Drainage to be Discussed.

Problems relating to the drainage of more than 4,000,000 acres of cultivated land in Michigan will be taken up at a State Farm Drainage convention at the Michigan Agricultural college on March 17 and 18. Drainage contractors and others interested in farm drainage questions will gather for the conference, which closes a week's drainage school or short course, which is to open at the college on March 14. Need for farm drainage in the state is said to be great, and the convention is expected to bring out ways and means of furthering the work. Experienced drainage men will exchange ideas on methods and policies. The short course will give instruction in drainage methods, including the use of the level, setting up grade bars, making drain profiles, study of soils, and the laying out of drainage systems. Field work will be supplemented with lectures and discussion.

MONDAY A BUST DAY

FOR THE CIRCUIT COURT

Monday morning was a busy one for circuit court officers and attorneys. The task of calling the docket was taken up and disposed of. This consisted of going through the docket, printed for the March term and marking all cases ready, those disposed of and adding new cases. The task of calling the criminal cases was taken up. Prosecuting Attorney Jacob F. Finner appearing for the people. Three persons pleaded guilty to criminal charges, Roswell Clerk, charged with larceny over $25, pleaded guilty and was remanded to jail for sentence. Adeline Beilek and Harry Merritt, of Ypsilanti, charged with improper conduct, pleaded guilty. Merritt was placed on probation for five years for the offense. She was remanded to jail for sentence, having refused to live with her husband, who is willing to take her back. Two tiny children playing around the tragedy of the mother, added to the sadness of the case. They cried when the mother was taken away to jail.

Arraignment of alleged violators of the prohibition law was completed, and all of those brought up pleaded not guilty. Those who appeared in court as alleged bootleggers were: Richard Wallace, William M. Parks, Harry Davis, John Beebe and Geo. Templar.

William Fox, who is charged with breaking and entering the store of W. Sanford in York township, February 23, pleaded not guilty. He recently was in the hospital after being injured in a fight with an officer. It is probable that another charge will be added to the one of burglary, making the sentence of Fox, if convicted, a heavy one.

The cases of Stanley E. Sitko and Harry Harper were placed at the foot of the docket. These men are charged with manslaughter in connection with the death of a nurse. —Ann Arbor Times News.

Mrs. Daniel McLaughlin.

Miss Lena Lusty was born in Lyndon, July 28, 1863, and died on Tuesday afternoon, March 8, 1921.

Mrs. McLaughlin's death was very sudden and came as a great shock to her relatives and friends. In the forenoon she attended the funeral of Mrs. Hugh T. McKune and after dinner she accompanied her sister, Mrs. G. Weick, to the electric waiting room. On the way to the station she was taken ill and after a short stop in the waiting room, they went to the home of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Stupish, where she passed away about ten minutes after reaching the Stupish residence.

She was united in marriage with Daniel McLaughlin, May 1890. Mrs. McLaughlin died several years ago. Chelsea has been the family home for the last twenty years. She is survived by one brother, Frank Lusty, of Lyndon, two sisters, Mrs. G. Weick and Margaret Foran, both of Detroit, and several nephews and nieces.

The funeral will be held Friday morning in St. Mary church, Rev. Fr. VanDyke officiating. Interment in Mt. Olivet cemetery.

Francis G. Springer.

Francis G. Springer was born in Cape May county, New Jersey, March 15, 1839, and died at the home of daughter, Mrs. W. F. Whitner, Tuesday morning, March 8.

He served in the civil war, having enlisted on January 4, 1864, and was honorably discharged from the service at Trenton, New Jersey, August 4, 1865. He was united in marriage with Miss Elizabeth J. Foster on January 23, 1858. Mrs. Springer died January 14, 1912. About 38 years ago the family moved from New Jersey to Independence, Kansas, and Mr. Springer was a member of McPherson Post No. 4, G. A. R., of Independence.

For the past 9 years he had made his home with Mr. and Mrs. Whitner in Chelsea.

He is survived by one son, five daughters and two brothers. The funeral services were held at 2 o'clock this afternoon at the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. F. Whitner. Rev. P. W. Dierberger officiating. The remains were taken to his former home in Kansas for interment.

Walnut Trees as Memorials.

Planting of black walnut trees as memorials to soldiers is recommended by the United States department of agriculture. It is pointed out that the black walnut is planted a valiant part in the world war. The wood was used for gunstocks and airplane propellers, and the nutshells contributed carbon for gas masks, while the kernels were used in many delicacies for the boys in the trenches. Demand for the wood for war purposes depleted the number of fine old trees, and this method is suggested for filling in their places.

Republican Caucus.

The Republicans of Sylvan township, Washtenaw county, will meet in caucus in the town hall, in the village of Chelsea, on Saturday, the 12th day of March, A. D. 1921, at 2 o'clock p. m. of said day, for the purpose of placing in nomination. Township ticket to be voted on at the annual election to be held in the Township of Sylvan, Washtenaw county, Chelsea, Michigan, on April 4th, 1921, and for the transaction of such other business as may properly come before said meeting. By Order of Committee.

A Car Manufacturer Can Put Appealing Quality in a Four

One outstanding characteristic of the buyer of the future, upon which all authorities agree, whether he shall buy an automobile or any other commodity, is his increasing interest in obtaining the essentials of value at a fair price with a minimum of non-essentials for which he no longer wants to pay.

Conscious of the need for economy, he will buy more carefully and will, on the average, have less money to put into his car.

To this man (and he is unmistakably the average man of the future) a car manufacturer can offer appealing quality by building around a fine four.

In the right four-cylinder motor he can offer this big market all of the essential things any motor can do; he can afford to build into the body and chassis equally good value and yet sell his complete car within the low price range that will be demanded.

The Lycoming Motor is peculiarly fitted to the requirements of this market for fours. Simple, dependable, economical, the Lycoming Motor is built in a plant that is devoted to the manufacture of one type of standardized motor and that can meet the production schedules of the manufacturer.

This is the motor used in the Gardner Light Four. Other specifications equally as good.

The Hole in Your Pocket

Are you troubled by having your money "born a hole" in your pocket? That is a common fault of money. If you have your money in the bank, whether it be much or little, it will not burn any holes and it will be there when you need it.

Money carried on the person is a temptation to spending. Money in the bank does not offer this temptation. You may hesitate before writing a check where you would not hesitate to spend if you had the money with you.

We offer you the advantage of our banking facilities and invite you to open a checking account with us.

Pictures of the Old Folks

I have but one picture of my mother. It was taken during her young girlhood, long before I was born. I am forced to depend upon my memory for the likeness of the loving, white-haired mother who passed on twenty years ago. How I wish I had a photo of her taken during these later years. But wishes are vain in matters of this kind and I realize that I may never possess any better likeness than that which my memory produces.

And why have I no pictures of my mother? Frankly, it is purely a matter of neglect. When she was daily with us it scarcely seemed necessary; and the whitening hair and drooping shoulders and dimming vision came so gradually that neither my brother or myself were aware that she was growing old. And almost without warning came the time when she was with us no more.

It is the part of wisdom to take photos of the old folks frequently. The chances are these pictures will be worth their weight in gold in the years to come. What does it matter if it cost a few dollars and several half-days are lost from the farm work? The future will read into these pictures of the dear ones, values that can never be measured in terms of cattle and hogs, wheat and corn.

Pictures of relatives and acquaintances connect the present with the past. Among his possessions the writer has a group picture of himself and schoolmates taken many years ago. It is just an ordinary cheap picture. One corner is torn and there are stains here and there. Nevertheless the picture is a treasure. Occasionally on Sunday afternoons it is brought from the desk drawer where it reposes and for awhile the writer lives again in the past. And somehow the heart grows tender as one visits in this way with the friends and acquaintances of the long ago. It is good for the soul to commune in this silent way with those whom we once knew. There is a soothing influence in it. Perchance it strengthens the sense or sympathy that we all need in much larger measure. If this is all true of those unrelated to us how much more ought it to be of those near and dear to us. By all means take pictures of father and mother, grandpa and grandma while they are here. All too soon the time may come when pictures cannot be taken.

We are always ready to serve grandpa and grandma, as well as the young folks.

HE AND WIFE COUGHED FOR HOURS NIGHTLY

He Had Suffered for Years
With Bronchial Trouble.

GAVE COUGH CONCERT NIGHTS: COULDN'T SLEEP

"My wife and I would start coughing and keep it up for a couple hours every night. No wonder we couldn't sleep. I'd had bronchial trouble for years and about five years ago went West for my health. I seemed to get much better out there, but last winter here at home, in Lansing, I contracted a bad cold and felt my old trouble coming back. My wife and I both had had coughs and we kept up a regular concert of coughing every night. I went down to my druggist and he told me about this new medicine, Hypo-Cod, and that was the end of our troubles. It helped us both right away. Our coughs disappeared and I believe anybody with bronchial trouble can get relief by using it. I know I had a chronic case and it did the work for me. Besides knocking out our coughs, it built us both up fine. We both began feeling better and our appetites increased immensely. You just can't imagine what a wonder change it makes in you," declares Mr. L. D. Smith.

If the lungs are in a weakened condition and the system is rundown, it requires a powerful modern medicine to knock out the trouble. That is why Earle's Hypo-Cod accomplishes results when weaker preparations fail and why it does its work days and weeks sooner. Besides, it is nice to take than the old-fashioned tonic, Earle's Hypo-Cod isn't a patent medicine (see formula on bottle). Right now is the best time in the world to take Hypo-Cod and by using it now you fortify the system against wintry ills. Drop in at the drug store tonight and get a couple bottles of genuine Earle's Hypo-Cod.—Adv.

Vaccine in Whooping Cough.
Reports on the use of vaccine in 408 cases of whooping cough have been collected by an Italian physician, showing excellent results in a large proportion, but in 100 other cases there was no apparent benefit. Improvement, with a marked lessening or disappearance of the spasms, was the rule when the injections were made in the first ten days of the disease. In advanced stages, a few cases showed great benefit, but improvement was mostly only transient.

WHY DRUGGISTS RECOMMEND SWAMP-ROOT

"For many years druggists have watched with much interest the remarkable record maintained by Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney, liver and bladder medicine."

It is a physician's prescription. Swamp-Root is a strengthening medicine. It helps the kidneys, liver and bladder do the work nature intended they should do.

Swamp-Root has stood the test of years. It is sold by all druggists on its merits and it should help you. No other kidney medicine has so many friends.

Be sure to get Swamp-Root and start treatment at once. However, if you wish first to test this great preparation send ten cents to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., for a sample bottle. When writing be sure and mention this paper.—Adv.

"Minstrel" in Audience.
At an amateur minstrel show one of the minstrels asked what was the difference between a man in love and a woman in love.

"I don't know," said the interlocutor, "what is it?"

"Well," replied Rastus, "a woman in love acts like a darn fool and a man isn't acting."

There was a pause and then a voice in the audience said, in a tone loud enough to be heard by all around: "You must be in love, then."

"Cold in the Head"

is an acute attack of Nasal Catarrh. Those subject to frequent "colds in the head" will find that the use of HALL'S CATARRH MEDICINE will build up the system, cleanse the blood and render them less liable to colds. Repeated attacks of Acute Catarrh may lead to Chronic Catarrh.

HALL'S CATARRH MEDICINE is taken internally and acts through the blood to cleanse the mucous surfaces of the system, thus reducing the inflammation and restoring normal conditions.

RED AND HIS GUN.

Synopsis:—Vaguely conscious of a double personality, but without any idea of its meaning, the girl Leonora makes her accidental way into the Street of Strange Faces in the underworld of New York. Mario joins her. Greatly in love and feeling the one quality which the girl really possesses, Mario seeks to turn her from the path of inevitable destruction. She promises to marry him. At Mario's cafe, gathering place of criminals, Leonora meets her father, Dr. Red Carmichael, and his associates, and is accused of betraying a criminal friend to the police. Police crash into the room and two are killed by Carmichael. Leonora and the rest escape. In her studio, Priscilla Maine, wealthy artist, awakes from troubled sleep with a distinct feeling of having her life linked with Leonora's. Priscilla has painted a picture of herself in fancy dress—a dress which has a strange effect on her. Unwashed, and fearful that her mind is affected, Priscilla calls to her aid a dear friend, Dr. Philip Fosdick, who is in love with her. He is stunned to find that her dream story of the police fight is confirmed by the newspapers. Priscilla tells him about the mystery of her mother, who died when she was born. He sees the effect of the painting and promises it a case of auto-hypnosis. Priscilla makes him promise not to go to the police and he begins investigating it for himself. The personalities of Priscilla and Leonora become more closely identified. Red sends word to Leonora to come to him in hiding. Treacherous Inez, in love with Red, volunteers as guide and takes her to Mario. She promises to marry him but changes her mind when he decides to set the police on Red.

"You are overwrought," Mario drew up a chair and sat down. "For days you have been living at high nervous tension, never knowing what tonight the next hour might bring forth. Tonight, against your wish and judgment, you came out to meet a man you fear and loathe, braving the peril of arrest as well as the brutality of this storm. Your clothing is wet through, you are shivering. You suffered a shock at meeting me by chance. Then we quarreled. . . . He lifted her hands to his lips, one after the other. "The sum of such physical, nervous and emotional stress was too much, Leonora; you fainted without a sign of warning. I caught you barely in time."

"I suppose I must've, if you say so, Mario. . . . But I don't understand. I remember our rowing—"

"Think of that no more," Mario pleaded and, at the same time, insisted. "You and I must never quarrel. There can be no excuse for misunderstanding when our hearts are one." She nodded meekly. "Tell me one thing only," he pursued. Her eyes promised. "Who is Philip?"

"Philip?" Her look was completely blank. "I don't know any Philip. . . ."

"You are sure?" Intense search of her face satisfied him. "Strange! In your faint you spoke that name, as if you were talking in your sleep; you said distinctly: 'Yes, Philip,' and again: 'No, Philip. . . . I am safe with Mario, now.'"

"I don't know," She drew a hand over perplexed brows. "And yet. . . . It's funny. . . . Like an echo, what you say I said."

"No matter." With decision the Spaniard dismissed the puzzle, took her hands in a firm grasp and held her eyes with a gaze earnest and commanding. "For the present forget all that, forget everything but that we are united now and forever. Nothing—nothing, Leonora—can come between us now. We cannot permit it, we will not. Love such as ours is not to be denied or pattered with upon any conceivable consideration. As I am wholly yours, so you must henceforth be mine; and to us all the rest must be 'such stuff as dreams are made of.' You understand that, Leonora? I have your promise?"

Never since childhood had she so surrendered to domination. But now. . . . She knew a strange, dear joy in submitting. She bowed her head, then lifted it to show him adoring eyes.

"Yes, Mario. . . ."

"So that is settled."

Mario got up and strode into the bathroom. Water began to gush loudly into the tub. He brought back a light, warm robe of fleecy stuff.

"You are cold and wet; a hot bath will make you another woman. Then put this on. Meanwhile, I will find dry clothing for you, and a cab. Tonight you sleep upstairs; the best and quietest hotel in the city will be the safest. In the morning I will call for you; we will go to get the license for our marriage. By noon you will be my wife. By midnight we will be far from New York."

They kissed. Mario lifted her to her feet.

"The door catches of itself. If anyone knocks, pay no attention. I shall be back in a few minutes, and have my key."

In a staring daze, utterly an unthinking puppet of love and gratitude, she saw him go. The sense of his personality lingered, precious and compelling; she did not feel alone.

She moved slowly toward the bathroom, unconscious fingers loosening her sodden blouse. Finding the tub nearly full, she shut off the taps. Only with the silence that followed did appreciation of her solitude come home.

Till then, in her wonder and delight, she had accepted without question the easy explanation that Inez had lost her way upon the roofs and brought her to the wrong house.

Even so; Red must be hidden somewhere in the same block of tenements. Suppose he were to learn where she was now. . . . Suppose Inez had not blundered, but deliberately and with malicious intent had led her to Mario, then had gone to tell Red. . . .

Intuition linked the poles of fact and surmise, completing the circuit of conviction. Instantaneously Leonora perceived with hideous clearness that Inez had planned this in revenge for the long series of defeats she had suffered in their rivalry, something for which Inez alone had been in the first instance responsible. It was Inez who had made Charlie hit the pipe too often, thus clearing the way for this supreme trick of treachery. This made it plain why Inez had not followed to the door to Mario's flat, but had climbed back to the roof and shut the trapdoor. Now Leonora no longer guessed; she knew Inez had gone straightway to tell Red that Leonora, refusing to answer his call, had taken refuge with Mario instead.

Beyond shadow of reasonable doubt, Red was even now on his way to make good his threats.

What if he were lurking in the hallways of the house, or in the dark of the street outside the door? And Mario, going unsuspectingly to his death. . . .

Perhaps it was not yet too late to scream a warning down the stairs. . . . Madly Leonora ran to the door, tore with trembling fingers at the latch and threw it open—to find Red standing on the threshold, a shape of grim personality, his slender, feline body poised alertly, an automatic pistol in the hand at his right hip, an evil snarl twisting his cruel lips, murder in eyes whose glances shot directly past the girl to the room beyond.

Before she could lift a hand the man darted in, caught her arm and sent her reeling to the middle of the room and kicked the door to behind him.

She staggered against the table and caught hold of it to save herself a fall. Carmichael was at her side before any sound could issue from lips which his hard palm sealed brutally. His pistol puzzled her bosom.

"One peep out of you—" he rasped, cunning eyes raked the room suspiciously. "Where's that d—n wop?"

She tried to speak, but a dry mouth and a constricted throat refused her office. She could only shake her head, in dumb fright with pitiless eyes.

With a grunt of impatience the gangster released her, flung across the room in two cat-like bounds, stopping to peer in through the doors to bedroom and bathroom and satisfy himself that Mario was skulking in neither.

He came back at a slow prowl, with staring intensity in his eyes and a ruthless grin. "Where is he?" He seized her arm in a grasp intentionally savage. "Why'n't you answer me?"

Pain unsheathed pale lips on which her whisper rustled: "I don't know. . . . That's a lie."

Her wrist suffered a more violent wrench. She cried out in protest. "Please, Red! I don't know—honest! I don't know where he's gone. He went out just a minute ago."

"What for?"

"He said he'd get me some dry things to put on. Mine's all soaked."

"Well," a grimace made the man's face terrible—"then he'll be back before long. I'll wait—thanks."

"For God's sake, Red—"

"Ah shut your trap!" He cast her aside violently and stood back. "So you thought you could spy Red Carmichael and get away with it? You little fool!"

She attempted no reply. The first spasm of consternation passing, the faculty of concentrated thought returned. She entertained not the faintest hope of escaping her fate at the hands of Red Carmichael. Whether she lived or died, she conceived, didn't matter. But it was otherwise with Mario. Him she must save somehow, by some heroic exercise of wit and spirit.

Yet in the beginning she cast about in vain for ruse or wile that might serve. Alone, defenseless, in the company of a man armed and determined, murder in heart and mind; a man insatiable with jealousy and hatred, alike bred of sheer fear, the fear of the assassin living moment by moment in the shadow of arrest; what could she do against such odds?

She could think of nothing, positively nothing. And yet, she knew, there must be some way out. If only she could find it. . . .

She knew herself to be clever, far cleverer than Red—as she had once boasted to his face. Her wits had got to fall her, however extreme or exigent the occasion. Give her time to think and she could circumvent him. But now that one essential element, time, was lacking. Impossible to guess how soon Mario might return. And then there was Red's impatience to be reckoned with. . . .

Her look of a trapped animal faded; in its stead her face reflected concentration of thought amounting almost to abstraction. She seemed to consider Carmichael out of a fatherly, almost composure, as she might one factor in an engrossing problem in whose solution she was vitally interested.

This change in her annoyed the man intolerably. Not only was any semblance of indifference offensive, but he had learned to distrust the girl's moments of thoughtfulness. If his intelligence was not of a high order, he had at least cunning, with acumen enough to feel and fear the finer nettle of her mentality. Instinctively he sought an outlet for his exasperation in a burst of lurid blasphemy.

"Why'n't you say something?" he concluded, gesticulating wildly with the pistol. "What you standin' there for, dumb's a cat. Why'n't you try to come clean by lyin'?"

She responded quietly: "What's the use? Even if I told you the truth it wouldn't do any good. You've made up your mind."

"You said it. I'm wise, and I've got you where I want you. If you think you can put anything over on me now—well, try it. That's all: try it. I wish you would."

She shrugged wearily, then inquired in tone of moderate curiosity: "Where's Inez waiting for you?"

"How d'you know?" He was obviously puzzled. "What's Inez got to do—?"

"You know well enough it was her that told you I was here."

"Well. . . . What if she did?"

"Nothing—only she brought me here first."

"Like I—"

"Yes—the girl ignored the interruption—"I didn't even know where he lived, no more'n I knew where to look for you. So Inez framed me, just to put me in bad with you."

"Ah, tell'to Sweeney."

"Ask Charlie. If you don't believe me—ask him after he comes to at Sing Ho's tomorrow. He'll tell you he promised to meet me there tonight and bring me to you. But when you got there Charlie was dead to the world. Inez said she'd show me the way to where you and Leo was laying out; and when I said all right, she brought me here, left me at the door and blew. And then. . . . What could I do? I didn't know where to find you and I was cold and wet and tired."

Her statement carried conviction. Against his wish the man believed her; and because it was against his wish he was the more irritated and chose to deny his belief. His glare was ugly.

"So that's the snail, is it?"

"You ask Charlie. He'll tell you the truth—you needn't look to get it out of Inez—only he'll tell you too late."

"What do you mean, too late?"

"Too late to stop you making a d—n fool of yourself."

"How's that? How'm I goin' to make a d—n fool out of myself?"

"I don't know yet; but I hope you don't think I'm such a flat as to think you've come here tonight just for a friendly talk."

"You're dead right there!" His laugh rang with brutal scorn. "I'll say I didn't come for no friendly talk with him and you."

"Well. . . . What did you come for?"

She confronted him with sudden, yet fearless eyes. His own shifted. He had little stomach for plain speech. The instinct of his kind was strong in him, to kill, if he could, at fearful. But to declare his purpose openly in anticipation, to discuss it in cold blood with an intended victim, was more than he had bargained for. Instantaneously resentful of such squeamishness in himself, he looked furtively aside, flicking his lips, and discovered the decanter of Madeira which Mario had left unstoppered on the table, after opening it for Leonora.

Carmichael brimmed an ordinary drinking glass with the wine and drank it in one long draught, grateful for its pungent warmth, deluded by its mellow smoothness.

Now, Madeira may not wisely be taken on top of rye whisky. Conscience of reinforced bravado, the man leaned against the table, his back to it, heeling truculently.

"What did I come for? Oh, I dunno. What d'you think?"

"You've threatened me often enough, if you ever caught me with him again."

He nodded in a heavy humor. "You got that right, kid. No girl of mine can pass me up for any stool pigeon or dick that ever lived—"

"He isn't."

"And get away with it. You wait—you'll see."

She shut her eyes. In spite of herself she shuddered. He laughed with gratification, and her eyes reopened of a sudden, passionately unafraid, seeking first the pistol in his hand, then his face.

"You're going to. . . kill me, Red?"

"I'll say I am."

In spite of his shamefaced smirk, he meant it in deadly earnestness. She had another shudder, but fought it down without releasing his gaze.

After a minute she said: "Very well; I'm ready, only—"

He interrupted: "You're worse'n ready: you're in a heluva hurry. His turn comes first, yours next. Get me?"

"But—" She implored his credulity with clasped hands extended—"I tell you, you're wrong about him, Red. He hasn't got anything to do with the cops—honest to God, he hasn't!"

The Madeira was working powerfully. A flash of unwonted insight visited his sudden intelligence. "You wouldn't be beginnin' for that pip if you wasn't stuck on him. And that's enough. Bull or no bull, he ain't goin' to live to say he stole Red Carmichael's girl!"

"You're wrong, Red—you're all wrong," she protested wildly. "And anyhow, what good'll it do you? Don't you know you're just playing Inez's game?"

"Gwan, Inez ain't nothin' to me. I know she isn't and she knows I'm too, and that's why. Don't you see? You turned her down for me and she's been crazy jealous ever since. Now she gets even with us both—gets us out of the way right off the bat and sends you to the chair for it. My God, Red! You don't trust that hell-cat, do you? Don't you know she's only waiting to fix things safe for Leo before she squeals on you?"

"Ah, forget it!" That, together with more profanity, silenced her. "Let me and Inez alone. Maybe I'd pass her up for you; but that's a long time ago and she's forgot all about it by now. She don't think of nobody but Leo."

"If you believe that you're as big a boob as she thinks."

"Maybe—but not as big a one as you think." Carmichael emptied the decanter into the glass and swallowed it at a gulp. "Most anybody I'm strong for can fool me once, but not even you can fool me twice."

"Inez has."

"Ah, sure! You'd say so. . . . But there was an accent of doubt in his jeering retort and in the look he gave the girl as well. Far gone in befuddlement, he was unsure of himself, unsure of anything within the scope of his perceptions, and uneasy. What if Leonora were telling the truth about Inez? Inez whom he secretly despised, Leonora who was worth a score of Inez's sort. . . .

"How do you mean she's fooled me twice?" he demanded thickly.

"First, when she made you think I cared anything about anybody but you, Red." The girl leaned nearer, playing to perfection a part upon which her life depended—her life and Mario's. "She was the one told you about Mario—told to you, told you I was seeing him often—a man I hardly knew hadn't spoken to a dozen times in all my life. Why, Red, before tonight I never have seen that man anywhere but in the street, and then only to pass the time of day! But you'd take anybody's word instead of mine, you'll believe anybody except the girl that loves you."

Her hands came lightly to rest upon his forearms. He gave them no welcome but made no move to repulse them. The uncertainty in his eyes was giving way to another emotion, one which the girl knew too well. She moved still closer, and one hand stole slowly up to his shoulder.

MRS. BARRETTE TELLS OF SPLENDID RESULTS

Prominent New Hampshire
Woman Says Tanlac
Brought About a Wonderful Change in Her Condition.

MRS. AURORE BARRETTE of Manchester, New Hampshire

"Tanlac is a grand medicine, and I think every suffering woman ought to know about it," was the statement made recently by Mrs. Aurore Barrette, at her residence, 133 Second Street, Manchester, New Hampshire. Mrs. Barrette is a well known and highly respected resident of that city.

"I have not felt at all well for the past year or more," she continued. "I haven't been sick enough to be in bed, but I was far from being a well woman. At times I thought I had kidney trouble, for I suffered almost constantly from severe pains across my back, just over the kidneys. Whenever I tried to do any housework at all that dull pain would be there, and if I attempted to stoop over it just felt as though my back would break. I would get so weak and worn out I would have to sit down and rest several times a day, and I felt tired all the time."

"This condition made me awfully nervous, so that I rarely ever slept well at night, and every now and then I would jump in my sleep, as if in a fright, and my condition was really becoming serious."

"Only two bottles of Tanlac have brought about a wonderful change in my condition. In fact, the results I have received from this medicine have really surprised me. Those terrible pains in my back which used to trouble me every day have almost disappeared, and I am going to keep on taking Tanlac until they leave me entirely. I have lots of energy now, and am not only able to do my housework, but I get through the day without feeling the least bit tired. I am no longer nervous like I was, and I sleep well at night."

"I shall always be thankful for what Tanlac has done for me."

Tanlac is sold by leading druggists everywhere.—Adv.

RUB OUT SORENESS,
SPRAINS, BACKACHE WITH OLD ST. JACOBS OIL

Back hurt you? Can't straighten up without feeling sudden pains, sharp aches and twinges? Now, listen! That's lumbago, sciatica, or maybe from a strain, and you'll get blessed relief the moment you rub your back with soothing, penetrating "St. Jacobs Oil!" Nothing else takes out soreness, lameness and stiffness so quickly. You simply rub it on and out comes the pain. It is perfectly harmless and doesn't burn or discolor the skin.

Lumber up! Don't suffer! Get a small trial bottle from any drug store, and after using it just once you'll forget that you ever had lumbache, lumbago or sciatica, because your back will never hurt or cause any more misery. It never disappoints and has been recommended for 50 years. Stop dragging kidneys! They don't cause backache, because they have no nerves, therefore can not cause pain.—Adv.

Speedy Animals.

Two of the fastest of the smaller animals are the greyhound and the jack rabbit. The greyhound can go at the rate of 32 miles an hour, while the jack rabbit, the Russian wolfhound, can beat him by five miles and has much greater powers of endurance. The greyhound, like the horse, dips in with his forefeet and uses his front legs for pulling as well as pushing with his hind legs. The jack rabbit's front legs are only crutches, but, like the antelope, he makes up for it by the power of his hind legs.

Boy of Eighteen Gets Action.

Middleman J. L. Storey, a boy of perhaps eighteen, the sole surviving officer of the Queen Mary, reported to his C. O. on the loss of his ship.
That middleman, by the way, bore a charming life. At Jutland he was picked up unconscious after sinking twice. He was with Crockett at the battle of Coronel, escaping in the Glasgow after the flagship and the Monmouth had been sunk with not a man saved; with Sturdee in the battle of the Falklands, and in many engagements in the Dardanelles. And, after all, he was the sole surviving officer of one of our largest ships. London Saturday Review.

Sold Bill's Help Banks.
The fact that nearly all paper money in circulation now is badly worn and soiled has been one of the reasons why bank deposits have increased, says an up-state banker who was in the city.
"People like to handle clean, crisp bills," he said, "but are afraid of the torn, soiled ones. There is always the chance of getting some disease. Small checking accounts have increased a good deal lately, and this is undoubtedly one of the reasons for it. When new bills come in again the accounts may become fewer. But once people get the habit of using checks they generally stick to it."—New York Sun.

DISCUSS NEW TAX AND TARIFF PLANS

LEADERS CONFER WITH HARDING SO PROGRAM WILL BE READY FOR NEW SESSION

TEMPORARY TARIFF CONSIDERED

In Case of Opposition to Emergency Legislation, Permanent Tariff Will Be Rushed.

Washington.—A definite program for tax and tariff legislation will be mapped out before the end of this week in conferences between Republican congressional leaders and President Harding.

Representative Fordney, chairman of the house ways and means committee, announced to the Republican members of the committee that he expects to begin drafting a bill in executive session on Monday, March 14. This bill will be ready for introduction when the special session of congress convenes early in April.

"I do not know just what bill it will be," said Fordney. "I expect to find it out during the coming week. I expect to see President Harding early in the week, as soon as it is convenient for him."

There were three possible programs. One is to start work on an emergency tariff bill, based on the former Payne-Aldrich law, to be rushed through congress without much consideration. A second alternative is to go ahead with the proposition of a permanent tariff law. The third is to side-track tariff legislation temporarily and give precedence to revision of the tax laws. If a temporary tariff bill is given the right of way, tax revision would follow and permanent tariff revision would come last.

Representative Fordney favors giving precedence to a temporary tariff bill. If this is considered impracticable he will go ahead with the permanent tariff measure before taking up tax revision.

NEW POLITICAL PARTY IN STATE
T. M. Joslin and James W. Helme, Leaders of Taxpayer's League.

Adrian.—Michigan is about to have a new political party.

At its helm are T. M. Joslin, former candidate for the United States senate, who was more or less prominent in the organization of an attempted party about nine years ago; James W. Helme, who was state dairy and food commissioner under the Democratic administration of Governor Ferris; John C. Howell, Adrian's Democratic mayor under the commission form of government; George Holloway, former Democratic county treasurer; Edward Frensdorff, of Hudson, former acting warden at Jackson state prison, and others of like principles and prominence.

The party is being formed for the "outraged and enraged taxpayers of the state" and is officially known as the Taxpayers' League. Its organization was completed here last Saturday afternoon.

Mr. Joslin was elected president and Helme was chosen vice-president.

BROTHERS FACE SERIOUS CHARGE
19-Year Old Girl Says Liquor Was Brought in Saginaw Hotel.

Saginaw.—Al Peets of Vassar and his brother, Earl Peets, of Bay City, have been bound over to circuit court for trial on the charge of furnishing whiskey to Wanda Hawley of Vassar, a 19-year-old girl. Officers Fred Klein and William Maeder of the liquor squad arrested them. The Peets brothers, both of whom are old enough to be the Hawley girl's father, were unable to furnish bonds of $1,000. The girl is being held as a witness.

CHICAGO HAS A TAXICAB WAR
Yellows and Checkers Clash With Arms in Lincoln Park.

Chicago.—Intermittent warfare between the Yellow and Checker taxicab drivers broke forth in a lively battle when approximately 40 cabs raced through Lincoln Park, the drivers firing at each other and attempting to wreck each other's machines. No attention was paid to the lives and safety of other people in the park.

It is said much of the trouble may be traced to unsuccessful efforts to uniformize the Yellow cab drivers and force higher rates.

DARLING BABY BRIGHTENS HOME

Children's Laughter a Pleasing Sound

Altoona, Pa.—"I am writing to tell you what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done for me. We had six children die almost at birth. From one hour to nine-month days is all they have lived. Before my next one was born I took a dozen bottles of your Vegetable Compound, and I can say that it is the greatest medicine on earth, for this baby is now four months old, and a healthier baby you would not want. I am sending you a picture of her. Everybody says 'That is a very healthy looking baby.' You have my consent to show these few lines to anybody."—Mrs. C. W. BENZ, 131 3rd Avenue, Altoona, Pa.

Mrs. Jansson's experience of interest to childless wives.

Millston, Wis.—"I want to give you a word of praise for your wonderful medicine. We are fond of children, and for a considerable time after we were married I feared I would not have any. I began taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and it strengthened me so I now have a nice, strong, healthy baby girl. I suffered very little at childbirth, and I give all the credit to your medicine, and shall always recommend it highly."—Mrs. H. H. JANSEN, Millston, Wis.

Mrs. Held of Marinette, Wis., adds her testimonial for Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. She says:

Marinette, Wis.—"I was in a nervous condition and very irregular. My doctor advised an operation. My husband brought me one of your booklets and asked me to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. It overcame my weakness so that I now have a healthy baby girl after having been married nine years. I am glad to recommend your medicine, and you may use my letter as a testimonial."—Mrs. H. B. HELD, 330 Jefferson St., Marinette, Wis.

There are many, many such homes that were once childless, and are now blessed with healthy, happy children because Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has restored the mother to a strong and healthy condition, as it acts as a natural restorative for ailments as indicated by backache, irregularities, displacements, weakness and nervousness.

Women everywhere should remember that most of the commoner ailments of women are not the surgical ones—they are not caused by serious displacements or growths, although the symptoms may be the same, and that is why so many apparently serious ailments readily yield to Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, as it acts as a natural restorative. It can be taken with perfect safety and often prevents serious troubles.

Therefore if you know of any woman who is suffering and has been unable to secure relief and is regretfully looking forward to a childless old age, ask her to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, as it has brought health and happiness into so many homes once darkened by illness and despair.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Private Text-Book upon "Ailments Peculiar to Women" will be sent to you free upon request. Write to The Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Massachusetts. This book contains valuable information.

HAD REPUTATION TO SUSTAIN BUT HE MADE FINE SPEECH
Farmer Had No Idea of Allowing Hired Man to Beat Him in Gathering Corn.

A Sullivan county farmer hired a man to help him gather his corn 'st season. Now, the farmer had a reputation for being an efficient worker, but the hired man was not daunted by it. They started out side by side, the hired man being advised by the farmer to keep as close to him as he could with the row he was gathering.

But to the new worker after a few minutes of keeping up with the farmer, passed him and soon was several feet ahead. Frantically the farmer pulled the ears from the stalks, but the new man still kept gaining. Then all at once he heard the farmer shout, "Stop," he yelled, "Stop, if you want to work for me. I never yet let any man who worked for me get ahead of me."

Love of Pictures Universal.
Mankind has always loved pictures. Races, without a written language, have left behind them rude carvings and murals to attest the fact. When an industry arose that appealed to this ancient appetite with pictures that moved, it did not have to wait long to see whether it would die or flourish. A dozen years ago the motion picture business, as we now know it, did not exist. Today the American public supports 16,500 moving picture theaters, makes 5,000,000,000 visits to them a year and spends $750,000,000 annually for this amusement. —The Nations' Business.

Plant at Victoria Falls.
The project to erect a power plant at Victoria Falls, on the Zambesi river, in South Africa, has been revived and it is exceedingly likely that a 250,000 horsepower plant will soon be under way at that place. It has been under discussion for many years, but the one thing which stood in the way was the proximity of cheap coal, but this fuel is now at such a price that there is a demand for hydro-electric power. Current will probably be conveyed to the Rand mines, 900 miles away.

Manchester Myron Ingraham, who was badly injured a short time ago by the explosion of the acetylene gas plant at his farm home, is improving slowly. He was taken by ambulance to Jackson a few days ago for X-ray examination, which disclosed an injury to his spine. This, they think, has caused the paralysis of his limbs.

Stockbridge—Levi Westfall and Will Cantrell realize that two vehicles cannot meet and get by on the same side of the street. The former, driving north, and the latter driving to the depot with the mail last Friday evening, met on the main corner. The car driven by Westfall was somewhat disfigured, and the tongue in Cantrell's dray was broken.—Brief-Sun.

Ann Arbor Two youths were placed on probation for five years by Judge George W. Sample in circuit court Saturday afternoon. Bert Marken, who pleaded guilty to stealing John Dickinson's car in Ypsilanti, will be given a long term of grace and will be made to pay $25 for damages to the automobile. Jackson A suit with attachment to enforce a log and lumber loan was filed in the circuit court Thursday by Fred Bowditch against Emanuel Waltz through attorney John F. Berry of Lansing. Ann Arbor Arnold Cousins, 19 years old, who pleaded guilty to a charge of breaking and entering a store in Milan before Judge Sample Saturday afternoon, was sentenced to from three to fifteen years in the Michigan state reformatory at Ionia, with a recommendation of three years. His associate, William Fox, who is recovering from the effects of wounds received when he was shot by an officer the night of the robbery, will be arranged on a charge of assault with intent to kill, on his recovery. The sentence for this offense is life imprisonment.

Ann Arbor Dr. J. A. Wessinger, health officer, Friday emphasized the necessity of vaccination against smallpox. While it is true that the epidemic of smallpox in Ann Arbor is of a mild form, Dr. Wessinger states that no one can tell when the disease will appear in a virulent form. Since the holidays there have been seven smallpox cases cared for at the contagion hospital, five of them developing in this city, one at Salem and the other at Plymouth. Strict quarantine and wholesale vaccination have thus far prevented the spread of the disease, but the fact that there are at least 150 cases of the disease in Detroit makes it a continual menace to Ann Arbor in view of the traffic between the two cities.—Times News.
