American Legion Has Received Supply: World War Veterans Should Confer With Legion Men.

Application blanks for the state World War bonus have been received by Clara H. Fenn, commander of the American Legion, for distribution to ex-service men in this vicinity, and he has arranged to have them filled out without any expense to the applicants.

These applications are to be mailed to the adjutant general's office at Lansing. They consist of two sheets, printed on each side. The first page contains the necessary details for the application, to be filled out by the applicant. At the bottom of the sheet is a blank to be filled in by a notary public. The second page is reserved for entries by the adjutant general and auditor general.

The third page is for the first part of the honorable discharge which is to be copied in. The fourth page is for a copy of the second page of the discharge. The discharge has to be certified by a notary public or any officer authorized to make oaths. A seal is required if sworn to outside of Michigan. James McCarthy has volunteered to do the notary public work for local applicants, without charge.

Veterans of the World war should beware of so-called agents who offer their services in presenting claims for bonus money. If help is needed in filling applications ex-service men should consult American Legion officers, only.

NEAR DEATH IN CISTERN

Little Daughter Mr. and Mrs. Charles Heller Narrowly Escaped Drowning Yesterday Afternoon.

Eleanor Heller, the little daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Heller, 310 South street, narrowly escaped drowning in a cistern yesterday afternoon about five o'clock.

The little girl and several other children were playing in the rear of the Heller home and removed the wooden cover of an outside cistern. An old carpet lay over the manhole and it is said little Eleanor tried to jump over it, but landed squarely in the middle of the carpet and fell through into the water.

Mrs. Heller was up-stairs in the house and one of the little children went in search of her. As soon as the mother realized what had happened, her frantic cries for help brought several of the neighbors, including Mrs. Jay Tuttle and her son Leo, 13 years old. Mrs. Tuttle seized her son by the heels and lowered him down into the cistern so that he was able to catch hold of little Eleanor and then Mrs. Tuttle dragged both children back to safety. It was a plucky rescue, and came just in the nick of time.

The cistern is unusually deep and contained six or seven feet of water.

"GRADS" AND "JOBS."

Graduates of universities, high schools and similar educational institutions this year are confronted with a new era—a readjustment period when jobs (notice we say jobs, not positions) of any kind are at a premium, and we strongly opine that there will be more "grads" this year than "jobs," at least the kind of jobs which appeal to most young graduates.

In conversation with a young man who will graduate from the University of Michigan this month, he confided that he didn't know what he would do after graduation. He had applied for several jobs; but so had many others. At least one job for which he had aspired he knew had been secured by a fellow student who had more practical experience. This young man is an honor student, and an all around, reliable sort of chap—a better than average type of student we would say. His experience bears out the opinion that "jobs" are going to be scarce.

For several years past conditions have been such that anyone could get a job. Five dollars a day jobs were common. Mere school boys were able to step from classroom to factory and get $8 or $9 a day. But that day is past. Merit, ability, education and experience will have their inning now. The fellows who have ability and education will first have to land their job, but if they are of the right kind they will soon be able to prove their worth, and then in due time recognition, promotion and increased salary will follow.

The kind of job doesn't matter so much providing it is with a good, reliable concern. The real point is to get a place at the bottom of the ladder—get your foot on a rung and then climb. How fast you may climb depends upon many things, but no one ever climbed who didn't first make a start at the bottom. Get your "job" first—never mind about the salary—that will come along all right in time.

Success is a sort of deferred payment proposition—you make your sacrifices now and draw your success dividends later. In other words, "Success means sacrifice," which is a pretty good motto for a young man to adopt.

CLOSE CALL FOR BOY.

Leo Maloney, son of the late Tim Maloney, narrowly escaped serious injuries Friday when he fell from a motor truck on West Middle street, striking on his head. ## TEACHERS' RETIREMENT FUND.

Contrary to early newspaper reports, the present Teachers' Retirement Fund Law remains unchanged, and is operative in all of its provisions as in past years. The following facts are published upon the suggestion of Evan Essery, county commissioner of schools:

There are now 246 teachers who have been retired, $367.11 being the average annuity. Twenty-seven of these have been given annuities because of total disability.

The average teaching experience of the annuitants (not including disability cases) is 31 years. The oldest annuitant is 83 years of age, and has taught over 36 years. Teachers contributed $133,690.66 during 1919-1920, the amounts varying from $2.25 up to $20.00, according to the experience of the teacher and salary received.

The members of the Retirement Fund Board serve without compensation.

The next quarterly meeting of the Board will be held June 15th, 1921, at which time a large number of applications for retirement will be considered.

GOVERNOR SENDS SECOND MESSAGE

URGES LEGISLATORS TO EARLY ACTION ON SOLDIERS' BONUS MEASURE.

57 SUBJECTS UP FOR ACTION

Senate Delays Vote on House Resolution Setting June 8 As Adjournment Date.

Lansing—In a second message to the special session of the legislature, Governor Grosbeck has presented 20 additional subjects for consideration, this bringing the total of issues which may be discussed to 57. It is doubtful whether adjournment will be taken this week although the house has passed a resolution setting June 8 as adjournment date. This will likely be held up in the senate committee until the important measures have been acted upon.

Differences on the Dacey-Strom soldiers' bonus bill have delayed passage of the measure, for which the extra session was primarily called. The house passed it in amended form which provides that only one third of the $30,000,000 bond issue necessary for payment of the bonus run 30 years, another third 20 years, and the balance only ten years. This would save the state $15,000,000 in interest. It was claimed in the house. It would mean though the reprinting of the bonds and a delay in payment of the bonus.

The Governor in his second message stated, "It is imperative the bonus money be available July 1, and anything which jeopardizes this plan should be avoided. He also took the stand that the belief that the short term bonds would save the state interest money was unfounded, and acting on these instructions, it is possible that an early agreement between the two houses will be reached.

Most of the additional subjects mentioned in the governor's second message were submitted in bills and resolutions:

The governor asks for— Additional appropriation for the Michigan Soldiers' home, creation of a Michigan-Wisconsin boundary commission, appropriations for the Ionia State hospital, Mackinac Island Park commission, Michigan College of Mines, $90,000 for new cell block at Marquette, supplemental deficiency bill, additional appropriations for departments and institutions.

Legislation requested by members of the legislature is: Regulation of railroad crossings, construction and maintenance of drains, appointment and duties of county agents, corrections of errors in several enrolled acts of the regular session, and banking laws.

Pueblo, Colo.—It is estimated that from 100 to 600 people lost their lives, and property damage of about $10,000,000 resulted from the flood.

Troops have been put in charge of the city by Governor Oliver H. Shoup. Along railroad tracks from Colorado Springs to Pueblo are scenes of desolation and disaster, fences down, great trees uprooted, deep gullies torn in the fields by the rushing torrents.

Charles Bradman, a refugee just in from Pueblo, says that while the property loss and the number of dead may be over-estimated, hundreds have been lost who never will be found. They are buried in deep mud and wreckage or washed by the rapid stream far south.

"I was in a rooming house in the inundated district," he said. "We got sufficient warning, but failed to heed it. A wall of water several feet high struck the building, carrying it off its foundation. The water soon reached the second story. Several roomers were lost. I was rescued from the roof in a row boat. I saw several houses wrecked and I am sure 50 lives were lost in my own observation. I am glad to escape with my life. I lost about everything else."

Ivor Daley and Wilbur F. Cannon, of Colorado Springs, comfortably located in a building above the flooded district, spent all Friday night in watching flood and fire do deadly work in Pueblo. Their statement is that the Arkansas river leaped its banks at 7 o'clock in the evening. Autoists caught in their cars in the streets abandoned them and the cars knocked against each other, bumped into plate glass windows, turning over and over until at length broken to pieces. Late Friday night and early Saturday fires were more frequent, they said, caused by unslacked lime and oil and augmented by drifting houses, lumber and other combustibles. At 2 o'clock Saturday morning it was possible to read a newspaper by light of these fires.

Daley said the night in Pueblo was a night of terror.

"We saw bodies of the drowned taken temporarily to the court house, Congress hotel and other buildings, nine out of 10 covered with mud and debris beyond recognition.

"One rescuer told us 18 bodies were picked up in 20 minutes. It is impossible to tell the number of the dead. It may be 500 and it may be 3,000.

"A man 75 years old roosted in a tree all night in the northern part of the town. He said he had seen 100 people perish from his vantage of observation.

"Another man saw 50 or more Mexicans dashed away in their adobe houses near the river."

GIRL FLIER KILLED IN FALL

Miss Bromwell, Loop the Loop Record Holder, Falls at Mineola.

Mineola, N. Y.—Miss Laura Bromwell, holder of the loop the loop record for women, and one of the best known women pilots in the world, was killed at Mitchell field Sunday afternoon.

Miss Bromwell was flying at an altitude of about 1,000 feet when the accident happened. She had just completed one loop and was about to make a second when something went wrong with the plane and it crashed to the ground.

Miss Bromwell, whose home was in Cheltenham, O., was 23 years old.

ONE KILLED, 2 HURT IN SMASH

Automobile Turns Over When Driver Loses Control.

Muskegon, Mich.—Orrie Thompson, 32 years old, was killed and three others were injured, two probably fatally, Sunday, when Thompson lost control of his automobile and it turned over.

Mr. and Mrs. Loren Adams were brought to a hospital here where it is said they might not recover. James Master, another member of the party, was slightly injured. The four-month-old baby of Mr. and Mrs. Adams was found unharmed in the wreckage.

Argentine Strikes Serious.

Buenos Aires—The labor situation in Buenos Aires is growing more critical. Several unions, including those of the shoemakers and flour mill operatives, have joined the strike of chauffeurs, bringing the total number of strikers to more than 30,000. The Maritime Federation has decreed a general strike to tie up all maritime traffic under the Argentine flag. Walters in numerous restaurants walked out, as did the operatives in some workshops of the tramway lines.

The SANDMAN STORY

THE GUINEA HENS

IT WAS four days since the Guinea Hens had been placed in the barn yard and the animals were still puzzling over their queer looks.

"Who ever heard of hens with faces like those?" said old Yellow Hen. "So white and those fiery red ears. I think they look frightful."

Just then old Rooster came strutting across the yard as fast as his dignity would allow. "I have some news for you," he said, pausing for breath.

"There is a circus down the road," he said, "and I heard the farmer's boy

"WHO SAID THOSE NEW HENS WERE CLOWNS?"

say that he saw queer things down there, and one was a clown with a white face painted with red in places. "Oh, those new hens look just like that," broke in old Yellow Hen. "Now we know what they are. They are clowns and came from the circus."

"They better go back where they came from," said old Yellow Hen, "for no hen in this barnyard will have anything to do with them."

That night when the hens went to bed it was very, very dark, and those that had little ones cuddled them close under their wings.

The new hens—they were Guinea Hens, which, of course, you have guessed before this—went to bed away up in the branches of the nearby trees as they always do, and if anything disturbs them they quickly cry with

HOW DO YOU SAY IT?

Common Errors in English and How to Avoid Them

THE USE OF "ANY."

"I KNOW the family well, and the youngest son is brighter than any of them." This sentence is incorrect and should be changed to "I know the family well, and the youngest son is brighter than any other one of them," or "brighter than any of the rest of the family."

When the sentence first quoted is analyzed—that is, taken apart and examined critically—it seems to say that the youngest son is brighter than himself; for, of course, he is one, or any one, of the family. Such a statement is absurd, and to express clearly the meaning of the writer or speaker it is necessary to insert some word or words (such as "other" or "the rest of") to show the comparison between the member of the family under discussion and the rest of the family.

If you say, "The blacksmith is stronger than any man," you imply that the blacksmith is not a man. Say, therefore, "The blacksmith is stronger than any other man."

ANITA

THE lovely Spanish favorite Anna has won almost as prominent a place among the feminine names of our country as the equally exotic Junonia which followed the song of that title. Anita, however, is much more resident of North America than its prototype. For Anita, signifying grace, has an origin parallel with Anne.

About the time that the mother of Samuel was recorded in Biblical chronicles as the original Hannah, the etymological way was being paved for the entrance of Anita through the gateway of Spain. Byzantium, that kingdom of royal splendor, paid homage to a St. Anna who is thought to be a flare-back to the great Roman deity. The daughter of Emperor Basil, calling herself Anna, married Grand Prince of Muscovy and carried the name into Russia, where it was subjected to the Slavic influence and issued forth in various forms of diminutives and undernames, one being the pretty Amer, which still has vogue there. The susceptibility of the name to the influence of all tongues probably brought it to the attention of soft-syllabled Spain, who adopted it, cut off the "r" and changed the "m" to "n" for euphony's sake, making the charming Ann, which has great popularity there. But Spain no sooner adopts a name than it must have a diminutive, after the Latin fashion—hence Anita.

Italy took Anita and called her Ninetta, which was later subjected to a diminutive process and issued forth as Nanna.

Anita's tallmantle gem is the cat's eye, which has greater mystic qualities than those of any other jewel. It has the power of hypnotism, and is said to be a charm against evil spirits. It is a sacred stone in India where its dazzling white light shot with brilliant green hues is with uncanny powers. Thursday is Anita's lucky day and 5 her lucky number. The polka-dot is her flower.

One of the most popular of the American "movie" stars is Pearl White. She is so well known to the patrons of the picture houses that little or nothing could be said about her that is not already known. Miss White recently sailed for England and posed this picture on the railing of the steamship.

CALLING CARDS

Nothing is so difficult but that it may be found out by seeking.—Terrence

A WRITER on social usage has called attention to the fact that in the countries of Europe the etiquette of the calling card is clearly laid down by social law; in this country it is left in the air.

If there were but a congress of custom where some one could go and introduce a law setting forth the occasions on which the calling card can with propriety be used and the occasions on which it cannot be used how much confusion could be avoided! As this cannot be done, we can only do our best with our calling cards, and trust to luck and instinctive good taste that we will not break such laws as there are.

In some sections of the country it is customary for newcomers to make the first call, and as cards are the emblems of calls the rules regulating them can be grouped with those regulating card usage. In most sections it is customary for the old resident to make the "first call." In still other places it is usual for a newcomer to send out at-home cards to such persons as she chances to meet and desires to become acquainted with.

It is usual, however, in most places, for the old resident to make the first call. It is essential for the person called on to return this first call or else run the risk of being called rude.

The newcomer who waits for others to call on her, no matter where she is, will do better than the newcomer who makes first calls where this is not customary.

Here are a few hints which should be observed in the etiquette of card usage:

Always call or leave cards within ten days after a dinner, reception or dance invitation, whether it is accepted or declined.

Call or leave cards after teas, also, unless you are sure that custom of the neighborhood exempts you from this duty. In some of the big cities, among many groups, cards are not required after teas. But an unnecessary call or card can never be objected to.

Send cards when it is impossible to attend a tea for which cards have been sent.

Leave cards or call at the home of the mother of a bride whose wedding or reception at the house you have attended.

Married women leave a card of their own for each woman of the household, a card of their husband for each married woman and another for her husband. Young men or bachelors of any age leave cards for the daughter of the household and for her mother.

Here are five "don'ts" about cards: Never regret an invitation on a card. An invitation sent on a card, if it demands an answer, should be answered by note.

Never leave a card without making a call on any one's day at home.

Do not return first calls by card alone unless the hostess is not home when you call. In that case a card may be left.

Never have anything put on the card but the name, address and, if wanted, the day at home.

Roger Bacon, a monk, in the Thirteenth century, while experimenting on this subject, happened to use pure instead of impure saltpetre, with the result that he nearly wrecked the place, but from this discovery came our modern powders and high explosives.

CONGRESSMEN FORM BODY

Veterans' Association Is Launched by Men Who Served in Various Wars.

The old spirit of the A. E. F. and of America's war-time army, navy and marine corps broke out in the halls of the nation's congress in Washington the other day, when veterans of the World War who are members of congress, joined by members who served in the Civil and Spanish-American wars, held a big meeting and a regular foot at the University club and formed "The Veterans' Association of the Sixty-Seventh Congress."

Two members of the United States senate and 22 members of the house of representatives attended the dinner gathering which resulted in the organization of the congressional veterans into a body. Twenty-six of the members of the house of representatives in attendance were veterans of the World War and members of the American Legion. Representative Henry Z. Osborn of the Tenth California district, a veteran of the civil war, acted as toastmaster. He felicitated the country upon the formation of the American Legion, saying that the "vets of '61" were willing and proud to turn the reins of patriotic endeavor over to the "boys of '17."

In addition to choosing Congressman Roy G. Fitzgerald of Ohio, president of the association, and Congressman John E. Rankin of Mississippi as secretary, and setting away with an elaborate course dinner billed in the still familiar doughboy French of "over there," the congressional veterans listened to a careful explanation of the legislative program of the American Legion in congress made by John Thomas Taylor, vice chairman of the national legislative committee of the Legion, who was a special guest of honor and the only person present not a member of congress. Mr. Taylor went into detailed advocacy of the consolidation, vocational training, hospitalization and emergency officer retirement bills proposed by the Legion.

WAR ON LEGION BACHELORS

Women's Auxiliary of Sunflower State Issues Ultimatum to Unmarried Ex-Service Fellows.

War on bachelors has been declared in Kansas. Women of the Sunflower State contend that unmarried men can't get along without them.

In furtherance of the fight, Miss McCoy of Topeka, Department secretary of the Women's Auxiliary of the American Legion is spreading broadest battle cry: "No bachelor posess in Kansas." Every group of Legionnaires is to have an Auxiliary, according to Auxiliary officials.

"Who else can give you fine home cooking with your banquets? Who else can straighten up the club house and give it a homelike appearance? Who knows more about service than the women?" the propaganda reads. Legion prisoners captured in the Campaign are being treated to fried chicken, pies, cakes and dainties and patchings.

Miss McCoy entered the business world as an assistant in a Kansas bank. During the war she stepped into a position vacated by a soldier, held it throughout hostilities and gave it back to the doughboy when he came home.

Legion Activities in China.

American Legion activities in China are brisk, according to a letter which Frank E. Samuel, adjutant of the Kansas department, received from Dr. Andrew Woods, who is now with the Rockefeller foundation in Peking. Doctor Woods served as a neuro-psychiatric specialist in a Bordeaux hospital during the war. When Franklin D. Roosevelt, past commander of the Legion, stopped off at Peking, he assisted in the organization of a Legion post, which now boasts a membership of more than one hundred.

Lines to Be Remembered

If a man look sharply and attentively, he shall see Fortune; for though she be blind, she is not invisible.—Lord Bacon.

Kings Yacht in 30 Races.

London. King George has entered his racing yacht in 30 different British regattas this summer. The first of the yacht races will be held at Largs on the Clyde the middle of this month. It is likely that the king or the prince of Wales will be present at the Harwich regatta July 16 and 18 when the royal yacht, Britannia, will race Sir Thomas Lipton's Shamrock. The king's yacht will not participate in any foreign regattas according to the announcement.

Modish Loose Wraps

YOU may have a cape, or a coat that looks like a cape, or a coat with a cape back, and go forth with assurance that you are in the mode, no matter where you journey. Arrayed in these ingenious and graceful wraps, with their flowing lines, one may sail with confidence straight to Paris; for there one will join a goodly company of simple garments of like character—all more or less close kin to the cape. There are many of them with big, full sleeves and with vividly colorful linings; silks with a floral pattern, or wool sponge embroidered in contrasting colors and it happens that these linings are revealed by means of the loose or split sleeves and in other ways.

Wraps are developed in wool and in silk or fibre silk materials. Girdling, soft serge, homespun and a soft, loosely woven cloth that resembles it have made inroads upon the popularity of ducetyn and similar cloths among the women. The heavy crepe and knitted weaves in silk share favor with crepe de chine and satin, in the silks. Everything conspires to make this season of beautiful and dandified wraps. Long shawl collars and loose sleeves, or no sleeves, have a look of spring and touches of color in stitching or color in hemmings, emphasize this springtime flavor.

Two good examples of current styles. In wraps that are practical as well as handsome, are shown above. They are both developed in wool cloths; that at the left, in dark blue with beige lining in crepe and beige braid for trimming. A warm tan or taupe gray, or any of the fashionable colors might be chosen for the model at the right, embroidered in self color or in contrasting colors.

The cape pure and simple and the cape mixture must not be overlooked in reporting wraps for summer time. They hang usually from deep yokes and with considerable flare. A very handsome one in which light and dark gray homespun join forces has a deep yoke of the lighter gray, a long shawl collar of the dark gray and the body of the wrap cut in long bands of the light shade bordered with the darker.

Organdies Bloom Anew

WHEN they are working with organdie, or organdie in combination with other materials, designers are handling mediums that prove an inspiration to them. The endless variety in which they are turning out midsummer dresses is explained by the beauty of organdie and its adaptability. And this enchanting material has been presented this season in the plain weaves—in lace organdies and in embroidered and beaded patterns. It has been made up with ginghams and other cotton goods, with linens and other silks and in lovely color combinations of the plain weaves.

Organdie in one color was used for the pretty dress at the left of the two pictured here. It is very simple with plain underskirt, long tulle bodice with wide, hemstitched tucks and surplice waist with belted collar. The edges of the waist are piped, the belt taking the place of a girder and fastening at the side with an ornament. Pretty organdie flowers are used with frocks of this kind in tangents for the corsage.

The ways in which checked and checked ginghams have been made up with organdie are endless, the gingham, usually playing the role of foundation for an organdie overdress. But occasionally a designer uses gingham as a decoration on organdie, as when checked patterns intrigue her to cut out battlement borders or pointed borders of them, or to make headings. In the pretty frock at the right of the picture, gingham provides both the underskirt and bands for decorating bodice and apron of organdie. White organdie in this model appears with red and white gingham, but usually a colored organdie is used with gingham in a color and white, and is selected to match or tone in with the color. In nearly all these combinations, organdie is used for a wash but there are exceptions to these rules, as may be seen in the frock illustrated. These are informal and pretty dresses—within the reach of everyone and there is nothing that the season has to offer more charming or becoming.

"I don't understand." The reply came with a rush. "I didn't like your friends but I wanted you to have a young man—so I wished on the stars—for you."

"For me?" "Yes. But something is wrong. Eaten C. is just the one for you—and why he is paying attention to me—at my age! Aunt Emmy wrung her hands in deep distress. "Oh, what shall I do?"

Marjorie laughed aloud. "Dear Aunt Emmy," she said gently, "are you sure the stars were wrong?"

"Supposing," Marjorie's voice was almost a whisper, "supposing you leave me alone with Eaten the next time he calls. Perhaps you will find that he was meant for me, after all."

AUNTIE'S WISH

By GRACE CAMFIELD

"Wish I may, Wish I might. Have the wish I wish tonight." The slender, white-haired, little woman was very still as she solemnly repeated the old incantation and after it the wish, "I wish a young man!" Aunt Emmy had not intended to speak aloud, nor was she even aware that she had done so. And so intent was she that she did not hear the gasp of amazement from the other side of the room.

Since Marjorie retreated hastily to her own room to consider the amazing situation, Aunt Emmy, sixty if she was a day (thus Marjorie, with the unobscured cruelty of youth), and waiting a man! Why, she cried out! It was only with the greatest difficulty that Marjorie could secure her permission to go anywhere with a male escort.

"The old ducky dear!" sighed Marjorie to herself. "She has been everything in the world to me for years, and I have been only a selfish brute in return. If she wants a young man she shall certainly have one!"

In the early twilight of the next evening Marjorie again saw her aunt standing in the western window, repeating her wish to Venus. The north window by which Marjorie stood opened on a porch, and as she paused, wondering what to do, she heard a soft whisper from outside the window.

"Marjorie, can't you come out for a walk?" The girl slipped out of the room and met Eaten at the door.

"You mustn't ask me again," she said. "You know auntie doesn't like to have me go out with men."

Marjorie suddenly interrupted his halfhearted complaint.

"Eaten, did you hear what auntie was saying to the stars?" He flushed.

"Yes, I'm sorry. I didn't intend to."

"I'm glad you did," she said quickly. "Eaten, I love my Aunt Emmy, and if she wants a young man, she must have one."

Dinah Eaten perceived that he was about to be sacrificed on the altar of Marjorie's love, and felt still more sorry that he had overheard.

"The only way you can be my friend," she was saying, "is by being nice to Aunt Emmy."

"I'll be nice, but I won't make love," said the lad, rebelliously.

"Silly!" Marjorie flared up. "Of course you wouldn't act as you would wish—"

"You," he supplied.

"A girl your own age," she continued with heightened color. "But you can pay her a lot of attention, and make her feel that you care a lot for her."

"Say!" he leaned forward eagerly. "Would I have a better chance with you if—"

"Silly!" she scolded again. "You must do it just for Aunt Emmy's sake. It is just possible that the young man saw more in Marjorie's eyes than she cared to say, for his position was not so strong from the point on. Finally, though with some reluctance still, he yielded, and went away."

The next day, to Aunt Emmy's unbounded amazement, she received a box of American beauties by the early post.

"Who on earth—the lovely things—Eaten C.?" She read the card, her breath coming in soft gasps.

This was the first of her surprises, but it was by no means the last. Eaten had determined from the start that if he did this thing he would do it well, and Marjorie was obliged to admit that he responded nobly to her plea. Candy followed flowers, and calls followed the candy, until Aunt Emmy was overwhelmed. She treated Eaten at first with a very stiff courtesy, for she had not approved of him. However, as the young man continued his attentions, completely ignoring Marjorie, the old lady visibly changed her mind, and took him into favor.

Eaten's utter neglect of Marjorie was so marked that finally she began to feel a little plucked. Of course, everyone who knew Aunt Emmy, loved her to death, but he might admit that she had a niece!

It was Aunt Emmy who finally opened the subject.

"Marjorie," she said, "I have a confession to make, and I want your advice." Her niece was a little startled; she had thought confession her own prerogative.

"Do you believe in wishing on stars?" Aunt Emmy's tone was slightly abashed.

"Yes," promptly.

"Well, do you think a wish could ever go wrong?" Aunt Emmy was flushing painfully. Marjorie was puzzled.

"I don't understand." The reply came with a rush.

"I didn't like your friends but I wanted you to have a young man—so I wished on the stars—for you."

"For me?" "Yes. But something is wrong. Eaten C. is just the one for you—and why he is paying attention to me—at my age! Aunt Emmy wrung her hands in deep distress. "Oh, what shall I do?"

Marjorie laughed aloud. "Dear Aunt Emmy," she said gently, "are you sure the stars were wrong?"

"Supposing," Marjorie's voice was almost a whisper, "supposing you leave me alone with Eaten the next time he calls. Perhaps you will find that he was meant for me, after all."

KLING RYAN.

The marriage of Miss Gertrude Kling of Jackson and Mr. William H. Ryan, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Ryan, Sr., of Wayne, formerly of this village, took place Saturday morning, June 4th, in Wayne, Rev. Father Connors officiating. The bride wore a lovely dress of white satin over which was draped a heavy bridal veil, and the bridesmaid wore light blue satin and an orange hat to match.

After a short wedding trip Mr. and Mrs. Ryan will reside in Dearborn, where the groom is employed.

Mr. Ryan is a brother of Mrs. Delbert Denton of this place.

"$95 AN HOUR."

(From Inglish County News.)

If any reader of this has a million dollars which he would like to spend in a way to do the most good, we suggest that he devote it to an advertising campaign directed at boys and girls and their parents.

Teach them the value of going to school—staying in school.

Put the emphasis on the money-value of going to school, not because an increased earning capacity is necessarily the most important product of an education, but because money-value makes the strongest appeal.

We have before us an advertisement bearing the headline, "$95 an Hour." A former student of a correspondence school says every hour he spent with his course has been worth $95 to him.

The correspondence schools know how to advertise.

The writer vividly recalls a statement made by a teacher, more than twenty years ago, to this effect: "Every day you spend in school will be worth $5 to you later in life."

At that time we didn't understand the meaning, but we never forget the words and they stuck with us.

The United States Bureau of Education some time ago issued a bulletin bearing the title, "The Money-value of Education."

This bulletin contains these figures: With no schooling at all 31 persons out of five million attained distinction;

With elementary schooling $68 out of three million achieved a like level;

With a high-school education 1245 emerged out of a group of two million;

And with a college education 5,768 arrived at this point out of a group of one million.

Headache often results from constipation or a disordered condition of the stomach which may be corrected by taking a dose or two of Chamberlain's Tablets. Try it.
