Bellevue No. 10 Spreader

When making the choice between the advisability of purchasing a manure spreader or doing without, the deciding factor must not be the cost of the spreader, but the profit that will be returned by its use. The same answer applies when making a choice between the advisability of purchasing the Bellevue Spreader and one or more of several spreaders now on the market. Not cost, but profit, must be the determining factor. That profit accrues through the use of a spreader is undebatable—it is a proven and well established fact. That profit may be assured from the use of a "Bellevue" as compared with other spreaders.

BELLEVUE NO. 10 SPREADER

We believe our readers to be interested, intelligent and fair-minded, and in their hands—the jury as it were,—we entrust a decision which cannot be other than favorable to the "Bellevue." We invite a critical inspection of our product and ask that it be compared point for point with any upon the market.

RESIDENCE AND CONTENTS BURNED SUNDAY AFTERNOON

An overheated furnace was the cause of the destruction of the residence on the J. L. Kilmer farm in Sharon, Sunday afternoon. The blaze was discovered by Mr. Hashley, but had gained such headway at that time that it was impossible to save any of the contents of the home. Mr. and Mrs. Kilmer had all of their household effects packed, ready to move to their new home in Chelsea, and Mr. and Mrs. Otto Mayer, who had bought the farm, had most of their household goods in the dwelling. Both Mr. and Mrs. Kilmer and Mr. and Mrs. Mayer were at the home of a neighbor when the blaze was discovered.

Both Mr. Mayer and Mr. Kilmer had insurance on the destroyed property, but their losses will far exceed the amount of insurance that they will receive.

Collins-Reynolds Wedding.

On Sunday afternoon, February 20, at 3 o'clock, a wedding of simple, but beautiful appointments, was solemnized at the home of Herbert Collins, of Stockbridge, when his sister, Miss Esther R. Collins, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. David Collins, of Waterloo, and Ralph Reynolds, only son of Mr. and Mrs. W. Reynolds, of Jackson, were united in marriage. Rev. E. Rhoads, of Waterloo, officiated, using the beautiful ring service.

To the strains of Lohengrin's wedding march, played by Mrs. Helen Beeman, the bride party took their places before an altar of ferns, white narcissus and white freshia. Little Phyllis Collins, dressed in pink, was flower girl, carrying a basket of white freshia. Marian Collins, also dressed in pink, carried the ring in a daffodil. The bride was given in marriage by her father.

Before the ceremony, Mrs. Helen Beeman sang "Oh Promise Me," and following it, Herbert Collins rendered, "I Love You Truly." The bride was lovely in a gown of midnight blue tulle, carrying a bouquet of pink sweet peas, bowed with white satin ribbon. Her bridesmaid, Ethel Hunsiman, was also dressed in dark blue, and carried a bouquet of yellow and white freshia. The groom was attended by Lyle Rohrer, of Grass Lake.

Preceding the ceremony, a three-course dinner was served at the hotel. Mr. and Mrs. Reynolds will be at home to their many friends after April 1, at 723 W. Washington St., Jackson.

Interesting Case.

An interesting case concerning the right of a man to fence off part of a village street and hinder his neighbor in the use of the highway, was presented Saturday morning in circuit court.

The suit in question involves the right of Aaron Wedemeyer, of S. line, to box off a portion of a public road and make his neighbor drive around this obstacle. Joseph F. Schmidt is the neighbor in question and the one who has started the machinery at law to work to decide whether or not his neighbor can include a bit of the village's land in his domain.

Attorneys for the defendant, Saturday morning stated that the suit was not one for a court of chancery to decide but that it was a point of law. They asked that the suit be dismissed. The plaintiff's attorney claimed that the issue concerned encroachment, not an obstacle in the highway. He contended that the action was fit for a court of chancery to decide. Ann Arbor Times News.

Stuebler-Grau Wedding.

A very pretty wedding took place Thursday, February 24, at 2:30 o'clock at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Stuebler, of Saco, when their daughter, Rubena, was married to Arthur Grau, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Grau, of Freedom. Rev. Nichols, of the Bethlehem church, performed the ceremony. They were attended by Miss Ruth Grau, sister of the groom, and Elmer Kuebler, cousin of the bride. The bride was gown in white satin and the bridesmaid wore pink satin. At 4 o'clock a 2-course dinner was served by Lela Trinkle and Esther Esicle to about fifty relatives and friends. The young couple received many beautiful gifts and after March 1, they will be at home on the Matthew Kusterer farm, south of Chelsea.

FORMER CHELSEA PASTOR HAS NEW APPOINTMENT

The following article was taken from a Lima, Ohio, daily.

Announcement of the intention of the Rev. Franklin A. Stiles, pastor of the First Baptist church, to resign to become effective March 1, was made to the advisory board of the church at its meeting recently. Mr. Stiles will go to the First Baptist church of Middletown, where he has been called. He said Friday that the advisory board had approved his announcement of intention of resigning and that the matter would go to the congregation at an early date.

The church to which Mr. Stiles goes is one of the most important of the Baptist denomination. It has a congregation approximately twice the size of the church of which he has been pastor here and is old in tradition. It also is reputed to be one of the wealthiest churches of his denomination in Ohio.

Mr. Stiles is the oldest Protestant minister in point of service in Lima and his record of nearly ten years is exceeded only by that of Mont. A. E. Manning of the Catholic church. He leaves here with the kindest feeling existing in his church and the entire community.

During his service in this city Mr. Stiles has built himself so thoroughly into the community that it will be difficult for him to pass over his work to a successor. He has been foremost in all community affairs and during the war was one of the leaders depended upon to put over his big financial drives. He has been active in child welfare work and has been president or vice president of the Child Welfare Association ever since he came to Lima. He also has taken an active part in the development of the Y. M. C. A. and the Y. W. C. A.

His church has been built up to its size when he came, now having a congregation of about 650. He has received a number of invitations to go to other cities since he came here, but has declined all until the call came from Middletown. "I felt that it was my duty to accept the call to that church," Mr. Stiles said Friday.

He succeeds Dr. Rittenhouse at Middletown, who recently accepted a call to the Baptist church of Columbus.

Rev. Stiles was formerly pastor of the Baptist church of this place and is a son-in-law of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Laird, of Sylvan.

Mrs. J. F. Shaver.

The death of Mrs. Martha Shaver, at her home on East Summit street, last Saturday afternoon, after a few hours sickness, was a great shock to her friends. She was taken ill about 10 o'clock Friday night and passed away about 3 o'clock the following afternoon.

Martha Conk was born at Toms River, New Jersey, January 11, 1858, and when she was a young girl her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Lewis L. Clark, moved to Michigan and for many years the family made their home in Chelsea. She was united in marriage with Ernest E. Shaver, December 25, 1879. Mr. Shaver, who conducted a photograph gallery here, died June 19, 1917. Mrs. Shaver was married the second time to J. Frank Shaver, on March 28, 1919.

Mrs. Shaver was a member of the Lady Macabees, Pythian Sisters, W. R. C., and Congregational church.

Those surviving are her husband, one brother, Howard W. Conk, of Ann Arbor, two sisters, Mrs. J. S. Cummings, of Chelsea, and Mrs. G. W. Millsap, of Ann Arbor, and a number of nephews and nieces.

The funeral was held from the home 2 o'clock Tuesday afternoon. Rev. P. W. Dieberger conducting the services. Interment in Oak Grove cemetery.

Life Held Safer in Large Cities.

"Does Michigan hold the lives of boys and girls living in small towns less valuable than the lives of those who dwell in the larger cities?"

This is one of the questions raised by Dr. R. M. Olin, commissioner of health, in the annual report of the state department of health for 1920. Declaring that "the acid test of effective public health control is the death rate" the report shows that the eleven largest cities having efficient health administration were able to hold the number of deaths from measles in 1920, despite an unusual prevalence of the disease, to a 49 per cent increase over the preceding year, the increase in deaths from scarlet fever being 41 per cent greater than in 1919.

Comparing these increases with the figures for the balance of the state, which is said to have few trained health officers and in most cases lax control of these diseases," according to Dr. Olin. There is found a 214 per cent increase in deaths from measles and a 72 per cent increase in deaths from scarlet fever.

In the same group of cities there was a 24 per cent decrease in the number of deaths from typhoid fever while throughout the rest of the state the disease increased 8 per cent over 1919, representing a difference of 32 per cent in favor of sanitary control.

A preponderance of children in rural and semi-rural communities will continue to die from preventable diseases," says Dr. Olin, "until an adequate system of health supervision is provided for every county in the state."

IMPRISONED IN WELL

WHEN WALL CRUMBLES

Harry Utchenik, aged about 30 years, who resides on what is known as the Beebe farm, between Anderson and Pinekey, Saturday afternoon descended into a 35-foot well on the farm, and he had no sooner reached the bottom when a cave-in of stone and dirt imprisoned him, where he remained for over 48 hours, and was finally rescued Monday afternoon. The well was a stone cased one, but since it was built a pipe had been driven down to another vein of water, a depth of 65 feet from the surface of the earth.

An iron pipe near the bottom of the well caught two large stones which formed a bridge, holding back the greater portion of the debris. The dirt fell in such a way that Utchenik was pinned to the bottom of the well, but food was lowered to him through a small opening and a pipe was pushed down through the dirt, which allowed him to obtain air.

Calls for help were at once sent to Ann Arbor and Deputy Sheriff Harry Smith and John Markey left for the Utchenik home. Markey had considerable experience in excavation work and on his arrival at the scene of the accident it was decided to sink a parallel shaft to the same depth of the well and then tunnel through.

It was thought dangerous to remove the dirt from the top of the well as more might cave in. It was feared that the tunneling through might dislodge the rocks which formed a bridge over Utchenik.

The wife and two children of the imprisoned man were frantic with fear for the worst.

Many of the residents of Lyndon and Unadilla aided in the rescue work.

Health Crusade a Success.

The response of the children in the schools surrounding Chelsea has been so splendid in the Modern Health Crusade that it is deserving of mention. With the continued cooperation of the parents and teachers to help make it a success, the prediction made by interested persons outside of the county, "that's the best yet," should come true. The Washtenaw County Public Health Nursing Service hopes to establish it in the schools of Sylvan township and the Chelsea village schools are long, thus practically covering the county with Crusaders. "Ye old folk" do not be surprised, should you forget to cover that sneeze, to feel a tap on your shoulder by a young Crusader against disease. He may remind you that you are endangering life by your carelessness.

The Modern Health Crusade is an organized movement evolved three years ago from the National Anti-Tuberculosis Association, in connection with the double red cross Christmas seals. It is a measure to help defeat tuberculosis which continues to kill 12,000 boys and girls each year. It represents a novel system of teaching boys and girls, by methods that grip their interest, both personal health habits and care for the health of others. The Crusades supply the child with a motive for patient work in acquiring health habits when the abstract advantages of health and the usual physiology do not call the child to action. It accomplishes this by introducing the play element in the study and practice of hygiene and all in accordance with the law of habit formation. It transfers some of the romance of the medieval crusaders to a vital quest of present-day children. It holds up to them the chivalry of health, the high ideals of strength, right living and the protection of the weak.

The Modern Health Crusade was begun in one-third of the rural schools of this county last spring. Since then the children in 18 of the 20 townships have become enthusiastic Crusaders. Over four million school children are enrolled in the United States but we maintain that Washtenaw county boys and girls are in the lead in Michigan. In a recent comment made by an authority from Wayne county, where over 50,000 children are enrolled, including Detroit, that fact was brought out. This fall the board of education in Detroit decided to give the children there credit for this definite and much needed health education. We hope next year that our school boards will concede the same credit for this work here.

Briefly, the children enrolling pledge themselves to the performance of daily health duties, eleven in all, such as brushing the teeth at least twice daily, washing of hands before meals, sleeping with windows open, proper posture in standing and sitting, drinking tea and coffee, to keep neat, cheerful and clean-minded and to be helpful to others. The "chores" are checked up each day by parents and teachers and if the obligations have been faithfully kept for two weeks, the child progresses to the rank of Page, after five weeks to a Squire, after ten weeks to a Knight, after fifteen weeks to a Knight Banneret, receiving an insignia in honor of each progression of which they are very proud.

One little Crusader, when asked by the Red Cross nurse why he did not wear the Knight Banneret pin which she knew he had earned, answered up quickly, "Oh, I wear that only with my best suit." Another did not wear his at all because he feared that he would lose the precious possession. But most of the Crusaders who have earned their insignia, display them all in proud array.

Bridgewater—Martin Wackenhut and Leonard and Lillian Hunt sheared 1,300 sheep at Wilbur Hogan's, working 10 days and using two sheep-shearing machines.

Dexter—At a special meeting of Washenaw Chapter, O. E. S., Tuesday evening, degrees were conferred upon a class of eight. About 75 members were in attendance, and a number of visitors were present from Chelsea. A royal good time was enjoyed by all.—News.

Jackson—A deed brought into the county treasurer's office Friday bore the date of 1899, and had never been presented for recording. Delays in recording transfers of property are not unusual, but, according to attaches of the treasurer's and registers of deeds offices, this instance wins the pennant.—News.

Jackson—The report of the jail inspection committee for the past six months was completed Thursday and gives the official O. K. to the county jail in the matter of cleanliness and general condition. The report announced that during the six months since the last report, 720 prisoners have been confined in the jail. The total population at the time of the inspection, February 10, was 79, of these 75 were males and 4 females. The number in jail awaiting trial was 16 and serving sentences, 79.—News.

Pineck—The Edison workmen are making good headway in the village. The poles are all set, linemen are busy putting up the wires, and from present indications private consumers will be furnished with Edison service about the first of the month. Many houses will have to have slight changes in the wiring where the wires enter the buildings, the present way being dangerous and contrary to state fire regulations. These changes however, will not be very expensive and are necessary for safety. Dispatch.

Saline—The old bell which has since 1843 hung in the steeple of the Baptist churches, has been sold to the Methodist society for their use and was on Tuesday taken down and transferred across the street to its new home. This bell, which was made in Troy, New York, and weighs 976 pounds, is one of the finest toned bells in the state. For the first two years after reaching Saline, it was rung at noon each week and every day which was at that time a common practice in many places.—Observer.

Saline—After a long discussion of the proposed merging of the Methodist, Presbyterian and Baptist churches of Milan into a community church, the Baptists voted to continue worship by themselves, whereupon members who favored the merger left the church and went over to the Presbyterian body, leaving a very small congregation. The Presbyterian church, once weak, is now strong, leading in membership. Union meetings have been held, but the Methodists discontinued their attendance some time ago.—Observer.

Ann Arbor—Certificates of naturalization were granted nine applicants, two being held over for another examination. The examination was conducted in circuit court by Daniel Gotthold, of Detroit. United States naturalization examiner, before Judge George W. Sample. Those who are now citizens of the United States by reason of passing the examination are as follows: Aline Ellwood Terry, Thomas Martin Kearney, Russell Forest Betts, Elias Caragorog, James McCarthy, Antonio De Mattis, John Isaacs, Charles Henry Baker, and Domienick De Mattis.

Manchester—We hope that Commissioner Cox of the county roads system will be able to get a favorable bid on construction of the road west of town to the Jackson county line, on Wednesday, March 9, as per advertisement in another column of the Enterprise. That road certainly needs immediate attention and should be built the coming season. There is plenty of gravel to be procured nearby and there are no hills to climb, so the team work will not be hard. Teams ought to be secured at somewhat less price than last year, and laborers also.—Enterprise.

Ann Arbor May Festival.

A wonderful program will be provided for the next Ann Arbor May Festival which will take place in Hill Auditorium, May 18-21. This festival will culminate the musical activities of Dr. Stanley, who since 1888 has been at the head of Ann Arbor's musical life. Dr. Stanley has assembled a corps of musical celebrities such as has seldom before been brought together at one time, and at the request of many music patrons the programs will include several of his own compositions. All of the participating artists represent the best in their particular lines and are renowned throughout the world of music.

Luisa Tetrazzini, one of the world's pre-eminent concert and opera singers, will be the big attraction Friday night.

Rosa Ponselle, the celebrated American artist of Italian extraction, who created such a furore in New York a few years ago when she, as an unknown girl, and over night as it were, became a member of the Metropolitan opera forces, and who was heard at the festival two years ago, has been chosen to sing the title role in Verdi's "Aida" which will be presented Saturday night.

Florence Hinkle, another renowned soprano, will participate in the performance of the "Elijah" by Mendelssohn in the Thursday evening program.

Cyrena Van Gordan, the distinguished contralto of the Chicago Opera Association, will appear in the role of Amneris, a part in which she has excelled in her operatic career.

Merle Alcock, contralto, who was heard in Ann Arbor to advantage a number of years ago and who is now at her zenith of her artistic powers, will appear in the Elijah in a role especially adapted for her.

The appearance of Charles Marshall, the distinguished tenor of the Chicago Opera Association, in the role of Radames will be a distinct acquisition, for his Chicago appearances have stood out in the world of music similar to the great success which Galli-Curci won with the same organization a few years ago.

Also Schina, also of the Chicago Opera Association, has been chosen for the miscellaneous program Wednesday evening, the opening Festival concert.

Lambert Murphy, another oratorio singer of first rank, has been chosen for the Elijah, a work which he has sung many times with great success.

Three baritones will be heard. Arthur Middleton will sing the role of Amonasso for which his voice is particularly fitted.

Theodore Harrison, who for several years was head of the Voice Department of the University School of Music, will complete the quartet for the performance of Elijah, singing the title role.

Chase Sikes, formerly a student of the University School of Music, and who at present is associated with Giuseppe Campanari, the well-known baritone-teacher, will be heard as soloist in a work for children written by Earl V. Moore, which will be given its premier at the Friday afternoon concert under the direction of George Oscar Bowen, who will conduct a large chorus of school children.

At the Saturday afternoon concert, which will be given over largely to a program of symphonic numbers, Fanny Bloomfield-Zeiser, America's greatest woman pianist, will appear as soloist.

The Chicago Symphony Orchestra, as in the past, under the leadership of Frederick Stock, will participate in five of the festival programs forming the backbone of the choral and solo numbers and appearing as chief attraction in several numbers at each of the miscellaneous programs.

The University Choral Union, which since the inception of the festival nearly thirty years ago has formed so important a part of the program, will this year appear under its distinguished conductor, Dr. Stanley, for the last time. The chorus has had a remarkable history and is acknowledged to be the largest permanent chorus now in almost exclusive of students in existence. The enthusiasm with which the organization this year is working on the selections to be rendered indicates that their efforts will be a suitable climax to the many programs which it has given under the direction of Dr. Stanley.

Chancery Order

STATE OF MICHIGAN—The Circuit Court for the County of Washtenaw—In Chancery.

At a session of the said

W. H. JOHNSON, of Portland, Ore., who says no one could have done him any greater kindness than the friend who advised him to try Tanlac. — Gains fifteen pounds.

"Not in a long time have I enjoyed such good health or felt so well generally as I do since taking Tanlac," said W. H. Johnson, 310 East 43rd St., Portland, Ore., who holds a responsible position with the Northwest Transfer Company.

"About a year ago I began suffering from lack of appetite and stomach trouble and since that time—that is, until Tanlac set me right—I have felt so poorly that I could hardly do my work. My food seemed to do me little good, if any, as my digestion was bad, and I lost both weight and strength continually.

"After every meal there was a dull, nagging pain in the pit of my stomach that kept me feeling miserable for hours.

"The gas from my sour, undigested food would blow me up terribly and my nerves were so upset that I could lie awake half the night unable to sleep. I was constantly having blind, dizzy spells and could not bend over and straighten up quickly but what everything seemed as dark as night to me.

"I was telling a friend one day how bad I felt and he advised me to try Tanlac and I just want to say he couldn't have done me a greater kindness.

"I have picked up all of fifteen pounds in weight, my appetite is fine, and although I am eating just anything I want my stomach never gives me a particle of trouble. My sleep is sound and restful and my strength and energy have been so renewed that my work is no longer a burden to me."

Tanlac is sold by leading druggists everywhere.—Adv.

Desired Privilege.
"Well, what did you think of my acting?" asked an amateur player of a truthful but diplomatic member of the audience.

"I can say this," replied the spectator frankly. "I have a friend who I am confident would have given $500 to have heard you."

"Who is it?" asked the embryo Booth, highly pleased.

"Well, you wouldn't know him. But he's deaf as a post."—American Legion Weekly.

Organized Labor Defies United States Government in Matter of Injunctions.

IS READY FOR BIG FIGHT

"Bill of Rights" and Legislative Demands Issued—Harding Completes His Cabinet—America Pretests Japanese Rule Over Yap—Near East Conference in London.

By EDWARD W. PICKARD.

Organized labor of America has thrown down before its "enemies" the gauntlet of challenge to a fight to a finish. The United States government is apparently included among those "enemies" and is boldly defied to enforce judicial injunctions in industrial disputes.

Under the leadership of Samuel Gompers the representatives of the national and international unions affiliated with the American Federation of Labor met last week in Washington and formulated their "bill of rights" and their demands on the government and the people. In these there is much besides the injunction matter, but that is perhaps the most important. A statement prepared by Mr. Gompers was issued in which the injunction as now used is denounced as unconstitutional and a pure usurpation of power and authority. The only remedy in the hands of the workers, continues the statement, "lies in a flat refusal on the part of labor to recognize or abide by the terms of injunctions which seek to prohibit the doing of acts which the workers have a lawful and guaranteed right to do or which seek to compel workers to do those things which they have a lawful and guaranteed right to refuse to do."

"This is the only immediate course through which labor can find relief, and this course it purposes to pursue. Labor realizes fully the consequences of such a course, but in the defense of American freedom and of American institutions it is compelled to adopt this course, be the consequences what they may."

Of course if this threat is carried out the result will be the arrest of great numbers of working men for violations of injunctions; and, presuming that the courts and government do not yield and that union labor brings into action all its resources, something little short of a state of rebellion will follow. Union labor thinks that its very existence as such is threatened by present tendencies and conditions. Other citizens must see that the threat is directed against the peace of the nation and all that that involves. Nor will the informed and thinking American accept as the truth the statement of Gompers, that only the Federation of Labor is saving the country from Bolshevism. The Reds have done and can do much mischief in America, but there is no real danger of their gaining control here or upsetting our government.

Public support and recognition is asked by the labor leaders for these propositions, comprising their "bill of rights."

The right of the working people to organize into trade unions for the protection of their rights and interests.

The right to and practice of, collective bargaining by trade unions, through representatives of their own choosing.

The right to work, and to cease work, collectively.

The right collectively to bestow or withhold patronage.

The right to the exercise of collective activities in furtherance of the welfare of labor.

Their legislative program is summarized thus:

"Enactment by congress of legislation to protect the workers in their organized capacity against the concept that there is a property right in human labor."

"No application of the use of injunctions in industrial disputes where they would not apply in the absence of such disputes."

"Prohibition of immigration for not less than two years."

"More general application of the initiative and referendum in the political affairs of the United States and of the states."

"Removal by congress of the usurped power of courts to declare unconstitutional laws enacted by congress."

"Election of judges."

"Immediate restoration of exemption from, or the repeal of, all anti-combination and so-called conspiracy laws."

"Restoration of an adequate federal employment service."

"Administration of credit as a public trust in the interest of all the people."

"Repeal by the states of all industrial court laws and all restrictive and coercive laws, including the so-called open port law of Texas, and freedom from decisions of courts holding trade unions, and individual members thereof, liable in damages for the unlawful acts of others."

"Enactment by congress of a law declaring that labor organizations are not co-partnerships and shall not be so treated in law or in equity."

"Investigation by congress of the activities of so-called private detective agencies in the field of industrial relations."

President-elect Harding's announcement of his completed cabinet may not have aroused any loud cheers of enthusiasm, but it was received with quiet satisfaction and confidence by a large part of the public. Though the list of ten names does not include those of many men of towering eminence, at least, that all the members of the new cabinet are men with ideas and opinions and that they will be actually the advisers of the chief executive. The only real surprise among the appointments was that of Edwin Denby of Middletown to be secretary of the navy. Not that he is not well equipped to fill the position, but he was barely mentioned in advance. The selection of Mr. Hoover for the portfolio of commerce was gratifying to the public, and that of Mr. Davis for secretary of labor pleased most of the organized labor forces of the country, though he is no longer directly connected with their activities.

Frank Lowden, having declined appointment, Illinois received no place in the cabinet. But many persons are hoping that Mr. Harding will persuade Charles Dawes of Chicago to accept the chairmanship of the commission he will name to reorganize the executive machinery of the government. This position, Mr. Harding holds, will be almost if not quite as important as a place in the cabinet.

The two great agencies of the allies—the supreme council and the council of the League of Nations—began sessions last week, the former in London and the latter in Paris. The league council first took up the matter of amendments to the covenant, and, because the attitude of the incoming administration in America was in doubt, the question was referred to a committee which will not report before April. This gives Mr. Harding time to define his position on the league. Then the mandates were brought up for consideration, and again the United States, though not officially represented, made its influence felt. Ambassador Wallace sent word that our state department wished to present its views, and action was halted until the note from Washington arrived. This note, in substance, called attention to the fact that the United States has never given its consent that the island of Yap be included in the territories subjected to the mandate of Japan, and declares the government cannot regard itself as bound by the terms of that mandate. It asked the council to submit the question to a new investigation.

Secretary Colby also claimed for the United States an equal concern and interest with the other principal allied and associated powers in the disposition of the overseas possessions of Germany.

The net result, at this writing, is a decision to delay all mandates at-tion until the May meeting of the league.

The conference in London dealt with the problem of the Near East and the possibility of revising the Sevres treaty. Turkish delegations representing both the Constantinople and the Ankara governments were present and the first part of the week was wasted in their efforts to get together and present a detailed statement of their desires. They finally agreed on demands that Thrace, Smyrna and the Dardanelles be restored to Turkey, and objections to the political, economic and financial control exercised by the allies. However, Richard Pasha, speaking for both groups, assured the conferees that both sections would accept the decision of the allies. The demand that the custody of the Dardanelles be resigned again to the Turks caused much surprise and unfavorable comment, even among the French delegates, who have been generally on the side of Turkey in the present controversy. The Greeks remain uncompromising in their demand that the treaty of Sevres stand virtually unaltered, and it was considered possible the great powers might permit them to try to hold their positions in Turkey, though without assistance from the allies.

According to advices from Constantinople, the Bolsheviks in the Caucasus region have begun warfare against the republic of Georgia and already have occupied considerable territory. First dispatches said the Reds, under command of Rudomy, had captured Tiflis, the capital, but later it was reported they had been driven back from the city by the hastily gathered Georgian troops. There is little doubt of the ability of the Bolsheviks to overrun Georgia and reach Erzurum, there establishing contact with the forces of Mustapha Kemal Pasha.

Another Red drive took place in Persia and resulted in the capture of Teheran, the capital, and of the shah himself. This exploit was carried out by several thousands of Persian Cossacks under Reza Khan, who landed on the south shore of the Caspian sea and marched to Kashan and thence to Teheran. Notwithstanding these movements in the east, the great bulk of the Russian Bolshevik army is on the west border preparing for the big spring drive there.

From German news sources comes the information that Montenegro, which has never ceased to protest against the loss of her identity in the formation of the new Jug-Slavian state, has declared a holy war against Serbia. The message said two Serbian regiments had occupied Cetinje, the Montenegrin capital, and that the situation was considered serious.

While the "war" in Ireland was being carried on with renewed vigor by both sides, the house of commons last week engaged in long and exciting debates on the Irish question. At one time, in rejecting an opposition amendment by a vote of 257 to 88 the house placed its seal of approval on the government's Irish policy. Lord Robert Cecil made his debut as whip of the opposition party in an effective speech in which he demanded that a parliamentary commission make an impartial investigation of the alleged atrocities in Ireland. Sir Hanat Greenwood warned the house that the conspiracy of the Sinn Fein was now directed against England; and he told of a captured document which showed an appropriation of $30,000 a month for the "r-publican army," most of which money, he asserted, came from Irish-Americans.

Justice Cohalan of the Supreme court of New York, one of the most ardent of the anti-English Irishmen in this country, made himself more ridiculous than usual last week by voicing, in a public address, the opinion that the United States should demand of Great Britain that she make Canada free and forever remove the British flag from this continent.

Fordson TRADE MARK Farm Tractor

The Fordson cuts the cost of preparing land almost to half of what it cost with horses. But even more important is the fact that the Fordson saves from thirty to fifty per cent of the farmer's time. And time saved—getting fields in shape to plant in the proper season; getting things done when they should be done—means money to the farmer. Besides it solves the labor problem.

As ever, the machine-way is proving more efficient, faster, easier than the old hand way. In the factory, the machine increases production, saves labor—produces more at less cost. And that is what the Fordson does on the farm. The Fordson way is the machine way of farming. Besides it solves the labor problem.

The Fordson's first cost is the lowest in the market; and the after or operating cost is lowest. It is a compact easily handled tractor, backed by the greatest tractor service organization in the United States.

We are Fordson dealers. Not only do we sell Fordson tractors, but we carry a stock of Fordson parts and employ Fordson mechanics to help the farmers get the best results from the Fordson.

Similar Cases Being Published In Each Issue.

The following case is but one of many occurring daily in Chelsea. It is an easy matter to verify it. You cannot ask for better proof.

John Kelly, W. Middle St., Chelsea, says: "My work is what started my kidney trouble. The secretions were highly colored and contained sediment. They acted irregularly and the secretions were painful in passage. I suffered from rheumatic pains in my back and would get sore and stiff. Mornings I felt all tired and it took an hour or so to get limbered up. I was often nervous and dizzy, especially when I had to stoop over. I used different remedies but they didn't help me any. Then I saw Doan's Kidney Pills advertised and tried some. Doan's completely relieved me of all the trouble with my kidneys and back so I am glad to recommend them." (Statement given March 1, 1913.)

On April 27, 1920, Mr. Kelly said: "Doan's Kidney Pills are all right and I gladly confirm the statement I gave some years ago regarding the merits of this medicine."

YOUNG GIRL FINDS RELIEF

Wants to Tell Other Girls All About It

Evansville, Ind.—"I am eighteen years old and have been bothered for several months with irregular periods. Every month my back would ache and I always had a cold and felt drowsy and sleepy. I work in a millinery shop and I went to work every day, but felt stupid and would have such cramps. I had seen Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound advertised and had heard several women talk of it, so mother got me some. This Vegetable Compound is wonderful and it helped me very much, so that during my periods I am not now sick or drowsy. I have told many girls about your medicine and would be glad to help anyone who is troubled with similar ailments. You may use my testimonial as you like."—STELLA LINX, 56 Second St., Evansville, Indiana.

Mrs. Hicks Relieved By Four Eatonics

"I have taken four Eatonics tablets and they relieved me of sour stomach. I recommend it to everybody," says Mrs. U. P. Hicks.

It stomach is not digesting your food; if you have sourness, bloating, food repelling, indigestion or acid stomach, Eatonics will remove the cause by taking up and carrying out the acidity and gases, bringing quick relief and healthy digestion. Why suffer stomach trouble? Why not keep your digestion normal and enjoy good health? An Eatonics taken after each meal will prevent discomfort and pain.

Make the test today and see how quickly this wonderful remedy acts. It comes in handy tablet form. Carry it with you. A big box costs only a trifle with your druggist's guarantee.

SMALL BUT EFFECTIVE

Was the little Monitor that met the Morriac at Hampton Roads. So too are Doctor Pierce's Pleasant Pellets effective in Bilious and Sick Headache, Constipation, Indigestion and Bilious Attacks. All druggists.

Adrian, Mich.—"I have used Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery and Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets. I used the 'Pellets' for a very bad case of constipation, which had troubled me for a long time. They cured me, so I am never bothered any more. I used the 'Golden Medical Discovery' for my blood, and found it a splendid medicine as well. I can highly recommend Dr. Pierce's medicine."—MRS. Above the Fog.

There is one feature of the crossing of the English channel to airplanes which possesses special interest, namely, avoiding the fogs which are the greatest source of danger to vessels that crowded sea lanes. It is said that by keeping at an elevation varying from 1,000 to 1,200 feet the aviator is able to pass above the fog that covers the water.

LANSING LETTER

VOTERS TO PASS ON STATE INCOME TAX AND PRIMARY

Important Constitutional Amendments May Be Submitted; Opposition to Proposed 8-Hour Day.

A constitutional amendment to permit the people of the state to pass the question of a state income tax law has been proposed in the senate by Senator MacArthur, Detroit. The resolution provides that the voters shall instruct the legislature whether they want laws for the administration of a state income tax.

The tax would relieve the heavy burden now placed on real estate.

Members of the judiciary committee have not yet agreed on the Hart bill providing optional capital punishment in Michigan. Rep. Russell A. Hart, Detroit, who is author of the bill, has declared that he will demand that it be reported out by the committee for consideration on the floor of the house.

WOULD BAR POLITICAL BOSS.

Nomination of all constitutional state officers by direct primary, is provided for in a constitutional amendment presented by Rep. George Lord, Detroit. The measure would also make these officers thus nominated, delegates to state conventions for the purpose of formulating party platforms and issues.

Mr. Lord declares that his amendment will bring a showdown on the question of primary versus convention systems. He also declares that it will abolish for all time the power of political bosses in the state, making the elective officers directly responsible to the people. The governor and lieutenant-governor are now the only state officials subject to the primary, the other officials being nominated at the party conventions.

Other bills are pending which would go to the other extreme and abolish all primaries.

After sharp verbal battle in the house, the joint resolution to increase from 10 to 20 per cent the number of signatures required to place an amendment on the ballot failed of passage for lack of a two-thirds vote. The resolution was proposed by Rep. Moore, St. Clair, who had as his principal opponent in debate Rep. Aaron Miles, Mecosta county.

PRISON SYSTEM COMMENDED.

Rather than criticism for the seven instances in which corporal punishment has been resorted to in Jackson prison during the last 13 months, Warden Harry Hulbert should be commended for the fine discipline in the institution, according to the report filed by the house committee. The report states that those who have been demanding removal of the warden on this score have taken action "based on entire ignorance of conditions existing at this institution." The report was submitted by Rep. Franklin Moore, St. Clair, chairman of the committee.

Declaring the report of the pardon board incomplete, and for that reason inaccurate, Rep. Charles Evans introduced a joint resolution in the house calling for the appointment of a joint committee composed of two senators and three representatives to investigate the work of the prison and pardon board since 1906. On motion of Mr. Evans, the resolution was placed on its immediate passage and adopted.

Senator James Henry, Battle Creek, has declared the report of the commission in charge of the construction of state office buildings as unsatisfactory, and further investigation will be made this week. Total appropriations of $1,750,000 have been provided for the work but additional funds have been requested which will bring the cost of the building to about $3,000,000.

HOUSE PASSES LENNON BILL.

Weathering a barrage of amendments, aimed to destroy its effectiveness, as well as a series of assaults in an effort to drive it into the oblivion of a committee room pigeon hole, the Lennon firearm bill was passed by the house by a 56 to 29 vote. In supporting his bill, Rep. Lennon declared that the alien had brought the necessity for drastic action upon himself by a consistent refusal to obey the laws of the country and conduct himself as a peaceful citizen.

Among the bills passed by the senate is included the following: That proof copies of ballots be submitted to county candidates; that a joint resolution to restore Fort Mackinac to the United States be repealed; that the transportation, sale or running at large of diseased sheep be prevented; that notice of formation or abolition of new election precincts must be filed with the secretary of state; and Senator Ruppelle's bill to prevent the marriage of girls under 16 years of age.

The house passed Rep. Albert Reutter's bill which doubles the minimum penalty for automobile stealing, also the bill which amends the state highway law so as to prevent counties returning to the township unit for road building purposes. It was given immediate effect at the request of the state highway commissioner.

The state is now paying more than $21,000 annual rental for branches of the state department located in Detroit and Rep. Reutter is preparing a resolution providing that all departments be gathered under one roof at half the cost.

8-HOUR DAY IS OPPOSED.

Charging that the Holland 8-hour bill now pending in the house is a "wage proposition, pure and simple," Attorney Hal Smith, representing the Michigan Manufacturers' association at a hearing before the house labor committee declared the manufacturers of the state could not endure such wage increases. The bill, sponsored by the Gogebic county representative, demands eight hours as the working day in mines, quarries, factories, shops and mills and provides for time and a half for overtime.

Explicit prohibition of the employment of electric and street railway motormen and conductors more than six days a week is provided in a bill introduced by Senator Ruppelle, Detroit.

A bill requiring that public utilities stand the expense of appraisals of their property by the public utility commission, was presented by Rep. Ward Copley, Detroit. Surveys and appraisals of this kind have cost the state thousands of dollars.

The state administrative board has ordered a fund of between $25,000 and $30,000, held by the state treasurer for the private hospital operated in connection with the Traverse City state hospital, turned over to the general fund, and also ordered that all future receipts and disbursements must pass through the regular financial channels of the state.

WOULD LICENSE GARAGES.

A bill limiting deer hunters to one buck, a measure that has the support of John Baird, state game warden, has been submitted by Rep. Glaspie, Oxford. Mr. Glaspie believes that unless a restriction is placed on hunters, the supply of deer in Michigan would soon be exhausted.

Licensing of garages and service stations is provided for in a bill introduced by Rep. Lee, Port Huron. The license would be issued by the secretary of state upon payment of $5 yearly.

Repeal of the 1919 law which exempts war veterans' homesteads of taxation to the amount of $1,000, where the property is now valued in excess of $3,000, will be asked by Rep. Jensen, Escanaba.

The salary of the superintendent of public instruction would be increased to $8,000 a year if the provisions of a bill introduced in the senate by Senator Condon becomes a law. The official is now paid $4,000.

Automobiles may be driven legally at 30 miles an hour in the country and at 20 miles an hour in cities under the provisions of a proposed amendment to the general motor law, submitted by Senator Penny.

Amendment of the state prohibition law so as to include regulation of extracts and medicinal preparations with alcoholic content, is called for in a bill introduced by Senator Bolt. Manufacturers of these products would have to secure a license, effective for one-year periods.

INSURANCE LAW CHANGE.

Senator Thomas McNaughton, Ada, introduced a bill to amend the insurance laws by adding a section to fix the valuation of bonds and other evidences of debt held by insurance and like companies. Bonds having a fixed term and rate, if at par, would be valued at the par value; if above or below par, on the basis of purchase price adjusted so as to bring the value to par at maturity. The commissioner is given full discretion in determining method of calculation.

Senator Penny offered a bill fixing the amounts cities and villages may raise for bearing the expense of Memorial day programs.

The bill providing for special primaries to fill vacancies for circuit judges was the first signed by the Governor.

Among the new bills presented is one by Rep. John Holland, Gogebic county, reducing the fee that may be charged by employment agencies from 10 to 2 per cent of a client's first month's pay.

Governor Grosbeck's bill for the creation of a state administrative board became ready for his signature and immediate effect when the senate concurred in amendments inserted in the house, passing the amended bill unanimously. Twenty senators were present to vote.

FUNDS FOR CATTLE TESTING.

To carry on the work of testing cattle for tuberculosis in Michigan, H. H. Halladay, state commissioner of animal industry, has asked the Legislature for an additional $75,000 to tide the department over until the end of the fiscal year, July 1.

The department was granted $75,000 for testing cattle during the present fiscal year, but the sum has been expended due to the fact that twice as many cattle were examined during 1920 as in the previous 12 months, according to Mr. Halladay.

Governor Grosbeck is having prepared several amendments to the Workmen's Compensation act with a view to eliminating unnecessary delay in the settlement of industrial accident cases. The Governor feels that the Industrial Accident Board is bound by too much red tape, part of this he believes is due to the act itself and part to the board's rules.

The average term of service of 55 prisoners sentenced to life imprisonment who have been pardoned or paroled from the state prisons and reformatories since 1906 is 15 years, according to a special report submitted by the state pardon board, at the request of the lower house of the legislature.

MOTHER AND I THINK IT A FINE TONIC

We All Had Coughs and Felt Miserable, But Hypo-Cod Stopped It.

OUR WHOLE FAMILY KEEP WELL WITH IT

"My mother-in-law and both myself and children were in a rundown, weakened condition, and we all had coughs and felt miserable. None of us had a good appetite. Mealtime didn't mean anything to us, and none of us had enough ambition to do anything. We just dragged around until one night I read about this wonderful new tonic Earle's Hypo-Cod in the newspaper. We got a couple of bottles down at the drug store, and it did wonders for us. Our appetites came back almost overnight. Our coughs soon left us, and we all gained in strength until every one of us felt as good as ever. I can't praise it too highly, and people here in Lansing think so much of it our druggist has a hard time keeping a stock on hand. You'll mighty soon feel like yourself again if you take my advice and use Hypo-Cod," declared Mrs. Albert Hecks, 241 Allen St., Lansing.

It is easy to increase the family's appetite and to drive away wintry coughs, colds and catarrhal trouble. This new, modern, powerful and palatable combination of Hypophosphites, soluble extracts of Cod Liver Oil, Malt, Iron and Wild Cherry extract preparation does the work sooner and is nice to take, even the children love it. The name Earle Chemical Co. is a guarantee of finest quality in medicine. By taking this splendid new tonic right now at this season of the year it is possible to avoid wintry coughs, colds, and more serious sickness all winter long. Hypo-Cod fortifies the system quickly. Drop in at the nearest drug store tonight and get a bottle. The cost is trifling compared with better health.—Adv.

FARMERS' LOAN IS LEGAL, SAYS COURT

NEW ISSUE OF FARM LOAN BONDS TO BE OFFERED, SAYS COMMISSIONER LOBDELL.

LEVER ACT UNCONSTITUTIONAL

Supreme Court Also Declares Evidence in Liquor Raids Void if Secured Without Warrant.

Washington—A new issue of farm loan bonds bearing interest at five per cent will be offered immediately. Commissioner Lobdell of the farm loan board announced Monday night. The amount is as yet undetermined.

The announcement followed a decision of the United States supreme court that the farm loan act, designed to assist the agricultural development of the United States by providing readily accessible credits to farmers through federal loan banks, is valid.

The supreme court held unconstitutional the section of the Lever act under which the government stopped the coal strike of 1919 and subsequently launched its campaign to reduce the cost of living by prosecuting alleged hoarders of and profiteers in food stuffs and other necessities.

The court sustained lower courts in granting to 35 retail merchants of Denver, Colo., an injunction restraining authorities from enforcing provisions of the Lever act.

Practically all attacks against the act were based on the ground that it violated the fifth amendment to the constitution in that it deprived defendants of their property without due process of law. Other arguments were based on allegations that enactment of the law, October 23, 1919, after hostilities had ceased, was not a proper exercise by congress of its war power.

Evidence obtained by revenue agents in raids conducted without a search warrant cannot be admitted in court proceedings, the supreme court ruled in settling aside the conviction in South Carolina of Lawrence Amos.

Frightened, Warren attempted to carry his brother, and unable to do this decided to fire another bullet to end his brother's suffering, according to his story to the police.

The boy is now at the juvenile detention home and will be held until April 8 when he will become 12 years of age and he will go into juvenile court for trial.

He hopes later to be able to utilize the skins of many other fruits. It is to be hoped that he succeeds, for the cost of clothes will be considerably less than those made of present-day imitation silks and overpriced cottons.

MARIO, NOT RED.

Synopsis: Vaguely conscious of a double personality, but without any idea of its meaning, the girl Leonora makes her accustomed way into the underworld of New York. Mario joins her, greatly to her surprise, and seeing the fine qualities which the girl really possesses, Mario seeks to turn her from the path of inevitable destruction. She promises to marry him. At Mario's safe, gathering place of criminals, Leonora meets her partner, "Red," Carmichael, and his associates, and is accused of betraying a fellow criminal to the police. Police crash into the room and two are killed by Carmichael. Leonora and the rest escape in her studio. Priscilla, Mario's wealthy aunt, awakes from troubled sleep with a distinct feeling of having her life linked with Leonora's. Priscilla has painted a picture of herself in fancy dress, a picture which has a strange effect on her. Carmichael and "Red" call to her aid a dear friend, Dr. Philip Fosdick, who is in love with her. He is stunned to find that her dream story of the police night is confirmed by the newspapers. Priscilla tells him about the mystery of her mother, who died when she was born. He sees the effect of the painting and pronounces it a case of auto-hypnosis. Priscilla makes him promise not to go to the police and he begins investigating it for himself. The personalities of Priscilla and Leonora become more closely identified. Red sends word to Leonora to come to him in hiding. Tremendous news, in love with Red, volunteers as guide.

IV. THE ROOFS—Continued.

"That's no dick," she declared impulsively.
"How do you know?"
"I don't know, but somehow I do. Seems like I must've seen him somewhere before."
"Well, if he ain't no pussfoot, what for he followin' us?"
"I don't know," Leonora repeated vaguely. "Maybe I'm wrong . . ."

She was not, as the Self knew that journeyed with her, though she did not suspect its company. An iron ladder rose to a trap door through which they crawled out upon the roof.

Here the blackness was oppressive, relieved only by a dull reflection of the city's glow on the low-hung canopy of clouds; and the tempest had unkindly swept. Time and again vicious blasts all but carried the two women off their feet. Rain driving in vast sheets had blinded them and rendered their passage of the roofs doubly perilous. They slipped, stumbled, blundered, bruised their bodies against unseen obstacles, their shoes upon low copings dividing house from house (for the roofs were fortunately all on a level) and more than once by the narrowest of margins escaped pitching headlong to death at the bottom of some dark shaft.

Leonora soon lost all sense of reckoning and was beginning to wonder how Inez could hold on so confidently when the latter stopped, knelt, and began to tug at the heavy hatch of another trap door. Leonora, assisting, between them they threw it back, descended a second iron ladder into a hallway indistinguishable unlike that which they had just left. But Inez seemed to recognize it instantly.

"It's all right," she whispered harshly, pausing half way down the ladder when Leonora stood on the landing below. "The door on the left, at the back. You know the high sign. I'll be shutting this trap. Look sharp—before somebody bumps us!"

She climbed back a couple of rungs to wrestle with the hatch while Leonora, turning to the door designated, saluted its panels with the peculiar rap which alone would be acknowledged by Red.

For some time she waited, hearing no sounds from the far side of the door, hearing indeed nothing other than the bluster of the storm and Inez, peevishly untheatricalizing the clumsy and obstinate hatch. Presently the hatch fell into place with a crash, and the girl turned, looking to see Inez drop to the landing and surprised that she did not, but with a surprise no sooner conceived than smothered in a greater. For the door swung open suddenly, and a voice she knew, for whose accents she had hungered ceaselessly for days on end, neither Red's voice nor Leo's—cried in amazement:

to Mario, in spite of all her struggles to keep away from him, to deny love and self lest she entangle him as well in the coils of her misfortune.

She went as naturally to his arms as a child in trouble to the arms of its father. Inez, Red, Leo, the police—everything—forgotten in the happiness of that meeting.

Gently drawing her across the threshold, Mario shut the door between them and the world.

V. THE HAVEN.

"So you have come to me . . . at last!"

She lifted her rain-swept face from the warm haven of his shoulder, filled with yearning toward his lips . . . and remembered. Fear lanced that ecstasy like pain. With a convulsive movement she wrenched away her lips and struggled from his arms.

"Leonora?" he protested—"what is it?"

"Red!" she gasped, staring wildly round—"Leon, where are they?"

"How should I know? What are those two to me—to us?"

"Where are we?"

"In my rooms, as you see—well beyond the reach of those cut-throats!"

"But"—a dubious hand faltered to her cheek—"I came here to meet Red. He sent for me. Inez brought me."

"Then Inez led you astray, dear—no; alright!" His arms again enfolded her. "And thank God for that!"

Confused, she fell into a silence, misgivings hounded by wonder. Taste and means had transmuted the commonplace into an abode of such luxury as the girl had seldom dreamed of—indeed, had never seen but in the pages of illustrated magazines.

In this main room, dark hangings disguised the walls, with framed paintings like glowing windows open on exotic landscapes, and shelves heavy laden with volumes in rich bindings. An antique Chinese rug of exquisite artistry hid in part a polished dark floor of parquet. Upon a library table of old Spanish oak books, manuscripts and objects d'art were huddled in the warm light of a lamp of wrought brass. Wide-armed chairs of deep upholstery in leather offered enticing invitation to weary limbs. An atmosphere of studious repose soothed excited sensibilities.

A bedchamber partly visible through one open door offered a strong contrast of almost Spartan simplicity with soberly tinted walls, a narrow day bed of mahogany and upholstered chairs and dressing table to match this last.

Through still another door a glimpse of white enameled walls, stainless porcelain and nicked fittings proved that a civilized bathroom had there been installed, in a building whose every other tenant was content with such facilities for personal cleanliness as were afforded by the common kitchen sink.

The girl shook a bewildered head. "And you've lived here all along, Mario?"

"Here I have come to rest, Leonora, worn out with the weariness and disappointment of fruitless searching for you. How could you torture me so? Where have you been?"

"Not far . . . hiding."

"From the police? Because of that business at Ristic's? You were involved in that? Carmichael, too, and all those others, as well as Bielsky?"

She nodded to every question. "I feared this! Tell me what happened. Why did you not come to me first of all?"

"I was afraid—"

"Afraid of the man who loves you, whom you love? You do love me, Leonora?"

"Yes," she murmured—"yes, with all of me, Mario."

"Then why—?"

"I was afraid of Red. He swore he'd have you murdered if I ever spoke to you again."

nothing of him in connection with the affair, only the man Bielsky."

"It was Red done up those two at Ristic's. Leo wasn't even in the room. Because Red killed 'em both, we ain't beat it without anybody seeing us except Ristic. He was in the hall, just outside the door, and saw everything. Maybe he didn't tell anything, like the papers say. Maybe he got the third degree and spilled everything he knew. Then there's Harry. He's gone south—I mean, disappeared—and if he once gets where he thinks he's safe he'll squeal sure as death. Likely he has already. Only headquarters knows, and it isn't saying. Sometimes, you know, they have sense enough to work that way, keep all they know under their hats and pretend they're guarding for somebody besides the bird they're really after. So now it's maybe Red they're laying for on the quiet, all the while they're kicking up this row about Leo, making out they think he's the only one . . . Don't you see?"

"All but why you had to hide . . ."

"Because I was in the room when it happened. Ristic saw me. Harry knew I was there. Besides, the cops are looking for anybody who knew Leo—and they know I know him. If they get me on the carpet, and then a warrant's sworn out charging Red with murder, no matter if I haven't peeped a word I'll get the credit for squealing."

"I see now. My poor, hunted love!"

Mario gave a gesture of decision. "No matter. Now you are with me, there is no more fear. . . . All that is ended! I shall take you away with me tonight—far, far from those haunts of crime and terror—and make you my wife!"

"Oh, if you only could—"

"What is to prevent?"

She hesitated, then cried in passionate protest: "I can't, Mario, I can't. The risk's too big. I tell you, you don't know Red. He never gives up. He'll follow us."

"But"—a dubious hand faltered to her cheek—"I came here to meet Red. He sent for me. Inez brought me."

"Then Inez led you astray, dear—no; alright!" His arms again enfolded her. "And thank God for that!"

Confused, she fell into a silence, misgivings hounded by wonder. Taste and means had transmuted the commonplace into an abode of such luxury as the girl had seldom dreamed of—indeed, had never seen but in the pages of illustrated magazines.

In this main room, dark hangings disguised the walls, with framed paintings like glowing windows open on exotic landscapes, and shelves heavy laden with volumes in rich bindings. An antique Chinese rug of exquisite artistry hid in part a polished dark floor of parquet. Upon a library table of old Spanish oak books, manuscripts and objects d'art were huddled in the warm light of a lamp of wrought brass. Wide-armed chairs of deep upholstery in leather offered enticing invitation to weary limbs. An atmosphere of studious repose soothed excited sensibilities.

A bedchamber partly visible through one open door offered a strong contrast of almost Spartan simplicity with soberly tinted walls, a narrow day bed of mahogany and upholstered chairs and dressing table to match this last.

Through still another door a glimpse of white enameled walls, stainless porcelain and nicked fittings proved that a civilized bathroom had there been installed, in a building whose every other tenant was content with such facilities for personal cleanliness as were afforded by the common kitchen sink.

The girl shook a bewildered head. "And you've lived here all along, Mario?"

"Here I have come to rest, Leonora, worn out with the weariness and disappointment of fruitless searching for you. How could you torture me so? Where have you been?"

"Not far . . . hiding."

"From the police? Because of that business at Ristic's? You were involved in that? Carmichael, too, and all those others, as well as Bielsky?"

She nodded to every question. "I feared this! Tell me what happened. Why did you not come to me first of all?"

"I was afraid—"

"Afraid of the man who loves you, whom you love? You do love me, Leonora?"

"Yes," she murmured—"yes, with all of me, Mario."

"Then why—?"

"I was afraid of Red. He swore he'd have you murdered if I ever spoke to you again."

"That, then, was the only reason why you wouldn't communicate with me, send me one word to say you still lived, you were well, you thought of me? Death itself were preferable to such torments of doubt?"

"I know, Mario, I know. Wasn't I suffering the same way? I waited you so much, I needed you, I thought about you all the time, dear, day and night . . ."

"There was an interlude."

"If there'd been any chance," she resumed when it was possible for her to speak . . . "But if I'd written you, or called up, or tried any way . . . I was watched every minute. I didn't dare . . . for your sake."

"And I thought you had deserted me . . . Ah, forgive me!"

"Red's sure you train with the cops and he and Leo are desperate. They've had it all fixed for days to lay in a safe place over in Jersey, but they can't make a getaway; the cops are watching too close, they're all over."

"But why Carmichael? The paper said nothing of him in connection with the affair, only the man Bielsky."

ness aware of the snug darkness of that room so intimately her own of the rain, clashing outside the window, of the wan light streaming in from the street, of the blank, moonlike face of the little clock upon the dressing table; and at the same time living intensely in that distant place where two wills were contending, striving each to impose upon the other its conception of what was right, fair, just, and inevitable.

It was as if her mind were a photographic plate upon which two scenes had been developed; one wherein her common self of everyday was resting securely at home, one in which that wild other self of her dreams disputed bodily with the man she loved, in surroundings strange to both selves till that hour.

Of the two scenes, the stranger was the stronger; all her interest was centered therein, and all other things were negligible beside the issue of that struggle, since that issue must be this she knew the passionate certainty holding less than life or death, life with love or death with shame.

And she was racked with the imperative need of making Leonora understand that Mario was right, that no good could come of standing out against him, that nothing but good could come of yielding to his insistence, the fruit of his great love and greater wisdom. Perception of her bodily environment was waning swiftly; with all her strength she was willing herself back to Leonora . . .

The telephone began again to gibber, in short, strident bursts of sound demanding her heed.

She faltered, hesitated, looked back, in better resentment, she understood she could go no further, accomplish nothing, till that insensate thing had been silenced.

In sleep-waking, the girl roused with measured movements that cost her incalculable effort, sat up on the side of the bed, drew the telephone to her. It continued to chatter angrily till the receiver was actually at her ear and she had said: "Hello?"

Out of the enigma of night Philip Fosdick's voice cried: "Priscilla!"

She answered without emotion: "Yes, Philip."

"Did I wake you up? Sorry! I had to. Listen to me Priscilla: I've seen Leonora! I saw her in the street, followed her for blocks, lost her when she entered a tenement; and now I'm on the watch, waiting for her to come out. I had to be sure you were at home—safe—so I called up from a pay station. Are you all right?"

"Yes, Philip."

"Are you quite awake? You don't seem to understand. I tell you, I have seen Leonora—the girl you dream about—a living woman so like you I couldn't at first believe it wasn't you in disguise!"

"Yes, Philip."

"So now you needn't worry any more. I'm on the right track at last. The problem will be solved in no time, once I clap my eyes on that girl again."

"Priscilla! Can't you say anything else? Is anything the matter?"

"No, Philip."

"Na, Philip . . ."

She pursued him slowly, as if with difficulty finding words: "I am quite all right. I . . . am safe with Mario now."

"Mario will take good care of me, good-night."

Without waiting for his reply, she hung up the receiver replaced the telephone on the bedside stand, sighed, and again stretched out upon the bed.

Immediately deep sleep enfolded her senses like a warm cloud of darkness, and her soul fared forth once more on its far quest.

VII. SURRENDER.

Out of that blank void grew light and shade in a nebulous swirl of formless patches. Only by slow degrees did it subside. It seemed long before one dared open eyes again. The first thing recognized was the concerned dark face of Mario . . .

She was in one of the big leather chairs. Mario knelt with an arm round her shoulders, lifting them forward a trifle that she might drink with more ease from the glass of dark red wine which he was offering her.

"Drink before you try to talk." His tone was tenderly imperative. With an insistence as gentle he pressed the glass to her lips. She drank, gratefully draining the glass.

"Excellent!" Mario let her head back to the cushion, rose, put the glass aside, returned. "You feel better, stronger, eh?"

She nodded, but her smile was still bewildered.

"What happened, Mario? I felt so funny, all of a sudden, just when the telephone began to ring; and then . . . I don't seem to remember."

"Don't you know you fainted?"

"Fainted?" She started indignantly. "But I never in my life! Why should I faint? I'm all right."

In proof of this assertion she sank weakly back.
