

COMMUNITY PARTY IN HONOR ROBT. FOSTER

Chelsea's Grand Old Man Celebrates
Ninety-Sixth Birthday; Many Pay Loving Tribute.

Chelsea's grand old man, known to everyone in Chelsea and vicinity as "Uncle Robert Foster," was the guest of honor at a community party held Tuesday evening in Maccabee hall. The lady Maccabees planned the big party for Chelsea's nonagenarian citizen and upwards of 200 attended.

A feature of the evening was a mammoth birthday cake, with 96 candles, baked by Mrs. Amelia Van-Riper.

Mr. Foster is still unusually active for a man of his extreme old age and manages to get up town frequently. In past years he was an ardent fisherman and still delights to tease the finny tribe from the depths of nearby lakes when an occasional opportunity offers. He is the father of nine children, five daughters and four sons, all living with the exception of one daughter. Four of his daughters, two sons, several grandchildren and one great-grandson were present at the party.

Rev. Beatty was toastmaster and the program was as follows:

Music—Mrs. P. M. Broesamie, Miss Milda Faust.

"Greetings"—Village President P. G. Schaible.

"The Man"—J. G. Webster.

"Building of a Life"—Rev. Krause.

"Successful Life"—O. C. Burkhart.

"How Father's Life Has Affected Me"—S. P. Foster.

"Building a Life of Optimism"—Rev. Dierberger.

"Our Golden Age Gentleman"—N. W. Laird.

Reading, "Father Got His Hair Cut"—F. E. Storms.

Original poem, "Uncle Robert's Birthday"—Mrs. Frank Leach.

Vocal solo—Mrs. A. A. Palmer.

The Cake With the "Dough."

At the conclusion of the program Mrs. J. N. Dancer, in behalf of the community, presented Mr. Foster with a purse of $72, cunningly arranged in a cake, to which she referred in an original poem as being mostly "dough." All joined in singing "Blest Be the Tie That Binds."

Relatives from out of town who attended the party were: Mrs. Gertrude Hammond and grandson, Harold Tomlinson of Owosso, Mrs. Charles Hoover of Rosebush, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Meanwell of Ypsilanti, Mr. and Mrs. William Meanwell of Lansing, and Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Rosington of Howell.

MRS. GEORGE MILLER.

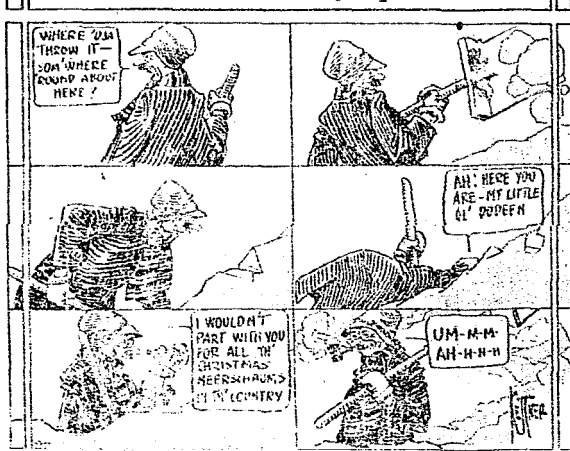

Mrs. Josephine (Koester) Miller widow of the late George Miller of Lyndon township, and a resident of Lyndon and Chelsea for nearly 60 years, passed away Tuesday evening January 25, 1921, following an illness of several weeks.

Mrs. Miller was born in Alsace, France, September 29, 1839, her parents being Ludwig and Gertrude Koester, coming to the United States when 13 years of age. She was united in marriage with George Miller, in January, 1862, in Buffalo, N. Y. Mr. Miller died in December, 1910, and for the past nine years the widow had resided in Chelsea with her daughters and sons.

Mrs. Miller was the mother of 12 children, nine of whom survive her as follows: Sister M. Ignatius, O. S. D., of St. Clair, Mich.; Edward J. Louis J., Miss Mary J., of Chelsea; Charles W. of Ithaca; Misses Margaret, Anna, and Lena, and John P. Miller, of Chelsea. She is survived also by one granddaughter, Miss Josephine Miller of Chelsea, one niece, Mrs. A. C. Pierce of Highland Park, and one nephew, Michael Koester of Buffalo, N. Y., and many other relatives in France.

The funeral will be held from St. Mary church Saturday morning at 10 o'clock, Rev. Fr. Van Dyke conducting the service. Interment at Mt. Olivet cemetery.

NEIGHBORHOOD NEWS

Brief Items of Interest in Chelsea And Vicinity. From Nearby Towns and Localities.

HOWELL.—Frank Brockway, veteran of the Civil war, is dead here after several weeks illness. He was 76 years old.

TECUMSEH.—By working night shifts during the short season, ice men have succeeded in harvesting a supply which exceeds the greatest previous yield by 500 tons.

PINCKNEY.—Early Sunday morning the store and dwelling house at Pingree, owned by Shalab Moore, were discovered to be ablaze. The fire had gained too much headway to save the buildings or contents, and the result was a total loss, partially insured.—Dispatch.

HOWELL.—The entire business section of Howell was threatened by flames which Monday night destroyed two store buildings and seriously damaged two additional buildings. The stores destroyed were the Wheeler & Hall grocery store and the "Variety Bazaar," owned by a Mr. Martin.

MILAN.—After a forced lay off for more than six weeks, more than 100 men reported for work again at The Ideal Furnace factory Tuesday morning. The shop closed shortly before the holidays for the purpose of building a new cupola and making some needed repairs. The repair work took several weeks longer than had at first been planned, but with the new equipment, production will start at once.—Leader.

YPSILANTI.—Clawson M. Davis pleaded guilty Friday before Justice Stadtmiller to being drunk. He stated that he had secured his liquor, a quart of whiskey, from an unknown Jew at the corner of Huron and Michigan avenues. He stated that he gave the Jew a suit of clothes worn by him while at Traverse City for the booze. He clung to this story after the court threatened to send him back to jail and he was released on suspended sentence.—Record.

WASHINGTON OF SO. AMERICA.

We all know the Washington of North America, but how many can speak with certainty of Bolivar, the Washington of South America? Yet in real patriotism and sacrifice Bolivar compares with Washington and is far superior to any other South American hero.

Bolivar, born in what is now Venezuela, studied in Europe and the United States before he returned to free his country from the oppression of Spanish rule. Like Washington, he had to fight a continual uphill battle, and was even compelled on two occasions to seek refuge in the West Indies; but finally returned to complete the overthrow of the Spaniards. Bolivar reaped more reward than many patriots, for he was not only president of Venezuela, but after freeing Peru from Spanish rule, the southern part of Peru was named Bolivar and practically given to him. But Bolivar had many enemies and after serving once more as president of Venezuela he was given the choice of staying in that country and being executed, or going into exile with a pension of $3,000 a year. He chose the latter sentence.

THERE'S MANY A SLIP.

An advertiser in the Brighton Argus announces, "Something Unusual in the Winter: Head Lettuce and Nice Fresh Cauliflower." We'll say it's unusual—at least the spelling! Nothing wrong about the head, but the "lettuce" is punk; and that "cauliflower" is just a bit off-color in its spelling. There's many a slip 'twixt the head and the stomach it seems.

Advertising is the hyphen that brings buyer and seller together.

JOHN WALKER.

John Walker died Wednesday, January 26, 1921, at the home of his niece, Mrs. William Merker, aged 75 years, seven months and 21 days. Mr. Walker was born in Wurtemberg, Germany, June 5, 1845. He is survived by his niece, Mrs. William Merker of Chelsea, and four nephews, Fred and Jacob Henne of Jackson, Edward Henne of St. Johns and Martin Henne of St. Charles.

The funeral was held from the home of Mr. and Mrs. Merker this afternoon, at two o'clock, Rev. Krause officiating. Interment in Oak Grove cemetery.

MRS. HANNAH GILLET.

Mrs. Hannah Gillett, 87 years of age, passed away Sunday morning, January 23, 1921, at the Methodist Old People's home, where she had resided since June, 1919. Brief services were held Sunday afternoon at the home, conducted by Rev. F. O. Jones. The body was taken to Fenton, Mrs. Gillett's former home. Monday, where the funeral was held, and the body laid to rest.

THE UNIVERSAL CAR

ANNOUNCEMENT

Mr. Edsel B. Ford, President of the Ford Motor Company, gives out the following statement:

The Price of the Fordson Tractor Has Been Reduced From $790.00 to $625 Effective Immediately.

"This price change has been made possible through lower costs of materials and the fact that we are now located in our new Tractor Plant with greatly increased economic manufacturing facilities in immediate connection with our foundry and machine shops and large blast furnaces where iron is poured directly from ore, giving us maximum efficiency with the power to reduce cost of production, and down comes the price in line with our policy to market our products at the lowest possible figure without in any way affecting our high standard of quality.

"We are particularly pleased in being able to bring about this big reduction in price at this time because the farmer needs all the help we can give him and this big cut in price will be the means of placing a valuable power unit within the reach of practically every one of them, not to mention industrial and commercial concerns which likewise have benefited through its use and are already realizing, to a much greater extent, its value as a power and hauling unit. But particularly has the FORDSON Tractor proved a most valuable factor in the saving of farm labor, at the same time increasing the per acre crop yield as well as making possible a utilization of previously uncultivated land, to say nothing of removing no end of drudgery.

"There is no question that the use of machine power on the farm is the greatest advancement made in the development of agriculture, not only in money saving and money making results, as well as raising the standards of living on the farm to a much higher level, but because of its proved value in making every type of land more productive, and consequently our desire to place the FORDSON within the reach of all.

"There is no change in the present Ford car and truck prices, which are already at the lowest possible figure and now with rock bottom reached on the tractor price in fact, the big cuts have been made in anticipation of continuous maximum production and increases may be necessary before long if large volume of new business is not obtained. Therefore, present prices of Ford products cannot be guaranteed against possible increases.

Ask for the book "The Fordson at Work," which will be supplied free of cost. Let us demonstrate the value of the Fordson on your farm in your factory, lumber yard, or in any general hauling or power work you have to do and let us have your order for a Fordson.

Stock Raising in Western Canada is as profitable as grain growing. Successes as wonderful as those from growing wheat, barley, and flax have been made in raising Horses, Cattle, Sheep and Hogs. Bright, sunny climate, nutritious grasses, good water, enormous fodder crops—these spell success to the farmer and stock raiser. And remember, you can buy on easy terms.

Farm Land at $15 to $30 An Acre —and equal to that which through many years has yielded from 20 to 45 bushels of wheat to the acre—grazing land convenient to good grain farms at proportionately low prices. These farms are every rural convenience: good schools, churches, roads, telephone, etc., close to live towns and good markets.

If you want to get back to the farm, or to farm on a larger scale than is possible under your present conditions, investigate what Western Canada has to offer you.

NOT A "TRENCH" OF BAYONETS WAS VICE PRESIDENT AT 36

True Story of Famous Incident at Verdun, Which French Bravery Has Made Immortal.

The scaffolding has now been taken down from the monument over the famous "Trench of the Bayonets" at Verdun which President Millerand has inaugurated. But the term "trench" is a misnomer. The true story is this:

Fifty-seven survivors of two Breton battalions were holding the line there, not in a trench, but in a series of shell-holes, nearly regularly spaced and situated. The men were so packed that when any were wounded they were unable to fall down, while for security they held their rifles, with fixed bayonets, in the air.

During the whole of June 11, 12 and 13, 1916, a terrible artillery duel raged around them. Caught between the French and German barrage fires, one by one the men died, while the bursting shells buried them under waves of torn-up ground. When the scene could be visited all that remained was a line of bayonets protruding from the ground.—Continental Edition of the London Mail.

New Points in Afternoon Gowns

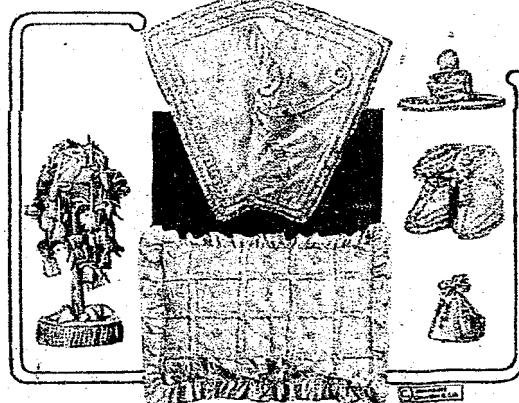

SO FAR as the silhouette is concerned afternoon frocks have nothing new to offer. Apparently, to be graceful is the chief end of woman, and therefore beauty of lines engages first the attention of designers. It is no small matter to make the too stocky figure look thin or the too thin body lose its angles, but it must be done—and has been done. After this most important matter of lines has been disposed of, designers may occupy themselves with other things—as the introduction of new features in sleeves or collars and details of decoration or color combinations. It is in these items that the styles are varied.

In materials for afternoon frocks, soft satins and crisp taffetas hold first rank just now, often used in conjunction with sheer fabrics, as georgette or organza or batiste and, of course, lace plays, as usual, an important role in their makeup. Three-quarter-length sleeves, bell-shaped or draped, appear to be slated for a long popularity and small cape collars are one of several good neck finishings. Both these points help to make the frock at the left of the two shown above an interesting model. It might be developed in any of the fashionable, quiet tones—not forgetting that light gray is most admired—or overlooking the novel management of the neck. A wide panel, on bodice and skirt, with a border of embroidery at the bottom of each is, of all things, the most important to this model.

The frock at the right has a full skirt with tunic simulated by means of four tucks. These tucks are wide and slope upward toward the back. The draped bodice is extended into a girldle and faced with soft satin in a contrasting color. The sleeves are finished with tabs or petals of the satin and the neck high at the back but open in front, having a small, turnover collar faced with satin. Both the sleeve and neck finish are worth noting since they reveal features in spring styles.

Ribbons Welcome the Baby

WHOLE flocks of pretty belongings for the baby are made of ribbons, and they soon follow his arrival into the house favored with a visit from the stork. Relatives and friends express their congratulations by sending gifts that rival flowers in their color and texture, and are much more lasting. Only a few of these graceful tributes to babyhood are shown here, but there is a long list of them, beginning with ribbon covered and ribbon trimmed baskets for the baby's toilet and including bonnets, jackets, booties, rosettes, sleeve-carters, bags, pin-holders, pillows, carriage robes, sachets, cushions and bows.

The picture above includes a small carriage robe and a pillow. Pink or blue satin ribbons in light tones are used for them, and sometimes the two are combined. A wide ribbon is chosen for the robe, three lengths of it stitched together, the edges overlapping, to make the cover, which is lined with a plain thin silk and interlined with cotton or wool batting. Narrow satin ribbon makes the fringe that borders it and the scroll that finishes it.

A narrower, soft satin ribbon is used for the pillow, which is made by joining four lengths of ribbon. Narrow satin ribbon gathered along the center conceals the seams. It is also sewed crosswise on the pillow cover, marking off oblong spaces, each one of which is centered with a small ribbon blossom. The reverse side of the pillow is made of plain silk and a ruffle of ribbon finishes the edge.

Many little sachet bags made of narrow satin ribbon are suspended from short lengths of baby ribbon.

Some Simple Place Cards.
A quaint place card is about one inch wide and three inches long. At the top is a picture of a pretty girl, whose hat, when tilted back, reveals the guest's name beneath. Another card shows a small messenger boy carrying a small grip. When the grip is lifted the name is found beneath. A lady with a little fan would be another clever idea, or pansies with attached leaves would be neat.

Combine Colors.
Paris dressmakers have no hesitation in combining a skirt of one color and a knee length jacket of another, such as bright blue with black or smoke gray with rose pink.

Save Lots of Elbow Grease.
On most farms there are places in the fences that are climbed regularly. Usually one post, a couple of hinges, and a few boards nailed together, will save lots of elbow grease and knee action.

Solve Labor Problem.
The farmer who treats his hired help with fair consideration this year and acquires a good reputation among them will not have labor difficulties next year.

Keep Buildings Sanitary.
All covered buildings in which animals are housed require good ventilation and drainage. Concrete floors improve considerably the sanitary conditions.

Avoid Soft Ground.
Keep the stock out of the corn stubble and pasture when the ground is soft.

Clean Up and Drain.
Barnyards and pens should be well drained and kept clean.

Bee-Hunting Profitable Business.
In the swamps of Florida the hunting of "bee trees" is a profitable business. Record of wild honey deposits of more than 300 pounds in hollow trees has been noted. The trees are located by hunters who follow the flight of the bees. It requires keen eyesight and a compass.

AFTER 7 YEARS OF POOR HEALTH, TAKES HYPO-COD

In Just a Few Weeks This Gentleman of Seventy Feels 100% Better.

"My husband, seventy years old, for several years has been in very poor health. He had something like bronchial trouble, a bad cough and for the last year he just couldn't eat anything except light foods and had become so nervous he just couldn't rest at night. The last few months he had been confined to the house not able to get out," declared a lady whose name and address is given below.

"He had been treated by doctors and taken hundreds of dollars' worth of medicine and I am glad to say he found the right thing when he began taking Earle's Hypo-Cod. He had been taking Hypo-Cod for about five weeks and improved wonderfully. He goes out now, can sleep good and eats anything he wants and in every way he is 100% better. This tonic has done more for him than all the other treatments put together, including some electrical treatments he took. We can't praise Hypo-Cod too high," continued Mrs. John Gerson, 814 E. Third St., Flint, Mich.

Many people have found Earle's Hypo-Cod ideal, according to their statements. It is so pleasant to taste and agrees so nicely with the weakened stomach that even children like it. There is nothing secret or magical about it. The formula is on every bottle. Read it at your druggist tonight. Druggists, chemists and experts assert it is good and thousands of users recommend it to you. Give it a trial. Earle's Hypo-Cod is sold by all good druggists.—Adv.

Highway Improvement

MATERIAL FOR ROAD MAKING
Careful Study of Amount and Character of Traffic Is First Important Essential.

Professor House of the Colorado Agricultural college is one of the best-known engineers in Colorado. He has been head of the civil engineer department at that college for several years and has always been in close contact with the affairs of the state. In speaking about roads, Professor House says:

"A great deal of agitation is being carried on at the present time, concerning the construction of concrete roads for Colorado. That some of our roads should be paved in this way, there is no question, but I think we should carefully guard against overdoing the matter. In order to be justifiable, road improvements must return in economic and social benefits an amount at least equal to the interest, depreciation and maintenance, over and above those of the old road."

"It is exactly the same as in ordinary business. The amount that should be invested in road improvement is that sum which will give the largest annual returns in benefits to the people of the community."

"It may be real economy to spend $20,000 per mile for one road and only $2,000 per mile for another, if the former carries more than ten times the service and costs just ten times as much."

"Before we run wild upon the subject of concrete surfacing for roads of Colorado the proper classification of the roads, and a careful study of the amount and character of the traffic over them should be made, and it is the duty of the state officials, before any general scheme of road improvement is decided upon, to make this careful study. The state is then prepared to determine upon the proper highway system that will be the most economical, and that will meet the traffic requirements of each road."

GOOD HIGHWAYS IN JAMAICA

Island in British West Indies Is Awakening to a Realization of Improved Roads.

The island of Jamaica, in the British West Indies, rich in natural resources and active in trade, is awakening to a realization of the importance of good roads. The advent of the automobile has had much to do in the development of an agitation which now promises valuable results. The system of modern highways which it is proposed to build will mean the speedy development of parts of the island now more or less neglected because of their practical inaccessibility. Completion of a radial system of good roads would undoubtedly be followed by a general adoption of the motortruck for conveying the products to the sea. The increased speed and efficiency thus acquired would tend to promote larger production, and thereby increase the wealth of this already industrious island.

GOOD ROADS BOOST PROFITS

Where Farmer Can Haul but One Bale of Cotton on Poor Road, Man on Good Roads Hauls Four.

The matter of opportunity in marketing is worthy of consideration. For the sake of example, suppose that two farmers living in separate counties, but at equal distances from the cotton market, learn by telephone that cotton has advanced in price $1 a bale. The man living on a bad road can immediately haul one bale of cotton to market, while the other can haul four bales because he lives on a good road. The rise in price means a profit of $4 to the one man and only $1 to his neighbor.

Change Road Location.
If the location of a used road is bad it should be changed if possible. In relocating roads avoid railroad crossings at grades.

First Need of Farmer.
The first need of the farmer in good roads leading from the farms to market centers.

Concrete Base Urged.
Practically every highway engineer today agrees that all roads should have a concrete base.

SYMPTOMS WOMEN DREAD

Mrs. Wilson's Letter Should Be Read by All Women

Cleatfield, Pa.—"After my last child was born last September I was unable to do all of my own work. I had severe pains in my left side every month and had fever and sick dizzy spells and such pains during my periods, which lasted two weeks. I heard of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound doing others so much good and thought I would give it a trial. I have been very glad that I did, for now I feel stronger and do all of my work. I tell my friends when they ask me what helped me, and they think it must be a grand medicine. And it is. You can use this letter for a testimonial if you wish."—Mrs. HARRY A. WILSON, R. F. D. 6, Cleatfield, Pa.

The experience and testimony of such women as Mrs. Wilson prove beyond a doubt that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is a real cure for such troubles by removing the cause and restoring the system to a healthy normal condition. When such symptoms develop as backaches, bearing-down pains, displacements, nervousness and "the blues" a woman cannot act too promptly in trying Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound if she values her future comfort and happiness.

That Came Later.

Quaker Minister Is Grateful to Tanlac

Rev. Parker Moon

Nearly everybody in Southwest Michigan either knows or has heard of the Rev. Parker Moon, who for a full half century has devoted his life and talents to Sunday school and organization work for the Society of Friends or Quakers.

"Uncle Parker," as he is more familiarly known, came from fine old Quaker stock, and there is not a better known or more highly respected citizen in that part of the state. In referring to his remarkable restoration to health by Tanlac, he said: "About five years ago I suffered a general breakdown. My principal trouble was nervous indigestion. My appetite was very poor and my food seldom agreed with me, and I had to live on a very restricted diet. I suffered a great deal from headaches and dizzy spells; I had severe pains across the small of my back and was badly constipated most of the time. In fact, I was so weak and rundown I was not able to attend to my duties. "This condition made me very nervous and I could not sleep at night. Frequently I would lie awake most all night and was in that condition more or less for five years. My physician said he could not do anything for me and suggested a change of climate. I then moved to Texas and went back and forth three times, but did not get the relief I had hoped for. Finally, I got so bad off I was not able to get around with any degree of comfort. I was also told I had heart trouble.

"I had read about Tanlac and, as it had been very highly recommended to me, I decided to try it. I got a bottle and had taken only a few doses until I could notice a marked improvement in my condition. I noticed especially that I was not troubled any more with sour stomach after eating, which was a great relief.

"I kept on taking Tanlac until I fully regained my health. My appetite is splendid; I enjoy my meals and I do not find it necessary now to take any laxative medicines of any kind. I can sleep much better and am not nearly so nervous.

"I take great pleasure in recommending Tanlac to anyone who needs a good system builder, or who suffers with stomach trouble. I have recommended Tanlac to a great many of my friends and am pleased to reach others by giving this statement for publication."

Tanlac is sold by leading druggists everywhere.

"Well, no," Harris said; "I'm afraid we can't."

"A marked check is as good as bills," the banker argued. "and much easier to carry, not to speak of being safer," he added, as an afterthought. "Traveling with that amount of money on you is a sort of defiance of natural law, especially with the country full of strangers, as it is at present."

The banker looked from the powerful frame of the farmer to the equally powerful frame of the farmer's son, and his eye fell on the gun which the latter carried under his arm. "But I guess," he continued with a laugh, "there isn't much danger on that score."

"Nothin' I speak of," said Harris. "And while I don't want to break your bank, I do want to get that money, and I get it in bills, or part of it in gold or silver would do. The fact is, I don't mind tellin' you, I've a deal on, an' I've undertaken to put up this money in cash—tonight."

A young man emerged from somewhere and looked the front door of the bank.

"It's closing time now," said the teller, addressing the manager. "We have enough cash on hand to pay this gentleman, and we can wire for more bills, which will reach us in time for tomorrow's business."

"Pay it, then," said the manager. "Mr. Harris has a right to his money in that form if he wants it. But," he added, turning to Harris, "I'd advise you to keep both eyes on it until your transaction is completed."

The counting of the money was a bigger task than either Harris or Allan had thought, but at last it was completed, and they were ready for the road. The banker looked after their buggy as it faded out of sight up the river road.

"Hang me if I like that!" he said to himself.

The long drive up the valley in the warm August afternoon was an experience for the soul of pulper or poet. Even John and Allan Harris, schooled as they were in the religion of material things, felt something within them responding to the air, and the sunlight, and the dark green banks of trees, and the sound of rushing water, and the purple-blue mountains heaving and receding before them.

Darkness settled about them. One or two stars came out. The poplars took on the color of the spruce; the river fretted more noisily in its rocky channel. A thin ribbon of cloud lay across the mountains, and a breeze of wonderful mellowness came down through the pines.

At length, just as they were thinking of pitching camp for the night, Allan espied a deserted cabin in a cluster of trees by the side of the road. They turned into the wood and unlatched the doors.

A match revealed a lantern hanging on the wall, and a few cooking utensils, safe from all marauders under the unwritten law of the new land.

The two men first made their horses comfortable, and then cooked some supper on a little fire at the door of the shack. Harris was tired, so they cleared a space in the corner farthest from the door, and spread their blankets there. Harris lay down to rest, the precious bag of money by his side.

"You might as well drop off for a nap," Allan suggested. "They must have been delayed, and may not make it tonight at all. We're here for the night, and you may as well rest if you can. I won't turn in myself until you waken."

"I believe I'll do as you say," his father agreed. "Keep a keen ear and don't leave the building without wakin' me."

Allan looked out at different times for Gardner and Riles, but there seemed no sound in all the world save the rushing of water. A cold draught crept along the floor. . . . He fancied his father had fallen into a nap. . . . The night chill deepened and at length Allan hung a blanket as best he could across the open door. His gun gave him a sense of companionship, and he took it in his hands and sat down beside his father. . . . It was very lean and graceful in his fingers.

While the banker worked in his garden in the long August evening the thought of the two men with a bag full of money kept recurring and recurring in his mind, and smothering the natural pride he felt in his abounding cargoes. True, it was no business of his, but still he could not feel entirely at ease. As he bent over his hoe he heard hoofs clatter in the street and, looking up, saw the erect form of Sergeant Grey on his well-groomed government horse. At a signal from the banker the policeman drew up beside the fence.

They talked in low voices for ten minutes. "It may be a wild-goose chase," said the sergeant at last, "but it's worth a try." Half an hour later his horse was swishing in his long, steady stride up the road by the winding river.

CHAPTER XI.

The Honor of Thieves.
Gardner and Riles rode only a short distance out of town, then turned their horses into the deep bush, and waited.

At last the Harris' team and buggy rattled by. When it had secured a good lead the two horsemen emerged from their covering and took a cross road to Gardner's ranch.

"We better wait," said Gardner and busied himself with starting a fire. "Of course, the cook's out. Fishing, I guess," he continued, as he noticed that Travers' fishing rod was gone from the wall. "Perhaps it's just as well. He might be asking questions."

Riles ate his meal in haste and silence. He was taciturn, moody, and excitable, and made no response to Gardner's attempt to open conversation upon trivial subjects.

"Upon my soul," said Gardner at last, "you don't seem any more than enthusiastic. One would think you were going to a funeral, instead of a division of profits."

"Perhaps I am," said Riles sourly. "Well, I know better when we get back."

"Well, if you feel that way about it, you better stay at home," said Gardner, with pointed candor. "If ten thousand dollars is no good to you perhaps I can use your share in my own business."

"That wouldn't let me out," protested Riles. "You've got me mixed up in it now, and if things go wrong I'm in for it, but if things go right you're willin' to take all the money."

"Things won't go wrong," Gardner assured him. "They can't. Everything is planned to a fraction, but if we see there's going to be a hitch—why, the owner of the mine'll fail to turn up, and we'll all come back to town, and no one a bit the wiser."

"If Ten Thousand Dollars Is No Good to You, Perhaps I Can Use Your Share in the Business."

Riles was eager to know the details of which he had been kept in complete ignorance, but Gardner would disclose nothing until they were on the road. "Jim may come in any minute," he explained, "and Jim might hear enough to make him curious. And it's just a little too soon to excite his curiosity."

"That reminds me," Gardner continued. "Jim has a very neat little revolver here somewhere. I think I'll borrow it. We might see some game, as Allan says."

A search disclosed revolver and cartridges in Travers' trunk. Gardner loaded the weapon and put it in his pocket.

"What about me?" demanded Riles. "Am I to have no gun?"

"Better without it," said Gardner. "It might go off. If we really see any game, and there's a chance of a second shot, I'll lend you this one."

Down by the river, well screened with cotton-woods, Travers fished in a pool close by the ford. He heard voices, and, looking up quickly, saw Riles and Gardner riding slowly down the road. The two rode close by, and stopped their horses to drink with their forefeet in the river. Jim was going to call to them when he heard his own name mentioned. He was no eavesdropper, but he obeyed the impulse to listen and keep out of sight.

"Travers doesn't suspect a thing," Gardner was saying. "It's just as well. He figures on making old Harris father-in-law some day, and he might do something foolish if he caught on. If the old man loses all his money he won't be so desirable from a son-in-law's point of view. . . . Well, we'll see how he stands the night in the old shanty up the river road. Strange things have happened there before now, let me tell you, Riles."

If Jim had been prompted by curiosity at first a very different emotion laid hold of him as he caught the gist of Gardner's remarks. Travers had not known Harris to be in the district, but he had suspected for some days that Gardner and Riles were hatching mischief in their long absences together. The information that Harris was going up the river tonight, apparently with a large sum of money, and the fact that these two men also were going up the river, gave to Travers' nimble mind framework on which to hang almost any kind of plot.

He leaned forward in the trees, but at that moment Riles clutched Gardner's arm and said something in a low voice. The two then rode through the river, and their words were drowned in the slap of the water.

The smile did not leave Travers' lips as he wound up his reel and stole swiftly along a cattle-track up from the river, but a sudden light gleamed in his eyes and his muscles hardened with excited tension. He knew the shanty to which Gardner referred, as they had once been there together, and he resolved that if there were going to be any "doings" in that locality tonight he would furnish a share of the excitement. Unfortunately, the ford was on a cross-road little used, and it was two miles back to the ranch. By the time Travers reached the ranch buildings, caught and saddled his horse, made a fruitless search for his revolver, substituted a rifle which lay at hand, and at length found himself upon the trail, darkness was setting in, and Gardner and Riles had many miles' start of him.

When the two plotters stopped to let their horses drink at the ford Gardner suddenly broke off from their conversation to make a few remarks about Travers and Harris. Riles had listened indifferently until his eye caught sight of Travers, half concealed among the cotton-woods that fringed the stream. He clutched Gardner's arm.

"S-s-s-h," he cautioned. "Jim's just behind the bank. I'm sure I saw him, an' he heard you, too."

"Good," said Gardner, quite undisturbed. "Now we can go on." They reined up their horses and plunged into the swiftly-running water. "You see," said Gardner, as the horses took the opposite bank with great strides, their wet hoofs slipping on the round boulders that fringed the stream—"You see, I know Jim was there all the time. Those remarks were intended for his benefit."

"It's all quite simple. Jim will hurry back to the ranch, saddle his horse, and follow us. By the way, I didn't tell him I borrowed his revolver. That may delay him some. But he should arrive at the shack in time to be taking a few stealthy observations just about the moment the Harris are hunting for their money bag. I hope Allan doesn't use that shotgun on him. A shotgun makes an awful hole in a man, Riles."

Riles experienced an uneasy feeling up his spine.

"Well," continued Gardner, "I promised to lay the whole plan before you, when we were safe on the road with no possibility of any strange ears cocked for what a man might happen to say. It's all easy sailing now. The big thing was to get them on the road with the coin. That's what I needed you for, Riles. And you didn't do too bad. I had to prod you along a bit, but you'll thank me for it when it's all over."

"Now this is how it will work out, to a T. The two Harris will get up to the shanty about dark. They'll pitch camp there and begin to wonder when we'll be along. Well, we won't be along until it's good and dark, even if we have to kill time on the road. If Travers catches up on us we'll just let him make one of the party, which will be sort of embarrassing for Jim. But he won't catch up. Well, when it's good and dark—there'll be no moon till after midnight—and they're both sleepy with their long drive in the high altitude, we will arrive near by. You will go up to the door and take a look on the quiet. I will go up to the window and do the same. There's no glass in the window, and there's no door on either, as I remember. We'll size up things inside, particularly the location of the coin. Then you show yourself. Tell 'em I have the owner of the mine out there in the trees, but the old fellow won't come in until he has a talk with them. Tell 'em they better not show the money until they chat with him a few minutes. Likely they'll fall for that, as they don't seem to have the slightest suspicion. But if they balk at leaving the money let them bring it along. Once out in the dark the rest will be easy. But I figure they'll leave the money in the shack—It's just for a few minutes, you know—and they'll reason that it's safe enough with no one but ourselves within miles. Well, you lead them off down through the bush. As soon as you do that I'll slip in through the window, rather up the long green and cache it somewhere in the scrub. You won't be able to find me at first, but when you do I'll say that the old fellow wanted to go up to the shack himself to meet them, and I let him go. Then we'll all go back to the shack, and find both the money and the old man—the mine owner, you know—missing. Then we'll start a hue and cry and all hit into the bush. You and I will gather up the spoil and make a quiet get-away for the night. Of course, we'll have to turn up in the morning to avert suspicion, but we can tell them we got on the robber's trail and followed it until we lost ourselves in the bush. In the meantime the Harris will be tearing around in great excitement, and they're almost sure to run on to Travers. Harris recently fired Travers, and Allan had a fight with him. If you told me right, so it's not likely they'll listen to any explanations. They'll turn him over to the police, and as it's the business of the police to get convictions, they'll have to frame up a case against him or be made to look stupid—and that's the last thing a policeman likes. Then you and I will quietly divide the proceeds of our investment, and you can go back to your farm. If you like, and live to a ripe old age and get a write-up in the local paper when you shuffle off. As for me—I'm not that type, Riles, and I'll likely find some other way to spend my profits."

If You Need a Medicine You Should Have the Best

Have you ever stopped to reason why it is that so many products that are extensively advertised, all at once drop out of sight and are soon forgotten? The reason is plain—the article did not fulfill the promises of the manufacturer. This applies more particularly to a medicine. A medicinal preparation that has real curative value almost sells itself, as like an endless chain system the remedy is recommended by those who have been benefited, to those who are in need of it.

A prominent druggist says "Take for example Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, a preparation I have sold for many years and never hesitate to recommend, for in almost every case it shows excellent results, as many of my customers testify. No other kidney remedy has so large a sale."

According to sworn statements and verified testimony of thousands who have used the preparation, the success of Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root is due to the fact, so many people claim, that it fulfills almost every wish in overcoming kidney, liver and bladder ailments; corrects urinary troubles and neutralizes the uric acid which causes rheumatism.

You may receive a sample bottle of Swamp-Root by Parcel Post. Address Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., and enclose ten cents; also mention this paper. Large and medium size bottles for sale at all drug stores.—Adv.

College President Had by No Means the Best of "Guessing" Contest Which He Begun.

The president of an Indiana college in a talk to teachers told them that many teachers did not wish to be recognized as teachers, and in an effort to illustrate his remark told the following experience he had:

"I was traveling West last summer," he said, "and met on the train an attractive young woman. In a casual way I asked her where she taught school. She hastily replied: 'Why, how do you know that I teach school?'"

"Presently I said: 'What do you teach?' I had simply guessed she was a teacher, and later found out that she was a teacher of romance languages in the East. In an effort to get even with me, I presume, she said:

"And what do you suppose I took you for?"

"Well," I said, "I really don't know. What was I?"

"An undertaker," she retorted."

MAN OF OPTIMISTIC STRAIN

Millionaire Bought "Laundry" Instead of "Launch," but He Refused to Be Discouraged.

Millionaires are supposed to lean toward a philosophical pessimism, but there is one who is evidently a genuine optimist.

He met a friend and said: "Come and see my new steam laundry."

"The friend was somewhat surprised. 'I didn't know you went in for that sort of thing,' he said.

"I don't as a rule," replied the millionaire. "I bought this one quite by mistake. It was the auctioneer's fault. I hadn't time to get a catalogue, and I thought he said steam launch! So I nodded, and they landed me with it."

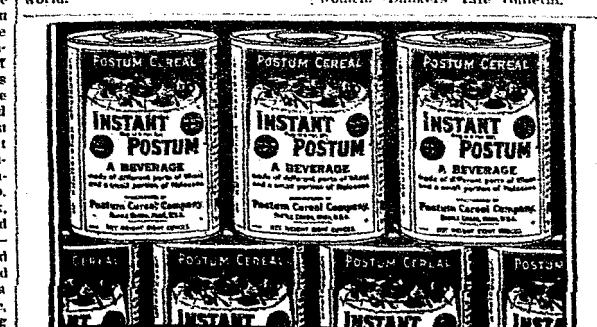

That millionaire is going to make that laundry pay!

More Widows Than Widowers.

According to the United States census of 1920, there are in this country at this time 3,170,000 widows and only 1,471,350 widowers. This indicates that the chances are, on the average, two to one that a man will pass away before his wife. The main reason for this condition of affairs is that the wife is generally several years younger than the husband, and then, too, at the ages above fifty the mortality rate for men is much higher than for women.—Bankers' Life Bulletin.

YOUR YELLOW LABEL.

"When does my subscription expire," asked a subscriber to the Tribune the other day. "I don't want to let it run behind," he said, "but time passes so rapidly that I'm afraid I get behind some times." And then he explained to him how this yellow address label always carries a record of the time to which a subscription is paid.

Thus, if a label reads,

"John Doe Jan 21,"

it signifies that John Doe's subscription expired January 1, 1921. The figures following the month indicate the year in which the subscription expires, and all subscriptions are credited to expire on the first of the month.

Take a look at the label on your paper now if you are in doubt how your subscription stands.

LINER "ADS" EFFECTIVE.

One of the most effective forms of advertising is in the "liner" or classified column where a n investment of a few cents is certain to give prompt results. Tribune liner ads are always run under the heading, "Wants, For Sale, To Rent," in the same position on the front page where they are easy to find and invariably catch the eye. Only five cents the line for the first insertion, 2 1/2 cents the line for each subsequent insertion. Next time you want to buy something, or have something for sale or rent, try a Tribune liner.

FARMERS FAVOR HOME RULE.

Lansing. The Michigan State Farm Bureau has been sending out questionnaires to thousands of farmers throughout the state of which the organization has many thousand members, to secure their opinion regarding various legislative matters of interest to farmers. Among the many answers received, the question relating to county government has caused great interest.

Of the total answers received, 55 1/2 per cent were in favor of submitting to vote of the people an amendment to the state constitution to permit any county that desire to do so, by vote of its people, to have a commission form of government in place of the many boards and commissions making up the present county system, and thereby secure business methods and efficiency.

The proposed law would be optional and would not affect any county unless so decided by majority vote of the people of that county and it would not be necessary to have commission form, but the present system could be continued, but changed and simplified in any way the voters of the county desired, which cannot be done at the present time without a constitutional amendment.

Bad Cold and Cough Cured by Chamberlain's Cough Remedy.

Several years ago C. D. Glass, Gardiner, Me., contracted a severe cold and cough. He tried various medicines but instead of getting well he kept adding to it by contracting fresh colds. Nothing he had taken for it was of any permanent benefit until a druggist advised him to try Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. He says "I was completely cured by this remedy and have since always turned to it when I had a cold and soon find relief."
