MANCHESTER WOMAN SHOT WHILE RIDING IN AUTO

Mrs. R. G. Haussler, of Manchester, is in the Homeopathic hospital in Ann Arbor, as the result of a bad scalp wound inflicted by a bullet which entered the enclosed car in which she was riding Saturday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. R. G. Haussler of Manchester and Mr. and Mrs. George W. Rathbun of Tecumseh were returning home Saturday evening after witnessing the football game in Ann Arbor. The car in which they were riding was an enclosed one and the two women were occupying the back seat.

About two miles out West Liberty street the Haussler car was met by a car coming from the west. As the two cars came abreast a shot was fired which went through the rear window of the Haussler car, nearly scalping Mrs. Haussler. Mrs. Rathbun suffered a number of cuts on her face from the flying glass.

Mrs. Rathbun is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Geddes, of Chelsea, and is well known here.

It has not been determined who fired the shot.

HERMAN E. FLETCHER DIES AFTER A LONG ILLNESS

Herman E. Fletcher was born in Lima township, February 12, 1873, and died at his home in the same township on Tuesday afternoon, October 26, 1920.

He was united in marriage with Miss Anna C. Steinbach, September 13, 1893, and to them three children were born, who with their mother survive him.

Mr. Fletcher was a member of the Chelsea Congregational church, Chelsea Lodge, Knights of Pythias, the Pythian Sisters, Lafayette Grange and Western Washtenaw Farmers' Club.

The funeral will be held from the Congregational church at 1:30 o'clock Friday afternoon, Rev. P. W. Dierberger conducting the services. Interment at Oak Grove cemetery.

MICHIGAN TO HOLD ROAD CONFERENCE IN FEBRUARY

The University of Michigan has announced that its seventh annual highway conference will be conducted at the Ann Arbor institution from February 21 to 25, in the Engineering Building. Lectures will be given by highway engineers who are specialists in their lines. The list will include, in addition to special lecturers from other states, engineers from the Michigan state highway department, Michigan county and municipal engineers, and members of the faculty of the University of Michigan. The course will be open to all highway commissioners, engineers, contractors and others interested in highway improvement. No fees will be charged by the University. The program of the conference will be issued in January.

LIEUTENANT COL. GILDART WAS BURIED FRIDAY

The body of Lieutenant-Colonel Robert C. Gildart, Michigan Army officer, who died in Germany, February 21, 1919, was buried in Arlington National cemetery Friday. Gildart, 30 years old, was born at Stockbridge, the son of William B. and Henrietta Gildart, formerly of Chelsea. At 15 he moved to Albion, attended Albion high school, was graduated in 1906, spent a year in the newspaper office of his father, and was appointed to a cadetship at West Point by Washington, D. C.

He was married in 1912 to Miss Beatrice Armstrong, of Annapolis, while he was in service at Fort Monroe. After marriage he was transferred to Corregidor island in the Philippines. In 1915 he was ordered to the coast defenses of San Francisco, spent the next year in the Coast Artillery school at Fort Monroe, went to Fort Wadsworth and later became constructing quartermaster of Fort Tilden. When the United States entered the world war, he went to Fort Sill as a member of the zero class of the school of fire. He embarked for Europe in June, 1918, as a major, and was at the front in the St. Mihiel drive and the Argonne and Sedan campaigns.

As lieutenant-colonel, upon the ending of the war, he was given authority over sixteen German towns around Vandel as the representative of the army of occupation. He died of pneumonia, being buried on the Moselle.

ANNOUNCEMENTS.

A SURE REMEDY.

By Rev. H. R. Beatty.

No doubt we are living in the most disturbed period of the world's history. We are hoping for something we scarcely know what. We are anticipating relief but whence shall relief come? There is but one source from which adequate relief from the world's worries can come, and that is by the world being persuaded to accept the teachings and spirit of the Christian faith. What is the most effective method of persuading men to accept of this only remedy for their ills? Men are skeptical and like the Chinese, slow to accept any new thing, but when they see a practical demonstration and clear proof of its merits are anxious to receive. The quick way to win recruits to Christian practice is for the one who would see the evils of life removed to positively demonstrate in his own life its personal benefits, and by what he does prove that it furnishes the spirit and motive, which, when obeyed, would eliminate those practices which cause the worries and sorrows that today so much disturb us. There never was a time when the effect of so doing was as far-reaching as at the present. Try it!

FARMERS TO HOLD A BUSINESS SCHOOL.

A series of farm accounting schools taking up the principles of business management in agricultural work will be held in various counties over the state during the coming winter, according to announcements made the past week from the office of farm management at the Michigan Agricultural College.

Proper methods of keeping farm records and account books, including inventories of the farm business plant will be taught at these schools, fifty of which have been planned in about twenty-five different Michigan counties between the first of December and April.

Putting the farm on a business basis is the fundamental aim of the accounting work. Hft-or-miss, uncertain farming has been all too prevalent in the past, and it is the belief of experts that properly kept account books such as those distributed by M. A. C. will bring system in the agricultural business. Ability to pick out the paying ends of farming and to locate the weak spots which bring losses, follows a good set of farm accounts. They make it possible to determine the relative proportion of each farm enterprise on a profitably managed farm.

"About 2,500 Farm Account Books have been sent out by the college this year," says H. M. Elliot, farm management demonstrator at M. A. C. "Over a thousand of these have been distributed through the State Grange, while many others have gone out through the Farm Bureau."

Special meeting of Olive Chapter, R. A. M., Friday evening, October 29. Work in Past Master degree.

JOHN J. SCHAUFLE KILLED BY FALL FROM A BARN

John J. Schaufle was born in Seio township, November 23, 1860, and died in Flint City Wednesday evening, October 20, 1920.

His death was caused by injuries that he received when he fell from a barn on which he was working, about 8 o'clock on Wednesday morning.

About twelve years ago Mr. Schaufle and family moved to Flint, where Mrs. Schaufle died a year ago.

He is survived by one son, Clarence Schaufle, and one daughter, Miss Florence Schaufle, both of Flint; three sisters, Mrs. Mary Schieferstein of East San Diego, Calif., Mrs. Jacob Schultz of Detroit, and Mrs. John Spiegelberg of Chelsea.

The funeral was held Saturday afternoon from the Evangelical church in Flint. Interment at Flint.

BRILLIANT CONCERTS FOR CHORAL UNION COURSE

Dr. Albert Stanley, director of the University School of Music, Ann Arbor, has announced the complete list of music attractions which will be given in Hill Auditorium during the coming season. This list includes the names of many of the greatest artists and organizations in the world and is probably the most distinguished group of artists which has ever assembled in such a series.

Music lovers will also regret to learn that Dr. Stanley has announced his decision to retire from active participation at the close of the present school year.

In the Choral Union series the following numbers have been booked:

October 29, Metropolitan Opera Sextette, consisting of Giovanni Martinelli and Giuseppe Carolo, tenors; Nina Morgana and Marie Rappold, sopranos; Helena Marsh, contralto; Thomas Chalmers bass, in a program of excerpts from Verdi and Puccini operas. This will be the first time that such an elaborate combination will have been heard in Hill Auditorium.

November 11, Sergei Rachmaninoff, the distinguished piano virtuoso and composer. His works are familiar to piano teachers and students throughout the musical world.

December 13, Jan Kubelik, the distinguished violinist who electrified America in his last tour seven years ago.

January 24, Detroit Symphony Orchestra, Ossip Gabrilowitsch, conductor; Albert Lockwood, pianist.

February 24, Minneapolis Symphony Orchestra, Emil Oberholfer conductor.

March 7, Detroit Symphony Orchestra, Ossip Gabrilowitsch, conductor; Marcia VanDressen, soprano.

In the Extra Concert Series five splendid numbers will be given at popular prices, as follows:

November 4, Albert Spalding, premier American violinist, who made such a brilliant record in the aviation corps during the war.

November 13, the United States Marine Band. This organization has had a continuous existence for a century and a quarter and has participated in every presidential inaugural ceremony since 1801. The present brief tour is the first which the band has been permitted to take in nearly a decade. Its Ann Arbor appearance has been secured at the request of and through the co-operation of the Ann Arbor Chamber of Commerce.

December 2, Percy Grainger, the distinguished pianist.

January 10, the Flonzaley String Quartette, of four master musicians.

February 28, the New York Chamber Music Society, of eleven world famous artists.

Course tickets for the Choral Union Series are $1.50, $5.00, $5.50 and $6.00 each. For the Extra Concert Series the price is $2.00, $2.50. All mail orders for both courses will be filled in the exact order of receipt. Communications should be addressed to Secretary Sink, Ann Arbor.

Too Old!

By Genevieve Ulmar

(Copyright, 1920, Western Newspaper Union.)

When Miss Avis Durand came to Houghton and purchased a neat little home there for herself and her widowed mother, she was taken up by the younger set of the pretty village. Ernest Waters, two years on the sunny side of forty, sold them the property and thus naturally was the first in the village to become acquainted with them. Because he was fair, accommodating and evenly courteous and helpful he won upon both mother and daughter, until this ripened into a close and mutual friendship. He was a lover of music, and as a singer and at the piano Miss Durand excelled. It was this, her expertness at tennis, her ability to get up dainty refectations and general social parties that attracted her juniors, while her patient, kindly interest in their affairs endeared her to them. Whenever these functions took place at the Durand home Waters was invariably invited, but being a modest and sensitive man he generally kept close to Mrs. Durand. "Quite out of the juvenile class, you know," he would remark with affected lightness of manner, but his eyes would shadow and a sad expression compress the lips while his gaze followed the slitting attractive Avis, the center of admiration and homage. "She looks the loveliest of them all," one evening Waters overheard a young man remark. "She can't be over twenty."

"Worth the coming, eh?" rallied a male companion.

"I would enter the lists at once if there was the vestige of a hope for me," was the reply delivered with unmistakable sincerity.

All this fell upon the hearing of Waters in a depressing way. For the first time he recognized the disparity in their ages and chided himself for ever allowing the thought to enter his mind that the apparent interest of Miss Durand in him was anything more than the natural kindness of a gentle nature for an older man.

After that he dropped in only occasionally at the Durand home. He evaded attending the functions where he began to consider he was only a tolerated friend of Mrs. Durand. It puzzled him to analyze the continued apparent desire for his company that Avis evinced whenever they met casually, and one day on the street her sincere greeting set him thinking. "You will receive an invitation to my birthday party next week, Mr. Waters," she said, "and I count on your presence."

"Really, Miss Durand—" he began. "No excuse, now!" she rallied, smiling as she waved a warning finger. "If you wish to offend mother and grieve me you will forget it, as you seemed to have forgotten us for some time past."

"You would really like me to come?" asked Waters earnestly.

"I shall miss you so truly if you do not that it will spoil all the joy of the party. My young friends have gone to great trouble for the occasion. They, too, would regret your absence and are constantly asking me what has become of my closest friend and their general favorite."

The words were as balm to a depressed, unhappy spirit. Waters could not doubt the sincerity of the speaker. Long afterwards there remained the memory of the sweet smile, the warm hand clasp as they parted.

A gay, festive, bubbling throng they were, those young friends of Avis Durand, the evening of the party. Waters tried to fill a secluded corner, but Avis would not have it so. She showed him unusual attention, and his heart warmed with unusual fervor, as he entered fully into the joyousness of the occasion. He had planned on accompanying Mrs. Durand when they adjourned to the supper table, but Avis appeared and claimed him as her honored escort.

"Why! where is the birthday cake?" cried one of the girls as they seated themselves.

"Yes, and the eighteen candles?" joined in a vivacious brunette.

"I guess seventeen!" voiced another guest.

Avis laughed merrily. Her eyes were sparkling as she left her guests with an apology and the words: "It will be a great surprise to you, perhaps, but I shall reward your polite curiosity with the truth. Thirty-five candles, dears," she added, reappearing with the crowning attraction of the table.

"Oh, never!" arose a chorus of unbelievers, but Avis only continued to smile, but flushed as she stole a quick glance at the amazed Waters.

He was standing at the side of some draperies an hour later, his mind reflective and in a tumult, for the revelation of Avis had seemed to bring her immensely nearer to him. On the other side of the drapery was Mrs. Durand.

"Oh, how could you?" she mildly upbraided Avis. "Bidding good-by to youth!"

"To its counterfeit, dear mamma, you mean," responded Avis brightly. "Then, too, it gave me an opportunity for Mr. Waters to know the truth."

"Because—" insinuated Mrs. Durand. "Because—because I love him," spoke Avis frankly, "as you have known for some time."

Ernest Waters went out upon the porch and gazed up at the stars in romantic fervor, seeking their influence to calm the wildly surging joy of his happy, happy heart.

Vote "NO"

School Amendment

Michigan's property owners paid last year an aggregate of over One Hundred Millions for taxes.

The Budget now being prepared by Commissioner Foote shows a demand for more State Taxes than last year's total by several millions of dollars.

The dumping of the Private School Pupils of Detroit alone on to its Public Schools would cost that city Twenty-Eight Millions for new buildings and Three and a Quarter Millions a year for maintenance.

The same cause would increase the School Taxes of Grand Rapids by Fifty Per Cent.

The Direct Taxes of every district would be increased, with no increase in Primary School Fund money.

The total amount of new money to be raised by taxes for Educational Purposes in Michigan if the Private and Parochial Schools are closed by law, in addition to sums already annually expended, is estimated at Forty-Five Million Dollars for Buildings and Seven and a Quarter Millions Annually for Teachers and Going Expense.

The Educators of Michigan unanimously agree that it would take ten years to provide the school facilities which would be demanded if the Private School Pupils have to be educated at Public Expense.

Fordson TRADE MARK Farm Tractor

When Henry Ford set about building the Fordson tractor he had a thorough understanding of just what it should be and what it should do. His early life on the farm gave him a deep insight into the daily life of the farmer; his mechanical genius saw the type of tractor needed. He began work on a farm tractor thirty-five years ago, and for more than twelve years he experimented over more than 7,000 acres of land in different kinds of soil, with different crops.

So he built the Fordson. It is so simple that a school-boy can operate it. It is low in first cost. It is lowest in operating cost and Fordson parts and Fordson service are always to be had promptly from the dealer.

The Fordson is a profitable investment. It can be used every working day in the year. It is an inexpensive power plant that will lighten your farm work. It has proven its worth on more than one hundred thousand farms not only in operating implements in the fields but in belt and pulley work. And it doesn't eat when idle.

Don't delay ordering your Fordson tractor. The demand is greater than the supply.

BREVITIES

Brooklyn—Mrs. Fred Waterman is raising six mutant ducks. With wings clipped the birds cannot fly, and she hopes no over-enthusiastic hunter will pot-shot them. If successful in keeping them she may raise a flock for decoys next year.—Brooklyn Express.

Ann Arbor—Miss Asha Litaka Haldar, the first woman from India to enter the University of Michigan and the second to enter the United States to study, arrived at the university last week. Miss Haldar is here on one of the Levi Barbour scholarships for foreign women.

Fowlerville—Two persons, a man and his wife employed in a local grocery store, were quarantined one day last week for smallpox. According to physicians the cases were well advanced. Several other cases of smallpox have been reported to health authorities here, and a number of houses, where persons have either been exposed or have actually developed the disease, are under strict quarantine.

Jackson—After investigation by Emory D. Howe, postoffice inspector, a warrant has been issued for Chris C. Miller, a clerk at the Jackson post-office, charged with rifling the mails. The specific charge contained in the information concerns the alleged opening of a letter addressed to the Film Information bureau of this city, who report money missing from several letters sent through the Jackson office to their address. Mail addressed to the Dyer Foot Draft company is also reported to have been rifled.

Ann Arbor—Mrs. Lula Caldwell, aged 36, a Negro, was shot and instantly killed at 4 o'clock Thursday afternoon near the front of her home at 1018 Gott street, by Mrs. Stephen Morton, another Negro, in an argument which began earlier in the day. Mrs. Morton fired three shots, two of which took effect. The first shot fired by Mrs. Morton went wild, going through a second story window in the residence of Mrs. Mary Turner at 1020 Gott street. The second shot struck Mrs. Caldwell in the thigh and the third shot, which caused instant death, struck Mrs. Caldwell just over the left eye and lodged in the base of the skull. Immediately after the shooting the police were notified. They found Mrs. Caldwell lying dead on the ground and Mrs. Morton hysterically crying, "Here I am, here I am." The police took Mrs. Morton to the county jail, where she became hysterical.

Brighton—Sixteen hunters from Detroit were arrested on the Rinhalt Smith farm Sunday for violating the Sunday hunting law. Constable Geo. Conrad made the arrest at the request of Rinhalt Smith and the assistance of Erwin Hyne and Carl Birdstock. Rinhalt Smith swore out the warrant on Monday. All sixteen men yielded to arrest without resistance and gave their names and addresses. They returned Wednesday for trial in Justice H. B. Appleton's court. The maximum penalty for the charge is $25 and costs. A fine of $5 and costs, amounting to $4.40 apiece was placed on them by Justice Appleton. The hunters were out in three separate parties. One party of four came with Harry Martin who used to work for Herman Martin. When asked if they had permission to hunt on that land they said "Yes, from him," indicating Harry Martin. Members of another party own a cottage at Island Lake. The law against Sunday hunting applies only to Livingston, Oakland and parts of Macomb counties.—Brighton Argus.

CAN'T DO THE WORK

It's too much to try to work every day against a constant, dull headache, or sudden darting pain in the small of the back. Be rid of it. Try Doan's Kidney Pills. Your neighbors recommend them. Ask your neighbor.

Jacob Houk, 211 Lincoln St., Chelsea, says: "I was in bad shape about two years ago and had lumbago and rheumatic trouble. For awhile I was compelled to lay off work as the pains across my back were so severe. The rheumatic trouble was worse in the spring and in damp and cloudy weather, especially in my lower limbs. My kidneys didn't act regularly and I knew something would have to be done. I saw Doan's Kidney Pills advertised in the papers so I went to Penn's Drug Store and got two boxes and used them till my troubles left me entirely."

Mr. Houk had, Foster-Millburn Price 60c at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Kidney Pills—the same that Co., Mfrs., Buffalo, N. Y.—Adv.

CHECK ON TRICKY "COPPERS"

Simple Contrivance Prevents Fraud on the Part of Applicants for Coveted Positions.

In Philadelphia the position of traffic policeman is open only to men who are six feet or more in height. Such positions are so much sought after that many applicants who fall short of the required height by only a small fraction of an inch are tempted to cheat a little bit by rising on their heels.

An ingenious application of electricity is now used to circumvent this trick, and any attempt to register a fraudulent measure is disclosed at once. The applicant, as he stands up on the platform under the slide rule, sets his feet upon two metal plates that are normally a trifle above the platform. They are just large enough to be covered by a man's heels, and when the candidate stands with his heels on the floor the plates are so depressed that they make a contact and form a circuit that lights a lamp overhead. As long as the man stands with both heels on the ground the lamp stays lighted, but the moment he raises either heel the smallest part of an inch the contact is broken and the lamp goes out. So does he who cheats.

Vote YES for School Amendment

- 1—Because the Constitution of the U. S. is not founded upon faith or creeds, and the school systems of our states should be so conducted as to carry out the principles of our government.
- 2—Because the public school is the melting pot of America, and the very cradle of Democracy.
- 3—Because the school amendment will not affect the present compulsory school law, except for the elimination of three words, "Private or Parochial."
- 4—Because parochial schools were formed and are being used only to perpetuate some foreign language, custom or creed.
- 5—Because we must make our Americans in our American public schools.
- 6—Because the Amendment says not a word, either by direct statement or by implication, against the rights of parents to maintain private or parochial schools outside of the five hours a day, 160 to 180 days a year, required for attendance at public schools. Surely this leaves sufficient time for the inculcation of religious doctrine.
- 7—Because Bishop Schrembs, of Toledo, in an address at Chicago recently, said, "If this amendment carries in Michigan, it will sweep the entire land." If the principles involved in this issue are not sound why this splendid endorsement?
- 8—Because the world war showed that $90,000 of our men were ignorant of our language—this amendment will cure that defect.
- 9—Because parochial schools create groups of voters, deliverable at election to the candidates who will accept their terms.
- 10—Because private schools of all kinds promote class distinction.
- 11—Because schools for physical and mental defects are not affected by this amendment—see Article XI, Section 15 of our State Constitution.
- 12—Because the present district law gives each district the broadest power to change or amend itself to suit its own constituents. The legislature creates the district and is at liberty to alter them.
- 13—Because the State does not control teachers in private schools.
- 14—Because in the Supreme Court, it was admitted by the opposition that there was no religious question involved in the amendment.
- 15—Because the opposition has unjustly stirred up religious hatred by throwing the question of religion into a question of public policy and politics.
- 16—Because the Amendment will leave all churches free to devote their energies to the Christian Field, and will leave religions free to function in the spiritual realm.
- 17—Because if we recognize private and parochial schools as performing a public function, we should allow citizens to pay taxes to support private or parochial schools of their own choosing.
- 18—Because parochial schools have furnished 65% of the criminals of the country, public schools 5% and foreigners and illiterates 30%. The amendment will mean therefore, a considerable saving to the State.
- 19—Because if the City of Detroit were to adopt the same housing space for pupils as the parochial schools have now, every child in the parochial schools could be put into a public school without an additional school room.
- 20—Because the opposition can demonstrate their patriotism by loaning some of their buildings to the state, until the state has sufficient schools of its own.
- 21—Because there is not a valid reason why there should be anything but an elementary public school in a democracy.
- 22—Because the amendment assures complete separation of church and state.
- 23—Because the amendment will not destroy a single teacher. Teachers who are qualified to teach may be retained as public school teachers; those not qualified should not be teaching now.

DEAR PETEY:

Bet you a house and lot you'd stay in W-S a month if you ever got to know folks here like I have. Between business and Reynolds factories and a bully time—well my date book has been bubbling over! And, I'm still running into facts that would stagger even your imagination, old football, with all your kick!

Pete, take it straight from government figures direct to you, that every work day in the week R. J. Reynolds Tobacco Co. buys from our "Uncle Sam" enough revenue stamps to pay for a duplicate of the handsome new Winston-Salem post office building! Ever hear of such a thing?

And, if you want to get an eyefull of an army of more than 15,000 people, be down in the Reynolds factory district when the whistles blow!—Never saw such a cigarette firing-up time in my life!

Peter, everytime you light a Camel in the future, call back on what I've slipped you about Camels—absolutely, the greatest cigarette at any price—for quality, for refreshing flavor, for mellow mild body, for freedom from any unpleasant cigarette aftertaste or odor! It's worth the busiest smoker's time to compare Camels with any cigarette in the world! Camels are simply a revelation! You know that.

I'll open my eyes in Atlanta tomorrow! In the meantime here's a wad of best wishes I have in stock!

Yours

Shorty.

Proposed Amendments to the Constitution.

To Amend Article 13 of the Constitution of the State of Michigan, to provide for the condemnation and taking of the fee to more land and property than is needed for the acquiring, opening and widening of parks, boulevards, public places, streets, alleys or for any public use by municipalities of the State.

This amendment, if adopted, will empower the legislature to authorize municipalities of the State to condemn and to take the fee to excess property for parks, boulevards, etc.

To Amend Section 1 of Article 3 of the Constitution, relative to the qualifications of electors.

The effect of this proposed amendment, if adopted, will be to grant to persons engaged in teaching in the public schools of the State, and the immediate family of any member of the legislature during any session of the legislature, the privilege accorded absent electors.

To Amend Section 21 of Article 6 of the State Constitution providing annual salaries of five thousand dollars ($5,000) for the Governor and Attorney General, and that the Secretary of State, State Treasurer and Auditor General shall each receive such annual salaries as may be prescribed by law. They shall receive no fees or perquisites whatever for the performance of any duties connected with the office.

This proposed amendment, if adopted, will empower the legislature to determine the compensation of the Secretary of State, the State Treasurer and Auditor General.

To Amend Section 29 of Article 5 of the State Constitution giving the legislature the power to enact laws relative to the hours and conditions under which men, women and children may be employed.

This proposed amendment, if adopted, will empower the legislature to enact laws relative to the hours and conditions under which men, women and children may be employed.

To Amend Article 11, of the Constitution, by adding two sections thereto providing that, "All residents of the State of Michigan between the ages of five and sixteen years shall attend the public school in their respective districts until they have graduated from the eighth grade; provided that in the districts where the grades do not reach the eighth, then all persons herein described in such districts shall complete the course taught therein."

The effect of this proposed amendment, if adopted, will be to compel all residents of the state of Michigan between the ages of five years and sixteen years to attend the public schools in their respective districts until they have graduated from the eighth grade, and to require the legislature to enact legislation rendering effective the provisions contained in section sixteen.

Relative to Opening and Closing of the Polls.

On August 2, 1920, the Township Board adopted a resolution making the hours for opening the polls of this section at 7 o'clock a. m., and closing at 3 o'clock p. m.

LOCAL NOTES

There are a number of cases of scarlet fever in town.

Recent Ford sales: H. F. Brooks and A. L. Lowry, touring cars; Geo. P. Staffan, sedan.

Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Winans have started to move their household goods to their new home on South street.

Mrs. J. E. McKune entertained the Five Hundred Club at her home on South Main street last Thursday evening.

John W. Heselwerdt made a shipment of sixteen head of horses to the Parke-Davis farm at Rochester, on Wednesday.

Mrs. Fred Houchen and daughter left today for Santa Ana, Calif., where they will join Mr. Houchen, who is located there.

T. G. Speer, who has been in the hospital in Ann Arbor, for several months, has returned to his home here, much improved in health.

There will be football game here Sunday afternoon between the Chelsea team and the Ann Arbor Leaders. It promises to be a good one.

Dr. and Mrs. G. W. Palmer, who are on their way to Lodi, Calif., on a card mailed at Portland, Oregon, say: "Weather fine; dandy trip; good eats; feeling fine."

Mrs. A. E. Johnson returned home Sunday from Fowlerville, where she spent several days attending the district convention of the W. R. C. as a delegate from the local Corps.

The S. P. I. gave Mrs. Mary Young a very pleasant surprise Monday evening at her home west of town. The occasion was in honor of her seventy-seventh birthday. A splendid program was rendered, after which a lunch was served.

Miss Agnes Weber, who is attending the Ypsilanti Normal College, fell last Thursday afternoon and sustained a fracture of her collar bone. She was brought to the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Weber, the same evening.

A. K. Collins received a telegram this morning from Dr. Faye Palmer and Wesley Smith, who are making an overland trip to California, which stated that they arrived at Santa Fe at 4 o'clock Wednesday afternoon, and would leave there Friday.

Fourth Liberty bonds are not convertible until February. Although the original interest coupons have been exhausted, the holders of these bonds will lose nothing, for the new bonds will have coupons to cover the period between now and February.

The game of football between the Chelsea and the Ann Arbor South End football teams was played at Chelsea, Sunday and resulted in a 6 to 0 victory for Chelsea. The lone touchdown came in the first quarter, after a series of forward passes had carried the ball the length of the field.

Miss Margaret Gieske gave a miscellaneous shower Saturday evening in honor of Miss Gladys Gowell of Jackson, whose marriage to Clifford Gieske will take place in the near future. The table was prettily decorated with chrysanthemums, the color scheme being yellow and white. About forty guests were present.

The United States Civil Service Commission has announced an examination for the county of Washtenaw, to be held at Ann Arbor, Chelsea and Ypsilanti, on November 13, 1920, to fill the position of rural carrier and vacancies that may later occur on rural routes from other post offices in the county. Form No. 1977 and application blanks may be obtained from the offices mentioned above or from the United States Civil Service Commission at Washington, D. C.

State auto licenses are now marked down to one-half price, a fact which auto owners generally do not seem to understand, as many seem to continue to send to the secretary of state the full amount for a year's license, while the law provides that after September 1, the license shall be issued for one-half the full fee. Secretary of State Coleman C. Vaughn, speaking of the reduction, said that a majority of those sending in for licenses remit the full amount, apparently not aware of the provisions of the law.

After a spell of fine weather, which sets a record for thirty years or more, officials of the weather bureau declare there is no way of giving a reason for the exceptional balmy days of October up to the 25th of the month, and furthermore, they refuse to attempt to prophesy what kind of weather will follow, except as they give the symptoms from day to day. Whether it means an open winter or fierce, blizzards winter, they leave to the turkey bone, muskrat-house experts who have already announced that the squirrels are putting nuts away on the expectation of having an easy winter.

The Lady Maccabees installed their new officers Monday evening.

Born, on Thursday, October 21, 1920, to Mr. and Mrs. Irven Weiss, of West Middle street a son.

Win. Long, of Sylvan, is confined to the home of his son Harry in Detroit, with an attack of pneumonia.

Edward Finnell, who is ill with a severe attack of quinsy, was taken to St. Joseph's sanitarium, Monday, for treatment.

The next meeting of Lafayette Grange will be held at the home of W. S. Pielmeier, on Thursday evening, November 4.

Mr. and Mrs. Rollin Schenk, of Ann Arbor, are moving into the residence on the southeast corner of East Middle and East streets.

Mrs. Mary Munsell who has been spending the past three months with her sister, Mrs. J. C. Taylor, returned to her home in Fowlerville Monday.

Mr. and Mrs. F. C. Taylor of Lansing, and Mr. and Mrs. G. F. Staunton, of New Haven, Conn., spent the week-end with Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Steadman.

Mrs. John Faulkner, of Lima, brought to Chelsea Monday, four quarts of red raspberries which she had picked that day.

E. D. Brown spent the week-end at the home of his parents in Moshierville. Mrs. Brown and son, who spent the past week there, returned home with him.

A shower of canned fruit for the M. E. Home will be held this week. Every member of the M. E. church is requested to donate a can or two of fruit or pickles. Leave them at the M. E. church any day this week.

The two large barns and the silo, and their contents on the farm of Henry Donner of Dexter township, were burned to the ground early Friday morning. The cause of the fire is unknown. The loss is partially covered with insurance.

Card of Thanks.
We take this means of thanking our many friends and relatives for the many acts of kindness and sympathy shown us during our late bereavement. Henry Tobelmann, Mrs. Albertine Eisen.

DON RICARDO RUEY.

John Stuart Webster, mining engineer, boards a train in Death Valley, California, on his way back to civilization after cleaning up $100,000. He looks like a hobo. Then he rescues a distressed lady, who makes his heart stop over. He eliminates the offending man. She is Dolores Ruy. In Denver he is offered a $25,000-a-year job by a capitalist friend, Edward J. Jerome. He receives a delayed letter from his own particular pal, Billy Geary, asking him to finance a gold-mining proposition in Central America and go fifty-fifty with him on the profits. So he starts for Sobranite. Jerome goes with John to the depot. They meet the distressed lady on her way to the same train. John tells Jerome the whole story. Jerome secretly sees the girl, offering her $10,000 if she induces John to take his job inside of ninety days. The girl accepts. The scene now shifts to Buenaventura, Sobranite, where Geary has existed for two months on credit extended by Mother Jenks, keeper of a hotel and dramsop. Dolores catches Henrietta Wilkins (Mother Jenks) that she is on her way to visit her. Mother Jenks has been educating Dolores, who is the daughter of former President Ruey of Sobranite, deposed and executed by President Sarros. Mother Jenks doesn't want Dolores to find out she is no longer respectable. So Billy meets the steamer and tries to turn the girl back. But Dolores lands and makes Mother Jenks as "Mother." Billy promptly falls in love with Dolores. Webster in New Orleans secures a matron on La Estrella by buying a ticket for a mythical vessel. "The Bowers." In New Orleans Webster saves a young man from assassination. On the steamer he finds the mythical vessel in his stateroom. He accepts "Bowers" on trust, without learning his identity. At Buenaventura he assists the "violet" to land. He finds Billy in love with Dolores, and like the good scout he is his farthest to his romance. Dolores astonishes him. Don Juan Cafetero tells him of a plot to kill him. Billy leaves on business and Webster falls more deeply in love.

CHAPTER XI.—Continued.

Once free of the door, Webster waited just inside the lobby for the Sobranite to conclude his precipitate entrance. When he did, Webster looked him over with mild curiosity and bowed with great condescension. "Did any gentleman ever tell the senator that he is an ill-mannered monkey?" he queried coolly in excellent Spanish. "If not, I desire to give the senator that information, and to tell him that his size alone prevents me from giving him a nice little spanking."

"Fig!" the rude one answered hotly. His olive features paled with anger. He trembled with emotion and seemed undecided what to do—seeing which Webster grinned at him tantalizingly. That decided him. No Latin-American, with the exaggerated ego of his race, can bear even a suspicion of ridicule. The officer walked fiercely toward Webster and swung his arm toward the latter's face in an effort to land a slap that was "meant."

Webster merely threw back his head and avoided the blow; his long left arm shot out and beat down the Sobranite's guard; then Webster's right hand closed around the officer's collar. "Come to me thou insolent little one," he crooned, and jerked his assistant toward him, gathered him up in his arms, carried him, kicking and screaming with futile rage, out into the patio and soused him in the fountain.

"Now, then, spitfire, that will cool your hot head, I trust," he admonished his unhappy victim, and returned to the hotel. At the desk he paused.

"Who was that person I just bathed?" he inquired of the excited clerk.

"Ah, senior, you shall not long be kept in ignorance," that functionary informed him. "That is the terrible Captain Benavides."

"Do you know, I had a notion it was he?" Webster replied ruminatively. "Well, I suppose I'm in for a duel now," he added to himself as he climbed the stairs to his room. "I think that will be most interesting."

John Stuart Webster changed into dry clothing and descended to the dining-room. Miss Ruey was already seated at her table and motioned him to the seat opposite her, and as he sat down with a contented little sigh, she gazed at him with a never and more alert interest.

"I hear you've been having adventures again," she challenged. "The news is all over the hotel. I heard it from the head waiter."

"Coffee and pistols for two at day-light," he answered cheerily. "By the way, I have made my will, just to be on the safe side. Will you be good enough to take charge of it until after the funeral? You can turn it over to Billy then."

She fell readily into the bantering spirit with which he treated this serious subject. Indeed, it was quite impossible to do otherwise, for John Stuart Webster's personality radiated such a feeling of security, of absolute, unbounded confidence in the future and disdain for whatever of good fortune or ill the future might entail, that Dolores found it impossible not to assimilate his mood.

At seven-thirty, after a delightful dinner, the memory of which Mr. Webster was certain would linger under his foretop long after every other memory had departed, he escorted her to the open carriage he had ordered, and for two hours they circled the Malecon with the elite of Buenaventura, listening to the music of the band, and, during the brief intermissions, to the sound of the waves lapping the beach at the foot of the broad driveway.

"This," said John Stuart Webster, as he said goodnight to Dolores in the lobby, "is the end of a perfect day."

It wasn't, for at that precise moment a servant handed him a card, and indicated a young man seated in an adjacent lounge-chair, at the same time volunteering the information that the visitor had been awaiting Senior Webster's return for the past hour.

Webster glanced at the card and strode over to the young man. "I am Mr. Webster, sir," he announced civilly in Spanish. "And you are Lieutenant Arredondo?"

The visitor rose, bowed low and indicated he was that gentleman. "I have called, Mr. Webster," he stated in most excellent English, "in the interest of my friend and comrade, Captain Benavides."

"Ah, yes! The fresh little rooster I ducked in the fountain this evening. Well, what does the little squirt want now? Another ducking?"

Arredondo flushed angrily but remembered the dignity of his mission and controlled his temper. "Captain Benavides has asked me to express to you the hope that you, being doubtless a man of honor—"

"Stop right there, Lieutenant. There is no doubt about it. I am a man of honor, and unless you are anxious to be ducked in the fountain, you will be more careful in your choice of words. Now then: You are about to say that, being a man of honor—"

"You would accord my friend the satisfaction which one gentleman never fails to accord another."

"That lets me out, amigo," Webster laughed. "Benavides isn't a gentleman. He's a cutthroat, a murdering little black-and-tan-hound. Do I understand he wants me to fight a duel with him?"

Lieutenant Arredondo could not trust himself to speak, and so he bowed profoundly.

"Very well, then, Lieutenant," Webster agreed. "I'll fight him."

"Tomorrow morning at five o'clock."

"Five minutes from now if you say so."

"Captain Benavides will be grateful for your willing spirit, at least," the second replied bitterly. "You realize, of course, Mr. Webster, that the choice of weapons rests with you."

"Certainly. I wouldn't have risked a duel if the choice lay with the other fellow. With your permission, my dear sir, we'll fight with Mauser rifles at a thousand yards, for the reason that I never knew a Greaser that could hit the broad side of a brewery at any range over two hundred and fifty yards." Webster chuckled fendishly.

Lieutenant Arredondo bit his lips in anger and vexation. "I cannot agree to such an extraordinary duel," he complained. "It is the custom in Sobranite for gentlemen to fight with rapiers."

"Oh, dry up, you sneaking murderer," Webster exploded. "There isn't going to be any duel except on my terms—so you might as well take a straight tip from headquarters and stick to plain assassination. You and Benavides have been sent out by your superior to kill me—you got your orders this very afternoon at the entrance to the government palace—and I'm just not going to be killed. Beat it, boy, while the going is good." He pointed toward the hotel door. "Out, you blackguard!" he roared. "Vaya!"

Lieutenant Arredondo rose and with dignified mien started for the door. Webster followed, and as his visitor reached the portal, a tremendous kick, well placed, lifted him down to the sidewalk. Shrieking curses, he fled into the night; and John Stuart Webster, with a satisfied feeling that something accomplished had earned a night's repose, retired to his room in mauve silk pajamas, and slept the sleep of a healthy, conscience-free man.

At about the same hour Neddy Jerome, playing solitaire in the Engineers' club in Denver, was the recipient of a cablegram which read:

"If W. cables accepting reply rejecting account job filled otherwise beans split. Implicit obedience spells victory."

"Henrietta."

Neddy Jerome wiped his spectacles, adjusted them on his nose and read this amazing message once more. "Jumped up, Jehosophat!" he murmured. "If she hasn't followed that madcap Webster clear to Buenaventura! If she isn't out in earnest to earn her fee, I'm an orang-outang!"

By thunder, that's a smart woman. All right! I'll be implicitly obedient."

Two hours later Neddy Jerome received another cablegram. It was from John Stuart Webster and read as follows:

"Hold job ninety days at latest may be back before. If satisfactory cable."

Again Mr. Jerome had recourse to the most powerful expletive at his command. "Henrietta knew he was going to cable and beat the old sour-dough to it," he soliloquized. He was wrapped in profound admiration of her cunning for as much as five minutes; then he indited this reply to his victim:

"Time, tide and good jobs wait for no man. Sorry. Job already filled by better man."

When John Stuart Webster received that cablegram the following morning, he cursed bitterly—not because he had lost the best job that had ever been offered him, but because he had lost through playing a good hand poorly. He hated himself for his idleness.

CHAPTER XI.

For fully an hour after retiring John Stuart Webster slept the deep, untroubled sleep of a healthy unworried man; then one of the many species of "jigger" which flourish just north and south of the equator crawled into bed with him and promptly proceeded to establish its commissary on the inner flank of the Websterian thigh, where the skin is thin and the blood close to the surface. As a consequence, Mr. Webster awoke suddenly, obliterated the intruder and got out of bed for the purpose of anointing the injured spot with alcohol—which being done, an active search of the bed resulted in the discovery of three more jiggers and the envelopment of John Stuart Webster's soul in the fogs of apprehension.

"This is an evil land, filled with trouble," he mused as he lighted a cigarette. "I wish Billy were here to advise me. He ought to be able to straighten this deal out and assure the higher-ups that I'm not butting in on their political affairs. But Billy's up-country and here I am under surveillance and unable to leave the hotel to talk it over with Andrew Bowers, the only other white expert I know of in town. And by the way, they're after Andrew, too! I wonder what for."

He smoked two cigarettes, the while he pondered the various visible aspects of this dark mess in which he found himself floundering. And finally he arrived at a decision. "These chaps aren't thorough," Webster decided. "They'll see me safely to bed and pick me up again in the morning—so I'll take a chance that the coast is clear, slip out now and talk it over with Andrew."

He looked at his watch—eleven-thirty. Hurriedly he dressed, strapped on his automatic pistol, dragged his bed noiselessly to the open window and tied to the bed-leg the rope he used to lash his trunk; then he lowered himself out the window. The length of rope permitted him to descend within a few feet of the ground.

Webster made his way to the street unnoticed and ten minutes later appeared before the entrance of El Buen Amigo just as Mother Jenks was turning it for the night.

"I am Mr. Webster," he announced. "Mr. Geary's friend from the United States."

Mother Jenks, having heard of him, was of course profoundly flustered to meet this toff who so carelessly wired his down-and-out friends pesos over in lots of a thousand. Cordially she invited him within to stow a peg of her best, which invitation Mr. Webster promptly accepted.

"To your beautiful eyes," Webster toasted her. "And now would you mind leading me to the quarters of Billy's friend Mr. Bowers?"

She shuffled away, to return presently with the news that Mr. Bowers was in his room and would be delighted to receive Mr. Webster. Mother Jenks led Webster to the door, knocked, announced him and discreetly withdrew.

"My dear Webster!" cried Andrew Bowers enthusiastically, and he drew his late fellow-passenger into the room. Webster observed that Andrew was not alone. "I want to see you privately," he said. "Didn't know you had company, or I wouldn't have intruded."

"Well, I knew I had company, didn't I? Come in, you crazy fellow, and meet some good friends of mine who are very anxious to meet you." He turned to a tall, handsome, scholarly looking man of about forty, whose features, dress and manner of wearing his whiskers proclaimed him a personage. "Mr. Eliseo Pacheco, I have the honor to present Mr. John S. Webster, the American gentleman of whom you have heard me speak."

Doctor Pacheco promptly leaped to his feet and bowed with ostentatious reverence then suddenly, with Latin impulsiveness, he advanced upon Webster, swept aside the latter's outstretched hand, clasped John Stuart Webster in fraternal embrace, and to the old sour-dough's inexpressible horror, kissed him upon the right cheek—after which he backed off, bowed once more, and said in Spanish:

"Sir, my life is yours."

"It is well he gave it to you before you took it," Andrew said in English, and he laughed, noting Webster's confusion. "And this gentleman is Colonel Pablo Carveo."

"Thunder, I'm in for it again," Webster thought—and he was, for the amiable colonel embraced Webster and kissed his left cheek before turning to Andrew.

"You will convey to our guest, in English, Don Ricardo, assurances of the time I wanted to ask you one question."

"Ask it now."

"Are you a Sobranite?"

"I was born in this country and raised here until I was fourteen."

"But you're—why, hang it, you're not a Latin?"

"No, I'm a mixture, with Latin predominating. My forebears were pure Castilians from Madrid, and crossed the Western ocean in caravels. It's been a matter of pride with the house of Ruey to keep the breed pure, but despite all precautions, the family tree has been grafted once with a Scotch thistle, twice with the lily of France, and once with the shamrock of Ireland. My mother was an Irish woman."

"You allibi yourself perfectly, Ricardo, and my curiosity is appeased. Permit me to continue my tale," he added in Spanish, and forthwith he related with humorous detail his adventure at the gangplank of the steamer that had borne him and Ricardo Ruey south. Ricardo interrupted him. "We know all about that, friend Webster, and we knew the two delightful gentlemen had been told off to get you—unofficially. The Sobranite revolutionary Junta has headquarters in New Orleans. It is composed of political exiles, for Sarros, the present dictator of Sobranite, rules with an iron hand, and has a cute little habit of railroadng his enemies to the cemetery via the treason charge and the firing squad. He killed my father, who was the best president this benighted country ever had, and I consider it my Christian duty to avenge my father and a patriotic duty to take up the task he left unfinished—the task of making over my country."

"In Sobranite, as in most of the countries in Central America, there are two distinct classes of people—the aristocrats and peons—and the aristocrat fattens on the peon, as he has had a habit of doing since Adam. We haven't any middle class to stand as a buffer between the two—which makes it a sad proposition. My father was an idealist and a dreamer and he dreamed of reform in government and a solution of the agrarian problem which confronts all Latin-America. He trusted one Pablo Sarros, an educated peon, who had commanded the government forces under the regime my father overthrew. My tender-hearted parent discovered that Sarros was plotting to overthrow him; but instead of having him shot, he merely removed him from command. Sarros gathered a handful of bandits, joined the old government forces my father had conquered, hired a couple dozen Yankee artillerymen and—he won out. My father was captured and executed; the palace was burned, and my sister perished in the flames. I'm here to pay off the score."

"A worthy ambition! So you organized the revolutionary Junta in New Orleans, eh?"

Ricardo nodded. "Word of it reached Sarros, and he sent his brother Raoul, chief of the Intelligence bureau, to investigate and report. As fast as he reported, Colonel Carveo reported to me. My father's son possesses a name to conjure with. Consequently it was to the interest of the Sarros administration that I be eliminated. They watched every boat; hence my scheme for eluding their vigilance—which, thanks to you, worked like a charm."

"But," Webster complained, "I'm not sitting in the game at all, and yet I'm caught between the upper and nether millstones."

"That is easy to explain. You interfered that morning in Jackson square; then Raoul Sarros met you going aboard the steamer for Buenaventura and you manhandled him, and naturally, putting two and two together, he has concluded that you are not only his personal enemy but also a friend and protector of mine and consequently an enemy of the state."

"And as a consequence I'm marked for slaughter?"

"It would be well, my friend," Doctor Pacheco suggested, "to return to the United States until after Ricardo and his friends have eliminated your Nemeses."

"How soon will that happy event transpire?"

"In about sixty days we hope to be ready to strike, Mr. Webster."

Colonel Carveo cleared his throat. "I understand from Ricardo that you and another American are interested in a mining concession, Mr. Webster."

Webster nodded.

"Is this a concession from a private landholder or did your friend secure it from the Sarros government?"

"From the government. We pay ten per cent. royalty, on a ninety-nine-year lease, and that's all I know about it. I have never seen the property, and my object in coming was to examine it and, if satisfied, finance the project."

"If you will return to your hotel, my dear sir," Colonel Carveo suggested, "and remain there until noon tomorrow, I feel confident I can guarantee you immunity from attack thereafter. I have a plan to influence my associates in the Intelligence office."

"Bully for you, Colonel. Give me sixty days in which to operate, and I'll have finished my job in Sobranite and gotten out of it before that gang of cutthroats wakes up to the fact that I'm gone. I thank you, sir."

"The least we can do, since you have saved Ricardo's life and rendered our cause a great service, is to save your life," Colonel Carveo replied.

"Get out," yelled Webster, sending him off. "By the way, Ricardo—I'm going to call you Rick for short—do you happen to have any relatives in this country?"

"Yes, a number of second and third cousins."

"Coming down on the steamer, I didn't like to appear curious, but all my profound happiness in meeting him," he said in Spanish.

"The Colonel says you're all to the mustard," Andrew said at once interpreted merrily.

"Rather a liberal translation," Webster retorted in Spanish, whereat Colonel Carveo sprang up and clapped his hands in delight.

"Your happiness, my dear Colonel," Webster continued, "is extravagant grief compared with my delight in meeting a Sobranite gentleman who has no desire to skewer me." He turned to Andrew. "While introductions are in order, old son, suppose you complete the job and introduce yourself. I'm always suspicious of a man with an alias."

"Then behold the death of that impudent fellow Andrew Bowers, laying his hand on Andrew's shoulder, 'Is Don Ricardo Luis Ruey, a gentleman, a patriot, and the future president of our unhappy country?'"

Webster put his hands on the young man's shoulders. "Ricardo, my son," he asked earnestly, "do you think you could give me some little hint of the approximate date on which you will assume office? By the nice gods of war, I never wanted a friend at court so badly as I want one tonight."

Webster sat down and helped himself from a box of cigars he found on Ricardo's bureau. "I feel I am among friends at last," he announced between preliminary puffs "so listen while I spin a strange tale. I've been the picture of bad luck ever since I started for this infernal—this wonderful country of yours. In New Orleans I took a Sunday morning stroll in Jackson square and came across two men trying to knife another. In the interest of common decency I interfered and won a sweeping victory, but to my amazement the prospective corpse took to his heels and advised me to do the same."

Ricardo Ruey sprang for John Stuart Webster. "By George," he said in English, "I'm going to hug you, too. I really ought to kiss you, because I'm that man you saved from assassination, but—too long in the U. S. A., I suppose; I've lost the customs of my country."

"Get out," yelled Webster, sending him off. "By the way, Ricardo—I'm going to call you Rick for short—do you happen to have any relatives in this country?"

"Yes, a number of second and third cousins."

AT LEAST IT'S NOT PROBABLE

Judge Was Likely Dead Right When He Told the Elderly Lady About His Gown.

The judges of the Marion county courts recently adopted and published rules relating to formal openings of court sessions, requiring all persons in the courtroom at the time to stand. This and the other requirements are designed to insure dignity and decorum.

An elderly woman employed at the courthouse accented one of the judges in the corridors of the building and complimented the bench on its attitude in conducting court.

"In fact, judge," she added, "I think all of you judges ought to do like some of the big Eastern courts and wear gowns."

Without batting an eye the judge replied: "I do wear a gown about one-third of the time."

"Why, I never saw you in one," the woman said.

"And you never will," gravely answered his honor as he proceeded to his courtroom, chuckling to himself.—Indianapolis News.

DAIRY

MILK ESSENTIALS AND COST

Results of Two-Year Study on Number of Dairy Farms in Northwestern Indiana.

A two-year study of the cost of milk production undertaken co-operatively by the United States dairy division and Purdue University, on a number of dairy farms in northwestern Indiana, has resulted in figures on the requirements for producing 100 pounds of milk in winter and summer. To give permanent value to the results, these requirements were determined in pounds of feed, hours of labor, etc., and by substituting present costs and values for various items a farmer can determine very closely what it is costing him to produce 100 pounds of milk at the present time.

In the summer months the requirements for 100 pounds of milk were as follows: Concentrates, 20 pounds; dry roughage, 27.4 pounds; silage and other succulent roughage, 90.1 pounds; haying and grinding concentrates, $0.014; pasture, 0.04 acre; human labor, 2.2 hours; horse labor, 0.2 hour; overhead and other costs, $0.383.

In the winter months the requirements for production were: Concentrates, 38.6 pounds; dry roughage, 66.5 pounds; silage and other succulent roughage, 147.6 pounds; haying and grinding concentrates, $0.03; bedding, 20.3 pounds; human labor, 2.6 hours; horse labor, 0.3 hour; overhead and other costs, $0.385.

It has been generally believed that the cost of producing milk was considerably higher in winter than in summer; and while this holds true as far as the gross cost is concerned, the figures obtained in this investigation show that the net cost of producing 100 pounds of milk from November to April was only 1.5 per cent higher than the cost from May to October, inclusive, and that the total cost varied only slightly from month to month within each of these seasons. This small difference between net costs of production during winter and summer is largely due to the greater credit allowed for manure during the winter season.

The price received for the milk, however, fluctuates sharply from month to month.

Further details on requirements for milk production, including such factors as cost of keeping a cow for one year, cost of keeping a bull, proportion of work performed by each class of labor, percentage relation of various factors in the cost of production, and other details, are presented in department bulletin 558, "Requirements and Cost of Producing Market Milk in Northwestern Indiana," which may be obtained from the United States department of agriculture on request.

QUANTITY OF MILK TO FEED

Amount May Be Best Governed by Body Weight of Calf—Great Danger in Overfeeding.

The amount of liquid to feed the young calf may be best governed by the body weight of the calf fed. "If the calf is small, weighing 50 to 60 pounds, it should receive only six to eight pounds of milk per day, divided equally into the number of feedings given. A heavier calf, weighing from 100 to 110 pounds, should receive 10 to 11 pounds of milk per day, properly divided. As there is greater danger from overfeeding than there is from underfeeding, the rule of giving them an amount of milk equal to one-tenth of their body weight each day is a splendid one.

MACSWINEY DEAD AFTER 73-DAY FAST

LORD MAYOR OF CORK PASSES AFTER LONGEST HUNGER STRIKE ON RECORD

JAILED ON SEDITION CHARGE

Had Interesting Career As Playwright and Author; Became Leader of Anti-British Faction.

London.—Terence MacSwiney, Lord Mayor of Cork, died of starvation in Brixton Prison, on the seventy-third day of the hunger strike which he started Aug. 12 in protest against his arrest and conviction by a British court martial in Ireland on a charge of sedition. In the death of the Lord Mayor, Sinn Féin hunger strike tactics claimed their second direct victim. One other hunger striker, Michael Fitzgerald, having died last week in Cork prison.

MacSwiney was 46 years old and was one of the most prominent Sinn Féiners. He started life as a draper's assistant, but became poet, author and a playwright before taking up politics seriously. Later he became violently anti-English.

While in Wakefield jail, Yorkshire, in 1916, he met Marie Murphy, daughter of a wealthy Cork distiller, who visited the jail, and shortly after they were married.

MacSwiney was elected as a Sinn Féin member from Cork to the British Parliament in 1918, but never took his seat. He was present at the first session of the Irish Parliament in 1919, when the establishment of the republic was confirmed, and was elected lord mayor of Cork in 1920.

For various political offenses he had been in jail, with brief intervals of liberty, since January, 1916, and in October, 1917, secured his release from jail by hunger striking.

The hunger strike of more than 73 days eclipsed any in the annals of the medical world.

MacSwiney, who had been unconscious for several days, did not recover his faculties before he died. Fr. Dominic, his private chaplain, and his brother, John MacSwiney, were with him when the end came. Fr. Dominic was at the prison all night and did not leave until several hours after MacSwiney breathed his last.

John MacSwiney and the chaplain, who had been waiting downstairs in the prison, were told by prison officials that they should go to the mayor's bedside, as they thought death was approaching. The brother asked for the privilege of communicating with other relatives who were not present, but the officials, it is said, refused him the use of a telephone.

Third Hunger Striker Dies.

Cork.—Joseph Murphy, one of the hunger strikers in Cork jail, died after fasting for 76 days. He was 25 years old and unmarried. He was a member of the Irish volunteers and well known as an athlete.

PRESIDENT GETS MINE PLEA

Lewis Says Operators of Alabama Won't Deal With Miners.

Indianapolis, Ind.—John L. Lewis, international president of the United Mine Workers of America, telegraphed President Wilson urging him to direct the department of justice to bring legal proceedings to enforce the principle of collective bargaining between miners and operators in Alabama, where a strike has been in progress six months.

Lewis, in his telegram, says it has been definitely determined that wartime laws and regulations are still in effect and that the president guaranteed the right of collective bargaining to all employees in industry by his proclamation of April 8, 1918; and that the Alabama coal operators refused and still are refusing to recognize the principle by dealing collectively with the miners.

CUBA EXPECTS QUIET ELECTION

No Uprising Feared Until Spring, When Administration Changes.

Havana.—The Cuban presidential campaign is nearing the end with little talk this year of a revolution. The election which is to be held Nov. 1, will be the first under the law framed by Maj. Gen. Enoch Crowder, the American war time provost marshal general.

Cuba expects some scattering bloodshed on election day, but those who fear another revolution see little danger before spring, the time set for a change in administration.

SEASONABLE GOOD THINGS.

A good cake is an acceptable addition to any dinner.

Good Plain Chocolate Cake.—Beat one-fourth of a cupful of butter, also one egg; gradually beat the two together. Add three squares of melted chocolate, then add alternately one cupful of milk, half a cupful of hot water and two cupfuls of sifted flour, sifted again with one teaspoonful of cinnamon, half a teaspoonful of salt, and three teaspoonfuls of baking powder. Bake in a sheet or layers. Cover with white or chocolate frosting.

Maple Syrup Cake.—Beat half a cupful of butter to a cream, add half a cupful of sugar, two well-beaten eggs and a cupful of maple syrup. Sift together two and one-half cupfuls of flour, two teaspoonfuls of baking powder, half a teaspoonful of ginger, and three-fourths of a teaspoonful of soda. Add to the first mixture alternately with one-half cupful of hot water. Bake in two layers or a sheet. Finish with caramel frosting.

Pear Bavarian Cream.—Drain the syrup from a can of pears. Soften one-third of a package of gelatin in one-fourth of a cupful of cold water, then add to one cupful of the pear juice heated. Add the juice of one lemon and one-third of a cupful of sugar. Turn half of this mixture into an oval charlotte mold holding one quart and let chill on ice. Set the rest of the mixture aside on ice to harden. Cut thin slices from half pears and use these to line the mold. Do not put these in place until the jelly becomes firm. Press the rest of the pears through a sieve. Soften one-third of a package of gelatin in cold water and let it dissolve in a dish of hot water. Add the pear pulp, the juice of a lemon and grated rind if desired, one-third of a cupful of sugar, stir the mixture over ice water until it begins to set, then fold in one cupful of cream beaten very light. When the mixture holds its shape use it in filling the mold. When serving unmold and garnish with cubes of bright colored jelly and whipped cream.

To Prepare Junket.—Heat until lukewarm one pint of milk. Dissolve one-half of a junket tablet in half a tablespoonful of cold water. Add sugar and flavoring to the milk, then stir in the tablespoonful of junket water. Let stand in a warm room until firm. Chill before serving.

... But words are things, And a small drop of ink, Falling like dew upon a thought, Produces that which makes thousands, perhaps millions, think.—Byron.

CANNING WITHOUT COOKING.

Any fruit except perhaps pineapple, which is hard to mash to a smooth pulp, may be kept indefinitely when mixed with equal parts of sugar. The fruit must be thoroughly blended, if berries, every one crushed, or the mixture will be sure to ferment.

To Can Rhubarb.—Wash the rhubarb cut into small pieces and pack into a sterilized jar. Fill the jar to overflowing with cold water. Seal as usual. Some advocate the repeating of the process for two mornings, then the third day seal and set away, leaving 24 hours between each change of water.

Tomatoes should be firm, ripe, but not overripe. Scald, peel and pack in jars. Be sure that the hard green center is all removed. Pack when thoroughly cold; add a teaspoonful of salt and the same of sugar to a quart. Cover with cold water, seal and let stand upside down for two days. Then set away.

Grape Jelly without cooking is delicious. Press the juice from the ripe fruit and add an equal quantity of sugar; stir and let stand until the sugar is thoroughly dissolved and then pour into the glasses and set in the sun for a day or two. Seal as usual. The flavor of this jelly is much superior to that which is cooked.

Beet Relish.—The beets for this recipe are cooked, then chopped; add an equal quantity of chopped cabbage, half as much celery and one cupful of fresh grated horseradish, one cupful of sugar, one teaspoonful of cayenne and cover with fresh snappy vinegar. Can and seal.

Oil Pickles.—Slice, without peeling, cucumbers one inch in diameter; add to two quarts of the sliced cucumbers, four thinly-sliced onions, or a dozen small ones will make a better looking mixture. Cover with strong salt water and let stand overnight. Drain and add one cupful of olive oil, mustard seed, celery seed and enough vinegar to just cover. Seal and keep in a cool place.

3 teaspoons Royal Baking Powder
Cream shortening and sugar together; add milk to beaten eggs and beat again; add slowly to creamed shortening and sugar; add nutmeg and flavoring; add 2 cups flour sifted with baking powder; add enough more flour to make stiff dough. Roll out very thin on floured board; cut with cookie cutter, sprinkle with sugar, or put a raisin or a piece of English walnut in the center of each. Bake about 12 minutes in hot oven.

Cocoa Drop Cakes
4 tablespoons shortening
1 cup sugar
1 egg
1/2 cup milk
1/2 cup flour
3 teaspoons Royal Baking Powder
1/2 cup cocoa
1/2 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon vanilla
Cream shortening; add sugar and well-beaten egg; beat well and add milk slowly; add flour, baking powder, salt and cocoa into mixture; stir until smooth, add vanilla. Put one tablespoon of batter into each greased muffin tin and bake in moderate oven about 20 minutes. Cover with bell icing.

When Coffee Disagrees—Use POSTUM CEREAL

Coffee drinkers, who switch from their accustomed table drink, almost always turn to Postum because of its delicious coffee-like flavor.

There's no harm to health in Postum. Much as it tastes like coffee, there is no coffee in it. Boil Postum a full fifteen minutes, and you develop that rich flavor you so much like.

Power from Volcanic Steam.

In 1905 Prince Giusti Conti, general director of the Larderello works at Larderello, Italy, decided to experiment with the natural steam springs of Larderello for obtaining motive power. His experiments were so successful that the company built a large power station at Larderello with three units of 2,500 kilowatts each. The work, says The Illustrated London News, was begun in 1914, but was delayed by the European war. The first unit was started in 1916, and the power station was completed in the same year. Four overhead lines at 36,000 volts carry electric current to Siena, Leghorn, Pionbina and Massa. The holes bored to the natural steam pockets, which vary in depth from 105 feet to 495 feet, are lined with iron tubing sixteen inches in diameter. The steam is cleared of gas before it is carried to the turbine generators.

Clemenceau and Heaven.

The latest Clemenceau anecdote that is going the rounds of the boulevards is to the effect that the premier was annoyed because a tree in the neighboring garden overshadowed his. The tree was the property of some Jesuit fathers, on whom M. Clemenceau called, politely explaining that his attitude to the church was unchanged, but he would regard it as a personal favor if the Jesuit fathers would cut down the tree, "because it prevents me from seeing the heavens." The Jesuit father who received him was very courteous and was much flattered by the premier's call. He promised that the offending tree should be speedily removed, but he added, with the suave smile of the ecclesiastic: "I am afraid, M. le Premier, that just the same, you will not see heaven."—London Morning Post.

His "College."

During debate in the New York state assembly one day, when Gov. Smith was a member of that body, another member arose to a question of personal privilege and announced that Cornell had won the boat race at Poughkeepsie, adding that he was a graduate of Cornell. This started a reminiscence meeting, other members arising to tell the name of their alma mater. Smith finally rose and announced:

"I am a graduate of the F. F. M." "What college is that?" "Fulton Fish Market."—World's Work.

For President

Warren G. Harding

REPUBLICAN LEADERS

OF NATION AND OF STATE

Their election is urged in behalf of home interests, for the welfare of our state and its citizens, for a return to government by the people, for freedom from autocratic personal rule and to close the present era of national extravagance.

BURT D. CADY, Chairman,
Republican State Central Committee

For Vice-President

Calvin Coolidge

For Governor

Alexander Joseph Groesbeck is a product of a Michigan farm. He was born in Warren Township, Macomb County. His boyhood was spent on the farm and from a school nearby he received his primary education. It has been Attorney General Groesbeck's privilege to be related to more important cases in behalf of state interest than has been true of any occupant of his office for many years. More than a quarter of a million of dollars has gone into the State Treasury as the result of suits instituted by Attorney General Groesbeck in cases where inheritance taxes were being withheld, and where monies due to the state on other accounts had remained unpaid.

Alexander J. Groesbeck

FOR STATE AND NATION

The Republican party proposes to devote its entire efforts to safeguarding and promoting the welfare of the American people, and to maintaining the principles of self-government that have given to our country its favored and unique position.

Let us seek to avoid industrial chaos and to bring to a close the present national era of enormous war-time expenditures.

Vote for a purpose far greater than the success of the party, for the ultimate goal that no harm shall come to the Republic.

STATEMENTS BY GROESBECK

"This is a reconstruction period and there are big problems confronting our state."

"We ought to revise our methods of state administration and make them more efficient and better adapted to conditions as they now exist."

"There should be no invisible government functioning for its own interests in Michigan."

"And it is most important that there shall be a reduction of state expenditures and a period of relief to our people from the burden of excessive state taxation."

For Lieut. Governor

Thomas Read

The Republican candidate for Lieutenant Governor, the second in rank on the list of state officers, was chosen Speaker of the Michigan House of Representatives by his fellow members of that legislative body at the opening of the 1919 session. This honor was given to Mr. Read without opposition. His prospective promotion to presiding officer of the State Senate is therefore logical and deserved. Thomas Read graduated from the law department of the University of Michigan. Mr. Read is assured of election by a majority equal to the largest that will be given, and the same assurance can be given as to his real and success in the after performance of his official duties.

For Secretary of State

Charles J. DeLand

Charles J. DeLand, who was nominated without opposition at the Republican State Convention for the office of Secretary of State, has represented his district in the State Senate for three consecutive terms. Mr. DeLand was a member of the Constitutional Convention of 1907, and through education and official experience is unusually well qualified to meet the important requirements of the department of state. The loyal and aggressive support given to Mr. DeLand by the delegates from his home city and county testify to the high esteem in which he is held by those who know him best.

For Auditor General

Oramel B. Fuller

On the first day of the coming year Oramel B. Fuller will enter upon his seventh term as auditor general. No other occupant of an elective state office in Michigan has ever been so singularly honored as has been the experience of O. B. Fuller, and no other Michigan state official has proven himself more worthy of special favor. Constant in attention to the details of his office, careful in their transaction and fearless in the performance of his duties, Auditor General Fuller has given to Michigan a service that in its value will well compare with the remarkable extension of his term of office.

For Justice of the Supreme Court

Justice Nelson Sharpe, who was appointed in September, 1919, to fill the vacancy on the Supreme Bench caused by the death of the late Justice Ostrander, was chosen as a candidate to succeed himself by unanimous action of the state convention. Justice Sharpe has been related to the practice of law in Michigan since 1885. Within that period of time he served his county as prosecuting attorney and for more than twenty-five years he has been a judge of the 34th Judicial Circuit.

Nelson Sharpe

Justice Sharpe's recognized fitness and ability made deserving the unanimous nomination that came to him.

For Justice of the Supreme Court

George M. Clark, one of the two candidates for Justice of the Supreme Court who will be voted for at the coming election, has been a resident of Michigan since his early childhood. He was born in West Williams, Ontario, November 21st, 1875, and with his parents came to this state in 1878. Mr. Clark was admitted to the practice of law in 1904 and continued in active service as a lawyer at Bad Axe, Huron County, until appointed in 1920 by Governor Sleeper to fill the Supreme Court vacancy caused by the resignation of Justice Kahn. Mr. Clark is an orator of state-wide reputation.

George M. Clark

For State Treasurer

Frank E. Gorman

Frank E. Gorman is the present occupant of the office of State Treasurer and was nominated at the recent Republican State Convention to succeed himself. Mr. Gorman has served as bookkeeper in the office of State Treasurer, and as cashier and Deputy State Treasurer previous to his appointment as the head of that office by Governor Sleeper. Very rarely has it been true that such thorough experience as Mr. Gorman is possessed of, has preceded an official appointment or party nomination. Frank E. Gorman is a native of Michigan and his entire life has been spent in this state.

For Attorney General

Merlin W. Wiley

The nominee of the Republican party of Michigan for Attorney General is Merlin W. Wiley, well and favorably known throughout the entire state. Mr. Wiley was three times elected from his legislative district as a member of the State House of Representatives, the third time without opposition. For sixteen years Mr. Wiley has practiced law in his home city of Sault Ste. Marie and is now senior member of the firm of Wiley & Green. It was that which was known of him as a law maker and as a student of law that won for Mr. Wiley the opportunity for important state service as Attorney General.
