

LITTLE INTEREST IN TOWNSHIP ELECTION

Republican Ticket Only One in Field;
Bonus Amendment Failed To Get Two-Thirds Majority.

Little interest was manifested in yesterday's election in Sylvan township due to the fact that only one ticket, the Republican, was in the field. Five hundred and forty votes were cast; less than one-third of the voters in the township making use of their ballots. The several officers elected were as follows:

Supervisor, Herman J. Dancer; clerk, George S. Davis; treasurer, Theodore Wedemeyer; commissioner of highways, George W. Gage; justice of peace, Howard F. Brooks; member board of review, Jacob Hummel; overseer highways, Arthur Keelan; constables, Roy Evans, Charles W. Hieber, George A. Young, Edward H. Chandler.

The vote on the soldiers' bonus amendment was: Yes, 329; no, 210. A two-thirds majority is necessary to carry the measure in the state.

Republican candidates for state offices were elected by a vote of about three to one as compared with Democratic candidates.

DANGLING FROM A TREE

Lifeless Body of Swedish Laborer Is Found Near Sylvan Center.

Dangling from a tree in the woods on the George Heydlauff farm near Sylvan Center, the lifeless body of a stranger was found late Saturday afternoon by Mr. Heydlauff and his son, who were plowing in a field nearby. They had noticed the body earlier in the day, but as their vision was partly obscured by intervening trees they had not given the incident more than a passing thought, supposing it to be some one passing by on either the Michigan Central or interurban tracks, who had stopped in the woods for a few minutes rest.

The body was that of a rather tall man, but as the feet were barely off the ground, the quite natural inference was that the fellow was standing up. Later, when Mr. Heydlauff and his son noticed that the man did not change his position they approached closer until they were able to see that he was dead, hanging from a stout cord commonly known as "express cord," attached to the limb of a tree.

Life was extinct, the body probably having hung there for several days.

No papers or other identifying marks were found in the man's clothing. He had about eight dollars in money.

On Sunday a suitcase was found nearby by F. G. Wolf, and in it were found several letters and citizenship papers, all bearing the name of John A. Anderson, a native of Sweden who had come to America in 1887.

The certificate of citizenship was issued September 27, 1894, in Queen's county, New York. It was a duplicate copy sent to Anderson at Stout, Colorado, in December, 1897.

Another paper was a letter of dismissal from a Swedish church in Denver, Colorado, dated January 18, 1921. It was issued to John August Anderson, stating he was born in Helm Helmsstad, Sweden, May 24, 1867, arrived in America in 1887, and became a resident of Colorado in 1902.

Other papers established the fact that Anderson had been in both Chicago and Detroit recently looking for work, probably without success; evidently became discouraged and took his own life.

Mrs. Pulling, Mrs. Clickner and Norman Jodel were also in the car. Mrs. Pulling was bruised about the head. Mr. Jodel sustained a cut over one eye by striking the automobile top. Mrs. Clickner and Mr. Pulling were not injured. The automobile was not overturned, but was quite badly damaged.—Leader.

SHERIFF IS OBLIGED TO BREAK INTO JAIL

Lock Refused To Operate; Officials
Forced To Saw Window Bars
To Enter Cell Block.

Inmates have broken out of the county jail on several occasions, but Thursday was the first time in the history of the county, which was erected in 1886, that the jail had to be broken into.

Late in the afternoon Sheriff A. C. Pack endeavored to unlock the double doors which separate the cell corridor from the office, but he was unable to make the key operate.

A locksmith was called, but he was unable to break the lock after two hours' work. It was then decided to saw off the bolts on an outside window and the screen was finally removed. With considerable exertion Col. Pack and the locksmith wormed their way through the window. The inside door was then opened by working the key through the bars, and the locksmith was able to get at the resisting lock on the outer door.

It was found that the tumblers of the lock had become so worn that they ceased to function properly. A new lock was installed the following day.

TEETH OF STATE DRY ACT DRAWN

SUPREME COURT KNOCKS OUT SEARCH AND SEIZURE LAW AS BEING MANDATORY.

STATE TO RUSH AMENDMENT

Adverse Decision Not to Stop War On Whiskey Ring, Enforcement Officials Declare.

Lansing.—Michigan is now without a search and seizure provision in its state prohibition law as a result of the decision of the state supreme court last week, which declares the seizure section of the law in conflict with the state constitution and therefore void.

Until such time as the legislature can amend the prohibition act to conform with the constitution the courts and state officials are stripped of this necessary power in liquor law enforcement.

The ruling came in a Grand Rapids case, the defendant, Edgar D. De Lamater, a druggist of that city, being released by the superior court of Grand Rapids by quashing of the information against him. It was charged that he unlawfully had whiskey in his store.

The state permit to De Lamater expired May 1, 1919, and he was refused another by the state food and drug department.

In the interim, while he was yet making efforts to obtain a new permit to handle liquor, Dec. 30, 1919, George M. Bradley, a state food and drug inspector, obtained a search warrant on his own affidavit and raided the store, getting four and one-half pints of Kentucky Malt whiskey.

When the case came before the superior court, De Lamater contended that Section 25 of the Wiley prohibition law of 1917, as amended by the 1919 acts, and which provides for search and seizure in liquor cases, was in conflict with the state constitution and therefore void.

The superior court so held, which released the defendant and quashed the charges. This action of the lower court is upheld by the state supreme court.

The constitution provides that a search and seizure act "may be" issued by a justice upon oath or affirmation and a showing that convinces the judge that there is "probable cause" to believe that the claims set forth are true.

The Wiley act says that a judge "shall" issue a warrant upon oath or affirmation, and, therefore, is at variance with the constitution, which gives the judge discretionary power, "shall" being mandatory.

All the legislature has to do is amend the Wiley act so as to give the judge discretionary power as provided by the constitution.

According to State Food and Drug Commissioner Woodworth, there will be no cessation of the activities of the department in enforcing the liquor act. Its officers will simply drop the question of search warrants until the legislature amends the Wiley act.

LAKE-TO-SEA CANAL ASSURED

Little Objection to Project Raised At Hearing At Detroit.

Detroit.—The 39th and final hearing of the International Joint Waterways commission was held here last week and delegates from 15 states of the middle west and Canada were enthusiastically over the prospects for the success of the proposed lake-to-ocean waterway. Only one objection to the evidence was made and this came from a Buffalo man.

The proposed waterway will add $300,000,000 a year to the value of farm products of the United States, according to Oscar J. Larson of Minnesota. He charged that New York and other districts opposing the plan are selfishly trying to block a project that means millions to the rest of the country.

$50,000,000 CLUB, FOR WOMEN

New York Organizations Planning Erection of Large Building.

New York.—A $50,000,000 club house for women to be used as a meeting place for New York's 365 feminine organizations and known as the Women's National club, will be built near Fifth avenue.

It will be a 15 to 22-story building. The financing committee proposed to erect similar women's club buildings in other cities, one of the first being in Washington, D. C. It was said.

Fight "Race Suicide" Clauses

Boston.—Action seeking to eliminate "race suicide clauses" from tenants' contracts was begun in the city court by Councilor Francis J. Winford. He introduced an order unanimously passed under suspension of rules, calling upon the city rent and housing committee to take up the matter with the corporation counsel. Some rent contracts signed recently have stipulated an increase of $10 a month for every increase to a family and it is such increases that are opposed.

FIND HEMMETER BODY IN RIVER

Switchmen Recover Corpse of Business Man Missing Four Months.

Detroit.—After nearly four months immersion in the Detroit river the body of Fred Hemmeter, former secretary and treasurer of the Hemmeter Cigar company, was found floating off Seventeenth street. It was towed to shore by F. C. King and Raymond Scott, switchmen of the Canadian Pacific railway.

Hemmeter and a friend were reported missing and after finding of their automobile in the river, it was believed that the men had either accidentally driven off the dock into the river or had met with foul play.

COVERT ROAD LAW IS UPHELD

Lower Court Decision in Famous Bloomfield Case Affirmed.

Pontiac.—Affirmation of findings of the local circuit court in the famous "West Bloomfield road case" upholds the constitutionality of the Covert road law and makes probable continuance of the present plan of constructing highways in the state. The law was attacked by West Bloomfield residents who objected to the assessments levied under the district system and was carried to supreme court.

ACCUSED OF PADDING PAYROLL

Payments of Grand Trunk Money to Fictitious Names, Charge.

Pontiac.—Padding a payroll of the Grand Trunk railroad was charged against Thomas Ereckle in municipal court. He demanded examination. ## HOUSE VOTES TO ADJOURN APRIL 29

SENATE HOLDING UP ACTION ON DATE SET, SIZING UP WORK REMAINING.

SCHOOL HEAD GIVEN INCREASE

Superintendent of Schools to Receive $5,000 in 1923; Department Members Named.

(From Staff Correspondent)
Lansing.—The heavy grind of the legislative session now has begun and the house of representatives' daily calendar has grown to huge proportions. The amount of work thus placed in front of them does not cause the members to hesitate over taking time for verbal battles over many of the measure that come up, however, and nearly every day has its special attraction in the way of a fight over some bill.

Death Penalty Again Defeated.

Several big measures felt by the wayside as the result of these fights, chief interest being in the fate of the capital punishment bill, which was revived by its author, Rep. Hart, after apparently having been disposed of for the session. The bill again received a majority of the votes cast, the ballot standing 49 to 48, but it still lacked two votes of the necessary 51 to adopt it. Two votes had been gained for the bill since it was up before, those of two members who had been absent at the Marquette prison inquiry when the bill previously failed with only 49 votes in favor of it. But Rep. Dean, who stood for the bill, was absent on leave and Rep. Jewell, of Houghton, switched over to the opposition as the result of an appeal by mail from his wife to vote against the death penalty. Rep. Hart again had the bill tabled and may call it up once more, but it is hardly likely that he can gain the vote needed to replace that of Jewell.

The house killed the Holland 8-hour day bill by an adverse vote of 55 to 2, members declaring in the course of the debate that the present condition of business in the state and nation was such that an 8-hour law was about the last thing wanted. The house also killed the O'Brien bill to bring reciprocal insurance companies under the control of the state insurance department, only eight votes favoring the measure. Most members believed that mutual companies would suffer if this bill became law.

House Votes Salary Raise.

A bill to increase the salary of Superintendent of Public Instruction Johnson from $4,000 to $5,000 a year, was adopted by the house after a hot fight, but two attempts to give it immediate effect failed, the second one losing by a single vote. A third effort to bring the matter up again was ruled out of order. Immediate effect was necessary if Supt. Johnson is to get the salary increase during the next two years. If the senate concurs in the house amendment which reduced the salary from the $6,000 mark allowed by the senate the bill will take effect next summer, but without applying to the term of office which Johnson will begin on July 1. The increase will therefore not be paid until after July 1, 1923.

Another important bill which appears now to be lost is the income tax measure, which was tabled after failing to receive 51 votes. House gossip has it that six members who voted for it have changed their minds and will vote against it now if it is taken from the table. The bill's sponsors are marking time while trying to line up 51 votes.

House Speeds Up Work.

To speed up the work of the session in the house, members finally have begun to allow the attaching of roll calls to bills on which there is no disagreement. About ten minutes is saved each time and a long list of bills on third reading is more readily handled by attaching the names of members present as voting favorably on the bills which no one opposes. Speed is a prime requisite if the legislature is to get through its business by April 29, the adjournment date adopted by the house as an amendment to a resolution to adjourn April 14. The senate is holding up the adjournment resolution to see if it is possible to have all the appropriation bills on the ways so that the date may remain unchanged after once being set.

The house ways and means committee has reported out nearly all the big appropriation bills and they will be considered together at an early session, and sent to the senate after adoption. A slash in the budget requests that totalled $5,750,000 was made by the ways and means committee on seven state institutions, the four normal colleges and three state hospitals. Other severe reductions are to come in the committee on additional appropriation bills and it is expected that still more reductions will be attempted on the floor of the house and senate.

Provide For More Revenue.

In addition to making these cuts the legislature plans to increase state receipts by the corporation tax act, which now has passed the senate. Through amendments made on the 1900 act, the state, instead of being exempted from the tax, will be taxed one mill, the tax in no case to exceed $20,000 a year. Mines will pay 3 1/2 mills, the tax not to exceed $10,000 a year, and non-producing mines to be exempt. The bill does not apply to foreign insurance companies doing business in Michigan.

Three bills affecting the crossing of one railway's tracks by those of another time have made their appearance. Two of them are the same measure, one being introduced in the house by Rep. Copley and the other in the senate by Senator Hayes. These are Detroit measures, designed to help the municipal ownership lines being constructed there by giving the city council power to order the crossings. The third bill, introduced by Rep. Pitkin, followed the two Detroit bills and aims to give the state public utilities commission the sole power to order crossings and to state how they shall be made.

Baird Gets Appointment.

The governor, having signed the act creating a state department of conservation, which came into existence at once because the bill was given immediate effect, has named John Baird, of Saginaw, the state game warden, to be director of the department. This is the first of the new departments to be organized. Five of the seven members of the conservation board also were named at the same time that Baird's appointment was announced. They are William H. Wallace, of Saginaw; Prof. Philip H. H. of Ann Arbor; Fred Z. Pantlind, of Grand Rapids; Thomas T. Marston, of Bay City; and Charles Lawrence, of Iron River.

Still another new department may be urged by the governor on the lawmakers for the establishment and maintenance of a state drainage system, to be made up from a combination of present county drainage systems, with statewide drains established where necessary. This department, if decided upon, will function in regard to drains much the same as the state highway department does in regard to roads. In fact, it may be planned as an adjunct to the highway department.

Both houses have passed the Baker bill to have primary elections in townships instead of caucuses, the present limit of 12,000 population in order to hold primaries being removed and no limit placed. The holding of primaries is left optional with the townships, however.

Supervision of Private Schools.

The senate has adopted the bill to create a state conservation department, previously passed by the house, and it has gone to the governor for his signature, with an immediate effect clause attached. This is one of the reorganization measures fostered by Gov. Groesbeck. It combines in the one department the present public domain commission, the state fish commission, the game department, forest fire department, state park commission and Mackinac Island commission.

A bill to place all private and parochial schools under the supervision of the state department of public instruction caused a rather lively public hearing at which the bill was attacked as unconstitutional. Among the speakers against the bill was James Hamilton, of Detroit, leader of the forces favoring the constitutional amendment, defeated last fall, which proposed to abolish private and parochial schools. Trained nurses appeared at another hearing in opposition to a bill to provide for the registration of "practical nurses" under the title of "trained attendants."

Final departure of Michigan's glory as a lumber state would seem to be emphasized if a bill introduced by Rep. Robinson is made a law. The bill aims to prohibit the use of wooden shingles on any building put up in Michigan after next year.

Rep. Wells has introduced a bill to repeal the law establishing the state boxing commission and the house committee on education has it under consideration.

Compensation Law Change.

The governor has signed the Leanon bill to prohibit aliens residing in the state from owning firearms for hunting purposes. The real object of the bill is to stop crime in Detroit, Flint and other cities where aliens are numerous, but as first introduced it also would prevent those living in remote places in the state from owning guns even for self-protection. By a senate amendment the sheriff of any county may issue a permit to an alien to possess firearms. There were numerous arguments over the constitutionality of the measure in both houses before it finally went through.

The senate has passed a bill amending the mothers' compensation law to provide pensions to mothers of from $2 to $10, with $2 a week for each additional child; a bill appropriating $1,102,500 to complete the state office building; and the Osborn bill for an annual license of $1 for all persons who want to catch fish in Michigan. The house passed by unanimous vote the Branham bill to regulate the grading of apples and their sale in packages. This bill is being supported strongly by large growers and shippers of apples in Michigan. The house defeated another bill by Rep. Branham which aimed to do away with party caucuses by having all delegates to county conventions elected at primaries and serve as delegates for two years.

THE FINEST THINGS.

(Philadelphia Public Ledger.)

There is not room in crowded life for everything, and one must choose. Harder than the distinction between bad and good is the differentiation between the good and the better, or the better and the best. When one has seen and known the best, one is less likely to be tempted into accepting the second-rate.

What are the finest things? Certainly not those that any one can buy for money. You cannot buy a friend. You cannot buy the goodness and greatness of human fellowship and the inspiring social contacts.

A rich man purchases food and flowers and the service of an orchestra—he purchases the presence of others at his feasts and dances—but he cannot purchase society, for society is not a matter of gorgeous and costly entertainment; it is an affair of congenial and cordial affiliation. You may have far better society at a fireside in a woodland camp or among primitive nomads than in the sophisticated air of a rich man's palace.

Personality is one of the treasures of life that are worth more than ropes of pearls. We are so constituted that we look to others for the lift we do not find within ourselves. We take heart again from the shining face as from the glowing word of the preacher. We read of some one who bore up and struggled on in the face of all hard conditions and we say, "If he did that, I can!" First among the finest things of life let us set down the good influence one human being may have upon another. That is fundamental to all else.

The things that are enjoyable—literature, art, music, horses and dogs, golf and baseball, the sheer delight in a day of a glorious sky and a beautiful earth—all these things are twice as much to us when we divide them with another.

The first instinct of the soul in the presence of delight is to share it, and by the sharing to enhance it. A picture or a book, a sermon or a play, or a symphony, is less to us in the absorption than in the communication to a kindred spirit. If you do not feel like sharing it at once, the thing you have is less precious to you. The first inspiration of a true professor of religion is the feeling that what he has is so precious that he must not hug it to himself, but pass it on. The finest things of life are those we want to give away.

TROOPER DIED
FIRING SHOTS
AT MURDERERSPRIVATE ANDERSON OF STATE
POLICE KILLED BY GANG OF BANDITS.

Trooper Harold E. Anderson, the first member of the Michigan State Police to be killed in the course of his duty, died with his revolver empty and fell with his face toward the men who had shot him. That is the consolation which his comrades of the State Police have in his death.

With another trooper, Anderson was stationed at Farmington, the Grand River Road, about 20 miles northwest of Detroit. Beside their duty in law enforcement in the vicinity of Farmington, these troopers had the duty of guarding Grand River Road when a general alarm was sent out after the commission of some notable crime in or near Detroit.

HAROLD E. ANDERSON

The evening of March 11, a policeman was shot and fatally wounded in Detroit by a gang of bandits in an automobile. After midnight a report came to the two state troopers at Farmington that a car containing a number of men was parked at Grand River Road and Twenty-Seventh Mile Road, near Novi, with its lights turned off.

The informant suspected that they were bandits waiting to commit a robbery as it was known that a concern in that locality had considerable cash on hand for paying off its employees March 12.

Together with a deputy sheriff, the two troopers proceeded in an automobile to the intersection named where they found five men in a closed car. Troopers Anderson and Hughes approached the car and the former demanded of the five men who they were and what they were doing.

Bandits Open Fire.

As Anderson opened the front door of the car, one of the men drew a revolver and opened fire on him. Other men also fired. The driver started the car and Hughes was knocked to the ground from the running board.

Anderson and Hughes both emptied their revolvers at the speeding car and it is surmised that some of the bullets took effect. In the hope of saving Anderson's life, he having been shot through the body near the heart, he was taken to the home of a doctor near Novi. Anderson died within a short time however.

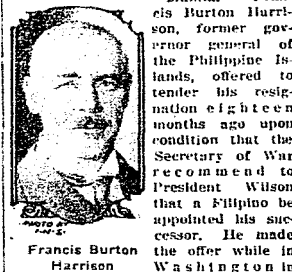

Trooper Hughes notified other State Police detachments and the sheriffs of Oakland and Livingston counties by telephone and armed men were sent out to guard the highways but they did not succeed in catching the bandits, who are supposed to be the same men who had shot the Detroit policeman.

The bandit car proceeded west on Grand River Road. A party of State Police at Williamston was posted to stop all cars. Daniel Butters, a Williamston man, persisted in trying to run past this party, although signalled to stop by several uniformed men. After he had run past them, two troopers fired at his tires and one shot went high and struck Butters in the back, inflicting a wound from which he died several days later. Trooper Sheridan was thrown to the pavement while trying to get on Butters car as it passed him.
