FIRE DESTROYS BARN ON FARM OF JOHN LIEBECK

The large barn on the farm of John Liebeck, which he purchased of the J. P. Miller estate in August, with its contents, was burned to the ground Tuesday night.

Mr. Liebeck was just preparing to retire about 10 o'clock when his attention was called to a commotion in a flock of ducks on the premises. As he stepped to the door he saw flames pouring from the barn.

The blaze appeared to have been started in the middle of the building and from all appearances was undoubtedly of incendiary origin.

The contents of the building consisted of about 60 tons of hay, 50 bushels of wheat, 147 bushels of barley, 600 bushels of oats, about a ton of fertilizer, wagon and nearly all of the tools used on the farm. Mr. Liebeck had recently purchased the paint to be used in repainting the house and the barn, and this was also burned. The only part of the contents of the barn saved were the harnesses, and he will be able to salvage a portion of the grain, which can be used for feed.

The building was practically a new one, replacing one burned four years ago next month.

The property was insured in the German Mutual Fire Insurance company for $2,500 and there was an insurance of $1,000 on the contents, which amounts will fall far short of covering the loss.

A CHANGE IN DEER HUNTING LAW HAS BEEN MADE

Michigan deer hunting season will begin the morning of November 13 and end the night of November 22, according to an order issued by the Michigan Public Domain commission at Lansing. Hunting will be permitted in both peninsulas.

The season last year covered 20 days. The reduction of 10 days is said by the commission to have been made at the suggestion of hunters as well as boards of supervisors.

The dates are fixed so that it will be possible for hunters to spend the whole season in the woods and be home in time for Thanksgiving dinner of venison with their families.

More than 35,000 licenses were issued during the season a year ago. It is expected that an equal number of deer hunters will be in the woods this fall.

Brooklyn—Quail are reported in increasing numbers. A few have found their way into town lately and are not easily frightened. The Chinese pheasants imported and hatched within the past year or two are also seen. Some of the birds are quite tame. The male birds are the size of a bantam chicken and they have showy plumage and a long sweeping tail. The birds are making friends among the farmers and many farms are being posted for their protection. —Brooklyn Exponent.

Pinckney—The watermelon season is now in full blast. Last week Leo Root of Webberville, age 14, received 29 leaden globes in his anatomy via shotgun in the hands of Jay Dakin, and a warrant will be issued for Mr. Dakin if the wounds prove serious. Last Thursday Merrill Gallup came to town with a paper which he said contained a list of names of Pinckney boys who visited his "patch" the night before. After positively identifying one boy and demanding ten dollars, and threatening dire consequences if the money was not forthcoming he departed saying that "something would happen tomorrow morning." After thinking the matter over, however, he telephoned that he had made a mistake in the boy.—Pinckney Dispatch.

TWO SAW WAY OUT OF ANN ARBOR JAIL MONDAY NIGHT

Judge George Sample on Saturday sentenced John Sullivan, Arthur Hamley, Reginald Dodge and Edgar Withe, the Detroit gunmen, arrested Friday noon in Saline, to Marquette prison to serve from one to two years, with recommendation of two years. The men were charged with carrying concealed weapons.

They were the four men, who, together with 18-year-old Peggy Ferguson of Detroit, were arrested at Saline Friday, after they had been making frequent trips to the two banks, each time a different one of the group presenting a one dollar bill to be changed. They were taken on suspicion, but when searched were found to have automatic revolvers.

They later admitted that they had intended to rob one of the banks.

John Sullivan, one of the bandits, and Fred Klein, a federal prisoner who was recently placed in the county jail, escaped early Tuesday morning. They are believed to have escaped in an automobile.

Outside aid was apparently obtained in the jail delivery. One bar was sawed from an outside window of the jail. Fifteen other prisoners in the same cell block were not even awakened.

Sullivan was to have been taken to Marquette Tuesday.

Uniformity

Uniformity is the secret of success of any good product.

It's the reason Willard Batteries with Threaded Rubber Insulation are making such a wonderful record of long life without repairs.

Ordinary materials used for insulation between battery plates are taken just as they come from nature and can't be made uniform by any process.

But Threaded Rubber Insulation is built up by a scientific manufacture. Every piece of it is like every other and almost invariably Threaded Rubber lasts as long as battery plates.

No wonder many of these batteries have given three and four years of uninterrupted good service.

Drop in and get the whole story.

PLAYING UP TO THE TEACHER

Indianapolis Youngster Had a Pretty Shrewd Idea of What He Was Doing, After All.

John Arthur is a pupil in a Jeffersonville departmental school, and had to write an essay on Woodrow Wilson, among others. He evinced such a high regard for the president, especially in his management of the world war, as to express the view that he was even greater than Washington or Lincoln. He said they were had a fine showing in the little wars they had to handle, but could hardly, he thought, have got through the big one. His father, seeing the essay, ventured the opinion that the writer was too positive in his statement, although admiring Wilson himself. John Arthur showed he was perhaps something of a diplomat as well as an essayist. "Oh, well," he remarked, "the teacher is a Democrat, anyhow."—Indianapolis News.

Help Save Birds.

Friends of the migratory birds believe that the first important step for the perpetuation of the birds has been made, but that another one equally vital remains to be taken, says the American Forestry Magazine. This consists in the conservation and perpetuation of a sufficient number of small inland lakes, as well as island and coastal swamps and marsh areas, to provide the birds place for feeding and resting and rearing their young.

OPEN SHOP WAR LEADS TO WRITS

24 UNIONS AND 60 INDIVIDUALS RESTRAINED FROM INTERFERING WITH CONTRACTORS.

TERRORIST METHODS ALLEGED

Say Building Trades Bodies Intimidated Workers; United States Court Takes Action.

Detroit—Nearly every labor union and labor leader in Detroit is restrained from picketing or in any way interfering with work being done by members of the Detroit Association of Sanitation and Heating Contractors in a temporary injunction issued by United States Judge Arthur J. Tuttle. The order is said to be one of the most sweeping ever issued in this district and is the outcome of a protracted fight between unions and contractors over an effort to make Detroit a "closed shop city" in the building trades.

In the injunction, 24 labor organizations, both international and local, and more than 60 individuals are named. Among these are the Detroit Federation of Labor and the Detroit Building Trades Council together with their affiliated unions, which embrace virtually all the labor organizations in the city. The unions specified are those of the plumbers, steamfitters, plasterers, cement finishers, electricians and carpenters.

The injunction orders that the persons and organizations named refrain from in any way interfering with the work of the members of the contractors' association; that no effort must be made to keep men from accepting and doing work for the contractors; that places where work is in progress, establishments of the contractors and the employment bureau operated by them must not be picketed; that no threats or intimidation shall be used, and that property of the contractors shall not be destroyed.

WAR "HIDE KING" KILLS SELF

Blair Crohon. Facing Indictment, Takes Poison on D. & C. Steamer.

Detroit—Despondent over the issuance of warrants charging him with embezzling nearly $50,000, Blair Crohon, of Grand Rapids, president of the Great Western Hide Co., of Boston, took poison on the D. & C. steamer Western States, just before it pulled into the dock here and died a half hour later at Receiving Hospital.

Crohon, who was known during the war as the "hide king," through his reputed cornering of practically the entire American hide market, was arrested in Grand Rapids on Sept. 13 on a grand jury warrant issued in Boston. His son-in-law, Phil Puris, secretary of the company, was arrested at the same time on a similar charge.

The warrant was issued on complaint of the Anglo-South American Bank, of Boston, following Crohon's dealing with it and with the International Trust Co., also of Boston. It was reported at the time that the claim against Crohon's company totaled more than $1,000,000.

ARREST HUGER GIRL ABDUCTOR

Search by Sister of 14-Year-Old Victim Proves Successful.

Buffalo—Following a search made by the sister of his alleged victim since Aug. 19, Aaron Mark Risner, 33 years old, of Detroit, was arrested on a charge of abduction while leaving the Postoffice Building, accompanied by Marguerite Huger, 14 years old, of Plymouth, Mich., the girl he is accused of abducting.

The story learned by the local police was to the effect that Marguerite Huger went to Detroit Aug. 19 and father said there was no doubt about that, but there didn't seem much poppin' the question about you. And now you say you're not a bird at all!

The girl's sister, Nellie Huger, started out to find the couple, but her search was without success until after they had come to Buffalo. Then a letter from Risner to Detroit gave a clue to their whereabouts.

Risner will be brought back to Detroit for trial.

CHICAGO POLICE PREVENT RIOT

They were rescued and placed in jail when squads of policemen were sent to avert a possible race riot.

Chief of Police Garrity ordered the entire police force mobilized and placed several hundred extra policemen around the scene of the trouble which was at the southeast corner of the stockyards, where several thousands of Negroes are employed.

WILLING TO PAY THE PRICE

Small Boy Satisfied That the Bill for His Three Days' Fun Was Not Exorbitant.

At last little Freddy was allowed to visit grandpa all alone. They were great friends, and had long waited for the great day.

Freddy had the time of his life. Grandpa saw that he wanted for nothing. The small boy ate more cream buns in those three days than he would otherwise have done in three years, while his pockets bulged all the time with candies.

But there comes an end to everything, and Freddy went home again, pale yellow of complexion, and languid and feverish. Mother promptly sent for the doctor, who ordered him to bed, and sent him some very unpleasant, but doubtless healing medicine.

Grandpa came next day and was permitted to creep upstairs to see how the sufferer was faring. He found the small boy lying wan and pale on his pillow, but received a watery smile as a welcome.

"Oh, grandpa," said the weak little voice, "I've been awfully bad—but it was worth it."

Giving Him Every Opportunity. "We're going to move to Ohio." "What's the idea?" "Want to give my young son a chance to become president some day."

PETEV, LISTEN HARD!

Buffalo, N. Y.
—on a Saturday!

When it's your good luck to butt into Buffalo, go to that store on Ellicott Square where the dark haired clerk slips out Camels with both hands—plus a tank of talk on the side!

The thing that tickled me most was his sureness that I was after Camels! As soon as I had my coin on the counter and before I could say a word, he flashed me a package of Camels! When I asked him how he knew I wanted Camels, he took a puff on his laugh stock and soaked me with this:—"Can't tell you, old mayonnaise—I'm dressing!"

After he had waited on several other men who drew their Camels like I did, this salesman said:—"For a fact, most men here smoke Camels. They hit the popular taste! Camels have the right body and the right mildness and the right flavor! They're ALL right!"

And, Pete—he added this without a stutter: The more I see of the world and the more I learn about cigarettes, the more respect I have for Camels and Camels quality! I don't believe a better cigarette could be made at any price! And Pete—oh, Pete—listen to this gem:—"And it's an odds on bet I'm a good judge. I've tried 'em all—and my taste is the jury box!"

If that isn't a swell line of Camel talk, I'll sell my shoes! But, Peter, that salesman is right! It's my belief that no cigarette in the world can be so smooth and mellow and delightful!

I'm herewith slipping between the sheets, old book. So, you tell 'em the rest—you're so full of knowledge!

Sincerely

Shorty.

Chelsea Lodge, Knights of Pythias, opened its social season Monday evening when about sixty members attended a gathering at Castle Hall. Peaches and cream, muskmelons and watermelons in large quantities disappeared before the hungry horde like dew before the noonday sun. Several members of the order from Ann Arbor were present and assisted in the work of devastation.

Carroll Clark, son of Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Clark of Lyndon, had a narrow escape from receiving serious injuries one day of the past week, while driving a team hitched to a land roller. The tongue broke, dropping down and frightening the horses. The young man was thrown in front of the roller, which passed over him. Luckily he escaped serious injury, the worst being a scalp wound which required a number of stitches to close.

Webster—Man's Man

By PETER B. KYNE

Author of "Cappy Ricks," "The Valley of the Giants," Etc.

"MOTHER!"

John Stuart Webster, mining engineer, boards a train in Death Valley, California, on his way back to civilization after cleaning up $100,000. But he looks like a hobo. Then he meets a distressed lady, who makes his heart stop over. He eliminates the offending man. Being what he is and also glib, he does not take advantage of his opportunity. But he just has to find out that she is Dolores Ruy. In Denver he is offered a $25,000-a-year job by a capitalist friend, Edward T. Jerome. He receives a delayed letter from his own particular pal, Billy Geary, asking him to finance a gold-mining proposition in Central America and go fifty-fifty with him on the profits. Thereupon he turns down the big job and decides to answer the call of friendship and adventure to Sobrante. Jerome goes with John to the depot. They meet the distressed lady on her way to the same train. John lifts his hat, but gets the cut direct from the girl, who does not recognize him. John tells Jerome the whole story. Jerome secretly sees the girl, offering her $10,000 if she induces John to take his job inside of ninety days. The girl accepts. The scene now shifts to Buenaventura, Sobrante, where Geary, on his uppers, is waiting his heart out looking for a cablegram from his old partner. He has existed for two months on credit extended by Mother Jenks, keeper of a disreputable hotel. Dolores cables Henrietta Wilkins (Mother Jenks) that she is on her way to visit her. Mother Jenks breaks down and tells her story. She has been educating Dolores, who is the daughter of former President Ruey of Sobrante, deposed and executed by the President Sarron. Mother Jenks doesn't want Dolores to find out she is no longer respectable. So she and Billy plan for him to meet the steamer and to turn the girl back.

So this was the vision he had volunteered to meet about La Estrella, and by specious lies and hypocritical men, turn her back from the portals of Buenaventura to that dear old United States, which, Billy suddenly recalled with poignant pain, is a sizeable country in which a young lady may very readily be lost forever. With the quick eye of youth, he noted that Dolores was perfectly wonderful in a white flannel skirt and jacket, white buck boots, white Panama hat with a gorgeous puggaree, a mannish little linen collar, and a red four-in-hand tie. From under that white hat peeped a profusion of crinkly brown hair with a slightly reddish tinge to it; her eyes were big and brown and wide apart, with golden flecks in them; their glance met Billy's hungry gaze simply, directly, and with a curiosity there was no attempt to hide. Her nose was patrician; her beautiful short upper lip revealed the tips of two perfect, milk-white front teeth; she was, Billy Geary told himself, a goddess before whom all low, worthless, ordinary fellows like himself should grovel and die happy, if perchance she might be so minded as to walk on their faces! He was aroused from his critical inventory when the heart spoke again: "You haven't answered my question, sir!"

"No," said Billy, "I didn't. Stupid of me, too. However, come to think of it, you didn't ask me any question. You looked it. My name is Geary—William H. Geary, by profession a mining engineer and by nature an ignoramus, and I have called to deliver some disappointing news regarding Henrietta Wilkins."

"Is she—"

"She is. Very much alive and in excellent health—or rather was, the last time it was my pleasure and privilege to call on the dear lady. But she isn't in Buenaventura now." Mentally Billy asked God to forgive him his black-hearted treachery to this winsome girl. He loathed the task he had planned and foisted upon himself, and nothing but the memory of Mother Jenks' manifold kindnesses to him in a day, thanks to Jack Webster, now happily behind him, could have induced him to go through to the finish.

"Why, where is she?" Dolores queried, and Billy could have wept at the sight in those lovely brown eyes. He waved his hand airily. "Quite safe!" he said. "She left three weeks ago for New Orleans to visit you. I dare say you passed each other on the road—here, here, Miss Ruey, don't cry."

He took a recess of three minutes, while Dolores dabbed her eyes and went through sundry other motions of being brave. Then he proceeded with his nefarious recital.

"When your cablegram arrived, Miss Ruey, naturally Mrs. Wilkins was not here to receive it, and as I was the only person who had her address, the cable agent referred it to me. Under the circumstances, not knowing where I could reach you with a cable informing you that Mrs. Wilkins was headed for California to see you, I had no other alternative but to let matters take their course. I decided you might arrive on La Estrella, so I called to welcome you to our thriving little city, and, as a friend of about two minutes' standing, to warn you away from it."

Billy's mien, as he voiced this warning, was so singularly mysterious, as that Dolores' curiosity was aroused instantly and rose superior to her grief. "Why, what's the matter?" she demanded.

Billy looked around, as if fearful of being overheard. He lowered his voice. "We're going to have one grand little first-class revolution," he replied. "It's due to bust almost any night now, and when it does, the streets of San Buenaventura will run red with blood."

Dolores blanched. "Oh, dearie me," she quavered. "Do they still have revolutions here? You know, Mr. Geary, my poor father was killed in one."

"Yes, and the same old political gang that shot him is still on deck," Billy warned her. "It would be highly dangerous for a lady, man or woman, to show his or her nose around Buenaventura about now. Besides, Miss Ruey, that isn't the worst," he continued, for a whole-hearted lad was Billy, who never did anything by halves. "The city is reeking with cholera," he declared.

"Cholera!" Dolores' big brown eyes grew bigger with wonder and concern. "How strange the port authorities didn't warn us at New Orleans!"

"Tish! Tush! Fiddlesticks and then some. The fruit company censors everything, Miss Ruey, and the news doesn't get out."

"But the port doctor just said the passengers could go ashore."

"What's a human life to a doctor? Besides, he's on the slush-fund pay roll and does whatever the higher-ups tell him. You are guided by what I tell you, Miss Ruey, and do not set foot on Sobrante soil. If you stay aboard La Estrella, you'll have your nice clean stateroom, your well-cooked meals, your bath, and the attentions of the stewardess. The steamer will be loaded in two days; then you go back to New Orleans, and by the time you arrive there I'll have been in communication by cable with Mother Jenks—I mean—"

"Mother who?" Dolores demanded. "A mere slip of the tongue, Miss Ruey. I was thinking of my landlady. I meant Mrs. Wilkins—"

"I'm so awfully obliged to you, Mr. Geary. You're so kind, I'm sure I'd be a most ungrateful girl not to be guided by you accordingly. You wouldn't risk any friend of yours in this terrible place, would you, Mr. Geary?"

"Indeed, I would not. By permitting anybody I thought anything of to come to this city, I should feel guilty of murder."

"I'm sure you would, Mr. Geary. Nevertheless, there is one point that is not quite clear in my mind, and I wish you'd explain—"

"Command me, Miss Ruey."

"If this is such a frightful place, why are you so anxious, if I may employ such language, to horsewoggle your dearest friend, Mr. John S. Webster, into coming down here? Do you want to kill him and get his money—or what?"

S. Webster can risk Buenaventura, I can also."

"You—you know that old tarantula?" Billy gasped. "Why—I came out to warn him off the grass, too." Dolores walked a step closer to Billy and eyed him disapprovingly. "I'm so sorry I can't believe that statement," she replied. "It happens that I was standing by the companion-ladder when you came aboard and spoke to the purser; when you asked him if Mr. Webster was aboard, your face was alight with eagerness and anticipation, but when you had reason to believe he was not aboard, you looked so terribly disappointed I felt sorry for you."

"I'm going ashore, if it's the last act of my life, and when I get there I'm going to interview the cable agent; then I'm going to call at the steamship office and scan the passenger list of the last three north-bound steamers, and if I do not find Henrietta Wilkins' name on one of those passenger lists I'm going up to Calle de Concordia No. 19—"

"I surrender unconditionally," groaned Billy. "I'm a liar from beginning to end. I overlooked my hand. I beg of you to believe me, however; when I told you that I only told you those whoppers because I was in honor bound to tell them. Personally, I don't want you to go away—at least, not until I'm ready to go away, too! Miss Ruey, my nose is in the dust. There is a fever in my brain and a misery in my heart—"

"And contrition in your face," she interrupted him laughingly. "You're forgiven, Mr. Geary—on one condition."

"Name it," he answered.

"Tell me everything from beginning to end."

So Billy told her. "I would much rather have been visited with a plague of boils, like our old friend, the late Job, than have to tell you this, Miss Ruey," he concluded his recital. "Man proposes, but God disposes, and the truth here and beyond to learn the truth sooner or later. Mother isn't a lady and she knows it, but take it from me, Miss Ruey, she's a grand old piece of work. She's a scout—a ring-tailed sport—a regular individual and game as a gander."

"And I wasn't call at El Buen Amigo, Mr. Geary?"

"Perish the thought! Mother must call on you. El Buen Amigo is what you might term a hotel for tropical tramps of the masculine sex. Nearly all of Mother's guests have a past, you know. They're the submerged white teeth of Sobrante."

"Then my benefactor must call to see me here?" Billy nodded. "When will you bring her here?"

Billy reflected that Mother Jenks had been up rather late the night before and that trade in the cantina of El Buen Amigo had been unusually brisk; so since he desired to exhibit the old lady at her best, he concluded it might be well to spar for wind.

"Tomorrow at 10," he declared. Dolores inclined her head. Something told her she had better leave all future details to the amiable William.

"I remember you inquired for your friend, Mr. Webster, when you came aboard the steamer."

"I remember it, too," Billy countered ruefully. "I can't imagine what's become of him. Miss Ruey, did you ever go to meet the only human being in the world and discover that for some mysterious reason he had failed to keep the appointment? Miss Ruey, you'll have to meet old John Stuart the minute he lights in Buenaventura. He's some boy."

"Old John Stuart?" she queried. "How old?"

"Oh, thirty-nine or forty on actual count, but one of the kind that will live to be a thousand and then have to be killed with an axe. He's coming to Sobrante to help me put over a mining deal."

"How interesting, Mr. Geary! No wonder you were disappointed."

The last sentence was a shaft deliberately launched; to Dolores' delight it made a keyhole in Billy Geary's heart.

"Don't get me wrong, Miss Ruey," he hastened to assure her. "I have a good mine, but I'd trade it for a hand-shake from Jack! The good Lord only published one edition of Jack, and limited the edition to one volume; then the plates were melted for the junk we call the human race. Two weeks ago, when I was sick and penniless and despairing, the possessor of a concession on a fortune, but without a centavo in my pockets to buy a banana, when I was a veritable beach-comber and existing on the charity of Mother Jenks, I managed finally to communicate with old Jack and told him where I was and what I had. There's his answer, Miss Ruey, and I'm not ashamed to say that when I got it I cried like a kid." And Billy handed her John Stuart Webster's remarkable cablegram, the receipt of which had, for Billy Geary, transformed night into day, purgatory into paradise. Dolores read it.

"No wonder you love him," she declared, and added artlessly: "His wife must simply adore him."

"He has no wife to bother his life, so he paddles his own canoe," Billy retorted. "I don't believe the old sour dough has ever been in love with anything more charming than the goddess of fortune. He's woman-proof."

"About Mrs. Jenks," Dolores continued, abruptly changing the subject. "How nice to reflect that after she had trusted you and believed in you when you were penniless, you were enabled to justify her faith."

"You bet!" Billy declared. "I feel that I can never possibly hope to catch even with the old Samaritan, although I did try to show her how much I appreciated her."

"I dare say you went right out and bought her an impossible hat," Dolores challenged roughly.

"No, I didn't, for a very sufficient reason. Down here the ladies do not wear hats. But I'll tell you what I did buy her, Miss Ruey—and oh, by George, I'm glad now I did it. She'll wear them tomorrow when I bring her to see you. I bought her a new black silk dress and an old-lace collar, and a gold breast pin and a tortoise shell hair comb and hired an open carriage and took her for an evening ride on the Malecon to listen to the band concert."

"Did she like that?"

"She ate it up," Billy declared with conviction. "I think it was her first adventure in democracy."

Billy's pulse was still far from normal when he reached El Buen Amigo, for he was infused with a strange, new-found warmth that burned like malaria fever, but wasn't. He wanted no preliminaries on Mother Jenks, but bluntly acquainted her with the facts in the case.

Mother Jenks eyed him a moment wildly. "Gord's truth!" she gasped; she reached for her favorite elixir, but Billy got the bottle first.

"Nothing doing," he warned this strange publican. "Mother, you're faking it—and what would your saluted 'Enery' say to that? Do you want that angel to kiss you and get a whiff of this brandy?"

Mother Jenks eyed him actually popped. "Gord's truth!" she gasped, "aven't I told ye she's a lady? Me kiss the lamb! Hi there, Mr. Geary, as 'ow I knows my place an' can keep it."

"Yes, I know," Billy soothed the frightened old woman, "but the trouble is Miss Dolores doesn't know hers—and something tells me if she does she'll forget it. She'll take you in her arms and kiss you, sure as death and taxes."

And she did! "My lamb, my lamb," sobbed Mother Jenks the next morning, and rested her old cheek, with its rum-begotten hue, close to the ruse-tinted ivory cheek of her ward. "Me—wot I am—ad to think—"

"You're a sweet old dear," Dolores whispered, patting the gray head; "and I'm going to call you Mother."

"Mr. William H. Geary," the girl remarked that night, "I know now why your friend, Mr. Webster, sent that cablegram. I think you're a scout, too."

For reasons best known to himself Mr. Geary blushed furiously. "I—Id better go and break the news to Mother," he suggested lamely. She held out her hand; and Billy, having been long enough in Sobrante to have acquired the habit, bent his manly person over that hand and kissed it. As he went out it occurred to him that had the lobby of the Hotel Malecon been paved with eggs, he must have flouted over them like a warthog, so light did he feel within.

CHAPTER VII.

Webster reached New Orleans at the end of the first leg of his journey, to discover that he was one day late to board the Atlanta—a banana boat of the Consolidated Fruit company's line plying regularly between New Orleans and San Buenaventura—which necessitated a wait of three days for the steamer La Estrella of the Caribbean Mail line, running to Caracas and way ports.

He decided to visit the ticket office of the Caribbean Mail line immediately and avoid the rush in case the travel should be heavy.

The steamship office was in Canal street. The clerk was waiting on two well-dressed and palpably low-bred sons of the tropics, to whom he had just displayed a passenger list which the two were scanning critically. Their interest in it was so obvious that unconsciously Webster peeped over their shoulders (no difficult task for one of his stature) and discovered it to be the passenger list of the steamer La Estrella. They were conversing together in low tones and Webster, who had spent many years of his life following his profession in Mexico, recognized their speech as the bastard Spanish of the peon.

He sat down in the long wall seat and waited until the pair, having completed their scrutiny of the list, turned to pass out. He glanced at them casually. One was a tall thin man whose bloodshot eyes were inclined to "pop" a little—infallible evidence in the Latin-American that he is drinking more hard liquor than is good for him.

His companion was plainly of the same racial stock, although Webster suspected him of a slight admixture of negro blood. He was short, stocky, and aggressive looking; like his companion, bejeweled and possessed of a thin, carefully cultivated moustache that seemed to consist of about nineteen hairs on one side and twenty on the other. Evidently once upon a time, as the story books have it, he had been shot. Webster suspected a Mauser bullet, fired at long range. It had entered his right cheek, just below the malar, ranged downward through his mouth and out through a fold of flabby flesh under his left jaw. It must have been a frightful wound, but it had healed well except at the point of entrance, where it had a tendency to pucker considerably, thus drawing the man's eyelid down on his cheek and giving to that closed organ something of the appearance of a bulldog's.

Webster gazed after them whimsically as he approached the counter.

"I'd hate to wake up some night and find that hombre with the puckered eye leaning over me. By the way," he continued, suddenly apprehensive, "do you get much of that parakeet travel on your line?"

"About 80 per cent. of it is off color, sir."

Webster pondered the 80-per-cent. probability of being berthed in the same stateroom with one of these people and the prospect was as revolting to him as would be an uninvited negro guest at the dining table of a southern family. He had all a Westerner's hatred for the breed.

"Well, I want a ticket to San Buenaventura," he informed the clerk, "but I don't relish the idea of a Greaser in the same stateroom with me. I wonder if you couldn't manage to fix me with a stateroom all to myself, or at least arrange it so that in the event of company I'll draw a white man."

"I'm sorry, sir, but I cannot guarantee you absolute privacy nor any kind of white man. It's pretty mixed travel to all Central American ports."

"How many berths in your first-class staterooms?"

"Two."

Webster smiled brightly. He had found a way out of the difficulty. "I'll buy 'em both, son," he announced.

"I cannot sell you an entire stateroom, sir. It's against the orders of the company to sell two berths to one man. The travel is pretty brisk and it's hardly fair to the public, you know."

"Well, suppose I buy one ticket for myself and the other for—well, for my valet, let us say. Of course," he added brightly, "I haven't engaged the valet yet and even should I do so I wouldn't be at all surprised if theascal missed the boat!"

The clerk glanced at him with a slow smile, and pondered. "Well," he said presently, "if you care to buy a ticket for your valet, I'm sure I shouldn't worry whether or not he catches the boat. If my records show that the space is sold to two men and the purser collects two tickets, I think you'll be pretty safe from intrusion."

"To the harassed traveler," said Mr. Webster, "a meeting with a gentleman of your penetration is as refreshing as a canteen of cool water in the desert. Shoot!" and he produced a handful of gold.

"I will—provided I have one empty cabin," and the clerk turned from the counter to consult his record of berths already sold and others reserved but not paid for. Presently he faced Webster at the counter.

"The outlook is very blue," he announced. "However, I have one berth in No. 34 reserved by a gentleman who was to call for it by two o'clock to-day." He looked at his watch. "It is now a quarter of one. If the reservation isn't claimed promptly at two o'clock I shall cancel it and reserve for you both berths in that room. If you will be good enough to leave me your name and address I will telephone you after that hour. In the meantime, you may make reservation of the other berth in the same stateroom. I feel very confident that the reservation in No. 34 will not be called for, Mr.—"

"Webster—John S. Webster. You are very kind, indeed. I'm at the St. Charles."

"Thanks, ever so much, for my life."

BREVITIES

Brighton—Contrary to an impression which seems to have gone out, the Brighton Products Co., which is to manufacture rubber universal joints here, is still planning to come to Brighton. Mr. Robinson, manager of the company, is having his difficulties in getting his machinery here. —Brighton Argus.

Albion—Though now past her 101st birthday by several months, Mrs. Juliet Cathoun Blakeley, resident here since the city started as a hamlet of three houses, still takes an active interest in the daily papers and this week insisted on being given a breakfast of ham and eggs. She is very weak and confined to her bed, but her mind is still clear.

Manchester—There has been a good deal of complaint about the scarcity of cement and a corresponding hold-up of construction work of all kinds. Frank Lowery has gone to the plant at Four Mile Lake after several loads this season and the last one he brought he had to wait for about two hours and then the cement was so hot he could hardly handle it. That's getting it fresh all right. —Manchester Enterprise.

Parma—Carl Horton and A. J. Howe shipped five hundred bushels of pedigreed Rosen rye to the Jerome L. Rice Co. at Grass Lake Monday. It will be distributed by the seed company all over the country. —Parma News.

Jackson—One of the free attractions that seems to get plenty of attention at the county fair is a nest of yellow jackets. In order to keep the saucy little fellows quiet someone covered their nest with a newspaper. All went very nicely until a farmer spied the paper and decided to sit down where he could keep the seat of his trousers clean. He moved. —Parma News.

Brighton—Many are aware that something is going on at Island Lake, but few realize the enormous development which is about to take place there. During this summer over 3000 building lots have been sold on the two adjoining lakes, Island and Fondra's. There remain 2000 more which will undoubtedly be sold before the camping season next summer. This alone means that when families of even an average of three members move into the cottages which will surely be built on the lots already sold Island Lake will have a summer population of over 10,000 people—a city of ten times the size of Brighton at our very doors. —Brighton Argus.

"They Don't Answer"

Perhaps you, too, have received a "They Don't Answer" report from central when you feel certain that the party you called is at home and your operator is simply neglecting you.

When you do, consider, for a moment, the many, many reasons why a subscriber may not answer—his temporary absence from the telephone—his inability to answer its call—the possibility of the telephone bell or other delicate mechanism being out of order without the operator's knowledge.

The operator, too, is human and may make errors—but she is never willfully neglectful of your service. It is much easier for her to complete your call than to make a "They Don't Answer" connection—for such connections involve additional work.

Your kindly consideration will go very far in assisting her to provide that better type of telephone service which we are all striving to give to Michigan.

Look at the roads for twenty miles around on a Sunday

THERE isn't any "country" any more. The automobile has brought the most remote settlement almost as close to the center of things as the next county was in the old days.

They make no distinction between the small car owner and the owner of the biggest car in the country.

It's all the same to them. So long as a man owns an automobile—large or small—he's entitled to the very best tire they can give him.

Quality has always been the outstanding feature of U. S. Tires. There's no limit on the U. S. guarantee. All U. S. Tires are guaranteed for the life of the tire.

IV

We have given a lot of thought to this tire proposition. There is some advantage in being the representatives of the oldest and largest rubber concern in the world.

Drop in the next time you're down this way and let us tell you some interesting facts about tires.

To hear some tire dealers talk you might think that nobody knew anything about tires except the fellow from Broadway.

That's not the basis we go on.

We give every man credit for knowing what he is spending his money on, whether he drives up here in his small car from ten miles out in the country or is passing through from the capital in his limousine.

III

That's one thing we like about U. S. Tires.

Select your tires according to the roads they have to travel:

In sandy or hilly country, wherever the going is apt to be heavy—The U. S. Nobby.

For ordinary country roads—The U. S. Chain or Usco.

For front wheels—The U. S. Plain.

For best results—everywhere—U. S. Royal Corda.

BREVITIES

Jackson—Dr. L. Stewart is recovering at the W. A. Foote Memorial hospital from the effects of a six-days nose bleed. His condition was serious for a time from the great loss of blood, and he is said to be still in a very weak condition, but gradually gaining. The bleeding was not constant during the six day period, but the intermittent flow was great enough to occasion fear for his recovery.—Jackson News.

Milan—The first of the Certificates of Merit to arrive in Milan was received last week by Kimer Weller. These are the certificates presented by the United States government to her fighting men for distinguished service during the recent war. Weller was wounded in action and the receipt of the citation came as a complete surprise to him. He is justly proud and gratified to receive the recognition. Milan Leader.

Ypsilanti—The long by electric is an innovation for Washtenaw county which has just been started by Ferdinand Palma who owns a big model farm south of Ypsilanti. The power as it is moved about the farm on a big stoneboat is drawing considerable attention. With the new machinery Mr. Palma not only does away with the cumbersome threshing engine and its danger of fire, but gets more speed, it being stated that his men thresh three bushels to the minute.

Milan J. M. Auten, prominent business man and retired farmer of Milan, was instantly killed Saturday night on the road between Milan and Dundee. Just how the accident occurred no one seems to know. Mr. Auten was the only occupant of the ill-fated car. Mr. Auten was returning from Dundee Saturday night and from indications he must have lost control of the automobile. The car skidded across the slippery pavement and overturned in the ditch along the side of the road, pinning the occupant under the side of the car.—Milan Leader.

Adrian—Hermon Myers, 25 years old, and Katherine Phillips, aged 19 years, both of Riga, were drowned in a roadside ditch about 80 rods from Miss Phillips' farm home early Sunday when Myers' automobile in which they were riding overturned. They were pinned beneath the car in about a foot of water. Particulars of the tragedy probably are sealed, as they were alone and had not been seen since leaving Blissfield Saturday night at 11 o'clock. A searching party found them early Sunday morning. They were to have been married in the near future.

The Evidence Is at Your Door.
Chelsea proof is what you want and the statement of this highly respected resident will banish all doubt: C. Lehman, 420 Garfield st., Chelsea, says: "Several years ago I was bothered with weak kidneys and backache. There was a general lameness across the small of my back and my kidneys were irregular in action. Nights I was restless and felt all tired out. Finally I used Doan's Kidney Pills which I saw advertised and their use put a stop to the trouble. My kidneys became normal and the lameness left my back. I am glad to recommend Doan's because I have found them to be a splendid remedy." (Statement given March 1, 1913).
On April 27, 1920, Mr. Lehman added: "I still use a few Doan's now and then when I find my kidneys require a tonic and they always bring the same good results as when I endorsed them in 1913."

How One Woman Helped Another

Foley Kidney Pills are bought in every state in the Union by men and women on the recommendation of those who already have been relieved of kidney trouble and bladder ailments by this sterling family remedy. Comparatively little advertising has been done for Foley Kidney Pills, yet they are well known, and those who know their splendid healing properties never accept an imitation or substitute for the genuine Foley.

Faith Banished; Health Restored
"In September, 1913, I was stricken with lambo and was unable to turn myself in bed. I was under the care of a physician but obtained no relief. A neighbor brought me a half bottle of Foley Kidney Pills and I had been similarly afflicted and they had relieved her. So I tried them, and after taking three bottles was well and on my feet. I most heartily recommend Foley Kidney Pills. I have never known them to fail."—Mrs. G. H. Ewell, Dundee, Mich.

5% INCREASE YOUR INCOME FROM 25 TO 100 PER CENT

$1000 at 3% interest earns $30 a year.
$1000 at 4% interest earns $40 a year.
$1000 at 5% interest earns $50 a year.
$1000 at 6% interest earns $60 a year.

As shown above, FIVE PER CENT earns $50 a year which is 67 per cent more than at 3 per cent and 25 per cent more than at 4 per cent. At SIX PER CENT the interest would be $60 a year which is just 100 per cent more than 3 per cent and 50 per cent more than at 4 per cent. We pay FIVE AND SIX PER CENT. Why take less?
