations and which look so gay."

"The poppies of many colors are blooming beautifully. If only for a short time, and the yellow poppies are nodding their heads and trying, too, to greet you."

"Soon," said Mr. Robin, "the tall white lilies will be coming out and adding more fragrance to the garden. They like to come out around the Fourth of July, to add to that great day."

"The purple Monks' hood flowers, which look like the Canterbury bells, are soon coming out, too, and the little bellies along the ground are saying how much they like the summer time, even if they do run chances of being used for food by other creatures."

"Ah, people from the city," Mrs. Robin said, "we greet you and are glad that we can all look our best for you."

False Claims.

WE hope there is no Mother who thinks she can treat her sick baby without calling in a Physician, or with remedies that she uses for herself.

Most Mothers know that Baby requires remedies especially prepared for babies, yet there are some who think that what is good enough for them is good enough for Baby, and it is to these Mothers we appeal to give nothing to their babies that is not specially prepared for babies or recommended by their Physician.

False claims may kill, but false claims can never restore your child.

For over thirty years Fletcher's Castoria has been aiding in the reduction of the deaths among infants as Mothers have become more and more acquainted with it. Always keep it in the house.

Children Cry For Fletcher's CASTORIA

Mothers Must Use Care.

Why do we so often call your attention to imitations of Fletcher's Castoria? Because it is a baby's medicine and imitations are always dangerous, particularly imitations of a remedy for infants.

Your druggist may not keep an imitation but they are to be found on drug-store shelves. Reliable druggists think only of the welfare of their customers. The other kind only of the greater profit to be made on imitations.

Your own judgment tells you that Fletcher's Castoria having for over thirty years at great expense held up its reputation, must jealously guard it. Then, it follows that this company must use the very best of material. Must employ experts in the selection of the herbs. Must retain skilled chemists in its manufacture.

Your same good judgment must tell you that these irresponsible imitators are trading on your credulity and the reputation built up by Mr. Fletcher, during all these years, for his Castoria.

HUNT'S SALVE CURES IT!

BRED in the war trenches of Europe, a wave of ordinary itchy skin disease, known as "Hunt's Itch," has always been prevalent, following wars and the concentration of armies. It was common during the Civil War and following that conflict. There was an epidemic of the itch after the Spanish-American War. Now history is repeating itself after the great European struggle.

Returned soldiers and those with whom they come in contact will find a recognized remedy for the itch in Hunt's Salve, commonly known as "Hunt's Itch Cure." Many a veteran of the late war will testify to its merits. If directions are followed HUNT'S SALVE will prove a never failing cure for all forms of the itch, and your druggist will tell you so. He sells HUNT'S SALVE under a strict guarantee to refund the purchase price to any dissatisfied user.

A Medford, Oklahoma man, among thousands who praise HUNT'S SALVE, says: "I had it badly. Your Hunt's Salve, however, cured me after many other remedies had failed. One box completed the cure—the first application afforded wonderful relief. My advice to those who have the itch, is to use Hunt's Salve."

Hunt's Salve is especially compounded for the treatment of ITCH, PILES, RHEUMATISM, and other itching skin diseases and it sold on our list by all reliable drug stores, or it will be sent direct by mail if your local store cannot supply. Price 15c per box.

ASKS $4,000,000 FOR BIG SEMINARY

BISHOP GALLAGHER LAUNCHES GREAT CATHOLIC CAMPAIGN IN DIOCESE.

PLANS BEST INSTITUTION IN U. S.

Priests and Laymen Will Call On Every Church-Gear for Share of Fund.

Beginning Sunday, July 4, the Catholics of the Diocese of Detroit, outside of the city of Detroit and its suburbs, will take up the task of raising their share of the $4,000,000 minimum fund which His Lordship, the Rt. Rev. Michael J. Gallagher, D. D., Bishop of Detroit, has asked for the building, equipping and endowing of the proposed new Sacred Heart Seminary. The movement for this institution, which promises to be the largest and finest training school for priests in America, is regarded as the most comprehensive and one of the most important campaigns ever undertaken by a Diocese of the Catholic Church.

RT. REV. MICHAEL J. GALLAGHER, D. D., BISHOP OF DETROIT.

The need for the Seminary is the need for relieving the grave shortage of priests that has existed in the Detroit Diocese for several years. Much important work of the Catholic Diocese has been retarded because of this scarcity, and it was in recognition of this fact that in metropolitan Detroit, where the campaign was held May 16 to May 31, the people called upon to do their share responded so generously that predictions are now being freely made that the Diocese will "go over the top" of the minimum fund asked.

The Bishop's Dearest Wish.

One of the first needs of the Diocese that His Lordship, Bishop Gallagher, recognized, on coming to Detroit, two years ago, was that of a seminary. In his address at the ceremony of his consecration, he announced his determination to make every effort to provide this training school, where boys from every part of the Diocese might receive the education and training necessary for the fulfilling of their vocations.

The first step toward carrying out this determination came in March, when the pastor and two representative laymen from every parish in the Diocese were called to a great mass meeting in Detroit. At that meeting Bishop Gallagher announced the plans for the Sacred Heart Seminary Campaign.

Catholic Census Taken. At the direction of His Lordship, a complete census of all Catholics in every parish of the Diocese was taken. Every Catholic head of a family and every Catholic of independent means or income was listed.

Then a committee of Catholic laymen, representing the most prominent business men of Detroit, was called in and asked to perfect the plans for the campaign. Work started about April 1, and Detroit and its suburbs were ready when the formal solicitation of funds was undertaken on May 16.

The official emblem of the campaign is a cross mounted on a rock, in the national colors. This emblem, reproduced on stationery, on desk, home and store window cards and in posters, is to be spread broadcast throughout the Diocese. Every Catholic home will have a window card and many business places will display them in their windows.

"It's God's Work."

"It's God's work; God wills it," was adopted as the official slogan of the campaign, and appears, with the emblem, on all printed matter produced in connection with the movement.

To carry the message of the campaign, and its aims and purposes, a speakers' bureau of priests has been put at work. Nearly 100 clergymen have been taken from their regular charges for the period of the campaign, and sent to various parishes to talk at all Masses on Sundays, of the need for generous contributions. Each parish in the Diocese will hear a different priest for three Sundays, and on the third Sunday the actual solicitation of funds from the great body of Catholics is undertaken in all parishes of the four districts into which the Diocese is divided.

The executive committee has announced that one of the official slogans of the campaign is, "Once in a lifetime." Never before, it is pointed out, have the Catholics of Detroit Diocese been asked to take part in a great Diocesan undertaking of this nature. And never again, if each does its share in this movement, will they be asked to contribute to the Sacred Heart Seminary. The endowment plan, in which the campaign is being conducted, provided that once built, the institution shall stand, for all time to come, free of debt, free of taxes for repairs, maintenance or extensions.

Contributions are being sought from the "big givers" in three classes. Promoterships may be endowed at $25,000 each. This sum, properly invested, will return an income sufficient to forever maintain one professor at Sacred Heart Seminary.

Scholarships, at $5,000 are sought, for the income from this amount of money, will forever provide a fund sufficient to meet the cost of educating one boy through the full seminary course. By means of the scholarship, when one boy has finished his training in Sacred Heart Seminary, another takes his place, and another and another so long as the institution shall stand. For $1,500, both principal and interest, one boy may be educated in the proposed seminary for the full course of six years.

Open to All Catholic Boys.

Sacred Heart Seminary will forever be open to boys of Detroit Diocese who feel that they have a vocation for the priesthood, and the endowment feature of the institution provides that they may receive the necessary training there whether they have money or not.

A site of 17 acres in the beautiful residential section of Northwest Detroit has already been purchased and plans are now being drawn for the several buildings which will make up the Sacred Heart Seminary group.

WAS IT BERGDOLL?

Last week there drove up to the country garage of Charles Loepke on the Stockbridge road, seven miles southeast of Mason, a young man in a Hudson speedster. His motor was acting badly and he was very anxious to have it repaired at once. "I am making a test run to Detroit," he said. While Mr. Loepke examined the machine he anxiously watched the road towards Mason, and every minute or two inquired how long he would be delayed. Ira Hewes who lives nearby, was present and tried to talk with the fellow, but all the stranger would offer was that he must be on his way with all possible speed, as the Hudson Motor Co. was anxious to make a good showing. When questioned about details, he was very evasive. The motor was soon repaired and he left in a cloud of dust, with a final furtive glance at the road behind him.

Later in the day, Mr. Hewes happened to pick up a paper giving a description of Bergdoll, the famous millionaire army deserter who recently escaped from custody, and believes the man with the Hudson may have been him.—Mason News.

25,000 CASES TUBERCULOSIS.

Officials of the American Legion have made an estimate that there are 1,100 cases of tuberculosis among the ex-service men of Michigan. This fact was brought out in connection with the recent squabble over the use to which the $200,000 in the "war chest" fund is to be put. The statement has filled a great many people with amazement. It has opened their eyes, and for the first time they are giving some thought to the enormous problem presented by this fact.

With 1,000 ex-soldiers suffering from tuberculosis goes the other equally arresting fact that there are at present in the whole of Michigan considerably less than 1,000 sanatorium beds. This includes all available beds in the state, county, city, and private sanatoria. No pretense could be made to accommodate all the ex-soldiers who have the disease.

But the soldier tuberculosis are only a few of the state's victims of that disease. The Michigan State Anti-tuberculosis association has been insisting that Michigan has 25,000 cases and that statement will probably gain more credence now that so relatively small a class as the state's soldiers are admitted to have 1,100 cases.

Our Ambition : Ideal Telephone Service for Michigan

The Michigan State Telephone Company has set itself earnestly to the task of making the telephone service in Michigan as near ideal as possible.

To us, ideal telephone service is summed up as follows:

- First—When the service given present subscribers is as intelligent and as nearly perfect as human ingenuity and mechanical accuracy can make it.
- Second—When every home and business, that has any use for a telephone, has one.
- Third—When there is a mutual understanding between the Telephone Company and its subscribers, that fosters confidence and encouragement and courtesy.

The attainment of such an ideal calls for the best brains, the nimblest fingers, the most careful training, the expenditure of vast sums in buildings and material—yet it is a task that we are entering upon with all the enthusiasm of an age when mighty things are being accomplished.

There will be many obstacles and discouragements, but honest effort will overcome them all.

It is our purpose in these announcements, from time to time, to tell you of the progress we are making, and if we can know that we have your confidence and co-operation it will lend strength to our efforts and courage to our hearts.

Major Robert E. Marsh Appoints Men Who Have Earned Their Rank

June 15, Major Roy C. Vandercook, who organized the Michigan State Police, gave up his place of command and was succeeded by Major Robert E. Marsh, formerly captain in charge of the upper peninsula troop. It had originally been intended that this change should take place May 1, but various matters of duty—including the conduct of the Brown murder case at Mt. Clemens—caused the former commander to retain his post longer than he had planned.

June 16, Robert E. Marsh took command of the Michigan State Police and at that time the new disposition and assignment of officers and troops was announced. The force under Major Marsh consists of the headquarters troop at East Lansing and four field troops with headquarters at Negaunee, Grand Rapids, Flint and Traverse City.

Captain F. W. High is in command of the headquarters troop and in charge of the school. Lieutenant William Davey is quartermaster. Connected with the headquarters troop is the Hudson detachment.

Captain A. A. Downing is in charge of Troop 1. Detachments are located at Trout Lake, Rock, Hermansville, Alfred, Iron River, Bessemer, Rockland and Manistiquio.

Captain Ralph G. Strobe is in command of Troop 2 at Grand Rapids, with patrols covering the surrounding section.

Lieutenants Caesar Scavarda and I. H. Marmion are in command of Troop 3, the former having charge of the Flint and Saginaw detachments and the latter the detachments at Plymouth, Rockwood, Rochester and Imlay City.

Captain Wakeman is in command of Troop 4, with Lieutenant John Fagan as second in command. Detachments are located at Gaylord, Pellston and Honor.

The new commander finds himself at the head of a staff of officers who are trained military men as well as being men who have distinguished themselves in the state police service. Some have been in the regular army, others in the National Guard and regular army, and others in the national guard.

The fact that promotions have been made from the ranks and that officers have won their way to the top by their own ability, has done much to increase the spirit and morale of the force, and the new leaders have given an incentive to those below them to seek promotion by the same means. As long as the remuneration of the officers of the state police is lower than what they might be expected to earn in civil life, there will be changes in the service from time to time and the men in the ranks can look forward to securing commissions later as they earn them by bravery and ability to do their duty well and intelligently.

Major Robert E. Marsh is a National Guard veteran, having served under Major Vandercook in the old days in the Lansing battery. His service in the state police has brought out qualities of leadership which made him the logical successor to Major Vandercook, as well as having the natural preference through seniority. When the first commander of the state police decided to return to newspaper work, Governor Albert E. Sleeper announced the appointment of Captain Marsh to fill the vacancy.

It will be recalled that Captain Marsh suffered a severe wound in the course of duty last year, when he was shot in the neck by a whiskey runner near Crystal Falls. He has almost entirely recovered from this injury.

Below are brief biographies of other officers of the force.

CAPT. CHARLES E. WAKEMAN, now in command of the Traverse City detachment, enlisted in the State Police early in June, 1917. He was first a sergeant in the Fourth Troop under Capt. Koch; served during the winter of 1917 at Detroit; was promoted to lieutenant in 1918, and shortly after he was detailed to take the Dundee detachment. He served with the Second Troop at Flint for a time and was later transferred to the Grand Rapids district. After serving as district commander he was promoted to captain, May 1, 1920, and given command of the Fourth Troop and sent to Traverse City to establish the post in that region.

CAPT. ARCHIE A. DOWNING enlisted in the Michigan State Police as a trooper June 17, 1917. After ten days' training at the post he was sent to the upper peninsula on strike duty. He has been in the upper peninsula ever since, with the exception of the period during which he served in the U. S. army. He returned to the Michigan State Police December 22, 1918. He has figured in many raids on I. W. W. and radicals, and will be remembered for his record-breaking ride from Bessemer to Iron River, over an untraveled road, covering the distance of 94 miles in 38 hours. He was in charge of a raid at Iron Mountain recently which netted 4,000 gallons of liquor.

CAPT. RALPH G. STROBE was a member of the Michigan National Guard and served under Col. R. C. Vandercook and Capt. Robert E. Marsh in Battery A, Michigan National Guard from May 7, 1914 to May 7, 1917. He was called into federal service July 15, 1917, with the Michigan National Guard. On October 31, 1917, he was commissioned second lieutenant of field artillery and served overseas with the 119th F. A., 32d Division. He saw service on the Alsace-Lorraine front and also the Toul front. He was commissioned first lieutenant, F. A., in August after he returned as an instructor to the United States, commanding Battery D, 33d F. A., from September 3, 1918 to December 13, 1918. He enlisted as a trooper in the Michigan State Police April 7, 1919, working his way up to the rank of captain. Capt. Strobe has been active in stopping the liquor traffic along the southern border, and he is now in charge of the western district, with headquarters at Grand Rapids.

LIEUT. WILLIAM DAVEY has been attached to the headquarters troop at East Lansing and is familiar with the office work and business management of the force. He is now quartermaster in charge of purchases and supplies.

Several additional officers will be appointed as the need arises. The force is now considerably below maximum strength and will be recruited during the summer. The pay of the State Police is $65 per month for recruits, with increases in a short time to $70 and $75 per month, the state furnishing uniform and subsis-

CAPT. F. W. HIGH is a veteran of the command. He is a veterinary surgeon by profession and has taken particular charge of the mounts of the command and of supplies and equipment in connection therewith, and also of stabling and general care of horses. However, Capt. High has also taken a part in the field work of the State Police and has been present when some important raids were made. He was with Capt. Marsh and Lieut. Vandervoort the night that Capt. Marsh was shot by a bootlegger near Crystal Falls.

LIEUT. JOHN FAGAN enlisted as a trooper in the Michigan State Police April 19, 1917. The following October he was made a corporal and in December he was made a sergeant. He resigned from the force early in 1918 to enter the army and after serving overseas, he returned in July, 1919. He re-enlisted in the State Police on August 1, 1919, as a corporal and was made a sergeant in October of that year. He was promoted to lieutenant May 1, 1920, and has served during his entire career with the Constabulary in the upper peninsula.

During his service abroad Lieut. Fagan became engaged to a French girl and they were recently married in New York.

LIEUT. CAESAR J. SCAVARDA has won his way up from the ranks by personality, nerve and exceptional ability. He has been stationed in the upper peninsula and is known from one end to the other of that district as being absolutely fearless and as being of the type that always gets his man. His service has been excellent throughout and he has made many excellent arrests and shown good judgment in varying situations.

LIEUT. I. H. MARMION enlisted in the Michigan State Police July 17, 1917, and was entrusted with important guard duty during the war at plants making munitions and supplies for the army. Afterward he spent four months in the Ohio border patrol during the time that whisky smugglers were most active. He was placed in charge of the investigation bureau at East Lansing May 1, 1919, and has been in charge of plain-clothes work for the department since. Previous to his service with the state police Lieut. Marmion was in the service of the United States government and the state of Mississippi in connection with civil engineering work and surveys.

LIEUT. WILLIAM DAVEY has been attached to the headquarters troop at East Lansing and is familiar with the office work and business management of the force. He is now quartermaster in charge of purchases and supplies.

Several additional officers will be appointed as the need arises. The force is now considerably below maximum strength and will be recruited during the summer. Saturday, Sept. 4th and Sunday Sept. 5th, the opening days of the annual exposition have been selected as automobile race days by Secretary Dickinson.

Sig. Haugdahl, the Scandinavian speed star, Fred Horey former world's track champion, Leon Duray, French speed marvel; Bob Cline, youthful Briscoe star; Louis Disbrow, ex-world's champion; R. Burr Lampkin, English racer and other veterans of the dirt track world are listed among the starters.

Loss of Appetite.

As a general rule there is nothing serious about a loss of appetite, and if you skip a meal or only eat two meals a day for a few days you will soon have a relish for your meals when meal time comes. Bear in mind that at least five hours should always elapse between meals so as to give the food ample time to digest and the stomach a period of rest before a second meal is taken. Then if you eat no more than you crave and take a reasonable amount of outdoor exercise every day you will not need to worry about your appetite. When the loss of appetite is caused by constipation as is often the case, that should be corrected at once. A dose of Chamberlain's tablets will do it. Adv.

"THE LITTLE PEOPLE."

Synopsis.—Spalding Nelson receives an invitation to dinner from his great-uncle, Rufus Gaston. On the way he notices Barbara Bradford and renders her a service. She lives in the same apartment building as the Gastons. They go there together. Gaston and his wife go to Maine for a trip and ask Nelson to live in their apartments. He accepts. The Gastons tell him of mysterious noises about the apartment—whispers heard from the wall. Nelson goes to the apartment a few days later. Nelson again meets Barbara, his accidental acquaintance. Nelson meets the building superintendent, Wick, and instinctively dislikes him. In a wall safe he finds a necklace of magnificent pearls. Next day Nelson finds the pearls have disappeared from the wall safe. His first idea of informing the police is not acted upon because of peculiar circumstances. He has been discharged from his position without adequate explanation or reason, and feels himself involved in something of a mystery. He decides to conduct an investigation himself. That night Barbara stands from the window of her apartment, which is opposite his, and they arrange a meeting for next day. In the morning he finds a note in his room, asking him why he had not informed the police of the loss of the jewels. Barbara tells Nelson her sister Claire had some years before made a run-away marriage with an adventurer, from whom she was soon parted, and the marriage had been annulled. Claire is engaged to be married and someone knowing of her escapade has molested documents concerning the affair from the Bradford apartment and is attempting to blackmail the Bradfords. Nelson and Barbara exchange confidences about the "whispers," mysterious notes and other queer doings, which are much alike in both apartments.

CHAPTER V—Continued.

I wondered which had been his bedroom. It was hardly likely that he had occupied the room in which I slept. As I debated the matter I heard someone moving about my room and went to investigate. It was Mrs. Burke, making up my bed. She would know which room my great-uncle had been accustomed to occupy.

As I entered the bedroom for the purpose of cross-questioning her, my first impression—and philosopher told me that the first is most likely to be the correct one—was of a simple-minded, kindly old Irish woman of the utmost honesty. I was certain just by looking at her that there wasn't a crooked hair in her head, even if she had had the intelligence necessary for crimes beyond the ordinary.

"Is Mr. Nelson in seeing at last," she exclaimed with satisfaction. "I was wondering when I would be laying eyes on ye."

"Yes," said I. "I am Mr. Nelson, Mr. Gaston's great-nephew."

"Sure and I'd have known ye anywhere. It's like ye are as two peas, barring the old gentleman's white hair."

Her statement rather startled me, for while I never had regarded myself as an Adams, on the other hand I never had supposed I looked anything like old Rufus.

"Was this my great-uncle's bedroom when he was here?" I asked, trying to make my inquiry seem casual.

"It was and it wasn't," Mrs. Burke replied. "He gets queer notions, the old gentleman does. In the last few weeks he's slept in every room in the house."

"What made him do that?"

"It's not for me to be saying." Deviously she crossed herself. "Sometimes I do be thinking the house is haunted."

"Sometimes I do be thinking the house is haunted. The old man was all the time mumbling about—"

She hesitated and looked furtively about.

"About whispers," I suggested. Instead of replying to my question she shot another one at me.

"Ar' bave ye been hearing them."

"I laughed, trying to put a note of merriment into my tones. "I don't believe in things like that."

The old woman nodded her head sagely.

"It ain't believing in them things that makes ye hear them. Either ye hear them or ye don't. The old man heard them."

"How do you know?"

"Didn't I hear him asking meself about it? He heard them, many times."

"How about the others—the servants—did they hear them, too?"

"They may have, but niggers is always hearing things anyhow. It's what the white folk hear that counts."

"How about the other apartments in the house? Do the people in them hear whispers?"

"Never that I've heard tell of, but how should I know? This is the only place in the house that I work."

"Did Mrs. Gaston ever speak to you about it?"

"She did and she did not. She never in so many words asked me if I heard them. All she says to me was, 'Nora, if ever you see or hear anything strange or unusual here, you're to let me know at once.' And I says, 'Yes, Mrs. Gaston, I will.'"

"And have you ever seen or heard anything?"

The old woman busied herself with making up the bed for a moment before she answered me.

"I'm not saying I've seen anything," she began, "but there's things I could be telling if I was minded to open my lips."

"If you know anything," I said, "you must tell me. Mr. Gaston put me here to find out what was wrong."

"There's no doubt there's wrong here."

"What makes you say that? What have you seen? What do you know?"

"It's neither what I've seen nor what I know," she nodded mysteriously. "It's what I've been hearing myself."

"For heaven's sake, woman," I cried, losing patience, "what is it you've heard?"

"I've heard them walking," she announced with an air of triumph.

"You've heard who walking?"

"The little people, of course. Who else would it be doing it?"

"Oh, hosh!" I exclaimed. I was well enough acquainted with the superstitions of the Irish to understand what she meant by "the little people." It's the habit of the old croons from the Emerald Isle to attribute anything they cannot understand to fairies.

"You may laugh," she retorted indignantly, "but I heard them, I tell ye."

"Where did you hear them, these footsteps?"

"Coming right out of the wall, here in this room, and in the kitchen, beyond."

"It was probably somebody in another apartment you heard."

"It was not. The floors do be deadened like, and it's nothing at all you can hear. It was somebody walking soft-like right there in the wall at me back."

"Well," I announced, "if there is anything like that going on, I am going to stay here until I hear it. I want to make sure no one can come into the apartment but myself, so I am going to ask you to give me your key. I'll be home here all the morning, so I can let you in when you ring."

"It's me key you're wanting, is it?"

She produced it from a pocket of her gown and handed it over, first unhooking it from a corner of her kerchief where she had tied it for safe keeping.

"And indeed if it's meself you're not trusting with a key after Mrs. Gaston letting me have it for these ten years back, it's your own bed you can be making. I'll not be coming near the place again."

In fine indignation she flounced out of the place. To tell the truth I was not sorry that she had announced her decision not to return. While my impression of her was that she was a simple-minded old woman of uttermost honesty, I was just as well satisfied that no one but myself should have entry to the apartment until I had finished my investigations and had made further progress in solving the mysteries that were so rapidly developing.

Left once more to myself, I sat down at my great-uncle's desk and made out a list of questions that must be answered:

1. Where was Rufus Gaston? Had the old gentleman really gone away or was he in hiding in the building?

2. Who had removed the Gaston pearls from the wall safe? It must be someone who knew the combination.

3. Who had written the note I found on the floor of my bedroom? How and when had it been placed on the floor there?

4. Who were the persons who were trying to blackmail the family next door?

5. How had the anonymous notes been delivered to the door of Barbara Bradford's room? (Evidently the writer was the same as in my case.)

6. Was there anything in the past relations of Mr. Bradford and my great-uncle that would cause my great-uncle to plot against the Bradford family?

7. How were the mysterious sounds heard both by my great-uncle, by Barbara Bradford, and by myself to be accounted for?

8. How were the mysterious footsteps heard by Mrs. Burke to be explained? Were they merely the imaginings of a superstitious old woman?

The relations between Mr. Bradford and Rufus Gaston puzzled me. Miss Bradford's recollection of her father's remark about my great-uncle certainly indicated that he held no high opinion of him. My great-uncle's actions throughout had been peculiar. His suddenly sending for me and insisting on my coming here to live, his insistence on leaving his wife's jewels in my care, and on entrusting me with the combination of the safe, all now took on a sinister aspect. It certainly was peculiar that he had gone off without leaving me any address where he could be reached.

Then, too, there was my own unexpected and unwarranted discharge at my place of business. I was positive in some way it was connected with my having come to this place to live. Had my great-uncle himself brought it about for the purpose of discrediting me? Was it the work of the blackmailers to get square with me for having accidentally butted in on the meeting they had arranged with Miss Bradford?

The scarf-faced man! Who was he? I was certain that he was in some way involved. It might have been he who had caused me to lose my job. Certainly the malevolent glance he had given me in the restaurant that night showed that he would have wrought me harm if he could. The next time I laid eyes on him I was determined to trail him with bulldog tenacity until I ascertained his identity and where he lived. I felt sure that the trail of the mystery would lead to his door.

I decided not to leave the apartment all day. I had laid in a plentiful supply of food the day before so there was no necessity for my going out. There was plenty of work for me to do. I must try to devise some way of examining the safe door and the jewel box that remained for evidence of fingerprints, and I must inspect the building both from within and without to see if I could learn how the noises were delivered.

From one of the toilet tables I obtained some fine powder and opening the wall safe again I took out the jewel box and carefully dusted it over with the powder. I hoped that the powder would reveal markings of hands on the box, but either I was too inexperienced, or my method was wrong, for I succeeded in obtaining no sort of result, beyond finding out what my own fingerprints looked like on a sheet of paper prepared with some home-made lampblack. After an hour or two of experimentation I gave it up as a bad job, and turned to the study of methods by which the notes might have been delivered.

The Gaston apartment was on the sixth floor of the building, which was surrounded by ordinary three and four-story dwelling houses. It must have been someone in the building, if not in the apartment itself. It would be quite possible for someone on the floor above to have projected the notes through my window and that of Miss Bradford by attaching them to the end of a long stick. I made up my mind to ascertain who occupied the apartments above.

The mystery of the whispers did not seem to be of such easy solution. While I had been inclined at first to regard my own experience as a dream, the coincidence of Miss Bradford and my great-uncle having had the same illusion convinced me that it was some elaborate device by the plotters for preying on the fears of their intended victims.

Eagerly I waited for the coming of evening and from half-past seven on I sat by my window waiting for Barbara's signal. It was nearly nine o'clock before I heard the three taps that had so startled me the evening before. Quickly I thrust my head out of the window and was rewarded by seeing her appear at the same moment.

"We must not talk long," she warned me. "Someone might see us. Have you learned anything new?"

"Yes," I whispered. "In my uncle's diary I found several entries about the whispers."

"How strange!" she exclaimed. "Where is Mr. Gaston?"

"I don't know."

"That's funny."

"It's more than that. It is decided by old that he left no word where he could be reached."

"I don't blame him," she almost sobbed. "I wish we could all get away off somewhere, away from it all."

"Don't worry. Everything we find out will help discover the plotters. Tell me from what part of your room did the sounds come?"

"Always from the same place, up in the corner, near the ceiling."

"I thought so," I answered. "That's where they came from in my room. That shows it is just some mechanical trick they are using in the hope of terrifying us. Do you know who lives on the floor above?"

"I haven't the slightest idea. Do you suspect them?"

"I suspect everybody until this mystery is solved," I replied almost anxiously.

"Not so loud, they may hear you. Have you learned anything else?"

"No, nothing. A gasconade old Mrs. Burke, Mrs. Gaston's housekeeper. She knew nothing, although she insisted that she had often heard footsteps when there was no one in the apartment. Of course it is only her imagination."

"I'm not so sure," Miss Bradford whispered. "I've heard them, too. They seemed to come right out of the wall."

"Why," I exclaimed in amazement, "that's just how she described them."

"Often, too, when I got up in the morning I have a strange feeling that there must have been someone in my room while I was asleep."

"How strange!" I muttered, more to myself than to her. "I wonder if it could be anyone walking in the sleep."

"You mean," she hesitated—"my sister?"

"I don't mean anyone," I hastened to say. "I was only thinking aloud, wondering if it could be a possible explanation. I have heard of innocent persons doing all sorts of things under hypnotic influence."

"I've read of that, too," she said soberly. "I wonder—"

She left the sentence unfinished, but I felt that the same thought had flashed into her mind as into mine. Was it possible that the unscrupulous Frenchman who had wronged her sister years ago had in some way recently gained an interview with her and had gotten her once more into his power? Could it be that under the spell of another's mind Claire Bradford herself had taken away the papers concerning the annulment of her marriage and was placing the notes in the blackmail plot?

"Look here," I said determinedly, "we've got to see each other some where tomorrow and talk this over. Where can we meet?"

"I'm afraid I can't manage it tomorrow. I'm busy with my mother and sister all day long. Tuesday, perhaps. But we mustn't talk here longer. Good night."

"Good night," I called softly but her head had been already withdrawn, so quickly that I hardly knew whether she heard me. As I was about ready for bed I recalled that I had spent most of the money I had in my pockets, so I visited the bookcase where I had secreted my hoard and taking out a twenty-dollar bill, wrapped it about the three one-dollar bills I had left and put the roll in my trousers pocket.

The next morning, as I was dressing, I happened to draw forth my money. I gazed at it horror-stricken. I distinctly recalled having wrapped the twenty-dollar bill about the three smaller bills. Now one of the dollar bills was on the outside.

There before me was indisputable evidence that someone had been in my room while I slept, someone had gone through my pockets and had examined my money. Someone had put the dollar bill on the outside of the roll.

Who had done it? How had they got into the room?

I gazed at it horror-stricken.

Dickinson, N. The conduct of Katherine and Rebecca McCullum, homesteaders 35 years ago, long ago convinced neighbors they were mentally deranged.

EXPLAINING THAT 30 CENTS

Champ Clark Wanted to Know About It, and the Clerk Gave Him the Information.

Champ Clark likes shirts that have a small red stripe. Not long ago he went into the shop of a Washington haberdasher to buy a dress shirt. Selecting one he gave the clerk a $10 bill, and while waiting for his change wandered around looking at the shirts displayed. But let the former speaker tell us about it, says The Nation's Business.

"I found a fine shirt with small red stripes and I like to wear that kind. During the war you could not get a shirt with red stripes which would not fade," I said to the clerk.

"What is the price of that shirt?"

"Three dollars."

"Give me that and take it out of the ten."

"When he came back with the change he did not have enough and I called his attention to it."

"You are going me. What is that extra thirty cents for?"

"That," replied the clerk, "is the sales tax that you d— tools enacted up there in congress."

No Mystery.

"Why is Mrs. Millington so sought after for bridge parties? She is a very bad player."

COX NOMINATED BY DEMOCRATS ON 44TH BALLOT

GOVERNOR OF OHIO IS CHOSEN BY ACCLAMATION AFTER PALMER WITHDRAWAL TURNS TIDE.

ATTORNEY GENERAL'S CLAN SWINGS VOTE TO WINNER

Nomination Fought By McAdoo Forcer Until Defeat Was Certain—Adjourn Till Tuesday to Pick Vice-President.

Auditorium, San Francisco.—James M. Cox, governor of Ohio, was nominated for president of the United States in the Democratic national convention at 1:40 o'clock (4:40 in Detroit) Tuesday morning. The nomination came at the conclusion of a 44 ballot struggle, in which he had steadily beaten down the forces of William G. McAdoo, former secretary of the treasury, and President Wilson's son-in-law.

When the balloting on the forty-fourth vote had got to a point where Cox had 702 votes and was rapidly approaching the necessary two-thirds or 729, Sam B. Amidon, of Kansas, manager of the McAdoo forces and vice chairman of the Democratic national committee, took the platform and moved that the nomination of Governor Cox be made unanimous.

Immediately there was a roar from the tired and worn delegates which lasted for a full four minutes before Chairman Robinson could put the question on Amidon's motion to suspend the rules and nominate Cox by acclamation.

State standards which had surged back and forth in the desperate battles of the deadlock race to the front of the hall and to a place before the platform.

In the confusion and excitement of a nomination everybody forgot about a nomination for vice-president. While the crowd was demonstrating its release a motion to adjourn until Tuesday afternoon was adopted to canvass the question of second place in the meantime and meet again prepared to complete the ticket.

Michigan Vote Divided. Michigan delegates for the last five ballots were divided, 16 for Cox and 14 for McAdoo.

Attorney General Palmer at 9:45 Monday night, at the close of the thirty-eighth ballot released his delegates and left the Democratic national convention free to move out of its deadlock and nominate a presidential candidate.

At the end of the second ballot after the recess when the Palmer vote had touched 211 and it was apparent that it could be driven no higher, former Representative C. C. Carlin, of Virginia, Palmer's manager, took the platform and announced the withdrawal of the attorney general from the race.

Cox Candidate of Wets.

The liquor issue hung over the convention Monday like a pall, backed by the wets, could not be budged much above the one-third proportion of the party session that voted for a wet plank. The dry two-thirds refused to warm up to the Ohio governor for the head of the ticket. But the dry two-thirds was divided between McAdoo, Palmer and numerous favorite sons and it was evident no progress could be made until one or more of the candidates should be eliminated or an agreement reached on a dark horse.

RIVAL NOMINEES FROM OHIO: BOTH ARE PUBLISHERS

The standardbearers of the Democratic and Republican parties are newspaper publishers and both from Ohio. Governor Cox is publisher of Dayton, Springfield papers, while Senator Warren G. Harding, the Republican nominee, is publisher of a paper in Marion, Ohio.

DEMOCRATS BACK PACT AND TREATY

DECLARE FOR RATIFICATION IN ORDER TO "PRESERVE NATION'S HONOR."

IRISH AND WET ISSUE FOUGHT Platform Committee Inserts Planks Expressing Sympathy For Ireland and Armenia.

San Francisco.—The Democratic platform, as drafted by the subcommittee of nine and submitted to the full committee, declares for ratification of the Peace Treaty as a requisite to preserve the honor and integrity of the nation.

It advocates collective bargaining for farmers; opposes compulsory arbitration of labor disputes; declares for recognition of the new Mexican government when it has established order, and calls on the legislatures of Tennessee, Florida and North Carolina to ratify the suffrage amendment.

In many respects, the platform follows that adopted by the Virginia Democrats and publicly approved by President Wilson. The League of Nations plank in particular was taken virtually as a whole from the Virginia platform, though in other respects there have been modifications and many new subjects have been added.

Aside from the wet and dry issue, the biggest fight was centered in the Irish plank. Overriding its subcommittee, the committee threw out the administration plank proposing to leave the Irish problem to the League of Nations and adopted in its stead a declaration of sympathy and a pledge to take whatever diplomatic action would be in consonance with international comity.

In making their decision the platform makers also rejected by a 2 to 1 vote the plank proposed by organized Irish sympathizers and backed by a caucus of about 200 convention delegates for diplomatic recognition of the Irish republic.

The subcommittee's plank on Armenia also was rejected by the full committee. The plank is understood to have declared that the United States should consider it a duty to see that complete independence and order was guaranteed to the new Armenian republic.

PLATFORM ON WHICH DEMOCRATS STAND

Prohibition: No mention is made of this, opponents of the "dry" successfully killing a "strict enforcement" pledge.

League of Nations: Administration's stand endorsed, except for a clause that the party did not oppose "reservations making clearer or more specific the obligations of the United States to the league associates."

Irish question: Reaffirms the principle of self determination, and renewed, "within the limitations of international comity and usage," expressions of sympathy with Irish aspirations for self government.

Veterans: Provides that the federal government should treat with the utmost consideration every disabled soldier, sailor and marine; that the deeds of valorous constitute a sacred heritage that cannot be recompensed from the treasury.

Tariff: Reaffirms traditional party policy.

Taxes: Demands war tax revision.

Lying Cost: Pledges remedial laws and economy.

Suffrage: Endorses nineteenth amendment.

Armenia: Sympathy expressed; no mention made of Wilson's proposed mandate by this country.

Mexico: Advocated recognition of the new government when it proved its ability to maintain order, and explained the administration's policy as being "unwilling either to profit by the misfortunes of the Mexicans or to enslave their future by imposing an outside rule."

Asiatic Immigration: Support was pledged states where enforcement of the Republican party, mostly based upon the present congress. It asserted attempts were made to make partisan uses of legislative power, and incorporated an attack on the "money powers" backing of the Republican party.

Lovely and Flattering Hats

SINCE it is the part of beauty and style in dress to impart pleasure, gifted designers of millinery are great assets to civilized peoples. In hats the fancy has freer play than in other apparel; they may be more unusual in shape and more colorful than almost anything else with which women undertake to express their love for beauty in color and form. Our respect for the milliner's art increases as we learn more and more about it and recognize the fine discrimination with which they clothe and adorn heads so as to reveal character and express personality. At the same time they reflect in headwear "the glories of the year," the joys and vicissitudes of the seasons.

The four hats shown in the group above proclaim the heart of summer. At the top there is a graceful flaring-brimmed dress hat having a crown of satin ribbon and a braid trim of silky straw that turns upward and sweeps backward at the left front. Here wide ribbon is posed on the brim in three deep plaits and in each plait berries and other fruit, leaves and grasses, all made with loving fidelity to nature, compel our admiration.

At the left a charming off-the-face street-hat contrives by such simple means as wide ribbon and jet cabochons to achieve distinction which is a consummation devoutly to be wished—in street hats especially, and last, below it, there is a sports hat—the type of millinery that really holds the center of the stage in summer millinery. It is made of organdy with a straw brim—facing and cut-out figures of silk are applied to the brim. Sports hats make themselves much at home almost everywhere and some of them are made of very rich materials.

PINNED BY TRACTOR, MAN SEEMS TO DIE

Lies on Kerosene-Soaked Ground as Coyotes Threaten Him.

Cody, Wyo.—Still conscious of the torture that gripped him, crushed and bleeding in a number of places and bruised about the head from his own efforts to beat his brains out with a wrench P. D. Pederson was found pinned under his farm tractor 14 hours after the machine had toppled and turned over with him while crossing a ditch. Driven to desperation by the horrors which he faced, Pederson used his right forearm to wield the iron with which he tried to end his life, but he was so weak and cramped that his blows were ineffective.

Pederson was pinned between a three-inch bar and the machine for the whole length of his body. The steering wheel was crushed into his chest and his arm broken in two places. To add to his misery he became soaked with kerosene, which blistered his body. Snow fell throughout the night, accompanied by a piercing wind, while coyotes, attracted by the scent of blood, threatened him time and again. He kept them off by shouting at them, but more than once gave up hope when some grew bold enough to snarl at him.

Pederson was under contract to plow 100 acres of land and shared the job with a partner. who went on a search for him the next morning when he failed to put in an appearance. Numb with cold and pain, he was removed from under the machine and taken to the hospital. His condition is critical.

RADIO WARNS MOONSHINERS

Modern Wireless Plants in Operation Discovered in Hills Make Arrests Harder.

Bluefield, W. Va.—Revenue agents have discovered the reason for their inability to arrest the moonshiners in this section of West Virginia, Virginia and Kentucky. It has been found a wireless system is in operation through which the distilling plants are notified by a code of signals from the railroad stations sent by confederates when danger threatens.

When the officers swoop down on a spot where a still is reported they find the outfit missing. At one place a diagram of a modern radio station was found. It is easily possible in the densely wooded mountain sections to conceal radio stations, and officers are now searching for them.

Congressman Victim of Profiteer in Own Shoes

Representative Kresler of Pennsylvania, a shoe manufacturer, strolled into a Washington store, where he noticed some shoes from his factory. He tried on a pair and asked the price. "That shoe costs you $7.50," the clerk replied. Noticing Kresler's surprise, the clerk added: "That shoe costs us $0.75." "You're a liar," Kresler said, "and your store will never buy another shoe from my factory. That shoe costs you $3.05."

Eating Way Out of "Frosted Cake."

Ripley, O.—Frank Heuzer, farmer, missed a red bull which disappeared from his farm and advertised for it. One week after the animal was found alive in the center of a frost-covered strawrack, having been buried in a fall of straw. He had tried to cut his way through the stack. The bull, although off in weight, was apparently none the worse for his experience, rain having given the straw enough moisture to assuage thirst.

Kept His Appendix, Too.

Madisonville, Ky.—The most ingenious bungler of local record called on Doctor Clifford at Nobo. After making arrangements to undergo an operation he was put to bed for the night. The next morning the patient, $5 and the physician's stock of narcotics were missing.

MICKIE SAYS

RENTAL PROFITS HELP STATE FAIR FINANCES

The Michigan State Fair is a beneficiary of the shortage of store-room in Detroit. G. W. Dickinson, Secretary-Manager, has just closed a contract with an automobile manufacturing concern for use of the fair buildings in idle months as storage warehouse space, at a figure which will allow a generous profit to the fair. Under the law, this money must be used in bettering the fair, which this year will come Sept. 2-12.

The fair last year drew the largest attendance in the United States, and this year Manager Dickinson estimates 1,000,000 persons will attend it.

"Where are you going?" asked the butcher of his wife.

"I'm going out to get some butter."

"Well, say—don't buy it at that store across from my place. The man over there borrowed my scales this morning."—Boston Transcript.

Looking Forward.

Summer Complaint in Children.

There is nothing like so many deaths from this disease now as before Chamberlain's Colic and Diarrhoea Remedy came into such general use. When this remedy is given with castor oil as directed and proper care taken as to diet, it is safe to say that fully ninety-nine out of every hundred cases recover. Mr. W. G. Campbell of Butler, Tenn., says, "I have used Chamberlain's Colic and Diarrhoea Remedy for summer complaint in children. It is far ahead of anything I have ever used for this purpose." Adv.
