Bacon-Palmer Wedding.

The marriage of Miss M. Winifred Bacon and Dr. Algernon A. Palmer, took place Wednesday evening, August 18, 1920, at the home of the bride's mother, Mrs. Wm. Bacon, of Orchard street, Rev. H. R. Beatty conducting the ceremony, using the double ring service which was witnessed by the immediate relatives of the couple.

The young couple are well known here and both are graduates of the Chelsea high school. Dr. Palmer is a graduate of the medical department of the U. of M. The bride has been a successful teacher in the Highland Park schools for some time.

Dr. and Mrs. Palmer left this morning for an auto trip in the east. Upon their return here they will occupy the residence of Mrs. A. N. Norton, on Jefferson street.

Primary School Money.

The primary school money of $10 per capita goes toward the payment of teachers' salaries and is taken from the state fund accumulated by taxes from railroads, express companies and like organizations.

Under the proportioning the townships in this vicinity will receive the following amounts, the first amount in each case being the primary fund, the second the library fund, and the third the total of the two funds:

Dexter township, $1,750, $63.27, $1,813.27; Freedom, $2,790, $103.23, $2,893.23; Lima, $1,950, $72.15, $2,022.15; Lyndon, $1,710, $56.65, $1,766.65; Sylvan, $2,270, $83.99, $2,353.99.

Tri-County Beekeepers Meet.

A big get together meeting of the Wayne-Oakland-Washtenaw County Beekeepers is being planned for Friday, August 20 at the home of Floyd Markham, north of Ypsilanti. This is an all day meeting with a basket lunch at noon. A splendid program of interesting and instructive talks has been planned. R. H. Kelley, secretary of the Michigan State Beekeepers association will be on the program. Mr. Kindig will also be present and have something to say about the work of the state organization. Several other speakers from Wayne and Oakland counties are on the program. A large crowd is expected to be in attendance at this meeting.

Village Taxes.

The Chelsea village taxes for 1920 are now due and can be paid at my store during August and until September 15, which will be the last day.

A. E. Winans, Treasurer.

Bank Loot Unrecovered.

Jackson News: Persistent reports that the amount short in the recovered funds of the Farmers' State Bank, of Grass Lake, is far in excess of the estimate give out in the original statement are neither affirmed or denied by the officers of the bank. That the total shortage will aggregate $20,000 has been claimed, and although this will mean no loss to either the stockholders or depositors, as the bank is fully covered by policies in gilt edge companies, the officers seem loth to make statements in regard to the matter.

It is understood that the major portion of this shortage is in bonds, most of which are registered and will be hard to dispose of should any member of the band, who might have hidden them during the battle with the officers, secure his liberty in time to make use of them. Cashier Floyd Mellenkamp stated Monday night that the president of the bank is absent from the village and that other officials did not wish to make a statement until his return. However, no one seems inclined to deny the rumor or to say that the amount is overstated.

Family Reunion.

Mr. and Mrs. Austin B. Gray, of Windsor, Ontario, entertained the thirteenth annual meeting of the Higgins-Downer-Gray reunion, at the home of his mother, Mrs. Wm. Gray, of Chelsea, on Saturday, August 14. Thirty-two members were present from Ann Arbor, Geddes, Belleville, Dixboro, Clinton, Detroit and Windsor. A bountiful dinner was enjoyed at noon, followed by the election of officers and a short program. The reunion next year will be held the third Saturday in August at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Avery Downer near Ann Arbor.

Will Receive Their Degrees.

An unusually large number of students are completing their work in the graduate school of the University of Michigan this week, and at the end of the examination period expect to receive higher degrees. There are 35 students making ready for the master of arts degree, and two who expect to receive the degree of doctor of philosophy at the end of the summer session.

DEAR PETE:

Just blew into Pittsburg to close that N and P purchase. While I was waiting for the contract to be signed who ambles in to the G. M.'s office but President Holt? Asked me if I had a cigarette. Slipped him my "Camel Cigar." Remember, he hit the "straight" boys when I met him last year?

Pete, you ought to hear Mr. Holt talk Camels! Gee, I thought I was some Camel player. But he went right to the mat with the subject. Say, if I could have shorthanded that line of super-stuff I'd have the job writing Camel ads by noon today!

"Reynolds ought to get a dollar for every Camel cigarette," Mr. Holt declared. "Why, my boy, Camels are simply wonderful," he added. "Don't ever let anybody talk about mild cigarettes compared with Camels! I know! (Get that, Pete). I've proved it to a hundred smokers that Camels are the mildest and most refreshing cigarette in the world," etc., etc.

Pete, Camels won Mr. Holt like they won me—on their quality! After hearing him cut loose, I felt like saying: "You tell it, old parcel post, I can't express it!"

Pete, I'm hatching an idea about Camels. I'll spill it your direction next time I write! It's what York State folks call a "pip-ing!" And it's ripe!

Yours till the next fire-up.

The Right Sedan For Right Now

Its Saving on Tires, Oil and Upkeep Add to the Riding Advantages of Triplex Springs

THE OVERLAND SEDAN is an exceptionally good car for all year use. Its ventilator in the cowl, and adjustable windows, with its thick heat resistance top, with the great riding comfort of Triplex Springs, make it fine for touring. Its great economy, which begins with the low price, is exemplified in many recent extraordinary gasoline records. The most notable was the 355-mile Los Angeles-Yosemite Economy Run in which the Overland Sedan won in its class with an average of 27.6 miles per gallon.

BREVITIES

Saline.—S. B. Wiennett sat on his front porch Sunday afternoon and to while away the time kept tab on the number of autos that passed between 4:00 and 7:00. How many? Guess again. Just an even 400.—Observer.

Ann Arbor.—Because the citizens of Ann Arbor are particular about their drinking water supply, eight farmers near the city allege they are unable to raise crops on their lands and have filed suits against the city ranging from $7,000 to $30,000 each. The city has been using water from the Steere farm which it is said has drawn water from other farms.

Tecumseh.—Efforts are being made by the Commercial Club of Tecumseh to recover the D. T. & I. engine shops which were formerly located here. F. S. Turner, secretary of the club, has written Henry Ford urging the return of the shops to Tecumseh and outlining the facilities of water power and available property in Tecumseh that could be secured for the purpose of the shops.

Manchester.—Deputy Sheriff Middleton reports that all dogs in this part of the county are either licensed or have gone to dog heaven. The job of making the round-up and shooting all dogs not licensed was turned over to him by Sheriff Pack and it was a job that he did not relish, but says he found owners of reported dogs had themselves disposed of animals on which they did not wish to pay and the others had secured a license.—Enterprise.

Howell.—Four young college girls from the eastern states hiked into Howell last Wednesday evening and stopped over night at Hotel Livingston. The young ladies were bound for northern Michigan summer resorts and do all their traveling on foot; averaging, they said, about twenty miles a day. Occasionally they stop along the line and do work for farmers, but refused to accept work in the cities. All of the young ladies were dressed in men's khaki clothing.—Democrat.

Ypsilanti.—Samuel Fletcher, who has carried mail in Ypsilanti for the past 31 years, has retired under the new pension law and will be officially out of the service on August 20. Mr. Fletcher is now taking his vacation. According to the new pension law any person who has been in the service for 30 years, and has reached the age of 65, can retire on a pension of 60 per cent of his net earnings for the past 10 years. Miss Emma Randall will retire next year. She has been in the service for the last 20 years. When Mr. Fletcher came into the service there were only four carriers in the city.—Record.

Manchester.—Workmen at the schoolhouse were reminded of former men and times when a paper flour sack bearing the name of Underhill & Roumel was found stuffed under the rostrum in Miss Ackerson's room. The above firm were in business here more than 35 years ago. They first owned a little mill on the east side of the river at the upper dam, what was known as the Brown grist mill. They then bought the big mill, now owned by W. J. Hoffer, and wrecked the little mill. A few years later Mr. Holt bought the property and Mr. Roumel bought the Waterloo mills and moved there. Mr. Underhill died several years ago, and Mr. Roumel recently.—Enterprise.

Charles A. Sink for State Senator.

The candidacy for the State Senate of Charles A. Sink, who so ably represented the first district of Washtenaw county at the last session of the legislature is an example of a spirit of service which might well be emulated by more men of ability and training. For many years Mr. Sink, who is still a young man, has been actively identified with practically every progressive and wholesome civic movement in his home city and throughout the county. In every capacity in which he has served the public he has made a deep impression upon all with whom he has come in contact, through his effective leadership, his broad minded patriotism and his ability to get things done.

During these years, in spite of the fact that he has effectively managed the heavy business of his own office he has also been able to attain splendid results in all his civic endeavors, a good example of the truth of the adage that if you want a thing done well and promptly get a busy man to do it. Mr. Sink's candidacy affords his many admirers and those who believe in encouraging conscientious public service a splendid opportunity of doing so at this time by supporting him at the August primaries in his endeavor to attain the nomination for this higher office.—Adv.

PRIMARY ELECTION.

Notice is hereby given that a General Primary Election will be held in the Township of Sylvan, State of Michigan, at the Town Hall within said Township on for the purpose of placing in nomination by all political parties participating therein, candidates for the following offices, viz.:

State—One candidate for Governor; one candidate for Lieutenant Governor.

Congressional—One candidate for Representative in Congress for the Congressional district of which said Township forms a part.

Legislative—One candidate for Senator in the State Legislature for the Senatorial District of which said Township forms a part; one candidate for Representative in the State Legislature for the Legislative District of which said Township forms a part.

County—Also candidates for the following County offices, viz.: Judge of Probate, Sheriff, County Clerk, County Treasurer, Register of Deeds, Prosecuting Attorney, County Auditor, two Circuit Court Commissioners, one County Drain Commissioner, one Surveyor, Two Coroners.

Delegates to County Conventions. There shall also be elected as many Delegates to the county convention of the several political parties as said Township or Precinct is entitled to under the call of the county committees of said political parties, which number shall be indicated by the number of blank lines printed on the official primary ballots used at said election under the heading, "Delegates to County Conventions." The Board of Primary Election inspectors will furnish delegates with credentials entitling them to seats in the county conventions, except where there is more than one precinct in the township and the county committee requires the election of delegates from the Township as a whole, such delegates should be admitted without credentials. Names of candidates for delegates to county conventions will not appear on the official primary ballots, but will be written or pasted in by the voter, in place designated on said ballots.

Suggestions Relative to Voting. Separate ballots for each political party will be provided. The elector must name the political party of his choice when asking for a ballot and in marking his ballot must make a cross in the square to the left of the name of each elector for whom he desires to vote, and can vote for only one candidate except where two candidates are to be elected, in which case he should vote for two.

Relative to Registration.—Please note that all provisions of the Primary law are done away with, and if you are not already registered in the precinct where you reside, you must register under the provisions of law as set forth in the registration notices posted in connection with this notice of Primary Election.

Notice Relative to Opening and Closing of the Polls.

Act No. 20, Public Acts of 1919, Special Session—A New Law.

Sec. 1. On the day of any election the polls shall be opened at seven o'clock in the forenoon, or as soon hereafter as may be, and shall be continued open until five o'clock in the afternoon and no longer. Provided, that in townships the board of inspectors of election may in its discretion, adjourn the polls at 12 o'clock noon for one hour, and that township board in townships and the legislative body in cities and villages may, by resolution adopted 15 days prior to the election and published with the notice of the election, provide that the polls shall be kept open not later than eight o'clock in the evening of the same day.

The polls of said election shall be open at seven o'clock a. m. and will remain open until eight o'clock p. m. of said day of election, unless the Board of Election Inspectors shall in their discretion, adjourn the polls at 12 o'clock noon, for one hour.

Dated July 20, A. D. 1920.
O. T. Hoover,
Township Clerk.

For Judge of Probate

JOHN D. THOMAS

REPUBLICAN

The day is August 31, 1920.

His name will be found on a republican ballot, only, and you can call for that ballot.

It will be under the heading: "Probate Judge."

He has practiced law in Ann Arbor for several years.

In order to secure the necessary funds to complete his education in the University, it was necessary for him to do clerical work and typewriting for others.

As Justice of the Peace of the City of Ann Arbor for the past seven years, he has handled nearly 7000 cases of all kinds, from which he has learned the characteristics of all mankind.

He was re-elected to the position he now holds as City Justice by a majority of 1350 votes. In fact he received about 2250 votes out of 3000 cast.

He is qualified in every respect to make a good Probate Judge, and as he desires to take a step forward he will be more than thankful to you, on August 31, you will call for a republican ballot, and mark in front of his name, as follows:

X JOHN D. THOMAS.

Henry A. Balser

Jacob F. Fahrner,

Republican candidate for

Prosecuting Attorney

(SECOND TERM)

To Voters of the County of Washtenaw:

The duties of the office of Prosecuting Attorney which I now hold, require that I spend most of my time at the county seat, and make it impossible for me to get out and see as many of the people as I would like to, regarding my candidacy for a second term, I am therefore taking this means of advising you that I am a candidate for a second term as Prosecuting Attorney for Washtenaw County.

In a recent address to a large body of Washtenaw people, Judge George W. Sample of the Circuit Court, said: "Mr. Fahrner has made a splendid Prosecutor, and should be re-elected."

If you feel that I merit your support, for a second term, I shall be glad to have you vote for me at the polls on August 31st.

Very respectfully,
JACOB F. FAHRNER.

Judge Emory E. Leland is a candidate for Judge of Probate on the Republican Ticket at the Primary election to be held on August 31, 1920. The patrons of the Probate office are pleased that Judge Leland has become a candidate. His experience in that office is of great value to the people of Washtenaw county and particularly to the people having business in that court. Important estates are settled there and have always received his prompt and careful attention. The voters of Washtenaw county could do no better than to re-nominate and to elect Mr. Leland to the office of the Judge of Probate. A vote for him at the Primary for this office will be greatly appreciated.—Adv.

Nomination for

Congressman, 2nd District

Primaries Aug. 31

He is a real producer, a success both as a business man and a farmer. He believes that all national laws should be made right for the producers, with no favors to Special Interest.

He knows well the real needs of the times and wants of the people and can be depended upon to work or fight for them.

Do not fail to cast your vote at the Primary, August 31st, for him, if you wish a real representative of the people in congress.

NEWS REVIEW OF CURRENT EVENTS

France Acts Independently of Great Britain in the Russo-Polish Complication.

PROMISES AID TO WRANGEL

America to Use "All Available Means" to Preserve Poland's Independence—Resistance to Red Armies Increasing—Express Workers Get Wage Increase.

By EDWARD W. PICKARD.

The United States will employ "all available means" to safeguard the independence and territorial integrity of Poland, and will not recognize the soviet government of Russia.

The French government has recognized the Wrangel government of southern Russia and will give it military aid against the bolsheviks; and the French representatives in London have been instructed to break off all relations with Krassin and Kamenef, the soviet trade commissioners there.

The British government, though somewhat disengaged by the American and French announcements and the apparent break with France, still hopes and believes a peace can be negotiated between Russia and Poland.

The Russians, persisting in their refusal to permit mediation by any third party, sent a delegation to Minsk to meet the Poles, and continued their circling movement designed to capture Warsaw.

The Poles sent representatives to Minsk to talk armistice, and, having withdrawn in good order from their advanced positions, established two lines of defense before Warsaw and prepared for an extensive counter stroke.

In the lineup of the powers, Italy stands with Great Britain, and France counts on the support of the United States. Germany maintains an ostensible neutrality while hoping for the crushing of Poland, believing the Polish adventure was instigated and directed by France.

Such is the summary of conditions, on the day of writing, in the biggest of the years that are still going on.

President Wilson's statement of America's position was made to Italy. In it he suggested that the conflict might be ended by the withdrawal of all Russian forces from Poland and the withdrawal of all allied troops from ethnographic Russia, together with assurances by the allied and associated powers that Russia will not be dismembered. He urged that any dealings with the soviet regime be confined within "the most narrow boundaries to which the discussion of an armistice can be confined," and scored the soviet government as that of a tyrannical and dishonorable minority whose assurances and guarantees are practically worthless. In asking that the true boundaries of Russia be respected, the note specified that those boundaries should not include Finland, ethnic Poland or such territory as may by agreement form a part of the Armenian state. Just what the president meant by "all available means" in promising aid to Poland was not made clear, but it was assumed, both by government officials and by the representatives of Poland in Washington, that the phrase did not include the dispatch of troops. Prince Lubomirski, the Polish minister, did not ask for armed assistance, but said the need of his countrymen was for food, clothing, arms and other war munitions. These, he added, are needed immediately and imperatively.

A conference of the British and French premiers was held at Hythe and, returning to London, Lloyd George told the house of commons that he still believed in peace. He said Russia was entitled to strict guarantees against a repetition of the Polish attack but was not entitled to destroy Poland as a nation; if Russia acted within those conditions there would be no war by the entente. If the Minsk meeting failed of results, he declared, the allies had decided on these lines of action: (1) No action, except to support Poland in the struggle for existence; (2) only to give support to the nation which fights its own struggles; (3) no allied troops to be sent to Poland; (4) the allies will help to equip the Poles for their own defense; (5) to give military advice and guidance; (6) economic pressure to be brought to bear on Russia; (7) to help Wrangel and all other counter-revolutionaries; (8) end of trading negotiations.

Turning to the Russian representatives who sat in the gallery, the little Welshman said: "If you want peace, get it now. If you are out to challenge the liberties of Europe, we will meet you and fight to the end."

British labor leaders had already warned Lloyd George there would be a general strike if the nation went to war, but at the conclusion of the premier's speech Mr. Clyne, their chief, declared the laborites do not favor soviet ideas and methods, and that if they were convinced the soviet government was aggressive, they would be forced to consider supporting the British government.

Kamenef outlined the armistice terms the soviet was offering Poland, and in some respects they were reasonable. They included, however, demobilization of the Polish army within one month and the demobilization of all war industries. Another clause demanded that the families of all Polish citizens killed, wounded or incapacitated in the war shall be given land free. This was looked on as a part of the plan to establish soviet rule in Poland.

The encircling movement of the soviet armies carried them across the Warsaw-Danzig railway and down toward the Vistula from the north. But the other rail line to Danzig, through Thorn, seemed safe for the present. The Polish forces were being concentrated and regrouped, and a competent observer, formerly in the American army, declared that though the Polish position was serious it was not desperate. The stories of panic and complete loss of morale he said were false, and were the result of a propaganda by the enemies of Poland. The spirit of the Polish people was still high, he asserted, and men and women in large numbers were volunteering in all classes of war service.

A correspondent who has just completed the trip from Vladivostok to Finland says that from one end of Russia to the other is heard the cry for food and clothing, and Nikolai Lenin himself is said to have admitted that the Russian people cannot pass through another winter like the last.

On Wednesday the soviet government signed a provisional peace treaty with Latvia and agreed with Finland upon armistice conditions. These arrangements will make more difficult the maintenance of a blockade of Russia by the allies if that course is found necessary.

In Persia the reds have withdrawn from Esfah and some other places because of lack of supplies, but they have established headquarters of a Persian soviet republic at Ardabil, a little south of the Caspian. The old government remains at Teheran, though its flight has been rumored repeatedly.

Greece continues to increase her forces in Asia Minor and has captured some more strategic positions. Kemal Pasha, however, has not quit by any means and recent dispatches say 15,000 Tartars are on the way to join his nationalist troops for a great offensive against the Greeks, probably on the Smyrna front. According to an agreement between Italy and Greece the Dodecanese has been transferred to Greek sovereignty except Rhodes, where a plebiscite will be held some time in the future.

Technically the world war came to an end Tuesday, so far as the allied nations and their opponents are concerned. On that day the last of the peace treaties, that with Turkey, was signed in Sevres, near Paris. The Jugo-Slavs refused to sign because the treaty provides that the Ottoman debt be partitioned among former Turkish territories allocated to other states and because Jugo-Slavia did not receive Macedonia as she asked. The United States did not sign the treaty owing to President Wilson's objection to the presence of the sultan in Constantinople, the allocation of Thrace and Smyrna to Greece, and the Asia Minor mandates.

The British parliament has passed and the king has approved the new Irish coercion bill. The debate in the house of commons was bitter. Very optimistic persons think the law will restore order in Ireland.

Much interest and some excitement were caused by the British government's course in dealing with the visit of Archbishop Mannix of Australia, the warm advocate of free Ireland, who spent some weeks in the United States. He intended to land in Ireland, but government agents removed him from the liner and put him ashore at Penzance under technical arrest. He proceeded to London, but his movements were restricted by orders. He received invitations to address meetings in many places in England, Scotland and Ireland. The treatment of the archbishop looks, at this distance, like a characteristic bit of British "muddling," but probably the government knew what it was about. To an interviewer the churchman said what he wanted was to see England get out of Ireland, intimating that the latter as an independent country would be no more the enemy of Great Britain than it is now.

Another big wage increase award was made last week by the United States railway labor board, the employees of the American Railway Express company being the beneficiaries this time. They were granted a flat increase of 10 cents an hour and the total will amount to $30,556,445 a year. The heads of the four unions affected appeared well satisfied with the award.

The railway rate increase ran against a snag in Illinois when the state public utilities commission ruled that the 2-cent passenger fare in the state was restored by the passing of the wartime transportation act; denied applications for increases to 3.8 cents per mile, for increased surcharges on Pullman and parlor car fares, for increase of commutation rates and for increased milk rates; and denied application for 40 per cent increase in freight rates, granting a temporary increase of 33-1/3 per cent.

Franklin Roosevelt was formally notified Monday of his nomination for the vice presidency by the Democrats, and two days later opened the Democratic campaign in Chicago with a speech in which he made a special plea for the support of the old Bull Moose element. Both in this address and in his speech of acceptance he exhibited a spirit of fair-mindedness that won commendation. Governor Cox began his speaking tour the latter part of the week.

The front porch campaign plans for Senator Harding have not been changed, but the Republican leaders will make extensive use of "publicity"—news stories, advertising and the movies. It was expected that Harding would soon declare himself as to just what kind of a League of Nations he thinks would be acceptable to the American people, for he does not wish the nation to believe that because he is against the Wilson league, he is against any league.

The prohibition nominees, Watkins and Colvin, both delivered their acceptance speeches at Germantown, O., and plans were made to carry on a vigorous campaign, largely by airplane.

Charles Ponzi of Boston, whose sensational operations in international postal coupons attracted the attention of the authorities, came to grief, at least temporarily, when a state bank examiner closed the Hanover Trust company, through which he carried on much of his business, and he was arrested on a state larceny charge. The same day the "wizard" admitted he had been an inmate of prisons at Atlanta and in Canada. Ponzi has not revealed the exact method by which he made so much money for his clients and himself in a few weeks. He asserts he can take care of all his financial obligations.

U. S. AND GERMAN SHIP LINES MERGE

AMERICAN VESSELS WILL USE TRADE ROUTES OF HAMBURG-AMERICAN LINE.

PLAN HAS O. K. OF GOVERNMENT

Chairman Benson, of Shipping Board, Announces That Agreement Has Been Made For 20 Years.

Washington.—Operation of American ships on former German trade routes to all parts of the world has the sanction and support of the shipping board. Chairman Benson announced in making public co-operative working agreements reached between the American Ship and Commerce corporation of New York and the Hamburg-American line of Germany.

In his summary of the agreements the chairman declared "the shipping board would look forward to seeing one of its constructive plans carried out."

The agreement is for 20 years and consists, the chairman said, of a general agreement covering the principles to be followed by the two concerns and an operating agreement covering the methods of carrying out the plan. In general it provides each party may participate with an equal amount of tonnage in such passenger and freight service as shall be established, which will include those between the United States and Germany and Germany and parts of the world other than the United States.

Pier facilities, ports and office organizations of both companies are placed at the disposal of the service.

The American Ship and Commerce corporation is to act as agent for the Hamburg-American line in United States ports and the German company as agents for the American company in German ports, but each company may establish offices in the country of the other to supervise activities there. Each company is to appoint its own agents outside of Germany and the United States.

The Hamburg-American line may transfer any service to any other German company for execution and the American corporation may transfer service to any American company, but both parties remain responsible for the carrying out of the services.

Passenger service between the United States and Germany is to be in operation within a year.

CHICAGO F. OF L. SHOWS FANGS

Adopts General Strike Resolution If U. S. Gives Poland Aid.

Chicago.—The Chicago Federation of Labor Sunday adopted a resolution demanding a general strike of workers of the country if the United States gives military aid to Poland.

The resolution recites that the Allies are insisting that Poland fight the "soviet government of Russia, which is a government of and for workers," and declares that the United States is showing a decided leaning toward "unfriendly action against the workers' government of Russia."

The resolution then declares that in event of any "over act" against Soviet Russia on behalf of Poland by the United States "the workers of the United States pledge themselves to take the same action taken by the workers of Great Britain and France and call a general strike, which shall continue as long as such aggression against the workers' government of Russia exists."

The resolution was adopted by acclamation and representatives of various unions present pledged themselves to present it to their respective locals for ratification.

LIGHTNING KILLS 1, HURTS 1

Bolt Hits Barn in Which Men Had Sought Refuge.

Mt. Clemens, Mich.—Frederick Koehler, 44 years old, of Mt. Clemens, was instantly killed and Bernard Jock, also of Mt. Clemens, was seriously burned, when the barn in which they sought refuge from a storm was struck by lightning.

Jock asserts that after crawling from the barn, he lay near the roadside for a considerable time before he was able to summon a passing autoist.

The entire right side of Koehler's body was charred by the lightning.

POLICE HELD FOR RUN RUNNING

Federal Agents Arrest Two Officers On Smuggling Charge.

Detroit.—George and Paul P. Helke, patrolmen, were delinquent temporarily from the police force following their arrest by Federal officers, who charge the brothers have smuggled liquor from Canada. With their cousin, Henry F. Helke, they were held on a charge of violating the national prohibition act.

The two patrolmen were arrested as they drove an automobile into the garage at their home, 241 Lillibridge avenue. It was laden with liquor.

Federal agents say the brothers have long been watched. A cabin boat, said to be used in carrying liquor from Canada, was seized.

Yankee Understatement.

A paragraph in the Companion about the mild rector of the man who was kicked by his horse reminded a subscriber of her grandfather's story of John Teale. John was a Yankee tanner, who was trying one day to get a log down from the top of the pile. He tied a rope to the log; then, that he might stop the log before it rolled too far, he tied the other end of the rope around his waist. John pulled: the log came down and snatched the tanner's halfway down the mountain. Some weeks later John was able to sit up and discuss the accident with a sympathetic neighbor.

"Yes, sir," said John, "I hadn't gone home'n ten red h'ore I see where I'd missed it!"—Youth's Companion.

Pleasing Father.

An Indianapolis resident, who recently visited his former home in Kentucky hill country, took along the usual gifts and remembrances for members of the family. One of these, a dog, obtained at the city pound, part bull and with only half a tail, stood out. "You see, it will please father," he said. "He has 14 dogs now, but this one is different. No," he said, "there is no dog tax in Kentucky."

"Oh, my love!" he cried happily. "I hadn't dared dream of such happiness until today. You were so unattainable—the obstacles between us were so many and so great."

"Why today, Bryce?" she interrupted him.

He took her adorable little nose in his great thumb and forefinger and tweaked it gently. "The light began to dawn yesterday, my dear little enemy, following an interesting half-hour which I put in with his honor the mayor. Acting upon suspicion only, I told Poundstone I was prepared to send him to the rock pile if he didn't behave himself in the matter of my permanent franchise for the N. C. O.—and the old oily inveterate wept and promised me anything if I wouldn't disgrace him. So I promised I wouldn't do anything until the franchise matter should be definitely settled—after which I returned to my office, to find awaiting me there no less a person than the right-of-way man for the Northwestern Pacific. He was a perfectly delightful young fellow, and he had a proposition to unfold. It seems the Northwestern Pacific has decided to build up from Whitts, and all that power and publicity of Buck Ogilvy's about the N. C. O. was in all probability the very thing that spurred them to action. They figured the C. M. & St. P. was back of the N. C. O.—that it was to be the first link in a chain of coast roads to be connected ultimately with the terminus of the C. M. & St. P. on Gray's Harbor, Washington. And if the N. C. O. should be built it meant that a rival road would get the edge on them in the matter of every stick of Humboldt and Del Norte railroad—and they'd be left holding the sack."

"Why did they think that, dear?"

"That amazing rascal, Buck Ogilvy, used to be a C. M. & St. P. man; they thought they traced an analogy, I dare say. Perhaps Buck fibbed to them. At any rate this right-of-way man was wily and anxious to know whether or not the N. C. O. had purchased from the Cardigan Redwood Lumber company a site for a terminus on tide-water (we control all the deep-water frontage on the bay), and when I told him the deal had not yet been closed he started to close one with me."

"Did you close?"

"My dear girl, will a duck swim? Of course I closed. I sold three-quarters of all we had, for three-quarters of a million dollars, and an hour ago I received a wire from my attorney in San Francisco informing me that the money had been deposited in escrow there awaiting formal deed. That money puts the Cardigan Redwood Lumber company in the clear—no receivership for us now, my dear one. And I'm going right ahead with the building of the N. C. O.—while our holdings down on the San Hedrin double in value, for the reason that within three years they will be accessible and can be logged over the falls of the Northwestern Pacific!"

"Bryce," Shirley declared, "haven't I always told you I'd never permit you to build the N. C. O.?"

"Of course," he replied, "but surely you're going to withdraw your objections now."

"I am not. You must choose between the N. C. O. and me." And she met his surprised gaze unflinchingly. "Shirley! You don't mean it?"

"I do mean it. I have always meant it. I love you, dear, but for all that you must not build that road."

shook his head. "I must go on," he reiterated.

"To you realize what that resolution means to me?" The girl's tones were grave, her glance earnest.

"I realize what it means to me!" She came closer to him. Suddenly the blaze in her violet eyes gave way to one of grief. "Oh, you dear big body!" she cried. "I was just testing you." And she clung to him, laughing. "You always beat me down—you always win. Bryce, dear, I'm the Laguna Grande Lumber company—at least I will be tomorrow, and I repeat for the last time that you shall not build the N. C. O.—because I'm going to—oh, dear, I shall die laughing at you—because I'm going to merge with the Cardigan Redwood Lumber company, and then my railroad shall be your railroad, and I'll extend it and haul Gregory's logs to tide-water for him also. And—silly, didn't I tell you you'd never build the N. C. O.?"

"God bless my mildewed soul!" he murmured, and drew her to him.

In the gathering dusk they walked down the trail. Beside the madrone tree John Cardigan waited patiently. "Well," he queried when they joined him, "did you find my handkerchief for me, son?"

"I didn't find your handkerchief, John Cardigan," Bryce answered, "but I did find what I suspect you sent me back for—and that is a perfectly wonderful daughter-in-law for you!"

John Cardigan smiled and held out his arms for her. "This," he said, "is the happiest day that I have known since my boy was born."

CHAPTER XIX.

Col. Seth Pennington was thoroughly crushed. Look which way he would the bedeviled old rascal could find no loophole for escape.

"You win, Cardigan," he muttered desperately as he sat in his office after Shirley had left him. "You've had more than a shade in every round thus far, and at the finish you've landed a clean knockout. If I had to fight any man but you—"

He sighed resignedly and pressed the push-button on his desk. Sexton entered. "Sexton," he said bluntly and with a slight quiver in his voice, "my niece and I have had a disagreement. We have quarreled over young Cardigan. She's going to marry him. Now, our affairs are somewhat involved, and in order to straighten them out we spun a coin to see whether she should sell her stock in Laguna Grande to me or whether I should sell mine to her—and I lost. The book valuation of the stock at the close of last year's business, plus ten per cent will determine the selling price, and I shall resign as president. You will, in all probability, be retained to manage the company until it is merged with the Cardigan Redwood Lumber company—when, I imagine, you will be given ample notice to seek a new job elsewhere. Call Miss Sumner's attorney, Judge Moore, on the telephone and ask him to come to the office at nine o'clock tomorrow, when the papers can be drawn up and signed. That is all."

The Colonel did not return to his home in Redwood boulevard that night. He had no appetite for dinner and sat brooding in his office until very late; then he went to the Hotel Sequoia and engaged a room. He did not possess sufficient courage to face his niece again.

At four o'clock the next day the Colonel, his baggage, his automobile, his chauffeur and the solemn butler, James, boarded the passenger steamer for San Francisco, and at four-thirty sailed out of Humboldt bay over the thundering bar and on into the south. The Colonel was still a rich man, but his dream of a redwood empire had faded, and once more he was taking up the search for cheap timber. Whether he ever found it or not is a matter that does not concern us.

At a moment when young Henry Poundstone's dream of legal opulence was fading, when Mayor Poundstone's hopes for domestic peace had been shattered beyond repair, the while his cheap political aspirations had been equally devastated because of a certain damnable document in the possession of Bryce Cardigan, many events of importance were transpiring. On the veranda of his old-fashioned home John Cardigan sat tapping the door with his stick and dreaming dreams which for the first time in many years were contented. Beside him Shirley sat, her glance bent musically out across the roofs of Sequoia and on to the bay shore, where the smoke and exhaust steam floated up from two sawmills—her own and Bryce Cardigan's. To her came at regularly spaced intervals the faint whining of the saws and the rumble of log trains crawling out of the log dumps; high over the piles of bright, freshly sawn lumber she caught from time to time the flash of white spray as the great logs tossed from the trucks hurtled down the skids and crashed into the bay. At the docks of both mills vessels were loading, their tall spars cutting the sky line above and beyond the smokestacks; far down the bay a steam schooner, loaded with her main deck was almost flush with the water, was putting out to sea, and Shirley heard the faint echo of her siren as she whistled her intention to pass to starboard of a wind jammer inward bound in tow of a Cardigan tug.

"It's wonderful," she said presently, apropos of nothing.

"Aye," he replied in his deep, melodious voice. "I've been sitting here, my dear, listening to your thoughts. You know something, now, of the life that binds my boy to Sequoia. This—he waved his arm abroad in the darkness—"this is the true essence of life—to create, to develop the gifts that God has given us—to work and know the blessing of weariness—to have dreams and see them come true. That is life, and I have lived. And now I am ready to rest." He smiled wistfully. "The king is dead. Long live the king." I wonder if you, raised as you have been, can face life in Sequoia resolutely with my son. It is a dull, dumb sawmill town, where life unfolds gradually without thrill—where the years stretch ahead of one with only trees, among simple folk. The life may be hard on you, Shirley; one has to acquire a taste for it, you know."

"I have known the life of battle, John-partner," she answered; "hence I think I can enjoy the sweets of victory. I am content."

"And what a run you did give that boy Bryce?"

She laughed softly. "I wanted him to fight; I had a great curiosity to see the stuff that was in him," she explained.

Next day Bryce Cardigan, riding the top log on the end truck of a long train just in from Cardigan's woods in Township Nine, dropped from the end of the log as the train crawled through the mill yard on its way to the log dump. He hailed Buck Ogilvy, where the latter stood in the door of the office.

"Big dolings up on Little Laurel creek this morning, Buck?"

"Do tell!" Mr. Ogilvy murmured morosely.

"It was great," Bryce continued. "Old Duncan McTavish returned. I knew he would. His year on the mourner's bench expired yesterday, and he came back to claim his old job of woods boss."

"He's one year too late," Ogilvy declared. "I wouldn't let that big Canadian Jules Rondeau quit for a farm. Some woods boss, that—and his first job with this company was the dirtiest you could hand him—smearing grease on the skid road at a dollar and a half a day and found. He's made too good to lose out now. I don't care what his private morals may be. He can get out the logs, hang his rascally hide, and I'm for him."

"I'm afraid you haven't anything to say about it, Buck," Bryce replied dryly.

"I haven't eh? Well, any time you deny me the privilege of bring and firing you're going to be out the service of a rattling good general manager, my son. Yes, sir! If you hold me responsible for results I must select the tools I want to work with."

"Oh, very well," Bryce laughed. "Have it your own way. Only if you can drive Duncan McTavish out of Cardigan's woods I'd like to see you do it. Possession is nine points of the law, Buck—and Old Duncan is in possession."

"What do you mean—in possession?"

"I mean that at ten o'clock this morning Duncan McTavish appeared at our log landing. The whiskey fact was all gone from him and he appeared forty years old instead of the sixty that he is. With a whoop he came jumping over the logs, straight for Jules Rondeau. The big Canuck saw him coming and knew what his visit portended—so he wasn't taken unawares. It was a case of fight for his job—and Rondeau fought."

"The devil you say!"

"I do—and there was the devil to pay. It was a rough and tumble and no grips barred—just the kind of a fight Rondeau likes. Nevertheless Old Duncan fished him. While he's been away somebody taught him the hammer lock and the crotch hold and a few more fancy ones, and he got to work on Rondeau in a hurry. In fact he had to, for if the tussle had gone over five minutes Rondeau's youth would have decided the issue."

"And Rondeau was whipped?"

"To a whisper. Mac fished him, and choked him until he bent the ground with his free hand in token of surrender; whereupon old Duncan let him up, and Rondeau went to his shirt and poked his turkey. The last I saw of him he was headed over the hill to Camp Two on Laguna Grande. He'll probably chase that assistant woods boss I hired after the consolidation out of Shirley's woods and help himself to the fellow's job. I don't care if he does. What interests me is the fact that the old Cardigan woods boss is back on the job in Cardigan's woods, and I'm mighty glad of it. The old horse thief has had his lesson and will remain sober hereafter. I think he's cured."

"The infamous old outlaw!"

"Mac knows the San Hedrin as I know my own pocket. He'll be a tower of strength when we open up that tract after the railroad builds in. By the way, has my dad been down this morning?"

"Yes. Moira read the mail to him and then took him up to the Valley of the Giants. He said he wanted to do a little quiet figuring on that new steam schooner you're thinking of building. He thinks she ought to be bigger—big enough to carry two million feet."

Bryce glanced at his watch. "It's half after eleven," he said. "Guess I'll run up to the Giants and bring him home to luncheon."

He stepped into the Napier standing outside the office and drove away. Buck Ogilvy waited until Bryce was out of sight; then with sudden determination he entered the office.

"Moira," he said abruptly, approaching the desk where she worked, "your dad is back, and what's more, Bryce Cardigan has let him have his old job as woods boss. And I'm here to announce that you're not going back to the woods to keep house for him. Understand? Now, look here, Moira. I've shilly-shallied around you for months, protesting my love, and I haven't gotten anywhere. Today I'm going to ask you for the last time. Will you marry me? I need you worse than that rascal of a father of yours does, and I tell you I'll not have you go back to the woods to take care of him. Come, now, Moira. Do give me a definite answer."

"I'm afraid I don't love you well enough to marry you, Mr. Ogilvy," Moira pleaded. "I'm truly fond of you, but—"

"The last boat's gone," cried Mr. Ogilvy desperately. "I'm answered. Well, I'll not stick around here much longer. Moira, I realize I must be a nuisance, but I can't help being a nuisance when you're near me. So I'll quit my job here and go back to my old game of railroading."

"Oh, you wouldn't quit a ten-thousand-dollar job," Moira cried against. "I'd quit a million-dollar job. I'm desperate enough to go over to the mill and pick a fight with the big handsaw. I'm going away where I can't see you. Your eyes are driving me crazy."

"But I don't want you to go, Mr. Ogilvy."

"Call me Buck," he commanded sharply.

"I don't want you to go, Buck," she repeated meekly. "I shall feel guilty, driving you out of a fine position."

"Then marry me and I'll stay."

"But suppose I don't love you the way you deserve—"

"Suppose! Suppose!" Buck Ogilvy cried. "You're no longer certain of yourself. How dare you deny your love for me? Eh? Moira, I'll risk it. Her eyes turned to him timidly, and for the first time he saw in their smoky depths a lambent flame. "I don't know," she quavered, "and it's a big responsibility in case—"

"Oh, the devil take the case!" he cried rapturously, and took her hands in his. "Do I improve with age, dear Moira?" he asked with boyish eagerness; then, before she could answer, he swept on, a tornado of love and pleading. And presently Moira was in his arms, and he was kissing her, and she was crying softly because—well, she admired Mr. Buck Ogilvy; more, she respected him and was genuinely fond of him. She wondered and she wondered, a quiet joy thrilled her in the knowledge that it did not seem at all impossible for her to grow, in time, absurdly fond of this wholesome red rascal.

"Oh, Buck, dear," she whispered. "I don't know, I'm sure, but perhaps I've loved you a little bit for a long time."

"I'm perfectly wild over you. You're the most wonderful woman I ever heard of. Old rosy cheeks!" And he pinched them just to see the color come and go.

John Cardigan was seated in his lumberjack's easy chair as his son approached. His hat lay on the litter of brown twigs beside him; his chin was sunk on his breast, and his head was held a little to one side in a listening attitude; a vagrant little breeze rustled gently a lock of his fine, long white hair. Bryce stooped over the old man and shook him gently by the shoulder.

"Wake up, partner," he called cheerfully. But John Cardigan did not wake, and again his son shook him. Still receiving no response, Bryce lifted the feeble old head and gazed into his father's face. "John Cardigan," he cried sharply. "Wake up, old pal."

The old eyes opened and John Cardigan smiled up at his boy. "Good son," he whispered, "good son!" He closed his sightless eyes again as if the mere effort of holding them open wearied him. "I've been sitting here—waiting," he went on in the same gentle whisper. "No, not waiting for you, boy—waiting—"

His head fell over on his son's shoulder; his hand went groping for Bryce's. "Listen," he continued. "Can't you hear it—the Silence? I'll wait for you here, my son. Mother and I will wait together now—in this spot she fancied. I'm tired—I want rest. Look after old Mac and Moira—and Bill Dandy, who lost his leg at Camp Seven last fall—and Tom Ellington's children—and—all the others a-m. You know, Bryce. They're your responsibilities. Sorry I can't wait to see the San Hedrin opened up, but—I've lived my life and loved my love. Ah, yes, I've been happy—so happy just doing things—and—dreaming here among my Giants—and—"

He sighed gently. "Good son," he whispered again; his big body relaxed, and the great heart of the Argonaut was still. Bryce held him until the realization came to him that his father was no more—that like a watch, the winding of which has been neglected, he had gradually slowed up and stopped.

"Goodby, old John-partner," he murmured. "You've escaped into the light at last. We'll go home together now, but we'll come back again."

And with his father's body in his strong arms he departed from the little amphitheater, walking lightly with his heavy burden down the old skid road to the waiting automobile. And two days later John Cardigan returned to rest forever with his lost mate among the Giants, himself at last an infinitesimal portion of that tremendous silence that is the diapason of the ages.

When the funeral was over Shirley and Bryce lingered until they found themselves alone beside the freshly turned earth. Through a rift in the great branches two hundred feet above a patch of cerulean sky showed faintly; the sunlight fell like a broad golden shaft over the blossom-laden grave and from the brown trunk of an adjacent tree a gray squirrel, a descendant, perhaps, of the gray squirrel that

SOME RECORD AIR FLIGHTS RUBY IS JULY BIRTHSTONE

Give Proof That Birds Are Still the Undisputed Champions in the Flying Game.

Gem Has Been Associated Through Centuries With Some Remarkably Quaint Superstitions.

Long-distance flights by birdmen have long been anticipated by the birds themselves, says the Christian Science Monitor. Recent proofs of their endurance and wanderlust comes in a report from Capetown, which says that five swallows have been traced recently from hangars in England to temporary homes in South Africa. These birds were ringed as nestlings and found by a happy chance at the other end of the world. One nestling ringed in Lancashire, was found in Cape Province in February of the next year; another, ringed in Yorkshire, was reported next March in Orange Free State; another, ringed in Yorkshire, was recovered in East Grinstead the following February; a fourth swallow, this time an adult, ringed in Staffordshire, was recovered in Natal 19 months afterward; the fifth bird, ringed on June 1, 1919 in Stirlingshire, was found in February, 1920, at Lake Chrissle.

The ringing scheme was inaugurated by J. H. Whithery, editor of British Birds.

SHORTAGE OF LABOR IN GRAIN-GROWING REGIONS STILL ACUTE

Type of Volunteer "Shock Troops" That Helped the Farmer Hold the Line in 1918.

With a shortage of farm labor, as acute this year as in the critical year of 1918, threatening a curtailment of food production on the farms, especially at the trying season of harvesting, the United States department of agriculture is endeavoring to stir up the interest of city men in spending their vacations in the fields, particularly as harvest helpers.

Everyone remembers the now famous "shock troops" of the war years, who went into the harvest fields of Kansas and other large wheat-producing states and lent a hand at gathering in the nation's food supply. They included men in many walks of life—college students and city men, including bankers, lawyers, doctors, clerks and state and city officials. These veterans, together with other volunteers to swell the ranks, are urged to mobilize again this year to help relieve the present shortage and so aid in combating high costs of food products.

Rendered Good Service in 1918. In making this appeal it is recognized that, at the outset at least, such labor is not as efficient as experienced farm labor, but the excellent results secured in 1918, when city men in large numbers came to the aid of the farmers leave no doubt as to the success of the present canvass if the men respond.

The present labor shortage has arisen in spite of the fact that farm wages are 15 to 25 per cent higher than last year. The situation, unremedied, cannot fail to have an unfavorable effect on production, according to observers of the department, who are watching the condition closely. It will tend, they say, to prevent any reduction in the prices of farm products. While the total acreage undoubtedly has been reduced as a result of the present situation, it is not in so large proportion as the reduction in the labor supply, because the farmers with their families exerted themselves to the utmost to overcome the handicap. Cultivation this year was less intensive than formerly. More land was put into grass and such crops as required a minimum of labor, and the tilled fields consequently suffered.

Grain States Need Help. From many of the harvest centers are coming appeals for help. In some of the big grain-producing states of the West, such as Idaho and Nebraska, the demand for labor for planting the crops and tending them was fairly well met. Harvesting and threshing, however, means more help, and it is this that the farmers in these areas are worrying about. Help must come from the cities, and it is to arouse the interest of city men and obtain their aid that the department and other agencies of the government and the states are directing their efforts.

Persons who are desirous of responding to the appeal should get in touch with directors of agricultural extension at the colleges in the various states. These directors are prepared to supply the names of county agents having farmers in their respective counties who need farm labor. By this means anyone wishing to help can get in direct communication with the farmer. In the grain-producing states local employment headquarters are established at various centers.

CO-OPERATIVE HOUSES ON BUSINESS LINES

Quite Necessary to Secure the Greatest Results.

Experts of Bureau of Markets Cite Two Instances to Substantiate Assertion That Each Member Must Be on Equal Footing.

To secure the greatest results, co-operative marketing enterprises must be organized and operated along sound business lines, say experts of the bureau of markets, United States department of agriculture, who cite two instances to prove their point.

A sweet potato co-operative marketing association was formed in a New Mexico county that boasted of seven sweet potato warehouses. Six of these warehouses were ignored in organizing the association. The owner of the seventh warehouse was permitted to hold 51 per cent of the stock. With such a monopoly, this gentleman was able to control the business of the association, with the result that all the sweet potatoes were stored in his warehouse, and the other warehousemen faced the threat of being driven out of business. However, the seventh warehouse owner was finally made to see the error of his ways, and through the assistance of the field marketing agent of the United States department of agriculture the association has been reorganized upon a truly co-operative basis.

In the adjoining county were two men who had made a considerable fortune in sweet potatoes, largely through their ability to store their potatoes in their own warehouses. The other sweet potato growers were able barely to eke out a small profit, because they were compelled to sell their produce immediately. The two warehousemen finally were prevailed upon to interest themselves in the formation of a co-operative association. The association was thereby enabled to negotiate a loan from the bank for the construction of a warehouse to take care of the pooled produce. This was such an encouragement to the farmers that it was soon necessary to construct another building because of a considerable increase in crops.

The two leading sweet potato men in this association did not hold a majority of the stock. The organization is a co-operative one in the full meaning of the word. Each member is on an equal footing with every other member. At a recent meeting of the association it was announced that through the combined efforts of the farmers $40,000 in additional profits had been secured, with all the seed sweet potatoes yet to be sold.

FEDERAL STANDARDS PREVENT INEQUALITY

Cause of Considerable Dissatisfaction Removed.

With Passing of Misapprehensions Increasing Sentiment Being Manifested in Favor of Purchase and Sale by Grade.

Misunderstanding as to the application of the federal grain standards and as to the benefits to be derived from the sale of grain upon a grade basis have been the cause of considerable dissatisfaction among producers and country elevator operators, but with the passing of these misapprehensions an ever-increasing sentiment is being manifested in favor of the purchase and sale by grade at country points.

The old system of basing the price at which wheat or other grain was bought from the farmer upon the average quality of the crop in any community or section was totally unfair to the producer of good grain. Under the "mine-run" basis of purchasing grain the producer of good grain received no more for his clean, heavy wheat than did the producer of light weight and otherwise inferior grain. Instead of a premium upon heavy grain, a premium was paid upon inferior products.

The application of federal grain standards is calculated to prevent such inequality, and as experience is being had under the grading system growers are finding that the purpose sought is being accomplished.

DON'T FEED DEAD CARCASSES

Careful Examination Should Be Made to Find Traces of Tuberculosis—May Infect Herd.

Don't feed dead carcasses of cattle to hogs until after a careful autopsy has shown that they are not affected with tuberculosis. You may infect your whole herd by feeding the carcass of a cow that has died after a lingering illness. Such carcasses should be burned or buried deeply.

EGGS IN SEPARATE PACKAGES

Some Markets Favor White-Shell, While Others Favor Brown—Throw Out Defects.

Market white-shelled and brown-shelled eggs in separate packages. Eggs irregular in shape, those which are unusually long or thin-shelled, or which have shells otherwise defective, should be kept by the producer for home use, so that breakage in transit may be reduced as much as possible.

Practical and Good Looking

WHEN a dress is called "practical" we are apt to feel that it has been condemned with cold praise and "practical" offered as its excuse for not being pretty. House frocks for the average woman must be practical and their manufacturers have undertaken to make them at least good looking. They have succeeded so well that there are many models that are both practical and pretty. The simpler designs are planned to launder easily; usually cut with kimono body and sleeves, made in one piece, and with a loose adjustment about the waistline, where a belt of the material slips through straps of it, to give the waistline the required definition.

House dresses for everyday, ordinary wear are shown in a variety of designs that are really attractive. After experimenting with other good fabrics, and successfully, designers return to gingham with unshaken confidence. In plaid and checks it has been a great favorite this season without laying any claim to novelty. But designers have managed it cleverly as one of many good models will prove. This is shown in the picture. It is noticeable that the skirt and tunic are cut on the straight of the goods and the tunic left open at the front. It is bordered with a bias band of the goods. The waist is plain, with three-quarter length sleeves, and has an organdie vestee and rolled collar, picot-edged, with four flat pearl buttons making a neat finish at each side of it. The vestee has two picot-edged flounces set on a plain foundation and there are rather large patch pockets capped with organdie.

Checked ginghams in the daintier colors with white are particularly pretty made up with organdie, but they are out of the class of practical house frocks. Plain chambray with organdie and these checked ginghams have made some of the prettiest summer dresses. Usually they have organdie collars, cuffs, vestees and sashes and occasionally organdie veils the entire waist.

Blouses Invite Embroideries

JUDGING by such blouses as have lately arrived from the hands of those who create them, we have not seen the last of the bright-hued embroideries on dark-colored georgette. Nor the last of blouses made of vivid colors in georgette, with silk or bead embroidery, in contrasting colors, as an embellishment. But we are seeing the first of long sleeves, and they are causing much surprise as to the fate of sleeves for the coming fall season.

Some very handsome blouses, as well as gowns, for fall, feature rather delicate embroidery in all-over patterns on georgette, crepe de chine, marquisette and chiffon. The early styles make cheerful promise of alluring color in new blouses for dressy wear, at least.

A fore-runner of the fall mode is shown here. Whoever is fond of embroidery will be arrested by this model, since it goes to great lengths in its decoration. To make it one has to select a dark-colored georgette and

Puts I Will In You Easy to Get Strong

Everyone wants more pep and surety needs it this hot weather. Hot weather takes away the appetite and makes one feel listless, lifeless, miserable, even when you have a strong stomach, but for those who have weak stomachs, it is really a dangerous, trying time.

Be on the safe side this kind of weather and help nature all you can, by taking an Etonic tablet about half an hour before you eat and one or two an hour after you eat; it will be of wonderful benefit. Etonic simply takes up the excess acids, poisons and gases, and carries them right out of the body. With the cause of the trouble removed, of course you will feel fit and fine—full of pep all the time. Etonic will cool feverish mouth and stomach and give you a good appetite, even in hot weather.

Get a big box at your druggist's for a trifling cost and let Etonic help you for a few days; then you will never be without it. Adv.

OATS BEST CROP

Statistics Show Advantages Over Corn Growing.

On Comparatively Cheap Land in Western Canada Farmers Get Record Yields—Cost Per Acre Much Less Than Corn.

How much more does it cost to grow an acre of corn than to grow an acre of oats? To get a proper comparison it is necessary to take an illustration from a farm on which both crops are grown successfully. An example has just been brought to the writer's attention of the comparative cost of growing corn and oats on a Minnesota farm. It is furnished by Albert Inner, a well-known farmer in Cottonwood county, Minn. In an article which appeared in the Cottonwood Citizen.

Mr. Inner says: "I had a curiosity to know how much it would cost to raise an acre of oats and corn. To find out I kept account, during the year, of the time required and the cash expended to grow the above mentioned crops." His figures show that it cost him $31.40 to grow an acre of corn and $18.13 to grow an acre of oats, a difference of $13.00 an acre in favor of oats.

Provided the respective crop yields are not altogether out of proportion to the cost of growing the crop, this seems to be a good argument in favor of growing oats. But to grow out successfully it is not necessary to use $150 or $200 land. In western Canada some of the best oat-growing land in the world can be bought for about $20 an acre. On this land good yields and a high quality of grain is obtainable.

Fifty to sixty bushels to the acre in properly prepared land is a fair average yield for oats in western Canada in a normal season but yields of up to 100 bushels, and even more, to the acre have been frequent in good years. The quality of oats grown in western Canada is attested by the fact that at all the international exhibitions for many years past oats grown in western Canada have been awarded the leading prizes. There is no record oats grown in western Canada that have weighed as much as 48 pounds to the measured bushel, and the Dominion grain inspector is authority for the statement that 85 per cent of the oats examined by him in western Canada weigh more than 42 pounds to the measured bushel. The standard weight for a bushel of oats is 34 pounds.

Samples of these oats weighing upward of 45 pounds to the bushel are on exhibition at the Canadian government information bureau, located in various cities in the United States.—Advertisement.

Children Cry For Fletcher's CASTORIA

Special Care of Baby.

That Baby should have a bed of its own all are agreed. Yet it is more reasonable for an infant to sleep with grown-ups than to use a man's medicine in an attempt to regulate the delicate organism of that same infant. Either practice is to be shunned. Neither would be tolerated by specialists in children's diseases.

Your Physician will tell you that Baby's medicine must be prepared with even greater care than Baby's food. A Baby's stomach when in good health is too often disarranged by improper food. Could you for a moment, then, think of giving to your ailing child anything but a medicine especially prepared for Infants and Children? Don't be deceived.

Make a mental note of this:—It is important, Mothers, that you should remember that to function well, the digestive organs of your Baby must receive special care. No Baby is so abnormal that the desired results may be had from the use of medicines primarily prepared for grown-ups.
