

NEAR SERIOUS ACCIDENT

Locomotive On Fast Michigan Central Train Broke Wrist Pin.

No. 108, a section of the Wolverine, a fast Michigan Central east-bound passenger train, narrowly escaped a serious wreck Tuesday afternoon when a wrist-pin on the left side of the locomotive broke and allowed the front end of the main connecting rod to drop out of the cross-head.

The heavy main-rod buried itself in the road bed for about six feet, cutting off three ties, then pulled loose and flailed off parts of the locomotive. One big chunk of iron went beneath the train and crushed in the electric-lighting generator on the baggage car, but did not derail it. Another big chunk landed on the main west-bound track, in the path of another approaching fast train, but was removed just in the nick of time by two young men who were taking inventory of the line and who happened to be at that point.

The accident occurred at the Jackson-Washtenaw county line, about six miles west of Chelsea. There is a steep embankment and a sharp curve at that point, and derailment might have resulted in a serious wreck in which the coaches would have rolled down the bank onto the D. J. & C. electric line track, which parallels the steam road tracks at that point.

The train was delayed for about two hours and meanwhile other trains were obliged to run around it on the west-bound track, crossing over at Francisco and Chelsea.

CARD OF THANKS.

If You Need a Medicine You Should Have the Best

Have you ever stopped to reason why it is that so many products that are extensively advertised, all at once drop out of sight and are soon forgotten? The reason is plain—the article did not fulfill the promise of the manufacturer. This applies more particularly to a medicine. A medicinal preparation that has real curative value almost sells itself, as like an endless chain system the remedy is recommended by those who have been benefited, to those who are in need of it.

A prominent druggist says: "Take for example Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, a preparation I have sold for many years and never hesitate to recommend, for in almost every case it shows excellent results, as many of my customers testify. No other kidney remedy has so large a sale."

According to sworn statements and verified testimony of thousands who have used the preparation, the success of Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root is due to the fact, so many people claim, that it fulfills almost every wish in overcoming kidney, liver and bladder ailments, corrects urinary troubles and neutralizes the uric acid which causes rheumatism.

You may receive a sample bottle of Swamp-Root by Parcel Post. Address Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., and enclose ten cents; also mention this paper. Large and medium size bottles for sale at all drug stores.

The director, who has a reputation for being rather harsh and overbearing in his methods, was giving his leading man a tongue-lashing that fairly turned the atmosphere blue. Through it all, however, the victim looked calmly at the director and smiled happily.

"Why, yes, I rather enjoy it," chuckled the actor. "It recalls the good old days, you know, when I played Uncle Tom and was beaten to death every night by Simon Legree."—Film Fun.

Quite in Order.
W. R. Trites, who has been living in Southern Spain for the last year or two, said the other day:

"Life is very abundant and profitable over there, especially insect life. There was a typographical error in one of my stories recently, but this error would have escaped notice in Andalusia, though it excited a lot of disgust here at home.

"The error was in the quotation of a hymn, my heroine being made to sing:

"Just as I am without one flaw,"
"A hymn, would like that would be quite in order in Spain."

Workings of Lie Detector.
When your husband comes home rather late and tells you he had an important business engagement all you have to do is to try it on the sphynxometer. The sphynxometer is an invention by William H. Professor Marston says that when a person tells a lie, especially if he is under oath, there is an emotional reaction, affecting the breathing and the blood pressure.

"The breathing of married men is seldom affected by a mechanical lie,"—Syracuse Herald.

ACTION! ACTION!

Adventure—romance—mystery—battle, murder and sudden death! Well, rather. And action, action, action—on every page. That's Randall Parrish's new story, "The Mystery of the Silver Dagger."

Suppose you were an American diplomat and you fell in love at first sight with a wonderful, mysterious girl who was apparently deep in an international revolutionary conspiracy and you had the identity of a famous crook thrust upon you and you found one of the chief conspirators dead from a stab with the mysterious girl's silver dagger? And suppose you set to work to break up the conspiracy and solve the murder and win the girl—wouldn't you be busy? Well, that's this hero and his job.

As to Randall Parrish, all novel-readers know him and his stories. And this is one of his best.

CHAPTER I.

The Message in the Box.

Anticipating the possibility of my train arriving late, I had named the hour of my meeting with Cummings as three o'clock, and in consequence of my reaching the city exactly on time, was compelled to loiter idly about the hotel for an hour. However, in passing through the corridor my attention was attracted by an unusual curiosity shop occupying a small side room, and, merely to pass the time pleasantly, I entered and began examining the strange collection of wares on display.

There were several articles I lingered over, tempted to purchase, but drifted on, rather undecided, until my eyes perceived a very quaint incriminated jewel box, of a class of workmanship quite unusual. The proprietor, perceiving my interest, joined me.

"The jewel box attracts you," he said pleasantly, opening the case and bringing it forth. "You have love for such things?"

"A deep interest at least," I admitted, taking the article from his hand, "a collector in an amateur way. What is the workmanship—surely not Japanese?"

"No," smilingly. "Although positively I cannot answer as to its origin. The inscription, which can only be read with a microscope—he traced with his finger—"is ancient Arabic, but no wild Arab ever did the inscription."

"Yet so strange a curio must have a history, an imaginary one, at least. What is the story?"

"Positively none," he admitted regretfully. "The fact is, this article was found by a chambermaid in one of the hotel rooms, and turned in to the manager. He made every effort to trace the guests, only to learn that they, two men, by the way, had registered falsely. He even advertised, but with no response, and finally, after thirty days, was persuaded to accept my offer for the article."

"You have put a price on this?"

"Yes, ridiculously low, no doubt, yet bringing me a good profit."

He named a price, and, still with the box in my hands, I yielded to the temptation, and bought it. The article was sufficiently small in size to fit into an overcoat pocket, and, as Cummings appeared a little later, was soon forgotten in the earnestness of our conversation. We later had dinner together, and attended the theater in company, my mind so occupied with other matters that I scarcely once thought of the strange purchase I had made, which remained securely hidden. It was only after returning to my own room, then hearing midnight, that it was again recalled to memory.

Only an idle curiosity and a feeling of sleeplessness induced me to draw the article forth, and remove its wrappings, but the sight served immediately to increase my interest. It was certainly a wonderful find, artistically beautiful, and most unusual in design. There was a mystery that must have exercised a strange spell over my imagination, for I dreamed of the long, dead workman who fashioned it, forgetful of the passing night hours. A clock somewhere in the neighborhood struck, and I counted twelve, arousing myself. Perhaps I was already half asleep, for as I turned to rise my sleeve struck the box at the edge of the table, and before I could prevent the fall, it lay upon the floor at my feet.

As I stooped hastily to recover the overturned box, I was astounded to discover the bottom slipped partially aside, as though some secret spring had been touched, revealing so narrow a receptacle that the ordinary eye would never suspect the possibility of its existence. Not only was there a false bottom, but the opening revealed a closely folded paper. I grasped this quickly, a thrill running through me. What ancient and long buried message was about to be unfolded?

But no! This was plainly modern—a clean, white sheet, no folded parchment of old, but some mystery of yesterday. There was writing there, in Spanish, so faintly traced I could barely decipher the words, yet clearly revealed as of this day and generation. I knew Spanish fairly well, having had a year in Mexico City, yet it required some time before I could puzzle out the message on this sheet. The paper had been torn, seemingly sundried from a much longer letter, and preserved merely because of the specific address and instructions it contained. Beyond doubt all else had been destroyed. What remained may have been sufficient guidance to the party who had the benefit of what went before in the original epistle, but was obscure to anyone else. Yet it was modern, something relating to this very time, a message; something to be grasped and understood. This conviction absolutely gripped me. I stared at the rather sinister words, blindly groping at what lay hidden behind them, instinctively sensing a conspiracy of evil which I could not determine. All unintentional I had stumbled into a clue which might lead to startling results, yet it seemingly gave me no hint of who was involved, or of its real nature. I put the words together, weighing each one with care as to its exact meaning, and read them over with increased bewilderment. The torn fragment began and ended abruptly; I could only guess at its meaning, yet the impression left upon my mind was both sinister and menacing. I wanted to know more.

On Saturday from Stockholm, Will deposit letter of credit with Krantz to your order. Amount ample all needs. See to this at once, and advise the Gans, so as to be no delay. Two raps, three—Cavendish. Waldron favors action this month, suggest Watonia. Can you be ready? Use South A code.

That this letter was authentic I had no doubt, nor was its meaning altogether obscure in the light of certain events. Several allusions were familiar to me and these were what caused my earlier suspicion to crystallize into probability. It bore all the earmarks of a plot, a revolutionary plot, and one not yet brought to consummation. To be sure the note was undated, and the box had been left at the hotel thirty days before. Yet the Watonia was certainly the name of a ship, and to my memory suggested Central American trade. This did not necessarily imply that the conspirators had abandoned their purpose. More likely they were not quite ready in time to operate on the sailing date of that particular ship. Some delay had occurred, and, possibly, even now prompt action might overturn all their plans. I undressed and went to bed, but not to sleep, for the darkness brought new thoughts and suggestions for the morrow.

I was still in government employ, although unassigned, and felt this discovery to be a direct call upon my service. While my first inclination should naturally have been to turn the whole matter over to the proper bureau for investigation, two facts led me in another direction—I was sufficiently young to seek adventure, and I desired to verify my suspicions before creating any false alarm.

As I rested there, sleepless, staring up at the black ceiling, the words of the strange fragment of letter remained vividly before me. Little by little I dug at the truth, coming finally to this conclusion: "108" was, no doubt, the recognized number of some agent who had been dispatched to America on a special errand to the conspirators in this country. He had sailed Saturday, a month ago or more, and must have long since arrived at some port, bringing with him instructions not to be trusted to the wall, and sufficient money, in form of letter of credit, with which to finance whatever nefarious scheme of revolution might be contemplated. This money was to be paid out to the authorized party through a man named Krantz. Who was Krantz? There was a well-known banking firm, Kulb, Krantz & Co., in Wall Street, and it was quite probable these might prove the ones involved, although to my knowledge they had no outward Junta connections of this nature. "Gans" was evidently a street, although I could recall none bearing so peculiar appellation, while the password was in itself proof almost positive as to the South or Central American sympathies of the conspirators.

These facts were fairly clear as I thus weaved them together, but they were rendered more damning by the other name mentioned—Waldron. If this was Ivan Waldron, I had good reason to know the fellow, and to connect his activities with any scheme destined to embarrass the government. He was a professional agitator of the most pronounced type, a socialist radical, who in the past had openly advocated opposition to all law and order. Moreover, the fellow had a large and desperate following, to whom he was a high priest. He was reported to be a Russian by birth, but spoke English without an accent, and I felt no doubt but what a sufficient amount of money would engage his interest in any desperate cause. The desire to "get him" added zest to my interest in the affair. If he was actually at the head of these fellows, these plotters against the neutrality of the United States, the catch would be worth while.

As soon as possible next morning I sought out Burke, the manager of the hotel, with whom I had a speaking acquaintance, and, without confiding the extent of my discovery, questioned him relative to the mysterious box, and the guests who left it behind. Two men, he said, both well dressed, but with nothing particularly to distinguish them, had registered together late in the afternoon of Friday, September 27, and on request had been assigned to one room with twin beds and a bath. The larger man, who had inscribed himself as "P. S. Horner, Detroit," alone had a bag; his companion, known to the hotel as "Gustave Altra, Toledo, Ohio," being without baggage. The bill was paid the next morning by Horner, and the two departed together. It was an hour later when the chambermaid on that floor reported finding the box in the room vacated. After holding it for a day or two in expectation that it might be called for, no such inquiries being made, the hotel endeavored to trace the men, but to no avail. The fellows had either falsely registered, or were entirely unknown where they claimed residence. The first was the most probable condition. After thirty days, and having exhausted all reasonable efforts to find the rightful owner, the hotel felt legally justified in selling the trinket. That was all Burke knew of the matter, and his interest in it was not keen.

I am inclined to think now that I went at the problem without much system, and that any success achieved was through pure accident. During the forenoon I dropped in upon Clement Breckenridge, cashier of the Dover's National bank. We had been classmates at college, and I generally called on him when in the city. This time I led the conversation to Kulb, Krantz & Co., on the pretense that I had received mail from them relative to some recommended investment. Clement knew Krantz well and favorably, and my probing elicited the information that the man was Austrian by birth, but a naturalized citizen, rather deeply interested in political matters. If his sympathies were at all revolutionary he had carefully refrained from any such open expression. The firm had made a specialty of handling South American business, and had intimate financial connections in both Rio and Buenos Aires. The company ranked high in financial circles.

"The present war must have cost them a rather heavy loss," I hazarded. "However, this is nothing to me. By the way, Clement, do you chance to know of a Gans street in this town?"

"Gans? That is a new one on me. Try the city directory—there on the edge of the desk."

The name was not to be found, nor any other approaching it in sound or spelling, and I finally drifted out onto the street, really no wiser than when I first entered. I made one more effort, however, telephoning to a detective sergeant whom I knew well, as to the present whereabouts of Ivan Waldron. The last heard of Waldron, he was in West Virginia, speaking in striking numbers; that was less than a week ago; he had not been seen in the city since.

BACK TO THE K. P. DUTIES

Louisville, Ky., Legion Men Respond to Appeal From Housekeepers for Housecleaning Helpers.

An alarming shortage of domestics faced the housewives of Louisville, Ky., when they began their spring housecleaning recently. Unable to do all the scrubbing, window washing, carpet beating and sweeping themselves, with the maids of ante-bellum days continuing their work in mills and factories, the Louisville women feared that their city would not be spick and span for Derby day. Then the American Legion posts of the city came to their rescue.

"All you former kitchen police; here's a chance to ply your honorable calling with pay and with a housewife in charge of the detail," read the Back to Kitchen Police Duty.

Legion's announcement to unemployed ex-service men. They responded in platoons and squads, doughboys, gobs and pyrenes, each reciting his record with the broom and mop. The housewives made a rush for them.

The plan is being adopted in several cities nearby with entire satisfaction to the employers and employed.

HOPES TO SERVE UNCLE SAM

Captain Griffith, Late of His Majesty's Air Forces, Seeks Further Thrills.

It will take an act of congress to get him into the air service of the United States navy, but Capt. John S. Griffith, Seattle, Wash., late of his majesty's air forces and wearer of five decorations, is hopeful that Uncle Sam will accept him.

Too young to enter the American army, Captain Griffith left a high school in Seattle to enlist in the royal flying corps at Toronto, Canada. He served through four years of fighting and is officially credited with having shot down nine German airplanes and two balloons. He received the British Distinguished Flying Cross and four Russian decorations.

In the Archangel sector, Captain Griffith, flying for the British, fought the Holstevik with such success that they set a price of 15,000 rubles on his head. All the wars having ended, he was sent to Egypt, Seattle post of the American Legion, which Captain Griffith joined immediately upon his return to his native land, are helping him in his effort to have congress legislate that he may find an occupational thrill in the naval flying squadrons of America.

Slightly Mixed.
An ex-doughboy was relating his experiences over there.

"I'll say it was some battle. I was up in the air for the time being with my back against the wall, but I resolved to die in the ditch rather than to yield an inch, so I continued to advance regardless of the Jerries who were pressing me from the rear."—American Legion News Service.

Former Empress Laid to Rest.
Potsdam, Germany.—It was the Germany that has passed which laid Augusta Victoria, former empress, to rest in the Antique temple, surrounded by forest trees faintly showing their new leaves and brightened by the sun of early spring. Old men and women predominated among the mourners. It was the demobilized army and navy and the dethroned rulers of various principalities of the kingdom once forming the German Federation which gathered

EVERYBODY SEES A CHANGE IN FATHER

Grateful Son Says His Father
Looks Like Different Man
Since Taking Tanlac.

"My father has suffered from chronic stomach trouble for over twenty years and has paid out thousands of dollars for medicines and doctors," said G. W. Clayton, a well-known Cobb County farmer, living a short distance out of Atlanta, Ga.

"We tried nearly everything trying to cure him and he went off to the Springs, thinking maybe the water might help him, but it just looked like nothing would reach his trouble. Then he tried dieting and lived on liquid food until he almost starved, but even that failed to do him any good and he just kept going from bad to worse."

"I don't guess there ever was a case as stubborn as his, and if there ever was a confirmed dyspeptic he was one of them, and I guess he would have been one yet if it hadn't been for this Tanlac."

"The first we heard of this medicine was when my father saw an advertisement in the papers from parties he knew in Tennessee, who were friends of his and he knew what they said about it was the truth, so he got it right away and began taking it. Well, sir, it acted just like magic—everybody notices the change in father. Why, he is just like a different man and sits down to the table and eats like a furball. Only yesterday he ate pork and turnips for his dinner and ate so much we were actually afraid he was going to overdo the thing, but he laughed and said nothing hurt him now and that he was hungry and expected to eat and make up for lost time."

"Now, when a medicine will do things like that I think people ought to know about it, and I want to say right now that I would not give one bottle of Tanlac for all the other medicines and health resorts in the country put together."

Tanlac is sold by leading druggists everywhere.—Advertisement.

ROUGH, BUT EFFECTIVE CURE

Why Alice Gailyly No Longer Bore People With Long Recital of Her Physical Ailments.

Pollie Dear and Mollie Love met out shopping one morning and immediately forgot all about shopping, time, hungry husbands at home, etc., in a "few minutes' chat."

Just then Alice Gailyly passed by. Each smiled sweetly at the other, and murmured:

"Good morning."

As soon as Alice had passed on, Pollie turned to Mollie and said:

"I notice Alice doesn't go around boring other people with her ailments as she used to."

"No," smiled Mollie. "She met a man who cured her completely."

"Ooh!" purred Pollie. "Who was he? Was he a doctor?"

"Oh, no," answered Mollie. "She was telling this man some of her symptoms, when he remarked, 'It's strange how many of these things afflict people as they begin to grow old! Since then she has held her tongue about them.'"

And many a man's bravery is due to his knowledge of the fact that the other fellow is a coward.

HAMP'S TIME SURE TO COME

Gap Johnson Has It Mapped Out, and It Will Be a Sure Day for the Bluffer.

"Hamp-Slaughter has an interesting sort of fun," related Gap Johnson of Rumpus Ridge. "About once in so often he gets a few drams of bone-dry flicker and a high fever, and shows up in the middle of the big road out yur. He flings his hat down in the dust and stomps on it, and yells that he's a man eater, and such as that, and can whip a certain black-hearted son-of-a-bitch-and-father living not more than a mile from yur. When I go out to inquire which special black-hearted thing-and-so on he means he says Zach Platt, three-quarters of a mile up the road. So there ain't much to do but to excuse him. Then he goes friend-seeking off to Zach's place and repeats the performance. When Zach wants to know who he is referring to he says it's me. After that he rambles around nothing that he's got us both bluffed."

One of these days, he's going to catch me and Zach together, and find out his—yaw-waw-w—mistake."—Kansas City Star.

"We've discussed it," said Cactus Joe; "but we came to the conclusion that bluffed is too good for him."

Filmy Frocks for Graduates

DESIGNERS have succeeded in writing "youth" into all the lovely frocks designed for this year's graduates. They have chosen filmy fabrics and made them up in styles that are as dainty as the flowers of spring, and these same flowers are made much of in their decoration. In fabrics organdy is a long way in the lead of a list that includes net (plaid and dotted) in silk or cotton, fine voile, lace, swiss, crepe-de-chine and other crepes.

One reason for the success of organdy is that it provides its own trimmings. Frills, ruchings, flowers, petals and other decorations made of it are not outwitted by any other kind of ornament. Tucks and hemstitching are suited to it and it makes the most buoyant and youthful of dresses. The graduation frock pictured is an example of its translation into just the right character of dress for the young maid. In this frock narrow tucks and cut lace edging make a setting for embroidered daisies done in mercerized floss, with white petals and yellow centers. Daisies made of white organdy are set about the girdle of another pretty frock and on a model having a long tunic made up of several panels, they appear, embroidered in white and yellow, at the bottom of each panel. Strips of organdy piped on the edges are gathered along the center to four ruchings that edge the panels.

Organdy frocks have wide hems often cut in shallow scallops at the top and headed with frills. These frills, with piped edges, are used alone for decorating many frocks and often placed in festoons running in parallel rows on the skirt and bodice. White, hemstitched tucks or narrower ones edged with narrow lace are perhaps the best liked of all decorative features. Nearly all net dresses are tucked and the tucks bordered with narrow satin ribbon stitched to their edges, or with narrow lace.

Frolic Frocks Are Afield

BEGINNING at two years old, to wear amusing little bloomers, the modern maid progresses through her frolicsome years, up to her fifteenth birthday, in clothes that invite her to vie with her brothers in strenuous play. Until she is five at least, waists, with peg top or other bloomers buttoned to them, made of strong materials, give her all the freedom she needs. Frocks to be worn over the bloomers need not be reckoned with before her sixth year, unless they are a matter of personal preference on the part of her mother.

Frolic suits are made of plain chambray, satin and of heavier cottons, of small plaid and checked ginghams and of sturdy white cottons. Medium and dark blues—including navy—medium and dark greens, light purple, browns and yellows in the plain weaves, and the popular colors. In checked ginghams a color with white are favored and in small plaids several light colors are combined. The bloomers are plain, full and knee-length, the frocks usually cut with kimono sleeves. Nothing is so popular for the springly-used decorations as the very simplest needlework, as cross-stitches, running-stitches or a few embroidered polka dots. Button-hole stitches serve to finish edges, but bindings of broad or other fabrics are sometimes substituted for stitchings. In the little suit pictured, in this suit the bands on the bloomer legs are buttonholed, the neck sleeves and pockets finished with a binding. Small stars and dots embroidered in mercerized cotton floss provide a little ornament for the sleeve bands and shoulders. Stitchery is in a color that contrasts with the material usually.

In some suits ginghams and chambrays are combined, the bloomers of chambray and the frock of gingham, or the reverse. In checked ginghams the cotton floss used for cross-stitch or other decoration is selected to match the colored check in color although it is often in a darker or lighter shade.

DRIED CORN IS MOST SUPERIOR

Canned Vegetable Can Be Used for Wide Variety of Purposes in Cooking.

GATHER WHEN IN MILK STAGE

Any of Sweet Varieties Having Qualities Desirable for Table Use Will Make Good Product—Sun Is Factor in Drying.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

A vegetable which, when dried, is above criticism even by the most critical, is corn. Other kinds of garden products may or may not be liked by many people, but dried corn is the equal if not the superior of canned corn and can be used for practically as wide a variety of purposes. The following directions for drying it are those advised by the United States Department of Agriculture.

Any of the varieties of sweet corn having qualities desirable for table use will make a good dried product. Corn intended for drying should be gathered when in the milk stage, before glazing and hardening have begun and when the corn is in an ideal condition for immediate table use. It should be gathered only as it can be prepared for drying, as corn deteriorates rapidly.

Careful Preparation Essential.

Husk the ears and trim with a knife to remove any injuries. The silk need not be removed, as it can be readily separated from the corn after drying. Place the ears in wire baskets or wire-bottom boxes and plunge into boiling water for eight to twelve minutes, or until the milk is set. A little salt may be added to the water if desired. Divide the corn into older and younger lots before blanching, as the younger ears require somewhat longer cooking than the older ones.

After cooking, remove corn from the water, allow it to drain and cool sufficiently to be handled and cut from the cobs with a strong sharp knife, taking care that none of the cob is removed with the kernels. The glumes or the hull attachments at the tip of the kernels are easily screened out after the corn becomes dry. Spread the kernels upon trays to a depth of 1 inch if drying is done in a drier, or 1½ to 2-inch if the corn is to be dried in the sun. Stir the grains thoroughly several times during the drying to break up any compact masses.

Sun Factor in Drying Corn.

It is practically impossible to bring corn to a sufficient degree of dryness by the unaided heat of the sun. If corn is dried in the sun it should be finished by pouring into bread pans, placing in the oven of the stove, and warming to 160 to 185 degrees Fahrenheit for two hours. Whether the drying is done in the sun, in a cook-stove drier, or in a commercial drier, it should be continued until the grains are hard, semitransparent, and will break with clean, glass-like fractures if crushed.

Before storing free the corn of silks, glumes, and bits of cob. This may be done by pouring the corn from one vessel to another in a strong draft.

One Very Satisfactory Way of Drying Fruits and Vegetables at Home.

When the corn is dry, store in closely woven muslin bags or heavy paper bags. Tie tightly at the neck and place within a larger bag, which also should be tightly tied.

Do not allow the drying process to stop from the time it is started until the corn is fairly dry. Corn is a product which contains considerable sugar and protein, and if the drying process is allowed to stop bacteria are apt to develop and souring take place. Protect it from insects. If sun drying is interrupted by cloudy weather or showers, remove corn to the stove and continue drying or the product may spoil.

GOOD CARD-TABLE COVERS

Thin Patent Leather With Smooth Surface Is Slippery and Smooth, a Decided Advantage.

There are card-table covers made of thin patent leather, bound with heavy green silk at the edges, with ribbons to tie them securely in place. These are admirable, for their highly varnished surface makes them slippery and smooth, an advantage always in a card-table cover.

HELPFUL HINTS FOR POISON IVY RELIEF

Grease or Oil Tends to Dissolve and Spread Infection.

Specialists of Department of Agriculture Favor Applications of Solutions of Cooking Soda or of Epsom Salts.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

In the early stages of ivy poisoning remedies having a fatty or oily base, such as ointments, should not be used, as the grease or oil tends to dissolve and spread the poison, according to specialists of the United States Department of Agriculture. Instead they advise simple remedies such as local applications of solutions of cooking soda or of Epsom salt, one or two heaping teaspoonsful to a cupful of water. Fluid extract of grindella, diluted with four to eight parts of water, is often used.

Solutions of this kind may be applied with light bandages or clean cloths, which should be kept moist, and should be changed and discarded frequently to avoid infection. During the night, or when moist applications cannot be used, the poisoned surfaces should be carefully cleaned and dried and left exposed to the air rather than tightly bandaged. In the later stage, after the toxic material has exhausted itself, zinc-oxide ointment and similar mild antiseptic and astringent applications hasten healing.

These are a few of the helpful hints concerning ivy poisoning contained in Farmers' Bulletin 1193, which tells also how to distinguish between poison ivy and poison sumac. The bulletin is illustrated with pictures of the two plants, which are often confused.

TO SWEETEN RANCID BUTTER

Melt and Skim It and Add Piece of Toast Free From Burn—Offensive Taste Removed.

To sweeten rancid butter melt the butter and skim it. Then put into it a piece of toast free from burn. In a few minutes it will lose its offensive taste and smell, which the toast has absorbed.

CARROTS SERVED WITH PEAS

Dressed With Cream Sauce, Well Seasoned, or With Melted Butter, They Are Very Good.

Carrots can be served with several other vegetables. They are very good served with green peas, either fresh or canned. They can be dressed with cream sauce, well seasoned, or with melted butter and pepper and salt.

PROTECTION AGAINST MOTHS

Few Cents' Worth of Tar Paper Placed in Boxes and Closets Will Prove Efficient.

Pieces of tar paper laid in fur boxes and in closets are a protection against moths. Five cents will buy enough for all the packing boxes and closets of a large house for a year.

Household Questions

A pitcher of cold water in the room will absorb gases.

More food is required in cold weather than in hot.

Keep your house clear of rubbish and keep disease germs down.

Alternate layers of noodles and jam baked until brown make a good desert.

Green corn, radishes, cucumbers and tomatoes should not be fed to children under six years of age.

Celery stuffing for meats is delicious. Walnut meats and bread crumbs should be used in the stuffing.

Never heat or stir contents of tin with a spoon; use a silver fork. A spoon makes them rusty.

HOW WOMEN AVOID SURGICAL OPERATIONS

Some Are Extremely Necessary, Others May Not Be

Every Woman Should Give Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a Trial First

Chicago, Ill.—"I was in bed with a female trouble and inflammation and had four doctors but none of them did me any good. They all said I would have to have an operation. A druggist's wife told me to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and I took 22 bottles, never missing a dose and at the end of that time I was perfectly well. I have never had occasion to take it again as I have been so well. I have a six room flat and do all my work. My two sisters are taking the Compound upon my recommendation and you may publish my letter. It is the gospel truth and I will write to any one who wants a personal letter."—Mrs. E. H. HAYDOCK, 8224 St. Lawrence Ave., Chicago, Ill.

A Vermont woman adds her testimony to the long line of those fortunate women who have been restored to health by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, after it had been decided an operation was necessary:

Burlington, Vt.—"I suffered with female trouble, and had a number of doctors who said that I would never be any better until I had an operation. I was so bad I could hardly walk across the floor and could not do a thing. My sister-in-law induced me to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and it certainly has helped me wonderfully. I keep house and do my work and have a small child. I have recommended Vegetable Compound to a number of my friends and you may publish my testimonial."—Mrs. H. R. SHARON, Apple Tree Point Farm, Burlington, Vt.

In hospitals are many women who are there for surgical operations, and there is nothing a woman dreads more than the thought of an operation, and the long weary months of recovery and restoration to strength if it is successful.

It is very true that female troubles may through neglect reach a stage where an operation is the only resource, but most of the common ailments of women are not the surgical ones; they are not caused by serious displacements, tumors or growths, although the symptoms may appear the same. When disturbing ailments first appear take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to relieve the present distress and prevent more serious troubles. In fact, many letters have been received from women who have been restored to health by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound after operations have been advised by attending physicians.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Private Text-Book upon "Ailments Peculiar to Women" will be sent to you free upon request. Write to The Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Massachusetts. This book contains valuable information.

NOT HARD TO MAKE CHOICE HER LOVE DREAM SHATTERED

Probably Lester Could Have Determined Without the Appeal to His Physical Feelings.

Naughty George's Late Hours Responsible for the Ache in Heart of Young Wife.

Two men passed away. One had been born, and in due course admitted to the bar, soon ran for office, was elected a continuous Hon. until at last he went to his reward, such as it was. And the local paper gave him an obituary as long as your arm.

The other man followed in the footsteps of his brawny sire, and became a maker of harrows. He was industrious and honest, and for years the Illinois harrows which he whacked out by hand were known nearly all over the country as reliable utensils. By-and-by he, too, passed on. The paper announced his demise in a few lines and spelled his name wrong.

Now, tell me, Lester, which of these men would you rather have been? Do not say the former, or I'll slap your jaws for you and not let you go to the picture show, either.—Kansas City Star.

English Mercy for Criminals.

In England a sentence of life imprisonment is always reviewed at the end of 15 years, and if the prisoner's conduct has been uniformly good, he is usually released. This is particularly the case where a prisoner has been sentenced for murder, for murderers are said to be usually well-behaved prisoners.

ON SEEING A MAN AT WORK.

We saw a man at work the other day. We were so interested that we paused and watched him work. Sounds strange, but it was really a joy to see that man work. He is a real man because he is a real workman. We don't know whether his name is Smith or Jones, or whether he is a Congregationalist or a Baptist, and what is more, we don't care. Anyway he is a stone mason and was at work on the walls of the new home being erected on West Middle street by J. D. McManus. To be explicit, he was laying the cobble stone wall of the first story of the McManus home. Each stone was placed with the care that an artist would give to his canvas. We think the man saw a vision, judging from the critical interest he took in each stone and bit of mortar. He saw men and women years in the future who would look at that wall and heard them say, "How neatly that work is done; the man who did that masonry took a pride in his work. He was an artist in masonry." In his mind's eye he saw and heard all this. And this tribute of the years to come is an index of a bigger thing in the life of that man than is his daily wage. Of course he didn't reason it all out this way. He didn't need to. The man was lost in his handiwork. And somehow, we fancy that he wasn't waiting for the whistle to blow. He was living by his work (as any honest man should), but what is bigger and better he was living in his work. The artist who painted by the hour never made a great picture. The workman, with mind or hand, who keeps one eye on his work and the other on the clock, and whose paycheck is the measure of his pride in his work, has never been the man who has built the worth-while things of the world. This stone mason has found one of the secrets of life. Happy are his kind whether their work is the handling of a pick or the uneasy occupancy of a swivel-chair. This man with his stone and mortar has found a cure for half of mankind's ills.

Chamberlain's Colic and Diarrhoea Remedy.

Every family should keep this preparation at hand ready for instant use when needed. Severe attacks of colic and cholera morbus often prove fatal before medicine can be procured or a physician summoned. The uniform success that has attended the use of this remedy and the prompt cures which it has effected have made it a staple article of trade.

How MICHELIN

has overcome the commonest causes of tire trouble

Driving in Trolley Tracks

DRIVING IN TROLLEY TRACKS IS DESTRUCTIVE TO TIRES BECAUSE THE TIRES ARE THUS DISTORTED. MICHELINS SUFFER LESS THAN ORDINARY MAKES FROM THIS ABUSE BECAUSE:

1st—the extra thickness of the Michelin tread, and of the side wall near the tread, cushions the tire and minimizes distortion.

2nd—Michelin's unique body-construction reduces the effect of such distortion and flexing, even when it does occur as a result perhaps of under-inflation.
