INTERESTING DESCRIPTION OF TRIP TO CALIFORNIA

The following letter was written to the members of the Bay View Reading Circle, by Mrs. G. W. Palmer, a member of the Circle:

Lodi, Calif. November 8, 1920.
Dear Bay View: This is Monday and I am wondering where you will meet tonight, and if can be possible that it is cold and stormy in Chelsea, for it is so nice and warm here.

I wonder if you will care for a few notes on our journey to this pretty little community.

The most tiresome part of our trip
was between Ann Arbor and Chicago.
Leaving Chicago at 10:30 p. m.
brought us into new scenes the next morning and we were rested and ready to rubber-neck at the diversified scenery. The grain standing out but being gathered and threshed
were explained when we saw the numbers of elevators and flouring mills at St. Paul and Minneapolis, one would think enough to supply the whole world. Then the acres of sugar beets stacked up and, and the train-loads along the roads of the north of the northwest, then here in California acres and acres again, it would seem that we ought to get all the sugar we wanted for five cents a pound, and then not be able to use it all.

It is wonderful what changes of scenery one will see in a few hours ride. The Mississippi river on the one side, the high, rocky bluffs on the other side of our train kept us changing our seats, as we could, for Perry and Anna had their section
across from us.

I thought how great and how grand
is nature.

Coming to the Rocky Mountains we were drawn by two engines and pushed by another; then I thought how terrible and awful are the works of the Lord.

After leaving Spokane a few miles
the outlook was more monotonous, sage brush and rock, although it was said the prettiest part was passed in the night.

Pasco, Washington, was reached Sunday noon, our first stop-over. Here we were agreeably surprised, as we had rode all the forenoon through an uninhabited country. We were carried to a hotel that surpasses any that Jackson, Ann Arbor or Ypsilanti has, and we had a choice of two equally good. I speak of this because of our surprise. Let me say right here that we found it pleasanter to stop off nights and ride daytime;
sometimes the schedule of trains will not allow; but we were in no hurry.

We stayed in Pasco two days and enjoyed it. The apples grown there cannot be beat.

We reached the wonderful city of Seattle late in the evening, and found a hotel. The next morning we crossed the bay to Bremerton, a naval yard where Anna's nephew is in service.

After returning to the hotel, Mr.
and Mrs. Hoppe, their little daughter and Aunt Polly came to call on us,
as we had made the appointment.
We visited as fast as we could for there were so many questions to answer. Some of you know Lillian Gerard. She said on going, "I know I haven't asked all the questions I want to." Yes, they all look well and seem very happy. The next day Dr.
Palmer and I took in the city; five lakes inside the limits, navigable for large boats. The university grounds are fine; parks and drives are full of beautiful shrubbery and flowers. In the evening we went to the Pantheons,
a popular entertainment, and we enjoyed it, clean and different from any thing we had ever seen. We would like to have had a little more time in Seattle, as there were a number of people there we would like to have met.

Tacoma was the next city we visited; a fine rival to Seattle. We preferred Seattle. As it was foggy at Tacoma and we could not see it at its best. Again we attended the Pan-theons, and when we returned to our hotel we were asked to operate the elevator. I preferred to mount the stairway, but Dr. Palmer insisted that I ride with him, and we landed safe.
A simple electric device, perfectly safe.

The next evening brought us to Portland, Oregon. "The City of Roses." This city is more like our eastern cities in many respects. We visited many points of interest during the day and in the evening visited our favorite place of amusement.
Please do not think we are getting daffy on this point, when I say this was the finest of them all.

By leaving Portland in the evening
we would be able to see Mt. Shasta by daylight, and it was worth the effort. For six hours we rode in sight of this snow covered mountain peak,
passing through green alfalfa fields
and fine fruit orchards, making grades that required extra engines to draw as well as push, often seeing the engine ahead and the one behind on the short curves; running through tunnels and cuts through solid rock.
We did not climb Mt. Shasta, but the Shasta Range. Sometimes it seemed very near, but six miles was the nearest point. We were the full six hours in plain sight of the mountain

BANDIT HOLDS UP LADY FRIDAY NIGHT

Mrs. Reuben Grieb Was Robbed While
On Her Way Home.

At last the bandit has turned himself loose here, and Mrs. Reuben Grieb, who lives several miles south of Chelsea, was the victim.

Mrs. Grieb had been trading in the village and started for home just after dark, Friday evening, and while on the Territorial road between Main street and the Manchester road was held up by an man who stepped out from behind a string of gravel cars
and struck her in the face and demanded her money. When she told she had no money he again struck her in the face, and she handed him a $10 bill. Mrs. Grieb is unable to describe the man.

and moving all of the time. I was really glad when we reached Shasta Springs, where we stopped thirty minutes for "refreshments," a drink
of water that smelled bad and tasted worse.

One more night's ride and we were in Sacramento, then Lodi, our destination.

Our reception was most cordial,
a fine dinner awaiting us; trunks in our rooms; vases of roses and baskets of fruit everywhere. "A little taste of Heaven" for tired travelers, although we did not feel weary, as we had taken our time—ten days—on the way.

We happened in the right time to see vineyards and vineyards loaded with the choicest grapes, but millions of tons have been gathered since we came.

We had a pleasant journey, nothing to make us afraid; fine sleeps and good eats.

The ocean beaches are fine; pine covered mountain roads are very scenic; climate like June.

ning at the home of Miss Milda

LAST OF GRASS LAKE BANK ROBBERS CHANGE PLEA

George Comfort and Lester Bacon
last of the six bandits who robbed the Grass Lake bank, July 29, and were captured after a battle in which Undersheriff Harry Worden was killed, Tuesday afternoon withdrew their pleas of not guilty and substituted
pleas of guilty.

After a joint trial of the two had started last week, a mistrial was declared on the report that one of the jurors had been approached by a relative of Bacon.

Examination of jurors for the new trial started Monday and the work of securing a jury was in progress when the unexpected announcement was made.

CHURCH CIRCLES.

THE NEED OF THE HOUR.

By Rev. H. R. Beatty.

No student of present day world conditions doubts for a moment that the world at large is in the most unsettled condition of all its history.
Before a sweet toned bell can be cast
the metal that is to enter into it must become molten. Who can doubt that under the seething cauldron of the world's discontent, non discourt-agement nor retrogression, but restlesness born out of an intense desire to climb upward into better things, the fire burns because fed by the Word
and Spirit of the Lord God.

In state we have had our Cromwell,
our Garibaldi, our Washington and our Lincoln; in church our Luther,
our Savonarola, our Wesley and our Knox. The need of this hour is men possessed with the consuming passion and commanding influence of these stalwart giants of the past.

Would thinking men consider asking China or Turkey to come with their spirit and philosophy of life and conceptions of human relationships and settle for us the difficulties that now exist? Emphatically no, for we have long since learned that what they possess and would foster is the very antithesis of what the world today needs.

The religious faith of the Turks is the determining factor in making him what he is. This is true in every life. The need of this hour is men who are truly religious in the Christian sense.

What is meant by being religious?
To be truly religious a man will receive the Spirit of God, accept the wisdom of God and in the fear of God carry out his religion in his everyday life. When office holder and private citizen, when ministry and laity are truly religious the needs of the hour will largely be filled. Religion is the only means by which the needs of the hour can be met.

UPDIKE & MURPHY

BREVITIES

Jackson—Mrs. Mary Penny, believed to be the oldest person in Jackson county, died here Friday night at the home of a daughter, aged 102 years, 5 months and 19 days, death being the result of a recent fall. Mrs. Penny had been a resident of Jackson for 60 years.

Grass Lake—The Grass Lake Improvement club held its annual election of officers last week, resulting as follows: President, J. M. Rohrer; vice president, A. W. Davis; secretary, B. C. Carter; treasurer, W. A. Shelly. The election was followed by a luncheon and a pleasant social evening.

Jackson—Because it was believed Bacon's wife had communicated with a member of the jury, a mistrial was declared last Thursday in the case of Lester Bacon and George Comfort, on trial jointly in circuit court for complicity in the robbery of the Grass Lake bank, July 29. The work of empanelling a new jury began at once. Four others have been convicted of the robbery and the murder of Harry Warden, under sheriff, and are now serving life sentences at Marquette.

Jackson—Donations to charitable institutions in Jackson last week from school children include 378 quarts of canned fruit, 590 quarts of canned vegetables, 531 glasses of jelly, quantities of tea, coffee and sugar, 78 bushels of potatoes, 72 bushels of apples, 16 sacks of onions, many articles of clothing, besides $80.20 in money. It is an annual custom in Jackson for the school children, about Thanksgiving time, to bring to their schools donations of food or garments for the worthy poor.

Brooklyn—Those who travel the Chicago turnpike through this section report it in the best condition they have ever seen it. It is the result of the patrol system of upkeep. One section from Somerset east to the first corner east of Cambridge Junction. The next section is patrolled from Clinton. Wheel scrapers are being used, drawn by two horses and the road is floated after each rain and at other intervals. In this way the dirt road is kept in almost as good condition as the better gravelled sections.—Brooklyn Exponent.

Brighton—Perhaps it may interest some of our readers to learn that what is now the thriving little village of Brighton was once called Ore Creek. That was way back in the early '40's when Indians could frequently be seen coming into the town on their ponies with baskets for sale; and in those days wild game abounded in the forests about here, and occasionally a bear or deer that had wandered too near to the settlement was killed by our hunters. In those early days one of our pioneer settlers received a letter from a brother in the east, addressed in this manner: Brighton, Ore Creek P. O., Right in Livingston Co. I wish good luck to Warren Back, a respectable man, in Michigan.—Brighton Argus.

Jackson—Seeing a man hold up two fingers in a soft drink stand here Saturday night, two investigators of the state constabulary who were passing through on the interurban, dropped into the place across from the station, made the same signal and were promptly passed out two glasses of a strong liquor which they took away with them. A report was made immediately to the local detachment and a raid was made on the place. John Cox, alleged proprietor, refused to open the closet from which the liquor was brought out and the troopers broke the in door. Cox was arrested. A quantity of Jamaica ginger, "Sonny Stomach Bitters," and "Grand Dad's Tonic," were confiscated. Four men found drunk in the place were arrested.

Brooklyn—A carload of cider, 66 barrels of it was dumped on the ground by a state inspector at the Brooklyn freight yard last week. The shipment is said to have been sent east a month or two ago as preserved sweet cider from the Jones mill in this place. The cider was a year old and something went wrong with it. The shipment was refused by the consignees and was returned to Brooklyn where it was refused by Mr. Jones who disclaimed ownership. The railroad company sent for an inspector who upon test found that it contained four per cent alcohol and was unfit for vinegar. He dumped the cider on the ground and the railroad has retained the barrels to secure a part in the freight charges.—Brooklyn Exponent.

Ann Arbor—Albert Slotnick, a sophomore in the literary college of the University of Michigan, whose home is in Rochester, N. Y., has been expelled from the University after having been convicted in the Wash-tonaw circuit court of unlawfully selling liquor in Ann Arbor on the night of November 13. Slotnick admitted his guilt and paid a fine of $210 for having sold the quart of liquor he claimed he brought with him for medicinal purposes. According to Slotnick's story, he overheard a man say he wished he had a drink of whisky, and he followed the man down the street and finally got his ear long enough to tell him that he had a quart of whisky which he would sell for $14. The man accompanied him to his room, bought the liquor and then arrested him. He was a plain clothes officer.

Dead Men's Shoes

By Ottilia F. Pfeiffer

(Copyright, 1920, Western Newspaper Union.)

Old Zeb Bearce would have been glad if he had not laid down in the grass. His inclination was to be indulgent and think the best possible of everybody. Two young men were conversing not ten feet away. They were Mat Devlin and Todd Burr.

"Oh, yes," the former was remarking just as Bearce woke up, "father says that old Uncle Zeb looks like ready money."

"Yes, they say he has a lot of cash in the bank," said Todd Burr. "Then there's the old place. Father hopes to get that. I suppose he and your father will grab the cash and divide."

"We are the nearest relatives, my pop says, but we are getting mighty tired waiting for dead men's shoes."

"How about Nettie Danvers?" prodded Todd.

"Oh! she doesn't count. Uncle Zeb has of course adopted her, but that doesn't make her legal kin. Besides that, she's engaged to marry Lewis Thorpe."

A deep shade of sadness crossed Zeb Bearce's wrinkled face as he crept from his covert. He was hurt to the soul. The young men undoubtedly reflected the sentiments of their elders, and the cruel expression, "dead men's shoes," cut Bearce to the quick. He was dying too slowly to suit his avaricious half brothers, it seemed, for dying he was. The doctor had told him that his span of life was a narrow one.

"You look troubled, father," said Nettie, as he entered the house.

"I shan't be long in your company, dear," he replied, and his heart warmed towards the young girl whom he had adopted ten years ago, and whose love and loyalty had made his barren life a garden of peace and beauty. He lay awake half the night planning what he would do in the light of the development that his nephews had revealed. As to Nettie, free from guile, she reflected how Lewis Thorpe would provide a little home of their own, not half a mile from the old homestead, where her beloved father by adoption could come daily, and whence she could send this end that little tidbit for his table.

The next morning Bearce went down to the bank. Then he proceeded to his lawyer's office, but the attorney was out of town. "I can wait until tomorrow, I suppose," he decided. "I must attend to the matter of the will then, though. I shan't feel easy until Nettie is settled in her rights."

Every afternoon when Bearce got ready to come into the house for the evening, Nettie set his favorite arm chair near the west window and at the end of his bed a pair of house shoes that were soft and pliable and gave welcome rest to his tired feet. As usual he began unlacing his walking shoes while Nettie went to prepare the supper meal. She was startled at the echo of a faint cry and a heavy fall. She ran into the sitting room to find Bearce lying helpless on the carpet.

"It's come, dear," he spoke weakly. "Telephone the doctor." She managed to get him to a couch and chafed his hands and administered a cordial, but when the doctor arrived Bearce was barely conscious.

"Bend nearer," he gasped to Nettie. "Dead men's shoes—that was what those cruel boys said! How thoughtful you have been all these years, having my house shoes always ready for me. And they must be yours, only I have left my will unmade. You was to have the place here. Dead men's shoes!" and old Zeb Bearce drifted into the dream that knows no awakening.

The farm was claimed and taken possession of by the two half brothers. They found only a few hundred dollars in cash and some small securities in the house, deciding that they had overestimated the liquid wealth of Bearce. They proceeded to sell the old homestead, and when they practically turned Nettie out of it, all she asked for and took away was the old house shoes. Fortunately Lewis Thorpe was ready to wed her at once, so she simply transferred her personal belongings to a home of her own.

The old house shoes Nettie reverently placed at the side of the sitting room hearth. They reminded her tenderly of the old man who had so loved her, and her husband shared her interest and sentiment. He had the misfortune to lose his position, however, six months after they were married, and they were really in hard stress for a time. He came home limping one afternoon from a long tramp in quest of work.

"Poor dear!" soothed his thoughtful wife, and she saw to it that his bruised feet were bathed and covered with a healing lotion. Then she brought the old house shoes to his side. "They are soft and roomy," she told him. "Put them on, father would have it so if he were here."

"Something in the toe of this one," observed Thorpe, as he got ready to fit on the shoes. "Why, Nettie, look at that!" and he drew from one of the shoes a wadded up roll. Opening it, he revealed to their mutual amazed view half a dozen thousand dollar bills and a written sheet conveying the same legally to Nettie.

"Dead men's shoes, and we let them go!" growled John Burr when the story came out. "We waited for them a long time, but the clever old fox outwitted us at the last!"

DEAR OLD PETE:

Winston-Salem, N. C.
Friday p. m.

Just wound up the one swellest day of my life! Since early this morning, when I got an invitation to visit R. J. Reynolds Tobacco Co. factories, I've been in the midst of millions of Camel cigarettes.

Man—the happiest idea you or I ever had as to the size of this Reynolds enterprise, or the number of Camels manufactured daily, is simply piker-stuff! Wipe off the slate and start fresh! Why—Pete, it seemed to me like a couple of those cigarette-making machines could keep half the nation smoking Camels steadily—BUT—honest to goodness, there are hundreds of these machines batting out Camels at the rate of 27,000 an hour—EACH!

Pete, you wouldn't have to consult a guide book to know you were in the Camel factories! The atmosphere is charged with that wonderful aroma you get when you open up a deck of Camels! And, you know, old elephant—you've had a trunk full!

As the Camels dropped into the containers I figured the delight each one would supply! And, how Camels mellow, mild body would hit the right spot and how Camels refreshing flavor would cheer up some smoker's jaded appetite! And, each Camel free from any unpleasant cigarette aftertaste or unpleasant cigarette odor!

Pete—I'll have to lay off and light another Camel! Write you some more soon.

Yours joyously

DISCOVERY CAME TOO LATE

Detective Forced to Admit He Was Slow in Ferreting Out Gross Case of Fraud.

While they waited for the train two passengers got into conversation. Presently one disclosed the fact that he was a detective, and the other was naturally greatly interested.

"I suppose you have an exciting time?" he exclaimed.

"Yes, I must say I have had my share of it," owned the sleuth.

"Discovered a great many gigantic frauds, I suppose?" invited the other, hoping for strange yarns to while away the time.

"I should say so," the detective replied. Between you and me, the most complete case of fraud I ever saw was a woman, young and pretty. I would have been ready to swear she was an angel. But she has a temper like a whirlwind, and is as cunning as a serpent."

"How did you discover her true character?"

"I married her."

Obliging.
"My wife will burrow trouble."
"Send her over here, then. We have plenty we can lend her."

DAIRY

GOOD OF BULL ASSOCIATIONS

Experience Shows That Organizations Are Adapted to Every Kind of Dairy Community.

Are you one of those who think a bull association cannot be formed in a community like yours? asks the United States Department of Agriculture. If so, probably you are mistaken, for experience shows that the bull associations are adaptable to nearly every kind of dairy community that can be found. The annual report of the dairy division shows that there are now about 120 bull associations in 30 different states of the Union, and among all classes of communities.

The extension men of the dairy division find that in very many cases, when the idea of a bull association is discussed, people think that, while such an organization is clearly a good thing on general principles, the conditions in their particular community are not suitable. Many times, in such places, it has been tried, and to the surprise of some it has been found that the conditions did not stand in the way at all. There are many such communities. They have men engaged in dairying; they have scrub or other inferior bulls which should be replaced; and they have the need for better bulls.

Any community in which there are 200 or more cows can better afford to have a bull association than it can afford to be without one; and if the people of the community are neighbors and able to work together in every-day business affairs, they can just as well have a strong association with all its benefits.

CARE FOR BREEDING CATTLE

Have Both Cows and Herd Bull in Good Physical Condition to Insure Uniform Calf Crop.

If it is desired to have calves dropped in the fall or early winter months—November—the cows should be bred in February and March. One way to insure a uniform calf crop is to have both the breeding cows and herd bull in good physical condition at this time. A herd bull that has been left with the wintering herd to shift for himself is, as a rule, in poor condition when the breeding season arrives, and the chances are that he will not be a sure, vigorous sire.

The ration for the herd bull should consist of a liberal amount of roughage, such as corn silage, legume hay, stover, or straw, and in most instances, unless in good condition, a small allowance of grain. The breeding cows should be healthy and vigorous at time of calving, otherwise they should receive in addition to a liberal supply of silage, legume hay, or other roughage, and a small amount of grain, in order that they may give sufficient milk to nourish the calves properly and at the same time maintain their own condition.

COLOR PREFERRED IN BUTTER

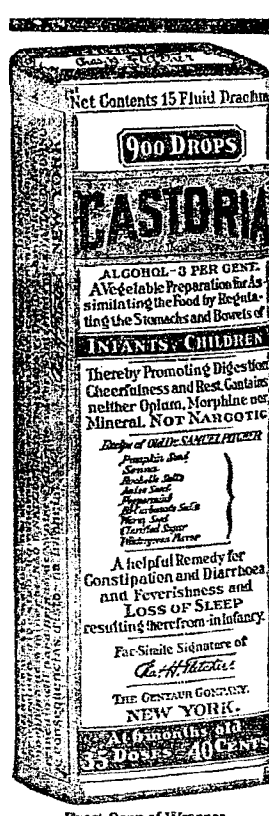

That Which is Not Too Pale Is Generally Favored—Quality Not Always Affected.

The color of good butter should be clear and even throughout. Although the shade of the color does not always affect the quality of the butter, preference is generally given to that which is not too pale in color. When the cream is churned at too high a temperature, the butter comes quickly, but loses much of its natural color. Churning at too low a temperature, and consequently for too long a time, also destroys the color of the butter produced. Color in butter is often spoiled through overwashing or overworking it. Butter is of a pale color from sweet cream than from ripened, as in the former case there is more buttermilk in the finished product.

FOR CLEANING MILK BOTTLES

Cold or Lukewarm Water Prevents Hardening and Sticking of Albumen and Casein.

When milk bottles are allowed to stand, the curd hardens on them and it is almost as difficult to remove as when it is burned on by the use of hot water. If it is necessary to let your milk bottles stand for any length of time, it is best to pour cold, or lukewarm water into them, which will prevent the hardening and sticking of the albumen and casein. Then, when it comes time to wash them, lukewarm water can be used followed by hot water, boiling water or live steam. By this method, the bottles will be clean, and all bacteria will be killed by the hot water.

If You Need a Medicine
You Should Have the Best

Have you ever stopped to reason why it is that so many products that are extensively advertised, all at once drop out of sight and are soon forgotten? The reason is plain—the article did not fulfill the promises of the manufacturer. This applies more particularly to a medicine. A medicinal preparation that has real curative value almost sells itself, as like an endless chain system the remedy is recommended by those who have been benefited, to those who are in need of it.

A prominent druggist says "Take for example Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, a preparation I have sold for many years and never hesitate to recommend, for in almost every case it shows excellent results, as many of my customers testify. No other kidney remedy has so large a sale."

According to sworn statements and verified testimony of thousands who have used the preparation, the success of Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root is due to the fact, so many people claim, that it fulfills almost every wish in overcoming kidney, liver and bladder ailments; corrects urinary troubles and neutralizes the uric acid which causes rheumatism.

You may receive a sample bottle of Swamp-Root by Parcel Post. Address Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., and enclose ten cents; also mention this paper. Large and medium size bottles for sale at all drug stores.—Adv.

Popular applause is noisier than popular criticism, but the latter is heard quite as distinctly.

Freshen a Heavy Skin

Mrs. Hicks Relieved
By Four Eatonics

"I have taken four Eatonics tablets and they relieved me of sour stomach. I recommend it to everybody," says Mrs. G. P. Hicks.

If stomach is not digesting your food; if you have sourness, bloating, food repeating, indigestion or acid stomach, Eatonics will remove the cause by taking up and carrying out the acidity and gases, bringing quick relief and healthy digestion. Why suffer stomach trouble? Why not keep your digestion normal and enjoy good health? An Eatonics taken after each meal will prevent discomfort and pain.

Make the test today and see how quickly this wonderful remedy acts. It comes in handy tablet form. Carry it with you. A big box costs only a trifle with your druggist's guarantee.

The finding of the chief engineer was confirmed by the utilities commission, and the interurban company was ordered to install a bell and wig-wag system within 90 days, and in the meantime to slow down all cars to eight miles an hour at this point.

PRESIDENT WILSON SETS DEC. 21 AS DAY FOR CELEBRATION

My Fellow Countrymen: Dec. 21 next will mark the tercentenary of the landing of the Pilgrims at Plymouth in 1620. The day will be becomingly celebrated at Plymouth under the auspices of the Plymouth Pilgrim Tercentenary commission and at other localities in Massachusetts. While this is proper and praiseworthy, it seems to me that the influences which the ideals and principles of the Pilgrims with respect to civil liberty and human rights have had upon the formation and growth of our development and progress as a nation merit more than a local expression of our obligation, and more fitting a nationwide observance of the day.

I, therefore, suggest and request that the 21st day of December next be observed throughout the union with special patriotic services, in order that the great events in American history that have resulted from the landing of these hardy and courageous navigators and colonists may be accentuated to the present generation of American citizens. Especially do I recommend that the day be fittingly observed in the universities, colleges and schools of our country, to the end that salutary and patriotic lessons may be drawn from the fortitude and perseverance and the ideals of this little band of church men and women who established on this continent the first self-determined government based on the great principle of just law and its equal application to all, and thus planted the seeds from which has sprung the mighty nation.

In witness whereof, I have hereunto set my hand and caused the seal of the United States to be affixed, done in the District of Columbia the fourth day of August in the year of our Lord on thousand nine hundred and twenty, and of the independence of the United States of America the one hundred and forty-fifth.

WOODROW WILSON.

Russian Painters Thriving.

"Art," so far as the production of pictures is concerned, is said to have had a great boom in bolshevist Russia owing to the fact that the government pays a liberal amount for all works approved by official experts.

The whole domain of art has been placed under the control of a council of seven members, four of whom are apostles of futurism. Artists' earnings have been increased through a rule established by the council under which all pictures that pass the judges are to be paid for at the uniform rate of 7,000 rubles each.

Whether the artist has devoted months of assiduous labor to a picture or whether it is a dab which has taken a few hours to paint, the recompense is the same. With such encouragement the number of artists in Russia is increasing rapidly.

Have Pains?

Aches and pains seem to be the lot of the ordinary mortal. However, these should be taken simply as nature's warning signals that some part of the human machine is out of order. It is a mistake to resign one's self to physical torture when the cause can be removed.

Foley Kidney Pills

tone up weak, inactive, sluggish kidneys and help rid the blood of poisons, waste matter that causes such aches and pains in arms and legs, backache, rheumatic pains, sore muscles, stiff or swollen joints.

One bottle of Foley Kidney Pills completely relieved me. The pains left my back. I recommend Foley Kidney Pills to my friends."

"John Smith"

By Alvah J. Garth

It was like a colony of ants suddenly disturbed by an upheaval of the family hill. If some one had dropped a bomb into the one industrial plant of Crofton it could not have caused more general disorder. For twenty-five years manager for John Rolfe, a city millionaire, James Dustin had died, and there was not an employee who did not feel that the even, pleasant tenor of his life was about to be disrupted.

The Star Cereal Mills represented an investment of the Rolfe family, to which, amid multifarious holdings, they paid little attention. James Dustin was a relative of the family, and the business was started primarily to find a place for him. He had filled it well, he had poured liberal dividends uninterruptedly into the Rolfe coffers. Possessed of a helpful, sympathetic spirit, he had built up about him homes that were happy, hearts that loved and revered him.

There had been some dissatisfaction among the employees for a year preceding the death of Dustin. He had been falling for some time and had to take long vacations. A distant relative had appeared on the scene. He was a man about thirty-five, with a shrewd, foxy face, shifty eyes and a boastful, overbearing manner that awed the timid and irritated those who saw deeper into the shallow nature. Great Varney was able to influence some big orders for the concern, but outside of that did little but disturb the perfect system that Dustin had inaugurated.

"Too slow, altogether too slow," Varney had commented. "This line goes to be a regular tip Van Winkle establishment. For the one that put the 'fish' into efficiency in the biggest wholesale fur house in Chicago, and I'd like now to put 'man' into management here. You've got too many fossils in the payroll. I'd do big things if I was in charge."

There was only one possible rival in the race for promotion, and this was Walter Barton. He was just of age, his father had been one of the first employees in the business, and the son had filled his place after his death. Dustin had advanced him rapidly, and but for his youth he would have been selected as assistant instead of Varney. His sister, Gloria, a beautiful girl of eighteen, had been his guide and genius in home life and in encouraging his humble ambitions to get on in the world.

Gloria Barton had little interest in those of the opposite sex. One day, however, there was a token of more than ordinary interest in her eyes as Walter came into the house, bidding good-by to a young man whom she had never seen before.

"Who was that?" she inquired.

"John Smith, representing Mr. Rolfe through his lawyers," replied Walter. "He has just come to look over the mills. He has been asking about the business two hours with Varney."

The information stirred up Gloria more than she betrayed. Perhaps the whole future business career of her beloved brother depended upon the decision of this very unknown stranger with a very common name. She was openly surprised and secretly glad when there appeared at the little cottage the next morning John Smith in person.

He introduced himself in a friendly, pleasant manner that impressed her at once. She invited him into the house and was almost dumfounded as he said at once:

"Miss Barton, I feel that I can trust you with a secret and I must impart the same to you, in order to obtain your counsel and co-operation, which I very much need. I am not Mr. John Smith, but Allen Rolfe, the son of the owner of the mills here. My purpose in coming under a false name is to learn just how affairs stand here, as an outsider. I must tell you that Crofton has been a sort of hobby with my father. He loves to dream of this quiet, happy little community of workers whom he has benefited, and perhaps some day he may retire to it as a sort of Arcadia in his old age. The financial end is substantial; it has always been so. His main thought is of preserving the business with happy, contented workers; a sort of oasis in the midst of the usually arid business desert. Your father was a pioneer in our service. Your brother and yourself are probably more familiar with the situation than any others. Please be frank and open with me in advising entirely on the side of those in our service."

It was three hours later when Allen Rolfe left the Barton home. He had been charmed by the intelligence and straightforwardness of this lovely hostess as he contrasted her kindly, unselfish regard for the wellbeing of the mill workers with the prejudices and personal aggrandizement of Varney. The young man made up his mind fully as to what he would decide regarding the new management.

Huntly he told Varney that he would recommend Walter Barton for the vacant post. The outwitted schemer submitted to the fates with his usual self-negativity. He glanced out at his diminutive car on the street.

"All right," he observed. "I fancy I had better put the 'run' into my run-about, and hunt a new job."

And Allen Rolfe turned his thoughts in a new direction. "I'm glad I came," he told himself—"glad for father's sake, and that of the pretty sister of our new manager."

Jackson—Fire broke out in the Francis street school here shortly after noon Tuesday, believed to have been caused by defective chimney. The 550 children were marched out in the fire drill in 55 seconds without excitement. Damage to the building was confined largely to the roof which was badly burned. The flames were under control within a few minutes of the time of the arrival of the fire department.

Ann Arbor—Thursday evening, at the home of the bride's parents, Miss Johanna Klapaak of this city, was married to Nilkanth Chavre of Sshahupuri, Kolhapur, India. The Rev. A. W. Staiker performed the ceremony. Mr. Chavre was a student in engineering in the University of Michigan, and here met his bride, who was a student in the University School of Music. Mr. Chavre is a Hindu. His bride is a Christian. Mr. Chavre is a Brahman, the highest of the Hindu castes. Mr. and Mrs. Chavre will sail from New York for London about the middle of December, and from thence to India for a two years' honeymoon, which will also be combined with business, as Mr. Chavre will be educational propagandist for an American automobile concern.—Ann Arbor Times News.

WRITTEN GUARANTEE

Backs Every Ray Battery!

The Ray Battery is backed by this written two-year unconditional guarantee, calling for no "adjustments" or carrying no "riders" of any nature (with the exception only of wreckage by accident to the car or freezing). A copy of this unconditional guarantee, dated and signed, goes with every Ray Battery.

It has never before been possible to back any battery with such a guarantee. The fact that we can put such a guarantee back of the Ray is conclusive evidence that the Lavier Formula plate represents the greatest advance in battery construction since the invention of the first wet cell motor car battery.

This guarantee gives you positive, written assurance that the first cost of your Ray Battery will be the only expense chargeable to your battery for at least two years—of continuous, uninterrupted satisfactory service FROM your battery for two years from date of purchase—at least. With ordinary care it should serve you many years.

The Lavier Formula makes possible material savings in time and costs of production of the battery plates. These savings we are passing on to you. With the Samson Model "M" tractor on the job for all your heavy belt-power work you will not need a heavy stationary engine. It is a regular power plant in itself.

SAMSON
Model "M" Tractor

The Tractor For All Year Use

If you will judge the Samson Tractor by the value of its utility you will quickly appreciate why so many farmers in this locality have purchased them. The Samson Model M is more than just a power plant for plowing or silo filling. It can be utilized nearly every month of the year. It will save money in nearly every operation of your farm work.

In the Spring, the Samson is the ideal machine for seed-bed preparation. It pulls a two or three-bottom plow—a tandem disc harrow—two twenty-foot spike-tooth harrows—two four-horse grain drills. In the Summer, the Samson makes easy work of threshing. In the Fall, it will furnish all the power for silo filling, harvesting and be ready to do an early job of Fall plowing.

In the Winter weather, the Samson is right on the job for wood sawing and all other heavy duty winter belt jobs.

We are only allowed a limited number for this territory. If you want a Samson on or before April 1st place your order now.

Let us show you a Samson running an eight-roll corn husker, 160 bushels per hour and doing it easy.
