

LIMA MEN SENTENCED

Claim Theft Hamburg Chickens Was Committed While Intoxicated
With Chelsea Booze.

Martin Buschman, Ralph and Grover Terry, the three Lima township men arrested in Ann Arbor some time ago while attempting to sell some chickens which belonged to a Mrs. Deheny of Grand Haven, pleaded guilty to a charge of grand larceny in the Livingston county circuit court. There were 70 of the chickens, valued at about $90. A dispatch from Howell says:

Had Chelsea Liquor.
"It seemed the trio, who are all young men in the early twenties, now reside near Dexter, Michigan, but formerly lived in Hamburg township. They filled up on some liquor brought into Dexter by Chelsea parties, who, it is alleged, made a practice of bringing in the whiskey regularly and disposing of it to residents of Dexter and vicinity.

Scores Washtenaw Officials.
"Judge Collins scored the Washtenaw county officials for their seeming laxity in enforcing the laws there and blamed the parties who sold the liquor to the boys, for the theft was committed while they were irresponsible for their actions, none of them ever having been accused before and one of them having served three years in the U. S. army.

Placed On Two Years Probation.
"They were all three placed on probation for a term of two years. In the meantime they are not to leave the state without permission from the court. They are also to report once each month to George VanHorn, probation officer of the county and should pay the balance of the value of the chickens, which amounts to $45, the judge giving them six months in which to pay this and they are not to touch intoxicating liquors of any kind during their probation period."

DEATH CHEATS JUSTICE.

Morley Bennett of Bridgewater, on trial in circuit court in Ann Arbor charged with a serious crime against a 15-years-old girl, died suddenly Wednesday in the court room. Warthin of Ann Arbor says that all signs point towards strychnine poisoning, but the analysis of the stomach has not been completed.

MRS. DANIEL McLAUGHLIN.

The sudden death of Mrs. Daniel McLaughlin, Tuesday afternoon, March 8, 1921, was a great shock to her relatives and many friends. She had attended the funeral of Mrs. H. T. McKune in the morning and was apparently in her usual health. Her sister, Mrs. G. Weick of Detroit, was here for the day and in the afternoon Mrs. McLaughlin accompanied her to the interurban station, but was taken ill on her way there. Upon reaching the station her distress continued and she was taken to the home of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Stapish, where her death occurred about ten minutes after she reached there.

Mrs. McLaughlin was a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Peter Lusty, formerly well known residents of Lyndon township, where she was born July 28, 1863. She was united in marriage with Daniel McLaughlin, also of Lyndon, in May, 1899. They resided on a farm in Lyndon for several years, moving to Chelsea about 12 years ago. Mr. McLaughlin passed away about nine years ago. One brother, Frank Lusty of Lyndon, and two sisters, Mrs. Carrie Weick and Mrs. Margaret Foran, both of Detroit, survive her.

It's Built for the Fordson by a Firm that Knows How

If you are going to buy a Fordson Tractor we have the plow you need. John Deere built it especially for the Fordson. Henry Ford has approved it for use with the Fordson. It has important built-in features that no other plow has. Before you buy the tractor, be sure to see the

JOHN DEERE
NO. 40 TRACTOR PLOW

It's the plow with the self-adjusting hitch—this is an exclusive feature. Only the John Deere No. 40 has it.

Because of this hitch, the plow automatically maintains the proper line of draft as depth of plowing is varied. The bottoms run true and have the right suction at all times—no "mossing in" or "hopping out" of the ground.

The clevis flexes up and down, permitting the plow to run smoothly, maintain even depth and keep on doing good work regardless of the action of the tractor in passing over uneven ground—no "bumpy" furrows.

New process John Deere Steel in frame parts—combines

It's the plow the Fordson needs.

MRS. BARRETTE TELLS OF SPLENDID RESULTS

Prominent New Hampshire Woman Says Tanlac Brought About a Wonderful Change in Her Condition.

"Tanlac is a grand medicine, and I think every suffering woman ought to know about it," was the statement made recently by Mrs. Aureore Barrette, at her residence, 133 Second Street, Manchester, New Hampshire. Mrs. Barrette is a well known and highly respected resident of that city.

"I have not felt at all well for the past year or more," she continued. "I haven't been sick enough to be in bed, but I was far from being a well woman. At times I thought I had kidney trouble, for I suffered almost constantly from severe pains across my back, just over the kidneys. Whenever I tried to do any housework at all that dull pain would be there, and if I attempted to stoop over it just felt as though my back would break. I would get so weak and worn out I would have to sit down and rest several times a day, and I felt tired all the time."

"This condition made me awfully nervous, so that I rarely ever slept well at night, and every now and then I would jump in my sleep, as if in a fright, and my condition was really becoming serious."

"Only two bottles of Tanlac have brought about a wonderful change in my condition. In fact, the results I have received from this medicine have really surprised me. Those terrible

Robert D. use three, had tested his first "hand biscuit," and, wishing another, was at a loss to know what to ask for, so made the following attempt:

"Please, mother, may I have another 'hand biscuit'?"

RUB OUT SORENESS, SPRAINS, BACKACHE WITH OLD ST. JACOBS OIL

Back hurt you? Can't straighten up without feeling sudden pains, sharp aches and twinges? Now, listen! That's lumbago, sciatica, or maybe from a strain, and you'll get blessed relief the moment you rub your back with soothing, penetrating "St. Jacobs Oil." Nothing else takes out soreness, lameness and stiffness so quickly. You simply rub it on and out comes the pain. It is perfectly harmless and doesn't burn or discolor the skin.

Lumber up! Don't suffer! Get a small trial bottle from any drug store, and after using it just once you'll forget that you ever had backache, lumbago or sciatica, because your back will never hurt or cause any more misery. It never disappears and has been recommended for 60 years. Stop dragging kidneys! They don't cause backache, because they have no nerves, therefore can not cause pain.—Adv.

Just as Bad. "Have you ever been lame in old?" Vanderlop—"No, but I have in steel common."

MRS. AUREORE BARRETTE of Manchester, New Hampshire

pains in my back which used to trouble me every day have almost disappeared, and I am going to keep on taking Tanlac until they leave me entirely. I have lots of energy now, and am not only able to do my housework, but I get through the day without feeling the least bit tired. I am no longer nervous like I was, and I sleep well at night.

"I shall always be thankful for what Tanlac has done for me."

"And then at last it came. I didn't see anything, and I didn't hear anything, but I knew it was there. I still remember how frightened and yet how cool I was in that last moment. I held the gun to my shoulder and waited for it to thrust itself against the blanket. In another moment I am sure I should have fired. But before that moment I heard my name called, and I knew my husband's voice, and I came out of the nightmare."

"Most extraordinary," the coroner repeated, after a silence. "It seems to account for the shooting of Riles, but it leaves us as much as ever—more than ever, I should say—in the dark concerning the disappearance of the money, and the part which has implicated the young man Travers in the affair."

The banker gave his evidence. It was not unusual, he said, for considerable sums in bank notes to be handled among speculators and land buyers, but the amount withdrawn by Harris was so great that it had left him somewhat ill at ease, and as Sergeant Grey had happened his way he had mentioned the matter to him.

During the hearing of the various witnesses Gardiner had attempted an air of impersonal interest, but with an great success. His demeanor, studied though it was, betrayed a certain anxiety and impatience. He was dressed just as he had been dismounted from his horse, having removed only his hat. But he strolled confidently when asked for his evidence, and told his story calmly and collectedly.

It is quite true that he was associated with Riles and Mr. Harris in the coal mine investment. He was acting for the owner of the property, but had seen that a large profit was to be made from the turn-over, and had been glad to place the opportunity in the way of two old friends.

"I feel a grave responsibility in this whole matter," Gardiner protested, with some emotion. "I feel that I am, at least indirectly, responsible for the serious loss that has befallen Mr. Harris, and for the injury to his son. But when you have heard the whole circumstances you will agree that the situation was one I could not possibly have foreseen. Let me give them to you in some detail."

"The day before yesterday, in company with Riles, I met Mr. Harris and his son, and found that their money had arrived. The remittance was not as large as they expected, but I believed that I could raise some money privately, and that we would still be able to put the deal through. I advised against losing any time, as I knew that if the owner should meet anyone else interested in a proposition of a similar nature we would find it much harder to make a bargain with him. It was arranged that the two Mr. Harris were to drive ahead, taking the money with them, and that Riles and I would follow. We were to overtake them at the old building where this unfortunate tragedy occurred. As it happened, I had a sick horse at the ranch, and as I was delayed in getting some medicine for him, Riles suggested that he would ride out to the ranch—that is, where I live—and wait for me there. Up to that time I had no suspicions, and I agreed to that."

"Well, when I reached the ranch, I could find nothing of Riles, and, on further search, I could find nothing of Travers, who was working for me. Their riding horses were gone, and so were their saddles and bridles. I found that Travers had taken his revolver out of the house. I confess my suspicions were then somewhat aroused, but I found myself with the sick horse on my hands, and I could not very well leave the place. Of course, I never thought of anything so bad as has happened, or I would not have considered the horse, but I admit I was at a loss to understand their conduct. But when I heard, early this morning, what had happened, it was all clear to me."

During the latter part of this evidence Travers had fixed his eyes on Gardiner, but the witness had steadily avoided him. Jim was now convinced that he was the victim, not of a coincidence, but a plot. Of course, he could give his evidence, which would be directly contradictory to that of Gardiner, but he was already under suspicion, and anything he might say would be unconsciously discounted by the jurors. But he began calmly, a quiet smile still playing about his thin lips and keen teeth.

"I am sorry I cannot corroborate all the last witness has said," he continued. "I did not leave the ranch with Riles; on the contrary, I was fishing by the river when I saw Riles and Gardiner by. Gardiner was talking and I heard him mention Mr. Harris' name. I worked for Mr. Harris not long ago, but I did not know he was in this part of the country. I heard Gardiner say—"

"Well, what did you hear him say?" said the coroner. "That is what we are anxious to know."

"I heard him say something about Mr. Harris losing all his money that night, in the old shanty up the river road. 'Strange things have happened up there, Riles,' he said. 'That made me suspicious, and I decided back to the ranch, determined to follow them. I found that my revolver had been taken. I armed myself as best I could, and set out. When I came near the building which Gardiner had mentioned I dismounted and approached it carefully. It was very dark. Suddenly I was attacked from behind. A sack was thrown over my head, and I was overpowered, and bound. I don't know how long I was kept in that condition, but when at last the sack was removed I was in the presence of Sergeant Grey.'"

With the progress of Travers' narrative all eyes had turned to Gardiner, but, whatever his inward emotions, he outwardly showed no signs of discomfiture. "This seems to be a day of strange tales," he said to the coroner, "and the last we have heard is stranger than the first. Of course, it is quite absurd on the face of it. The suggestion that I would be a party to robbing Mr. Harris of $20,000, and so make a transaction in which I stood to make a profit of more than twice that amount, is too ridiculous for discussion. I didn't say so before, because it didn't seem to bear on the case, but I have at home a telegram which I received a few days ago from the New York investors, offering me a personal commission of 20 per cent on the transaction if I was able to get this property for them at the price they had offered. So, from a purely selfish point of view, you see where my interests lay. But there are other reasons for this fine tale which you have just heard. To spare the feelings of some present, I intended to say nothing of them, but if I must tell what I know, why, I must tell what I know. This man Travers was a farm hand working for Harris on his farm back in Manitoba. Harris is—or was—well-to-do, and Travers accordingly mustered up an attachment for his daughter. This the young lady, it seems, was foolish enough to return. They—"

"That'll do, Gardiner," interrupted Travers, in a quiet, vibrant voice. "You are getting away from the subject."

"On the contrary, I'm getting close to the subject—a little too close for your comfort, it seems."

"I am not investigating my family closets," said the coroner. "You will have to show the connection between these matters and the inquiry we are making."

"I will do that in a moment, sir," Gardiner returned. "But I cannot show the connection until I have shown the events that are connected. Travers had trouble with Harris and had a fight with Allan. Then he and the young lady ran away. They have both been in this part of the country for some time. But Travers' plan to inherit the Harris property was upset on account of the girl quarreling with her parents, and his ardor seems to have cooled off noticeably. But he was as keen for the property as ever. Riles was a weakling in the hands of a man like Travers, and no doubt he betrayed the fact that Harris was taking his money with him into the hills. Then the two of them framed up the plan which has resulted in the death of one and the arrest of the other."

During these exchanges the sympathies of the jurors seemed to veer from side to side. The theories propounded were so contradictory that opinions wavered with each sentence of evidence. But a new bolt was ready for the shooting.

"Mr. Coroner," said Beulah, rising and pointing at Gardiner, "will you make that man take his gauntlets off?"

"There seemed an instant recession of the blood from Gardiner's face. But it was for the instant only. 'My hat is off,' he said, with a smile. 'Is that sufficient?'"

"Make him take them off," said Beulah.

"As the young lady insists," said the coroner, turning to Gardiner, "I suggest that you comply with her request."

"Should he be glad to?" said Gardiner, the coroner, turning to Gardiner, "I suggest that you comply with her request."

"Only this difference. You have heard my father's evidence of the night in the old house. The man with whom he fought will have tooth marks in his hand. Make him take them off. Or if you won't—look at those hands." She seized Jim's hands in hers and held them up before the coroner and the jury. "Any tooth marks there? Now make this other man show his."

For a moment all eyes were on Travers' hands. In that moment Gardiner rushed for the open window, and in another instant would have been through it, had not the quick arm of the policeman intercepted.

"Not so fast, my man," said Grey. "Now we will see this horse bite of yours." Gardiner made no further resistance, and he drew the glove from his hand. There was a fresh scar on the right thumb.

The coroner examined it carefully. When he spoke it was in the voice of a judge delivering sentence. "That is not a horse bite," he said. "Those are the marks of human teeth."

Gardiner smiled a faint smile. "Well, what are you going to do about it?" he said.

"We are going to put you in Travers' place and tender him our apologies," said the coroner.

But Travers had crowded into the center of the circle. "Gardiner," he said, "if you weren't under arrest I'd thrash you here and now. But you can at least do something to square yourself. Where is that money?"

"That's right, Jim. Everyone thinks of what is nearest his heart."

"You arounded! You know why it is near my heart. You have robbed Mr. Harris of all that he had spent his whole life for. You will have no chance to use that money yourself. You are sure of your living for the next 20 years. Why not show that you are not all bad—that you have some human sentiments in you? It seems as little as you can do."

"There may be something in what you say," said Gardiner. "I have a slip of paper here with the key to the secret."

He reached with his finger and thumb in his vest pocket and drew out a small folded paper. This he unfolded very slowly and deliberately before the eyes of the onlookers. It contained a small quantity of white powder. Before any hand could reach him he had thrown his head back and swallowed it.

"Too late!" he cried, as Grey snatched the empty paper from his fingers. "Too late! Well, I guess I beat you all out, eh? And as I said before, what are you going to do about it? Twenty years, eh, Jim? You'll be scrawny and rheumatic by that time, and the beautiful Beulah will be fat and featureless. Twenty years for you, Jim, but 20 minutes for me—and I wouldn't trade with you, damn you! I beg the pardon of the ladies present. One should never forget to be a gentleman, even when—"

But Gardiner's breath was beginning to come fast, and he raised his hands to his throat. A choking spell seized him, and he would have fallen had not the policeman and the coroner held him on his feet. "Let me lie down," he said, when he got his breath. "Let me lie down, can't you? Have I got to die on end, like a murderer?"

The Fast Age.
"The world never moved so fast before," mused Mr. Simmons. "We have winter ice on the Fourth of July, spring vegetables on Christmas; we buy our straw hats in February and our felt hats in August; we get our Sunday paper on Saturday night, and our magazines a month ahead of time. If we telephone a man in San Francisco from New York, he hears our voice about four hours before we speak; and if some one in Japan sends us a cablegram tomorrow, we get it today."

Poverty and Splendor.
I saw many poor, whom I supposed to live in affluence. Poverty has, in large cities, very different appearances; it is often concentrated in splendor, and often in extravagance. It is the care of a great part of mankind to conceal their indigence from the rest; they support themselves by temporary expedients and every day I lost in contriving for the morrow.—Dr. Samuel Johnson.

WHEN JEFFERSON TOOK OATH

Early Presidential Inauguration at Which There Was an Abundance of Ill Feeling.

The first Jefferson inauguration had more drama about it than its three predecessors. The President-elect was received upon the portico of the newly completed north wing of the capitol by Aaron Burr, whom Jefferson cordially detested. And the oath of office was administered by one of his bitterest enemies, Chief Justice Marshall, who had been appointed to office by Adams in the closing days of the administration, an act which Jefferson regarded as not only an impertinence but a personal affront. Jefferson's feelings towards Burr and Marshall were well known.

Then the new president was escorted to the senate chamber, where he delivered his inaugural address, one of the most notable of all such speeches. He was afterward escorted to his boarding house, where he received the congratulations of the foreign diplomats and of the leaders of the popular party, who rejoiced over the defeat of the Federalists.

Reprisal.

There's a little boy in our town who was given a puppy for Christmas, and the gift being at the puppy's age when everything looks good to chew, he bites harder sometimes than he should, this morning, several days after Christmas, the little dog ran howling from the room. When the little boy's mother inquired what was the matter, he replied: "He bit my finger, and he can't learn to stop bitin', so I bit his ear."

IS PROMOTED TO COMMANDER

Armore (Okla.) Man So Successful That His Worth Was Recognized by Home State.

H. B. Fell, commander of the Oklahoma department of the American Legion, is vice president of a large steel construction company in Ardmore, Okla. Born in Wilkes-Barre, Pa., Mr. Fell was educated in the public schools and Hurry Hillman academy of that city. He was graduated from Mercerburg academy and later from Princeton university with the degree of civil engineer.

Mr. Fell was construction engineer and officer in a number of public utility companies of Pennsylvania before entering the service. A graduate of the Second Officers' Training camp at Fort Niagara, N. Y., Mr. Fell rose from second lieutenant to major during his army career, which was spent in various southern training camps.

The record of Mr. Fell as commander of George R. Anderson Post No. 65 of the Legion at Ardmore was so successful that he was elected department commander at the last Oklahoma convention.

PLAN TO FIGHT PROPAGANDA

Will Urge Congress to Make English Language and American History Compulsory in Schools.

Henry J. Ryan, who succeeded Arthur Woods as national director of the Americanism commission of the American Legion, has announced a definite program of Americanism activities which Legion leaders believe will effectively combat anti-American propaganda at its sources.

The plan includes a sympathetic reception to the immigrant and a method of providing him with opportunities to school himself in American ideas; improvement of immigration and naturalization laws; measures to stop the circulation of Bolshevist and I. W. W. propaganda; and providing a greater chance for education in citizenship among the adult native born.

The Legion's campaign will start with the school, which is characterized by Mr. Ryan as the foundation of character building. "No greater problem challenges the American people than the school," said Mr. Ryan. "Sweeping changes must be made in our schools or revolution and the destruction of America will be but a matter of time. The school system of America, as constituted at present, is incapable of developing the type of intelligent citizenship which is the foundation of a democracy, and without which human liberty has no champion. The changes which the American Legion advocates are, first, that English shall be the controlling language in all schools, and second, that the study of American history and civics shall be made compulsory to all school pupils. To accomplish these proposals the Legion will petition congress to formulate a resolution recommending to state legislatures the passage of statutes embodying these changes."

SENATE SERGEANT AT ARMS

Wisconsin Legion Hero Is Honored by the Lawmaking Body of His Home State.

Sergt. Vincent P. Kielinski, kept a platoon of the Wisconsin Legion in such good condition during the World war that he was called upon by the Wisconsin state senate to keep order in the legislative chambers by assuming the office of sergeant at arms. A winner of the Distinguished Service cross and the Croix de Guerre, Sergt. Kielinski became interested in the American Legion as soon as he returned to America. He organized the Quentin Roosevelt post of the Legion and is now serving as post commander.

Seeks Dead Son's Watch.

Comrades of Harry A. Millener, who lost his life near Malmouret, France, when he was acting as a runner for the One Hundred and Forty-seventh Field artillery, Thirty-second division, are requested to provide information in regard to a hunting case gold watch which Millener carried at the time of his death. Fred J. Millener, 388 Child street, Rochester, N. Y., the man's father, is eager to obtain the watch as a remembrance of his hero son, and has written to F. W. Galbraith, Jr., national commander of the American Legion, to obtain assistance.

LAND ALL MEN IN DISTRICT

Arthur Wisman Post, Avon, S. D., Rounds Out Its 100 Per Cent Membership.

To serve its constituency at an American Legion post, which includes every eligible ex-serviceman in its district of 200 square miles, is the honor conferred on David L. Wisman, postmaster of Arthur Wisman Post, No. 150, Avon, S. D.

In rounding out its one hundred per cent membership, the post conducted a contest in which the losing side suffered the penalty of serving as kitchen police for a general feast. After the contest the ex-servicemen not yet enrolled were assigned to individuals until the last man in the territory was signed up.

Members of the post are scattered over a section 20 miles long and 10 miles wide. The post centralizes responsibility by providing that the post officers shall serve as members of the executive committee. It boasts of a first-class Women's auxiliary, an orchestra and basketball team. Spice is added to the monthly meetings by a permanent entertainment committee which arranges for athletic contests, motion pictures or feasts to wind up the meetings.

CLUBHOUSE IS IN ORDER NOW

Kensington Post at Philadelphia Is Ready for Entertainment of the Boys During Warm Days.

The wind which sweeps up the Delaware these days is hardly indicative of sunshine and heat; yet the members of Kensington Post at Philadelphia have just finished painting their summer clubhouse and have renovated it from top to bottom.

By doing the job themselves, the members of the Pennsylvania post have saved the price of numerous entertainments which are planned for the summer of 1921.

WHAT THEY DO WITH BONUS

Seventy Per Cent of Minneapolis Men Increase or Open New Savings Accounts.

What do ex-servicemen do with their bonus money received from the various states?

Some persons opposed to handing out cash to the men either by the states or nation, give as their greatest argument that the beneficiaries will squander the money foolishly as soon as they get it.

But the experience of the Wells Dickey Trust company of Minneapolis which firm has been instrumental in advancing $2,205,000 to ex-servicemen through special arrangement with the bonus board, completely overturns this conjecture. Figures just compiled by the cashier of the trust company show that of the 3,224 claims handled by the bank for Minneapolis men, 70 per cent of the men increased their own accounts and 26 per cent opened savings accounts at once.

Blasts Hopes of Politicians

The endorsement of a candidate for political preferment by any organization of the American Legion in Illinois will result in disciplinary action for the offending organization. It was decided at a meeting of the state executive committee of the Legion. The Illinois legionnaires further resolved "that we disapprove the use of the name of the American Legion or of the prestige of office or membership therein by any person for the furtherance of his personal efforts to promote any political candidacy or partisan principles."

Flowers From President Wilson

A bouquet of flowers from President Wilson was sent every day to Wells Hawks, veteran press agent and commander of S. Rankin Post 340 of the American Legion at New York during his recent illness. Mr. Hawks, while on a visit to Washington, was suddenly taken down with inflammatory rheumatism and removed to George Washington hospital. It was while he was in the Washington hospital that the President, a member of the American Legion, added his "buddy."

Participation in Athletics

Athletic programs have been developed in a number of state departments of the American Legion. In Indiana and Iowa a Legion basketball tournament are under way, and in Massachusetts, under the leadership of a committee composed of notable Massachusetts athletes, Legion members propose interstate competition in a number of major sports.

Speedy Animals

Two of the fastest of the smaller animals are the greyhound and the jack rabbit. The greyhound can go at the rate of 32 miles an hour, while his cousin, the Russian wolfhound, can beat him by five miles and has much greater powers of endurance. The greyhound, like the horse, digs in with his forefeet and uses his front legs for pulling as well as pushing with his hind legs. The jack rabbit's front legs are only crutches, but, like the antelope, he makes no for it by the power of his hind legs.

Boy of Eighteen Gets Action

Midshipman J. L. Storey, a boy of perhaps eighteen, the sole surviving officer of the Queen Mary, reported to his C. O. on the loss of his ship!

That midshipman, by the way, bore a charmed life. At Jutland he was picked up unconscious after sinking twice. He was with Crook at the battle of Coronel, escaping in the Glasgow after the flagship and the Monmouth had been sunk with not a man saved; with Sturdee in the battle of the Falklands, and in many engagements in the Dardanelles. And, after all, he was the sole surviving officer of one of our largest ships.—London Saturday Review

Soiled Bills Help Banks.

The fact that nearly all paper money in circulation now is badly worn and soiled has been one of the reasons why bank deposits have increased, says an up-state banker who was in the city.

"People like to handle clean, crisp bills," he said, "but are afraid of the torn, soiled ones. There is always the chance of getting some disease. Small checking accounts have increased a good deal lately, and this is undoubtedly one of the reasons for it. When new bills come in again the accounts may become fewer. But once people get the habit of using checks they generally stick to it."—New York Sun

AUNT WIN

By LUCRETIA M. GARDNER

"Want to get up, Tom? This is the tenth time you have brushed against my dress. You ought to know better. This isn't any time of day to bug me to take you up; dishes not washed, nothing done. But come along!" And the frail little lady suited the action to her words and lifted the sturdy lad into her lap.

"I am just as blue as a whetstone," Tom, she said, "and I ought not to be for that was as good a sermon as I ever heard preached. Just boiled down common sense, and there ought not to be any dress left to worry my soul. You can't say anything, can you, Tom, but you're purring like a muscle box."

A sudden knock sounded at the door, was followed by a girl's voice.

"It's only Molly, Aunt Win." Then when the frail little lady drew the bolt, the young voice exclaimed: "Why, I never knew you to bolt the door at this time of day. Are you sick?"

Molly rushed across the threshold, gave Aunt Win a hearty hug, then looking at the table in the living room, with its barely touched food, said:

"You must be sick for you have not eaten a bite for dinner."

"Sit down, child," Aunt Win answered quietly. "I was just talking with Tom and wondering what the matter was with me."

"That was a tip-top sermon, wasn't it, Aunt Win? It just made me sit up and take notice, but you didn't need to take it to heart," Molly said, patting her listener's cheek.

"Dear child, that's just it! Of course," Aunt Win explained, "when it comes to making a loaf of cake or knitting, to help my church I do my little bit, but—"

"A pause emphasized by the solemn ticking of the tall clock, and then, 'but, Molly, when it's a case of dollars and cents I haven't any to give, and yet I love my church and what it stands for as dearly as anyone in this place. Why shouldn't I? It has helped me when everything was swept from me, and isn't that a test? I have found my faith fit to live by and expect to die by it when my call comes.'"

"Perhaps this dreary dark day has upset you," suggested the girl, "but you aren't over blue. Let's pile on the wood. Oh, these beauties and roses! You polished them yesterday, I know."

A sudden gleam flitted across the shining tops and seemed to bring an illuminating thought to Aunt Win's mind. She choked back a sigh and huffed sob, then sank into the nearest chair while Molly put on fresh logs. In a trembling voice the little lady said:

"These are very precious and, indeed, they are more than 100 years old and were given to my great-grandmother in payment for teaching Maria Hussey's children at Cent school."

"Cent school?" repeated Molly in surprise. "What on earth was a Cent school?"

"That was long before your generation, dear, when little children were taught the three Rs by dear old ladies and carried their cents in corners of their handkerchiefs to pay. I set my eyes by these and, dear, she murmured as if alone in the room, "Can I do it? Can I make up my mind to do it?"

Molly glanced up suddenly at Aunt Win's face. She was just right in her mind? She wondered.

"Oh, don't worry. I'm not out of my head, child, but these andros have preached me a sermon, too. Do you know Mrs. James has been wild to buy them, and now I've made up my mind I'll sell them for $15—would you, say?"

"Fifteen?—nothing of the kind. Why?" exclaimed Molly. "You're not a bit of a trader. They are worth $30. But, oh, dear, how can you part with them? What will you do without them? How keep warm?"

"Have a fire in the air-tight and forget them. Fifty, do you say? Then," Aunt Win added breathlessly, "I'll give $30 to my church and $20 to the Red Cross in memory of our Will, dear, dear boy!"

Then fell the first tears as Aunt Win's thoughts sped across the seas to a lonely grave in the Argonne.

DARLING BABY BRIGHTENS HOME

Children's Laughter a Pleasing Sound

Aitoona, Pa.—"I am writing to tell you what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done for me. We had six children die almost at birth. From one hour to nineteen days is all they have lived. Before my next one was born I took a dozen bottles of your Vegetable Compound, and I can say that it is the greatest medicine on earth, for this baby is now four months old, and a healthier baby you would not want. I am sending you a picture of her. Everybody says 'That is a very healthy looking baby.' You have my consent to show these few lines to anybody."—Mrs. C. W. BENZ, 131 3rd Avenue, Aitoona, Pa.

I suffered very little at childbirth, and I give all the credit to your medicine, and shall always recommend it highly."—Mrs. H. H. JANSSEN, Millston, Wis.

Marinette, Wis.—"I was in a nervous condition and very irregular. My doctor advised an operation. My husband brought me one of your booklets and asked me to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. It overcame my weakness so that I now have a healthy baby girl after having been married nine years. I am glad to recommend your medicine, and you may use my letter as a testimonial."—Mrs. H. B. HELD, 330 Jefferson St., Marinette, Wis.

There are many, many such homes that were once childless, and are now blessed with healthy, happy children because Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has restored the mother to a strong and healthy condition, as it acts as a natural restorative for ailments as indicated by backache, irregularities, displacements, weakness and nervousness.

Women everywhere should remember that most of the commoner ailments of women are not the surgical ones—they are not caused by serious displacements or growths, although the symptoms may be the same, and that why so many apparently serious ailments readily yield to Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, as it acts as a natural restorative. It can be taken with perfect safety and often prevents serious troubles.

Therefore if you know of any woman who is suffering and has been unable to secure relief and is regretfully looking forward to a childless old age, ask her to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, as it has brought health and happiness into so many homes once darkened by illness and despair.

HAD REPUTATION TO SUSTAIN BUT HE MADE FINE SPEECH

Farmer Had No Idea of Allowing Hired Man to Beat Him in Gathering Corn.

A Sullivan county farmer hired a man to help him gather his corn at season. Now, the farmer had a reputation for being an efficient worker, but the hired man was not daunted by it. They started out side by side, the hired man being advised by the farmer to keep as close to him as he could with the row he was gathering.

But to the new worker after a few minutes of keeping up with the farmer, passed him and soon was several feet ahead. Frantically the farmer pulled the ears from the stalks, but the new man still kept gaining. Then all at once he heard the farmer shout "Stop," he yelled, "Stop, if you want to work for me, I never yet but any man who worked for me get ahead of me."

Love of Pictures Universal

Mankind has always loved pictures. Races, without a written language, have left behind them rude carvings and murals to attest the fact. When an industry arose that appealed to this ancient appetite with pictures that moved, it did not have to wait long to see whether it would die or flourish. A dozen years ago the motion picture business, as we now know it, did not exist. Today the American public supports 16,500 moving picture theaters, makes 5,000,000,000 visits to them a year and spends $750,000,000 annually for this amusement.—The Nation's Business

Willing to Hold

"I've been reared in the lap of luxury," said a millionaire's daughter. "Try mine for a change," suggested the impetuous young man.—Baltimore American

When a Feller Needs a Friend

Aristocratic Aunt (to small nephew from the country playing in the snow)—Please remember, Theodore, while you are visiting us, that it will be unnecessary for you to make your own snowman. What are the servants for?—Passing Show, London

Plant at Victoria Falls

The project to erect a power plant at Victoria Falls, on the Zambesi river, in South Africa, has been revived and it is exceedingly likely that a 20,000 horsepower plant will soon be under way at that place. It has been under discussion for many years, but the one thing which stood in the way was the proximity of cheap coal, but this fuel is now at such a price that there is a demand for hydro-electric power. Current will probably be conveyed to the Rand mines, 900 miles away.

Youngsters grow husky on Grape-Nuts

The great body-building values which Nature stores in wheat and barley, are retained in this easily digestible food.

The unique, sweet flavor of Grape-Nuts makes it a big favorite with both children and adults.

Hall's Catarrh Medicine

Those who are in a "run down" condition will notice that Catarrh bothers them much more than when they are in good health. This fact proves that while Catarrh is a local disease, it is greatly influenced by constitutional conditions. HALL'S CATARRH MEDICINE is a local and blood purifier, and acts through the blood upon the mucous surfaces of the body, thus reducing the inflammation and restoring normal conditions.
