

ATHLETIC EQUIPMENT FOR COUNTY SCHOOLS

Boxing Gloves, Balls And Rats Have Been Received And Will Be Distributed Soon, Says Essery.

Last spring Floyd Rowe, state physical director, sent a questionnaire to each of the 83 county school commissioners in Michigan. Of this number 46 were filled out and returned, including that which was sent to Evan Essery of this county. In so doing the 46 commissioners who replied to these letters entitle their county to a share in the athletic equipment purchased by Superintendent Thomas E. Johnson out of the funds furnished by the State Boxing commission.

Mr. Essery, in his reply, mentioned boxing gloves as an essential part of the equipment for Washtenaw county schools. Six pairs of boxing gloves are in the consignment which has just arrived.

Other equipment received includes 144 base ball bats and an equal number of "official playground balls."

There are also footballs and punching bags.

Practically every rural school in Washtenaw county will be supplied with a bat and a ball, according to present plans.

NEW USES OF PEAT.

Devotees of the automobile, motor boat, and aeroplane will be glad to know that successful experiments have been made in Sweden in extracting wood alcohol from peat. The process as reported by the commercial attaché at Copenhagen, Denmark, is described in a report on peat in 1919 recently issued by the United States Geological Survey. Interesting instances of the use of peat as a fuel are given in this report. A coastwise steamship company of Norway, for example, during the coal shortage, was enabled by the use of peat fuel to keep up its full sailing schedule.

Peat is used also in making fertilizers and in preparing concentrated food for stock. Last year 69,197 tons of peat, valued at $705,532, was produced in the United States. This was a decided decrease from the production of 1918, although the peat deposits in this country are extensive.

Critical music lovers prefer The Brunswick

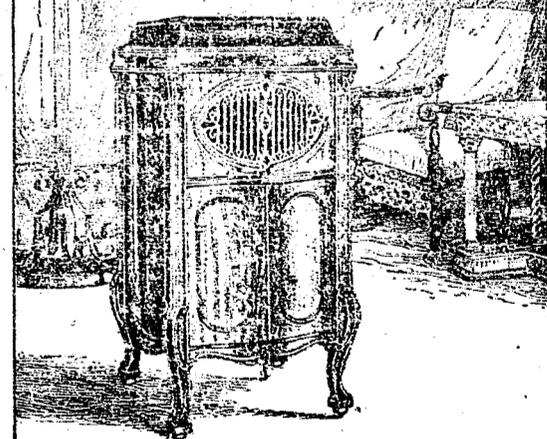

It is always a certain friend, an enthusiastic one, we find, who hears The Brunswick and then compares it.

The ear is quick to appreciate its superior tone. The eye is quick to note its finer cabinet work. And the mind is quick to reason out why Brunswick is a final-type instrument in every way.

The Brunswick Method of Reproduction has brought new standards in the phonographic art—better tone, truer tone. Tones hitherto lost are now ever-present.

Every hearer is convinced. That is the reason for the great popularity—that accounts for The Brunswick winning such headway in a field where limits were supposed to have been reached.

Since The Brunswick came, they all say "Plays all records." But just you find out how they do it and then investigate the Brunswick way.

PAINS NEARLY DOUBLED ME UP

Nothing Helped Me Until I Took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Wyandotte, Mich.—"For the last four years I have doctored off and on without help. I have had pains every month as bad as that I would nearly double up. Sometimes I could not sweep a room without stopping to rest, and everything I ate upset my stomach. Three years ago I lost a child and suffered so badly that I was out of my head at times. My bowels did not move for days and I could not eat without suffering. The doctor could not help me and one day I told my husband that I could not stand the pain any longer and sent him to the drug-store to get me a bottle of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and threw the doctor's medicine away. After taking three bottles of Vegetable Compound and using two bottles of Lydia E. Pinkham's Sensitive Wash I could do my own housework. If it had not been for your medicine I don't know where I would be today and I am never without a bottle of it in the house. You may publish this if you like that it may help some other woman."—Mrs. MARY STENBACH, 120 Orange St., Wyandotte, Mich.

The American Legion

IS NAMED LEGION HISTORIAN

Eben Putnam Performed Similar Service Before the Office Was Made Permanent.

A life of singular variety and adventure has been that of Eben Putnam, new-chosen national historian of the American Legion.

Mr. Putnam was born in Salem, Mass., Oct. 10, 1868. He received his education in private schools and the Cambridge high school. While he was a boy he was the companion and assistant of his father, the distinguished anthropologist, Prof. Frederic Ward Putnam, in archeological explorations in various parts of the world.

Mr. Putnam has been deeply interested in genealogy, genetics and New England histories, and has compiled and published a number of works on these subjects. He has conducted extensive investigations over a period of more than twenty-five years into the question of immigration. He is a member of the Society of Colonial Wars, the Sons of the American Revolution, the Military Order of Foreign Wars, and American Historical Society.

Early in the fall of 1915 Mr. Putnam became convinced that this country must enter the war eventually, and joined the training school organized in his state. He attended the Plattsburg camp the following summer and the next winter was a member of a provisional battalion of infantry. He was barred from a commission in the line because of his age, but on April 4, 1917, was commissioned a captain in the quartermaster corps. His son also was in the service.

Mr. Putnam served as assistant to the depot quartermaster in Boston and later served overseas in the fuel branch. He was discharged August 22, 1919. Mr. Putnam is a charter member of Wellesley Post No. 72 of the American Legion, and was insurance officer and post historian until he resigned to accept the post of department historian for Massachusetts, where he served also in the capacity of a member of the state executive committee. He had performed the duties of a national historian of the Legion before that office was made permanent.

TO BE GREAT WAR MEMORIAL

State of Indiana to Erect Magnificent Building to House Legion National Headquarters.

The erection of a magnificent building to house national headquarters of the American Legion in Indianapolis is assured following the action of the Indiana state legislature, which voted that the state war memorial should take the form of a structure for this purpose.

SINCERE FRIEND OF LEGION

Mrs. Janette Logan Jacobs Has Been Hard Worker in Interest of Disabled Ex-Service Men.

A fearless and devoted worker in the interest of the disabled ex-service man, Mrs. Janette Logan Jacobs of New York city, has proved herself a sincere friend of the American Legion. It was Mrs. Jacobs who supplied the Legion with many of the facts which it laid before congress when it demanded the reform of the federal board for vocational education, a reform which had been carried out largely under the direction of the veterans' organization.

LEGION AND LABOR QUESTION

Position of National Body, Adopted at Cleveland Meeting, Made Clear in Bulletin.

A clear and well-defined exposition of the official attitude of the American Legion toward organized labor is contained in a bulletin sent out by national headquarters of the Legion in Indianapolis, setting forth the statement on the question issued by Past National Commander D'Olier, which was adopted by the national convention as the Legion's platform in industrial difficulties. The statement follows:

"The attitude of the Legion toward organized labor is the same as its attitude toward all groups of American citizens who are interested in a square deal for all in the maintenance of law and order, and the protection of the institutions handed down to us by our forefathers. In any controversy between capital and labor, the interest of the American Legion is confined to that of the maintenance of law and order, and, without taking part on either side, in case a situation should arise where life and property are endangered. It is the duty of members of the Legion to perform their full duty as citizens, according to their own conscience and understanding.

"In such a contingency it is the Legion's duty to assist in the maintenance of law and order by acting as an individual and offering his services to the duly-constituted authorities for the maintenance of law and order. There is nothing to prevent the individual member of the Legion as an individual from taking either side in such a controversy but the Legion, as an organization will not do so."

KEEPS EYE ON LEGION MONEY

Robert H. Tyndall is Reappointed National Treasurer by the National Executive Committee.

The handling of the finances of the American Legion will continue to be directed by Robert H. Tyndall, national treasurer, who was reappointed to the position by the national executive committee.

Mr. Tyndall is a native of Indianapolis, and during the war served as colonel of the One Hundred and Fifteenth Field Artillery, Forty-second ("Rainbow") division. He was in command of the regiment throughout the war and was with the army of occupation in Germany until April, 1917.

Previous to his service in the World War Mr. Tyndall had long been interested in military affairs. He enlisted in Battery A of the Indiana National Guard in October, 1897. The battery was mustered into the Twenty-seventh Indian Volunteer Battery on May 10, 1898, becoming a part of the expeditionary forces in Porto Rico during August and September of that year. In 1900 he enlisted in the reorganized Indiana National Guard and served as corporal, sergeant, lieutenant, and captain of Battery A until 1913, when he was promoted to major of the First Battalion, Indiana Field Artillery. He served on the Mexican border from July, 1916 to January, 1917, and received the rank of colonel in April, 1917.

ASKS FOR MILITARY ESCORTS

Philadelphia County Committee Appeals to President Wilson to Provide Firing Squads.

Following advice from the adjutant general of the army to the effect that it is impracticable for the War Department, without a special appropriation for transportation expenses, to provide military escorts for the burial at Philadelphia of soldier dead whose bodies are being returned from overseas, the Philadelphia county committee of the Legion has appealed to President Wilson to provide at least two firing squads for this purpose from Camp Dix or through the Frankford Arsenal, at Philadelphia.

"The American Legion representatives," the letter reads, "were not satisfied with the excuse offered by the adjutant general of the army for refusing to assist in meeting this emergency. The bodies of soldier dead of the A. E. F. are being returned to Philadelphia daily, and as many as five requests a day are being received by the American Legion. The Legion, through its representatives in the county organization, took the position that it cannot avoid its responsibility to honor these men who have their lives for their country.

"The United States army is now recruited to a strength of 300,000. It was the unanimous opinion among the Legion representatives of the 75 posts in this county, that as commander in chief of the United States army, you might consider it a privilege to assign to Philadelphia 10 men who might serve as military escorts, thus assisting the American Legion in performing a paramount patriotic duty."

The letter was signed by Thomas G. Haasick, secretary of the committee. Legionnaires as Guard of Honor. Impressive ceremonies marked the funeral of Elbert F. Weld, late commander of the Department of Panama, whose body was laid to rest in the National cemetery at Arlington, Va.

WOMAN IS NERVOUS—WORRIED

The lives of most women are full of worry. Men's troubles are bad enough, but women's are worse. Worry makes women sick. It pulls them down, and in their weakened condition they are subject to pains, aches, weakness, backaches, headaches and dizzy spells. Most women neglect their health, and for this they pay the penalty. Any woman will find that neglect does not pay. A little more attention to health would brighten up her life. If she asks her neighbors she finds that Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription benefits a woman's whole system. It not only acts upon the troubles and weaknesses peculiar to women, but is an all-round tonic that braces the entire body, overcoming nervousness, sleeplessness, headaches, dizziness and a run-down condition.

All druggists. Liquid or tablets. Ypsilanti, Mich.—"Motherhood left me with a bad case of feminine trouble. The doctor did not seem to help me. I heard of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription and it gave me relief at once. I took just a few bottles and was completely cured. I have wonderful faith in Dr. Pierce's medicine for women."—Mrs. LUTHER JONES, 514 S. Hamilton Street.

Back Given Out?

Woven Furs Outrival Pelts

"WOVEN FURS" is the new name given to those lovely wool or silk fabrics that the looms turn out so amazingly like the pelts they imitate. We have known them for several years, and under almost as many names as there are varieties in the fabrics, but they have arrived at a new point in their development. Their manufacturers, having made a place for them by wonderful imitations of natural furs, are beginning to work independently of these and are getting into new paths. Besides their eye-buffing imitations of skins they are making exquisite furry cloths that are unlike the furs we know or the fur fabrics we have seen, or else they appear to be an improvement on the natural fur that inspired them.

Often they are trimmed with rich natural furs and displayed along with coats of fur without suffering by comparison. Even the practiced eye has difficulty in telling which is which except by close inspection. For warmth and durability the odds often lie in the direction of the woven furs and there is nothing handsomer in coats, as may be gathered from the two examples pictured. One of these, at the left, is an imitation of mink-skin trimmed with actual Australian opossum, and the other is the familiar seal in woven fur with high collar and deep cuffs of chinchilla. They are high-priced, but not expensive garments, since they wear for years. It is not unlikely that the day will come when women will prefer these fabrics to pelts, as a sentiment in the direction of sparing wild animals is growing among them.

Fine Art in Winter Millinery

F THE fleeting millinery styles for the passing seasons left any permanent record of themselves those of the present winter of grace would be remembered for their chic shapes, their soft contours, their rich decorations and for the amount of handwork lavished on them. There has not been a time in the memory of the oldest milliner, when there was more demand for the exercise of her ingenuity and craftsmanship or for the exercise of individual taste on the part of herself and her clientele.

In shades, the small and medium-sized hats constitute at least three-fourths of all the season's product, and about the same proportion applies to fabric hats as compared to others; that is, hats made by hand of velvet, duvetyne satin and other millinery materials are in for greater demand than any others. It is a milliner's season.

A group of four models, as shown above, embodies the typical, outstanding style-points that have made this a winter of unusually becoming millinery. Where fabrics and needlework flourish combinations of materials follow naturally. This is set forth in the hat at the top of the group, with its top crown and upper brim covered with narrow satin ribbon, its globe crown and draped brim edge of velvet and facing of plain satin. Such a brim throws an alluring shadow over the eyes and the rich kind of facing can do much to enhance the complexion. A little simple stitchery accounts for the trimming. In the hat at the left with duvetyne crown and upper brim and facing of plain velvet, the combination of fine featherwork and embroidery makes a beautiful and striking decoration. The brilliant bird is made of feathers and is poised on a little branch that is embroidered in heavy silk floss. A few scattered motifs in needlework are added to the crown. At the right a soft hat of duvetyne forms a background for a brilliant embroidered motif that brings a memory of old Egypt to mind, and below it a dashing round hat that has a crown of frothy looking tinsel cloth, silver and white, and a brim of black velvet. Its ornament is a handsome tassel of ostrich feathers suspended from a silver cord. If ever the fine art of the milliner were evidenced, it is in these difficult but artfully simple looking patterns.

COULDN'T STAND WORK UNTIL HE TOOK A TONIC

Lost 20 Pounds in the Army—Appetite Fell Off and He Became Weak, Run-down.

TOOK HYPO-COD KNOWING FORMULA WAS GOOD

"I was in the Army and exposed to all sorts of weather, and to that, always having an inside job, it nearly put me down and out. I wasn't used to the exposure and grind and lost twenty pounds in weight. My appetite fell off and I became all weak and run down. I surely looked bad and nights even after I got back on the job I couldn't sleep and would toss and roll half the night. My appetite didn't come back either and my digestion was upset, but just as soon as I started on a bottle of Earle's Hypo-Cod I began hitting on all cylinders and feeling tip-top," declared M. C. Clarke, a popular pharmacist and manager of Cunningham's Drug Store, 335 Woodward Ave., Detroit, Mich.

"I picked out Hypo-Cod because I know the formula is right, and to show how strong and quick it is from the first dose my appetite picked up and my digestion was so good in a couple days I could even eat anything—even Army beans," laughingly asserted this endorser. "I began sleeping better, too, and feeling better all over, and today I feel as good as I ever did in my life. It has my endorsement and I recommend it to everyone needing a tonic," continued Mr. Clarke, Ph. G., who has many friends that say he looks like a different man now.

When a regular druggist selects a tonic from among all the various ones on the shelf to take himself, one may be quite sure that the formula is right. That he knows the people make it are absolutely reliable and then when he gets results even better than he has a right to expect, he is sure to be enthusiastic. Drop in at the drug store tonight and read over the formula which is on each bottle. Take home a bottle for the whole family to try. We are sure you will be delighted with the way it works, and with its pleasant taste. Earle's Hypo-Cod is sold here by all good druggists, and the leading druggists in all nearby towns.—Adv.

"YES; HE'S GONE."

Synopsis—Disappointed because of the seemingly barren outlook of his position as a school teacher in a Canadian town, John Harris determines to leave it, take up land in Manitoba and become a "homesteader." Mary, the girl whom he loves, declares she will accompany him.

"We'll hurry up the plowing, Dad, and run west before the harvest is on us," Allan said as they rode home through the darkness.

struck him a stinging blow in the face that measured him again in the grass. It was only for an instant. Travers sprang to his feet, a red line slowly stretching down his cheek as he did so.

Allan rose slowly, sober but determined, and for a moment it looked as though a battle now were to be fought on the spot, both men strung, lean, rigid, hard as iron, and quick as steel.

When Jim entered the kitchen he was received with astonishment by Mrs. Harris and Beulah. "Why, whatever has happened?" they exclaimed. "Has there been an accident? You're hurt?"

CHAPTER VI. Into the Night.

Harris and Allan drove straight to the engine, never looking back to see what became of the hired man. On the way the farmer explained to his son what had taken place: that words had passed between them, but no blows had been struck, until Allan appeared on the scene.

"I can't make out what got into Jim, that he wouldn't answer a civil question. Jim was a good man, too. Perhaps the disturbing suggestion entered Harris' mind that the question had been none too civil, and he was really beginning to feel that after all Jim might be the aggrieved party.

"So it does," admitted Harris, who up to that moment had not reflected that his hasty action in dismissing Travers would result in much more delay than anything else that had occurred. "Well, we'll have to go somebody else. We'll manage till noon, and then you better ride over to Grant's or Morrison's. They'll be able to lend a man or one of the boys for a day or two."

At noon Jim's chair was vacant, and the family sat down to dinner amid a depressing silence. No mention was made of the morning's incident until the meal was well advanced, when Harris, feeling that he ought in some way to introduce the subject, said: "Is Jim gone?"

swollen chin and stiff neck still biased him against Travers. "He didn't, either. And if he did it's none of your business, you big—!" she looked her brother straight in the face, her swollen eyes telling their own story, and repeated deliberately, "You big coward!"

"Yes, I know, but things are different now. I look for something better for Beulah." It was characteristic of Harris, as of thousands of others, that, although a farmer himself, he looked for "something better" for his daughter.

"Jim was a good man," persisted his wife. "Don't you think you were well, perhaps, a little hasty with him?" Harris sat back. It was his wife's business to agree. For twenty years and more she had been faithful in the discharge of that duty.

"So you're going to take his part, too? It's a strange thing if I can't handle my hired help without advice from the house."

Mary flushed at the remark. Any open quarrel with her husband, especially before the children—for she still thought of the man and woman to her left and right as "the children"—was more painful to her than any submission could have been. It would be so much easier to change the subject, to follow the line of least resistance, and forget the incident as quickly as possible.

"I was under the impression we were managing this farm together, you and I, John," she said, very calmly, but with a strange ring in her voice. "When we came West I understood it was to build our home. I didn't know it was just to be your home."

"The look of surprise with which Harris greeted her words was absolutely genuine. A hot, stinging retort sprang to his lips, but by a sudden effort he suppressed it. "We will talk about that some other time, Mary," he said.

"So that's what started it!" exclaimed Beulah. "Well, I'll tell you what kept him, if he wouldn't. The cattle got into the oats through a break in the fence, and I couldn't get them out, and the dog went baying over the prairie after a rabbit, and just as I was beginning to—"

"You see, they're living—and we're existing." (TO BE CONTINUED.) The Secret of Success. The great secret of success in life is to be ready when opportunity comes—Diarrall.

Harem Victim Tells Story

Stolen from her home on the night before her wedding and imprisoned for five years in a Turkish harem, Aghavni Millian, a beautiful nineteen-year-old Armenian girl from Bithynia, has at last been discovered by her lover and through the assistance of the Near East Relief forcibly taken from her master and brought to one of the American Rescue Homes in Constantinople. Here she will stay until arrangements can be made for her marriage and her return to her old home.

AGHAVNI MILLIAN.

up to Constantinople to the house of the man. She stopped and put one hand over her eyes, a hand that bore the tell-tale tattoo of her Turkish master. "But what does my story matter?" she exclaimed. "I am only one of so many. It is my people and their future that matters. Someday we must rebuild our nation and show to the Turks who tried to beat out our life and to the whole world that, despite what we have suffered, Armenia is still unconquerable."

Aghavni Millian is, as she says, only one of many. It is estimated that one hundred thousand girls are still held captive in Turkish harems. The Near East Relief, America's official agent in Armenia, is making this work of rescue one of the most important features of its program, and it is to them and the support they receive from the American people that Aghavni's unfortunate sisters, still captive, must look for their release.

MANY HUSBANDS IN A HOME. Although polygamy is a well known social institution, the opposite state of married life—polyandry, in which one woman is the wife of more than one man—is less practiced, yet is an accepted institution in parts of the world. In Tibet especially is polyandry practiced. The most usual case is where a brother allows younger brothers to assume the place of husbands in his home upon their reaching maturity. As might be expected, this state of marriage is found only in regions where conditions are such that one man would find it very hard to support or protect a wife. The practice of killing girl babies and a consequent shortage of women is another cause. In Tibet, the country where this strange social custom is most practiced, the majority of the people are herdsmen and are away from home for long stretches of time, which fact helps to keep down the number of excess husbands available for housecleaning.

The editor of the Webberville Index received word last week that Geo. Wright, the daring aeronaut who made the balloon ascension and double parachute drop at that place several years ago was the victim of a peculiar accident recently. Wright, who was being featured in an aeroplane changing act, had ascended to a height of 5,000 feet for the purpose of concluding his act with the customary parachute drop, carried a knife with an especially sharp point. Upon cutting base he fell head downward for several hundred feet, and as the parachute straightened up with a jerk, one of the ropes caught the hand holding the knife and plunged it into his side.

Wright has been placed in a private sanitarium, where the doctors are keeping him packed in ice to prevent fatal lung hemorrhages.
