STORMY TIMES IN CHELSEA RECALLED

Homer C. Millen is Once More in the Courts. This Time Bankrupt.

Service of a subpoena finally having been obtained August 30 by deputy United States marshals on Homer C. Millen, of Ann Arbor, who was for sometime connected with the cement manufacturing industry at Four Mile Lake, sought since an involuntary petition in bankruptcy was filed against him in Federal court August 17 by Mrs. Hattie S. Selling, widow of Bernard B. Selling, an answer has been filed by Millen declaring he should not be declared bankrupt. Millen said in his answer that he did not commit the acts of bankruptcy charged.

Mrs. Selling's claim is for $4,110 and interest at six per cent since June 23, 1915, a total of $5,380.66 on a note alleged to have been given Selling by Millen for legal services rendered in 1905. Selling represented Millen in a Federal court action against him by William J. White, chewing gum magnate, and who was interested in the business with Millen under the name of the White Portland Cement Co.

After the bankruptcy action was instituted by Mrs. Selling, Millen filed in Federal court a voluntary petition in bankruptcy listing as assets 543 shares of the Michigan Portland Cement Co.'s stock, valued at $54,300, of which 538 shares valued at $53,800, the petition states, are held by his wife, May Millen.

The above will bring to mind to Chelsea residents of that stormy period in the history of the cement business here when revolvers played a part in the business, which at that time was almost as interesting as a Central American revolution.

OFFICES OF THE COMMUNITY BOARD HAVE BEEN CHANGED

The offices of the Washtenaw County Community Board have been changed to the Community House at 402 South Main street, Ann Arbor. This Community House has been and still is conducted by the Community Federation of Ann Arbor. This organization at a recent meeting endorsed the work of Community Service in Washtenaw County and voted to assist the County Community Board in every possible way in extending the work throughout the county. By this action the Community Federation becomes directly affiliated with the County Community Board to the same extent as the community councils of the other towns in the county. Already thirty-one organizations of altruistic nature are connected with the Community Federation of Ann Arbor.

BUSY DAYS FOR MANAGEMENT OF JACKSON COUNTY FAIR

These are busy days for the management of the Jackson county fair. In past years great preparations have been made but this year efforts will far exceed everything heretofore undertaken. Expenditures in attractions and entertainment verges on extravagance, and promises the public more for their money than they have ever seen on any fair grounds. Premium payments including championship prizes will more than double last year's offerings. There has been added one day Monday and one night Tuesday to the former program and Monday automobile races should make a feature day to be appreciated. Saturday will also be celebrated, as running races will be featured and four fast running races with attractive purses that will draw some of the fastest jumpers.

LYNDON.

Mr. and Mrs. Austin Balmer have been visiting friends in Ohio. Miss Barton and family of Detroit, spent the week-end at the home of Guy Barton. Mrs. Fannie Hill, of Gregory, spent Tuesday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Clark. Mr. and Mrs. S. A. Howlett and Mr. and Mrs. James Howlett spent Sunday in Ann Arbor.

ANNOUNCEMENTS.

Regular meeting of W. R. C. will be held at 2 o'clock Friday afternoon. There will be a meeting of the Lady Macabees next Tuesday evening. Election of officers. Recess meeting of Knights of Pythias on Monday evening, September 13. Every member urged to attend. The B. V. R. C. will meet with Mrs. H. H. Avery Monday evening, September 13. This is the first meeting of the year and a good attendance is desired.

CHURCH CIRCLES.

The Conclusion of a Wise Man
By Rev. H. R. Beatty.

King Solomon is reputed to be the wisest ruler that ever lived. His great objective when he became ruler of Israel was that he by wisely ruling might make it the best and strongest nation of that day. Wisdom dictated to him that if such was to be attained the worship of the true God must be developed. Wisdom again taught him that to secure this a house becoming to the majesty and glory and power of God should be erected. Consequently we have the temple which became the ancestor of the present day church.

Two outstanding truths become evident, the people must have the church in order to properly live and the church must have the people in order to properly function. Without the other neither of these could exist. Human nature with its consequent limitations and needs are unchanged today from what they were then. In this day of acute world disturbance and crying need we must recognize the place of the church in human affairs and that if the church is to properly function it must have us. Shall we not follow the conclusion of this wise man?

SWIMMER DROWNED IN NORTH LAKE

Wm. R. Faulkner, Employed at Dearborn Meets Death Sunday.

William R. Faulkner, of Paducah, Ky., was drowned in ten feet of water in North Lake about 7:30 o'clock Sunday morning, and the body was recovered about an hour later. The young man accompanied by three companions who were employed with him in the Dearborn Independent office, Henry Ford's national weekly, arrived at Webb's landing about 4 o'clock Saturday afternoon to camp out over Labor Day. Sunday morning the young man in his bathing suit took a boat and rowed to the spot where he lost his life. The other members of the party remained on shore and they saw him when he jumped into the lake and later saw him while he was swimming. Suddenly they heard him call for help, but as the boat from which he dived had not been anchored had drifted some distance it was impossible to locate him until too late. The body was located by volunteers from the opposite side of the lake. The body was brought to Staffan's undertaking rooms, from where they were shipped to Paducah, Wednesday. The young man was born in Paducah and would have been twenty-three years of age next January. He has a brother who resides in St. Louis, Mo., an uncle in Detroit, and an uncle and aunt in Paducah, who were his foster parents, his parents having died when he was about two years of age.

INCREASE IN PAY FOR RURAL CARRIERS

Beginning with last month's rural mail carriers receive an increase in pay and the four R. F. D. men having routes out of Chelsea will be among those to benefit. Under the new schedule of salaries the carriers on a standard route of 24 miles in length will receive $1,800, being $100 more than previously. The maximum pay is $2,150 for a route of 36 miles. The R. F. D. men will also get sick leave hereafter, a privilege they have not enjoyed in the past. The sick leave clause gives them ten days per annum, which is cumulative up to three years, after which it lapses of the carrier has not had occasion to use it. In the future the rural mail carrier is granted a vacation at the rate of one and one-fourth days for every month he has been in service during the year.

PRICE OF GAS WILL GO UP OCTOBER FIRST BILLS

The Washtenaw Gas Company has announced to its patrons that beginning with the bills rendered October 1 gas will be billed at $1.85 per thousand and feet for the first 5,000 cubic feet and $1.65 per thousand for all gas used thereafter in any one month, subject to discount of 25 cents per thousand feet if paid on or before the tenth of the month.

This will make a net rate of $1.60 per thousand for the first 5,000 cubic feet and $1.40 for all gas used thereafter in any one month. This rate is in accordance with the decision of the Michigan Public Utilities Commission which became effective July 1, 1920.

The company gives as its reason for establishing the new rate, the scarcity of coal, a sufficient supply of which can only be obtained by buying in the open market and claims that even at the present price of gas the company is barely paying operating expenses.

The company states that when the price of coal is lowered and conditions are normal again that the price of gas will be reduced.

WATERLOO.

You can't make any storage battery last forever—that's a fact.

You've got to keep it filled with water and test it, just like a tire has to be kept filled with air, or it will cost you money.

Some day—if you have an ordinary battery—it's sure to have to be re-insulated, no matter who made it.

But—if you'll buy a Willard Battery with Threaded Rubber Insulation, you'll get clear away from the biggest cause of battery troubles. The insulation will probably last as long as the plates.

BREVITIES

Monroe. Game warden, announcing that quail are more plentiful this year than for several seasons, have appealed to farmers to protect the bird by housing them in their chicken houses during the coming winter. To house the birds as suggested the farmers must obtain permits from the state game department, but this is obtained easily, according to the game warden.

Ann Arbor. George Blum, a letter carrier with the local post office since 1887, when free delivery was first established here, is the only Ann Arbor postoffice employee to be retired from active service under the new law pensioning veteran postal workers. He was the first letter carrier appointed here, and is the only member of the post-office force now in the building who was employed at that time.

Brooklyn. A 25x50 warehouse is being built by the Brooklyn Co-ops, on a part of the land recently leased on the Lake Shore side track. The heavy timbers are being secured from the Vinland Lake saw mill and the foundation is made so that it will support a second or third story whenever desired. Members are contributing work on the building. E. J. Wilber is in charge of the building. Brooklyn Exponent.

Brooklyn. At a special meeting of the Brooklyn council Tuesday evening it was voted to secure the services of a competent engineer to take a survey of the electric lighting situation. This will comply with the state law and will furnish intelligent data on which the council can proceed. A Detroit engineering firm has been engaged at a nominal cost. Oil engine electric plants will be further investigated by the council. Brooklyn Exponent.

Jackson. "Doc" Stowe, Walter Wilson, Dave Rosenberg and W. E. Harris were bound over to the September term of circuit court on charges of robbing the bank at Grass Lake, and first degree murder in connection with the death of Deputy Sheriff Harry Worden. George Comfort and Lester Bacon, remaining members of the gang, were bound over on the bank robbery charge. Prosecuting Attorney Grove denied a request of attorneys for Comfort and Bacon to have their bail of $50,000 each reduced.

Ann Arbor. Names of fifteen farmers appear on a bill filed with the county clerk Friday asking an injunction against the city of Ann Arbor to prevent operation of the Steere farm pumping station until the water reaches its former level in the gravel strata underlying the section. Suits aggregating more than $150,000 are now pending against the city for alleged damage to crops and land by removal of the Steere water. The bill filed Friday asks that a committee of experts be named to go over the ground and ascertain the damage.

Saline. Another, and one of the few remaining old landmarks of Saline, has been razed to its foundation. This old brick structure was erected by William and Alexander Gordon in 1852 and occupied by the two families for many years. It weathered the storms and usage for several score of years without change or repairs and up to the time workmen commenced a short time ago to tear it down was in good condition. Not one of its huge brick walls had shown any signs of crumbling or giving way, and the mortar which had so long held the brick together seemed as firm as when placed there. Saline Observer.

Saline. A man and his wife, touring from Elkhart, Ind., to Detroit in a big Studebaker car, were overtaken by four young men in another car, and were ordered to halt. Not obeying promptly one of the young bandits shot into the car, the bullet grazing the driver's hand and penetrating the leg of the woman. At this the victims raised their hands and the thieves robbed them of practically everything they possessed—fur coat, overcoat, robes, grips and $450 in money. One of the thugs jumped into the car to drive it away, but at that instant a wire broke, stalling the engine. Another auto coming down the road frightened the thieves into leaving rather hurriedly in their own machine. All of this happened on the Clinton road a couple of miles from Saline at 5 o'clock Tuesday morning. The bandits are said to be young, apparently about 22 years old. Saline Observer.

A SAFE TEST.

For those who are in need of a remedy for kidney troubles and backache, it is a good plan to try Doan's Kidney Pills. They are strongly recommended by Chelsea people.

J. A. Kaercher, insurance agent, 515 S. Madison street, Chelsea, says: "I was all run down and feeling all in when I began using Doan's Kidney Pills. At first I didn't know what was wrong with me until my kidneys began to show signs of disorder. My back had a dull pain in it and there was a sharp pain through my right side. Every time I would stoop I would get dizzy. I tried different remedies but Doan's Kidney Pills did me more good than anything I ever used. Two boxes cured me up in good shape. I am only too pleased to recommend Doan's."

Prepare Your Boy for the Battle of Life

"Dad what does it mean to own a share of stock?"—a boy asked the other day.

Does your boy know what it means? Have you ever told him anything about this character of property, and desirability of its possession?

That information is just as necessary to him as is the knowledge of how to work, and of what working for a living means. Most young men know how to earn money; few know how to accumulate property. Their fathers never told them.

Why not give your boy a piece of property to be proud of? Buy him one or more shares of Consumers Power Company Preferred Stock. As he grows older, tell him what these shares of Preferred Stock mean. Tell him that this money is usefully employed in creating a Public Utility—whose service everyone needs. And tell him how this money which he has invested is earning an income for him.

Consumers Power Company Preferred Stock Yields in Dividends 7.37% Interest on Your Investment

The price of this stock is but $95 a share on par value of $100. We are confining this offer to the people of communities we serve, because we want those who pay the bills to draw the Company's dividends.

You can buy on the installment plan—$10 down per share, and the balance monthly. Surely it is worth that small investment to educate your boy in the value of thrift; to give him a sense of proprietorship and responsibility. He'll feel like a real financier when the dividend checks come in.

Terms of Offering

Plan No. 1 (Cash payment.) Under this plan we offer the 7% Cumulative Preferred Stock of Consumers Power Company at $95 per share and accrued dividends to date of payment for stock.

—OR—

Plan No. 2 (Time payment.) Under this plan we offer the 7% Cumulative Preferred Stock of Consumers Power Company at $95 per share on a time payment plan; $10 per share payable at the time of purchase; $10 per share each month for seven months and $15 for the final payment. We agree to pay interest at the rate of 7% per annum on the monthly installments paid to us, this interest to be credited to the purchaser on the books of the Company. Dividends from the last dividend date prior to the final payment will be charged to the purchaser and an adjustment made. No more than 25 shares may be purchased by any person under this time offering.

Purchasers under this plan have the option of withdrawing all partial payments at any time prior to the date of final payment for the stock, on 10 days' notice, and in the event of such withdrawal the Company agrees to pay 3% interest on the amounts paid in up to date of notice of withdrawal.

For further information ask any of our employees—or fill in the coupon.

Adrian—Lenawee county school authorities face a serious shortage of teachers owing to the failure of 22 candidates at the recent teachers' examination. Fifty-five wrote, but only 33 were successful.

Muskegon—Patrolman Fred Argetinger, of Muskegon Heights, leaped from a speeding car and stopped a runaway team. Argetinger landed on his face and knees, but caught one of the horses by the bit.

Jackson—Jacob W. Brown may face a charge of manslaughter as the result of the death of Almon DeWolf from injuries received when he was struck by Brown's automobile while he was riding in a wagon.

Grand Rapids—Refusal of the banks, the Grand Rapids Railway Co., and the postoffice to accept Canadian coins except at a 20 per cent discount, checked the flow of Canadian money into this city, it is said.

Iron Mountain—Dickinson county board voted unanimously to join with Menominee and Delta counties in the tubercular sanatorium to be built at Powers. It will be a tri-county institution instead of a two-county one alone.

Kalamazoo—The contract for the new $700,000 Frank Street School was let after the original plans and specifications had been altered to bring the cost of construction down to the amount provided in the authorized bond issue.

Owosso—The Ann Arbor Railroad has been granted permission by the Public Utilities Commission to abandon its spur line to the New Haven coal mines, six miles north. Lack of revenue caused the company to seek permission.

Marquette—Frank H. Vanderbloom, state senator, proprietor of the Marquette Dairy and owner of nearly 500 acres of land in Marquette Township, has purchased 50 pure-bred hogs as a nucleus of what he expects will be the largest hog ranch in the Upper Peninsula.

Albion—For the first time in the history of this part of the state, lake trout are being caught in Duck lake, near Albion. They were put in the lake two years ago by the state fish and game commission as an experiment and the first matured fish was caught this summer.

Grand Rapids—Mrs. Eva M. Hamilton, prominent suffrage worker, won the Republican nomination for state senator in the Sixteenth district, consisting of the Second and Third wards of Grand Rapids, defeating former Representatives Martin H. Holcomb and Henry B. Vandercook.

East Lansing—Annual white sweet clover, a new crop which was introduced to the state two years ago, promises to develop into an invaluable annual leguminous hay, says J. F. Cox, professor of farm crops at the Michigan Agricultural college. In addition to six acres grown for seed purposes at the college, six acres were planted by members of the Michigan Crop Development association, thus giving Michigan the chief seed supply. The seed bring $200 to $300 a bushel.

Detroit—Joseph Fayad's cat probably saved his master from being robbed by a holdup man. As it was, Fayad was shot in the neck. When Fayad turned to take a grocery order from a stranger who entered his store at 181 Lagoon avenue, he was ordered to give up his money. Fayad resisted, and the bandit shot him. The wound is not serious. Fayad's cat was in the back room and, frightened at the commotion, jumped into a package of glassware. The bandit was startled and believing Fayad was not alone, fled to a waiting automobile.

AVIATOR KILLED AT STATE FAIR

SEVENTH EFFORT TO CHANGE PLANES IN AIR ENDS IN FATAL PLUNGE.

THOUSANDS AWED BY TRAGEDY

Filer Loses Grip On Swinging Rope Ladder and Takes Downward Fall of 500 Feet.

Detroit—Myron L. Tinney, aviator, former Detroit newsboy, plunged 500 feet to his death. In view of scores of thousands of State fair visitors at late Labor Day afternoon while attempting his daredevil feat of transferring from one flying plane to another. Tinney was alive when picked up, but died a few seconds later.

Only a few minutes before, Ethel Dare, 18-year-old aviatrix, had performed the feat that cost Tinney his life.

It was on Tinney's seventh attempt to transfer from his plane to the one flying above, with a rope ladder whipping and swinging tantalizingly close for him to grasp, that he apparently took a "long chance" and lost.

Seventy-five thousand spectators within the grandstand enclosure alone, and a majority of the 250,000 in attendance on the grounds, saw him clutch at the swinging rope ladder, and grip it just long enough to swing from the plane on top of which he stood unbalanced against the sky.

Then his fingers slipped, and he shot down a swirling space, turning over and over in the air as he fell, at the north end of the mile track.

A groan burst from thousands of throats as the spectators realized that the "trick" they had come to applaud had sent that figure in pink fleshings hurtling downward 500 feet to certain death.

3 DIE UNDER NIAGARA CAVERN

Detroit Man Among Those Injured When Bridge Is Forced Out.

Niagara Falls, N. Y.—Two women, and a man were crushed to death, and two men were injured when a slide of shale forced out a bridge leading to one of the stairways in the Cave of the Winds under Niagara Falls. A hundred or more tourists who were in the cave at the time had narrow escapes, many being bruised and cut by the falling rock.

The dead are: A. Hartman, 4415 Avenue P, Brooklyn; his wife, Louise Hartman, and Clara M. Faust, 2658 Norwood avenue, Pittsburgh.

The injured are: T. W. Lee, 44 South 22nd street, Pittsburgh, and Frank E. Haehling, 98 Clarendon avenue, Detroit.

The dead and injured were members of a party of tourists just completing a tour of the cave. With a guide leading, the party was in the middle of one of the four bridges in the cave when the slide came, its noise drowned by the roar of the cataract. The guide was not touched by the slide and his first intimation of it came from the screams of the women in the party.

DEMPSEY KNOCKS OUT MISKE

Heavyweight Champion Sends Left to Jaw in Third For Knock Out.

Benton Harbor—Jack Dempsey, heavyweight champion, knocked out Billy Miske in the third round of a scheduled ten-round, no-decision bout at Bob Fitzsimmons arena here Labor Day. The first round was declared a draw, Dempsey had the edge on the challenger in the second and the third round lasted less than two minutes before Dempsey sent his opponent down for the count with a left to the jaw.

SAYS "KEEP OUT OF POLITICS"

Secretary of War Baker Gives Advice to Student Officers.

Washington—Army officers were advised "to keep scrupulously out of politics" by Secretary Baker in addressing student officers of the General Staff College.

"Nothing hurts the Army more with Congress," he said, "than individual officers seeking personal preferment and attempting to substitute their own views for the carefully considered studies of General Staff officers representing all arms of the service. So I say to you all, work hard and play the game."

DRY'S NAMES NOT ON BALLOT

Farmer-Labor Candidates Placed Under Prohibition Party.

Marshall.—The names of the Prohibition candidates for governor and lieutenant governor and congressman in the Third district were omitted on the ballot due to a printer's mistake.

In the place of the names were those of the Farmer-Labor candidates in the city of Marshall only Republican and Democratic ballots were cast and so far as it can be learned throughout Calhoun county it is doubtful whether 100 of the other four on the ticket were votes.

NEWS REVIEW OF CURRENT EVENTS

Managers of Both Parties Are Raising Big Hullyaloo Over Campaign Funds.

LAW VIOLATIONS CHARGED

Gompers Asks Union Labor to Support Cox—More Trouble in Mining Fields—Poles Destroy Budenny's Red Army in Galicia.

By EDWARD W. PICKARD.

Candidate Cox and the managers of both the Democratic and the Republican campaigns have created a deal of noise and fury with their charges and counter-charges relating to the campaign funds. Accusations and retorts, denials and admissions have been flying thick and probably will not cease for some time. The senatorial investigating committee seemingly is determined to get at the truth without fear or favor, and if certain of the charges are sustained, legal proceedings are likely to result.

Republican managers assert that Cox's charges that they had conspired to buy the presidency with huge sums of money have been completely disproved. Homer Cummings, former Democratic national chairman, told the senators he could find no evidence of corruption in the Republican plan for raising campaign funds, and added that his own party organization was trying to raise funds by the same method used by the Republicans. But, he complained, the latter had been more successful. Neither Mr. Cummings nor any other witness heard by the committee was willing to admit that the presidency could be "bought."

Mr. Cox elaborated his statements by making public a document entitled "Campaign Plan in Larger Cities," which he said proved the Republican national committee was seeking to raise sums ranging from $5,000 to $10,000. Treasurer Upham disposed of this by explaining that the plan outlined in the document was not ratified, but on the contrary was vetoed almost without discussion because the national committee was determined to try out the $1,000 limit plan. How closely this was adhered to was told the senators by National Chairman Hays. He said: "During the period from June 14, 1920, to August 26, 1920, there were 12,389 men and women contributors to both the national committee and to state committees through the joint collecting organization, an average of $82.11. Of these none have been over the thousand-dollar rule except eight, which have given a total of $13,500, an average of $1,687.50. The highest of these was $2,500."

On Tuesday Mr. Upham supplemented this by submitting the full list of contributors to the Harding fund. Fewer than a dozen, he said, had given more than $1,000 and two subscriptions of $5,000 each were the largest received to date. The quotas for the national fund, Mr. Upham said, totaled $4,887,000 approximately, with $800,000 additional quotas for special state funds, but that it was a case of "20 per cent off for cash." He said the glowing "bulletins" sent out to Republican fund workers and quoted extensively by Governor Cox were "bull" and "salesmanship." The Republican budget, he insisted, was for slightly more than $3,000,000.

But the Democrats were not out of ammunition, by any means. The next thing they brought to the attention of the senatorial committee was the "de luxe" book, "Republicanism in 1920," which William Barnes of New York was said to be getting out. The senators were shown a list of wealthy men who had pledged some $37,000 for this Barnes effort, and Wilbur Marsh, Democratic treasurer, said that to his mind it indicated a plan to collect large campaign funds independently of the regular Republican machinery. He named a number of organizations that, he said, were engaged in similar efforts, mentioning the National Young Men's Republican league, the Southern Protective Tariff association, the Committee of American Business Men, the American Defense society and the Republican Publicity association.

As for the Barnes book, the Democrats assert the Republicans are breaking the law by accepting for this campaign effort contributions from corporations. The senatorial committee decided to hear more of it from Mr. Barnes, probably in Pittsburgh.

Provoked into recrimination, the Republicans are making various accusations against their opponents. In the first place Chairman Hays asserted the Democrats were planning to raise a fund of $10,000,000—which the latter promptly denied. Then Mr. Hays charged that the liquor interests were actively engaged in supporting the campaign of Governor Cox, and he produced a letter signed by the president of the New Jersey Federation of Liquor Interests which said the organization had set out to do its part toward the election of Mr. Cox and called for assistance, financial and otherwise. The reply of the Democrats to this is that they have received no contributions from either the wets or the dries.

More serious, perhaps, was the accusation made before the senators that the Democrats were breaking the law by assessing federal officeholders for campaign money. W. D. Jamieson, director of finances for the Democratic national committee, was questioned closely concerning this and partly admitted its truth, but said the soliciting letters were sent to the homes of the officeholders and that he was soliciting funds from Democrats as Democrats, not as federal officials. He said his office had sent out about 300,000 letters of appeal. He told of a card index of 500,000 Democrats—with incomes. But he said the income estimates were made by Democratic leaders in the various neighborhoods, not from the income tax reports in the department at Washington.

The combined efforts of Senators Reed, Spencer, Edge and Kenyon brought out from Mr. Jamieson the fact that federal officials generally were solicited; that they were informed of the exact amount they were expected to give, and that only those who were so poorly paid that Mr. Jamieson "didn't think it worth while to waste a 10-cent special delivery on a 1-cent man" were exempted from the assessment.

Samuel Gompers and his associates in the management of the American Federation of Labor have finally announced themselves in the matter of the presidential campaign. The "nonpartisan political committee" of the federation has issued a report on the candidates for the presidency in which Governor Cox is proclaimed a stronger champion of organized labor than Senator Harding. Consequently members of unions are urged to vote for Cox. The report, which is signed by Gompers, Matthew Woll and Frank Morrison, lists as "favorable" or "unfavorable" to labor the legislative record of Senator Harding as a member of the Ohio state senate and in the United States senate on measures in which organized labor had a special interest.

It does likewise with Mr. Cox as a member of the house in 1912 and as governor of Ohio in 1913, 1914, 1917-1920. The records of the candidates are summed up as follows:

Harding—Favorable, 7; unfavorable, 10; paired unfavorably, 1.

Cox—Favorable, 60; unfavorable, 0.

More trouble has broken out in the mining fields. President Wilson, after receiving and approving the report of the wage award made by the federal commission for the anthracite miners, telegraphed his urgent request that the men also accept it. The miners' scale committee did this under protest, but a strong minority in 60 locals refused and voted to take a "vacation" until better terms were granted. In some of the bituminous fields also work has ceased. In Alabama the men struck on order of President Lewis because, he says, the terms of the agreement are not being carried out by the operators. In Iowa the miners and operators failed to reach an agreement, but there may be no strike there.

New York was badly tied up by an unexpected strike of about 9,000 employees of the Brooklyn Rapid Transit company, which concern is in the hands of a federal receiver who refused the wage demands of the men. For days very few cars were operated.

The railroads of the country began operations on their own resources on September 1. During the six months in which their earnings were guaranteed by the transportation act they cost the government about $100,000,000 a month. The only further aid they will get from the government comes from loans from the revolving fund created by the act.

The Tennessee house of representatives tried to undo its action in ratifying the suffrage amendment by expunging from its journal all record of the ratification and voting to nonconcur in the action of the senate. Next day the senate refused to join with the house in its attempted reversal of the ratification. Secretary of State Colby says woman suffrage is an accomplished fact and that there is no chance for reconsideration.

Another great victory for the Poles was recorded last week. General Budenny's bolshevik army, which had invaded Galicia and was threatening Lemberg and the rich oil fields of that region, was cut off and virtually destroyed. Only a few detachments escaped and these were reported in disorderly retreat. Budenny's men, mostly mounted, were advancing on Lublin and had nearly surrounded Zamosc, midway between that city and Lemberg, when the Poles flanked them and attacked from the east, putting them to rout. The Russians had walked into a trap deliberately set by the Poles. The losses of the reds in men and material were heavy. The "retirement" of this army was officially admitted by Moscow.

In the north the Russo-Polish war degenerated into a confused series of isolated battles, various units of both sides being separated from their main commands and in some cases forced across the East Prussian border. In general, however, the Poles continued their successes of the former week, and they even advanced into Lithuanian territory for strategic purposes despite the orders of Lithuania to the contrary. What Germany would do with the many thousands of reds who took refuge in East Prussia was a pressing question. The Poles feared these men would be permitted to re-enter Russian territory and rejoin their army, and there was reason for this fear. The Germans complained they had not enough troops there to guard the interned reds, but their hatred of the Poles is so great that their motives are open to grave suspicion.

What promised to develop into another severe blow for the soviet Russians was the drive started by the Ukrainians in conjunction with Poland. They began by forcing the reds across the Dniester river near Bucacz and capturing that city. They have another force operating along the Dniester river and it is hoped that it can unite with General Wrangel.

The peace parley at Minsk broke up, but the bolshevik government announced its willingness to resume the negotiations at Riga.

Dr. Walter Simons, German foreign minister, told the reichstag that proposals had been made to him to co-operate with Russia against the western powers as a means of breaking the bonds imposed by the treaty of Versailles, but that he had rejected them because they would mean that Germany would become the theater of war. He said he had also rejected proposals to unite with the western powers against Russia. "No power at war with soviet Russia," the foreign minister added, "need count on our support."

At last reports Lord Mayor MacSwiney of Cork had not succeeded in starving himself to death in Brixton jail, but was growing mysteriously stronger. The riots in Ireland and efforts elsewhere in his behalf did not cease, but the British government flatly refused to release him. Frank P. Walsh, chairman of the American commission for Irish independence, after an interview with Secretary of State Colby, made the curious assertion that Mr. Colby has promised to "endeavor to do something and do it quickly" in behalf of the prisoner. What any American official can do properly, in the circumstances, is a puzzle.

ALEX GROESBECK G. O. P. NOMINEE

CAMPBELL RUNS SECOND AFTER LEADING IN COUNT OUTSIDE WAYNE COUNTY.

READ RECEIVES LARGE VOTE

Woodbridge N. Ferris and Guy M. Wilson Unopposed For Democratic Nomination.

GOVERNOR

Republican—Alex. J. Groesbeck, Democrat—Woodbridge N. Ferris, Socialist—Benjamin Blumenberg, Socialist-Labor—E. R. Markey, Prohibition—John Y. Johnson, Farmer-Labor—Edward J. Jeffries.

LEUTENANT-GOVERNOR

Republican—Thomas Read, Democrat—Guy M. Wilson, Socialist—Thomas H. Cox, Socialist-Labor—Logan Cunningham, Prohibition—Frank A. Lutenbacher, Farmer-Labor—Edward L. Settle.

ALEX. J. GROESBECK, Republican Nominee for Governor.

WOODBRIDGE N. FERRIS, Democratic Nominee for Governor.

Alex. J. Groesbeck, of Detroit, received a plurality of about 25,000 votes in the nine-county contest for the Republican nomination for governor. Milo D. Campbell of Coldwater ran second. Early in the race, the latter led by a slight plurality but Groesbeck took the lead as soon as returns were made from Wayne county and other districts where heavy votes, comparatively, were cast.

Milo D. Campbell, led by 13,000 over the third contestant, Charles S. Mott, of Flint, while Mott men more than 25,000 ahead of the fourth aspirant, Frank B. Leland, of Detroit. Fred C. Martindale, of Detroit; Lura D. Dickinson, of Charlotte; James Hamilton, of Detroit; Cassius L. Glasgow, of Nashville; Horatio S. Earle, of Detroit, follow in order.

In Wayne county Groesbeck beat Campbell about 4 to 1, his total plurality in Wayne county being about equal to his total plurality in the state. Both Mott and Leland ran considerably ahead of the Coldwater candidate in the city.

Speaker Thomas Read, of the last house of representatives, was an easy winner over Scully, having accumulated a lead of approximately 75,000. Popularity of the Shelby man was manifested in almost every county, his pluralities being general throughout the state.

The uncontested Democratic nominations, with Woodbridge N. Ferris, of Big Rapids, as the candidate for governor, and Guy M. Wilson, of Flint, for lieutenant governor, paved the way for a large number of Democratic voters to participate in the Republican primary.

In Wayne county especially is this situation believed to have helped Groesbeck, for the Democratic vote in Wayne county was especially light.

Two Killed in Elevator Crash. New York—Two men were killed and 16 persons injured, some of them seriously, when an elevator containing 18 persons fell 10 stories during the home rush period. The car jammed at the first floor, which prevented greater loss of life, fire department officials said, than if it had crashed to the basement. Officials investigating the accident said they believed the elevator cable snapped and that the balancing weights crashed through the top of the car.

LOYALTY

If you work for a man, in Heaven's name, work for him. If he pays you wages that supply your bread and butter, speak well of him, stand by him and stand by the institution he represents. If put to a pinch, an ounce of loyalty is worth a pound of cleverness. If you must vilify, condemn and eternally disparage why, resign your position, and when you are outside, damn to your heart's content. But as long as you are a part of the institution, do not condemn it. If you do, you are loosening the tendrils that hold you to the institution, and the first high wind that comes along you will be uprooted and blown away, and probably you will never know why.

Webster=Man's Man

By PETER B. KYNE

Author of "Cappy Ricks," "The Valley of the Giants," Etc.

Copyright by Peter B. Kyne.

"SHE'S THE FUTURE MRS. W."

John Stuart Webster, mining engineer, man's man, 29 years young, boards a train in Death Valley, California, on his way back to civilization after cleaning up 100,000. He is dreaming of cool baths, milk pajamas and ham and eggs. But he looks like a hobo to the porter and the conductor. His way of changing his views gives a hint of the mettle of the man. Then he meets a distressed lady, who makes his heart flip over for the first time in all his days. He eliminates the offending man after the style of the man's man the world over. Being what he is and also girl-shy, he does not take advantage of his opportunity. But he just had to find out who the no-longer-distressed lady is, being determined to hunch up a scheme to meet her again—and marry her. She is Dolores Huey. Clad in purple and blue linen, John goes to the Engineers' club in Denver, the nearest approach to a home he has known in twenty years. There he is offered a $5,000-a-year job with the certainty of a fortune by a capitalist friend, Edward P. Jerome. While he is hesitating, being loath to go to work again so soon, he receives a delayed letter from his own particular pal, Billy Geary, asking him to finance a gold-mining proposition in Central America and go 50-50 with him on the profits. Thereupon he turns down the big job and decides to answer the call of friendship and adventure to Sobrante.

"Well," Webster retorted humorously, "it isn't exactly what you might term a ruling passion. I like to make it, but there's more fun spending it. I've made $100,000, and now I want to go blow it—and I'm going to. Do not try to argue with me. I'm a lunatic and I will have my way. If I didn't go tearing off to Sobrante and join forces with Bill Geary, there to play the game, red or black, I'd feel as if I had done something low and mean and small. The boy's appeal to me, and I have made my answer. If I come back alive but broke, you know in your heart you'll give me the best job you have."

"You win," poor Jerome admitted. "Hold the job open 30 days. At the end of that period I'll give you a definite answer, Neddy."

"I sniff excitement and adventure and profit in Sobrante and I've just got to look-see. I'm like an old burro stuck out knee-deep in alfalfa just now. I won't take kindly to the pack."

"And like an old burro, you won't be happy until you're snatched through a hole in the fence to get out into a stubble-field and starve," Jerome swore halfheartedly and promulgated the "rite" proverb that life is just one black thing after the other—an inchoate mass of liver and disappointment!

"Do you find it so?" Webster queried sympathetically.

Suspecting that he was being twitted, Jerome looked up sharply, prepared to wither Webster with that glance. But no, the man was absolutely serious; whereupon Jerome realized the futility of further argument and gave John Stuart Webster up for a total loss. Still, he could not help smiling as he reflected how Webster had planned a year of quiet enjoyment and Fate had granted him one brief evening. He marvelled that Webster could be so light-hearted and contented under the circumstances.

Webster read his thoughts. "Good-bye, old man," he said, and extended his hand. "Don't worry about me. Allah is always kind to fools, my friend; sorrow is never their portion. In answering Billy's call I have a feeling that I am answering the call of a great adventure."

He did not know how truly he spoke, of course, but if he had, that knowledge would not have changed his answer.

CHAPTER III.

The morning following his decision to play the role of angel to Billy Geary's mining concession in Sobrante, John Stuart Webster, like Mr. Peppy, was up betimes.

Nine o'clock found him in the office of his friend Joe Daingerfield, of the Plingham engineering works, where, within the hour, he had in his characteristically decisive fashion purchased the machinery for a ten-stamp mill. It was a nice order, and Daingerfield was delighted.

"This is going to cost you about half your fortune, Jack," he informed Webster when the order was finally made up.

Webster grinned. "You don't suppose I'm chump enough to pay for it now, do you, Joe?" he queried.

"I'm going first to scout the country and in the meantime keep all this stuff in your warehouse until I authorize you by cable to ship, when you can draw on me at sight for the entire invoice with bill of lading attached. If, upon investigation, I find that this mine isn't all my partner thinks it is, I'll cable a cancellation, and you can tear that nice fat order up and forget it."

From Daingerfield's office Webster went forth to purchase a steamer trunk, his railway ticket and sleeping car reservation—after which he returned to his hotel and set about packing for the journey.

Old Neddy Jerome, as sour and cross as a settling hen, accompanied him in the taxicab to the station, loth to let him escape and pleading to the last, in a forlorn hope that Jack Webster's better nature would triumph over his friendship and boyish yearning for adventure. He clung to Webster's arm as they walked slowly down the track and paused at the steps of the car containing the wanderer's reservation, just as a porter, carrying some hand baggage, passed them by, followed by a girl in a green tailor-made suit. As she passed, John Stuart Webster looked fairly into her face, started as if he were stung, and hastily lifted his hat. The girl briefly returned his scrutiny with sudden interest, decided she did not know him, and reproved him with a glance that even passed old Neddy Jerome did not fail to assimilate.

"Wow, wow!" he murmured. "The next time you try that, Johnny Webster, be sure you're right!"

"Good land o' Goshen, Neddy," Webster replied. "Fry me in bread crumbs, if that isn't the same girl! Let me go, Neddy. Quick! Good-bye, old chap. I'm on my way."

"Nonsense! The train doesn't pull out for seven minutes yet. Who is she, John, and why does she excite you so?"

"Who is she, you ancient horse thief! Why, if I have my way—and I'm certainly going to try to have it—she's the future Mrs. W."

"Alas! Poor Varick, I know him well," Jerome answered. "Take a tip from the old man, John. I've been through the mill and I know. Never marry a girl that can freeze you with a glance. It isn't safe. By the way, what's the fair charmer's name?"

"I've got it down in my memorandum book, but I can't recall it this minute—Spanish name."

"John, my dear boy, be careful," Neddy Jerome cautioned. "Stick to your own kind of people—Is this a—er—a nice girl, John?"

"How do I know—I mean, how dare you ask? Of course, she's nice. Can't you see she is? And besides, why should you be so fearful?"

"I'll have you understand, young man, that I have considerable interest in the girl you're going to marry. By the way, where did you first meet this girl? Who introduced you?"

"I haven't met her, and I've never been introduced," Webster complained, and poured forth the tale of his adventure on the train from Death valley. Neddy was very sympathetic.

"Well, no wonder she didn't recognize you when you saluted her to-night," he agreed. "Thought you were another brute of a man trying to make a mash. By thunder, Jack, I'm afraid you made a mistake when you shed your whiskers and buried your old clothes."

"I don't care what she thinks. I found her. I lost her, and I've found her again; and I'm not going to take any further chances."

The porter, having delivered his charge's baggage to her section, was returning for another tip. Webster reached out and accosted him.

"I'm Old Enough to Be Your Father."

"Henry," he said, "where did you stow that young lady's hand baggage?"

"Lower Six, Car Nine, sah."

"I have a weakness for colored boys who are quick at figures," Webster declared, and dismissed the porter with the gratuity. He turned to Jerome. "Neddy, I feel that I am answering the call to a great adventure," he declared solemnly.

"I know it, Jack. Good-bye, son."

and God bless you. If your fit of insanity passes within 30 days, cable me; and if you're broke, stick the Colorado Con. for the cable tolls."

"Good old wagon!" Webster replied affectionately. Then he shook hands and climbed aboard the train. The instant he disappeared in the vestibule, however, Neddy Jerome waddled rapidly down the track to Car 9, climbed aboard, and made his way to Lower 6. The young lady in the green tailor-made suit was there, looking idly out of the window.

"Young lady," Jerome began, "may I presume to address you for a moment on a matter of great importance to you? Don't be afraid of me, my dear. I'm old enough to be your father, and besides, I'm one of the nicest old men you ever met."

"Very well, sir," she replied.

Neddy Jerome produced a pencil and card. "Please write your name on this card," he pleaded, "and I'll telegraph what I want to say to you. There'll be a man coming through this car in a minute, and I don't want him to see me here. Please trust me, young lady."

The young lady did not trust him, however, although she wrote on the card. Jerome thanked her and fled as fast as his fat old legs could carry him. Under the station he read the card.

"Henrietta Wilkins," he murmured. "By the gods, one would never suspect a name like that belonged to a face like that. By Jingo, it would be strange if that madman persuaded her to marry him. I hope he does. If I'm any judge of character, Jack Webster won't be cruel enough to chain that vision to Sobrante; and besides, she's liable to make him decide who's most popular with him—Henrietta or Billy Geary. If she does, I'll play Geary to lose. Well! Needs must when the devil drives." And he entered the station telegraph office and commenced to write.

An hour later Miss Dolores Huey, alias Henrietta Wilkins, was handed this remarkably verbose and truly candid telegram:

"Miss Henrietta Wilkins, Lower 6, Car 9, on board train 24.

"Do you recall the bewhiskered, ragged individual you met on the S. P. L. A. & S. L. train in Death valley ten days ago? He lifted his hat to you tonight, and you almost killed him with a look. It did not occur to him that you would not recognize him disguised as a gentleman, and he lifted his hat on impulse. Do not hold it against him. The sight of you again set his reason tottering on its throne, and he told me his sad story."

"This man, John Stuart Webster, is wealthy, single, forty, fine and crazy as a March hare. He is in love with you. You might do worse than fall in love with him. He is the best mining engineer in the world, and he is now aboard the same train with you, en route to New Orleans, thence to take the steamer to Buenaventura, Sobrante, C. A., where he is to meet another lunatic and finance a hole in the ground. I do not want him to go to Sobrante. If you marry him, he will not. If you do not marry him, you still might arrange to make him listen to reason. If you can induce him to come to work for me within the next 90 days, whether you marry him or not, I will give you $5,000 the day he reports on the job. Please bear in mind that he does not know I am doing this. If he did, he would kill me, but business is business, and this is a plain business proposition. I am putting you wise, so you will know your power and can exercise it if you care to earn the money. If not, please forget about it. At any rate, please do me the favor to communicate with me on the subject, if at all interested."

"Edward P. Jerome, President Colorado Consolidated Mines Ltd., Care Engineers' Club."

The girl read and reread this telegram several times, and presently a slow little smile commenced to creep around the corners of her adorable mouth.

"I believe that amazing old gentleman is absolutely dependable," was the decision at which she ultimately arrived, and calling for a telegraph blank, she wired the old schemer:

"Five thousand not enough money. Make it $10,000 and I will guarantee to deliver the man within 30 days. I stay on this train to New Orleans."

"HENRIETTA."

That telegram arrived at the Engineers' club about midnight, and pursuant to instructions, the night porter read it and "phoned the contents to Neddy Jerome, who promptly telephoned his reply to the telegraph office, and then sat on the edge of his bed, scratching his toes and meditating.

"That's a remarkable young woman," he decided, "and business to her finger tips. Well, I've done my part, and it's now up to Jack Webster to protect himself in the clinches and breakaways."

About daylight a black hand passed. Neddy Jerome's reply through the horrid curlicues to Dolores Huey. He read:

"Accept. When you deliver the goods, communicate with me and get your money."

"JEROME."

She snuggled back among the pillows and considered the various aspects of this amazing contract which she had undertaken with a perfect stranger. Four after hour she lay there, thinking over this preposterous situation, and the more she weighed it, the more interesting and attractive the proposition appeared. But one consideration troubled her. How would the unknown knight manage an introduction? Or, if he failed to manage it, how was she to overcome that obstacle?

"Oh, dear," she murmured, "I do hope he's brave."

She need not have worried. Hours before, the object of her thought had settled all that to his own complete satisfaction, and as a consequence was sleeping peacefully and gaining strength for whatever of fortune, good or ill, the morrow might bring forth.

CHAPTER IV.

Day was dawning in Buenaventura, republic of Sobrante, as invariably it dawns in the tropics—without extended preliminary symptoms. The soft, silvery light of a full moon that had stayed out scandalously late had merged imperceptibly into gray; the gray was swiftly yielding place to a faint crimson that was spreading and deepening upward toward the east.

In the patio of Mother Jenks' establishment in the Calle de Concordia, No. 19, the first shafts of morning light were filtering obliquely through the orange trees and creeping in under the deep, Gothic-arched veranda flanking the western side of the patio. Presently, through the silent reaches of the Calle de Concordia, the sound of a prodigious knocking and thumping echoed, as of some fretful individual seeking admission at the street door of El Buen Amigo, by which euphonious designation Mother Jenks' caravansary was known to the public of Buenaventura. In the second story, front, a window slid back and a woman's voice, husky with that huskiness that speaks so acutely of cigarettes and alcohol, demanded:

"Quien es? Who is it? Que quiere usted? What do you want?"

"Ye might dispense wit' that paranoquet conversation with addressin' the likes of us," a voice replied. "Tis me—Cafferty. I have a cablegram Leher give me to deliver."

"Gawd's truth! Would yer wake the 'ole 'ouse with yer 'ammering?"

"All right. I'll not say another word!"

Without the portal stood Don Juan Cafetero, of whom a word or two before proceeding.

To begin, Don Juan Cafetero was not his real name, but rather a free Spanish translation of the Gaelic John Cafferty. Mr. Cafferty was an exile of Erin with a horrible thirst. He had first arrived in Sobrante some five years before, as section boss in the employ of the little foreign-owned narrow-gauge railway which ran from Buenaventura on the Caribbean coast to San Miguel de Padon, up-country where the nitrate beds were located.

Prior to his advent the railroad people had tried many breeds of section boss without visible results, until a Chicago man, who had come to Sobrante to install an inter-communicating telephone system in the government buildings, suggested to the superintendent of the road, who was a German, that the men made for bosses come from Erin's isle; wherefore Mr. Cafferty had been imported at a price of $5 a day gold. Result—a marked improvement in the road bed and consequently the train schedules, and the ultimate loss of the Cafferty soul.

Something in the climate of Sobrante must have appealed to a touch of laziness false in Don Juan's amiable nature, for in the course of time he had taken unto himself, without bell or book, after the fashion of the proletariat of Sobrante, the daughter of one Esteban Manuel Enrique Jose Maria Pasqual y Miramontes, an estimable person who was singularly glad to have his daughter off his hands and no questions asked. Following the fashion of the country, however, Esteban had forthwith moved the remainder of his numerous progeny under the mantle of Don Juan Cafetero's philanthropy, and resigned a position which for many years he had not enjoyed.

—to-wit: salting and packing green hides at a local abattoir. This forlornly economic move had so incensed Don Juan that in a fit of pique he spurned his father-in-law (we must call Esteban something and so why spelt halves) under the tails of his camels, with such vigor as to sever forever the friendly relations hitherto existing between the families. Mrs. Cafferty (again we transgress, but what of it?) subsequently passed away in child birth, and no sooner had she been decently buried than Don Juan took a week off to drown his sorrows.

In this condition he had encountered Esteban Manuel Enrique Jose Maria Pasqual y Miramontes and called him out of his name. In the altercation that ensued Esteban, fully convinced that he had received the nub end of the transaction from start to finish, cut Don Juan severely; Don Juan had thereupon slain Esteban with a .44-caliber revolver and upon emerging from the railroad hospital a month later had been tried by a Sobrantean magistrate and fined the sum of $20,000, legal tender of the republic of Sobrante. Of course, he had paid it off within six months from his wages as section boss, but the memory of the injustice always rankled him, and gradually he moved down the scale of society from section boss to day laborer, day laborer to tropical tramp, and tropical tramp to beach-comber, in which latter state he had now existed for several months.

To return to Mother Jenks. Before Don Juan could even utter a mutual greeting, Mother Jenks laid finger to lip and silenced him. "Go back to Leher's and return in an hour," she whispered. "I have my reasons for wantin' that blomin' cablegram delivered later."

Don Juan hadn't the least idea what Mother Jenks' reasons might be, but he presumed she was up to some chicanery, and so he winked his blood-shot eye very knowingly and nodded his acquiescence in the program.

When he had gone, Mother Jenks went behind the bar and fortified herself with her morning's morning— which she having been performed, her sleep-benumbed brain livened up immediately.

"Gawd's truth!" the lady murmured, "An' me about to turn him adrift for the latest fortnight! Well for 'im 'e allers humiliated the picture o' my sainted 'Enry, as was the spittin' image of his own father. 'Evings: 'Ell's bells! But that was a bit of a tight squeak! Just as I'm fully convinced 'e's beat it an' I'm left 'oldin' the sack, all along o' my kindness o' 'cart. 'e gets the cablegram 'e's been lookin' for this two months past; an' 'e allers claimed as 'ow any time 'e got a cablegram it'd be an answer to 'is letter, with money to follow! My word, but that was touch an' go!"

Still congratulating herself upon her good fortune in intercepting Don Juan

"Chap Your Spoonin', Willie."

Cafetero, Mother Jenks proceeded up stairs to her chamber, clothed herself, and adjourned to the kitchen. After giving orders for an extra special breakfast for two, Mother Jenks returned to her camera, and formally opened the same for the business of that day and night.

To her came presently, via the tiled hallway, the object of her solicitude, a young man on the sunny side of thirty. He was thin for one of his height and breadth of chest; in color his countenance resembled that of a sick Chinaman. His hair was thick and wavy, but lusterless; his dark blue eyes carried a hint of jaundice; and a generous mouth, beneath an equally generous upper lip, gave ample ground for the suspicion that while Mr. William Geary's speech denoted him an American citizen, at least one of his maternal ancestors had been wooed and won by an Irishman. An old Panama hat, sad relic of a prosperous past, a pair of soiled buckskin pumps, a suit of unbleached linen equally befouled, and last but not least, the remnants of a smile that much hard luck could never quite obliterate, completed his attire—and to one a stranger in the tropics would appear to constitute a complete inventory of Mr. Geary's possessions.

"Dulce corazon mio, I extend a greeting," he called at the entrance. "I trust you rested well last night. Mother Jenks, and that no evil dreams were born of your midnight repast of frijoles refritos, marmalade, and art-an-art!"

"Chop yer spoonin', Willie," Mother Jenks stammered. "My heye! So I'm yer sweetheart, eh? Yer wheedlin' brighter, makin' love to a girl as is old enough to be yer mother!"

"A woman," Mr. Geary retorted sagely and not a whit abashed, "is at the apex of her feminine charms at thirty-seven."

He knew his landlady to be not a day under fifty, but such is the ease with which the Irish scatter their blarney that neither Billy Geary nor Mother Jenks regarded this pretty speech in the light of an observation immaterial, inconsequential and not germane to the matter at issue. Nevertheless, there was a deeper reason for his blarney. This morning, watching the telltale tinge of pleasure underlying the alcohol-begotten hue of the good creature's face, he felt almost ashamed at his own heartless-ness—almost, but not quite.

"Gawd's truth, I ain't respect-able. She's comin' to see me— an' I cawn't let 'er."

OF SAME ORIGIN AS COAL

Wood Believed to Be Basis of Jet, Substance Long Used for Various Ornaments.

Jet is a sort of lignite or anthracite, often cut and polished, which has the peculiarities in weight and texture of the hardest kind of anthracite. It has been used in Britain since before historic times, and was common in the bronze age, from which times have come jet beads, buttons, rings, armlets and other ornaments.

Julius Caesar alludes to the abundance of jet in Britain, and jet ornaments are found with Roman relics in them. The monks used jet for rosary beads at Whitby Abbey, and at Whitby, where it was found in the greatest abundance. It occurs in irregular masses in hard shale known as jet rock.

Often microscopic examination discloses coniferous wood in the composition of jet. It is probable that jet was developed when masses of wood drifted down a river, rotted or became water logged and sank out at sea, becoming gradually buried in a deposit of fine mud which hardened eventually into shale. Sometimes drops of bitumen are found in jet cavities, which seems to confirm the suspicion of its wood origin.—Detroit News

HAS NO PAIN NOW

What Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Did for Mrs. Warner.

Onalaska, Wis. — "Every month I had such pains in my back and lower part of my stomach I could not lie in bed. I suffered so it seemed as though I would die, and I was not regular either. I suffered for a year and was unable to do my housework, could only wash dishes once in a while. I read an advertisement of what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound had done for other women and decided to try it. It surely did wonders for me. I have no pains now and I can do my housework without any trouble at all. I will always praise your medicine as I do not believe there is a doctor that can do as much good in female weakness, and you may use these facts as a testimonial." — Mrs. LESTER E. WARNER, Rt. 1, Box 69, Onalaska, Wis.

The reason women write such letters to the Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. and tell their friends how they are helped is that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has brought health and happiness into their lives. Freed from their illness they want to pass the good news along to other suffering women that they also may be relieved.

WOOL GROWERS ENABLED TO HOLD THEIR GOODS FOR HIGHER PRICE

Wool Sorting, Inspection and Blending.

(Copyright, by American Woolen Co., Boston.)

Since the passage of the United States warehouse act in 1916, the bureau of markets, United States department of agriculture, which is charged with the administration of this legislation, has received approximately 300 applications for licenses. Half of these applications were received within the past year.

The advantages that accrue from the federal licensing and bonding of warehouses storing agricultural products such as cotton, grain, wool, tobacco and flaxseed are just beginning to be fully appreciated, say specialists of the bureau of markets. A continuous educational campaign has been conducted to accomplish this result, and the bureau confidently feels that a steadily increasing number of applications will be received.

Aids in Financing Crops.

The chief purpose of the act, which is not mandatory, is to establish a form of warehouse receipt that will be easily and widely negotiable as delivery orders or as collateral for loans, and therefore of definite assistance in financing crops. By licensing and bonding warehouses the integrity of the receipt is assured as evidence of the condition, quality, quantity and ownership of the products stored. These receipts are approved as collateral for loans made by the federal farm loan board; and because of the high value of the paper, bankers generally are enabled to rediscount their loans to greater advantage, thereby securing cheaper money, which in turn should mean reduced interest charges for the growers. It is also a fact that in insuring cotton stored in federally licensed warehouses reductions of from 10 to 25 per cent have been granted by rate-making agencies. Thus the insurance underwriters give tangible recognition to the creation of a better moral class of risk and to the value of government supervision and inspection.

TUBERCULOSIS TESTS ARE MOST RELIABLE

Disease Is Introduced Into Herds in Various Ways

Animals Should Be Purchased Only From Proves Known to Be Free From Allment — Community Pastures Are Dangerous

Here are a few ways in which tuberculosis may be introduced into a healthy herd, according to specialists of the United States department of agriculture:

By the addition of an animal that is affected with the disease; therefore animals should be purchased only from herds known to be free from tuberculosis, or from herds under supervision for the eradication of the disease.

By feeding calves with milk or other dairy products from tubercular cows; this frequently occurs where the owner purchases mixed skim milk from the creamery and feeds it to his calves without first making it safe by boiling or pasteurization.

By showing cattle at fairs and exhibitions. Reports have indicated that numerous herds have become infected through mingling with infected cattle at shows or by occupying infected premises.

The shipment of animals in cars which have recently carried diseased cattle and which have not been disinfected properly.

Community pastures; pastures in which tuberculous cattle are allowed to graze are a source of danger.

In most cases the outward appearance of the animal bears no relation to the degree of infection. The disease frequently develops so slowly that in some cases it may be months, or even longer, before any symptoms are shown; therefore, be on the safe side and have your herd tested.

Much valuable information on the subject is contained in Farmers' Bulletin 1069, Tuberculosis in Live Stock. Copies may be had by addressing a request to the United States department of agriculture, Washington, D. C.

A particular advantage to the producer who stores his product in licensed warehouses is that he is enabled to hold his goods under the best conditions yet devised, until such time as the market is ready to receive them. He practically receives his pay immediately, the low interest rate upon his loan being more than offset by "top-of-market" prices received when he finally sells his product.

Wool Regulations Issued.

Regulations for the licensing and bonding of wool warehouses recently were promulgated by the bureau. Provision is made for the accurate weighing and grading of wool stored, or to be stored, in such warehouses. The grading tends not only to increase the value of the wool and make it more readily marketable, but gives the grower information as to the quality or grade of wool he is producing, indicating how the wool and the fleeces or bands may be improved to produce the most profitable quality. The grower knows that his wool is safe in such a warehouse, and that it is properly handled because of government supervision and inspection.

Where the wool of the growers is being pooled, the place of assembling or storing it may readily be licensed by complying with the regulations. In this connection the plan of some of the associations which have shown a desire to become licensed is to have the growers turn their wool over to the association, which deposits it in a licensed and bonded warehouse, where the lots are graded and like grades are put together in large heaps or piles. The warehouse then issues receipts to the association, which can be used as collateral. From the funds obtained the association can make advances to the individual grower. A copy of the regulations and forms to be used in connection with licensing wool warehouses can be had upon application to the Bureau of Agriculture, Washington.

FARM WOODLAND IN THE NORTH.

Farm woodlands amount to two-fifths of all forested lands. There are about 53,000,000 acres of woodland. In New England more than 85 per cent of all forested land is on farms, and in Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, and Iowa from 80 to 100 per cent. The income to farms from timber products is estimated at about $162,000,000 yearly.

AGENTS HELP IN MARKETING

Various County Representatives Have Done Much to Assist Organization of Associations.

Work of exceptional value to farmers has been done by various county agents in connection with the organization of live-stock shipping associations and live-stock auction sales. The shipping associations have been especially successful in Minnesota, Michigan, Wisconsin and Oregon, as well as in several states in the South. The live-stock auction sales have been developed in California on an Australian model which was introduced by a county agent who had been engaged in agricultural extension work in New South Wales. The value of the stock marketed through these auction sales in California amounted to $1,790,330 and increased returns to the farmers by $108,948 over prices which the stock would have brought had the auction sales not been held.

LIVE STOCK NOTES

Keep the pigs growing every minute.

There should be purebred live stock on every farm.

Give pigs shade, water and pasture if you want them to thrive.

Worms in swine have no commercial value. Discontinue raising them.

A SYMPOSIUM OF SALADS.

There is never a sameness in the art of salad making, for one has an infinite variety from which to choose raw materials. Cooked food, odds and ends of leftovers which would otherwise be wasted, may go into the salad bowl and become an attractive dish, with a well-prepared and an appropriate dressing.

Fisherman's Salad.

Take two pounds of cooked fish, one pound of boiled potatoes, a quarter of a head of white cabbage; season with salt and pepper. After flaking the fish and shredding the cabbage and add cucumber pepper to season well, one pickled beet finely chopped, also two cucumbers. Mix all together and serve with any good salad dressing.

Potato Salad.

The best potato salad is made with potatoes cooked especially for the salad and seasoned before they become cold. Boil small-sized potatoes with their skins on, peel and cut in cubes, add seasonings of salt and pepper and marinate with a thin dressing—either a cooked dressing thinned with cream or a well-seasoned French dressing. Dressing them while warm sends the seasoning through them and makes a much more palatable salad. Minced onion, fresh mustard finely minced, a handful of blanched and shredded almonds and a cucumber or two will make the finest kind of a salad, providing the salad dressing is a good well-seasoned one. Just before serving add the thick salad dressing and the cucumber unless kept very cold will lose its crispness.

Simple Tomato Salad.

Scald and peel perfectly ripe tomatoes of uniform size. Place in a dish and cover with ice and salt for half an hour to chill thoroughly. Rub a salad bowl with the cut side of a clove of garlic and arrange the crisp, tender leaves of the heart of head lettuce as a lining to the salad bowl. Arrange the tomatoes cut in quarters or if small cut in quarters without separating the pieces and pour over a good mayonnaise dressing which has been seasoned with minced onion.

Veal Salad.

Cook a small piece of veal in a broth made of chicken bones and water, or cook the veal with the chicken. Let the meat cool in the broth, then cut it in small cubes; mix with celery and salad dressing and it will be hard to tell from a chicken salad.

It matters not how trait the gate, How charged with punishment the goal; I am the master of my fate, I am the captain of my soul. In the fell clutch of circumstance I have not winced or cried aloud. Beneath the bludgeonings of chance, My head is bloody, but unbowed. —Hendley.

THINGS WORTH KNOWING.

If a cork is too large for the bottle in which you wish to use it, lay it sideways and use it. It will fit with a small board under all the pressure you can put upon it. This will elongate it to fit the bottle.

Ripping is an easy task if safety razors are used to do the work.

To keep the eyebrows clean and to stimulate their growth and beauty, they should be brushed gently with a soft brush night and morning. In applying any tonic or oil only the smallest amount should be used.

Chicken which will not cook tender may be made so by the addition of a teaspoonful of alcohol in the water. Vinegar will also soften the fiber of meat, a tablespoonful to the kettle of stew.

To make mint extract, pick the fresh leaves of mint, wash and dry and pack into a bottle as full as possible; cover with alcohol and let stand two weeks, then strain and bottle for future use. This is the real stuff and one need not fear to use it.

Buckles, beads and buttons of polished steel may be beautifully cleaned by covering with unsalted lime and leaving for a short time.

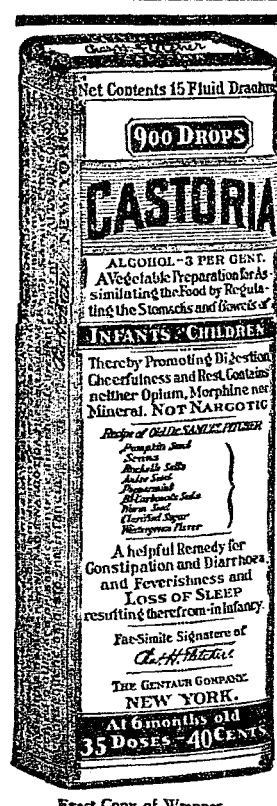

Shirts or slippers may be rubbed with emery paper and they will look like new.

Dry hair is very valuable for cleaning purposes, as is cornmeal. Rub it into fur, where the soiled spots are, rub harder, then brush off. Ermine and delicate furs are cleaned well in this way.

Velvet coat collars and collars of mens' coats may be cleaned easily with cornmeal wet with gasoline and rubbed well into the pile of the velvet or collar and then brushed out. Care should be taken to keep away from all fire.

A damp cloth wrapped around the throat and covered with a dry one will relieve a sufferer from a hacking cough.

BLAME NOT ENTIRELY HERS

New Maid's Attitude Not Inappropriately Compared With That of Some Politicians.

In a recent political gathering the following story was told apropos of the coming national election:

"Whichever side wins, I'm afraid will act as old the new maid."

"The new maid was entirely make-shift, and the mistress bore with her patiently at first. But on the third day she placed a very unclean dinner plate on the table, and patience broke down."

"Really, Mary, you might at least see that the plates are clean."

"Well, mum, Mary rejoined, 'I owns to them thumb marks, but that dried mustard was there afore I come!'"

Special Care of Baby.

That Baby should have a bed of its own all are agreed. Yet it is more reasonable for an infant to sleep with grown-ups than to use a man's medicine in an attempt to regulate the delicate organism of that same infant. Either practice is to be shunned. Neither would be tolerated by specialists in children's diseases.

Your Physician will tell you that Baby's medicine must be prepared with even greater care than Baby's food.

A Baby's stomach when in good health is too often disarranged by improper food. Could you for a moment, then, think of giving to your ailing child anything but a medicine especially prepared for Infants and Children? Don't be deceived.

Make a mental note of this:—It is important, Mothers, that you should remember that to function well, the digestive organs of your Baby must receive special care. No Baby is so abnormal that the desired results may be had from the use of medicines primarily prepared for grown-ups.

DON'T FAIL TO ATTEND.

It's a man's job
to keep up with Michigan

In the passing of a decade, almost, Michigan, by a phenomenal growth, has leaped from comparative industrial obscurity to a commanding place among the commercial centers of the nation.

Hand in hand with this expansion, has grown the demand for telephone service in Michigan. Some idea of the problems confronting the Michigan State Telephone Company as the result of this advance in industry and population may be gained from consideration of these facts:

In 1910 the state had a population of 2,810,000, served by 143,300 of our telephones, or one for every 19½ persons.

In 1920, it is estimated from the available census returns, the population is 3,210,000, a growth of approximately 400,000, and is served by 292,851 of our telephones, meaning one for each 11 persons.

Therefore, while the population has grown 14.2 per cent, the number of telephones has grown 104.3 per cent. The company has, in the face of war conditions, material and labor shortage and skyrocketing costs, more than kept pace with Michigan's growth.

It has been necessary, in order to meet the myriad problems confronting the telephone service, for the company to make surveys and estimates, years in advance, of the volume and direction of population and industrial growth in order to intelligently build to meet it. All this company's resources and efforts have been used to meet Michigan's requirements, as indicated in these surveys.

Had the 14.2 per cent increase in population been evenly distributed the problem would have been simplified, but this growth has been greater at some points than at others. There have been times, therefore, when the surveys did not compare with requirements and times when the engineer's estimates could not be met.

But the telephone people, facing these and many other obstacles, carried on and are still carrying on, determined that their future efforts shall exceed even those of the past.

They are anxious to have the people they serve know what they are doing to solve these problems and that despite all difficulties they are determined to make Michigan's telephone service the best obtainable anywhere.

HEL-LO-o-o-o PETE:

In two more shakes of a lamb's tail I'd have been between the sheets—but I got taken with another large idea for Camel Cigarette ads that's so bright you can phone 'em to cut the current because you just had your lamps lit!

Tell you, it's a whale of a stunt! Everybody right quiet—and hats off! NOW—far as I know or ever heard, there never has been one of those zippy slogans under that big display name "Camel". I'VE GOT ONE—get me? Put both your ears close to the ground and get the rumble of a broadside like this:

Camel

Once it meant an animal—
now a Cigarette!

Wow, Pete! I'll testify that's a stoneless peach! Spread it like I've denied it in here—and you've uncorked an eye-ful! Suppose you'll want to call me old Mr. Hammer because I hit the nail on the head!

And, bet real money that if this slogan stuff keeps me awake the rest of the night, I'll wire and offer it to R. J. Reynolds Tobacco Co. before you hit the deck! And, I'll be spending some of the proceeds for noon eats! In the "lang-wage" of Jigger Jones of Joplin, "you tell 'em old yacht, you've got the sales spirit!"

Blowing out of St. Louis at 10.12 tomorrow with a bundle of business. Off for Ohio. Got something on me mind!

Till I get it off—

Shorty.

EX-TRY! EX-TRY!
Just got a wire, I sold 'em that slogan! Pete, eat on me! S.
