FARMERS' COMMUNITY MARKET

Farmers from Oakland, Monroe, Macomb, Washtenaw, Wayne and Lapeer counties, with business men of Detroit, have put a committee to work to determine the advisability of establishing a community market in Detroit, this summer, in efforts to increase financial return to food producers for their products and lessen costs to consumers.

The committee is composed of George T. Hendrie, John F. O'Hara, B. A. Seymour of Detroit; R. G. Fottis, president of the Macomb county farm bureau; L. H. Kittland, president of the Monroe county farm bureau; and E. J. Verduyn, president of the Oakland county horticultural society. It is expected to make an early report for action.

The plan for a new marketing and distributing system for food in Detroit, as outlined by the agricultural division of the Detroit Board of Commerce, at a meeting of farmers and business men last week, calls for establishment of community markets on main arteries of travel into the city, several miles from downtown, which producers can reach easily. These markets, operated on a cost basis, would buy direct from the farmer and sell to consumers and retailers. These markets would be linked together through management from a central downtown storage and distributing depot. Hours of time spent by farmers now in selling their products and in hauling would be saved and minimized handlings of commodities would, it is contended, save much for the people of the city in prices of food.

Riemenschneider-McClure Wedding

Lovely in every detail was the wedding of Miss Hilda M. Riemenschneider to Mr. Marion W. McClure, which took place at 7:30 o'clock Tuesday evening, at the home of the bride's parents at Cavanaugh Lake, Wis. G. C. Nothdurf, of Bristol, Wisconsin, officiated, using the ring ceremony.

The ceremony took place before a screen of white, backed with ferns, with tall baskets of pink and white roses. Lohengrin's Bridal Chorus was played by Mrs. P. M. Drosanile as the party assembled. The bride's gown was of not embroidered silver over white satin. She carried a shower bouquet of opheelia roses. Miss Ora Miller was bridesmaid. She was crowned in pale pink organdy. For her flowers she carried an arm bouquet of pink roses. Walter Riemenschneider, brother of the bride, acted as groomsmen.

The bride's table was attractively decorated with a large bouquet of pink and white roses and pink candles, where covers were laid for sixteen at the wedding supper, which was served to about seventy guests immediately after the service. The heart-shaped bride's cake was an attractive feature, being decorated in pink and white and bearing the names of the bride and groom.

Mr. and Mrs. McClure left immediately for Ohio, where they will visit at several different points. They will be at home to friends, at 509 West Middle street, after July 15.

Bentley-Heim Wedding

The marriage of Miss Anna Bentley to Mr. Lewis Heim, took place at 8 o'clock Tuesday morning, June 14, 1921, in St. Mary church, Rev. Fr. VanDyke conducting the services.

The couple were attended by Miss Loretta Heim, sister of the bridegroom, and Mr. Vincent Flemming. The bride has been a successful teacher in rural schools of this vicinity for the past few years and bridegroom is a son of Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Heim, of Sylvan.

A wedding breakfast was served at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Howard Gilbert and a wedding dinner was served at the home of the bride's parents in Ypsilanti.

The young couple will make their home on the farm of his father in Sylvan.

Cavanaugh Lake Grange

Roll call—current events.
Reading—Mrs. L. Loveland.
Topic for sisters—Some good hot weather desserts.

Topic for brothers—How many hours horse and man labor does an acre of corn require? Opened by Walter Riemenschneider.

Paper—Mrs. Henry Nottin.

Song.

Card of Thanks.

John Kantlehner wishes by this means to thank his neighbors and friends for their many acts of kindness and assistance during the illness and death of his son Roy O. Kantlehner.

STORIES OF EARLY LIFE

IN WASHTENAW COUNTY

Last year's officers were re-elected at the 48th meeting of the Washtenaw County Pioneers and Historical Society last week. The pioneers voted to fill the places of the vice presidents, where they have been delinquent in reporting with women members of the society. M. S. White was elected president again, Robert Campbell, secretary, a position which he has held for many years, and O. C. Burkhardt, of Chelsea, treasurer. Mrs. B. D. Kelly was re-elected necrologist.

The pioneers decided to put the matter up to the supervisors of placing a monument over the body of William A. Fletcher, first supreme judge of the state, who is buried in Forest Hill cemetery. Byron A. Finney reported the findings of a committee and recommended that the matter be turned over to the supervisors, who are authorized to use $300 for historical landmarks. The body of Judge Fletcher was transferred from Felch Park to the present burial place. The monument if erected, would probably consist of a boulder marked with a bronze plate.

Evan Essery, commissioner of schools, gave a short talk on the matter of consolidated schools. He said that there was one thing left in these modern times that harks back to pioneer days, and that was the one room rural school. He said that to consolidated schools meant better buildings, ventilation, light and moral influences. Mr. Essery favored placing the consolidated school in the country.

Mrs. Ely Moore told of attending early Quaker meetings. She recalled stopping at Cook's hotel in Ann Arbor 71 years ago, while coming home from Tecumseh. She stated that the influence of the Friends had been a great one in her life. She went to school at a place called Harmonia, near Battle Creek, on the ground occupied now by Camp Custer. This school was taught by Quakers. She told of the early struggles to clear land in this country, when everything was a forest, and how the early pioneers were possessed of indomitable spirit.

Mrs. B. F. Brown suggested that a junior department be added to the local society. She told of the work of the Child Conservation league. Ely Moore told of the early experiences with corduroy roads, and said that the pioneers appreciate good roads.

An interesting letter was read from Ebenezer Smith of Lima township. The letter told about his experiences on July 4, 1841, when the first train of cars came into Dexter on the Michigan Central railroad. He drove there in a lumber wagon drawn by two oxen.

John Bunton, who claims he is the oldest pioneer born in the county, told of his experiences with the Quakers. He said that he attended one meeting where a man arose to his feet after the gathering had sat silent for several hours and said: "Zacharias climbed up a sycamore tree," and then sat down.

Charles Harmon, veteran of two wars, told the pioneers about the proper care of the flag and urged that the younger generation be taught to reverence it. Robert Martin, well known as "Whispering Bob," made a few appropriate remarks.

When some one teased with him about his powerful voice, he said that he was justly proud of that voice. He said it had been useful to him in his lifetime, he had called his dogs many a time, a mile away. He said that the city life was too lazy for him, he wished to be out in the country where he could work and keep strong.

Fred Zahn.

Fred Zahn was born in Freedom, July 21, 1877, and died at his home on Monday, June 13, 1921.

His entire life had been spent in Freedom township. He was united in marriage with Mrs. Lydia Schenk on December 3, 1913.

He is survived by his wife, two stepchildren, his mother, two sisters, four brothers, and a number of nephews and nieces.

The funeral was held this forenoon in Zion church, Rogers Corners, Rev. E. Thieme conducting the services.

Rev. O. Kantlehner.

Roy O. Kantlehner, youngest son of John Kantlehner, died at the home of his father, on Pierce street, Thursday evening, June 9, 1921. He was born in Chelsea, February 4, 1916. His mother died in December, 1919.

He is survived by his father, two brothers, Karl and John, his grandparents, and several uncles and aunts, and one nephew.

The funeral was held Friday afternoon, Rev. F. W. Dietzberger conducting the services at the grave, at Oak Grove cemetery.

Interment was made in the same place.

CHANGES IN GAME LAWS

The legislature has amended the game laws materially, among changes being the restrictions to one deer to be killed by the hunter, and that must be a buck, with the open season November 10 to 30.

The three greatest changes are the enactment of a one buck law, the passage of a law placing a bag limit on rabbits and forbidding the sale of rabbits, and the opening of the season on partridge or ruffed grouse from October 15 to November 20, which includes a ten-day open season on these game birds during the open season for deer.

The open season for all game birds and game for the ensuing two years will be as follows: Woodcock, unlawful to kill; ducks, geese, brant, September 16 to December 31; coots and gallinules, September 16 to December 16; black breasted and golden plover and yellow legs, September 1 to December 15; rails, September 1 to November 30; wilson or jack snipe, September 16 to December 27; Fox squirrels, October 15 to December 31; ruffed grouse, commonly called partridge, October 15 to November 20; deer, November 10 to November 30.

Quail, prairie chicken, killdeer and meadow birds are protected until 1924, as are also woodcock, black and gray squirrels, mongolian pheasants, hazel grouse, spruce hens (sometimes called fool hen), and pinnated grouse.

The day's bag on game is as follows: partridge, 5; plover, 15; snipe, 15; geese and brant, 6; ducks, 25; fox squirrels, 10; rabbits, 10.

No person can kill in any calendar year more than 25 partridge, plover, snipe, or other shore birds, or more than 25 geese and brant combined. Nor in one year can a hunter kill more than 15 fox squirrels, 25 rabbits and 50 ducks.

The open season for fur bearing animals is from October 31 to April 1, changing a few for the past two years permitting an open season in the north part of the state at an earlier time. This includes otter, fisher, marten, mink, skunk, muskrat and raccoon. Beaver are protected until 1924, but it is an open season all the time for bear, lynx and fox.

The deer license also has been changed, the fee now being $2.50 for residents of the state and $50 for non-residents. Bounties on wolves are dispensed with, and $1 of the $2.50 license and $15 of the $50 license will go to pay trappers for catching them—so much a day.

As a result of the 1921 legislation the bounty on wolves, coyotes, hawks, owls, fox and weasles has been repealed, leaving only bounties on crows, sparrows and woodchucks.

BREVITIES

Howell—A class of 50 were graduated from the Howell high school
on Wednesday of this week.

Ann Arbor—When you see a curious looking bulge on the hip of an Ann Arbor mailman, don't think he is packing a bottle of hooch. He is carrying something with more of a kick than that.

Stockbridge—The graduating exercises of Stockbridge high school were held Thursday evening. Dr. Harvey of Ypsilanti, gave the address and diplomates were presented the graduates by W. J. Dancer.

Ann Arbor—H. S. Osler, county agent, reports that several cases of hog cholera have come to his notice
from a farm near Ypsilanti. He says that feeding the hogs city garbage caused the disease.

Brooklyn—Wilber Bartlett Post,
American Legion, is getting well
under way the big celebration for Brooklyn on June 30, and July 1
and 2. Without any doubt it will be the biggest celebration the town has ever had—Exponent.

Ypsilanti—The merchants of Ypsilanti will take a half holiday starting Wednesday, June 22, and from then on to September 14. Every Wednesday afternoon will be play day for the merchants. What the program is to be we are unable to state.—Record.

Deater—The oil which is to keep
down the dust on the village streets
has been applied and as soon as it has had time to be worked down things will be much improved. In the meantime those who were scolding about the dust can scold about the oil.—Leader.

Grass Lake—An Oldsmobile eight
cylinder car which was stolen by four young men from the Carhart Cotton Mills Co. in Detroit, was picked up Tuesday by W. A. Maurer just west of Grass Lake. The car ran out of gasoline and was abandoned by the young men.—News.

Milan—Because he allowed school
boys to play pool in his billiard hall,
Jack Weiner of Milan paid a fine of $35 and costs in police court last week and was placed on probation
for a term of two years. Weiner was arrested on complaint of Marie Peel, probation officer, who stated
that Weiner had been warned
against allowing school boys to play
pool.

Stockbridge—A state road to connect with that built by Jackson county, last year, is the latest report. This will be a great improvement, as this two miles of road was almost impassable last spring. We are informed that the work on the road south out of town is to be commenced at once. The road to the depot will be of cement and from there will be gravel.—Brief-Sun.

Pinekey—In electing Lyle Young-love Grand Commander of their order, the Michigan Knights Templar
have conferred honor on an old Pinekey boy. He was born and spent his boyhood days on his father's farm north of town. The Younglove family was a prominent one in this community and the new Grand Commander has gained an enviable reputation in Detroit as a citizen and lawyer.—Dispatch.

Jackson—An inspection of the Grand river drain by Drain Commissioners of Jackson, Washtenaw, Hillsdale and Ingham counties has disclosed the fact that quite a bit of work remains to be done before the drain is completed. The Wohlman Construction Company, in charge of the work, had reported the drain
finished. Some stumps and a quantity of mud will be removed from the drain by the contractors.—News.

Milan—In spite of the reports published in the other papers throughout the county, Milan is now assured of two good roads leading to the north and east within the next year or two.
Several weeks ago a committee representing the Milan Commercial Club
had a conference with the State Highway Commissioner and Senators Sink and Bryant at Lansing. The roads at that time seemed rather doubtful, but a recent communication from Senator Sink assures the committee that the Attorney General
has authorized the Highway Commissioner to build the road as soon as possible. It is understood that the funds are already available for the project, having been voted at the last session of the legislature.—Leader.

Ann Arbor—Ex-Sen. George Millen
was the host at a surprise party at the Michigan Union Wednesday evening. Twenty-one state senators and other state officials, including Gov.
Alex Groesbeck, Lieut. Gov. Thomas
Reid, Atty. Gen. Marlin Wiley and Sen. Charles A. Sink, made up the visiting party, which made the trip
from Lansing by auto. Mr. Millen's first notice of the dinner was by telephone, when he received word
that the party had left Lansing, uninvited, to take dinner with the Ann Arbor ex-senator. Charles J. De Land, secretary of state, sent his regrets from Washington. Upon their arrival, the Lansing visitors presented Mr. Millen with what purported to be a senate resolution, in which the senators conferred upon Mr. Millen
the honor of being their host without invitation. The resolution was decorated by the governor and members of the senate finance committee.

FRED M. WARNER

Dairy interests exhibiting at the state fair in Detroit next September 2 to 11 will have more attention than ever before.

Fred M. Warner, former governor of Michigan, widely known as one of the best informed dairymen in the state,
will be the state fair board member
in charge of this department.

His acceptance of this post and his personal attention to it during the ten days of the fair make it certain that this important department will take front rank in interest with visitors to the fair. With Mr. Warner will be associated, as superintendent, Mr. H. D.
Wendt, secretary of the Michigan Allied Dairy Association.

RICH REWARDS FOR 1921 STATE FAIR EXHIBITORS

A new high record will be reached in premium awards this year at the Michigan State Fair in Detroit, September 2 to 11. Numerous increases will be made over awards of last year, and those were among the highest ever paid in the United States.

Not only will there be a larger variety of premiums, but a notable increase in the regular awards. Prizes offered for the best of the poultry breeds of cattle in Michigan will be especially alluring to livestock men
who pride themselves on the excellence of their breed stock.

"Liberal premium lists attract the best exhibits," says Secretary-Manager G. W. Dickinson, of the state fair.
"Encouragement must be given by the fair to the farmer who devotes his time to improving his breeds of stock
or to the raising of the very highest grades of farm products."

"This has always been our policy
and the increases in value of premiums each year has been accompanied by an increased showing in the class of exhibits. These in turn have attracted more and more attention to the fair, with the result that steadily increased earnings have enabled the fair to maintain its growth from year
to year until it has assumed the front rank."

"We will be able to make it well worth while for the farmer to send his best produce and stock to the fair
and thus procure a farming exhibit
which will do credit to Michigan and help maintain the balance with exhibits of other character."

MOVIES AT STATE FAIR TO SHOW WORK IN SCHOOLS

Films depicting educational features of the work in Detroit schools will be shown on the moving picture screen
at the Michigan State Fair to be held in Detroit September 2 to 11. Arrangements have been made by Secretary G. W. Dickinson for this novel feature to be added to this year's attractions, the Detroit school authorities joining in to make it one to be appreciated by grown-ups as well as
by the school "kids" who enjoy seeing themselves in the movies.

The Detroit school showing will be
in addition to the regular rural school
exhibits, long a feature of the state fair, and which promise to be better than ever this year.

MECHANICAL EXHIBITS AT FAIR COVER WIDE FIELD

Automobiles, tractors, threshers and many other varieties of farm and city
machinery and mechanical contrivances will form a big feature at the Michigan State Fair in Detroit, September 2 to 11. The leading men of the industrial world appreciate the splendid opportunity afforded by the state fair to demonstrate their creations to all comers and especially to the farmer visitors who are keenly interested in the new mechanical developments intended for use on the farm.

EGG LAYING CONTESTS AT STATE FAIR POULTRY SHOW

Poultry fanciers will have an enjoyable and instructive time at the Michigan State Fair in Detroit September 2 to 11. The exhibits will be greater than at any previous fair and will be featured by laying contests among the pens entered for the show in the poultry
department.

C. H. Burgess, professor of poultry and husbandry at the M. A. C., will be superintendent of the poultry department at the fair.

SATISFIED WITH DULL LIVES

Siamese Require Little, and Have a Government Which Gets That They Get It.

Bangkok, for all its modern water-
works and trolley cars, is a fairy-tale
land, with a fairy-tale king, writes
Florence Burgess Meekhan in Asia Magazine. In Bangkok the king is a reality, not a figurehead. Two or three times a day whistles announce his approach along the street, as he takes the route to or from the golden-
roofed palace and the audience hall
two miles distant.

Rama VI, Oxford graduate, playwright, poet and keen administrator—
is perhaps the most absolute of all the monarchs left on earth. He is an autocrat, but his government is more
like an advanced state socialism than anything else. The state owns the main lines of the railroads, the oil fields, the forests and the mines.
The street cars and waterworks and
the lighting system of the capital are state property, and the king is the state.

Siamese are satisfied with autocr-
acy. Siamese seem to be the happiest land in the world. It has no exclusion laws. It has no class struggle.
They are a happy-go-lucky people.
Their by-word is "Sippenary?" ("What does it matter?") They cultivate their little rice paddies, and work at jewelry or ivory carving or weaving, but they almost invariably remain craftsmen in a small way, content with a mere livelihood.

DAY OF HORSE ALMOST GONE

Increasing Use of Motor Apparatus
Will Soon Make Him Only a Loving Memory.

A defective flue had brought the fire department to Tenth and Tecumseh streets. Near, bright red motor apparatus came rushing up from a half-dozen firehouses. Presently a worn old hook and ladder truck, horse-drawn, appeared on the scene. It carried just the ladders the firemen needed to reach the fire.

The crowd that gathered smiled at the picture. The old horses seemed to know that they were playing an important part, even in the presence
of their enemies, the motor apparatus.
It was a picture of a changing time.
One by one the motor machines turned away, leaving the horse machine to finish the job.

Somehow, the crowd moved toward
the horses and, one by one, men,
women and children, paused to stroke
the manes or pat the noses of the faithful old beasts that now are fast
passing to the Land of Memory.

And, somehow, the horses seemed to know and understand. Their heads were not down, however. Instead,
they looked around and saw that the enemy had left the fight to them.

"Still on the job," they would have
said had the crowd the power to understand them.

Yes, still on the job, but—going—going.—Indianapolis News.

National Museum Gets Opals.

The National museum in Washington has just received from Archie
Rice, an opal expert in New York, 100 specimens of gem opal from the rough just as they come from the only opal mines in the United States.
The opals are red, white, blue, black,
brown, green and purple; two have replaced fossil wood, and three possibly fossil bones.

The mine is located in Humboldt county, Nevada, about a mile above sea level and some 200 miles inland
from the Pacific; not very accessible,
since the railroad town of Winnem-ucca is about 720 miles away. Because of the high altitude, the ordinary water content of the opals is often injuriously affected when they are removed from the ground.

Thus far, excavation for opals has gone only to a depth of 20 or 30 feet.

Prickly Pear Worries Australians.

The kind of cactus which we called
the "prickly pear" has become a first-class nuisance in Australia. It grows very fast, spreads with great rapidity
and forms masses of vegetation so dense that the clearing of ground once occupied by the plant is accomplished
with utmost difficulty. Incidentally,
it renders the land unavailable for agricultural purposes.

In response to urgent request, our government is sending to Australia,
certain insects that prey upon the prickly pear. Hope is entertained that they may do enough damage to discourage the spread of the cactus
plague in that part of the world.—Philadelphia Ledger.

Cheap Light.

Science and Invention describes a recent achievement of a French scientist,
who has successfully tried out in his house a scheme for operating electric lights without cost.

Upon his water-supply pipe he has
fitted a high-speed water turbine,
which drives a dynamo, charging a storage battery. Every time a faucet
is turned on in the house the stream
of water is put to work at loading the battery, which furnishes current for
the lights. "It is simply utilizing energy that is ordinarily wasted," says
the inventor.—Philadelphia Ledger.

Overzealous.

"What is your idea of a graffer?"
"A graffer," replied Senator Sorghum, "is a man who, when he finds
an opportunity knocking at his door,
isn't entitled to give it a cordial welcome, but insists on dragging it in
and beating the life out of it."

Lay Off Salt Stuff.

The majority of persons are "digging their graves by eating too much salt, and those who indulge in dried herring, Yarmouth, bladders, cured
ham and bacon, swallow enough
sodium chloride in a year to turn
them into a pillar of salt," Dr.
Charles Woodward of Chicago, Wednesday told the delegates at the convention of the medical and surgical societies of Wisconsin, Michigan and Illinois.

"Beware of too much salt," Dr.
Woodward said. "Excess of salt is the cause of inflammatory stages of many diseases that appear in the human body. Fifteen to 30 grains of salt a day is the maximum amount
that should be taken into the human system."

Manchester—We frequently hear
of cattle being killed by lightning
while in the fields during the pasture season. The use of wire fences
and the custom of stringing a barbed wire on the top of rail or board
fences is the cause of many deaths, as the lightning follows along these lines. If farmers would put down a few metal posts and attach the wires to them the lightning would be grounded and the loss obviated.—

The following case is but one of many occurring daily in Chelsea. It is an easy matter to verify it. You cannot ask for better proof.

John Kelly, W. Middle St., Chelsea, says: "My work is what started my kidney trouble. The secretions were highly colored and contained sediment. They acted irregularly and the secretions were painful in passage. I suffered from rheumatic pains in my back and would get sore and stiff. Mornings I felt all tired and it took an hour or so to get limbered up. I was often nervous and dizzy, especially when I had to stoop over. I used different remedies but they didn't help me
any. Then I saw Doan's Kidney Pills
advertised and tried some. Doan's completely relieved me of all the trouble with my kidneys and back
so I am glad to recommend them."
(Statement given March 1, 1913.)

On April 27, 1920, Mr. Kelly said:
Doan's Kidney Pills are all right and I gladly confirm the statement I gave
some years ago regarding the merits
of this medicine."

Battle Creek—The graduating exercises of the Sanitarium Training school here closed when 62 graduate nurses received diplomas from Dr. J. H. Kellogg.

Owosso—Mrs. Della Bruno, 78, has brought suit for divorce against Anthony Bruno, 69, who, she alleges, has given her only $15 with which to buy clothes since their marriage in 1894.

Benton Harbor—Benton Harbor voters, by a vote of almost two to one, discarded the existing aldermanic system and adopted the commission manager form of government at the polls.

Grand Haven—Mr. and Mrs. George Woodhouse and Mr. and Mrs. Carl Swanson were arrested at Spring Lake by Federal officers charged with stealing bank checks from an express company. They were taken to Chicago.

Menominee—Fred E. Reiff, former division traffic superintendent for the Michigan State Telephone Co. in the upper peninsula, has been appointed to succeed the late M. L. Saunders as division commercial superintendent.

Pontiac—When his clothing caught in the belt of a machine at the Wolverine Sand & Gravel plant at Clarkston, William McMillan, 33 years old, a foreman, was killed. McMillan's body was drawn into a pulley and his chest was crushed.

Cadillac—The typhoid situation is so serious here, that the city has offered to pay for inoculation of persons who feel they cannot afford to pay the bill. Rigorous measures are being taken to stamp out the disease and prevent its spread.

Owosso—A toy gas balloon, one of six sent up by an Owosso automobile sales company, floated to Holly and was picked up there by Miss Agnes Rackel. Each of the balloons had a tag on it good for $25 in trade with the company. Holly is 25 miles from here.

Cadillac—The offer of $25,000 for the plant of the Osceola Light & Power company at Reed City by the village council was refused by E. J. Haynes, of this city, majority stockholder. The company offered to sell for $40,000 after the dam went out in March.

Muskegon—James Manterstock, 48, of Wolf Lake, driver of the car in which Orley Thompson and Loren Adams lost their lives was arraigned in justice court for manslaughter. The examination was postponed and Manterstock was held to $5,000 bail which he furnished.

Grand Rapids—The city commission has cancelled $11,000 in old taxes assessed against descriptions for which land did not exist, against several small parcels of lands not owned either by individuals, the city, or the state and against railroads for claims dating back as far as 1874.

Muskegon—Moonshine saved the life of Marion Adams, 46 years old, when she swallowed poison because her father scolded her for using out late, according to the city physician. A police sergeant was told by the physician to give her whiskey. He gave her moonshine and now she is recovering.

Flint—Jitney busses have been ruled off streets on car line routes here by the city council. The main object of the council's action was to relieve the traffic congestion on streets where street cars are operated and also to open up new territory not now being served by any transportation conveyances.

Monroe—Richard Gosser, Tony Paul, Lee Wigley and James Kennedy, of Toledo, pleaded guilty in Circuit Court to holding up George Karmel, 18 years old, at Erie, Mich., several weeks ago. Kennedy was sentenced to serve from five to 15 years at the Jackson State Prison and the others were given from one and one-half to 15 years in the Michigan Reformatory at Ionia.

Kalamazoo—Any monument to be erected in honor of Joseph Guyton, the first American killed in the world war, should be constructed at Evert, the hero's home, and not at Detroit, or Lansing, according to a resolution passed by the Kalamazoo post of the American Legion. This resolution called on Senator Newberry to aid passage of the bill which would provide for erecting the monument at Evert.

Grand Rapids—A 100-year-old treaty will be used as a defense by W. J. Masquesky, 76, an Indian, held at the county jail for trial in district court on an indictment charging him with impersonating a federal agent. The treaty was signed March 25, 1821, by President James Monroe and Secretary of State John Quincy Adams. It acceded to the members of the Ottawa, Chippewa and Potawatomi tribes land situated in the vicinity of the Kalamazoo and St. Joseph rivers.

Pontiac—The decision of the State Supreme Court in the suit of the Township of Avon and others against the Detroit United Railway, in which the Smith Rate Law of 1919 was upheld, did not cause any surprise here. Inasmuch as the same facts had been previously passed on by the court, it was considered unlikely that it would reverse itself in this case. The object in securing a ruling, according to Judge Glen C. Gillespie, who presided in the case in behalf of the municipality, was that it might be appealed to the United States Supreme Court.

Marshall—Milo James, 18 years old, of Homer, was drowned while fishing in a mill pond in that village.

Grand Rapids—An ordinance prohibiting writing, printing or distribution of red literature in the city has been adopted by the city commissioners.

Waukegan—The Sunday Lake mine, which has been the only mine in operation in Waukegan, has closed for an indefinite period, throwing 200 men out of work.

Escanaba—John S. Lindsay, contractor, will build the Delta-Menominee tuberculosis sanitarium in Powers, Mich., on a 60-acre site. His bid was $113,575.

Olivet—Prof. V. J. Searle, of Ripon, Wis., has been selected to head the department of business administration at Olivet College next year. He will succeed Dr. Richard E. Clark, who recently resigned to go to Centre College.

Shelby—Henry W. Reid, 87 years old, is dead. He was one of the pioneers of Oceana County, coming to Stony Lake when it was the principal trading post in the county. He held many local offices, among which was that of village president.

Algonac—Two Michigan residents, Mr. and Mrs. Frank P. Lewis, of Algonac, lost their lives in the La Junta, Colo., flood, according to telegrams received by Mrs. William R. Hamilton, of Algonac, a sister of Mrs. Lewis. Both victims were drowned.

Muskegon—Moving pictures are now being shown at all school houses in Muskegon County by Karl H. Kiefer, community council secretary. This is made possible by a device attached to an automobile. The car furnishes the power to operate the picture machine.

Pontiac—Pontiac's new valuation, according to figures just prepared by the board of review, is $44,623,107, an increase of $1,015,553 over that of a year ago. The city taxes collected in July will be based on a rate of $19.15 for each $1,000 of assessed valuation.

Muskegon—A jury accepted the defense of Oscar Carlson, 20 years old, in the suit brought by Laura Crombie, 30, a war widow of Grand Rapids, for breach of promise. Carlson admitted the contract to marry, but told the jury the plaintiff's temper caused him to break his promise.

Owosso—Patrolman C. D. Miles, who was shot in the left hip by a burglar whom the officer caught robbing Byerly's grocery store, will recover. Letters in the officer's side pocket of his coat deflected the course of the bullet, preventing a more serious wound. The burglar escaped.

Ann Arbor—Dr. C. W. Edmunds, assistant dean of the medical school of the University of Michigan, has been elected to the Association of American Physicians, the highest honor of its kind in the country. Members are chosen from the United States and Canada and the number is limited to 150.

Flint—Members of the Genesee County Medical Society will establish in Flint a clinic where mental defects may be examined and treated after they have been arraigned in local courts. The society has named a committee to investigate psychiatric work in other cities and at the larger penal institutions of the country.

Grand Rapids—Ernest Ludlow, a patrolman, was held up by a burglar who poked a gun into his side and was marched away by the robber, who later escaped. Ludlow found the stranger in a barber shop as he was trying doors. When the officer attempted to put him under arrest, the burglar pulled a gun, ordered Ludlow from the shop and compelled him to march down the street.

Ann Arbor—Social service workers from all over the state, who have been attending the meeting of the state hospital association and the Michigan State League of Nursing Institutions, voted to form an organization to be known as the State Association of Medical Social Service Workers, appointing Miss Alice Walker of Harper hospital, Detroit, temporary chairman. A committee of organization was appointed and authorized to draw up a resolution, which will be presented for adoption at the time the social workers meet here in October.

NEWS REVIEW OF CURRENT EVENTS

Admiral Sims Stirs Up Hornets' Nest by His London Speech About the Irish.

SECRETARY OF NAVY ACTS

Mexico Told She Must Sign Treaty to Obtain Recognition—Pueblo Rising From Flood Disaster—New Parliament of Northern Ireland Meets.

By EDWARD W. PICKARD.

Some of our eminent Americans have a positive genius for saying the wrong thing when they are abroad. Closely following the extraordinarily tactless utterances of Ambassador Harvey in his first address in London comes the speech of Admiral Sims at a meeting of the English Speaking union in the British metropolis. He is quoted in the press as saying:

"I do not want to touch on the Irish question, for I know nothing about it. But there are many in our country who technically are Americans, some of them naturalized and some born there, but none of them Americans at all. They are Americans when they want money, but Sinn Feiners when on the platform. They are making war on America today. The simple truth of it is that they have the blood of the British and American boys on their hands for the obstructions they placed in the way of the most effective operation of the allied naval forces during the war. They are like zebras, either black horses with white stripes or white horses with black stripes. But we know they are not horses—they are asses. But each of these asses has a vote and there are lots of them."

Of course the numerous friends of "free Ireland" in the United States were enraged by these words, and Senator Medill McCormick of Illinois went to the front promptly, denouncing the admiral's speech as "repulsive and disgusting." He called the attention of Secretary of the Navy Denby to the address and asked that Sims be disciplined if it developed that he had been correctly quoted.

Without bothering the President with the affair, Secretary Denby cabled to Admiral Sims the substance of the press reports and ordered him to inform the department immediately whether or not he had used the language attributed to him.

The senate, taking to itself some of the admiral's harsh expressions, unanimously adopted a resolution ordering the naval affairs committee to make a thorough investigation of the matter.

Forecasting his reply to Secretary Denby, Admiral Sims declared he would not repudiate a single word of his speech.

Nor doubt both Ambassador Harvey and Admiral Sims thought they were engaged in the laudable task of maintaining and enhancing the amicable relations between the two great English speaking nations; but if they had wisdom comparable with their years and experience they would have known that utterances like theirs always injure rather than aid that cause. On the other hand, it is undeniably true that the efforts of cheap American politicians to entangle this country in the Irish controversy are disgusting to millions of American citizens.

Of prime importance in the news of the week was the announcement by Secretary Hughes of the administration's policy in dealing with Mexico. In a sentence, this is that, if Mexico desires to obtain recognition by the United States, she must enter into a treaty of amity and commerce that has been presented to President Obregon and in which she will guarantee American property rights within Mexican territory against confiscation.

Says Mr. Hughes: "Mexico is free to adopt any policy which she pleases with respect to her public lands, but she is not free to destroy without com-ensation valid titles which have been obtained by American citizens under Mexican laws. A confiscation policy strikes not only at the interests of particular individuals but at the foundations of international intercourse, for it is only on the basis of the security of property validly possessed under the laws existing at the time of its acquisition that commercial transactions between the peoples of two countries and the conduct of activities in helpful co-operation are possible.

"This question is vital because of the provisions inserted in the Mexican constitution promulgated in 1917. If these provisions are to be put into effect retroactively, the properties of American citizens will be confiscated on a great scale. This would constitute an international wrong of the gravest character, and this government could not submit to its accomplishment."

The Republican majority in the house took steps to discard the Borah amendment to the naval bill, and to substitute the idea of the Porter joint resolution, which concurs in the expressed purpose of President Harding to call a disarmament conference but refuses to tie his hands with instructions or requests, as does the Borah plan. The Porter idea, it is said, is the more pleasing to the President, but he will not directly intervene in the controversy. The house Democrats are almost solidly in favor of the Borah amendment.

The senate performed a peculiar flop last week in dealing with the army bill. On Tuesday, by a vote of 34 to 30, it rejected the drastic army reduction voted by the house, adopting the plan of the senate military committee for an army of an average strength of 190,000 during the next year, with a reduction to 160,000 by February 15, 1922. Next day the senate reversed itself, deciding, 36 to 32, to reduce the army to 150,000, which would necessitate the discharging of about 75,000 men before the middle of next February. The entire bill was then passed without a roll call. It carries an appropriation of $333,000,000 for the army for the fiscal year beginning July 1.

President Harding announced to congress his selections for the reconstructed United States shipping board. A. D. Lasker, a well-known advertising man of Chicago, was appointed chairman. The other members are: T. V. O'Connor of Buffalo, N. Y.; former Senator Chamberlain of Oregon; Edward C. Plummer of Maine; F. I. Thompson of Alabama; Meyer Lissner of Los Angeles and Rear Admiral Benson of Georgia. The selection of Mr. Lasker was criticized sarcastically by certain Democratic congressmen and warmly defended by Illinois representatives.

The Republican national committee, in session in Washington, accepted the resignation of Chairman Will Hays and elected John T. Adams of Duquesne, Pa., to succeed him. Mr. Adams has been vice chairman, and that position was given to Ralph E. Williams of Portland, Ore. A new basis of representation at national conventions was adopted by which the Southern states will lose 23 delegates from the number accredited to the Chicago convention of last June. The old system allowed for one delegate from each congressional district, but under the new plan a district must have cast 2,500 Republican votes in the last preceding election before it may send a delegate to the convention. To have two district delegates there must have been cast 10,000 Republican votes, or a Republican representative must have been elected to congress. Under the former plan 7,500 votes gave two delegates.

Just before the committee met, one of its most prominent members, Alvin T. Hart of Kentucky, died suddenly in a Washington hotel. Mr. Hart was very active in the last campaign and President Harding offered him an ambassadorship and other high posts. He was a leading business man of Louisville.

Another sudden death that shocked the country was that of Col. Frederick W. Galbraith, national commander of the American Legion. He was killed in an automobile accident near Indianapolis, and Henry Ryan, director of Americanization in the Legion, and Col. Milton J. Foreman of Chicago narrowly escaped death at the same time.

With what we like to consider the true American spirit, the people of Pueblo already are at work restoring their city after the devastating flood that swept through that part of Colorado. The National Guard is policing the area of destruction, which embraces about 200 square miles, and all week supplies of food and clothing were being rushed in by all possible means of conveyance. It is not likely the number of dead ever will be known accurately, but it probably reached 500. In addition to the immense property damage in Pueblo and other towns, much of the crops and the live stock in the flood area was destroyed. Fears of an epidemic due to the utterly disorganized sanitation of the region were allayed by the prompt work of the medical corps. The American Red Cross has undertaken the complete rehabilitation of the flood-stricken sections, and it has issued a national appeal for funds that is meeting with the generous response always given in such instances. The railways, of course, are carrying the relief supplies free.

The British troops in Upper Silesia are making quick work of pushing the insurgent Poles back out of the disputed region and, according to reports, they are doing it without any fighting, for Korfanty's men know resistance would be worse than useless. The French are looking on, hoping that the interests of the Poles, with whom they sympathize, will not suffer. Meanwhile the German defense forces, which are under the command of General von Hoeder, have ceased their advance in one sector, but have kept going forward in another, taking Slawentz, Kandrzn and Ujest after bloody fights with the Poles and approaching close to Gliwicz, which is called the key to Industrial Upper Silesia. Gross Sirehitz, which is held by a French garrison, was surrounded by the Germans on three sides.

After the German high court had convicted two Polish defendants of cruelty to British prisoners during the war and given them jail sentences, it took up the case of Submarine Commander Neumann, accused of sinking the British hospital ship Dover Castle. On his plea that he was merely obeying the order of his superiors he was acquitted, and consequently, it is now reported, the court intends to bring to trial the admiral chief or chiefs who gave the orders to Neumann and the other submarine commanders whose cases are pending.

The allied council of ambassadors has sent to Berlin a letter taking cognizance of the "good will" of the German government in its efforts to fulfill its undertakings under the peace treaty, and granting a delay until September 30 for the transformation of the Diesel submarine motors to civilian industry. From Munich came the word that the Bavarian citizens' guard has decided to disarm voluntarily by June 30, in compliance with the ultimatum of the allies. This relieves Berlin of one great worry.

The new parliament of northern Ireland—or Ulster—met in Belfast on Tuesday and was formally organized. Maj. Hugh O'Neill, descendant of the famous O'Neills of Irish history, was elected speaker and six of Ireland's thirty-two counties were put on a self-governing basis. Viscount Fitzalan, the British viceroy and a Catholic, opened the proceedings. Of the 52 members elected 40 were present. The others are nationalists and Sinn Feiners, who refuse to recognize the partition of Ireland and who will sit on Dail Eireann, the revolutionary parliament which claims to represent all of the Emerald Isle. The experiment of the British government in thus dividing Ireland will be watched with intense interest by the world.

Hands of men supposed to be Sinn Feiners made a bold and ingenious attempt Wednesday night to isolate London by cutting all the telegraph and telephone wires running out of the city. They succeeded in a considerable extent. A similar attempt was made in Liverpool.

32 ON TRIAL FOR TOLEDO ROBBERY

ACCUSED IN MILLION DOLLAR POSTOFFICE HOLDUP FAINTS WHEN PAL SQUEALS.

HID MAIL BAGS IN GARAGE

Witness Gives Full Account of Haul Which Consisted of Bonds and New Currency.

Toledo, O.—James Feese, one of the 32 defendants indicted in the $1,000,000 postoffice robbery, took the stand June 13 and told a jury his connection in handling the loot. As he sat in the witness chair, there was a stir in the back of the court room and Joe Zellick, one of those on trial, keeled over in a faint. Proceedings were held up 10 minutes while deputies dashed water in his face and fanned him. He was still in a dazed condition when Judge Killits ordered the trial to proceed.

At the same minute Zellick was taken ill by Mrs. Harriet Sommers, mother of Pearl Sommers and another defendant, dropped in a heap at the foot of the courthouse steps. A policeman rushed the unconscious woman to a nearby drug store where she was administered first aid. In 15 minutes, she was able to go to her home in an ambulance.

Feese, at Prosecutor Both's invitation, left the witness chair, walked over to the 13 defendants seated in two rows and picked James Sansons as one of two men who took him to where the postoffice loot was hidden in his garage a few hours after the robbery on the morning of February 17.

As Feese stood in front of Sansons and declared:

"That is the man right there," the identified defendant cursed the witness.

Feese said since the robbery he had been made aware that his first connection with the conspiracy was February 14, when Joe Urbaytis and Charles Schultz, two of the 18 on trial, urged him to give them keys to his garage at the rear of a house where Feese lived with his aunt.

Later in the evening of the same day, he passed the keys of the garage to the men in a restaurant. He said Eddie O'Brien, indicted but not yet arrested, was with Urbaytis and Schultz in the restaurant.

Feese said his next connection with the case was at 11 o'clock the morning after the central postoffice was looted of $1,000,000 in bonds and currency.

He was in bed when his aunt told him two men wanted to see him. He invited them to him as Mike Scollis, a man known to him as Mike Scollis, alias "Little Mike," and known in the neighborhood as James Sansons came to his bedside and told him that they had "struck up the postoffice."

Feese in reply to further questions added that the men declared the stuff was then in his garage and they wanted him to get up and take them to it.

When he got inside he said he noticed mail bags piled in the middle of the floor. Some were covered. With a knife each took turns at cutting open bags. Some had locks and some were just tied with heavy cords, the witness said.

"We examined the contents and I noticed they consisted mostly of bonds and currency, new money in $10, 20 and 50 dollar denominations."

ADAMS NOW U. S. P. CHAIRMAN

Succeeds Will H. Hays Who Serves As Postmaster-General.

Washington—John T. Adams, of Iowa, has been elected chairman of the Republican national committee. Ralph Williams of Oregon, was made vice-chairman.

The resignation of Will H. Hays, field marshal of the 1920 presidential campaign, and who now is serving as postmaster general, was accepted by the national committee.

STRIKING SEAMEN TO RETURN

New Chairman of Shipping Board Approves Wage Terms.

Washington—Terms of an agreement on wages and working conditions for engineers on shipping board vessels, reached in conference between Secretary Davis and Rear Admiral Benson, former chairman of the board, and representatives of the Marine Engineers' Beneficial association have been approved by Chairman Lusk and all seamen will return to their jobs.

SOUTH'S REPRESENTATION CUT

Republicans Slash 23 From Convention Total, Add 53 to North.

Washington—A new basis of representation at the next Republican convention under which there will be a cut of 23 votes in the representation of southern states, was adopted by the Republican national committee by a vote of 36 to 12. The states which voted Republican at the last election also given 53 additional votes at the convention.

American Legion Notes

"There is not the least doubt in my mind that if it had not been for the determined stand of the American Legion, Zimmer and I would still be in prison," writes Sergeant Nair, who with Sergeant Zimmer was arrested by the Germans following an attempt to capture Grover Cleveland Bergdoll, notorious slacker. "The American Legion came to my aid during one of my darkest hours, and it demonstrated by its unwavering loyalty toward a comrade that its sublime aspirations and lofty ideals concerning comradeship are a living truth."

Men entitled to navy retainers pay and not receiving it should communicate with the navy allotment officer, navy retainers pay section, Navy department, Washington, D. C., according to the American Legion Weekly. Applicants should give the following data: Full name, date of enrollment, rating and class in which enrolled, present address, present rating, number of retainers pay checks received (if any) and amount at each, date of release from active duty, date of discharge from reserves.

One of the largest single cash contributions for the benefit of disabled ex-service men has been received by the St. Louis city central executive committee of the American Legion. The amount was $5,000, "without a string to it," given by Mrs. Newton L. G. Wilson, wealthy philanthropist of the city. The fund will be used exclusively to assist disabled men in obtaining just compensation and for the relief of their dependents.

American Legion posts in Minnesota are having a lively controversy as to which one has the oldest Legionnaire on its rolls. Redwood Falls presented Dr. Gibson, seventy-two years old, who served with the medical corps at Fort Benjamin Harrison, Ind., and held the record until Kimball post introduced Adam Brower, seventy-six years old, and Joe Mason, who admits eighty-six years and a highly prized membership in the Legion.

As a result of a fight waged on the floor of congress by Representative Hamilton Flah, Jr., of New York, a prominent American Legion worker, relatives of aliens who served in the American army, navy and marine corps during the World war are entitled to preferred right of entry into the United States in the three-percent immigration to be allowed during the next year under the immigration bill.

Members of the American Legion in St. Paul, Minn., cast their bread upon the waters and it was returned a hundredfold. Last spring they gave assistance to a needy man. When the Legion men were selling theater tickets for a benefit performance for unemployed veterans the ex-service man sold 500 tickets in two days. As a result, 150 men were sent out on jobs the following day.

A vigorous campaign waged by the American Legion against disloyal activities of the Industrial Workers of the World is responsible for the establishing of a Legion worker by an I. W. W. fanatic, according to reports received at Legion national headquarters from Pocatello, Idaho. True to form, the I. W. W. member attacked the Legion man in a dark alley, stabbing him in the back.

For the prompt relief of disabled and unemployed ex-service men of Chicago, Theodore Roosevelt post of the American Legion staged a mas party, at which Judge K. M. Landis was a guest. Burling Nelson was in charge of the athletic program, the band of the Great Lakes naval training station provided music and stage stars contributed their services to a midnight frolic.

Commuters and street car fans of New Orleans may have to walk when the American Legion meets. Employees of the New Orleans Railway and Light company have formed a post of the Legion. The street railway men are enthusiastic members of their post and have promised to attend meetings even if they have to bring along their private cars.

An American Legion speaker has been asked to explain the aims and purposes of the organization at the annual labor picnic to be held June 18 in Kansas City, Kan. The action, which followed a conference with the mayor of the city, is intended to clear up any misunderstandings which radical elements may have fostered in the ranks of labor organizations.

Only men who were in the service during the World war will be admitted to a hotel being erected by the Portland, Ore., post of the American Legion. The post is enlarging and remodeling upper floors of its large clubhouse to accommodate 70 men.

Idaho American Legion members opened their state service aid membership campaign with prayers in almost every church in the state.

Store window posters and street car signs aided Summit post of the American Legion at Akron, O., during a membership campaign.

ANNOUNCEMENT

Mr. Edsel B. Ford, President of the Ford Motor Company, gives out the following statement:

"Another reduction has been made in the list price of all types of Ford cars and the Ford truck to take effect immediately. The list prices, f. o. b. Detroit, are now as follows:

TOURING CAR	$415.00
RUNABOUT	370.00
COUPE	695.00
SEDAN	760.00
CHASSIS	245.00
TRUCK CHASSIS	495.00
TRACTOR	625.00

The big reductions last fall, were made in anticipation of low material costs which we are now getting the benefit of, and this fact together with increased manufacturing efficiency and the unprecedented demand for Ford cars, particularly during the past three months permitting maximum production, have made another price reduction possible immediately.

"Ford business for April and May 1921 was greater by 56,633 cars and trucks than for the same two months in 1920; in fact, the demand has been even greater than the supply, so that our output has been limited, not by unfilled orders but by manufacturing facilities.

"During May we produced 101,424 Ford cars and trucks for sale in the United States alone—the biggest month in the history of our company—and our factories and assembly plants are now working on a 4000 car daily schedule for June.

"The Fordson tractor is still being sold at less than the cost to produce on account of the recent big price reductions, and it is impossible, therefore, to make any further cut in the price of the tractor."

Can You Afford to Go Without a Car Any Longer When Fords Are Selling at These Low Prices?

There is no reason why you should delay purchasing a Ford car, Ford truck, or Fordson tractor.

We will gladly advise you concerning the delivery of a Fordson tractor or the particular type of car in which you are interested. Just phone us or drop us a card.

Training Camp for Civilians.

Hundreds of office men from all parts of the state, who are out of work, or whose nerves have been severely taxed by the reverses of business, last week prepared to make application to enter the Training Camp for Civilians, July 21 to August 20, at Camp Grant, Illinois.

A month in the open, playing and working at the duties of a soldier, has been seen by these nerve-shaken office workers, as the required panacea for "making men of them again." They believe, and their physicians have not been slow in so advising them, that the vacation at this camp will again put them on their feet.

It is going to be an inexpensive way to "sip from the waters of the fountain of youth," according to Phelps Newberry, State Chairman of the Military Training Camps Association, in charge of applications, because the government will pay all expenses. This will include transportation, food, quarters, uniforms, medical and dental attention, and laundry service.

The applicants—and Michigan's quota for the Sixth Corps Area is about 20,000, from which the successful ones will be picked—are required to be between the ages of sixteen and thirty-five years, of good intelligence, character and physical condition. The camp is intended primarily for men who have had no military experience, so those who were prevented from seeing service in the late war, because of home ties, or otherwise, now have an opportunity to enjoy the charm of a soldier's life.

All applications for the camp should be made out with the aid of the District chairman, Mr. C. C. Martin, Secy. Y. M. C. A., Ann Arbor, Michigan, who is in charge of the local district. He will be provided with a supply of application blanks and physical requirements. When these blanks have been made out and signed by the applicant, they will be forwarded daily to the State Headquarters, 1224 Ford Building, Detroit, Michigan, and later sent to Army Headquarters at Fort Sheridan, Illinois. The Detroit office will gladly furnish any information desired concerning the camps.

Cream Graded as to Quality.

Creamery managers and owners have received the endorsement of the State Farm Bureau, M. A. C., the State Food and Drug Department and the Michigan Milk Producers Association in a campaign to buy cream by two grades instead of by butter fat content only. The plan provides that the cream that a farmer brings to a receiving station be divided into two grades and that eventually he will get more for his first grade cream than for his second grade, a difference of at least one cent and possibly as much as four cents.

Though this plan will be of benefit to the Michigan trade generally because it will raise the standard of the Michigan product in the eastern markets. R. F. Frary, secretary of the creamery owners' association, says that it will bring more return to the farmer. He points out that the establishment of set grades is usually the first step taken by any association in finding a good market for its commodity.

An educational campaign has been started. Men at cream receiving stations are already dividing cream into the two grades, lining them up along opposite walls of their receiving stations, both for practice and to show the producer the difference. Also the association is sending "money talks" to 50,000 individual producers describing the system. Within a year the association expects to begin paying on the new basis. The grades are defined as follows:

First grade cream is cream that is clean, smooth, free from all undesirable odors, clean to the taste, and sweet or only slightly sour.

Second grade cream shall be cream that is too sour to grade as first grade cream, that contains undesirable flavors or odors in a moderate degree and that is slightly foamy or yeasty, or is too old to pass as first grade cream, yet not sufficiently poor to condemn. All sour cream containing less than 25 per cent butter fat shall be graded as second grade cream.

Cream too old to go into grade two is rejected, such rejection being compulsory by law.

"COME ON, BOYS!"

Synopsis.—In December, 1918, four men gathered in a hotel in Berlin and heard one of the quartet outline a plan to paralyze Great Britain and at the same time seize world power. The other three, Hocking, Amer, and Simpson, and Von Graiz, Germans, all millionaires, agreed to the scheme, providing another man, Thomas Potts, an American, is taken in. The instigator of the plot gives his name as Count de Gray, but when he leaves for England with his daughter he decides to use the name Carl Peterson. Capt. Hugh Drummond, a retired British officer, advertisement for work that will give him excitement, signing "X." As a result he meets Phyllis Elms, a young woman who answered his ad. She tells him of strange murders and robberies of which she suspects a hand headed by Peterson and Henry Lakington. Drummond decides to go to The Larches, Miss Benton's home. Peterson and Lakington stop his car and look him over.

CHAPTER II—Continued.

"He's so 'mysterious,'" answered Hugh. "The fellow hasn't moved a muscle since I've been here. I believe he's sitting on a hornet's nest, and leave the inmates guessing. Great gift, Mr. Lakington. Shows a strength of will but rarely met with a mind which rises above mere vulgar curiosity."

"It is undoubtedly a great gift to have such a mind, Captain Drummond," said Lakington. "And if it isn't born in a man, he should most certainly try to cultivate it. Shall we be seeing you this evening?"

Drummond shrugged his shoulders. "I'm the vaguest man that ever lived," he said lightly. "I might be listening to nightingales in the country, or I might be consuming steak and onions preparatory to going to a night club. So long. . . . Hope you don't break down again so suddenly."

He watched the Rolls-Royce start, but seemed in no hurry to follow suit. And his many friends, who were wont to regard Hugh Drummond as a man of straw not so plentifully supplied with brains, would have been puzzled had they seen the look of keen concentration on his face, as he stared along the white dusty road. He could not say why, but suddenly and very certainly the conviction had come to him that this was no hoax and no far-fetched grin and another reality. In his imagination he heard the sudden sharp order to stop the instant they were over the hill, so that Peterson might have a chance of inspecting him; in a flash of intuition he knew that these two men were no ordinary people, and that he was suspect. Two thoughts were dominant in his mind. The first was that there was some mystery about the notorious, mysterious man who had sat beside the driver; the second was a distinct feeling of relief that his automatic was fully loaded.

THREE.

At half-past five he stopped in front of Godalming postoffice. To his surprise the girl handed him a wire, and Hugh tore the yellow envelope open quickly. It was from Denny, and it was brief and to the point:

"Phone message received. AAA. Must see you Carlton tea day after tomorrow. Going Godalming now. AAA. Message ends."

With a slight smile he noticed the military phraseology—Denny at one time in his career had been a signaller—and then he frowned. "Must see you." She should—at once.

He turned to the girl and inquired the way to The Larches. It was about two miles, he gathered, on the Guildford road, and impossible to miss. A high-class house standing well back in its own grounds.

"Is it anywhere near a house called 'The Elms'?" he asked.

"Next door, sir," said the girl. "The garden is adjoin."

He thanked her, and having torn up the telegram into small pieces, he got into his car. There was nothing for it, he had decided, but to drive boldly up to the house, and say that he had come to call on Miss Benton. He had never been a man who beat about the bush, and simple methods appealed to him—a trait in his character which many a boxer, addicted to tortuous cantine in the ring, had good cause to remember. What more natural, he reflected, than to drive over and see such an old friend?

He had no difficulty in finding the house, and a few minutes later he was ringing the front-door bell. It was answered by a maid-servant.

"Is Miss Benton in?" Hugh asked with a smile which at once won the girl's heart.

"She has only just come back from London, sir," she answered doubtfully. "I don't know whether . . ."

"Would you tell her that Captain Drummond called?" said Hugh as the maid hesitated. "That I happened to find myself near here, and came on chance of seeing her?"

Once again the smile was called into play, and the girl hesitated no longer. "Will you come inside, sir?" she said. "I will go and tell Miss Phyllis."

She ushered him into the drawing-room and closed the door. It was a charming room, just such as he would have expected with Phyllis. Big windows, opening down to the ground, led out on to a lawn, which was already a blaze of color. A few great oak trees threw a pleasant shade at the end of the garden, and partially showing through them, he could see another house which he rightly assumed was The Elms. In fact, even as he heard the door open and shut behind him, he saw Peterson come out of a small summer-house and commence strolling up and down, smoking a cigar. Then he turned round and faced the girl.

Charming as she had looked in London, she was doubly so now, in a simple linen frock which showed off her figure to perfection. But if he thought he was going to have any leisure to enjoy the picture undisturbed, he was soon disillusioned.

"Why have you come here, Captain Drummond?" she said, a little breathlessly. "I said the Carlton—the day after tomorrow."

"Unfortunately," said Hugh, "I'd left London before that message came. My servant wired & on to the post-office here. Not that it would have made any difference. I should have come, anyway."

"An involuntary smile hovered round her lips for a moment; then she grew serious again. "It's very dangerous for you to come here," she remarked quietly. "If once those men suspect anything, God knows what will happen."

It was on the tip of his tongue to tell her that it was too late to worry about that; then he changed his mind.

"Add what is there suspicious," he asked. "In an old friend who happens to be in the neighborhood dropping in to call? Wherefore your telephone message? What's the worry?"

She bit her lip and drummed with her fingers on the arm of the chair. "If I tell you," she said at length, "will you promise me, on your word of honor, that you won't go blundering into The Elms, or do anything foolish like that?"

"At the present moment I'm very comfortable where I am, thanks," remarked Hugh.

"I know," she said; "but I'm so dreadfully afraid that you're the type of person who . . ."

She paused at a loss for a word. "Who bellows like a bull, and charges head down," interrupted Hugh with a grin. She laughed with him, and just for a moment their eyes met, and she read in his something quite foreign to the point at issue. In fact, it is to be feared that the question of Lakington and his companions was not engrossing Drummond's mind, as it doubtless should have been, to the exclusion of all else.

"It's Very Dangerous for You to Come Here," She Remarked Quietly.

"They're so utterly unscrupulous," she continued hurriedly, "so fearfully clever, that even you would be a child in their hands."

Hugh endeavored to dissemble his pleasure at that little word "even," and only succeeded in frowning hor-

"I will be discretion itself," he assured her firmly.

"I suppose I shall have to trust you," she said. "Have you seen the evening papers today?"

"I looked at the ones that came out in the morning labeled six p. m.; before I had lunch," he answered. "Is there anything of interest?"

She handed him a copy of the Planet. "Read that little paragraph in the second column," she pointed to it, as he took the paper, and Hugh read it aloud.

"Mr. Hiram C. Potts—the celebrated American millionaire—is progressing favorably. He has gone into the country for a few days, but is sufficiently recovered to conduct business as usual." He laid down the paper and looked at the girl sitting opposite.

"One is pleased," he remarked in a puzzled tone, "for the sake of Mr. Potts. That he is ill and has a manly like that is more than most men could stand. . . . But I don't quite see . . ."

"That man was stopping at the Carlton, where he met Lakington," said the girl. "He is a multi-millionaire, over here in connection with some big steel trust; and when multi-millionaires get friendly with Lakington, their health frequently does suffer."

"But this paper says he's getting better," objected Drummond. "Successfully recovered to conduct business as usual."

"If he is sufficiently recovered to conduct business as usual, why did he send his confidential secretary away yesterday morning on an urgent mission to Belfast?"

"Search me," said Hugh. "Incidentally, how do you know he did?"

"I asked at the Carlton this morning," she answered. "I said I'd come after a job as typist for Mr. Potts. They told me at the inquiry office that he was ill in bed and unable to see anybody. So I asked for his secretary, and they told me what I've just told you—that he had left for Belfast that morning and would be away several days. It may be that there's nothing in it; on the other hand, it may be that there's a lot. And it's only by following up every possible clue," she continued fiercely, "that I can hope to beat those fiends and get daddies out of their clutches."

Drummond nodded gravely, and did not speak. For into his mind had flashed suddenly the remembrance of that sinister, motionless figure seated by the chauffeur. The wildest guesswork certainly—no vestige of proof—and yet, having once come, the thought stuck. And as he turned it over in his mind, almost prepared to laugh at himself for his credulity, millionaires are not removed against their will, in broad daylight, from one of the biggest hotels in London; to sit in immovable silence in an open car—the door opened—and an elderly man came in.

Hugh rose, and the girl introduced the two men. "An old friend, daddy," she said. "You must have heard me speak of Captain Drummond."

"I don't recall the name; at the moment, my dear," he answered courteously—a fact which was hardly surprising—"but I fear I'm getting a little forgetful. You'll stop and have some dinner, of course."

Hugh bowed. "I should like to, Mr. Benton. Thank you very much. I'm afraid the hour of my call was a little informal, but being rapid to these parts, I felt I must come and look Miss Benton up."

His host smiled absently, and, walking to the window, stared through the gathering dusk at the house opposite, half hidden in the trees. And Hugh, who was watching him from under lowered lids, saw him suddenly clench both hands in a gesture of despair.

It cannot be said that dinner was a meal of sparkling gaiety. Mr. Benton was palpably ill at ease, and beyond a few desultory remarks spoke hardly at all; while the girl, who sat opposite Hugh, though she made one or two valiant attempts to break the long silences, spent most of the meal in covertly watching her father. If anything more had been required to convince Drummond of the genuineness of his interview with her at the Carlton the preceding day, the atmosphere at this strained and silent party supplied it.

As if unconscious of anything peculiar he rambled on in his usual inconsistent method, heedless of whether he was answered or not; but all the time his mind was busily working. He had already decided that a Rolls-Royce was not the only car on the market which could break down mysteriously, and with the town so far away, his host could hardly fail to ask him to stop the night. And then—

—he had not yet quite settled how—he proposed to have a closer look at The Elms.

At length the meal was over, and the maid, placing the decanter in front of Mr. Benton, withdrew from the room.

"You'll have a glass of port, Captain Drummond?" remarked his host, removing the stopper, and pushing the bottle toward him. "An old pre-war wine which I can vouch for."

Hugh smiled, and even as he lifted the heavy old cut glass, he stiffened suddenly in his chair. A cry—half shout, half scream, and stifled at once—had come echoing through the open window. With a crash the stopper fell from Mr. Benton's nerveless fingers, breaking the finger-bowl in front of him, while every vestige of color left his face.

"It's something these days to be able to say that," remarked Hugh, pouring out himself a glass. "Wine, Miss Benton?" He looked at the girl, who was staring feebly but of her window, and forced her to meet his eye. "It will do you good."

His tone was compelling, and after a moment's hesitation, she pushed the glass over to him. "Will you pour it out?" she said, and he saw that she was trembling all over.

"Did you—did you hear—anything?" With a vain endeavor to speak calmly, his host looked at Hugh.

"That night-bird?" he answered easily. "Eerie noises they make, don't they? Sometimes in France, when everything was still, and only the ghostly green flames went hissing up, one used to hear 'em. Started nervous scurries out of their lives." He talked on, and gradually the color came back to the other man's face. But Hugh noticed that he drained his port at a gulp, and immediately refilled his glass.

Outside everything was still; no repetition of that short, strangled cry again disturbed the silence. With the trailing herd of many hours in No Man's Land, Drummond was listening, even while he was speaking, for the faintest suspicious sound—but he heard nothing. The soft whispering night-noises came gently through the window; but the man who had screamed once did not even whimper again. He remembered hearing a similar cry near the brick-stacks at Guiney, and two nights later he had found the giver of it, at the edge of a mine-crater, with glazed eyes that still held in them the horror of the final second. And more persistently than ever, his thoughts centered on the fifth occupant of the Rolls-Royce.

It was with almost a look of relief that Mr. Benton listened to his tale of woe about his car.

"Of course you must stop here for the night," he cried. "Phyllis, my dear, will you tell them to get a room ready?"

With an inscrutable look at Hugh, in which thankfulness and apprehension seemed mingled, the girl left the room. There was an unnatural glitter in her father's eyes—a flush on his cheeks hardly to be accounted for by the warmth of the evening; and it struck Drummond that during the time he had been pretending to look at his car, Mr. Benton had been fortifying himself. It was obvious, even to the soldier's unprofessional eye, that the man's nerves had gone to pieces, his daughter's worst forebodings were likely to be fulfilled. He talked disjointedly and fast; his hands were not steady, and he seemed to be always waiting for something to happen.

Hugh had not been in the room ten minutes before his host produced the whisky, and during the time that he took to drink a mild nightcap, Mr. Benton succeeded in lowering three extremely strong glasses of spirit. And what made it the more sad was that the man was obviously not a heavy drinker by preference.

At eleven o'clock Hugh rose and said good night.

"You'll ring if you want anything, won't you?" said his host. "We don't have very many visitors here, but I hope you'll find everything you require. Breakfast at nine."

Drummond closed the door behind him, and stood for a moment in silence, looking round the hall. It was deserted, but he wanted to get the geography of the house firmly imprinted on his mind. He stepped across toward the drawing-room. Inside, as he hoped, he found the girl.

She rose the instant he came in, and stood by the mantelpiece with her hands locked.

"What was it?" she half whispered that awful noise at dinner?"

"He looked at her gravely for a while, and then he shook his head. "Shall we leave it as a night-bird for the present?" he said quietly. Then he leaned toward her, and took her hands in his own. "Go to bed, little girl," he ordered; "this is my show. And, may I say, I think you're just wonderful. Thank God you saw my advertisement!"

Gently he released her hands, and walking to the door, held it open for her. "If by any chance you should hear things in the night—turn over and go to sleep again."

"But what are you going to do?" she cried.

Hugh returned, "I haven't the remotest idea," he answered. "Doubtless the Lord will provide."

The instant the girl had left the room Hugh switched off the lights, and stepped across to the curtains which covered the long windows. He pulled them aside, letting them come together behind him; then, cautiously, he unrolled one side of the big center window. Silently he dodged across the lawn toward the big trees at the end, and leaning up against one of them, he proceeded to make a more detailed survey of his objective, The Elms. It was the same type of house as the one he had just left, and the grounds seemed about the same size.

A wire fence separated the two places, and in the darkness Hugh could just make out a small wicket-gate, closing a path which connected both houses. He tried it, and found to his satisfaction that it opened silently.

Save for one room on the ground-floor the house was in darkness, and Hugh determined to have a look at that room, through which the light was streaming out, which struck him as having possibilities.

Keeping under cover, he edged toward it, and, at length, he got into a position from which he could see inside. And what he saw made him decide to chance it, and go even closer.

Seated at the table was a man he did not recognize; while on either side of him sat Lakington and Peterson. Lying on a sofa smoking a cigarette and reading a novel was a tall, dark girl, who seemed completely uninterested in the proceedings of the other three. Hugh placed her at once as the doubtful daughter Irma, and resumed his watch on the group at the table.

A paper was in front of the man, and Peterson, who was smoking a large cigar, was apparently suggesting that he should make use of the pen which Lakington was obligingly holding in readiness. In all respects a harmless tableau, save for one small thing—the expression on the man's face. Hugh had seen it before often—only then it had been called shell-shock. The man was dazed, semi-unconscious. Every now and then he stared round the room, as if bewildered; then he would shake his head and pass his hand wearily over his forehead. For a quarter of an hour the scene continued; then Lakington produced an instrument from his pocket. Hugh saw the man shrink back in terror, and reach for the pen. But what impressed him most in that momentary flash of action was Peterson. There was something inhuman in his complete passivity. Even as he watched the man signing his name, no trace of emotion showed on his face—whereas on Lakington's there shone a fiendish satisfaction.

The document was still lying on the table, when Hugh produced his revolver. He knew there was foul play about, and the madness of what he had suddenly made up his mind to do never struck him; being that manner of fool, he was made that way. But he breathed a pious prayer that he would shoot straight—and then he held his breath. The crack of the shot and the bursting of the only electric light bulb in the room were almost simultaneous, and the next second, with a roar of "Come on, boys!" he burst through the window. At an immense advantage over the others, who could see nothing for the moment, he blundered round the room. He timed the blow at Lakington to a nicety; he hit him straight on the point of the jaw, and he felt the man go down like a log. Then he grabbed at the paper on the table, which tore in his hand, and picking the dazed signer up bodily, he rushed through the window onto the lawn. There was not an instant to be lost; only the impossibility of seeing when suddenly plunged into darkness, had enabled him to pull the thing off so far. And before that advantage disappeared he had to be back at The Larches with his burden, no light weight for even a man of his strength to carry.

But there seemed to be no pursuit, no line and cry. As he reached the little gate he paused and looked back, and he fancied he saw outside the window a gleam of white, such as a shirt front. He lingered for an instant, peering into the darkness and recovering his breath, when with a vicious glint something buried itself in the tree beside him. Drummond lingered no more; long years of experience left no doubt in his mind as to what that something was.

DAIRY FACTS

RULES FOR FEEDING CALVES

Desired Nutrients Furnished by Giving Young Animal Variety—Avoid Sudden Changes.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Feeding is an important factor in developing a good breeding animal, or a favorite in the show ring. There are many points to be remembered. These points may be called rules of feeding, among which specialists of the United States Department of Agriculture give the following:

1. Provide a variety of feeds at all times, if possible. It is easier to supply the proper amounts of the desired nutrients which the calf needs if several different feeds are used. The ration will also be more palatable.

2. Do not make sudden changes in the feeds used or in the amounts given. If it becomes necessary to change feeds from, say, clover to alfalfa hay, feed part clover and part alfalfa for a few days. Gradually reduce the amount of clover and at the same time increase the alfalfa.

Grain in Medium Amount, Fresh Water and Pasture Are Necessary for Success With Calves.

3. Do not overfeed the calf. Feed as much grain as it will clean up in 30 minutes and wish it had just a little more. Feed left in the trough to be breathed over is worse than wasted. If any remains it should be removed and less given the next time. Digestive disorders occur from feeding too much rather than too little.

4. Do not underfeed the calf. It should make a continuous gain. If it does not grow each day the feed given it is about the same as wasted. It never pays to starve a calf. In fact, the calf does not begin to pay for feed until it is given more than enough to make some gain.

5. Do not annoy or disturb the calf unnecessarily. It requires more feed, to keep it growing while standing or moving about than while lying down at rest.

6. Do not feed moldy, musty, or spoiled feeds. To do so may cause serious digestive disorders. All hay should be bright, well cured, and free from mustiness, dirt, and coarse weeds. The grain also should be free from dirt, mold, and mustiness. If ground feeds get wet they are likely to mold. This is especially true of cottonseed meal and ground corn.

7. Do not waste time in feeding the calf, or in preparing feed, since wasted time needlessly increases the cost of gains. Grain should be fed whole except when teaching the calf to eat and possibly also near the end of the fitting or finishing period. Whole grain is a rule is more palatable than ground feeds. Ear corn may be shelled, broken, or chopped up in the feed box rather than ground. Husks on unappetized corn need not be removed for this purpose. It rarely pays to shred clover or to cut or chaff hay for the calf. It need not be fed three times a day when twice a day will do as well, although the former may be practiced when fitting the animal for show or sale. Do not go to the expense of buying prepared "stock feeds" or "medicines." Home-mixed feeds are cheaper and equally, if not more, satisfactory. A healthy calf does not need condition powders.

ENCOURAGE FENCE JUMPERS

Dilapidated Fencing Is Source of Constant Trouble for Owner of Dairy Herd.

Half broken down fences help to teach the cows to be fence jumpers. Heifers that are constantly jumping the fences in easy places are difficult to break in later life and nothing is more wasteful of time and patience than constantly chasing your cattle out of your neighbor's crops or your own. Good fencing is necessary equipment for the dairyman and poor fencing is a constant risk.

GIVING YOUNG CALVES MILK

Care Should Be Taken That Temperature Is Uniform—When Poor in Quality, Give Less.

Care should be taken to see that any milk fed to the young calves is of uniform temperature of about 90 degrees Fahrenheit. Many feeders attempt to overcome poor quality in the feed by increasing the quantity. This is radically wrong. When on account of age, soiling, dirt, etc., the quality of the milk is poor, the quantity should be reduced rather than increased

FROM REMOTEST PARTS OF GLOBE

Tanlac Elements Come From Many Lands Far Away From Here.

The ingredients from which the celebrated medicine Tanlac is made, come from remote sections of the earth, and are transported thousands of miles over land and sea to the great Tanlac Laboratories at Dayton, Ohio, and Walkersville, Canada.

The Alps, Apennines, Pyrenees, Russian Asia, Brazil, West Indies, Rocky Mountains, Asia Minor, Persia, India, Mexico, Colombia and Peru are among the far away points from which the principal properties of this remarkable preparation are obtained.

What is said to be the largest pharmaceutical laboratory in the United States has been completed at Dayton, Ohio, for the manufacture of Tanlac, which, according to recent reports, is now having the largest sale of any medicine of its kind in the world, over 20,000,000 bottles having been sold in six years.

The new plant occupies 60,000 square feet of floor space and has a daily capacity of 50,000 bottles. Uniform quality is guaranteed by a series of careful inspections by expert chemists from the time the roots, herbs, barks and flowers are received in their rough state from all parts of the globe, until their medicinal properties have been extracted by the most approved processes. The finished medicine is then bottled, labeled and shipped out to tens of thousands of druggists throughout the United States and Canada, to supply a demand never before equaled by this or any other medicine.

Tanlac is sold by leading druggists everywhere.—Advertisement.

Western Canada Land of Prosperity

Offers to home seekers opportunities that cannot be secured elsewhere. The thousands of farmers from the United States who have secured Canada's generous offer to settle on FREE homesteads or buy farms in her provinces have been well rewarded by bountiful crops. There is still available a large territory of fertile land at $15 to $30 an acre—land similar to that which in many years has yielded from 20 to 45 bushels of wheat to the acre—oats, barley and flax also in great abundance, while raising horses, cattle, sheep and hogs is equally profitable. Hundreds of farmers in Western Canada have raised crops in a single season worth more than the whole cost of their land. With such success comes prosperity, independence, good homes and all the comforts and conveniences which make life worth living. Farm Gardens, Poultry, Dairying are sources of income second only to grain growing and stock raising. Attractive climate, good neighbors, churches and schools, good markets, railroad facilities, rural telephone, etc. For certificate entitling you to reduced railway rates, illustrated literature, maps, description of farm opportunities in Manitoba, Saskatchewan, Alberta and British Columbia, etc., write to J. PALMER'S LOTION

FINE, PLAIN HATS FOR THE CHILDREN

AFTER she has passed her third birthday the little maid arrives at the threshold of her millinery experiences and begins to wear blocked hats. If it be summer time she comes into possession of a fine soft millan or other straw and for winter she finds herself in possession of heavier or felt headwear. In either case the hat will be simple in design and in trimming and of the same character as those made for her each season until she is counting her years in "teens."

It is astonishing to find the great variety in shapes and sizes made in these blocked hats which at first glance seem so simple. But when it is considered that they must suit so many ages and so many types the necessity for numerous shapes and variations of those shapes is plain. There is just the right hat for each little girl and finding this shape is about the only task that confronts her mother in the selection of these blocked hats, for their good style is assured and has been for years.

A few of the favorite models in millans appear in the group above. At the upper right a little mite of four or more wears a bonnetlike shape with a round crown having about it a band of satillie ribbon with short ends at the back. Only good qualities in ribbon are used on these hats because they must see much service. At the top of the group a shape that is very successful for girls from seven to sixteen is shown. It is the wide-brimmed French sailor shape in millan with its brim edged with a flange of the braid in a darker color or shade than that in the body of the hat. It has a wide collar and sash ends of heavy ribbon. At the right of it another little bonnet-shape for younger girls appears with square crown above its drooping brim and sash of ribbon. Below is another variation of the French sailor revealing a sharper up-turn in the brim and larger crown than the first sailor. For a very little mite one may select a bonnet with millan brim and satin crown, or the very elegant model which finishes the group—a square-crowned poke with handsome wide ribbon furnishing a sash with long ends.

Ribbon and the Layette

NEARLY every necessity and all of the luxuries of the layette prove fascinating work when the time comes to make them. Women delight in fashioning pretty, diminutive belongings for the baby, especially if they may be made of fine or luxurious materials, and it seems they are turning more and more to ribbons. There is such a long list of things for the layette that are made of ribbons these days that it seems as if ingenious and prolific minds somewhere must be busy all the time thinking only of two things—ribbons and ribbons.

Just a few of the new articles designed in ribbons are shown here, but they include such gifts as friends like to make. In addition there are many small bags, ribbon-lined baskets, pin-cushions, booties, sleeve and sock garters, bows for the carriage robe and small bows and rosettes to deck out little dresses. Each of these, as well as the articles pictured, are made in many different ways.

Little booties of ribbon bid fair to usurp the place of the knitted or crocheted boot and they are provided with bootie cases, also made of ribbon. One of these is shown at the top of the picture. It is simply an envelope of satin ribbon having the flap fastened down with two snap fasteners adorned with two rosettes of baby ribbon placed over the fasteners. These cases are made in several shapes, as circular pieces with pockets attached to one side for holding the booties and shirtings of baby ribbon for decorations.

A coat hanger, as pictured, is made of a thin, well joined together in strips, having the seams bound with narrow ribbon. It is stuffed with lavender and finished off with a rosette of narrow ribbon. In this hanger the hook is wound with ribbon. Wide, soft satin ribbon is used for the cap and jacket pictured, with narrow Val lace and narrow figured ribbon making the pretty decorations. The cap has ties of satin ribbon. The pretty sleeve garters employ satin ribbon shirred over narrow flat elastic with little ribbon roses and loops distinguishing themselves as a finishing touch. There are numberless sachet bags made of bits of ribbon and the devices for holding safety pins are endlessly varied.

TIMELY FOODS.

The fresh green things appeal to the appetite at this season of the year, as well as all growing things such as mushrooms. Vegetables which are boiled lose much of their valuable mineral content because of its solubility. When the water is drained off and thrown away these minerals are lost to the food. It is a good practice to serve the vegetable in a manner that will conserve the minerals. If cooked in water let it be as little as possible and serve it with seasonings as a sauce with the vegetable. Peas, beans, greens of various kinds, should be thus served.

Lettuce, Pepper and Egg Salad.—Arrange a platter of lettuce, sprinkle with finely shredded green peppers and then add three or four hard-cooked eggs cut in eighths, sprinkle with finely minced chives and cover with French dressing. Serve well chilled.

Tomato and Peanut Salad.—Peel the tomatoes carefully and remove the centers so as to form a cup. Fill with chopped cabbage and peanuts, well mixed. Add French dressing, and when serving put a spoonful of mayonnaise on top of each.

Buttered Beets.—Cook small, tender beets, skin them, then chop rather coarsely. Add olive oil or butter, heat them very hot, season well with salt, pepper and a dash of lemon juice, and serve piping hot.

Vegetable Luncheon Dish.—Arrange on a hot platter a pile of freshly boiled seasoned spinach, adding butter and vinegar, surrounding the spinach with one and one-half cups of creamed onions, then around this two cups of thick tomato. Garnish, if desired, with hard-cooked eggs cut in eighths.

Onion and Cream Cheese Sandwiches.—To one small cream cheese add minced onions spread on buttered brown bread and cut in finger-sized sandwiches. See that the cheese and onions are well seasoned and mixed.

Who said they didn't like June? The month when all flowers bloom; When school is out And we frolic about Who said they didn't like June?

DESSERTS.

A dessert which is both delicious to the taste and charming in appearance is prepared as follows: Bake an angel-food in a sheet, cut it in squares, arrange on service plates, cover with a layer of crushed sweetened strawberries, then top with sweetened whipped cream or a thin slice of brick-ice cream.

Macaroon Charlotte.—Cover one-half pound of macaroons with a quart of hot cream and when cool beat and mix well. Add the yolks of six eggs and a teaspoonful of vanilla, fold in the stiffly beaten whites of the eggs and fill buttered mold. Bake for ten minutes or until the custard is firm.

Blackberry Scones.—Take two and one-half cups of flour, three teaspoonfuls of baking powder, two and one-half tablespoonfuls of milk, one tablespoonful of butter and one tablespoonful of any other sweet fat, one-half cupful of raisins, one-half teaspoonful of salt and seven-eighths of a cupful of milk. Roll into four pieces after mixing well and bake in a hot oven. Split open but do not cut clear through. Fill with jam or crushed fresh fruit.

Mock Goose.—Parboil a leg of pork, skin and stuff, using the usual goose stuffing. Put to roast with a little water and baste with the juice of the meat. When half done, sprinkle with sage, pepper, finely minced onion, salt and pepper. Serve with gravy.

Buttercup Jelly.—Take one envelope of gelatin, soak in one cupful of cold water, add one pint of milk, three egg yolks well beaten and one cupful of sugar. Scald the milk and add the sugar and egg yolks. Cook to a custard, flavor and cool, then fold in the stiffly beaten whites of the eggs and pour into molds to chill. Serve with fruit jelly and top with whipped cream.

Mushrooms English Fashion.—After washing and peeling the mushrooms, add salt and pepper and toss them in a saucepan in hot butter until well cooked (five minutes is usually sufficient). Dish upon squares of toasted bread and lay on each two thin slices of broiled bacon.

Baked Stuffed Onions.—Parboil large-sized onions and remove the centers. Chop the part removed, add sausage or other highly seasoned meat, salt and pepper or chopped nuts. Bake, fastidiously during the baking with butter and water, or pour over the onions thin cream. Bake until tender.

WHY DRUGGISTS RECOMMEND SWAMP-ROOT

For many years druggists have watched with much interest the remarkable record maintained by Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney, liver and bladder medicine.

It is a physician's prescription. Swamp-Root is a strengthening medicine. It helps the kidneys, liver and bladder do the work nature intended they should do.

Swamp-Root has stood the test of years. It is sold by all druggists on its merit and it should help you. No other kidney medicine has so many friends.

Be sure to get Swamp-Root and start treatment at once. However, if you wish first to test this great preparation send ten cents to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., for a sample bottle. When writing be sure and mention this paper.—Adv.

That Relative Theory.

It happened after the club meeting. Two members met in the corridor.

"I was just thinking about poor Uriah Humpson," said one.

"What about him?"

"Well, you know what a lovely home his wife bought with his insurance money?"

"Yes, of course."

"You know the man who married his widow married again as soon as Mrs. Humpson passed away?"

"What, again?"

"Yes; that's three times for him."

"No wonder you say, 'Poor Uriah.'"

"Yes, indeed; just think how he must feel up there looking down on a man he never saw living in his house as his wife's second husband, with his third wife."—Penny-Inch's L'arch Row.

Children Cry For Fletcher's CASTORIA

Special Care of Baby.

That Baby should have a bed of its own all are agreed. Yet it is more reasonable for an infant to sleep with grown-ups than to use a man's medicine in an attempt to regulate the delicate organism of that same infant. Either practice is to be shunned. Neither would be tolerated by specialists in children's diseases.

Your Physician will tell you that Baby's medicine must be prepared with even greater care than Baby's food.

A Baby's stomach when in good health is too often disarranged by improper food. Could you for a moment, then, think of giving to your ailing child anything but a medicine especially prepared for Infants and Children? Don't be deceived.

Make a mental note of this:—It is important, Mothers, that you should remember that to function well, the digestive organs of your Baby must receive special care. No Baby is so abnormal that the desired results may be had from the use of medicines primarily prepared for grown-ups.

THEIR ESTIMATES TOO LOW

Proof That Engineers Have Erred in Their Figures Concerning the Weight of Crowds.

Interesting experiments were made some time ago at Harvard university which seem to demonstrate that engineers usually underestimate the maximum loading caused by dense crowds on bridges, floors and platforms. Forty men averaging 150 pounds in weight placed in a box six feet square caused an average pressure of 151 pounds to the square foot on the floor.

An engineer has estimated the weight per square foot of the densest crowds on the New York elevated railways at only 45 pounds, but since the Harvard experiments the opinion has been expressed that the maximum loading on the elevated cars and platforms may be nearer 151 than 45 pounds. This applies to other close-packed crowds.

Object Lesson for Americans.
The lesson of deforestation in China is one that mankind should have learned many times from what has occurred in other places. In fact, it may be in a lesser degree, even be brought home to the people of America in future years unless, through wise forethought, care is exercised in the preservation of our forests from destruction by fire and wasteful lumbering.

A woman's head was put on the dollar because money talks.—Greenville (S. C.) Piedmont.

Thrills.
"Why don't you make one of those old-fashioned ringing speeches that thrill the hearts of the multitude?"
"Because," replied Senator Sorghum, "people who want thrills no longer depend on orations. They go to the pictures."

Suitability.
"Is your daughter going to a dance?"
"No, she wouldn't dress so elaborately for a dance. She's going to work."

Might Help.
"Was Shakespeare a poet?"
"I don't care whether that story is true or not," said the erudite person, "but if it is true it's a pity some of our contemporary dramatists can't take a preliminary course in deer steaking."
