Child Welfare clinics are held at frequent intervals in the different centres. These clinics are associated with Department of Children's Diseases in the University Hospital, Ann Arbor.

Arbor. All children of twelve years and under may be examined, but no treatment is given, other than the regulating of diet. The Tuberculosis clinics are held in co-operation with the Anti-Tuberculosis section of the State Health Department.

In every district, the nurse is assisted by a committee of resident women who arrange for her office, maintain the loan closet, report patients she might not otherwise know about and render her all possible help. This committee meets with the district nurse each month. The chairman of the local committees together with other interested people, make up the county committee, which holds monthly meetings with the entire nursing staff.

Miss Ruth J. Howe, the nurse for the Chelsea district, began her work July 1, 1919, and has made an enviable record for efficiency and tireless service.

MRS. CHARLES MOORE.

Mrs. Charles E. Moore died suddenly early Tuesday morning, August 3, 1920, at the home of her mother in Henrietta township, Jackson county, where she had been spending several weeks. She had been ill with tonsillitis for several days, but had not been considered seriously ill until a few hours before her death.

Mrs. Moore was born in Henrietta township, September 8, 1883, her parents being Eugene and Elizabeth Haley. She was united in marriage with Charles E. Moore of Chelsea on June 7, 1911, and leaves beside her husband, one daughter, Bernadine, eight years old, to mourn their loss. She is also survived by four sisters; Mrs. Patrick Plunkett of Munith, Mrs. Will McGill of Jackson, Elizabeth and Sadie at home, and by two brothers, James and Andrew, at home also. Her father, Eugene Haley, passed away only about two weeks ago.

The funeral was held Wednesday from the home in Henrietta at 12:30 o'clock. Interment at Oak Grove cemetery, Chelsea.

CHELSEA JUNIOR STARS.

In the window of Penn's store there is on exhibition an old photograph of the Chelsea Junior Star baseball team the property of Mr. Fred Lewis.

This team held the junior championship of the state of Michigan at one time, playing the famous Detroit Junior Stars for the championship. Following are the names of those in the picture: Dr. Andros Guldo, coach, Arthur Raftery, Paul Bacon, Howard Boyd, Howard Holmes, George H. BeGole (non-player), Chandler Rogers, Dwight Miller, W. S. McLaren, Gus BeGole, LaMont BeGole, Ray Cook.

TEACHERS' EXAMS AUGUST 12.

Washtenaw county teachers' examinations will be held in the Ann Arbor high school beginning at 7:30 o'clock Thursday, August 12, and lasting through Saturday morning.

Thursday and Friday will be devoted to those applicants working for the third certificate, while the full two days and a half will be occupied by those teachers taking examinations for either the first or second grade certificate.

BIG GROUPS ASSURED IN WESTERN CANADA

Need of Farm Labor Urgently
Required for Harvest.

Rising of the past week which have been general throughout all portions of Western Canada, covering MANITOBA, SASKATCHEWAN, and ALBERTA, have placed beyond all manner of doubt the certainty of vast grain crops throughout the entire district.

Reports from all points indicate marvellous and rapid growth. The conditions of a week or so back, which were decidedly less promising and led many to think that there might be a partial failure, have disappeared altogether and now there is a wave of optimism circulating throughout the entire country.

In 1915 there were enormous yields reported from all parts, and it would appear now as if in many places the yields of 1915 would be equaled if not beaten.

What might appear to be a drawback, is the apparent shortage of farm help. The Province of Manitoba through its Employment Bureau in Winnipeg, is asking for 10,000 harvest hands and over, offering from $5 to $8 per day. The Province of Saskatchewan is asking for 15,000 extra hands to take care of the immense harvest that is certain to be reaped in that Province. In Alberta the crop area is somewhat less, the labor conditions somewhat better, and is making a request for 5,000 extra farm hands.

Interviewing the officials of the different Governments, they are inclined to the opinion that as the crops in Kansas, Nebraska, South Dakota, Illinois and other Central States are harvested there will be a movement northward that will materially help to take care of the labor situation. With the low railroad rates that may be secured on application to the Employment Offices at Winnipeg and at boundary points, or which may be secured through the Canadian Government Offices at Chicago, Ill.; Detroit, Mich.; Milwaukee, Wis.; Kansas City, Mo.; Omaha, Neb.; Des Moines, Ia.; Waterloo, S. D.; St. Paul, Minn., and Grand Forks, N. D., will give to those seeking employment the opportunity to reach the harvest fields at a low cost.—Advertisement.

Anti-Signboard Argument Made by Chicagoans Effective in Curtailing
General Nuisance.

Of course, a signboard is designed to attract attention. In some cities they appear to be attracting attention which threatens their existence in certain districts. This is a good thing, for at their best they have not been much of a scenic attraction and at their worst they have been pretty bad.

In Chicago, where a good deal of thought has been given to city planning, an ordinance was passed prohibiting signboards on roofs of buildings and requiring majority consent for permission to erect signboards in residence districts. The signboard people fought this ordinance to the United States Supreme court and were worsted. And the decision gave the people the right to have no signboards in the neighborhood of their homes if the majority agreed.

It is interesting to note that the arguments on which this case was defended by the people had to do rather with public safety and health than with aesthetic considerations. The boards were to be kept from the roofs for fear of their falling into the street, and the charge was made that they were a fire menace and a convenient ambush for robbers in residence districts.

Perhaps these practical phases affected the most convenient point of attack for the present, but from an aesthetic point of view the signboard is forever and everywhere an offense.

CURVE PROPERLY HANDLED

Prophetic Fire.

The death of Levi P. Morton reminds me of a strange occurrence at Chanhassen, Minn., years ago, before Mr. Morton became vice president. He was the guest of the late Senator James Arkel, they having long been intimate friends. During Mr. Morton's stay at the Arkel home a fire occurred in which the guest's suitcase, marked "Levi P. Morton," was burned on one end in such a manner that all the letters of the name were destroyed but the "v" and "n." Just at that time Mr. Morton was being mentioned in connection with the Republican nomination for either president or vice-president, and the versatile Senator Arkel ventured the opinion that the strange work of the fire pointed toward success in that "v" and "n" meant vice president. A few months after the fire Levi P. Morton was nominated for and later elected to the vice presidency.—Fort Plain Standard.

Old Saloon Made Over.

An old saloon in the Italian section of New York has recently been taken over by the T. M. C. A. and turned into a community center for Italian women and girls. The brown woodwork has been painted blue and lively chintz has been hung at the windows. The old place is hardly recognizable. This center is being used during the day as a nursery for children whose mothers are working, for a babies' clinic, and for mothers' club meetings; in the evenings for social times for girls who work during the day.

Why the Buffalo Wallows.

The water buffalo of China writes C. O. Lettine, associate professor of animal husbandry, Canton Christian college, in the Journal of Heredity (Washington), has few sweat glands in its skin, and for this reason cannot endure hard work in the sun for a long period, unless its body is wet with water. This accounts for the desire of the buffalo to wallow in mud or water. The animals are easily overcome by heat if worked hard in the sun and sometimes they go crazy and become very dangerous.

Costly Production.

In producing Sir Rider Haggard's famous story of "King Solomon's Mines" for the movies, $200,000 worth of costly planes were used as part of the headpieces of the opening scenes. The film was produced in South Africa, where fortunately no tribesmen are plentiful.—Brooklyn Eagle.

FARMERS DO WELL

Record Prices Paid Wheat Growers of Western Canada.

Will Get Above 40 Cents Over the Fixed Scale Set—World Looking to the Dominion for its Grain.

It will be of interest to many readers to learn that their farmer friends in Canada will do so well out of the wheat they grew on western Canada's prairies last year.

There was a fixed price of $2.15 per bushel paid for their wheat last season.

Not knowing the price at which it would be possible to market the crop, the Canadian grain board, which organization handled the whole of the crop last summer, fixed $2.15 as a minimum price for No. 1 wheat, and arranged that each farmer should be given certificates for the quantity of wheat he delivered. The amount received over and above the fixed price which was paid to the farmers when selling their wheat was to be divided pro rata at the end of the season, and the holders of these certificates will, therefore, participate in the extra price received according to the quantity of wheat sold.

The latest advice is that the wheat board will pay at least 40 cents a bushel over the fixed rate of $2.15 a bushel for their wheat of last season. This means that about $40,000,000 will be distributed among the farmers of Alberta, Saskatchewan and Manitoba. This sum represents the difference in the price at which the wheat crop was sold and the price that was fixed for last season's crop.

Canadian Wheat in Demand.
A declaration that Canadian wheat would in all probability sell this year at between $3 and $5 per bushel, was made recently before a conference of western supporters of the government by Dr. Robert Magill, who was one of a delegation from the Winnipeg grain exchange. Dr. Magill argued in favor of open trading from the aspect of world conditions. He stated that no wheat could be exported from Russia owing to internal troubles.

Romania would have, absolutely none to export, India's acreage would fall from 12,000,000 to 7,000,000. The result would be that Australia would scarcely have enough to feed herself, and there would be absolutely no wheat for Europe, except from the Argentine and North America.

Dr. Magill, according to formal announcement, though it would be impossible to secure as good a price for the producer by control as by the open market. The United States market was now open, and, according to present prospects, there would be mighty little to spare from that quarter. The net result would be that Canadian wheat would undoubtedly go to a record figure.—Advertisement.

A Captious Critic.

R. L. T. criticizes a Transcript advertiser for saying that the furnished apartment to let is "ideal for man and wife or bride and groom." Why so fuzzy, old top? Every one knows that a wedded pair are bride and groom until the honeymoon is over, and that often lasts quite a spell—until, in fact, she starts cooking or asks him for money.—Boston Transcript.

IMPROVED ROADS

ARMY MATERIAL FOR ROADS

Millions of Dollars' Worth of Machinery Available for Construction of Highways.

The signing by the president of a bill directing the secretary of war to transfer certain surplus army equipment to the United States department of agriculture, as well as allotting certain material to other branches of the government, makes available for distribution to the states millions of dollars' worth of machinery for use in highway construction.

Since there is now available from all sources—federal, state, county, etc.—more than $1,000,000,000 for road building, the states are anxious to secure their allotments of these army supplies because of the great assistance they will be in expediting road building. This material is in addition to approximately 22,000 army motor vehicles which already have been allotted to the states through the federal department of agriculture in accord with previous legislation.

As yet no definite estimate can be made as to the number of machines of different kinds which the secretary of war will designate to be "surplus and not required for military purposes," as provided in the act. Among the scores of items listed in the law are: Road rollers, sprinkling wagons, concrete mixers, derricks, complete pile-driver outfits, chain-shell buckers, caterpillar and drag-line excavators, plows, cranes, dump wagons, hoisting engines, stump pullers, wheelbarrows, blasting machines, corrugated metal cutters, surveying instruments, drafting machines, fabricated bridge materials, gravity and power conveyors, and wagons.

The distribution of this material will be made by the United States department of agriculture, the work being in the immediate charge of the bureau of public roads. It will be allotted in the same ratio as funds granted to the states for federal aid roads.

The bill also empowers the secretary of war in his discretion to transfer to the United States department of agriculture for use by the forestry service in the work of supervising the national forests, any telephone supplies no longer required for military purposes.

The federal government is to be reimbursed by the states, a sum equal to 20 per cent of the value of the material less all freight charges incurred in delivering the property to them. The title to all vehicles and other equipment remains vested in the state for use in improving highways. No vehicles and equipment, in serviceable condition, can be sold or the title transferred to any one else. A provision inserted in the bill shortly before its final passage provided that any state highway department may arrange for the use of this material by any state agency or municipal corporation at a fair rental, if it is to be used in constructing and maintaining public highways. The rental must not be less than the cost of maintenance and repair of the vehicles and equipment.

DRIVERS CAN PREVENT WEAR

One Thing That Is Most Destructive Is Driving in Tracks—Distribute Traffic Evenly.

Drivers can prevent wear to the surfaces of the roads and even improve their conditions, if instead of driving in one track or on the edge of the road, they will drive over the middle and other less-used parts of the road when traffic permits. The one thing that is fatal about all things to road surfaces, whether dirt or paved, is driving in tracks, which subjects one small part of the road surface to all the traffic and damage that the whole road accommodates. Traffic should be evenly distributed over the entire surface of the road, and a little thoughtfulness and care in this respect on the part of drivers will do much to add to the permanence and excellence of our roadways.

Benefits of Good Roads.

Good roads will enable the producer to hold their yield for a longer time, thus insuring higher prices for them and lower and more uniform prices for the consumer and will serve to distribute railway traffic more evenly over the entire year.

Useful as a Weapon.

A good road, built on a foundation of excellence by the government, could be utilized in a variety of ways in the future, especially with high prices

Some More Truths.

WOULD you use a steam shovel to move a pebble? Certainly not. Implements are built according to the work they have to do.

Would you use a grown-up's remedy for your baby's ills? Certainly not. Remedies are prepared according to the work THEY have to do.

All this is preliminary to reminding you that Fletcher's Castoria was sought out, found and is prepared solely as a remedy for Infants and Children. And let this be a warning against Substitutes, Counterfeits and the Just-as-good stuff that may be all right for you in all your strength, but dangerous for the little babe.

All the mother-love that lies within your heart cries out to you: Be true to Baby. And being true to Baby you will keep in the house remedies specially prepared for babies as you would a baby's food, hairbrush, toothbrush or sponge.

Children Cry For Fletcher's CASTORIA

Are You Prepared?

A doctor in the house all the time would be a good idea. Yet you can't afford to keep a doctor in the family to keep baby well or prevent sickness. But you can do almost the same thing by having at hand a bottle of Fletcher's Castoria, because it is a wonderful remedy for indigestion, colic, feverishness, fretfulness and all the other disorders that result from common ailments that babies have.

Fletcher's Castoria is perfectly safe to use. It is a harmless substitute for Castor Oil, Paregoric, Drops and Soothing Syrups. Children cry for Fletcher's Castoria, and mothers recommend it because they have found it a comfort to children and a mother's friend.

If you love your baby, you know how sweet it is to be able to help baby when trouble comes. You cannot always call upon a doctor. But doctors have nothing but good to say of Fletcher's Castoria, because they know that it can only do good—that it can't do any harm—and they wouldn't want you to use for baby a remedy that you would use for yourself.

No matter what mother said, father always chose to argue with her. If she were going to town and told him about the proposed trip he would begin: "But, my dear, I'm sure you should not until—"

One day he had carried through an argument of his usual kind when his ten-year-old daughter looked up from the book she was reading. "Mother," she giggled, "father is your goat, isn't he?"

Mother seemed bewildered, but did laugh. "I guess I am," he agreed. "She certainly knows me around."

"Oh, that wasn't the reason I said that," ten-year-old demurred. "I said it because you are always butting in on her so much."

After Ten Years—
Eatonc Proves the Best

"I say, God bless Eatonc," writes Mrs. Della M. Doyen. "I can truthfully say, after suffering with stomach trouble for ten long years, that I have never had anything do me so much good as this one box of Eatonc. We print these grateful words from this dear lady, so that sufferers everywhere may have hope and a little faith—just enough to give Eatonc a trial. Why, folks, last year over half a million people used Eatonc and found relief."

This is the secret: Eatonc simply takes up the excess acids, poisons and gases, and carries them right out of the body. Of course, when the cause is removed, the sufferer gets well. Stomach trouble causes about seventy non-organic diseases, so, if you are suffering any kind of misery, not feeling well, go right to your druggist today and obtain a big box of Eatonc; cost is a trifle. Use it and find quick, sure relief.

Make this test—you will see, and then, if you are not satisfied, your druggist will hand your money back. He does not want one penny unless Eatonc pleases you. Adv.

The House of Whispers

"WHO SHOT HER?"

Synopsis—Spalding Nelson is occupying the apartments of his great-uncle, Rufus Gaston. The Gastons, leaving on a trip, tell him about mysterious notes and "whispers" that have scared them. He becomes acquainted with Barbara Bradford, who lives in the same big building. He instinctively dislikes and distrusts the superintendent, Wick. The mysteries in his apartments begin with the disappearance of the Gaston pearls from the wall safe. He decides not to call in the police, but to do his own investigating. It is soon evident that someone has access to his rooms. Becoming friendly with Barbara, he learns that her apartments are equally mysterious. She tells him that several years before her sister Claire, who lives with her, had made a run-away marriage with an adventurer, from whom she was soon parted, and the marriage had been annulled. Claire is engaged to be married and someone has stolen documents concerning the affair from the Bradford apartment and is attempting to blackmail the Bradfords. Nelson takes Miss Kelly, the telephone girl, to dinner with the idea of pumping her. Gorman, a hotel detective, recognizes her as the wife of Lefty Moore, a noted burglar. Nelson tells his story to Gorman and puts the case in his hands. Nelson finds a secret passage, with a panel door in his room. He realizes he loves Barbara. He and Barbara hear a shot in the building.

CHAPTER VII—Continued.

I sprang after her, but she moved so quickly that she was out of the window and safely home before I could stop her. Only waiting to see her off the ledge I turned back and hastily pulling the panel into place I dashed for the front of the house. The screams and the shot I was sure had come from the apartment directly below mine. I was certain that there had been murder done there, and my mind was made up to investigate it at once. If I moved quickly there might be an opportunity to catch the murderer red-handed. I let myself out and dashed down the one flight of stairs. As I arrived there, the ascending elevator stopped, and Mr. Wick burst out, followed by an excited elevator runner. Wick was carrying a revolver in his hand.

"Did you hear anything?" he asked excitedly.

"I heard a woman screaming in this apartment and then a shot."

"I heard it, too. In which apartment was it?"

"Right here," I said, pointing to the door.

"Miss Lutan's," he said. "Let's go in. Here's my pass-key. You open the door. I'll be right behind you with my revolver."

CHAPTER VIII.

Inserting the key Mr. Wick handed me, I turned it sharply and flung the door wide. It revealed a luxuriously furnished apartment, the front rooms of which were extravagantly ablaze with light.

For a moment the three of us, Mr. Wick, the elevator boy and myself, stood there with our ears alert for a sound from the apartment. While I do not admit to being a coward, the unknown has its terrors for all of us, and I must confess that the knowledge that Mr. Wick had his revolver drawn was indeed comforting. All was silence in the place.

"John," said Wick to the elevator boy, "you stand here right by the door and keep your eye on the elevator. If anybody tries to sneak past you, you holler for us."

"Good I will, Mr. Wick," said the boy, with clattering teeth. "I'll holler, all right."

"Go ahead Mr. Nelson," said the superintendent. "I'm right behind you with my revolver."

Without waiting to explore the front rooms, I turned at once and ran down the long hall to the sitting room. If as I suspected, murder had been done here, I was confident that the scene of the tragedy would be the room directly under mine. The screams I had heard—and the shot—had seemed to come from under my very feet.

Although the lights in the front of the hall were burning, the sitting room was in darkness. As I reached the door, my fingers sought the button, and as the flare of light illuminated the room I looked hastily about me. There was no one there, but my one quick glance showed me that the door of the wall safe, located similarly to the one in the apartment above, was standing wide open.

Quickly I sprang to inspect the room corresponding to mine, a room, it will be recalled, opening off the sitting room. Here, too, was darkness, and as I turned on the lights, I stood aghast with horror.

On the floor, close up to the inner wall, lay the contorted body of a beautiful young woman. Her eyes were wide open and staring. One arm was twisted under her, and the other hand was clutching at the front of her bodice, where a blotch of ghastly red indicated the path of the shot that I had heard.

"It's Miss Lutan," said Mr. Wick's voice behind me.

"She's been murdered," I cried; "get the police at once."

As I bent over her to see if there was any evidence of life, I saw imprinted in her tender white throat the marks of her assailant's brutal fingers.

"Come," I said, "help me lift her on to this couch, and then telephone at once for a doctor."

Mr. Wick had been all the while standing there, staring at the body as if stupefied by the tragedy, but he obeyed my directions, and with him at her feet and I at her head we laid her down on the couch, where I proceeded to loosen her gown and to try by artificial respiration to restore her blood to circulation.

"Get the doctor at once," I commanded again, "and phone for the police."

"John," called out Mr. Wick, "go to the phone and tell Miss Kelly to send for Doctor Hunt to come at once."

"Tell her to get the police, too," I insisted.

"And let the burglar escape while we're doing it," objected Mr. Wick. "Come on, let's look through the apartment. He may be hiding somewhere still."

Together, while the boy was phoning, we went from room to room, peering into closets and under beds. There was no one there and no traces of the murderer's presence. Even the servants' quarters were untenanted. Only one thing happened that struck me as peculiar. As I started up the hall to search the bedrooms, I looked back and caught Mr. Wick furtively closing the wall safe. His action in surreptitiously closing this without saying anything to me made me suddenly suspicious of him. I recalled that Detective Gorman had put Mr. Wick into his circle of suspects along with the burglar's wife. Could it be possible that the superintendent of the building himself was in connivance with the band of criminals who had been harassing the Bradfords and me? I determined to watch his every move.

"There's no one here," I said, as we completed our round of the various rooms. "The murderer has made his escape. Hasn't that boy phoned for the police yet?"

Mr. Wick seemed so averse to carrying out my suggestion about the police that I think he must have sensed the suspicion in my voice.

"I think I had better ask Mr. Kent about it first," he said nervously.

"Who's Mr. Kent?" I demanded.

My thoughts were so taken up with the unexpected tragedy that the name at first meant nothing to me. Suddenly I remembered. It was to the apartment of Mr. Henry Kent that Miss Kelly had phoned last night when she was dining with me. I recalled, too, that Gorman had charged me to find out all I could about him.

"Who's Mr. Kent?" I repeated sharply. "What's he got to do with it?"

"He's the owner of the building," explained Mr. Wick. "He doesn't like the Granddeck to be mentioned in the papers. He says any publicity is bad for its exclusiveness. I don't believe he'd want the police called in. In fact, sir, I'm sure he wouldn't."

"Whether he wants it or not," I said firmly, "it's got to be done. You can't keep murders out of the paper. Either you call the police right away or else I will."

My threat forced him to telephone against his will. I could quite understand his employer's aversion to having a crime in the Granddeck made public. But there was no help for it. There had been a dastardly crime committed, and the police must be informed. Yet it was not to the police that Mr. Wick was telephoning. It evidently was to Mr. Kent's apartment in the building.

"Miss Lutan's been shot by a burglar in her apartment," I heard him say.

"Mr. Nelson and me just discovered her body. What's that, sir?"

Just what Mr. Kent's reply on hearing the shocking news had been I had, of course, no means of knowing, but whatever it was, over the superintendent's face came an expression of incredulity and amazement.

"What do you think," said Mr. Wick, turning to me; "he says for me to call up headquarters at once."

"Of course," I said. "It is the only thing to do."

Nevertheless, as Mr. Wick waited for the number, he kept shaking his head and muttering under his breath something that sounded like:

"To think of his telling me to call in the police!"

With the doctor summoned and the police sent for, there seemed to be little else for us to do but wait, so Wick and I sat down together in the rear sitting room with the elevator boy still on guard at the door.

"Who was Miss Lutan?" I asked.

"Why, Daisy Lutan, the actress," said Mr. Wick in surprise. "I supposed every one knew her."

"I've heard about her," I hastened to say, "but I had no idea that she lived in the Granddeck. Did she live here alone?"

"She keeps a maid, an old woman that has been with her for years."

"Where's the maid tonight?"

"Out to the movies, I suppose. That's where she goes every night when Miss Lutan isn't playing. When she is, she goes to the theater with her."

"Then Miss Lutan is not playing now?"

"Not for the last month."

"Had there been any one here with her tonight?"

"I'll ask the elevator boy."

"John says she came in alone about fifteen minutes ago," said Mr. Wick when he came back. "She went out about seven. Her own chauffeur was driving her then, but when she came back she was in a hired taxi. That's something I can't understand."

"Women of Her Type Always Have a Lot of Men Friends."

"How do you suppose the murderer escaped?"

I was trying every avenue of questioning to see if I could not surprise Wick into some damaging admission. I was beginning to suspect that he knew far more about Miss Lutan's murder than he was telling. I felt somehow that his whole search for the man who had killed Miss Lutan had been entirely perfunctory, a bluff to deceive me. In my growing dislike for the man, I felt that it would not be beyond the range of probability for Wick to have been standing guard at the door while a confederate rifled the apartment.

"I'm no detective," he answered non-committally. "All I know is that he has gone. He certainly ain't here in the apartment."

It was on the tip of my tongue to suggest that we look in the secret passageway. I felt that the shock it would be to Wick to learn that I knew about this might lead him to open his lips. I felt certain that it was by way of a similar passageway to the one I had discovered in my room that the murderer had escaped. But before I could make up my mind to speak the doctor arrived.

He made a hasty inspection and then said tersely:

"There's nothing here for me to do. This woman has been dead for some time."

"How long?" I asked.

"It is impossible for me to judge—maybe twenty minutes, perhaps an hour. I should say that death was practically instantaneous. She was killed by a bullet penetrating the heart. Who shot her?"

He looked sharply from me to Mr. Wick, as if suspecting that it might have been one of us.

"A burglar got her just a few minutes ago," Mr. Wick explained. "Mr. Nelson and me heard a scream and a shot. We let ourselves in here with my pass key and found her here. It must have been a burglar that she surprised when she entered the apartment."

"It looks like it," assented the physician. "There are marks on her throat where he tried to strangle her screams. Have you notified the police?"

"Yes," said Mr. Wick.

"There's nothing more that I can do, then," said the doctor, making his preparations to depart.

"Would you not wait until the police come?" suggested the superintendent. "They'll be here any minute and probably they'll want a statement from you."

"Very well," said the doctor, "I'll wait."

As we waited the three of us cast about the crime and about the dead actress. From the conversation I learned that at the height of her meteoric career on Broadway Daisy Lutan had become the wife of the young son of a very rich family. His parents insisted that she had trapped him into matrimony and after long legal wrangling she had been divorced about a year ago. She had received a large sum in settlement, and this with her earnings as an actress enabled her to live in luxury.

"Haven't she a sweetheart now?" I asked.

"Better make it plural," sneered the doctor. "Women of her type always have a lot of men friends."

"No men ever came to see her here. I'm positive of that," said Mr. Wick. "Of course not," said the doctor sarcastically. "The reputation of the Granddeck apartments must be protected at all costs."

As we talked two detectives in plain clothes arrived. They viewed the body and proceeded to question the doctor.

"How was this woman killed?"

"By a revolver shot right through the heart."

"Who is she?"

"Daisy Lutan, the actress."

"Who did it?"

"It must have been a burglar," interjected Mr. Wick. "My theory is that she came in unexpectedly and found him at work."

"Who found her?"

"Those gentlemen," said the doctor, including both Mr. Wick and me with a wave of his hand.

The detectives turned to Mr. Wick first.

"Tell us about it," one of them directed.

"My name is James Wick," he began as if he was reciting a familiar lesson. "I am the superintendent of the Granddeck apartments. I was in the elevator about half an hour ago when I heard a woman screaming and then the sound of the shot. I took out my revolver and got off at this floor to investigate. At the door I found Mr. Nelson. He, too, had heard the screams and the shot and thought they came from this apartment. I took out my pass key and we went in."

"Were there any signs of the burglar?" asked the other man.

"No, we looked all through the apartment and found no one."

"Was anything missing?"

I waited with bated breath to hear if Wick would tell of having found the wall safe open. If he did not I felt it would be conclusive evidence that there was something he was trying to conceal.

"I didn't notice anything missing," he said glibly. "I wouldn't know, anyhow. I don't know what stuff she had here."

"Who would know?"

"Her maid might. She's out now. Generally she's home by eleven o'clock."

"Did she keep only the one servant?"

"Only the maid and a chauffeur."

"Then she was all alone in the apartment?"

"Yes. She'd gone out all dressed up about seven in her own car. She came home unexpectedly in a hired taxi not more than half an hour ago."

"Did she come home alone?"

"Sure she was alone. At least the hall boys told me so. I did not see her come in, myself."

More and more I was convinced that Wick was lying. I was sure he knew far more about affairs than he was admitting. Why did he keep harping on the fact that Miss Lutan had come in "unexpectedly"? What means had he of knowing what time she was expected home? Furthermore he said he was in the elevator when he heard the screams and the shot. I did not believe it would have been possible for the sounds to have carried that far. The walls were all decorated, and the room where the tragedy had taken place was at the back of the house many feet distant from the elevators. I wondered if the burglar had not been in the place with Mr. Wick's connivance, while he stood guard outside. As he heard me coming he might have taken refuge in the elevator. And why did he have his revolver so conveniently ready?

The detective who had been questioning Wick turned to me.

"Who are you?"

"Spalding Nelson."

"What do you do? Where do you work?"

"I'm a clerk."

"A clerk living at the Granddeck apartments," he sneered. "You must have a good job."

"I haven't any at present," I replied. "I'm living here in Mr. Gaston's apartment, taking care of it while he and his wife are away."

I could see that my statement that I was only a clerk and was not at present employed had not made a favorable impression on the detective.

"Will you explain what you were doing at the door of this apartment when the superintendent arrived?" he demanded with a growing suspicion in his tones.

"That's easy to explain," I retorted. "I was in my apartment directly over this one. I heard her scream and then the shot. It seemed to come from the floor right below me, so I ran down to investigate."

"Is that right?" he asked, turning to Mr. Wick.

The net about Nelson is drawn closer.

ALGIERS RICH IN SUNDAYS

Holy Day Observed Three Times a Week by Followers of Different Religions.

Although no fewer than three Sundays are observed each week in Algiers, writes a correspondent, only one could in any sense be called a "day of rest."

For while the prophet enjoined his followers to attend worship on Sunday, he warned them against allowing it to become a day of idleness. As a result, therefore, will frequently leave his wares untended in his shop while he goes off to the mosque to pray, and he seldom has occasion to regret this course, cases of robbery being extremely rare.

The French Sunday is typically French. The Jew alone makes his Sunday a day of rest, his religion forbidding anything save talking on that day.

A walk through the Jewish quarter on the Sabbath will carry one's thoughts back many years. The picturesque groups at the street corners, in their rich, flowing robes, will recall many an Old Testament story learned in childhood, for the Jew in his oriental garb has a very different appearance from the Jew as we know him in the West.

A Valley Forge Kettle.

According to the Carthage Press, Charles Sanders, a resident of Carthage, has an iron kettle that has an interesting history. It was used to bake bread for Gen. George Washington and his army during the severe winter at Valley Forge. The kettle was given Mr. Sanders by his mother. It is the heavy iron type that was used for baking before the appearance of ovens and cook stoves. Mrs. William Satterfield used it when she was living at Valley Forge in 1778. It was later given her daughter, who used it until her death, at one hundred and ten years of age, when it was given to Mrs. J. V. Sanders, the mother of the present owner.—Kansas City Times.

Put to Good Use.

One day my husband invited a former school chum of his for dinner, writes a correspondent. He arrived about four o'clock, but my husband had not yet come home. Our little son Philip was playing around with our guest, who gave him a quarter. When it came time to prepare dinner I discovered that I did not have enough potatoes and the only money I had was a ten dollar bill. Fearing to send the little fellow to the store with it, I called him out and told him to go and get the potatoes with his quarter and when daddy came home I would give it back to him. Seated later at the dinner table the man playfully pinched Philip's cheek, and asked him what he did with his quarter. To which Philip responded, "Oh, mother took it to buy potatoes."

The Western Sea.

The Pacific, a calm, cold ocean not much fretted by traffic, adds its curious note of aloofness. It sends forth fog, but somehow they carry no hint of salt. And in days of sunshine when it sparkles sapphire blue it seems somehow to exhale no breath. You never "smell the sea" as by the Atlantic's verge, and though you well know that rising seaweed gives forth that odor, you miss it on this western shore. The oceans you have known seem playful children, by turns gay and irritable; by comparison with this monstrous, lovely, inhuman sea.—Harrison Rhodes in Harper's Magazine.

Put Ear to Odd Uses.

Burnt men and women delight in ear ornaments. The lobe of the ear is bored with a hole of astonishing size, and in it various articles are worn—pieces of wood, jewels, or rolls of solid gold or silver. When no ornaments are in the ears, the men often put their cigars, or any other small article in frequent use, through them, and the women use the holes for bonquet holders.

A Great Remedy.

The merits of Chamberlain's Colic and Diarrhoea Remedy are well known and appreciated, but there is occasionally a man who had no acquaintance with them and should read the following by F. H. Dear, a hotel man at Dupuyer, Mont. "Four years ago I used Chamberlain's Colic and Diarrhoea Remedy with such wonderful results that I have since recommended it to my friends."

REGISTRATION NOTICE FOR ELECTION AUG. 31, A. D. 1920.

To the Qualified Electors of the Township of Sylvan, (Precincts No. 1 and 2) County of Washtenaw, State of Michigan:

Notice is hereby given that in conformity with Act 25, Public Acts of 1917, will upon any day except Sunday and a legal holiday, or the day of any regular or special election or official primary election, receive for registration the name of any legal voter in said township not already registered who may apply to the person for such registration, or who may make application for registration by mail or messenger, as provided by Act 54, Public Acts of 1918, except that I can receive no names for registration during the time intervening between the second Saturday before any general or special election or official primary election and the day of such election.

Aug. 21, 1920—Last Day for General Registration for Said Election.

All electors not already registered and intending to vote at said election should make application to me on or before the 21st day of August, A. D. 1920.

Notice is further given that I will be at the office of The Chelsea Standard, 108 East Middle street, Chelsea, Michigan, on August 7 and August 14, A. D. 1920, from 8 o'clock a. m. until 8 o'clock p. m. on each said day for the purpose of reviewing the registration and registering such of the qualified electors in said township as shall properly apply therefor.

The name of no person but an actual resident of the precincts at the time of registration, and entitled to the constitution, if remaining such resident, to vote at the next election shall be entered in the registration book.

Registration of Absentee by Oath.

If any person whose name is not registered shall offer and claim the right to vote at any election and shall, under oath, state that he or she is a resident of such precinct and has resided in the township twenty days next preceding such election, designating particularly the place of his or her residence and that he or she possesses the other qualifications of an elector under the constitution; and that owing to sickness or bodily infirmity of himself or herself, or some member of his or her family or owing to his or her absence from the township on public business, and without intent to avoid or delay his or her registration, he or she was unable to make application for registration on the last day provided by law for the registering of electors preceding such election, then the name of such person shall be registered, and he or she shall then be permitted to vote at such election. If each applicant shall so state, he or she shall make any false statement, he or she shall be deemed guilty of perjury, and upon conviction, be subject to the pains and penalties thereof.

Registration by Mail—The time limit for registration by mail is the

A Traveling Man's Experience.

You may learn something from the following by W. H. Ireland, a traveling salesman of Louisville, Ky. "In the summer of 1888 I had a severe attack of cholera morbus. I gave the hotel porter fifty cents and told him to buy me a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic and Diarrhoea Remedy and to take no substitute. I took a double dose of it according to the directions and went to sleep. At five o'clock the next morning I was called by my order and took a train for my next stopping place, a well man."

Catarrrhal Deafness Cannot Be Cured by local application, as they cannot reach the diseased portions of the ear. There is only one way to cure Catarrrhal deafness and that is by a constitutional remedy. Catarrrhal deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound of imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, deafness is the result. Unless the inflammation can be reduced and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever. Many cases of deafness are caused by catarrh, which is an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces. Hall's Catarrh medicine acts through the blood on the mucous surfaces of the system.

We will give one hundred dollars for any case of catarrhal deafness that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Medicine. Circulars free. All druggists, 75c.
