THE GRACIOUS ART

Seal Brand Coffee finds favor with the woman who makes of hospitality an art.

It is that alluring charm that is remarked upon—a fineness of flavor that impresses itself upon the cultivated taste.

This charm of Seal Brand results from the Chase & Sanborn experience of more than half a century. That is why it is found in every pound, always; and the sealed package retains it perfectly.

Fish Are Saved By Mild Winter.

"Nothing but the open winter has prevented fish in hundreds of streams throughout the state smothering to death," according to Dr. H. M. Olin, Michigan commissioner of health.

"Streams were so polluted with industrial wastes and sewage last fall," says Dr. Olin, "that practically all oxygen in the water was exhausted. Had the streams frozen over, as they usually do, the fish would have smothered by tons. But because of the mild weather enough oxygen has been accumulated to keep the fish alive during the rest of the winter and until the state can take action to remedy the pollution problem."

Investigations are now being conducted on the Black river in the vicinity of Holland by Ernest F. Badger, water chemist of the department, to determine just how various kinds of industrial wastes and city sewage affect fish life, and how far streams may be polluted in proportion to their volume and flow before the danger point is reached.

Proper disposal of wastes and treatment of sewage are essential to the public health of municipalities and to maintain satisfactory sources of water supply and if the state is to continue to serve as "the nation's summer playground," Dr. Olin asserts.

Mrs. Wm. J. Krause.

Mary Diebold was born November 9, 1870, in the township of Bridge-water, Washtenaw county, and died February 18, 1921.

When but a child she moved with her parents to Sharon township where she has since resided, with the exception of the first eleven years of her married life which she spent in Waterloo, on a farm near Portage Lake.

On February 12, 1891, she was united in marriage to Wm. Krause. One child was born to this union, Mrs. Albert Wahr, of Ann Arbor. Besides the husband, daughter and little grandson, she leaves an aged father, Sebastian Diebold, of Sharon, two sisters, Mrs. Chris Honk and Mrs. Henry Ahrens, of Norvell, and two brothers, John of Jackson and Sam of Norvell.

For nine years she patiently fought the dreaded disease that at last reaped her. All during those years, relatives, friends and neighbors alike never tired in their efforts to help the cheerful, kind and loving wife and mother bear her suffering and it was with saddened hearts and loving memories that they attended the funeral at the home Sunday afternoon, conducted by Dr. Wilcox, of Grass Lake. Burial at Norvell.

Esther and Edna Koenigter spent the week-end in Ann Arbor. Mrs. Christ Trinkle spent Friday with Mrs. Lewis Steinway. Miss Eunice Pottery spent the week-end with Ethel Whipple. Mr. Emanuel Loeffler spent Friday with Mr. and Mrs. C. D. Jenks. Mrs. Reuben Grieb, of Sylvan, spent Friday with Mrs. Albert Koch. Mrs. Mason Whipple and daughter Ethel spent one day of last week in Jackson.

Miss Augusta Samp, of Chelsea, called on friends in this vicinity over the week-end.

Mr. and Mrs. D. Duncanson entertained company from Ann Arbor over the week-end.

Mrs. George Haist spent one day last week with her mother, Mrs. Adelaide Eschelbach, of Freedom.

Mrs. Albert Eisele, of Sylvan, and Mrs. Albert Schiller spent Wednesday with their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Martin Koch.

About thirty friends and neighbors gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Steinway, February 18, and gave them a farewell surprise. The evening was spent with card playing and other enjoyments, after which refreshments were served.

Card of Thanks.

The children of Charles Hamilton wish to thank the friends and neighbors for the kindness shown them during their recent bereavement. Also Rev. Rhoads for his comforting words, Mrs. Alva Beeman and Mary Runniman for the music and the Ladies Aid for the floral offering.

R. V. R. C. will meet with Mrs. H. R. Beatty, February 28.

The Democrats of Washtenaw county held their county convention in the court house at Ann Arbor, Thursday, and elected delegates to the state democratic convention which was held in Jackson on Wednesday of this week.

The convention was called to order by the county chairman, Wm. H. Murry, of the committee, who named Wm. L. Waltz as the temporary presiding officer and a permanent organization was made by the appointment of the various committees. Chas. D. Johnson, of Dexter township, was named as a member of the committee on permanent organization.

The following delegates to the state convention from this vicinity were chosen: Dexter township, Chas. D. Johnson; Freedom, Gottlob Hornung; Lima, Addison Shutes; London, James Hawley; Sharon, Alfred C. Smythe; Sylvan, Geo. W. Beckwith. Geo. Burke was elected chairman of the county committee, and the members of the committee from this vicinity were: Freedom, Geo. Loeffler; Lima, Fred C. Haist; Lyndon, James Rowlett; Sharon, Alfred C. Big Increase In School Tax.

Michigan taxpayers paid approximately $30,000,000 more into state county and city during 1920 than in 1919, according to a statement for the year issued by the Michigan tax commission.

The average rate per $1,000 shows an increase from $24.60 to 26.40, while the assessed valuation of property owned within the state advanced from $4,503,980,981 in 1919 to $5,319,702,886 in 1920.

The total tax levy, including both state and local taxes for 1919 was fixed at $110,776,105.19, while for the calendar year of 1920 the tax levy has been placed at $140,438,982.94, thus showing an increase of nearly $30,000,000.

Despite the fact that the levy increased to this extent, members of the tax commission point out that the state tax for the year of 1920 is slightly lower than that levied in 1919, the comparative figures showing $17,432,512 for 1919 and $17,379,244, approximately $50,000 less for the calendar year just ended.

The school tax shows the largest increase in the itemized statement prepared by the commission, showing a complete summary of the various mediums through which taxes are levied. For educational purposes, the taxpayers paid a total of $4,746,118.20 for the year of 1920 while in 1919 the amount levied came to but $29,753,423.09.

Says Cattle Have Tuberculosis.

At least 40,000 cattle and more probably 50,000 of the 1,000,000 owned in Michigan are tubercular, states H. H. Halladay, commissioner of the department of animal industry, who has just completed the examination of 41,526 head during 1920 when more than 4 per cent were found to have the disease.

"Michigan's problem of eradicating bovine tuberculosis, and thereby wiping out one case of every five among humans, is comparatively easy when compared with that of other states," according to Mr. Halladay. In many states 25 per cent of the cattle are said to have tuberculosis.

"To detect the 50,000 tubercular animals in Michigan will necessitate however, the tuberculin testing of nearly 100,000 herds," Mr. Halladay says, "since one infected cow in a herd is not only capable of spreading the disease to others, but is liable to infect the entire milk supply from that respective dairy. The testing of the cattle in Michigan involves just as much work as in any locality, but the expense incurred in reimbursing the owners for condemned animals will be much less."

More than 700 herds throughout the state are at present under state and federal supervision, while owners of 300 other herds have made application for the test. These and additional herds will be examined, the commissioner reports, as fast as money is appropriated for the work.

Due to what has already been accomplished in many localities by the eradication of bovine tuberculosis, people in those communities stand in little danger of contracting the disease from milk supplies, Mr. Halladay contends. The resulting economic saving alone in the betterment of public health, he says, has made the work a paying investment for the people of the state.

The Herbert J. McKune Post, No. 31, The American Legion, will give an entertainment at the auditorium of the M. E. church, Friday evening, February 25.

BREVITIES

Saline—The common council of this village at their last meeting, voted to establish a public rest room which will also be the headquarters of the district visiting nurse.

Ann Arbor—There have been three U. of M. students suspended from the university following participation in escapades in which intoxicating liquors were consumed, and one has been placed on probation for a year.

Jackson—In police court here Monday, Alex Novak was fined $100 for driving an automobile while drunk. He ran his car on the lawn of a residence last night, but his companions managed to escape, he being the only one arrested.

Ann Arbor—Gerald Winters pleaded guilty of driving away an automobile without permission, in circuit court Wednesday of last week and was sentenced from two to ten years at the Michigan reformatory at Ionia. Judge George W. Sample recommended two years.

Stockbridge—Instructions were given the latter part of last week to close the schools, churches and all public gatherings on account of the scarlet fever epidemic. We are glad to state that thus far the cases are in mild form, and the precautionary measures are taken to stamp out the disease before it gets more serious.

Manchester—The school authorities of the village of Manchester, an eastern suburb of Jackson, have been notified by Secy. Dickinson of the Michigan State Fair association, that their school has been awarded the state championship for its educational exhibit made at the state fair last fall. A bronze and silver cup, also a certificate of championship for the year 1920 have been presented to the school, which twice previously has been awarded first prize for the excellence of its educational exhibit at state fairs.

Manchester—The publicity committee of the Manchester Welfare association tell the public that the moving picture scheme which was exploited for the purpose of giving the people of the village and surrounding country an opportunity of attending a moving picture theatre here at home at the actual cost of maintenance, though still being continued, is not paying out. What's the reason? Don't the people want to patronize home entertainments? They are giving first class entertainment—just as good as they can get in neighboring cities.—Enterprise.

Ann Arbor—Bebe and Harry Davis, both of Detroit, were arraigned in police court Monday morning on a charge of violating the prohibition amendment by transporting intoxicating liquor without a permit. Both were bound over to the circuit court and the bail was fixed at $2,000 in Bebe's case while Davis is held under $500 bond. These men were arrested Sunday at Saline by Deputy Sheriff George Cook and 247 quarts of imported Scotch and Canadian whisky was found in the car in which the two men were riding. The load is estimated to be worth over $3,000.

Ypsilanti—Chief of Police John Connors of Ypsilanti and Deputies Elliott and Walter Laidlaw forked over several tons of hay at Ypsilanti Sunday before they uncovered Mrs. Adeline Belek for whom they were searching. Mrs. Belek was wanted on a charge of disorderly conduct on a complaint made by her husband and Sunday she was shadowed by the police and was traced to a barn on Water street. The three officers entered the barn but upon searching the interior could not find the missing woman. It was then decided to pitch over the several tons of hay which were on the barn floor and after a few minutes work Mrs. Belek was discovered.

The business of the Nulyne Laboratories was established in 1901, and has developed from a modest beginning to its present large proportions. The company manufactures Private Formula Products, Dentifrices and other preparations and compounds for scientific, medicinal and domestic use.

Nulyne Laboratories originated and manufactures Chlorox Tooth Paste, which is extensively advertised, and which is being sold and distributed by more than 25,000 retail druggists throughout the United States.

Nulyne Laboratories has a manufacturing capacity of 5,000,000 tablets and 300,000 tubes of Chlorox Tooth Paste per day. The margin of profit in the manufacture of private formula products and Chlorox Tooth Paste is probably as great or greater, than any other line of manufactured commodities. The object of the present offering is to provide working capital, and to handle additional large contracts for private formula products.

The Charter of the Company provides that 50% of the Company's net earnings, as reported to the Federal Government, after deduction of taxes, shall be declared and paid in dividends each year. After 8% has been declared on the Preferred and 8% on the Common Stock, the Preferred and Common Stock share equally. (See provisions of Charter and Stock Certificates). The above provisions, in view of the Company's established business and opportunity for profitable operation, make the issue, with its bonus of Common Stock, a most desirable investment.

Most wise investors are buying, right now, all the sound securities they can. They realize that the general market situation has brought about a condition where good, safe investments can be bought on a basis of high yield. If your available cash is low you may be able to take advantage of my time payment plan, or perhaps you may be able to take advantage of this unusual condition by re-investment. Look into your safety deposit box and see if there are not some securities that you could profitably exchange for higher-return (and equally safe with the 50% clause) investments.

MRS. J. M. CRAIG, of Los Angeles, Calif., who says no one else has done for what Tanlac has done that she does. Declares she has gained twelve pounds and her health is now better than in years.

"Of all the people who have taken Tanlac, I don't believe there is anyone who feels any more grateful to it than I do," was the statement made recently by Mrs. J. M. Craig of 674½ East Fortieth street, Los Angeles.

"Like so many other families during the influenza epidemic last year we all had it, and my own illness, together with the worry over the rest of our family, brought on a case of genuine nervous prostration."

"I was so weak I couldn't even sweep the floor, and during the day I would have to lie down four or five times. I tried to walk but found out half a block was all I could stand before I gave out. Nervous spells came on me often."

"Every medicine I tried failed to reach my case until finally my husband urged me to try Tanlac, and I am indeed thankful that he did, for it proved to be just what I needed."

"The first two bottles didn't seem to help me. I guess that was because I was so extremely bad off, but on the third bottle I could tell I was improving and that gave me more hopes than ever of getting well."

"My improvement from then on was rapid and by the time I had taken five bottles of Tanlac I was better and stronger than I had been in years. I was sleeping soundly at night and had gained twelve pounds in weight."

"That was several months ago and from then until now I have been in my good health as I ever was in my life and have been doing all the housework by myself."

"It is simply remarkable how Tanlac has built me up and I have told everyone of my friends and relatives what a wonderful medicine it is."

Thousands of women have kidney and bladder trouble and never suspect it. Women's complaints often prove to be symptoms of kidney trouble, or the result of kidney or bladder disease.

If the kidneys are not in a healthy condition, they may cause the other organs to become diseased.

Pain in the back, headache, loss of ambition, nervousness, are often times symptoms of kidney starting trouble. Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, a physician's prescription, obtained at any drug store, may be just the remedy needed to overcome such conditions.

Catarhal Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. LANSING LETTER

COUNTY UNIT PLAN FOR ROAD WORK IS FAVORED

Amendment to Highway Law Proposed; Governor Gets First Bill; Plan Censorship For Movies.

With the prospect that the federal government may spend $6,000,000 in Michigan during the next year on highway construction, the house committee on roads and bridges has taken action to systematize the state's highway construction methods.

The first step in this direction is in the form of an amendment to the state highway act which deprives counties of the right to dissolve themselves into township units for the purpose of road building. The amendment has been reported out of the committee with the recommendation that it be passed.

LARGER UNIT DESIRABLE.

"When the state and federal governments are spending vast sums for highway construction, the county is the smallest unit in the state which can function efficiently for road building purposes," said Rep. Charles Evans, chairman of the committee on roads and bridges.

"It is manifestly unfair to permit one small township to block the work of a road across a county by refusing to co-operate with its neighbors. That has been the experience, however, when townships built their own roads. The system has never been successful and after one or two years' try out the counties which went to the township system have returned to the larger unit."

Michigan is now entitled to $3,000,000 in federal aid for highway construction and if a bill now before congress goes through will receive an additional $3,000,000, all of which would be available for road work for the year beginning July 1, 1921.

The first bill passed by the 1921 Legislature was sent to the Governor by the senate last week before adjournment of both houses to allow the Legislators to attend the Republican state convention at Detroit. It authorizes the calling of a spring primary in Ingham county to nominate a circuit judge.

The bill providing for a state administrative board, recently passed by the senate, passed the house by unanimous vote. It carried, however, two minor amendments and must be returned to the senate for its approval. The bill for centralizing all state auditing in the auditor-general's department, previously passed by the senate, was also passed by the house.

ASK MOVIE CENSORSHIP.
In the senate a bill proposing state censorship of motion picture films and advertising by a state board at Lansing, was introduced by Senator John W. Smith, Port Huron. The board would be headed by the superintendent of public instruction who would be authorized to employ one inspector at $1,800 a year, and one stenographer.

The board would not approve films which, in its opinion, were sacrilegious, obscene, indecent, immoral, or tending to suggest false ideals or incite crime. All advertising matter for films would also have to be submitted to the board for approval.

A fee of $1 for each 1,000 feet of film would be collected by the board, except in the case of educational films for schools or churches, when the fee would be reduced to 25 cents. A fine of $25 to $100, or 90 days in jail, is provided for violators.

Establishment of one library in each township or city is proposed in a joint resolution introduced by Senator H. A. Panny, Saginaw, which asks for a constitutional amendment to be voted on at the April election. The amendment would also abolish the practice of diverting money received as fines in penal cases to library uses.

Senator Bolt's concurrent resolution calling upon congress to hasten passage of a soldier's bonus measure was adopted by the house under a suspension of the rules.

WOULD TAX SECURITIES.

Repeal of the tax exemption on foreign securities held in Michigan and the imposition of an ad valorem tax on this class of property will bring the state revenue in excess of $2,000,000 annually, Rep. George Lord, chairman of the general taxation committee, told the house members, speaking for his bill to repeal the exemption.

Rep. Lord declared that the present registration fee of one half of one per cent gives the state only $17,000 a year and that the tax is collected but once during the life of such securities which average 15 years.

Increase in the percentage of its assessed valuation which a city may spend for the purchase, improvement and extension of public utilities is provided in a bill introduced by Rep. Edward S. Ramsey, Lansing. His amendment to the present law will increase the limit from 8 to 10 per cent of assessed valuation.

Declaring that a duty on Canadian lumber will work an untold hardship on home owners and tend to provoke retaliatory measures by our northern neighbor, Rep. Arlio Hopkins, has introduced a resolution calling on congress to refrain from placing a duty on lumber imported from Canada. It sets forth that there is no need for a protective tariff as American lumber is produced cheaper than any other in the world.

BUYERS FOR STATE HOUSE.

With several prospective purchasers reported to be clamoring for an opportunity to bid on the old state house building and site, the board of auditors suggested to Governor Groesbeck that an act of the legislature was all that is needed to bring about $300,000 into the state treasury. The old building could be used until the new state office building is completed.

A. N. Farmer, executive secretary of the Michigan Community Council commission, testified before the joint committee investigating the commission that the officers of the organization had been burglarized three times and that a number of the records had been stolen. He submitted a statement showing that the $2,165,924.38 patriotic fund had been disbursed in ten items but that he could not state what disposition was made of the money by the organizations to which it was turned over. There is now, he testified a balance of $166,000 in a Grand Rapids bank and about $51,000 in a Detroit bank.

State supervision of all private, parochial and denominational schools of Michigan is provided for in a measure prepared by the attorney-general's department and which will have the support of Governor Groesbeck and his administrative board when it is presented in the legislature. It is understood that the bill has been approved by the institutions affected.

Under the terms of the bill, all teachers in private and parochial schools are required to hold a certificate of qualification, and are given until 1923 to qualify for the issuance of such certificate. These schools would then come under the supervision of the superintendent of public instruction.

INCOME TAX FAVORED

Assertions that many Michigan farmers will be forced to abandon their farms unless taxes are reduced are contained in proposals presented to Governor Groesbeck and the tax committee of both houses by a special committee representing farm organizations. Legislation providing for a state income tax is urged in the proposal, which calls for a joint resolution providing for a constitutional amendment to be submitted at the April election.

An income tax, members of the farm organization committee say, would spread tax burdens more equitably and reduce the levy on real property. Members of the committee are: N. P. Hull, president of the state grange insurance; A. B. Cook, master of the state grange; Fred Smith of the state farm bureau; I. R. Waterbury of the Michigan Farmer; and Mrs. Dora Stockman of the state board of agriculture.

Investigation of alleged unlawful lobbying among members of the legislature was begun early in the week. The committee consists of Representatives Thomas D. Meggison, chairman, George Lord, Detroit, John Holland, Bessemer, Frank B. Aldrich, Long Point, and William Ewing, Marquette.

FOR BETTER HEALTH

Presentation of a physician's certificate showing a clean bill of health will be required of all couples making application for marriage licenses in Michigan, if the bill introduced in the house by Rep. Fred Dunn, Highland Park, is enacted into law. The bill also provides that a period of 10 days must elapse between the time application is made and the issuance of the license.

County health officers, to perform the same functions for counties that city health officers now perform for their communities, is the provision of a bill introduced by Rep. Edw. G. Read, Kalamazoo. The measure provides for the appointment by the board of supervisors of licensed physicians at a salary of $4,000 per year, half to be paid by the county and half by the state.

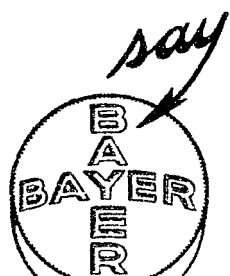

The designation of party affiliations to the election officials and enrollment accordingly, is called for in a bill introduced by Senator Arthur E. Wood, Detroit. It also requires voters to give notice 10 days before a primary election of their intention to change parties. This is the second election reform measure introduced by Senator Wood, the other providing for election of party delegates to conventions.

STATE BUILDING FUNDS

The committee on appropriations reported out a bill authorizing a sum of not exceeding $1,140,000 for the completion of the state office building. This will bring the total cost of the structure to $3,000,000.

The dog law obtained by the farmers after a long fight during the 1919 session would be nullified by a bill introduced by Senator Wood, which forbids the killing of licensed dogs by any one except police officers unless the dogs were caught in the act of attacking animals or persons. The present law permits any person to kill a dog running at large after nightfall or found beyond the control of its owner.

Senator Albert J. Engel, Lake City, introduced a bill to prevent fire insurance companies from cancelling any policy or refusing to pay damages after a fire because of breach of any conditions in the policy, as long as the breach did not injure the company or the injury did not occur during the breach.

IN THE HOP JOINT.

Synopsis.—Vaguely conscious of a double personality, but without any idea of its meaning, the girl Leonora, makes her accustomed way into the Street of Strange Faces in the underworld of New York. Mario joins her. Greatly in love and seeing the fine qualities which the girl really possesses, Mario seeks to turn her from the path of inevitable destruction. She promises to marry him. At Mario's safe, gathering place of criminals, Leonora meets her partner, "Red," avaricious and his associates, and is accused of betraying a fellow-criminal to the police. She is nearly driven herself. Police crash into the room and two are killed by Carmichael. Leonora and Priscilla escape. In her studio, Priscilla, a wealthy artist, awakes from troubled sleep with a distant feeling of having her life linked with Leonora's. Priscilla has painted a picture of herself in fancy dress—a ghastly which has a strange effect on her. Enraptured and fearful that her mind is affected, Priscilla calls her and a dear friend, Dr. Philip Fossdick, who is in love with her. He is stunned to find that her dream story of the police fight is confirmed by the newspaper. Priscilla tells him about the mystery of her mother, who died when she was born. He sees the effect of the painting and promises to be a case of auto-hypnosis. Priscilla makes him promise not to go to the police and he begins investigating it for himself. Priscilla senses with cold fear danger which threatens Leonora.

CHAPTER FIVE

Rendezvous With Destiny.

I. THE CLOCK.

By the time Priscilla Maine had spent twenty minutes phoning and all her patience gathering snubs from one arrogant cab company after another, the van of the storm had passed, leaving the complete subjugation of the stunned and cringing city to the endless legions of the rain.

Her own car was being used by Mrs. Trowbridge for a dinner visit out of town. In her present state of mind and nerves the prospect of stopping on indefinitely in the studio was insufferable.

Resigning herself, then, to a drenching, the girl locked up and scurried through swimming streets to Fifth avenue—where she waited three minutes that seemed ten till a trudging bus consented to pick her up. At the uptown end of her journey, likewise, she had two blocks to run from Fifth avenue to Park, before she got home, with lat, suit, furs and temper all demoralized.

While her maid prepared a bath, she begged off by telephone from a dinner engagement to which she had long been looking forward. Tonight she felt it would be impossible to hold her own, with anxiety on account of Mario and Leonora forever at her elbow, a glowering specter.

A hot bath and the ease of negligence should have lent her some tranquility, but did not. She made the merest pretense of dining from a tray in her room. She could not forget . . .

Fast seven: In less than three hours Leonora must start upon her journey . . .

And she could do nothing . . . nothing . . . but wait and wonder and wring useless hands . . .

A little before ten an inexplicable change in the texture of her emotions made her aware that the peak of her transports had been reached and passed. Of a sudden she found herself more calm, not with the calm of misgivings set at rest, rather with that of courage dauntlessly addressing itself to a forlorn hope.

Intuition divined the explanation: In that strange, deep sympathy which made them one, her mental and emotional processes faithfully reflected Leonora's; what agonies of doubts and fears she had suffered tonight were her replays of those which Leonora had suffered. But now the time of waiting was no more; Leonora had left her hiding place and, committing herself bravely to her dark adventure, had found relief in action.

If only she might be with Leonora tonight as she had so often been, seeing what she saw, doing what she did, knowing what she knew, participating in every reaction of her wits and perceptions . . .

Only if she could sleep, it was possible, she might dream . . .

Darkening her headlamp, she went to the window, opened it, and tarried a little in its recess, looking out.

Rain was still falling, torrential, lancing the night with its myriad slender, silver, slanting jets, brimming gutters, flooding sidewalks, blackening and blurring roadways to the semblance of rivers of ink that mirrored a multitude of lights. She thought of Leonora struggling through that scurrying tempest to an unknown bourne . . .

The clock struck ten. She turned back to her bed, threw herself down upon it without undressing, and closed her eyes. Immediately she opened them again; there could be no sleep for her till mind and spirit were fagged out altogether.

On her dressing table the convex crystal of a French clock caught a clear beam from some street light and was transfigured into the likeness of a little captive moon of dead white glare. Upon this, the brightest spot in the room, Priscilla's gaze focussed naturally. For minutes on end she watched it. In a phase of lethargic fascination which was rewarded when the little moon began to grow, to spread out, its cold light filling the room, the world, and all the spaces of her consciousness, so that spellbound perceptions grew faint, then failed, and she was no more aware of herself as Priscilla Maine, an individual entity, but only as a pinpoint of anonymous being adrift in the measureless incoherence of infinity . . .

II. THE STREET.

She had neither raincoat nor umbrella; demonic squalls hailed such defenseless prey, and gusts of pelting drops stung the bare flesh of her face like birdshot. Long before she reached the corner her thin cloak was soaked through and so was all beneath it, her shoes were squelching, her sudden skirts, hurried by the wind, were clinging tenaciously to her legs, making progress incredibly difficult. Yet she did not mind, but found a kind of savage delight in battling with the elements, gaining ground against their malicious will. Following long confinement to that room of unspeakable boredom there was compensation and to spare in this false sense of freedom, in the mere fact that she was at last at large, enough to render her indifferent to damaged clothing as well as to the clammy discomfort with which it plastered her chilled body. She leaned her slim young body against the wind and gladly fought it for every breath and step, she relished keenly the wet sweetness of the air, the gurgle of rushing gutters, the hill-pulpan drizzle of the rain, the motley cheer of weeping windows. But for these last one might pardonably have taken the Street for part of some drowned city peopled by gray ghostly shapes, figures glimpsed darkly through sweeping waves of rain as they scurried down curb to curb, lumbered down the wind or, like Leonora, plodded doggedly against its howling opposition. But few such were visible at any time; humanity braved the elements that night solely under the lash of elemental appetites, such as the necessity of beer, and then made its excursion as brief as might be. Even the police hugged shelter . . .

A night of terror, she thought, with a shiver as much of dread as of cold, pausing in the lee of a corner to regain her breath before renewing contest with the storm; a night when anything might happen . . .

Resolutely she put that thought behind her; she did not dare to be afraid. And lest she be tempted again to think and fester, she spurred herself pitilessly on once more.

At length she turned aside into a sullen street, dimly lighted, wholly desolate in all its visible length save for the shining welcome of saloon windows on the ground floor of a dilapidated dwelling in the middle of the street: Leonora marking the end of the first stage of her journey.

III. THE HOP JOINT.

The saloon, a boozing ken of the lowest order, occupied quarters first intended for a shop. Empty show windows, thinking a double doorway, were backed by screens of machine-carved wood stained to mock mahogany and hung with beer lithographs. To one side, under a sign-gilt lettering on a black ground: "Family Entrance"—a single door stood open on a short hallway which led to a dreary room behind the bar, where local rats of both sexes sat in sullen congress over tables sticky with drugs, their feet scuffling in coarse, damp sand. To the right of this door a window with a ledge broke the side wall, communicating with the bar for the convenience of neighboring ladies and other fastidious souls who, rather than risk social contamination by entering a common bar-room, fetched empty pails of tin and carried them away filled with nourishment for home consumption. To the left a constricted staircase ascended to regions of unrelenting darkness. Leonora, however, mounted with confidence and, finding a blank shut door at the top, planted a confident finger on a push-button which she could not possibly have located by sight.

A venomous buzz responded. Shuffling feet drew near the door, in which a grille opened, letting out a shaft of strong light which fell squarely on the girl's face.

She said coolly: "Lo, John. Let me in."

A chain bolt rattled. The door swung inward. Leonora entered, passed, faced the guardian of the portal—a Chinese, aged, shriveled of face, shrunken of body, impassive—whom she addressed with the brusque insouciance of old acquaintance.

"Charlie anywhere about?"

With racial economy of gesture the Chinese jerked a thumb toward the rear of the house and turned to re-fasten the door. Leonora moved down the hall, disdaintfully sniffing tainted air, and entered a large room whose atmosphere was mephitic with the unforgettable, sickly sweet fumes of opium. Here, in half-curtained banks or on thin mattresses upon the floor, in a forbidding half light furnished by a single, closely shrouded lamp, perhaps a dozen men and women lay in uncouth postures, deep in drugged stupors. One only was in apparently complete possession of her wits: the woman Inez, of whom Leonora had seen nothing since that fateful night at Hissori's.

Inez alone recognized in any way this addition to the company, looking up with a sullen face from her seat on the edge of a mattress on which lay, with limbs asprawl and face of ghastly pallor upturned to the dim light, his mouth half open, his eyes half closed, the thick stem of an opium pipe dangling from limp fingers, the man whom Leonora had come to meet.

In a seizure of dismay so overpowering as to blind her completely to the sneer of gratification which Inez sought in vain to dissemble, Leonora dropped to her knees beside the man and shook his shoulders with frantic hands.

"Charlie!" she cried in a voice urgent with fright and entreaty—"wake up, Charlie! For God's sake, wake up!"

The man's head rolled from side to side with horrifying limpness, his lips moved tremulously without closing, otherwise he made no sign. He might have been lifeless, he had better been dead.

Not one person in the room so much as turned a head when the cries of the frantic girl disturbed the quiet, not even Inez; for though she had mastered her betraying smile, that one had no need to stir in order to watch Leonora. Evil exultation continued to inform her cold eyes as long as they were unobserved; but Leonora found them quick with specious sympathy when, at length appreciating the futility of her efforts, she loosed her hold on Charlie's sagging and sank on her heels.

"My God," she said, with a stricken face—"what'm I going to do?"

"What's the trouble, dearie?" Inez spoke with cloying sweetness, but the other was too far gone in despair to notice, or to care if she had noticed. "Anything I can do to help?"

"I don't know!" Leonora shook her head slowly—"I guess not."

"Why'n't you tell me and find out?" Inez leaned across the body of the drug victim and placed a coarse red band affectionately over Leonora's

"You can trust me, I guess. We're all in this mess together, ain't we?"

"It's only Red," Leonora responded dully. "He said for me to come to him tonight. He sent word by Charlie—said I'd got to come tonight, Charlie promised he'd meet me here and show me the way. He wouldn't tell me—said Red made him swear not to. I don't see why . . . But I wish to God Charlie'd kept his word to me like he did to Red."

"What do you mean?"

"I was afraid of this!" She nodded at the unconscious man. Charlie promised me he wouldn't smoke more'n two pipes."

Inez laughed shrilly. "Guess he must've had six," she declared. "I rolled three pills for him since I came in."

"And now he's down and out," Leonora pursued, "and I don't know how to find Red, and he won't take any excuses."

"You poor kid!" Inez tightened her clasp on Leonora's hand. "But you don't have to worry. I'll take you to Red. I been there half a dozen times at least."

The smile of conscious triumph, which Inez could not suppress, was unsuspiciously offensive, and brought back vividly to mind the rivalry which had always existed between them and which had flared up into open hostility at their last rencounter. Hot resentment kindled in Leonora's eyes, but color flushed her cheeks; but she dug teeth into her underlip and grimly fought down the impulse to give her anger tongue. Not only was that precisely what Inez wanted, but it might prove fatal. There was more than pride at stake, there was the life of him who loved her and whom she loved. Nothing, indeed, but that love of hers for Mario had broken down her will to refuse Red's summons; only the threat of Red's vengeance wreaked on Mario had made her supple to the gangster's will. And now, if she quarreled with Inez, that one would never show her the way to Red. Anything (she repeated, in her secret thoughts) might happen!

"Love told you," she muttered. "Sure he did." Inez agreed cheerfully. "You don't suppose Leo's leary of the kid Red is of you, Nora dear? Why, I've known all along where them two was layin' up."

Long lashes drooped to veil Leonora's smoldering eyes. Inez's malicious smile flashed and faded. The other clenched her hands, but tight fists, then opened them. She looked up, pride conquered and trampled under foot by love.

"Inez," she pleaded simply: "I got to see Red tonight or . . . I don't know what'll happen. Please take me to him, Inez?"

The woman delayed her response for a moment, that she might relish the full flavor of her triumph. Then, jumping up, she said:

"Sure I will, dearie. C'mon: let's go."

IV. THE ROOFS.

Again the night, the wind, the rain, the laborious transit of dim, wetting streets . . . Inez led through a tortuous maze of murky backways, till they came to a sinister block of towering, tenement tenements, into which, plucking Leonora by the sleeve, she turned.

In the unsavory lower hall Leonora spoke incredulously: "Not here?"

Inez gave a negative gesture: "I should say not. Across the roofs . . . You don't suppose I'm such a slum as to lead a dick to the right door, do you?"

"You don't think we're followed?" Leonora demanded in quick alarm.

Inez nodded emphatically. "I know we was."

"Who was it? Could you see?"

"Nobody I ever seen before; a new bird, I guess, from some uptown precinct. Coarse worker, too; he must've spotted you first, 'cause he was waitin' when we came out, and trailed us all the way."

"Why didn't you tell me?"

"What's the use? You know now, don't you? It wouldn't've done you any good to know in the street, as long as I knew and had sense enough to lead him wrong, like this . . . C'mon."

They began to run up long flights of stairs lighted only by single gas jets low-turned on every other landing, and noisome with stratified stenches of evil cookery and things worse yet; the predominant note tenacious each successive floor indicated by its dominant effluvium, were it garlic, boiled cabbage, fried fish, or the squalid, penetrating, undissolvable odor of opium smoke. Gusts of voices lifted in rude laughter or more commonly quarrelsome issued from doorways that stood as a rule wide. Once there was a sound of weeping, too, sickening dull walls of some woman cruelly used. And always the inevitable squalling of children fretful in unhappiness. . . . On the top landing Inez paused to peer over the rail. "That's him," she panted, nodding.

Leonora joined her. At the bottom of the gloomy, deep well of the staircase the fore-shortened figure of a man was visible, his upturned face a mere blur of flesh color. But something individual in the pose caught Leonora's eye and prodded what she took for some memory half erased.

The treacherous Inez turns a trick.

DETROIT MAN TELLS HOW TO STOP STOMACH TROUBLES EASY

He Had Indigestion, Headaches, Poor Appetite and Nervous Spells.

TELLS HOW HE CURED HIMSELF

"I suffered with indigestion for a long time. What little I did eat would form gas in my stomach and cause bloated, uncomfortable spells for an hour or more after meals. Then I'd have headaches, too. Then when night would come I'd lay there unable to sleep, so nervous I couldn't lay still. You can imagine how badly I felt mornings, and I was actually getting weak and thin and pale and felt bad."

"Then one day a friend told me how he got rid of troubles just like mine. He told me how good he felt. How easy it was to feel like your old self, and so I took his advice. Today, after using that medicine only a little while I am a well man and completely cured. Since I found out how I've told lots of friends, and they swear by Earle's Hypo-Cod, too. You can get it down at the drug store, and it's a nice tasting tonic, too. I'm never bloated after meals, and have a big appetite. I eat anything I want without fear and feel like life is worth living. It built me up, too, and I sleep and feel fine all the time," declared Edwin T. Rablen, 3000 St. Jean Ave., Detroit.

Thousands of people have found it is easy to feel tip-top all the time, eat big, hearty meals and get the good out of their food. They never are restless at night. They always feel O. K. in the morning.

Build yourself up like they have with Earle's Hypo-Cod, which is a newer, more modern and powerful preparation. Hypo-Cod does the work quickly and is nice to take, too. Each bottle bears name Earle Chemical Co., Wheeling, W. Va., which is a guarantee of finest quality in medicine. Drop in at the drug store and get a bottle of Earle's Hypo-Cod tonight. The cost is trifling. If you have such troubles and want to get rid of them now.—Adv.

ENVIED HIS SMALL DAUGHTER

Duck Hunter Would Have Given Much for the Power She Exercised Over Ducks.

Betty, four years old, lives in a modern apartment in Brooklyn, facing Prospect park. She knows all the squirrels in the park and the birds that stay there in the summer.

For several weeks Betty has been homesome because all her feathered friends went in search of warmer weather, but now she has plenty of company again. Wild ducks are her newest friends.

The ducks coming afloat in Prospect park lake and generally remain a week or two to rest and feed. They are wary of men, but not afraid of children, if Betty is an example.

The other day she was walking with her father, a duck hunter. Betty noticed she couldn't get near the ducks while she was with her father, but when she left him and ran along the shore alone she found she could approach them. After a little coaxing the ducks swam up and ate pieces of popcorn from her hand.

"And I have to crawl through a swamp on my hands and knees to get within gunshot of them," mused her father.—New York Sun.

HIGHEST ORDER OF SNOBBERY

Alleged Prayer Made by English Divine, Would Have Made Great Hit With Thackeray.

A reporter, gathering material for a Sunday special on "Why Churches Are Empty," called on Bishop Leonard of Cleveland.

"I don't admit that our churches are empty," Bishop Leonard said. "Certainly the churches that are really democratic, really Christian, are full. Of course, we have a few churches that cater to the rich. In these a certain number of vacant pews are to be found."

"The kind of church I am referring to abounded in England in Queen Victoria's day. There's a story about one such church. It was in the domain of a certain baronet and the vicar used to conclude his Sunday prayer in this wise:

"God bless Sir Peter; God bless also her dear ladyship; bless the tender youth of the two ladies likewise. We would furthermore unite in beseeching Thee, O Lord, to have mercy on the poor governess and all the miserable sinners of this parish. Amen."

The Soul of the Grange

"Within Grange halls I have witnessed all the problems of life worked out: Acquaintance ripen into courtship and marriage, the next generation appear and be accepted into the order, old age give way to youth and then pass to the Great Husbandman. I have seen bitterness turned to forgiveness under the careful hand of peacemakers. Always the influence has been one to create a bond of friendship."

—From THE COUNTRY GENTLEMAN of May 15th, 1920.

The soul of the Grange is manifest in the farm home. It holds that the highest achievement is a life well lived; that the foundation for such a life is the home.

The better-living influences of the Grange radiate throughout the community. They are back of our county agents, of the demonstration work, of our schools. Friendship and well being spun within Grange halls are woven throughout the whole fabric of our country life.

In this age of faltering faith there is need for strong leadership. This the Grange offers. You need its sound counsel, its friendly associations. It needs your support.

THE COUNTRY GENTLEMAN gives credit to the Grange for its wholesome and helpful work; that is the kind of work this great weekly itself is doing. It helps to build a contented and prosperous farm life. Each week's issue is filled with cheering stories and inspiring editorials. It fits right into the home and is a welcome weekly visitor.
