

DON'T POISON THE BEES

Spraying White Fruit Trees Are In Bloom Kills Winged Workers.

A warning against spraying with arsenical poisons while fruit trees are in bloom has been sent out by R. H. Pettit, entomologist at the Michigan Agricultural college. Nothing is to be gained by this practice, while serious loss through poisoning of bees is likely to follow, according to Prof. Pettit, who takes a positive stand on the question.

"If arsenicals are needed in the early spring to check the work of bud moth, canker worm and other early spring insects, the arsenicals should be used in the spray which is applied just previous to the opening of the flowers, or while the buds are in the pink," says Pettit.

"After the petals have dropped another arsenical spray is usually applied in the regular routine. The spray of lime-sulphur some times applied for scab on Duchesne during bloom, should not contain any arsenical, since it kills a great number of wild bees, as well as honey bees, all of which are the principal agents for pollinating flowers."

Use of the poison spray at the wrong time brings loss not only to the bee keepers of the district, but to the orchard men as well. It seems, because of the loss of these valuable pollinating agents.

FREE TRIP TO STATE FAIR.

County School Commissioner Evan Essery has received information from G. W. Dickinson, secretary-manager, that the Michigan State Fair will conduct the coming year its annual Boys State Fair School upon a larger basis than ever before.

In every county of the State, competitive examinations will be held, and the boys who show the greatest proficiency in agricultural studies, will be given a trip to the fair at Detroit at the expense of the Fair association.

At the fair, they will be given instruction by the state's foremost agricultural experts on the best and most modern methods of agriculture. The Michigan State Fair has conducted this school for years as a contribution towards agricultural education. Expenses of the boys from the most distant counties of the state have been large, but cheerfully met.

The rules under which the free trip may be won are in part as follows: Boys must be between the ages of 14 and 18 years, effective date, September 1, 1921.

They must write both in the regular eighth grade examination, and the special Fair's examination.

The winner will be selected by the County School Commissioner, Board of Examiners, or a special committee. An alternate will be selected, also.

Every effort is being made to have the Fair examination questions entirely practical. It will go into the actual problems of the farm from every angle. Theoretical and practical phases will be jointly studied. A boy who can successfully answer the questions, it is said, must show a pretty thorough knowledge of all the phases of farm life.

At the fair the management will see that the boys have a good time as well as instruction in agriculture.

The eighth grade examination will be given at the following points in Washtenaw county, May 12 and 13: Ann Arbor, Chelsea, Dexter, Manchester, Milan, Saline, Salem, Whitmore Lake, and Ypsilanti.

"THE COPPERHEAD."

The history of this, our dear country, is marked by epochs and if you will note these epochs, find their terminals in the great wars which have been fought. The happenings of these epochs are kept alive very largely by traditions which have been handed down to us through periodicals, books, and plays. It is very fitting, especially at this time of the year, that we turn our attention to the last epoch which found its beginning in the Civil war. "The Copperhead" is one of the plays of this kind. This great play has been filmed by the Paramount Artercraft Co., stirring Lionel Barrymore, who has a national reputation. It has been shown in many churches and most large theatres of our country with great success.

Friends Tell Good Story on Lawyer Who Has Risen to High Position in State.

Cot. W. H. Holmes, state superintendent of game for the department of conservation, was admitted to the bar on reaching his majority. His first case was to prove that a certain mule belonged to a certain negro. He won the case.

Subsequently in another mule case he proved the animal belonged to another negro. Then he was elected district attorney, and the first case he had to prosecute was one concerning a mule. The mule had been stolen and was over the line in Mississippi. He was going to abandon the case, when one of his former clients approached him and said:

"Honest, if I was you all, I'd go after that mule. Don't do mule been supposing you ever since you was a lawyer?"

And in all three cases it was the same mule.—New Orleans Times-Picayune.

COST OF USING TRACTORS AND HORSES SHOWN IN YEAR'S WORK

Preparing Seed Bed With Tractor Power.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

During October and November, 1929, representatives of the United States Department of Agriculture visited 286 tractor-owners in Ohio, Indiana, and Illinois. A complete record of all the work done during the year both with tractors and horses was obtained from each farmer. Information from which the cost of using the tractor and the cost of maintaining the workstock could be determined was also obtained. The investigation was made through the co-operative efforts of the bureau of animal industry, office of farm management and farm economics and the bureau of public roads, in accordance with plans outlined at the farm power conference at Chicago, Ill., in October, 1919. The object was to obtain information, in addition to that already available in the Department of Agriculture, which would aid in determining advantageous forms of power for different farms and different conditions.

The average size of the farms visited was 258 acres. This is considerably above the average size of all farms in these states.

Two-plow tractors were owned on 174 of the 286 farms, three-plow tractors on 104, and four-plow tractors on six farms. One farmer owned a one-plow machine, and one farmer owned a five-plow machine. Two-plow machines were found on 75 per cent of the farms with less than 100 crop acres, and on 53 per cent of those with 100 or more crop acres.

One hundred and six of the tractors had been in use one year, 100 had been in use one and one-half or two years, 49 had been in use two and one-half or three years, and 31 had been in use more than three years.

On the average the tractors were covered for 30.8 full days during the year covered by the investigation. Twenty-three and five-tenths days of this was drawbar work on the home farm, 2.7 days was belt work, and 4.6 days was custom work. Seventy-three of the 286 tractors did less than 20 days' work during the year and 26 did 50 or more days' work.

The number of workstock still owned varied from two head on 11 of the farms to more than 15 on five of the large farms. On the average there were 6.8 head per farm at the time of the survey, and their value was $145 per head. In all there were 1,878 head of workstock on the 286 farms and 111 colts less than one year of age.

The average number of full days' work per year per horse, for all farms was 68.6. On 20 of the farms the workstock did less than 40 full days' work and on 27 they did 100 or more days' work per year.

The tractors did 85 per cent of the plowing on these farms, 73 per cent of the disking, 43 per cent of the harrowing, planting, rolling, and packing, 41 per cent of the grain cutting, and about 15 per cent of the loading and hauling of hay.

Of 267 men who did spring plowing, 142 did it all with tractors, 121 used both tractors and horses, and four used horses only.

In all, the power for 30 per cent of the drawbar work on these farms, as measured by days of horse labor required for it, was furnished by tractors and the remainder by horses.

The average cost per head of keeping workstock on these farms for the year ending November 1, 1929, was $159, and the average cost per farm was $176.

Costs 45 Cents Daily to Feed Horse.

Exclusive of grass and stalk pasture, the average ration per horse consisted of 1.3 tons of hay, 1.2 tons of straw, 0.2 acre of stover, 37.8 bushels of corn, and 22.8 bushels of oats. The total cost of feed per head was $134. Based on present prices (March, 1921), the cost of feed per head would be about $90.

An average cost per day of horse labor for the year of the survey was $2.43. Based on present prices the cost on these farms would be not far from $1.50 per day.

The average first cost of the two-plow tractors was $972, of the three-plow tractors $1,354, and of all tractors $1,140. The average amount spent for equipment, mostly plows and discs, for use with tractors was about $340. The average value of the horse-drawn implements disposed of after the purchase of the tractors was $12.

The average life of these tractors is estimated by their owners to be 6.7 years. The annual depreciation of the two-plow tractors amounted to $161, and of the three-plow $217. The annual cost of repairs, including the value of the owner's time spent in repairing the tractors, was $39 for both the two-plow and three-plow sizes.

The fuel consumption per day for the two-plow tractors varied from about 18 gallons for full plowing to about 11 gallons for drawing the hay loader. For the three-plow tractors it varied from 23 gallons for plowing to 15 gallons for drawing the hay loader. The two-plow tractors covered 6.6 acres per day in plowing and three-plow machines 8.6 acres. The amount of fuel required per acre by the two sizes was practically the same, 2.8 gallons for the two-plow and 2.7 gallons for the three-plow tractors.

Difference in Plowing Costs.

The average cost per acre of power for the plowing done with two-plow tractors was about $2 and with the three-plow about $2.50. The cost of power for the plowing done with horses on these farms was about $2.90 per acre. Based on the present costs of keeping workstock, the cost of power for plowing with horses would be about $1.87 per acre. For most of the other operations the cost of power when furnished by horses was slightly less than when furnished by tractors. The cost per acre of power for disking with tractors was $0.67, with horses, $0.64; for cutting grain with tractors, $0.67; with horses, $0.59. These figures represent the cost of power only, and do not include either the cost of man labor, or that of the implements used.

The average cost per day of two-plow tractors for drawbar work on the home farm was about $12.45, and of three-plow tractors about $17.75.

The total cost of power furnished by the tractors for drawbar work at home during the year averaged $341. This drawbar work on the home farm constituted 76 per cent of the total work done by the tractors, and only 76 per cent of the total annual charge for depreciation, repairs, and interest on investment, is included in it.

Tractor Reduces Number of Workstock Needed.

On the 172 farms where there had been no change in average the number of workstock had been reduced by 2.2 head, an average reduction of 20 per cent. Forty-four of these 172 men had not reduced the number of workstock, 62 had disposed of one or two head, 43 had disposed of three or four head, and 23 of more than four head.

On these 172 farms one horse had been kept for each 28 acres (total acres, not crop acres) before purchase of tractors, and at the time of the survey there was one horse for each 37.7 acres. For all the farms there had been an average of one horse for each 27.6 acres before purchase of tractors, and there was one for each 37.9 acres at the time of the investigation. On the farms where there had been no change in average there had been one horse for each 21.5 crop acres before the purchase of tractors, and there was one for each 29 crop acres at the time of the investigation.

Operating Costs May Be Reduced.

There were great variations on individual farms in the cost of power furnished by both horses and tractors; and by more careful management many farmers could doubtless reduce this cost. Repair costs and fuel consumption of the tractors could in many cases have been reduced by more careful operation. The cost of keeping workstock could have been reduced on many farms by more careful feeding practices.

The average annual cost of power for the drawbar work on the home farm which was done with tractors was equal to the cost of keeping 2.1 head of workstock and this is practically the average number displaced per farm. On the basis of present prices, however, the cost of keeping workstock has declined considerably more than the cost of operating tractors.

Since, during the year covered by the investigation, the cost of power on the average farm was no greater than if it had all been furnished by horses, any saving in man labor costs, any gain due to getting a larger amount of work done in a given time, and any other advantages connected with the use of tractors which cannot be measured directly in dollars and cents, might be considered clear profit. It is doubtful, however, if such gains were great enough to balance the cost of operating the tractors on many of the farms where there was no change in average and where no workstock was displaced.

ROAD BUILDING

LARGE SUM FOR GOOD ROADS

Cost of Improvements Completed During Fiscal Year of 1920 Estimated at $80,000,000.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Federal aid highways constructed last year cost more than double the average amount annually for ten years in building the Panama canal. The cost of the work completed during the fiscal year of 1920, including the amount paid by the states, totaled approximately $80,000,000.

The construction of the canal is regarded the world over as a record-breaking achievement in respect to the dispatch with which it was carried out. The cost, however, was only $375,000,000, and a ten-year period was required to complete it, the average rate of expenditure being only $37,500,000 a year.

Comparing the magnitude of the federal-aid program with the entire highway program of the United States, the significance of Federal aid is readily seen. Federal money allotted to projects actually under construction at the end of the fiscal year 1920, namely, $103,925,094, was only slightly less than the total expenditure of $106,861,063 from state funds for highway construction during the calendar year 1919. In spite of untoward economic conditions, the amount of federal-aid business handled, as represented in 1920 by the number of projects, was approximately 25 per cent greater during the single year than all previous work done under the act since 1916.

HORSEPOWER ON GOOD ROADS

Figures Show How Hard Surfacing of Highways Facilitates Transportation to Market.

The value of hard surfaced roads in getting products to market or in taking goods from the cities to the farms is shown by these facts, according to the Oklahoma:

Suppose a load weighing 6,270 pounds must be taken to market. On four different types of roads, the following number of horses, it is estimated, would be required to pull the load, using the same wagon in each case:

On a loose sand or mud road, ten horses.

On a dirt road, five horses.

On a gravel road, two horses.

On a good macadam road, one horse.

To illustrate again: Suppose a farmer uses one horse to pull his products to market. On the various roads, with the same wagon, the horse can pull the following:

About 800 pounds on a muddy dirt road.

From 1,200 to 1,500 pounds on a smooth dirt road.

About 3,000 pounds on a good gravel road.

From 5,000 to 6,300 pounds on a good macadam road.

VARIOUS USES OF HIGHWAYS

Good Roads of Inestimable Value to Farmers, Doctors and Salesmen Who Rely on Motors.

Good roads have a bigger object than merely to pave the way to faster and more economical distribution of products. Good roads are of inestimable value to traveling salesmen, farmers and country doctors, who rely on their automobiles instead of steam trains. With the aid of motor-cars, many traveling salesmen have been able to cover wider territory and triple their number of calls, thereby reducing their selling costs considerably. If, while in the country, you have suffered a serious injury or had some member of the family ill, the prompt arrival of a doctor has, as you know, relieved you of hours of suffering and anxiety.

Work of Road Machines. The latest concrete machine will lay a concrete roadway 9 to 12 inches in thickness, covering 14,000 square feet, in a day.

Automobile Roads in Japan. First class narrow automobile roads are now replacing the old foot paths in Japan.

Farm Foundation Necessary. The finest paving material in the world will break down if it has no firm foundation.

Gives Tanlac Credit For Splendid Health

T. J. PARKER
4246 Juneau Street, Seattle, Wash.

"I used to think all the Tanlac testimonials were exaggerated, but I have felt thankful a thousand times I ever believed in it strong enough to give the medicine a trial," said T. J. Parker, well-known salesman for Gately's Clothing Store, residing at 4246 Juneau St., Seattle, Wash.

"Several years ago I commenced having periodic spells of sickness and a few months ago I had an attack that I thought would finish me. When I did finally get up, I was scarcely able to go. I had no appetite and what little I forced myself to eat caused so much gas on my stomach I could hardly get my breath.

"At night I was often so bloated I couldn't breathe while lying down and just had to sit up and struggle for air. At times I had cramps so bad I could hardly endure it.

Failure teaches us more than success.

If You Need a Medicine You Should Have the Best

Have you ever stopped to reason why it is that so many products that are extensively advertised, all at once drop out of sight and are soon forgotten? The reason is plain—the article did not fulfill the promises of the manufacturer. This applies more particularly to a medicine. A medicinal preparation that has real curative value almost sells itself, as like an endless chain system the remedy is recommended by those who have been benefited, to those who are in need of it. A prominent druggist says "Take for example Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, a preparation I have sold for many years and never hesitate to recommend, for in almost every case it shows excellent results, as many of my customers testify. No other kidney remedy has so large a sale."

According to sworn statements and verified testimony of thousands who have used the preparation, the success of Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root is due to the fact, so many people claim, that it fully almost every wish in overcoming kidney, liver and bladder ailments; corrects urinary troubles and neutralizes the uric acid which causes rheumatism. You may receive a sample bottle of Swamp-Root by Parcel Post. Address Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., and enclose ten cents; also mention this paper. THIS WOMAN'S EXPERIENCEBrings a Ray of Hope to Childless Women

Lowell, Mass. "I had anemia from the time I was sixteen years old and it did any house-cleaning or washing I would faint and be put to bed, my husband thinking every minute was my last. After reading your text-book for women I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and used the Sanative Wash, and have never felt better than I have the last two years. I can work, eat, sleep, and feel as strong as can be. Doctors told me I could never have children—I was too weak—but after taking Vegetable Compound it strengthened me so I gave birth to an eight pound boy. I was well all the time, and all my work up to the last day, and had a natural birth. Everybody who knew me was surprised, and when they ask me what made me strong I tell them with great pleasure, 'I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and never felt better in my life.' Use this text-book monial at any time." Mrs. ELIZABETH SMART, 142 W. Sixth St., Lowell, Mass. This experience of Mrs. Smart is surely a strong recommendation for Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. It is only one of a great many similar cases.

Women who pain should never shed tears.

Find the Cause!

It isn't right to drag along feeling miserable—half sick. Find out what is making you feel so badly and try to correct it. Perhaps your kidneys are causing that throbbing backache or those sharp, stabbing pains. You may have morning lameness, too, headaches, dizzy spells and irregular kidney action. Use Doan's Kidney Pills. They have helped thousands of ailing folks. Ask your neighbor!

A Michigan Case
Wm. Beutling, 810 E. Foster St., East-Lansing, Mich., says:
"I had kidney trouble and my back was aching and lame. When these pains shot across my back they nearly pulled me down. Most of the time I could hardly stoop over. My back was so sore, my kidneys were weak and acted irregularly. A friend recommended Doan's Kidney Pills and a few boxes cured me."

Caution to Cure Rheumatism.
There is a superstition hallow prevailing among some southerners of America who believe in the efficacy of dried codfish for rheumatism. In some of the markets they are sold, and find numerous buyers. The cod is full of electricity, and according to the fish dealers, the electricity is not lost in the preparation of the skin.
If one of these skins is wrapped round the ankle, knee, or other joint of a person affected with rheumatism, a cure, it is claimed, is quickly effected.

Changing Color of Birds.
The color of birds may be changed to white by keeping them in a white room, surrounded by white objects and attended by persons dressed in white, says a naturalist. However, the third or fourth generation is necessary before the bird's feathers are all white.

To Clean Jewelry.
One teaspoonful of ammonia in a teacupful of water makes a good cleaning fluid for gold or silver jewelry.

An Adventure Romance

GEORGE AGNEW CHAMBERLAIN

COPYRIGHT THE BOBBIS-MERRILL COMPANY

Her voice came back to him from very close as though her face had been pressed to the glass in an effort to make him out. "At the corner of the Avenue and East Ninth street."

Ten minutes later he drew up his cab at the appointed spot and reached back to throw open the door, but kept his foot on the clutch release, leaving the gears in mesh, first speed ahead.

All his precautions were in vain. As he opened the cab door his coat sleeve was seized in a very determined grip and drawn inward, catching his elbow in a jiu-jitsu leverage that left him the Hobson's choice of either getting out and facing his captor or listening to his arm break. He chose to get down from his seat quickly.

"Well, Bobby," murmured Miss Van T.

Mr. Randolph attempted no evasion; he handed the lady to the curb and guided her gently toward her own door and up the high steps. "Madge," he said, "you fought a great fight to-night and when you had won you felt sorry for Tremont and surrendered. You were swept too high on the wave of the best that is in you. Promise me that you won't forget that you have won. Promise me that you will wait and take Tremont, all of him, with honor."

"What do you mean? What did you hear?" cried Miss Van T. angrily, her pale face suddenly flushing.

"From the start of the ride to the finish I heard every word," declared Mr. Randolph frankly, "and more."

"And more?" repeated the hard-pressed girl. "What do you mean by more?" She still tried to browbeat him, but remembering one incredibly long kiss, her eyes fell in the unequal battle with Bobby's and attempted to create diversion by staring at his gartered legs and heavily booted feet.

"Look up, Madge. Look at me," said Mr. Randolph and waited patiently until first her long lashes fluttered and then her lovely eyes swept slowly up to his face. "That's it," he continued as their looks met and locked. "Let's hold that so we can't lie."

"Why should I lie if you really heard everything?" asked Miss Van T., and suddenly smiled.

"Madge, you little devil," said Mr. Randolph, suppressing an impulse to shake her. "Can you think of what you've been doing and laughing?"

"Yes, I can, just now," said Miss Van T., in little gasping phrases that to a man, especially one of Mr. Randolph's blood nature, carried only their face value in words, but which to any woman would have read as plainly as the red-weather signal.

"Look out for showers of tears followed by storm."

"Well," said Mr. Randolph solemnly. "If you really don't realize just where you have been, let me tell you. First you flew high into clean air and you took Tremont with you. You were possessed of a vision and you made him see it, too, a mirage of those lifted places that are the altar of an illusion of perfect happiness, which could reason tell us we can't ever turn into reinforced concrete and plant in the yard, but which we must either forever hold as a vision or admit that love is a sordid and wingless thing."

Miss Van Teller's eyes fell from his frank gaze. Something seemed to crumple within her; she put her arms around Mr. Randolph's neck, clung to him, dropped her face against his shoulder and sobbed, not noisily, but as one who weeps to rest.

He held her close to him and went on, his face set as though to a duty. "Then what did you do? Because he hesitated, merely hesitated at the high door of adoration, you promptly slammed it and dropped plumb straight down like that traitor archangel Johnny out of heaven into the arms of hell."

"Bobby!" cried Miss Van T., throwing back her head and struggling to release herself. "How dare you say a thing like that? How dare you say here, anyway? I hate you. I don't know how I ever could have thought I loved you. I tell, but it was into Boycher's arms and I wish I was there right now." More so, convulsive ones, that shook the slim body in Mr. Randolph's embrace from twirlback shoulder to tired feet.

Least the reader be startled by what's coming next it will do well to remind him that this poignant scene was staged at three o'clock in the morning on the high stool of the Van Teller residence in East Ninth street and never left the perimeter of the door-mat which in itself presented an almost feminine contradiction, in that it bore, down in red on its face, the word "Welcome," but was nevertheless padlocked and chained to the iron railing.

Even as Miss Van Teller was sobbing her heart out and Mr. Randolph was standing in the bewilderment of one who knows he has not only taken the wrong turning but placed both his feet in a beartrap, a thick, heavy, unaccountable voice arose from the foot of the steps.

"Here! Youse! Break away an' come along of me."

Memories of a mischievous boyhood swarmed to Mr. Randolph's mind, recollections of those days when, as chief of the Madison Square gang, his ears had tingled to the cry of "Cheese! It de cop! We're plucked, fellows!" A cold sweat came out upon his brow; he slowly relaxed his grip on Miss Van T's person and whispered tremulously to her to keep her nerve but hand him her latchkey.

Over his shoulder he said with forced calm. "On what charge, officer?"

"Same old dope," replied the policeman phlegmatically; "drunken, disorderly. Come along, now, or I'll want you to climb them steps so's we can all roll down together."

Turning that speech Mr. Randolph made a lucky shot at the keyhole, stealthily turned the lock and opened the door. "The way's clear, Madge," he whispered. "Go it."

"Oh, is it, Bobby, you dear," cried Miss Van T. in a stage whisper that could be heard across the street. "I didn't mean it, really, what I said about hating you. But I do love Boycher, Bobby, and I'll—I'll—"

"For heaven's sake, Madge," groaned Mr. Randolph, hearing sounds as of a bear starting to swarm a tree. "Keep all that till New Year's."

"It was just going to say," continued Miss Van T., breathlessly but with a cold eye fixed on the cumbrous shud-

"Break Away an' Come Along of Me."

ow coming up the steps. "That'll I'll owe to you, Bobby. I'll owe it to you. D'you understand?"

"Sure," lied Mr. Randolph as he pushed her firmly through the door, then caught his knob, slammed it shut and turned to meet Nemesis. "Hello, Flahabarty!"

The huge policeman stopped his ponderous but sure progression and stared long and suspiciously into Mr. Randolph's face. Finally he gave a grunt of recognition. "Slim," he said to himself aloud as though somewhere within his vast bulk there were a separate monitor that had to be tipped off to the situation. "Slim Hervey."

"Sure," said Mr. Randolph, leading the way toward his wagon. "Who else did you think it was at this time o' night?"

"How did I know," demanded Mr. Flahabarty gruffly but not unpleasantly for him, "as you had taken on de liveries o' fancy dress-goods on top o' your regular line?"

He breathed heavily and allowed his eyes to protrude farther than usual in search of a thought which he sensed in the near distance. "I tell you, Slim," he finally continued, "I don't know what this burg is a-comin' to. Why, even the street kind used to have a man to take 'em home, but this here was a bit o' high-flyin' duff—me, I could see that—an' they had to give it to a cab!"

"Forget it," said Bobby nervously. "All I says," continued Mr. Flahabarty, "is thank God both o' my girls is married to hairy men that can an' does lick the stuffin' outen 'em."

"Well, here we are," said Mr. Randolph as he stooped to turn her over. From his seat behind the wheel he began to breathe more easily and leaned out to study the face of his friend, the officer, to make sure that therein was no grudge.

"Cheer up, Jim," he said not quite reassured. "Forget it."

"I'll try," said Mr. Flahabarty dubiously. "But it'll come hard, hein' the first time I ever seen a thing like that. She sure give you a tussle, Slim?"

PART III.

Maid's Adventure.

Take a young girl of about twenty who, in her childhood, was pampered of fortune in money, position, good breeding, and pets, turn her loose on the world at the age of ten with no prop but a faithful, sickly and destitute old nurse, kill off the nurse a couple of years later, let the girl fend for herself as scullery-maid and what not through the uninteresting stage that precedes the sudden bloom of unexpected beauty, give her a long succession of jobs secured "on her looks" and lost because she wouldn't, lead her up to the crowded portal of despair and the long-drawn-out surrender; then snatch her suddenly back from destruction, feed her, give her the sole freedom for a night of Mr. Robert Hervey Randolph's comfortable apartment and—what will she do? The answer is easy. She will find the bath and turn on the hot water.

That was the very first thing that Miss Imogene Pamela Thornton did after she had finished spying from the window on the movements of what she supposed was Mr. Randolph and what, in reality, was Mr. Patrick O'Reilly in Mr. Randolph's best top-hat, best suit of evening clothes and overcoat, best gray silk muffler, price twenty-two dollars, and best patent-leather shoes—the last a very tight fit which made the revamped gentleman's gait a cross between that of a chicken on a hot stove and a drunk on his reluctant way home.

Even the unsuspecting Miss Thornton was puzzled by that halting locomotion in connection with what she knew of Mr. Randolph, but she added it, two and two, with the mysterious twenty minutes spent by that gentleman and the driver in the recesses of the cab, apparently to settle a difference in ideas as to the value of a waiting taxi, and decided that poor Mr. Randolph must have issued from the interview in a semi-crippled state.

She herself was too excited to let pity altogether absorb her. Without waiting for either the tortured wayfarer or the taxi to get quite out of sight, she dropped the window curtain and turned to possess herself of her world of comfort for a night. A starved instinct led her straight to the luxuriously appointed bathroom. As previously intimated, she turned on the hot water and clasped her hands ecstatically as she watched its crystalline surge and imagined she could smell the opalescent steam.

But not for long was she inactive. Having surrendered to circumstance to the extent of promising to stay in the flat until ten the following morning, she decided to do the job wholeheartedly, for Imogene Pamela was one of those lucky and fated young women who can never give themselves by halves. If happiness so much as showed its nose, it was her nature to tackle blindly for its waist and go to the mat for the immediate present.

Consequently, let not her modesty be misjudged when it is related that, in the short time it took to fill the bath, she accomplished the following: looted out Mr. Randolph's best silk pajamas, found his softest bathrobe, filled a hot-water bottle and slipped it far down between the two cold linen sheets of his big bed. Continuing at this rate of achievement, it may be imagined that in ten minutes more the young lady, having bathed, was curled up and sound asleep. Not on your life!

Item: It took her twenty-one minutes by the clock to scrub out the memory of the scummy zinc bathtubs of many years. Item: Twenty more minutes to wash her hair. Item: Half an hour more to scrub her underwear and stockings. Assorted items: Various pauses during which she shamelessly looked at herself in a full-length mirror of such pure reflecting qualities as had not crossed her path since England was a pup. After that, a long, entrancing item, called "drying her hair."

Did you blame her, three lines back, in your heart for her frequent inspections of self in the mirror? If you did, look at her now! Mr. Randolph's bathrobe is billowed at her waist and tied tight to keep it from trailing on the floor; for almost a like reason, its sleeves are rolled up above her elbows. It is open in a V at the neck, showing the adolescent curve of a virgin but much excited bosom.

With a woolly towel in both hands, she plants herself before the staid old looking-glass and gives it such a treat as it has never before savored in its sixty-two years of service to the Randolph family. Rub, rub, rub with the towel. Her cheeks grow pink and plumper, her eyes round and rounder. They twinkle and smile, and once, when she made a little face at herself, she laughed out loud. Her hair slowly wakes from its striding damps until it, too, bursts into a sort of light and curly merriment. Pamela puffs out her cheeks and blows at its reflection.

Arbitrage.
This is a term applied to transactions taking advantage of difference in price in different markets for the same articles. At the same time that the trader buys in the cheaper market he sells in the dearer. The margin between the two prices must be more than the cost of exchange in order to show a profit. Arbitrage transactions are usually in bullion or coin, bills and exchanges or stocks and bonds.

Why Castoria?

YEARS ago Castor Oil, Paregoric, Drops and Soothing Syrups were the remedies in common use for Infants and Children; Castor Oil so nauseating as to be almost impossible and the others all containing Opium in one form or another, but so disguised as to make them pleasant to the taste, yet really to stupify the child and give the appearance of relief from pain.

It required years of research to find a purely vegetable combination that would take the place of these disagreeable, unpleasant and vicious remedies that from habit had become almost universal. This was the inception of, and the reason for, the introduction of Fletcher's Castoria, and for over 30 years it has proven its worth, received the praise of Physicians everywhere and become a household word among mothers.

A remedy ESPECIALLY prepared for Infants and Children and no mother would think of giving to her baby a remedy that she would use for herself, without consulting a physician.

LINER "ADS" EFFECTIVE.

One of the most effective forms of advertising is in the "liner" or classified column where a n investment of a few cents is certain to give prompt results. Tribune liner ads are always run under the heading, "Wants, For Sale, To Rent." In the same position on the front page where they are easy to find and invariably catch the eye.
Only five cents the line for the first insertion, 2 1/2 cents the line for each subsequent insertion. Next time you want to buy something, or have something for sale or rent, try a Tribune

How MICHELIN has overcome the commonest causes of tire trouble

Full-Size Tires
for Light Cars

Many small tires are made on a lighter scale than are the larger sizes—the purpose being to turn out a product for factory equipment or for the buyer who is guided by price only.

Small-size Michelins, on the other hand, are made proportionately just as sturdy as the big sizes. The 30 x 3 1/2 Michelin, for instance, is over 3/4 of an inch thick through tread and carcass.

The result is unequalled economy for the user. Try Michelins and prove it for yourself.
