

GARMENT COMPANY IS VERY BUSY

Has Orders Sufficient To Insure Full Production For Several Months.

With factories everywhere closing down, or at best, operating on a part time schedule, it is interesting to note that the Goebel-Osborne Garment company is sold ahead on full capacity production for the next two months and has been obliged to turn down orders for 6,000 dozens of aprons, besides.

At present, this company is manufacturing 35 different models of aprons and will add more after the first of the year. Scout percales, Manchester cloth, and gingham are the materials used.

While in Detroit recently, Mr. Osborne had the pleasure of seeing 400 dozens of Chelsea made aprons sold in one-half day in one store. And only last Thursday a shipment of 75 dozens was delivered to another Detroit store at 1:30 o'clock in the afternoon. The store management had intended to make a special drive on them the following day, and placed them on a bargain table as soon as unpacked so as to be in readiness for the morning. At 4:30 o'clock, just three hours after delivery, the whole lot was cleaned out, all taken by regular shoppers who happened to note them.

The factory is being operated over-time several nights each week and will be obliged to double its production soon. Until recently the product has been marketed through jobbers and wholesalers only, but now the larger department stores are sold direct.

SERVICES RECOGNIZED.

Rev. Albert A. Schoen of Manchester, formerly of Chelsea, was recently surprised by his Sunday school class, and the Enterprise says:

Rev. A. Schoen was pleasantly surprised a few evenings ago when members of a class to whom he has been giving Bible instruction gathered at his home and spent the evening. The men of the class brought their wives and the ladies brought their husbands and in all there was a jolly party of 30—and with the refreshments brought by the visitors the evening's program was complete. Before the evening was over Rev. Schoen was presented with an electric reading lamp and $50 in gold.

REPORTS BOLD HOLD-UP

Mrs. Reuben Grieb Alleges That a Negro Got Her Ten Dollars.

When returning home from Chelsea about 5:30 Friday evening, Mrs. Reuben Grieb alleges that she was accosted by a highwayman, while driving through the quagmire in the new road grade between Collins' garage and the Manchester road, and asked if she had any valuables or money.

Thoroughly frightened, Mrs. Grieb says that she told the fellow that she had ten dollars and that when he demanded the money she handed that amount to him. The bandit appeared to be satisfied and then allowed her to proceed on her way, although Mrs. Grieb had more money and several checks.

Mrs. Grieb thought the man was dark complexioned, perhaps a negro, but was not sure. The matter was not reported until some time after the alleged hold-up occurred and, with the rather meager description furnished, the officers are without any clues upon which to base an investigation.

MODERN WAYS ARE BEST.

How often have I shut my book and pondered with a far-off look about the days of yore. "Ah me," I sigh, "those were the days, those times of love and knightly ways and glorious feats of war. How mean that poor unlucky I could not have lived in days gone by and been a warrior bold, how skillfully I'd have used my lance, how haughtily I'd thrown my glance, how generously my gold."

But when I think a second time, I undergo a change of mind, perhaps these times are best. They could not all be nobles fine in that romantic novel time, there had to be some goats. While knights were having glorious sport I might have mopped the knightly court or fed the mules their oats.

Instead of strutting round the town with haughty mien and flowing gown and rich-bejeweled lid, I might have saved the noble's wood and ate the leavings of his food or soothed his bawling kid. Instead of breaking ladies' hearts, I might have pushed the babies' carls or held the ladies' train. I might have been the other chap, the guy who's under in the scrap, with lances in his brain.

Oh yes, it's best to have less rank and have more faith in the town bank, and trust to modern ways than dream of days when only one in tens of thousands had the fun and all the rest were slaves.

WALNUT FOR ROAD PLANTING.

The Black Walnut is one of the most valuable trees for roadside planting in Southern Michigan, and this is the best time of the year to plant, according to the Forestry Department at the Michigan Agricultural College.

"The nut crop is one of the chief reasons for planting black walnut, in addition to its value for timber and fence posts," says Prof. A. K. Chittenden, head of the college department. "The walnut does not make heavy shade, and so is not an objectionable roadside tree. It is also suitable for pasture planting for this same reason. If the lower branches are trimmed the tree will grow straight and tall.

"Walnuts may be planted with little expense or trouble, and this is the best time of the year for the work. Two or three nuts should be planted in one place, buried from two to three inches deep. Freezing during the winter will crack the shells slightly, allowing early germination in the spring. For this reason nuts that are kept over winter for spring planting should be stratified outdoors so that they may freeze. Squirrels are likely to make away with some of the nuts planted, and it is, therefore, well to plant more than it is desired to have grow."

Plan your Christmas gifts now and then be sure to do your Christmas shopping early.

RECORD MADE IN COLLECTING TAX

More than five billion dollars received by Bureau.

Excess profits tax largest.

Tobacco Users Pay $295,809,355 Into Treasury; Departing Aliens Yield $13, 117,788.

Washington—Collection of $5,407,580,251 in taxes, and efforts to control the liquor traffic formed the principal work of the internal revenue bureau during the last fiscal year, Commissioner Williams reports.

The tax collection was the greatest in the history of the nation, he added, while in prohibition enforcement the bureau was faced with the creation of an organization which embraced all states and Hawaii, Porto Rico and Alaska.

Income and profits tax made up the bulk of the revenue obtained by the government. The report shows that an additional $295,809,355 came from tobacco taxes. The levy on distilled and fermented liquors produced $139,401,149 and miscellaneous and war excess taxes brought in $883,863,871. The remainder of the revenue was from capital stock, stamp and special taxation.

Mr. Williams noted the collection of $13,117,788 from aliens who were departing for their native lands after a temporary residence in the United States.

The report said the government had employed the permit system as one of its chief methods of controlling the liquor traffic as its sources.

RECORD MADE IN COLLECTING TAX

More than five billion dollars received by Bureau.

Excess profits tax largest.

Tobacco Users Pay $295,809,355 Into Treasury; Departing Aliens Yield $13, 117,788.

Washington—Collection of $5,407,580,251 in taxes, and efforts to control the liquor traffic formed the principal work of the internal revenue bureau during the last fiscal year, Commissioner Williams reports.

The tax collection was the greatest in the history of the nation, he added, while in prohibition enforcement the bureau was faced with the creation of an organization which embraced all states and Hawaii, Porto Rico and Alaska.

Income and profits tax made up the bulk of the revenue obtained by the government. The report shows that an additional $295,809,355 came from tobacco taxes. The levy on distilled and fermented liquors produced $139,401,149 and miscellaneous and war excess taxes brought in $883,863,871. The remainder of the revenue was from capital stock, stamp and special taxation.

Mr. Williams noted the collection of $13,117,788 from aliens who were departing for their native lands after a temporary residence in the United States.

The report said the government had employed the permit system as one of its chief methods of controlling the liquor traffic as its sources.

Michigan Captures Second Honors in Stock Judging Contest.

Chicago—Black Ruler, grand champion steer at the International Live Stock Exposition, was petted and accorded the honors of royalty, but the animal, said by judges to be the best 2-year-old in the world, will be sold at auction for Christmas beef.

This is in accordance with the time-honored custom of the exposition, for the grand champion steer never enjoys his honors more than a few days.

Black Ruler, bred by Purdue University, and the third grand-champion steer entered by that school in four years, posed for photographs and finally for an oil painting.

Carl Johnson, of Ironwood, Walter Ball of Charlotte and Rex Stowe of Wildwood captured second honors for Michigan in the boys and girls club stock judging contest.

WILL HE COME IN?

COLD-BLOODED WITH GIFTS

Program for Those Persons Who Think Santa Claus Deception Should Come to End.

We have tried to work out a little Christmas program for those who object to Santa Claus. We respect the opinions of all who think the deception should be stopped and feel that we ought to help them to arrange a disillusioned and thoroughly harmless Christmas—what you might call a germless and renovated and disinfected and veracious joy season—when the children will take hold of with enthusiasm without in after days wishing to upbraid their parents and hiss at them, "You lied to us!"

We suggest, therefore, that the children be called together on Christmas morning by the governor and addressed as follows:

"Kids: We shall now enjoy our gift giving. I tore off a few seals from my roll the other day and handed them to your mother, and she dived headlong into the bargain counter flood and for two whole days appeared not again, and when she did crawl out, battered, jammed, ragged, torn, bruised and old, she clutched to her bosom these few glimmering, faded and highly un-serviceable articles. We have played them upon these chairs so as to divert the business of any stage effects that might heighten the pleasure in any way or give a false impression. You are to understand that I had to give up for these things, and I wish to forget about it before I feel real good inside again, and with these few remarks we will now fall to, and you want to be quick about it, for I want to read my paper in peace."—Judge.

WONDERFUL SPIRIT OF GIVING

Another year is nearing its close and with its ending comes that glad time, the Christmas holiday season. The absent ones are home again or if they cannot come there are the letters and tokens to be sent and received. The remembrance need not be expensive as to money value, to be very much appreciated.

Christmas is pre-eminently the children's day. Do not insist that Santa will not remember them if they are not good. For we all know that Santa Claus will surely come and the children know it, too. He did not forget us in our own childhood whether we were very, very good or not. Let us teach the children about the wonderful spirit of loving and giving that brings a happy Christmas time.

FIRST CHRISTMAS OBSERVANCE

It is said that Christmas was first observed in the year 98 and that it was not until the year 137 that it was made a solemn feast. Pope Telephorus decreed that it should be celebrated by all Christians in that year. On one early Christmas day the Roman Emperor Diocletian, hearing that the Christians assembled in their church were engaged in celebrating the birth of Christ, commanded that the doors of the church be closed and the building set on fire. This was done and six hundred persons lost their lives in the burning church.

SANTA CLAUS

Beyond the ocean many a mile,
And many a year ago,
There lived a wonderful queer old man
In a wonderful house of snow;
And every little boy and girl,
As Christmas time arrived,
No doubt will be very glad to hear
The old man is still alive.

In his house upon the top of a hill,
And almost out of sight,
He keeps a great many elves at work,
All working with all their might,
To make a million of pretty things,
Cakes, sugar-plums and toys,
To fill the stockings, hung up, you know,
By the little girls and boys.

A SAFE AND SANE CHRISTMAS

Societies are being organized whose members are pledged against giving Christmas gifts outside their immediate families. Christmas giving has been overdone, and if the intemperance can be checked in that way, well and good. But let us hope the "reformers" will not try by legal enactment to impose their views upon others. There are many things in this life to be remedied, and most of them should be remedied without resort to legislation.—Tribune (Wash.) Ledger.

WHY JIMMY PRAYED SO LOUD

Dick and Jimmy were visiting their grandmother. One night when they were saying their prayers Jimmy voiced his petitions for Christmas presents in a tone that could be heard a mile.

"Why do you pray for your Christ, Dick?" asked his grandmother.

"Not at all. If you will study the pictures of Santa Claus you will observe he has on the same old clothes he has worn for years."

A THIRTY SAINT

"Don't you think holidays tempt us to extravagance?"

"Not at all. If you will study the pictures of Santa Claus you will observe he has on the same old clothes he has worn for years."

Improved Roads

PERMANENT ROADS ARE BEST

Although Apparently Expensive at First, They Add Greatly to Value of Farm Lands.

When one is figuring the cost of improving the public roads consideration should be given to the increased value of the lands located in the section where the roads have been permanently improved.

In every case where roads have been put in a permanently good condition, the value of the farms has increased to a point that the increased value would more than pay the cost of the improvement. Permanent roads do seem high-priced in the beginning but

An Improved Road Near New York City.

One should figure that there will be small future outlay for upkeep.

The dirt road has a bad reputation every place it is found and even improving does not make it a permanent road, for it is continually needing work. It is a never-ending job to keep a dirt road in even passable condition. It is like doing the chores on the farm, they must be gone over again and again and still remain to be looked after. The properly graded road, of course, is better than one poorly made, but at its best it is a continual worry and expense. Where very steep hills are on the roadway, ditches should be run off along the side to carry the water into the ditch and not allow it to run down to the bottom, carrying the soil with it and making a pool where it stops.

Much of the movement now for improved roads is for permanent roads. And, as stated above, these permanent roads although quite expensive at first, add much to the value of the lands and to the reputation of the farming districts. It has been much easier to populate a new farming section when it is known that permanent roads are coming soon or are already installed. A farm always sells better when the buyer can approach it on a substantial roadway. Those who are advocating good roads and permanent roads may not all live to see their ambitions satisfied, but they are starting a movement that will carry on to the coming generations and will be a blessing for those who live after the present improved road agitation.

SUPERIOR SYSTEM OF ROADS

In Every Section of Country Work is Progressing Favorably on Many Projects.

The time is rapidly passing when the bad roads of America can be pointed out as a reproach. In every section of the country work is in progress to give the United States a system of roads which will compare favorably with those of other countries. Roads are being built at 2,985 different points. Fully 30,000 miles of road have been approved by the secretary of agriculture. It is estimated that this construction will cost the country nearly $400,000,000. At the end of June, 1920, the government reported that 2,116 different projects or a total of 16,000 miles of roads had been completed.—Boys' Life.

ACCESSIBILITY TO MARKETS

Farm on Paved Road is Nearer to the City Than One Located on Impassable Highway.

The type of road over which a farmer must haul his crops determines his accessibility to markets. A farm many miles from the city, but if located on a paved road, is nearer to market than a farm separated from it by only a mile of impassable road. That is why the various reports of the United States weather bureau issued daily by the local state offices of the bureau, devote frequently their entire report to the subject of roads—a strange place, you'll say, to find an editorial promoting permanent highways, but it is there from time to time, nevertheless.

Streets of Glass.

In Geneva glass blocks are used to pave the streets. They are made from the refuse from the glass factories. They are pleasant to the eye and very durable.

Watch Breeding Flock.

Watch the breeding flock carefully and see that the fowls keep in good breeding condition.

Phosphate Improves.

Phosphate is the salt of the soil—a little makes a great improvement.

WHEN TO SELL HIS POTATO CROP IS FARMER'S GREATEST PROBLEM

Diagram Showing Range of Farm Prices of Potatoes by Months for Ten Years.

Whether to dispose of his potato crop direct from the fields or to hold it for possible later increase in price is a problem which confronts the farmer every fall. On the one hand is the higher offering prices based on the quantity and other conditions of the market, the tightness of money, and a number of related conditions which may depress the price. On the other he is confronted with the expense of storing, the shrinkage in volume, possibility of rot and the uncertainty of the number of bushels of potatoes which will be carried over by farmers throughout the United States to be thrown into the market during the winter.

It is a problem that has to be decided, because the crop is there. It is a problem that the farmer must decide for himself.

Lowest in October

Prices naturally are lowest in October, when the crop is just out of the ground. A study recently made by the bureau of markets of the United States Department of Agriculture, covering the last ten years, shows that the average price rises very slightly until the 1st of January, and then more rapidly until the 1st of March, another sharp advance taking place between April planting season and June.

These are only averages, however, and may be varied by many conditions which the farmer has to study largely for himself. Reasoning about future prices is unusually difficult at the present time.

A study of the general tendencies of the market, whether up or down, may be based on facts pertaining to the country as a whole. The supply may be less than usual in a certain country, but if the total crop is large the size of this total crop will have a tendency to lower prices even in this country of short production. Prices in that country may be high, but they will not be so high as they would have been if the total production of the country had not been so large. That is, the conclusions drawn from the broad and general information may be modified by local conditions in each section, but it remains true that each of these sections will be influenced by the up and down tendencies which move over the country as a whole. A grower should know the general situation in order to make proper allowances for local conditions, and he should not only study the potato market but should consider the size of the sweet potato and other food crops which may influence the demand and consumption of white potatoes. He must watch, too, the trend of general prices, especially food prices. If general prices should fall decidedly then the price of potatoes might be carried lower than the year's production would warrant.

The accompanying chart shows the farm prices of potatoes, averaged for all sections of the country on the first of each month from October, 1910, to September, 1920. In this table a comparison of the December and the following March prices show that in 1917 and 1918 the March prices were lower than the December prices, and in 1912 and 1914 they were slightly higher, although, allowing for shrinkage and other losses of storage, they really yielded a smaller return. That is, in all years having a production of more than 400,000,000 bushels, the March price was either lower than the December price, or the increase was negligible. When the production has been less than 375,000,000 bushels, the price has tended to increase as the season advances. The farmer may judge for himself whether the same factors will apply to the present year's crop, which is estimated at 413,000,000 bushels by the bureau of crop estimates, and he may apply his own conclusions in deciding when to sell his potatoes.

In comparing the prices of one year with those of another, allowance must be made for the rapid decrease during the last few years in the purchasing power of the dollar. For instance, $1.00 per bushel in 1919 and 80 cents per bushel in 1921 does not mean that potatoes were twice as valuable at the later date. The increase in price may have had nothing to do with the potato business. It may have come from the general rise which increased the price of wheat, clothing and machinery as well as potatoes. The effects of the general increase in prices must be eliminated from the calculation.

Potato Exports Small.

Before attempting to analyze the relations between the figures of production and stocks on the one hand and prices on the other, it should be mentioned that potatoes are not exported to any great extent, seldom more than 1 per cent of the crop being carried out of the country. No other potatoes are carried over from one season to another, as is the case with some crops. That is, the potato crop is practically all consumed in this country and each season's crop is a separate problem in itself.

This is one of the large potato crop years, and the way in which the question of time of marketing is settled by the individual farmer means an immense sum of money in the gross returns from one of the nation's leading crops. The wise grower will study every phase of conditions, and will follow the aids which are furnished by the crop and market reports of the United States Department of Agriculture.

MARKET INSPECTION PROTECTS SHIPPERS

Now Available in 25 Important Shipping Centers.

Well-Trained and Neutral Inspectors Provided to Certify Quality and Condition of Various Perishable Products.

Market inspection of fruits and vegetables by representatives of the bureau of markets of the United States Department of Agriculture is now available in 25 important market centers, and in addition about 150 smaller markets tributary to these have been designated as inspection points.

The purpose of this service is to provide a well-trained and neutral inspector or who will certify the quality and condition of various perishables upon their arrival in the market. Such certificates are received in the federal courts as prima facie evidence of quality and condition at the time of arrival in the market.

The value of the service has been to bring about a settlement of claims against railroads and as a basis of arbitration where dissatisfaction arises between shipper and receiver. It protects the shipper who is trading at long-distance from unscrupulous dealers, and it also furnishes a protection to honest dealers against the possibility of being considered unscrupulous. These inspections are made on request and there is a nominal charge of $4 a year for the service.

TRACTOR ESSENTIALS

If a farm tractor is to be profitable, the farmer who owns and operates it must provide the following conditions for success:

1. Work of a nature adapted to the use of a tractor.
2. A sufficient number of days of work in a year to reduce the cost of overhead charges per day.
3. Proper lubrication at all times.
4. Skill on the part of the operator to detect trouble at all times.
5. Knowledge of how to inspect the tractor.
6. Ability to make the necessary adjustments.
7. Provision of the proper farm implements to go with the tractor.

DECREASE NUMBER OF PESTS

By Destroying Hibernating Places of Insects in Winter Fight in Spring Is Easier.

The winter hibernating stage of most insects is a critical one, especially where their winter shelter has been removed. By destroying such hibernating places one simply increases the mortality of the pest and hence has a smaller number of insects to fight in the spring.

IMPLEMENT SHED IS NEEDED

Depreciation on Machinery Exposed to Weather Would Pay for Shelter in Short Time.

There is enough machinery on every farm to justify a good implement shed if the depreciation on machinery caused by exposure to weather could be saved it would pay for an implement shed in one or two years.

THE FIVE VICE COMMANDERS

New Legion Officers Are Particularly Well Fitted for the Places They Hold.

The national constitution of the American Legion calls for the election of five vice commanders, no two from the same state and not more than three from among the men who served in the army. The men chosen at the recent Legion convention not only fill the above requirements but are particularly fitted by their records for the places they hold.

John G. Emery is a native of Grand Rapids, Mich., being born and reared in that city. He is a real estate man, he entered the second officers' training camp at Fort Sheridan, Ill., and was commissioned captain of infantry. He went overseas shortly thereafter and served with the Eighteenth Infantry of the First Division. As a major, commanding a battalion he was severely wounded by shell fire. Mr. Emery was prominent in Legion circles in his home state from the early days and was one of the Legion committee that drew up the bill, passed later by the house, that would give a bonus to all service men.

THOMAS GOLDINGAY. One of the Legion Vice Commanders Was Made on First Steel Ship Ever Built in the United States.

Thomas Goldingay began his career as a sailor before the mast. Later he was mate of the first steel ship ever built in the United States. After giving up the sea he wandered through the United States and finally located in Newark, N. J. In 1894 he was one of the men who organized the naval reserve of New Jersey and became commanding officer of the Newark division, with the rank of lieutenant. He saw service in Cuban waters in 1906. In 1902 he entered business in Newark. During the World war he had the grade of lieutenant, senior grade, and served as gunnery officer on the U. S. S. Massachusetts. He has been state adjutant of the American Legion of New Jersey.

Claudius G. Pondill was born in Marquette, Mich. He was graduated from Michigan university in 1913. He is engaged in business in Racine, Wis. He enlisted May 8, 1917, as an apprentice seaman in the United States navy and received a commission as ensign May 1, 1918. He was assigned to the U. S. S. Oklahoma as signal officer and served in foreign waters from the summer of 1918 to December of that year. He was elected commander of Kenosha (Wis.) post in January, 1920.

James G. Serizhan was born in Lexington, Ky. He was graduated from the University of Kentucky in 1900, and received a degree of mechanical engineer in 1906. Since 1914 he has been dean of the engineering college of the University of Nevada. In 1917 he was made state engineer of Nevada. He was commissioned a major of artillery in December, 1917, and assigned as production engineer in the ordnance department at Washington. He served as commander of the Nevada division from May, 1919, until August, 1920, and has been a member of the national executive committee. His home is in Reno.

E. J. Winslett is a native of Indianapolis, Ind. He professed his service in the Legion by taking part in five major operations with American, French and British troops. He was wounded in action, and was attached to the general staff. He attended the first convention of the Legion in Paris, and on his return to Indiana organized five posts. His activity in his own state was recognized at the Cleveland convention by the support of all sections of the South in his candidacy for vice commander.

But He's on His Way.

Uncle Tom arrived at the station with the coat he was to ship north, but the freight agent was having difficulty in billing him.

"What's this coat's destination, uncle?" he asked.

"I say, what's his destination? Where's he going?"

Uncle Tom searched carefully for the tag. A bit of frayed cord was all that remained.

"That ornery gent!" he exploded wrathfully. "You know, sir, that tag (one) coat rope completely or up his destination!"—American Legion Week.

LESSON OF CHRISTMAS DAY

Example of Christ Should Inspire Unselfishness and Make Us Try to Remedy Faults.

Christmas should inspire a world of unselfishness. The example before us is almost too perfect, for it rather frightens us to attempt such divine heights of self-sacrifice, but we can try. It will at least take us from the depths of selfishness, where most of us now are. Each Christmas day should teach us something of the lesson of the Holy Child's life.

If we could learn from Christmas, today and in the succeeding years the serious lessons of self-betterment and enlightenment it has to offer, how infinitely better it would be than just to look on it as a holiday for gifts and feasts, for extravagance and foolishness.

So take an hour or two off on Christmas day and give it up to retrospection and self-inspection. You will find each and fault, if you judge yourself impartially, for no one is perfect. Then make a serious determination to try to overcome those faults, for only trying to improve is there any growth in character. If you are satisfied with yourself you stay just as you are with all your faults and virtues. But if you try hard to remedy the faults your character is constantly growing broader. This is the lesson which Christmas day has for each of you.
