ANOTHER ATTEMPT TO REVIVE PEAT INDUSTRY IN CHELSEA

A new company has purchased the peat plant in Chelsea, and will endeavor to place it on a commercial basis. They will commence operations as soon as the machinery is installed. They have on the ground a press that has a capacity of from five to six tons of compressed fuel per hour, a disintegrator, a masher and feeding machine, an automatic cut-off machine, also a quantity of steel rails that will be used in the track on the peat bed.

Col. J. C. Morrison, a former engineer in the U. S. army, and a chemist, is chief of construction, assisted by I. N. Stevenson and George Chilton, are here installing the machinery in the plant.

The company will later install another peat press that will have a capacity of ten tons an hour, and it will work the material up in dry form.

Col. Morrison has made an extensive study of the peat industry, both in this country and in Europe, for the past fifteen years.

CHRISTIAN FAHRNER DIED SUNDAY AFTERNOON

Christian Fahrner was born in Germany July 6, 1844, and died at his home in Sylvan Center, Sunday afternoon, October 10, 1920, after an illness of but a few hours.

Mr. Fahrner came to the United States 56 years ago. He was united in marriage to Miss Mary Wurster 49 years ago, and they have resided on the farm where he died since their marriage.

He is survived by his wife, seven sons, three daughters, twelve grandchildren and several nephews and nieces.

The funeral was held from the home at 9:30 o'clock Wednesday morning, Rev. Carl Ertel officiating. Interment in the mausoleum in Bethlehem cemetery, Ann Arbor.

GOVERNMENT RULES IN REGARD TO CIDER MAKING

The following interpretation of the law and regulations controlling manufacture, use and sale of cider have been submitted by the federal prohibition director:

The operator of a customs mill is not required to file bond and secure a permit provided he manufactures sweet cider only and does not retain possession of same at or after the time it contains one-half of one per cent or more of alcohol by volume.

He may manufacture and sell preserved sweet cider or cider placed in sterile closed containers without bond or permit. The responsibility of keeping the alcoholic content below one-half of one per cent by volume rests upon the manufacturer, and in any case where cider is found on the market containing alcohol in excess of the allowed percentage, the manufacturer will be presumed to have manufactured and sold an intoxicating liquor.

He may manufacture and sell vinegar stock or vinegar provided he files bond and secures permit to do so. A sale of vinegar stock by a manufacturer to a vinegar manufacturer must be on Form 1410 duly approved by the office of the director. Sale of cider stock can be made in the manner mentioned above only to a vinegar manufacturer who has duly qualified as such by filing a bond and securing permit from the office of the director.

The owner of apples may manufacture and sell same provided said cider contains less than one-half of one per cent of alcohol by volume. He may also retail such cider in his home and allow it to become vinegar. No bond or permit is necessary. Purchasers of cider are not allowed possession or use of same after it contains one-half of one per cent or more of alcohol.

The owner of apples may manufacture and sell preserved sweet cider or cider placed in sterile closed containers without bond or permit.

The manufacturer of vinegar other than a farmer must file bond and obtain permit to so operate. The sale of vinegar stock to such manufacturer must be on form 1410 duly approved by the office of the director. The operator of a customs mill may qualify as a vinegar manufacturer by filing bond and securing permit from the office of the director.

Attention should be called to the fact that the government has distinguished between cider manufactured by the owner of apples to be used in the home, which may be allowed to turn to vinegar if no sugar or fermenting substance is added; and cider intended for commercial use.

Brighton—Losing control of his Ford touring car Friday afternoon, A. C. Stewart drove up onto the sidewalk in front of Burgett's barber shop knocking two little girls down, passing over them and going on, stopping across the street. Fortunately the only injuries which the two girls received were bruises and scratches about the face and head. Mr. Stewart cannot understand how the accident happened.—Brighton Argus.

CHURCH CIRCLES.

Wishbone and Backbone.

By Rev. G. W. Krause.

"Don't carry your wishbone where your backbone ought to be," says a writer in a current magazine.

A piece of excellent advice which we all need, is it not? How much time we all waste in wishing that things were other than they are; that our environment were different from what it is; that we were physically or morally or spiritually stronger than we know ourselves to be! Is it too much to say that the two little words "I wish" express the normal attitude of mind of a large number of people? We do not suggest that the exercise of will power can altogether change our environment or give us bodily health, but it might help to do both. It is of no use to ourselves or to others to spend our time and energy of soul in wishing that we and the world were better. It would be of a very great deal of use were we to exercise our will power in the matter; if, instead of saying "I wish I were better," we wish to say "I will be better, and I will do my part in making the world better, God helping me." If we, you and I, are to do any good work in our own souls or in the world, we must leave off saying "I wish" and begin to say "I will."

JAMES WILKINSON DROWNED AT CAVANAUGH SUNDAY

James Wilkinson, colored, aged 30 years, was drowned in Cavanaugh lake between 2 and 3 o'clock Sunday afternoon.

The man was at the lake acting as cook for Eugene Look, who was entertaining a number of friends at the Look cottage. He took a canoe and with a dog started out on the lake, and when opposite the Schanz cottage on the east shore the canoe was overturned. The man was seen hanging to the canoe by Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Schenk, Miss Agnes Weber and C. H. Fenn.

Messrs. Schenk and Fenn secured a boat and were within about twenty feet of the man when he went down. He was drowned in about ten feet of water.

No sound was heard from the man after the canoe was overturned, and it is thought that he was taken with a cramp.

The body was recovered by Fred E. Reiser and Herbert Schenk about two hours after the drowning.

The body was brought to Chelsea and taken to Staffan's morgue.

He had served four years in the U. S. navy, and was an expert swimmer. His home was at 351 Hastings street, Detroit, and he had been in the employ of the Look family for some time. His former home was in Kansas City, Mo., where his relatives reside.

DEATH OF MRS. H. E. STEGER OCCURRED SATURDAY NIGHT

Hattie E. Nelson was born in Nevada City, California, September 27, 1858, and died at her home on South Main street, Chelsea, Saturday evening, October 9, 1920, after an illness of three weeks duration.

She was united in marriage with Augustine Steger in 1875, and two years later Mr. and Mrs. Steger came to Chelsea which has been the family home since that time. Mr. Steger died several years ago.

She is survived by three sons, Alva Steger and Philip Steger of Detroit, and Dr. A. L. Steger of Chelsea, two daughters, Mrs. H. G. Spiegelberg of Chelsea, and Mrs. Mina Defendorf of Grand Blanc; four grandchildren and one brother, F. G. Nelson, of Lansing. Mrs. Steger was a member of Columbian Hive, L. O. T. M.

The funeral was held from her late home at 2 o'clock Tuesday afternoon, Rev. H. R. Beatty conducting the service. Interment at Oak Grove cemetery.

WOMEN'S ORGANIZATIONS CAN OBTAIN GOOD SPEAKERS

Parent-Teacher associations, woman's clubs and similar organizations frequently find themselves at a loss for a well qualified speaker to lead in the discussion of topics relating to the feeding, clothing and housing of the family and kindred topics relating to the welfare of the home and the school. The home economics department of the County Farm Bureau secured the services of Mrs. Martha French of the home economics department of the Ypsilanti Normal college, who is also state supervisor of vocational economics, and Miss Coral Havens, food specialist of the home economics extension service of M. A. C., to give talks at the county fair. These talks excited so much interest on the part of those who heard them that many of the ladies expressed a wish to have similar lectures given in their home communities.

To meet this demand the Farm Bureau has secured promises from Mrs. French and Miss Havens to visit all communities where a group of women unite in arranging for community meetings.

Dates may be arranged through the Farm Bureau office at Ann Arbor.

The "Old Age of Want" Bogie

"She died old and poor." It was a pitiful phrase found in the ancestral records of a certain family. One pictures a faded little gentlewoman, shabby and threadbare of raiment, neglected because she had not even the merest pittance to leave behind her—could any fate be more tragic?

No matter how small the amount, invest now in a safe security to protect you from an old age of want. Remember the appalling total—95% of all men at sixty years of age are dependent upon their daily earnings or their children for support.

Dividends from Preferred Stock of Consumers Power Company Yield 7.37% Interest on Your Investment —and the principal is absolutely secure, because it is invested in a preferred Stock of a Public Utility Company of known standing and efficient organization.

Dividends are paid four times a year, and they are assured too, because dividends on Preferred Stock must be paid in full before any dividends may be paid on the Company's Common Stock.

You Pay Only $95 per Share

Yet you receive 7% interest on a par value of $100 a share, which makes the interest on money you invest 7.37%—remarkable interest rate when you consider the absolute security of your investment.

You May Pay in Installments

Only $10 down per share, the balance monthly. Surely, no matter how little you earn, you can save that much! And you will draw interest at 7% on what you pay in until the stock is entirely paid for.

Terms of Offering

Plan No. 1 (Cash payment.) Under this plan we offer the 7% Cumulative Preferred Stock of Consumers Power Company at $95 per share and accrued dividends to date of payment for stock.

— OR —

Plan No. 2 (Time Payment.) Under this plan we offer the 7% Cumulative Preferred Stock of Consumers Power Company at $95 per share on a time payment plan; $10 per share payable at the time of purchase; $10 per share each month for seven months and $15 for the final payment. We agree to pay interest at the rate of 7% per annum on the monthly installments paid to us, this interest to be credited to the purchaser on the books of the Company. Dividends from the last dividend date prior to the final payment will be charged to the purchaser and an adjustment made. No more than 25 shares may be purchased by any person under this time offering.

Purchasers under this plan have the option of withdrawing all partial payments at any time prior to the date of final payment for the stock, on 10 days' notice, and in the event of such withdrawal the Company agrees to pay 3% interest on the amounts paid in up to date of notice of withdrawal.

For further information ask any of our employees—or fill in the coupon.

ANOTHER SHOT DURING BATTLE IN WISCONSIN WOODS WITH BOOTLEGGERS BAND.

GET $85,000 WORTH OF LIQUOR

Three Automobiles Also Confiscated
By Dalrymple When Drivers
Escaped Into Woods.

Ironwood, Mich.—One man was killed and another seriously wounded near here in a battle between federal prohibition officers operating under Major Dalrymple, of Chicago, and Leo J. Grove, of Marquette, and a band of armed rum runners. Contraband whisky worth $85,000 and automobiles valued at $15,000 were confiscated by the federal officers.

The whisky was en route from Milwaukee to Hurley, Wis., three big automobiles making up the caravan. For three days federal officers lay in wait for the rum runners about 15 miles south of Ironwood on one of the Wisconsin main highways. They were just about to give up the quest when the first car drove in sight.

Efforts to stop the car by signal were futile and the federal agents immediately gave chase. Two shots were fired into the air without result, but three miles along the road, the rum laden car, with all lights out, went into the ditch and was overturned. The occupants escaped into the woods.

No sooner had this cargo been captured, then another car came into sight. Signals failed to stop the car and the federal men fired a volley of 20 shots, which were returned by some one in the car who, officers say, was Tony Capuso, of Hurley, Wis. The dark night made it impossible to see the road and this car also went into the ditch.

John Mitchell, the driver, received gun shot wounds which later resulted in his death, while Capuso escaped into the woods. Fifteen rifle holes were found in the side of the car, and more than $20,000 worth of liquor was taken.

While trying to get car number two from the ditch, a third car driven by Frank Milley, of Hurley, appeared and another running fight followed in which a hundred shots were exchanged. The officers finally brought Milley and his car to a stop. Milley made his escape through the woods, while his car and 30 cases of whisky were taken by the officials.

CUBA IS ON VERGE OF CRISIS

Bank Loans, Without Sufficient Collateral, Given As Cause.

Washington.—The state department is watching closely political developments in Cuba, where it is recognized the situation is very tense. No American troops have been dispatched there and there is no intention of sending military forces unless the situation should become much worse than it is.

The banks of Cuba advanced loans, without sufficient collateral, to keep up high prices for sugar. It is said by officials here, and also, as a consequence of the unusual prosperity of Cuba during the past six years, much room banks, in the hands of men without banking experience, have sprung up all over the country with a result that there has been considerable recklessness.

TO FIGHT COTTON PRICE FOLDS

Georgia Governor to Put Up Reward
If Gineries Are Burned.

Atlanta, Ga.—Cotton gins in Douglas and surrounding counties are being posted with warnings to close on account of the price of cotton, Sheriff A. S. Baggett, of Douglas county, reported to Governor Dorsey, and added that he had offered a reward of $300 for arrest of the guilty persons.

The Sheriff wrote that a "lawless crowd" was trying to get control of the situation and suggested that an offer of a reward by the governor would have a beneficial effect. Governor Dorsey replied that threats against property in Georgia constitute a misdemeanor for which the governor has no authority to offer a reward, but that in case of destruction of any property, which is a felony, he would "be glad to offer the highest reward possible under the law."

WHAT THE TEACHER THOUGHT

Comment That Took a Whole Lot of Conceit Out of One Small Boy's Daddy.

"The world is full of fault finders," remarked Professor Pritchard at a dinner recently, "and one of the most common targets is the modern educational system. No more common expression than, 'Well, they used to really teach us something when I went to school.'"

"I have a friend like that, but the other day he told me he was through. It came about in this way. He used to help his little son with his home studies. One evening, as they were about to begin, he asked the little chap what his teacher said regarding his home work."

"She says I'm getting stupider every day," replied the lad, and from then on he had to do his home lessons alone."

POINTED OUT BRIGHT SIDE

Optimist's Brave Effort to Convince Afflicted Man That the Cloud Had Silver Lining.

Mr. Joergins had been suddenly afflicted with a stiff neck. Not only was it a painful stiffness, but it caused him to twist his head around until he seemed to be trying to look behind him over his left shoulder, and his head was rigid in that pose.

"Of all the confounded trials a man was ever subjected to," he said, "this is the limit. They say to look on the bright side of our afflictions, but I'd like to know how I could make use of this stiff neck."

"My dear friend," said the optimist, "think what a golden opportunity this is to sit for your picture without having to allow the photographer to twist your head around that way and jab those ice-cold tongs into the back of your neck!"

A Wet Hump.

Recently at one of the towns on the Canadian border a goat severely battered a lunchbox, and a sharp-eyed customs official perceived that, succeeding the assault, the man's hump was out of place. Upon further examination it was found that the man was perfectly formed, though diminutive, and that his "hump," when detached, was a two-quart receptacle filled with whisky.—Brooklyn Eagle.

Fordson

TRADE MARK

It is a habit of Henry Ford to thoroughly try out and test any product he manufactures before he puts it on the market. He personally must know it will do all he wants it to do before he will allow anybody else to buy it. For thirty-five years he worked on the Fordson Tractor. He kept buying land until he had something like eight thousand acres in order that he might get a great variety of soil conditions containing the plowing problems that meet the farmers of the world, and then the Fordson Tractor was put to work and made to take all sorts of practical tests for years before Mr. Ford put it on the market.

And, therefore, when it came on the market, it was right, it was reliable, it would do the work he said it would do. People have bought, have tried it out, have tested it, and it has proven to be all that Mr. Ford claims it to be, and this is why that while farm Tractors have been on the American market more than twenty years and while three hundred thousand have been sold one hundred thousand and of that three hundred thousand are Fordson Tractors, and yet the Fordson has only been on the market two years.

It has sold rapidly because when one farmer bought one, he practically converted the neighborhood to the desirability and profit of the Fordson Tractor on the farm.

The Fordson is made small, compact, flexible, dependable. It is made to be much more convenient to handle than a horse. It was made so that anybody of ordinary common sense could operate and take care of it. We wanted to make it so that a mechanic would not have to be sold with every Tractor. It was made by a farmer for a farmer, and it has the endorsement of the farmers—the little farmer and the big farmer. Some farmers have one, some farmers have ten and fifteen, and one farmer we know has fifty-six. It works just as well in the West as it does in the East. It is just as flexible in the North as it is in the South. It is just as profitable in the wheat fields as it is in the sugar and rice field. It is just as flexible and useful on the fruit ranch as it is among the fields of oats and barley. It is just as useful and profitable in the lumber camp, railroad yard, coal mine, as it is in the oil fields or any other commercial line. But especially designed for the farmer, it is especially his necessity.

Because it increases the production of every acre by enabling the farmer to cultivate his ground to better advantage than he can with mule or horse power. It takes the sting and drudgery out of farm work. It is a great conservator of labor expense. Oh, it has so many money-saving advantages that the farmer can't do without it and be progressive and make money.

So we ask every farmer to come in and let us tell him more about this Fordson Tractor. Let us make a demonstration for him on his own farm. Let us test it out to his soil conditions.

Don't delay because there are only so many Fordson Tractors to come to this territory. Get your order in now, and remember that the Fordson after service is prompt and sure. We are supplied with everything necessary to keep your Fordson going every day in the year. Come in and let's talk it over.

I have plowed, dragged and disced fifty acres since I bought my Tractor last May. In doing this I have used one hundred and fifty gallons of kerosene and five gallons of lubricating oil and have had no repairs, expense or trouble at all. I expect to use the Tractor this fall for grinding feed, sawing wood and running corn husker. I am very well satisfied and think it is the proper size tractor for the Michigan farmer. I would not hesitate to recommend this tractor to any one. Signed, W. C. PRITCHARD.

A PROFESSOR OF CHEMISTRY SAYS HYPO-COD IS O. K.

Best Reconstructive Tonic Ever Produced, Says This Authority.

"I have been in the medical profession for quite a number of years as Pharmacist and Professor of Chemistry (Cincinnati Medical College) and the truly wonderful results obtained by so many people through the use of Earle's Hypo-Cod caused me to decide to make an exhaustive research and I find it is one of the most extremely well balanced combinations of tonic, alternative and nutritive principles ever produced.

"It can be used with impunity without the least digestive disturbance owing to the complete elimination of the fishy taste of Cod Liver oil, while still retaining all the extractive elements so useful as a tonic and tissue builder.

"The extract of Malt, containing carbohydrates and Nitrogenous matter, cannot be surpassed as a nutrient and fat producing agent; Wild Cherry Bark, as everyone knows, has an extremely beneficial effect upon the mucous membranes, and with the small amount of strychnine present, acts as a stomach stimulating element.

"The Hypophosphites of Lime, Soda, Potassium, Manganese, Quinine and Strychnine are too well known for the powerful influence they exert upon the wasted nerve tissues and upon the lungs for me to dwell upon their efficiency. The iron so necessary to enrich the blood is also present in soluble form readily assimilated and the Sherry wine not only acts as a base to hold it in solution, but acts as a mild stimulant and appetizer.

"I consider Earle's Hypo-Cod a most valuable preparation, and can readily understand why so many people are obtaining beneficial results from its use. It is a most meritorious preparation." Signed—B. E. Early, Ph. G.

WEBSTER—MAN'S MAN

Author of "Cappy Ricks," "The Valley of the Giants," Etc.

By PETER B. KYNE

Copyright by Peter B. Kyne

"TOO OLD!"

John Stuart Webster, mining engineer, boards a train in Death Valley, California, on his way back to civilization after cleaning up $100,000. He looks like a hob. Then he rescues a distressed lady, who makes his heart stop over. He eliminates the offending man. She is Dolores Rucy. In Denver he is offered a $25,000-a-year job by a capitalist friend, Edward J. Jerome. He receives a delayed letter from his own particular pal, Billy Geary, asking him to finance a gold-mining proposition in Central America and go fifty-fifty with him on the profits. So he starts for Sobranite. Jerome goes with John to the depot. They meet the distressed lady on her way to the same train. John tells Jerome the whole story. Jerome secretly sees the girl, offering her $1000 if she induces John to take his job inside of ninety days. The girl accepts. The scene now shifts to Buenaventura, Sobranite, where Geary has waited for two months on credit extended by Mother Jenks, keeper of a hotel and dramshop. Dolores catches Henrietta Wilkins (Mother Jenks) that she is on her way to visit her. Mother Jenks has been educating Dolores, who is the daughter of former President Rucy of Sobranite, deposed and executed by President Sarras. Mother Jenks doesn't want Dolores to find out she is no longer respectable. So Billy meets the steamer and tries to turn the girl back. But Dolores turns and snatches Mother Jenks as "Mother Jenks" is about to flee. In New Orleans Webster saves a young man from asphyxiation. On the steamer he finds the mythical valet in his stateroom. He accepts "Bowers" on trust, without learning his identity.

CHAPTER IX—Continued.

While he was considering the matter, a voice behind him said very softly and indistinctly, like a man with a hardy:

"Mr. Geary, will you be good enough to back your launch a couple of hundred feet? When I'm certain I can't be seen from the steamer, I'll come aboard."

Billy turned, and in the dim light of his lunatic lamp observed a beautiful pair of white hands grasping the gunwale on the starboard quarter. He peered over and made out the head and shoulders of a man.

"All right," he replied in a low voice. "Hang where you are, and you'll be clear of the propeller."

He signaled Don Juan, who backed swiftly away, while Billy, dozing the lunatic lamp.

"That'll do," the thick voice said presently. "Bear a hand, friend, and I'll climb over."

He came, as naked as Mercury, sprawled on his belly in the cockpit, opened his mouth, spat out a compact little roll of tin foil, opened it and drew out a ball of paper which he flattened out on the floor of the cockpit and handed to Billy.

"Thank you," he said, very courteous, and distinctly now. "My credentials, Mr. Geary. If you please."

Billy re-lighted the lamp and read:

"Dear Billy: I do not know the bearer from Adam's egg; all I know about him is that he has all the outward marks of a gentleman, the courage of a lion, a sense of humor and a head for which the president of Sobranite will gladly pay a considerable number of pesos oro. Don't give up the head, because I like it and we do not need the money—yet. Take him ashore without anybody knowing it; hide him, clothe him, feed him—then forget all about him."

"Ever thine,

"J. S. WEBSTER."

"Kick the boat ahead again, Cafferly," Billy ordered quietly. He turned to the late arrival. "Mr. Man, your credentials are all in apple-pie order. Do you happen to know that Jack is swarming with man-eating sharks?" The man raised a fine, strong, youthful face and grinned at him. "Tolson's choice, Mr. Geary," he replied. "Affair or ashore, the sharks are after me. Sit! I am your debtor." He crawled into the cabin and stretched out on the settee as John Stuart Webster's voice came floating across the dark waters.

"Everything well with you, Billy?"

"All is lovely, Jack, and the goose honsks high. By the way, that friend of yours called with his letter of introduction. I took care of him."

"Thanks. I suppose you'll call for me in that launch tomorrow morning?"

"Surest thing you know, Jack. Good-night, old top."

"Good-night, Billy."

Don Juan Cafetero swung the launch and headed back for the city. At Lebe's little dock Billy stepped ashore, while Don Juan backed out into the dark bay again in order to avoid inquisitive visitors. Billy hastened to El Buen Amigo and returned presently with a bundle of clothes; at an agreed signal Don Juan kicked the launch into the dock again and Billy went aboard. "Hat, shirt, necktie, duck suit, white socks and shoes," he whispered. "Climb back there, stranger."

Once more the launch backed out in the bay, where Webster's protégé dressed at his leisure, and Billy handed Don Juan a couple of pesos.

"Remember, John," he cautioned the bibulous one as they tied up for the night, "nothing unusual happened to-night."

"Devil a thing, Mister Geary. Thank you, sir," the Gaelic wreck replied blithely and disappeared in the darkness, leaving Billy to guide the stranger to El Buen Amigo, where he was taken into the confidence of Mother Jenks and, on Billy's guarantee of the board bill, furnished with a room and left to his own devices.

John Stuart Webster came down the gangplank into Leber's launch hard at the heels of the port doctor.

"You young horse thief," he cried, affectionately. "I believe it's the custom down this way for men to kiss each other. We'll dispense with that, but by—" He folded Billy in a paternal embrace, then held him at arm's length and looked him over.

"Lord, son," he said, "you're as thin as a snake. I'll have to feed you up."

As they sped toward the landing, he looked Billy over once more. "I have it," he declared. "You need a change of climate to get rid of that malaria. Just show me this little old mining claim of yours, Bill, and then hike for God's country. Three months up there will put you right again, and by the time you get back, we'll be about ready to weigh the first cleanup."

Billy shook his head. "I'd like to mighty well, Jack," he replied. "But I just can't."

"Huh! I suppose you don't think I'm equal to the task of straightening out this concession of yours and making a hammer out of it, eh?"

The young fellow looked across at him sheepishly. "Mine?" he feared. "Who's talking about a mine. I'm thinking of a girl!"

"Oh!"

"Some girl, Johnny?"

"I hope she's not some parakeet," Webster bantered. "Have you looked up her pedigree?"

"A-h-h-h!" Billy spat over the side in sheer disgust. "This is an American girl—born here, but white—raised in the U. S. A. I've only known her three weeks, but—ah!" And Billy kissed his hand into space.

"Well, I'm glad I find you so happy, boy. When do you pull off the wedding?"

"Oh," said Billy, "that's premature, Jack. I haven't asked her. How could I until I'm able to support her?"

"Look here, son," Webster replied. "don't you go to work and be the kind of fool I was. You get married and take a chance. A man ought to marry young, Bill. Hang the odds. I know what's good for you."

At the hotel Billy sent a note to Dolores, apprising her that John Stuart Webster had arrived—and would she be good enough to receive them?

Miss Rucy would be that gracious. She was waiting for them in the veranda just off the patio, outwardly calm, but inwardly a fount of conflicting emotions. As they approached she affected not to see them and turning, glanced in the opposite direction; nor did she move her head until Billy's voice, speaking at her elbow, said:

"Well, Dolores, here's my old Jack-partner waiting to be introduced. Jack, permit me to present Miss Dolores Rucy."

She turned her face and rose gracefully, marking with secret triumph the light of recognition that leaped to his eyes, hovered there the hundredth part of a second and departed, leaving those keen, quizzical blue orbs appraising her in the most natural manner imaginable. Webster bowed.

"It is a great happiness to meet you, Miss Rucy," he said gravely. Dolores gave him her hand. "You have doubtless forgotten, Mr. Webster, but I think we have met before."

"Indeed?" John Stuart Webster murmured interestedly. "So stupid of me not to remember. Where did we meet?"

"He has a profound sense of humor," she soliloquized. "He's going to force me into the open. Oh, dear, I'm helpless." Aloud she said: "On the train in Death valley last month, Mr. Webster."

Webster shook his head slowly, as if mystified. "I fear you're mistaken, Miss Rucy. I wasn't on the train in Death valley last month. I was in Denver—so you must have met some other Mr. Webster."

She flushed furiously. "I didn't think I could be mistaken," she answered a trifle coldly.

"It is my misfortune that you were," he replied gracefully. "Certainly, had we met at that time, I should not have failed to recognize you now. Somehow, Miss Rucy, I never have any luck."

She was completely outgeneraled, and having the good sense to realize it, submitted gracefully. "He's perfectly horrible," she told herself, "but at least he can lie like a gentleman—and I always did like that kind of man."

So they chatted on the veranda until luncheon was announced and Dolores left them to go to her room.

"Well?" Billy queried the moment

she was out of earshot. "What do you think, Johnny?"

"I think," said John Stuart Webster, slowly, "that you're a good picker, Bill. She's my ideal of a fine young woman, and my advice to you is to marry her. I'll grub-stake you. Bill, this stiff collar is choking me; I wish you'd wait here while I go to my room and rustle up a soft one."

In the privacy of his room John Stuart Webster sat down on his bed and held his head in his hands, for he had just received a blow in the solar plexus and was still groggy. Presently, however, he pulled himself together and approaching the mirror looked long at his weather-beaten countenance.

"Too old," he murmured, "too old to be dreaming dreams."

He changed to a soft collar, and when he descended to the patio to join Billy once more he was, to all outward appearances, his usual unperturbed self, for his was one of those rare natures that can derive a certain comfort from the misery of self-sacrifice—and in that five minutes alone in his room John Stuart Webster had wrestled with the tragedy of his life and won.

He had resolved to give Billy the right of way on the highway to happiness.

In Mr. Webster's own whimsical phraseology, his clock had been fixed, on the instant he recognized in the object of his youthful partner's adoration the same winsome woman he had enthroned in his own secret castle of love. From that precise second Billy's preserve was as safe from encroachment by his friend as would be a bale of Confederate currency in an armor-steel vault on the three-thousand-foot level of a water-filled mine.

John Stuart Webster had unanimously resolved upon the course he should have pursued in the first place. He would investigate Billy's mining concession immediately; provided it should prove worth while, he would finance it and put the property on a paying basis; after which he would see to it that the very best doctors in the city of Buenaventura should inform Billy, unofficially and in the strictest confidence, that if he desired to preserve the ill of Senator Juan Webster he should forthwith pack that rapidly disintegrating person off to a more salubrious climate.

Having made his decision, John Stuart Webster immediately took heart of hope and decided to lead trumps.

Dolores rejoined them for a stiesta after luncheon.

Webster leaned over and slapped Billy Geary's knees affectionately.

"Well, Bill, you saffron-colored old wreck, how long do you suppose it will take for you to pick up enough strength and courage to do some active mining? I'm anxious to get that property on a paying basis, so I can get out of the country."

"Why, Johnny," the amazed Billy declared, "I thought you would stay and help run the mine."

"Indeed! Well, why do you suppose I spent so much time teaching you how to run a mine, you young idiot, if not against just such a time as this? You found this concession and tied it up; I'll finance it and help you get everything started; but after that, I'm through, and you can manage it on salary and name the salary yourself. You have a greater interest in this country than I, William; and so with your kind permission I'll hike up to that concession tomorrow and give it the double-O; then, if I can O. K. the property, we'll cable for the machinery I ordered just before I left Denver, and get busy. We ought to have our first clean-up within ninety days."

"Gosh, but you're in a hurry," Billy murmured. He disliked exceedingly the thought of having his courtship interrupted on a minute's notice.

"You know me, son. I'm a hustler on the job," Webster reminded him brutally; "so the sooner you start, the sooner you can get back and accumulate more malaria. What accommodations have you up there?"

"None, Jack."

"Then you had better get some, Billy. I think you told me we have to take horses at San Miguel de Padua to ride in to the mine." Billy nodded. "Then you had better buy a tent and bedding for both of us, ship the stuff up to San Miguel de Padua, go up with it and engage horses, a good cook, and a couple of reliable moccasins. When you have everything ready telegraph me and I'll come up."

"Why can't you come up with me?" Billy demanded.

"I have to see a man, and write some letters and send a cablegram and wait for an answer. I may have to loaf around here for two or three days. By the way, what did you do for that friend I sent to you with the letter of introduction?"

"Exactly what you told me to do, Johnny."

"Where is he now?"

"At El Buen Amigo—the same place where I'm living."

"All right. When you get back to your hostelry, you might tell my friend I shall expect him over to dine with me this evening, if he can manage it."

For an hour they discussed various subjects; then Billy, declaring the stiesta was almost over and the shops reopening as a consequence, announced his intention of doing his shopping, said good-bye to Dolores and Webster, and lustrously departed on the business in hand.

"Why are you in such a hurry, Mr. Webster?" Dolores demanded. "You haven't been in Buenaventura six hours until you've managed to make me perfectly miserable."

"I'm terribly sorry. I didn't mean to."

"Didn't you know Billy Geary is my personal property?"

"No, but I suspected he might be. Billy's generous that way. He never hesitates to give himself to a charming woman."

"This was a case of mutual self-defense. Billy hasn't any standing socially, you know. When Mrs. General Maldonado lectured me (the dear, aristocratic soul conceived it to be her duty) on the impropriety of appearing on the Malecon with Billy and my guardian, who happens to be Billy's landlady, I tried to explain our American brand of democracy, but failed. So I haven't been invited anywhere since, and life would have been very dull without Billy. He has been a dear—and you have taken him away."

Webster laughed. "Well, be patient, Miss Rucy, and I'll give him back to you with considerable more money than he will require for your joint comfort. Billy in financial distress is a joy forever, but Billy in a top hat and a frock coat on the sunny side of Easy street will be absolutely irresistible."

"He's a darling. Ever since my arrival he has dedicated his life to keeping me amused," she rose. "Despite your wickedness, Mr. Webster, I am going to be good to you. Billy and I always have five o'clock tea here in the veranda. Would you care to come to my tea-party?"

"Nothing could give me greater pleasure," he assured her.

She nodded brightly to him. "I'm going to run up to my room and put some powder on my nose," she explained.

"But you'll return before five o'clock?" Webster was amazed to hear himself plead.

"You do not deserve such consideration, but I'll come back in about twenty minutes," she answered and left him.

As Webster viewed the situation, his decision to see as little as possible of Dolores during his brief stay in Sobranite was a wise one. The less he saw of her (he told himself), the better for his peace of mind, for he was forty years old, and he had never loved before. For him this fever that burned in his blood, this delicious agony that throbbled in his heart—and all on the very ghost of provocation—were so grand danger-signals, heralds of that grand passion which, coming to a man of forty, generally lasts him the remainder of his natural existence.

Webster was forced to admit he was afraid of himself. He was the rapidly disappearing code of the old unfettered West, that a man shall never betray his friend in thought, word, or deed. To John Stuart Webster was the most heinous in all the calendar of human folly; even to dream of slipping into Billy's shoes now would be monstrous; yet Webster knew he could not afford a test of strength between his ancient friendship for Billy and the masculine desire for a perfect mate. Remained then but one course:

"I must run like a road-runner," was the way Webster expressed it.

CHAPTER X.

Dolores had been gone an hour before Webster roused from his bitter introspection sufficiently to glance at his watch. "Hum—um!" he grunted disapprovingly.

"Oh, I've been here fully half an hour," Dolores' voice assured him. He turned guiltily and found her leaning against the jamb in a doorway behind him and farther down the veranda. She was gazing at him with that calm, impersonal yet vitally interested glance that had so captivated him the first time he saw her. "Are you quite finished talking to yourself and fighting imaginary enemies? If so, you might talk to me for a change; I'll even disagree with you on any subject, if opposition will make you any happier."

He rose and indicated the chair. "Please sit down, Miss Rucy. You are altogether disconcerting—too confoundedly smart. I fear I'm going to be afraid of you until I know you better."

She shrugged adorably and took the proffered chair. "That's the Latin in her—that shrug," Webster thought. "I wonder what other mixtures go to make up that perfect whole."

Aloud he said: "So you wanted to study me in repose? Why waste your time? I am never in repose."

"Feminine curiosity, Mr. Webster.

Billy has talked so much of you that I wanted to see if you measured up to the specifications. Just tell me about your hand, and I'll tell you all about yourself."

"Is there any charge?"

"Yes, a nominal one. However, I guarantee a truthful reading; if, when I am through, you are not wholly satisfied, you do not have to pay the price. Is that a satisfactory arrangement?"

"Right as a fox," he declared, and held out his great calloused hand. He thrilled as she took it in both of hers, so soft and beautiful, and flattened it out, palm upward, on her knee. "A fine, large, useful hand," she commented musingly. "The callouses indicate recent hard manual toil with a pick and shovel; despite your recent efforts with soap and brush and pumice-stone, there still remain evidence of some foreign matter ingrained in those callous spots. This line indicates that you are very brave, gentle, and courteous. You are quick and firm in your decisions, but not always right, because your actions are governed by your heart instead of your head. Once you have made a decision, you are reckless of the consequences. Your lifeline tells me you are close to fifty-three years of age."

"Seecress, you're shooting high and to the right," he interrupted, for he did not relish that jab about his age. "I'll have you know I was forty years old last month, and that I can still do a hundred yards in twelve seconds flat—in my working clothes."

"Well, don't feel peeved about it, Mr. Webster. I am not infallible; the best you can hope for from me is a high percentage of hits, even if I did shoot high and to the right that time. In point of worldly experience you're a hundred and six years old but I topped off fifty per cent, to be on the safe side. To continue. You are of an extremely chivalrous nature—particularly toward young ladies traveling without chaperons; you are kind, affectionate, generous to a fault, something of a spendthrift. One may safely depend upon you to do the unexpected. Your matrimonial line is unbroken, proving you have never married, although right here the line is somewhat dim and frayed. She looked up at him suddenly. "You haven't been in love, have you?" she queried with childlike insouciance. "In love—and disappointed?"

He nodded, for he could not trust himself to speak.

"How sad!" she cooed sympathetically. "Did she marry another, or did she die?"

"She—she—yes, she died."

"Caution! tongue, in all probability, carried her off, poor thing! However, to your fortune: You are naturally truthful and would not make a deliberate misstatement of fact unless you had a very potent reason for it. You have a strong sense of sportsmanship, and when fairly defeated, whether in a battle of fists or a battle of wits, you never hold a grudge, which is one of the very nicest characteristics a man can have—"

"Or a woman," he suggested feebly.

"Enter Don Juan Cafetero, bon vivant and man about town."

JOIN A "THANK YOU" CLUB

No Initiation Fee and No Dues, and Membership is Open to Every Person.

It's great, the "Thank You" club. No initiation, no dues, no long-drawn-out meetings, and no reports. Anyone can make a quorum to do business. No stated meetings nor any stipulated place of meeting. Anybody can start a "Thank You" club. Beats Overall clubs all to pieces! Lasts longer, does more good, and spreads sunshine.

One carries the by-laws around in his head. The password is "Thank You." And that's all there is in the whole book of rules. That's all it means, the "Thank You" club—just a thank you for the little services performed daily as well as the big ones. A thank you is more appreciated by many people than a tip, which, by some, might be considered an insult.

Start a club some morning. Watch your club grow. Good ideas spread. Try the club for one day. It may make you a life member. And the "thank you" exchanges will increase and radiate like ripples from a stone thrown into the millpond.

There's a big field in this world for "Thank You" clubs. Their members take the edge off rough places. If "Thank You" is the password, the genuine smile of service is the open reward for its application.—Haverhill Gazette.

LIFE WAS A MISERY TO HER

Says this Woman Until Relieved by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Carrollton, Ky.—"I suffered almost two years with female weakness. I could not walk any distance, ride or take any exercise at all without resting. If I swept the floor or did any kind of work it would bring my sickness on. I was weak and languid, had no energy, and life was a misery to me. I was under the care of a good physician for several months and tried other remedies. I had read of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and decided to try it. After taking twelve bottles I found myself much improved and I took six more. I have never had any more trouble in that respect since. I have done all kinds of work and at present am an attendant at a State Hospital and am feeling fine. I have recommended your Vegetable Compound to dozens of my friends and shall always recommend it."—LILLIAN THARP, 824 S. 6th St., Carrollton, Ky.

BREVITIES.

Manchester—While canning fruit at her home west of this village Wednesday forenoon, Mrs. Wm. Greger cut her left hand severely through the breaking of a can when the top was screwed tight. Being alone except for small children, she was forced to hitch a horse and drive to town. The wound bled profusely from a severed artery and it was necessary for a physician to take several stitches. Manchester Enterprise.

Fowlerville—As Phil Bell was feeding his cows Monday morning during the thunder storm, lightning entered his barn, knocking him about 15 feet from where he was standing and also knocking down ten cows, killing three of them and the others recovered sufficiently after a little time to get on their feet, although they were a little shaky. Just what effect it will have on the milkers remains to be seen. Fortunately Mr. Bell was not seriously injured, although pretty badly shaken up. The barn was filled with blue smoke but did not take fire, and strange as it may seem, the barn was uninjured. Fowlerville Review.

Brooklyn—By a vote of 173 no and 135 yes the $40,000 high school building improvement was defeated on Tuesday evening, with the largest attendance ever had at a school election here. Voting down school building improvements is not new in Brooklyn. Five elections have been held. Endeavoring to develop some plan of building that would relieve and correct overcrowding in a building that has seen no improvement, other than a heating plant which is now worn out, since it was built 45 years ago, the board has submitted two proposals recently. The first several weeks ago asked for a new high school building separate from the old. The next was the improvement of the old building by remodeling and erecting an addition. This went to a tie vote two weeks ago and the same proposal was defeated Tuesday evening. Brooklyn Exponent.

GREETINGS, PETE!

CAMEL CITY—U. S. A.
(or, Winston-Salem, N. C. according to the map)

Here I am tonight in Winston-Salem where more tobacco is manufactured than in any other place on the face of the earth!

When I knocked off for the day, I buzzed around like a hungry bee in a buckwheat field—up and down long streets of R. J. Reynolds Tobacco Co. factories!

As the Reynolds enterprise proved out more and more gigantic and I talked with more men about it, I got the real and true answer as to why Camels are so good and so entirely different from any other cigarette! I'll spin it for you, old top—listen:

Every man I talked with made the one big point that the officials and the more than 350 Reynolds foremen have an inborn knowledge of the tobacco business; that (putting it into a North Carolina expression) they were virtually "born and raised in a tobacco patch"; that they know tobacco; how to grade it, blend it, and how to manufacture and sell it!

And, what's most important of all, Pete, these Reynolds folks sure give men what they want—the best that can be produced! Why—Peter, it took months to perfect Camels Turkish and Domestic blend—and that refreshing flavor—and wonderful mild, mellow body!

Tomorrow, I'm going to meet some of the Reynolds folks. Got to see inside of those factories!

And, you know me!

Vote "NO" on the School Amendment

Because

Governor Sleeper says:

I am opposed to the proposed constitutional amendment abolishing Parochial Schools.

Our commonwealth is broad enough to accommodate all shades of religious belief. It is big enough to give abundant room for the operations of all the religious denominations we have. The adoption of this amendment would engender bitterness and suspicion and distrust where now, mutual trust and good feeling to a large extent prevail.

I urge all good citizens to oppose this radical change.

Lieutenant Governor Dickinson says:

I am impressed that the present proposition is not one that will conduce to better moral, friendly and charitable relations between citizens of the state that is so much to be desired.

As an official in the War, I was proud of the patriotism and efficiency shown by those with whom I associated of both the Lutheran and Catholic faith.

As chairman of the Near East Relief of the State, I have also associated with these people and admire their spirit of loyalty and sympathy.

Attorney General Groesbeck, Republican Candidate for Governor says:

The proposed amendment is in conflict with the Federal Constitution and should not be placed upon the ballot. The proposed amendment tends most strongly to foment ill feeling and acrimonious discussion among the people.

I hold that the right of the parent to exercise a reasonable control over the education of his off-spring during the formative period of his character, is one of the most sacred rights preserved for the individual under the Federal Constitution.

Ex-Governor Ferris, Democratic Candidate for Governor says:

The amendment should be overwhelmingly defeated. The recent war taught us that Catholics, Lutherans, Methodists, Congregationalists, Presbyterians, Christian Scientists and other denominations can all work together. Our Democracy should guarantee this privilege.

I feel that this is a cowardly attack upon thousands of our best citizens.

Regent Frank B. Leland, of the University of Michigan says:

I do not favor this amendment for many reasons. I think it is un-American and in my opinion, its incorporation into the basic law of the commonwealth would be most unwise at any time.

As a lawyer it is my view that the proposed amendment would not be constitutional even if it were passed, therefore it has no place on the ballot.

Regent James O. Murfin, of the University of Michigan says:

I am against this proposed amendment for a number of reasons. First and foremost it appears to me it is dishonest; it is contrary to sound principles and sound ideas, and is the most decided step backward. I have yet to learn a good sound argument for it.

President Frank S. Kedzie, of the Michigan Agricultural College says:

I am not favorable to the anti-parochial amendment for three main reasons:

First: Interferes with religious liberty.

Second: Introduces one more element tending to unrest.

Third: Would lessen education facilities for the younger generation.

President McKenny, of the Michigan State Normal School says:

This amendment if carried would shut out thousands of children because of no public school buildings to accommodate them. Another reason is that there is no more loyal group of men in America than those who come from parochial or private schools. One-fourth of the men in the late world war who fought for America came from parochial and private schools.

The amendment is un-American and we cannot afford to have it carried.

PHONOGRAPHS AND RECORDS

What music lovers discovered in the Brunswick Method of Reproduction

WHEN all is said and done, when every comparison is made, final judgment of any phonograph rests in the tone. All else is secondary.

And it is in this important particular that the Brunswick Phonograph won its fame.

Its cabinet work was taken for granted as of the finest, for the House of Brunswick has been noted for its craftsmanship in wood-working for 76 years.

A surprise for all

What a revelation, however, came when music lovers became acquainted with The Brunswick! Old harshness is gone.

Much of the improvement is due to the Brunswick Tone Amplifier, built entirely of selected, seasoned wood.

Another great advancement, and exclusively Brunswick today, is the Ultona, an all-record reproducer.

These and other advancements have been combined and related in an instrument made entirely by the House of Brunswick.

Proof of the superiority of Brunswick Phonographs is coming in, hearing them and making comparisons.

Presidential Straw Vote.

The Rexall straw vote has now entered upon its third week and already the figures are reaching out toward the million mark. The bulletins, which are issued daily, are being read by millions of persons when posted on the windows of the eight thousand Rexall Drug Stores throughout the country, for none, seemingly, is too busy at this time not to pause and gain the last and most authoritative word on the temper of the public with regard to the forthcoming presidential election.

The machinery for handling this nationwide straw vote is the most thoroughly equipped and best organized that has ever been employed in any previous attempt to forecast a national election. In the neighborhood of twenty-five thousand messages, mail, telegraphic and telephonic, are daily employed to get the returns into the Boston office of the United Drug Company which, in turn, compiles the figures and prints the bulletins which go to the eight thousand Rexall Drug Stores each night. Aside from this source of circulation, these bulletins go to about fifteen hundred individuals, for the most part men and women prominently identified with the campaign of the two dominant political parties. Hundreds of newspapers also receive these returns and publish them daily.

As the United Drug Company is receiving its return from all the Rexall Drug Stores, as well as from all the Liggett stores in the country, this means that the ballots are being cast in every big city and in nearly every town in every state in the United States.

In each store two ballot boxes have been installed—one for men, the other for women. A clerk in each store watches over the ballot boxes and exerts every effort to see that the ballots are fairly cast; that there are no repeaters; and that the boxes are free from the taint of "being stuffed." The straw vote is designed as an honest effort to get and disseminate the honest opinion of the voters of the country as to their preference for the presidency. No bias, or prejudice is permitted to creep into this test vote, for absolute fairness and impartiality is its keynote.

Each night the ballots are counted and the total for each store is sent to a central point in that state to the state captain, who compiles the total vote for his state. After telegraphing this total to the director of the straw vote in the offices of the United Drug Company in Boston the state captain sends back the total figures for his state to all druggists in that state. This is the routine followed in each of the forty-eight states.

A large force of experts is employed in the Boston office to handle the vote and publish the bulletins. Every care is taken to check the figures and expert accountants perform this task. As soon as the vote for the nation is compiled this copy is rushed to the United Drug Company's own printing plant where one press is held at the disposal of the straw vote director and from which the bulletins are turned out by the thousands.

The finished bulletins go to the mail room where an equally large force pitches in and encloses one bulletin in each of the ninety-five hundred addressed envelopes. When sealed and stamped this huge bundle of letters is rushed directly to the Boston post office and the daily bulletin starts on its journey to the waiting stockholder. This daily procedure will be followed throughout the month of October.

October 12th the grand total was 736,546, of which Harding received 444,664 and Cox 291,882.
