CAUGHT SIXTEEN POUND PIKE

William Oesterle and Albert Stone have been fishing at Blind lake the past week and have had excellent luck, including a sixteen pound pickerel in their catch.

Tuesday evening they gave a fish supper and invited J. F. Alber and F. S. Guebel to help them "clean-up" the big pickerel, which was roasted for the occasion. The boys say: "There are multitudes of fish at Blind lake—and some big ones too!" But we are inclined to believe that knowing how has a great deal to do with catching the piscatorial elephants.

OLIVE LODGE F. & A. M.

CELEBRATES FOUNDING

Fine Banquet in Honor Fifty Sixth Anniversary of Local Order.

Olive Lodge No. 156 F. & A. M. celebrated the 56th anniversary of the founding of the local lodge last evening with a fine banquet at Masonic hall.

Rev. P. W. Dierberger was toast-master and the principal address of the evening was made by Roscoe Bonisteel of Ann Arbor. Other speakers were William Schultz of Ann Arbor; D. B. Taylor of Lansing and Rev. H. R. Beatty.

Mr. Taylor joined Olive lodge in 1884 when M. J. Noyes was master and is one of the "old-timers."

Mrs. A. A. Palmer sang two pleasing selections, and Smith's orchestra of Manchester furnished the other music.

IT MIGHT BE WORSE!

The Washtenaw Post waxes exceedingly wroth in this week's issue because the Saline road has been "torn-up" for the past six months.

"Well, don't get so rough, brother; it might be worse! Witness the condition of the Territorial road, Federal Aid project No. 35, portions of which near the county line in West Sylvan having been 'torn-up' since the fall of 1919. A large portion of the road between Chelsea and Lima Center has been closed and 'torn-up' since early last spring, nearly a year, long before the last spring snow storm.

Sylvan people long ago ceased to rant about the condition of their good road project—they're beguiling themselves with thoughts of the time when the road will be finished and a smooth asphalt-cement surfaced highway is available for east and west traffic through this township.

CHRISTINE MAGDALINA HOUCK

Christine Magdalena Wurster was born in Germany, February 13, 1835, and died at her home in Sharon, Sunday afternoon, January 9, 1921, following a long illness.

Houck in 1866 and to this union nine children were born, seven of whom survive their mother. She was a member of Zion church, Rogers Corners. The funeral was held from the house at one o'clock, Wednesday afternoon, Rev. Thieme conducting the service. Interment at Manchester.

AUTO BUNTED TRAIN

Mrs. M. E. Walker of Howell was painfully bruised about her shoulder and side Monday morning when an automobile in which she was riding ran into the side of a Grand Trunk passenger train at the depot crossing in Pinckney. Her son, Verne Walker, was driving into Pinckney with a passenger for the 7:20 train south, and was late. He saw the train coming as he drove into town and attempted to beat it to the depot, but misjudged the distance and speed of the train and hit it head-on. Others in the car, besides Mrs. Walker, were not much injured; nor the car seriously damaged.

PISO'S

DEFEATED

By EDWARD BRONSON.

(Copyright.)

When the chairman of the inspection board announced the closing of the polls, Almsworth, who stood just within the rail, was conscious of a quick thrill of anxiety and doubt. His reason told him that his plurality of a year before was an earnest of success, but his instinct warned him of failure. He felt his clear and honest against the ralling with studied carelessness. He wished to keep his face expressionless during the count. Directly opposite him stood the Tammany captain, and he knew that the Tammany inspectors were watching him as they prepared their tally sheets. He could suppress any sign of exultation if he won; he meant to steel himself against visible disappointment if he lost. For him the result in this one district would tell the story of the election.

The room was tense with excitement as the formalities prescribed by law were complied with.

"The candidate watched the opening of the final ballot listlessly. He knew that he was beaten."

At the club house he pushed his way through the crowd. "It is all over," he said.

District captains reported at intervals, some by telephone, some in person, handing over their slips with brief comment.

"It was simply a— In the Eighteenth," announced one as he gave the secretary his report.

The telephone rang again, and the secretary turned to Almsworth.

"Your wife wants to speak to you," Almsworth spoke into the transmitter.

"We will postpone our winter in Albany," he said. "The people don't appreciate us."

The light tone and the jest were for those who stood around him. The candidate knew that no assumption of carelessness would deceive the woman at the other end of the wire.

Almsworth resumed his seat on the edge of the table.

"You were going to take her with you?" asked the leader.

Almsworth nodded.

"Too bad," said the leader, relapsing into silence.

Presently it was certain that the state had been saved by the unexpected magnitude of rural majorities.

The streets were quiet as Almsworth walked home. He listened curiously to his own foot-falls, and noted as if for the first time familiar buildings and shop windows.

His wife met him in the hallway.

"Dearest, poor dearest!" she said, with her arms around him.

They went into his study and sat down at his table, pushing an accumulation of papers from him distastefully. His wife sat opposite, watching him.

"Well," she said presently.

"I'm just simply beaten," he answered. "That's all."

"Badly?"

"Pretty badly. I don't know just how much. It doesn't make any difference."

There was a long silence. He noticed a wistful look in her eyes, and came across to her.

She smiled—rather curiously, he thought—and stopped him with a tender hand over his mouth.

"Flash!"

"But you will."

"How blind you are!"

"Blind?"

"Yes. Shall I tell you the truth?"

"Of course."

She walked away from him a little, still looking at him and smiling curiously.

"Then listen," she said. "If I were not for your disappointment, I should be glad, glad, glad! What do I care for a winter in Albany, or anywhere, when I am not a part of your life? Oh, you don't know how I have prayed to keep from wishing, hoping, that you would lose! I wanted to have you win, because your heart was bound up in it; but I—oh, I only wanted you! I am a foolish woman, perhaps, but I was jealous of your other life."

She was sobbing passionately as Almsworth caught her in his arms.

"Dearest," he said humbly, "I never knew!"

"No, you never knew."

"And you cared so much?"

"Do I care? Oh, my husband!"

The silence which followed was broken by the sound of bare, tiny feet in the hallway. A curtain was parted doubtfully, and a small voice cautiously announced:

"I got lonesome, mummy. I'm a-comin' in!" And then a joyous "Oh, there's my papa!"

Seated on a beloved but unfamiliar knee, a curly head nestling against the defeated candidate's waistcoat, an anxious inquiry followed:

"Has you got to go in just a minute, papa?"

"No, darling. Why?"

"I was 'told you had to. I've been wishin' I'd see you, ever so long!"

Half an hour later the door-bell rang, though it was long past midnight. The child was fast asleep in Almsworth's arms.

"I saw your light as I was turning in," said the visitor, "and, late as it is, I could not keep from coming to tell you how we all feel about your defeat. It is simply a shame."

The candidate stared blankly.

"Oh," he said, after a little, "you are speaking of the election. I had forgotten all about it!"

FELT TIRED AND WORN-OUT ALL OF THE TIME

Was Extremely Nervous. Could
Not Sleep at Night. Appetite
Had Also Gone.

SHE TOOK HYPO-COD

"I was working so hard with very little rest I became all rundown, and felt tired and worn out all the time. My nerves were simply gone to pieces, and I didn't want to eat and I couldn't sleep at night, so after hearing so much about Earle's Hypo-Cod I decided to try it."

"I only had to take a couple of bottles before I was feeling good again. That tired feeling left me and I felt better than I had in years, and it fixed my nerves good too, and eat—I couldn't get enough to eat and I rested fine at night, so my husband, being in about the same condition as I was, decided he would try it and now we both think there is nothing like Hypo-Cod for a general tonic and nerve tonic. We can't say enough for it, for we would like everyone needing a genuine tonic and health builder to try Hypo-Cod before anything else, for I know they will give them and money, for it certainly doesn't take this long to do the work," declared Mrs. Minnie Smith, 554 Second Ave., Detroit, Mich.

It only takes a few days for a good tonic to drive out that tired feeling, to steady the nerves and increase the appetite and make one feel like doing a real day's work, as a rule. Thousands of people have taken Hypo-Cod and say that it is just wonderful the way it quickly does the work and puts you back on your feet feeling fine. It is not a secret patent medicine. The formula appears on each bottle and being made by the nationally known Earle Chemical Co. assures you of quality. Druggists, chemists and experts assert it is the most powerful reconstructive tonic of its kind made. Take home a bottle today, you will be delighted with its pleasant taste and how nicely it does the work. Earle's Hypo-Cod is sold by all good druggists.—Adv.

The Sign of No.

"That dog of mine is very intelligent," said the sweet young thing.

"I have no doubt of it," replied the caller.

"I was singing just now and I asked him if he liked the song and he wagged his tail."

"But did he wag it up and down or from side to side?"

"Why, from side to side, of course."

"Well, I should say that denoted that he meant he was not pleased."

A Feeling of Security

You naturally feel secure when you know that the medicine you are about to take is absolutely pure and contains no harmful or habit producing drugs.

Such a medicine is Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, kidney, liver and bladder remedy.

The same standard of purity, strength and excellence is maintained in every bottle of Swamp-Root.

It is scientifically compounded from vegetable herbs.

It is not a stimulant and is taken in teaspoonful doses.

It is nature's great helper in relieving and overcoming kidney, liver and bladder troubles.

A sworn statement of purity is with every bottle of Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root.

If you need a medicine, you should have the best. On sale at all drug stores in bottles of two sizes, medium and large.

However, if you wish first to try this great preparation send ten cents to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., for a sample bottle. When writing be sure and mention this paper.—Adv.

May Send Trees to America.

Harris met his son on the platform. "What d'ye think, Dad? A letter from Riles." He drew the crumpled missive from its envelope. "Looks like a laundry ticket," he said, "but I figured it out, and he wants you to sell the farm and buy a coal mine."

Harris read the letter through, not without some difficulty. At first he was inclined to laugh, but the earnestness of Riles impressed him through the makeshift English.

"What d'ye think of it, Dad?" said the younger man, at length. "Of course we don't know anything about coal, but then—"

"It must look good to Riles or he wouldn't want to put any money in it," commented Harris, after a few minutes' reflection. "Riles is pretty cautious. He's got money in the bank drawin' three per cent; he's afraid to lend it out among the farmers. And he ain't easy talked into a new scheme, either."

"Dye suppose we could sell the farm?" The idea of a big, profitable speculation suddenly appealed to Allan with much greater force than the prospect of three years on a homestead. He knew that vast sums of money had been made, and made quickly, in the Far West, but he had never before thought of himself or his father sharing in this sudden wealth.

"Dye suppose we could sell the farm?" he repeated. It began to seem that the short-cut to wealth blazed on the possibility of selling the farm.

"I guess we could sell it, all right," said Harris. "Maybe not for that much cash, but we can get cash on the agreement, if we need it." He was not a man to act precipitately, or risk all on a single throw unless he were very, very sure of the result.

"Of course, maybe it's all right," he continued. "But it's a good thing to buy your buggy before you throw away your cart. If this thing's as good as Riles says, it will keep until we can see it for ourselves. If it don't, something else'll turn up."

"Yes," said Allan, "but if we find it's all right when we get there, and we've only a few measly hundred dollars along, we'll want to kick ourselves all the way home. Lots of fellows are making big money just because they had some capital to work with, and why shouldn't we do it, too? Couldn't you fix it some way to get the money without coming back. If everything looks all right? That'd save time and expense, too."

"There's something in that. There's time to see Bragshaw yet before the train comes. We'll kid o' leave it standin' in his hands."

They made a hurried call on Bragshaw, and asked him to be on the look-out for a buyer for the farm.

"Mind, I'm not actually puttin' it up for sale," Harris cautioned him, "but I want you to keep your eye open for a buyer. Forty thousand dollars takes the whole thing as a gold concern, and the more cash the better. Get a line on the buyer if you can, and if I send you word to sell, you sell, and if I don't send you word, don't do anything. You understand?"

The lawyer wrote something on a sheet of paper. "This is a power of attorney, which will enable me to complete the documents without the delay of sending them to you, if you should decide to sell," he explained. Harris signed the paper, and Allan witnessed it.

With this understanding the journey westward was undertaken, and completed without event of importance.

Riles met them on the station platform. He had met every train for a week, as it had been agreed that it would be better that the Harrises should not visit Gardiner's ranch until plans were more fully developed. Jim was still there, and Gardiner insisted that Jim should not meet Harris at present. He allowed Riles to think that he feared trouble if former employer and employee should meet; as a matter of fact, he feared that if their coal mine proposition should reach the ears of Travers the young man would attempt to dissuade Harris from having anything to do with it, or at least would urge a fuller investigation than might be desirable. Besides, he meant to make of Travers an unwitting party to the affair.

Riles, in overalls and shirt-sleeves, leaned against the iron rail at the back of the station platform, his big hands stuffed in the bulging band of his trousers, and his under-jaw busy with an ample ration of tobacco. He watched the passengers alighting from the train with little interest; he had no particular expectation of meeting Harris on this occasion, and, if the truth be told, he had little desire to meet him. Riles had no pang of conscience over his part in the plot against his old neighbor, but he had an uneasy feeling of cowardice. When suddenly his eye fell on Harris and his big, strapping son, his first impulse was to slip away in the crowd before they should notice him. But it was only for a moment; the next, Harris was calling, "Lo, Hiram," and the two were shaking hands as old friends met in a far country.

"Didja get my letter?" asked Riles, ignoring the commonplaces with which

It was their custom to introduce any important topic. "Didja sell the farm?"

"I got the letter, Hiram, but I didn't sell the farm. Thought we'd just have a look over this coal mine before goin' into the business altogether."

"Hah. Throttle your voice down. This place is full of men on the look-out for somethin' like that, an' you can't keep it too dark until it's all settled."

"Well, ain't we going to put up somewhere?" said Allan, breaking the silence that followed Riles' warning.

"There ought to be an Alberta hotel here, somewhere. I saw one in every town for the last two hundred miles."

"I got that beat," said Riles, with a snicker. "Boardin' on a lord, or duke, or somethin'."

"Don't say?"

"Yeh. You mind Gard-ner? Him 'at lit out from Plathville after that stealin' affair?"

"The one you got credit for bein' mixed up in?" said Allan, with disconcerting frankness. "A lame kind of a lord he'd make. What about him?"

"Well, he struck a soft thing out here, for sure. This lord I'm tellin' you about's gone off home over some bloomin' estate or other, an' Gard-ner's runnin' his ranch—his 'bloody-well' ranch," he calls it. Gets a good fat wad for ridin' round, an' hires a man to do the work. But it was Gard-ner put me on t' this coal mine deal."

"Let's get settled first, and we'll talk about Gardiner and the mine afterward," said Harris, and they joined the throng that was upwending its way to the hotels.

"How's your thirst, Hiram?" inquired Harris, after he had registered. "Pretty sickly," confessed Riles. "But they soak you a quarter to wash it out here."

"Well, I got a quarter."

"A quarter apiece, I mean."

"Well, I got a quarter apiece," said Harris. "Come on."

Riles followed, astonishment over Harris' sudden liberality, and misgiving as to how he himself could avoid a similar expenditure, struggling for uppermost place in his mind.

"Pretty strong stuff they have here," he said, after Harris and Allan had "ker' em up" in turn. "Keel you over if you don't watch it."

"Does taste kind o' snaky," said Harris. "Guess that's enough for this time. Now come upstairs and tell us all about this deal you have on."

When the travelers had thrown off their coats and vests, and all were seated in the little bedroom, Riles cleared his throat.

"Well, there ain't much I tell yuh, more'n I said in my letter," he started. "As I said, it's Gard-ner you'll have t' thank for this thing, good or bad. I ain't a coal miner, an' I told him that, an' I told him you wasn't neither, but he says there's all kinds o' money in it, an' I reckon that's what we came out here for, ain't it?"

"Yes, provided the thing's sound," said Harris. "Anyone can see with half an eye that there's easier ways of making money than bustin' up this prairie sod for it. But you and me've worked hard for what we've got, Hiram, and we want t' go mighty careful about spendin' it."

"I suppose you've sent home word to sell your farm, have you?" put in Allan. "You'll be chippin' in at the same time?"

"Oh, yes, I'll be chippin' in. Of course. But I didn't just say to sell the farm yet. I'll have t' get back an' straighten things up some first. You see, I thought you'd get my letter before you left, an' you could kind o' make your deal then, an' your payment would hold the bargain bound until I could sell mine, y' see, Harris?" Riles was beginning to address himself mainly to the older man.

"Don't take me up wrong," said Allan. "I'm in on this along with Dad, if he's in; an' if he's out, I'm out. But I was just kind o' curious about it."

"It's all right, it's all right," assured Riles, with great magnanimity. Inwardly he was cursing Gardiner for having left this task to him. He was suspicious of a trap in the simplest question, and feared that any minute he might find himself floundering in a mesh of contraptions.

"Where is this coal mine, and who's got it?" said Harris.

"I ain't saw it myself," admitted Riles. "They're awful p'ticular about lettin' people see it," he continued, with a sudden flush of inspiration. "It's so valuable, y' know."

"Fraid somebody'll bring it home in their pocket, I suppose," said Allan.

Riles pretended to laugh heartily.

"But where is it?" insisted Harris. "Is there a railroad near, or how do you get at it?"

"It's up in the mountains, an' that's all I can tell you; but it's all right, an' there's a pile o' money in it. I guess I better bring Gard-ner down in the morning, an' he'll explain all about it. Y' see, he knows the fellow 'at owns it, an' I don't, an' he'll be able to tell you. That is, if you're goin' in on it. Gard-ner won't say much unless he knows you're goin' in on it."

"Well, he'll have to say a good deal before he knows," said Harris. "I ain't buyin' a pig in a poke. He's got t' show me, and then if it's all right, why, it's all right."

"Oh, it's all right," said Riles, although inwardly he felt little enthusiasm over the attitude of either father or son. He was annoyed that Allan should be present. On the whole, it would be better to leave the rest of the explaining to Gardiner.

"What d'ye think of it, Dad?" said Allan, when Riles was gone.

"May be all right," said Harris. "I wouldn't be surprised but it is. At the same time, I ain't goin' to put a cent in it till I'm dead sure. And anyway, there's no use lettin' Riles think we're in on it."

"That's what I think. You think Gard-ner's all square in it?"

"I don't know. Likely he's getting a fat commission from somewhere, but that's fair enough, if he makes the deal. But he won't see any o' our money till I have the opinion of the best lawyer in town. That's all we can say till we see it."

"What d'ye say if we sell the old farm anyway, an' then if this mine business don't look good, we'll plant it into farm land?"

"Might do worse," his father agreed. "We'll have a look round for a day or two, anyway."

In the afternoon Gardiner and Riles drove into town and met the Harrises in the waiting room of the hotel. Gardiner's greeting was friendly, but not overfamiliar, as became a man who had recently suffered some reflection on his character. He shook Harris and Allan by the hand, inquired after the cattle and the crops, but discreetly avoided family matters, having learned from Riles that all had not been going smoothly in their domestic affairs. Gardiner knew a little room at the back of the bar, to which he escorted his guests. Having ordered a bottle and glasses on the table, he turned the key in the door.

"You can't be too careful," he explained. "You know, the walls have ears, and if it gets out that this coal mine can be picked up at the price we have on it, it will be taken before night. I understand your money is not here yet, Mr. Harris?"

"No. Not started, I guess. The fact is, I haven't sold the farm."

"Well, I don't want to hurry you, but you've got to act quickly, or not at all. Of course, we don't figure on taking any chances. Our idea is to turn the property over at once, at a good profit. That's the way you feel about it, isn't it?"

ROAD BUILDING

MOTORTRUCKS AND HIGHWAYS

Farmer Enabled to Secure Better Prices by Delivering Products Direct to Market.

There is a worthy movement on foot for better roads. Every business man, every home provider and every motorist should support it. Good roads benefit all classes of people in their everyday life.

This vast country has grown so enormously and so fast that its railroads cannot deliver the goods nor carry the people as the prosperity of the country and present demands require.

With good roads the farmer can deliver all his products direct to towns within a radius of fifty or more miles and though making more profit himself, he is reducing the high cost of living.

The merchant is able to take advantage of new sources of supply, to buy his stock under favorable conditions, and give it on sale to his customers in less time than he could have secured delivery by the slower and costlier railway express and freight service. With motortrucks he can then re-deliver to his customers and give better service over a larger territory. Automobile delivery will increase his business, lessen his costs and increase his profits.

Millions of dollars are lost every year through perishable goods spoiling on the railroads, because of freight delays and complications. Inter-city motorexpress over distances of 100 or more miles has already become a profitable business where good roads exist. Single large firms have actually saved over $100,000 yearly by using motortrucks and they will undoubtedly contribute largely to organized improvement of roads.

Good roads are a paying investment. Local authorities in cities, towns and counties should act without delay to meet the growing national and local demands before trade goes in other directions. It is almost impossible to get back the lost advantage after other districts have won it.

This country has more than 6,000,000 automobile owners, one to every 18 of the population, and about 15 of those ride in automobiles.

Owners will not go where bad roads exist and risk costly damage to their cars, not only to tires, but to the battery equipment used for starting, lighting and ignition. With ignition gone wrong a car cannot travel.—Southern Good Roads.

HAUL ON UNIMPROVED ROADS

Average Cost Per Ton Mile Estimated at 22.7 Cents—Average Haul Was 8.4 Miles.

In 1906 the bureau of statistics of the department of agriculture deduced an average cost per ton mile of 22.7 cents based upon replies from inquiries sent to about 2,800 county correspondents. The average haul reported was 8.4 miles. Since at this time less than 5 per cent of the roads in this country were improved, these figures indicate the average cost of hauling on unimproved roads.

FARMERS' "MUD TAX" HEAVY

Slogan Adopted by Good Roads Advocates of Alabama in Campaign for Needed Funds.

"The heaviest tax the farmer pays is the mud tax."

This is the slogan adopted by the good roads advocates of Alabama in their campaign to put across a 12-year $50,000,000 road-building program. The farmers were shown that good roads would benefit them in a dollars-and-cents way, besides bringing them many advantages which they never had before.

Like the Balfy Mule, the almighty dollar refuses to move where mud and mire constitute the road from field to farm and from farm to market.

Farm Values Doubled. In many communities farm values have almost doubled when roads have been improved.

Everything Better. Better schools and better roads mean better farms and better farm life.

AROUND THE WORLD

Winona, Minn.—"A few years ago I had a severe attack of pleurisy poisoning which left my blood in very bad condition. I tried a great many so-called 'tonics' but felt no better until a friend suggested my trying a bottle of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, which gave me immediate relief. It is surely an excellent tonic, does not purge, and is not objectionable to the taste. I was living in England when I first took the 'Discovery,' and have since been around the world and always carried a bottle of the 'Golden Medical Discovery' right with me. I would not be without it and am only too pleased to be able to recommend it."—WALTER E. DUNSTON, Willow Farm.

PROMINENT WOMEN
Kenosha, S. Dak.—"A few years ago during expectancy I got all run-down and felt that I needed something to strengthen me. I took Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription and it soon had me feeling fine. I did not suffer and my baby was a strong healthy child and always has been the picture of health which I think I owe to this medicine. We also use Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets and they have always given perfect satisfaction. I have Dr. Pierce's Medical Book, the Common Sense Medical Adviser, which has been a wonderful help to me and my family. I think there is no better medicine made than Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription and can highly recommend it to all."—MRS. G. W. COX.

YOUNG WOMANHOOD
Cedar Rapids, Iowa—"A relative took Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription when she was a young girl and has taken it several times since with wonderful results. I have taken it off and on since I was a young girl; it has helped me every time I have taken it. I consider it a wonderful medicine for young girls just entering womanhood. Nothing equals it. It restores one's health quickly and is pleasant to take. I recommend it to everyone needing such medicine."—MRS. CLARA JONES, 1329 2d Ave., E.

Historic Race Is Repeated.

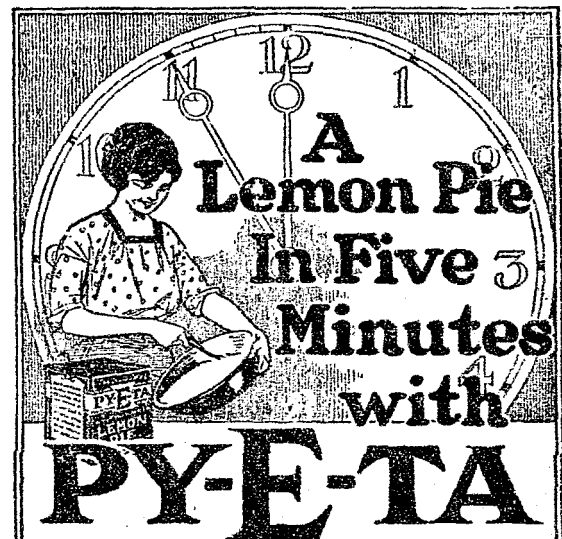

History repeated itself at Natchez, Miss., recently, when the Robert E. Lee, a giant seaplane, defeated the Mississippi-Warrior tugboat Natchez. Hundreds of people thronged the river front to witness the race, which easily went to the minisake of the historic river packet, the Robert E. Lee, the winner of the original race.

The Natchez is the first of six powerful tugs that are being constructed to tow barges on the Mississippi and Warrior rivers, and was proceeding down stream to New Orleans at the time of the race. On the departure of the Natchez the Robert E. Lee took to the air and once again the race between the namesakes of the two famous river craft was enacted.

What's in a Name?
The American Indians, having apparently run out of such names as Laughing Water and Shilling Bull, have now turned to the field of popular songs for inspiration, and we read of a redskin in Calgary named Dardania. If this sort of thing goes on we shall expect to hear of Big Chief Oh-what-a-didn't-won't-try, or Medicine Man You-didn't-want-me-when-you-had-me-so-why-do-you-want-me-now.—Life.

Canada's Rich Coal Mine.
The coal deposit at Laumppan, Sask., Canada, is believed to be one of the best of its kind in the world, and one of the greatest assets of the province, according to the investigators who recently made an examination of the location. They estimated that there are 32,000,000 tons of coal in the two and three-quarter sections of land in which the coal is located.

Infantrymen in the Japanese army are to have a rifle of larger caliber. At present a rifle of .22 caliber is used, compared with the British .303 and the French .24. The gun barrel of the machine gun is also to be shortened.

"YANKS" GOT THEIR COFFEE

Sergeant's Personal "Kick" to King George Brought About the Desired Change in Rations.

Sergeant Guyon of "B" troop, American forces in Germany, has the distinction of having his ration changed by direct orders from King George.

When the American army polo team from Coblenz was in England recently, Guyon had charge of the ponies at Aldershot. The king visited the field and was attracted by the ponies' blankets bearing the letters "A. F. G." He approached to inspect them and addressed Guyon.

"Well, how are you getting along in England?"

The British Tommies nearby standing rigidly at attention were perturbed by Guyon's reply: "Oh, pretty well, king, but say, this tea we have for breakfast is fierce—can't you fix it up so we can have coffee?"

The king laughed and addressing one of his aides said: "See to it that these men have coffee hereafter." And the Americans had coffee.

Getting Even.

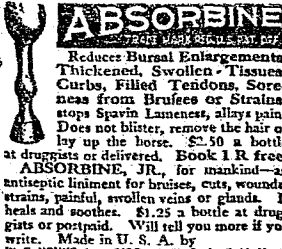

Archie attends one of the schools of this city, and is thinking seriously of entering high school in February. He does not approve of woman suffrage.

One day after receiving a lecture from one of the teachers, he entered the room pouting. The teacher asked him what the trouble was. He replied: "If the girls are going to vote like the men, I'm going to pout just like the girls do."

"Are you trying to be a girl?" asked his teacher. A giggle was heard from every one present.—Indianapolis News.

IN THE WAY HE SHOULD GO

Father Determined to Spare No Pains in the Proper Upbringing of His Offspring.

In Chicago they tell of the great pride which the parents of a certain lad take in him. Father is determined to make him a great business man, a veritable captain of industry.

One day the mother heard loud screams emanating from an adjoining room and rushed in to investigate the cause. Father was vigorously administering chastisement to the young hopeful.

"James! James! Why are you thrashing Harry?" demanded the wife. "Because I caught him in a lie, that's why," said the father, continuing the thrashing.

"A lie? You say a lie?" "Yes! I will teach him to lie better than that if I have to break every bone in his body!"

Ability Must Be Shown.

We are all makers of the future. If we have no voice in what is to be, that is because we have not lived up to our rights. Every man and woman is blessed with some outstanding ability or other. Yet some of us have not developed what we have. Because we have not had the same conspicuous talents as neighbor John we have simply ceased trying to be anything. No wonder the matter of getting bread for the kiddies has become a trial. Folks do not know what's in us because we have given them no demonstration of what to expect. It's our right to be recognized, but that will never be until we do a few things to merit a place in the limelight, and that's not so hard if you forget the spectators and work hard.—Grit.
