

HAVE YOU HEARD THE

ACTUELLE?

DIFFERENT

SUPERIOR IN TONE!

The Actuelle—a Pathe Freres invention—marks the first really radical advance in the science of sound reproduction since sound recording was invented. Its mechanical method is revolutionary.

The result achieved is a natural purity of tone which would have been beyond belief less than twelve months ago.

Thirty years ago, the art of sound reproduction was invented. Ever since then, scientists have been striving for improved quality of tone.

The first real step toward it was the Pathe Sapphire Ball.

Now comes the real, revolutionary advance—and again it is the Pathe organization that has won out—this time with the Pathe Actuelle.

This invention solves the problem of tone. Like so many big achievements, it is almost grotesquely simple.

The reproducer, the tone arm, the tone chamber—all have been abolished. A taut wire carries the tone vibrations direct from the record to a shallow cone of parchment. That cone amplifies and reproduces the tone in its natural, vivid vigor, with a full fidelity that no phonograph could ever equal. Plays all makes of Records.

Built Better—Lasts Longer
Costs Less to Operate

It's real economy in the long run to buy a John Deere Grain Binder. Its stronger construction, the proper application of better materials, and its improvements to insure most effective operation under all conditions are apparent the minute you see it.

JOHN DEERE
GRAIN BINDER

Take the main frame for example. Its strong, wide steel bars are widely overlapped and riveted together. The main bearings are self-aligning—there's no twisting of the frame and binding in the bearings.

The wheels are extra high and have wide traction-giving tires. They furnish ample support for the machine and extra traction in wet fields.

The John Deere makes better bundles. Its three packers instead of two insure this. This binder handles extremely short or heavy tangled grain better than others with less clogging and less missed bundles.

Its bundle carrier is the easiest to operate we have ever seen—no particular effort to dump or return to position—it can be adjusted as wear develops to keep it in easy-working order.

The Quick Turn Truck is another feature you will like. It keeps the binder running straight, permits of square turns, takes off side draft from the horses, and because its axle is flexibly mounted, the wheels hold to the ground.

There is no other binder that will give you the years of satisfactory service that you can get with the John Deere—it's real economy to buy this better machine.

Be sure to come in and see it before you buy.

PIONEER RESIDENT DIES

Lucia E. Fenn was born to Orlo and Lois Fenn July 5, 1837, on a farm in Sylvan township, which she owned at the time of her death, June 26, 1921. She had three brothers, Silas, Orlo and Emmor and one sister, Huldah. Emmor is the only surviving member of the family.

Seventy years ago, when the Baptist church held their meetings at Pierceville, she was baptized, and has always been a loyal, interested member. Many remember her as a Sunday school teacher and she has been president of the Woman's Missionary Society for years, which office she held when called "up higher."

Nov. 27, 1860, Lucia Fenn was united in marriage to Romeyn P. Chase, who passed away in 1908. There were three daughters, Lizzie G., Lois C. and Abbie and a son, Stephen, who died in 1898. Beside the daughters, one granddaughter, Lois, and two great grandchildren, Lucia and Du Chayne Boilat, mourn their loss.

The funeral was held at her home on Orchard street, Tuesday at 2:30 p. m., Rev. R. C. Fenn, assisted by Rev. P. W. Dierberger, officiating. The burial was at Vermont cemetery. That sacred spot was part of the farm her father took up from the government.

The out of town relatives and friends were. Emmor Fenn and Fumman Fenn and wife of Whitmore Lake, Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Canfield, Mr. and Mrs. H. N. Boilat and son, Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Fenn, Mrs. E. Bruce, Mr. and Mrs. Kenyon of Detroit, Mrs. C. Delavan, Burton Warner, of Ann Arbor, Miss Jennie Tuttle, of Columbus, Ohio, Arnold Prudden and Mrs. G. V. L. Cady, of Jackson.

Plans for Women's Building.

The women of the University of Michigan, both graduates and undergraduates, are working vigorously for the proposed new women's building, for which a million dollars must be raised to carry the project through. The site of the building will be provided by the Regents as soon as the fund has reached the sum of $500,000.

The alumnae are organizing a building corporation, similar to that which carried forward the campaign for funds with which the men's Union was built. The women believe that the Union's example has demonstrated the necessity for such a building for the women at Michigan, and that their campaign for funds will be the easier by reason of the pioneer work done by the men in providing their own building.

William M. Zick.

William M. Zick of Grass Lake, died at a hospital in Jackson, Sunday at 8:30 a. m., aged 43 years. He is survived by a widow, two sons, Francis and Herman; a daughter, Ida Belle; the father, George Zick; a sister, Miss Cora Zick, all of Grass Lake, and a grandmother, Mrs. Mary Schenk, of Sylvan township, Washtenaw county.

Funeral services were held at the home in Grass Lake, Tuesday at 2:30 p. m., central central standard time. Mr. Zick was a former resident of Chelsea.

Those from here who attended the funeral were: Mr. and Mrs. W. P. Schenk, Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Schenk, Mrs. H. J. Dancer, Mrs. H. D. Litteral, and Mrs. Paul P. Belzer.

A School of Education.

At its last meeting the Board of Regents of the University of Michigan provided for the establishment of a School of Education to date from July 1, 1921. This school is the logical outgrowth of the Department of the Science and the Art of Teaching, established at Michigan in 1871, the first of its kind in the country. Through this department a close relationship has been maintained between the University and the public schools of Michigan. The new school will train high school teachers. Prof. A. S. Whitney, head of the department of education, will serve as acting dean of the school until his successor can be chosen.

Junior Stars on Deck.

There will be a baseball game on Monday, July 4, at 3 p. m., at Wilkeson field, between the Chelsea Independents and the famous Junior Stars, who will appear with the boys who comprised the original team. The line-up of the Junior Stars is as follows: W. S. McLaren, r. f.; D. Rogers, l. b. and s. a.; H. Holmes, 2. b. and p.; R. McGuiness, s. s.; C. Rogers, 3. b. and p.; B. O. Bacon, l. f.; G. Rathbun, c. f.; R. Dillon, c. f.; B. Steinhilber, c. and l. b.; L. C. McGole, l. b.; G. McNamara, H. Hoyd, Ladies free.

CONDUCTOR EXONERATED

AT INQUEST HELD FRIDAY

H. F. Brooks, acting as coroner, held an investigation in the Sylvan town hall, Friday, making inquiry as to who was to blame for the accident June 18, on the D. J. & C. electric line, that caused the death of five persons and injury to many others. Prosecuting Attorney Farnor of Ann Arbor had charge for the people, Geo. Burke of Ann Arbor represented the railway company, and W. K. Brown of Detroit appeared for the Pierce family. The jury consisted of D. E. Beach, O. T. Hoover, John Frymuth, Don Riley, John Finkbeiner and M. L. Burkhardt. Vance Ogden took the testimony in longhand, as required by law, for the prosecution, and the D. J. & C. had a stenographer present to take the testimony for the railway company.

Harold Luick, of Highland Park, who was sitting on the porch at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Luick, of Lima, whose residence is opposite Warsaw switch, was the first witness called. He stated that the yellow car was well toward the west end of the siding when it was between 3 and 4 minutes ahead of the green car that plowed into it on the siding. He thought that the green car was traveling about 45 miles per hour before it slowed down for the switch. Conductor of yellow car was at telephone booth on north side of track. Had been on cars driven by Motorman Winchell, who had charge of the green car, and had always considered him a careful motorman.

Geo. W. Turnbull, on his way to Chelsea from Detroit, stated that he was in the smoking compartment of the green car, occupying the third seat from the front and was on the north side of the car, that front door was closed and the curtain up. Had a clear view and did not see the conductor with the motorman when the car came down Ward hill or when crossing Dancer road. Thought car was going 40 to 50 miles per hour. Nearing switch, 75 or 100 feet from the yellow car, realized they would hit it and rushed to rear compartment to get his mother and other members of the family off the car. Saw the motorman pulling levers but did not hear brakes take hold. Did not see conductor of car when accident occurred.

Donald Bacon testified that he was a passenger on the green car and occupied with Mr. Turnbull and his statement was that front door was closed and curtain up. Saw motorman operating levers at switch trying to stop car and that he did not see switch arm.

Stanley Oakes, of Detroit, stated that he was in the second seat from the front in the smoker of the green car; had good view; door between him and motorman closed, curtain up; saw motorman pull levers after going on siding. Slowed down several times between Ypsilanti and Ann Arbor.

F. H. Lewis, Chelsea, passenger on green car in compartment back of smoker. Was not injured; did not remember seeing yellow car before they hit as passengers ahead shut off view. Estimated speed of car 30 or 35 miles per hour and did not know where conductor of his car was; realized something was wrong when struck switch; thought car was off track. Tried to get help from Ann Arbor; helped get Mrs. Pierce out of wrecked car; she was alive but unconscious and died shortly after being taken from wrecked car; saw Mr. Pierce but could not tell whether he was dead or seriously injured; assisted in removing eight either dead or seriously injured.

George Fletcher, Ypsilanti, conductor on yellow car, stated he had orders to meet eastbound limited at Warsaw siding, but that Fiegel siding was the usual meeting point; left Ann Arbor about 1 1/2 minutes apart; got on front steps coming down Ward hill to be ready to open switch target at east end of Warsaw siding; dispatcher gave running orders; stopped about two car lengths from switch entrance. Saw green car coming and went back but did not realize its speed until too late to close switch; went back when heard limited coming from west. Testified east end of Fiegel switch was locked open and was in that position all of the time; that there were 9 open points between Jackson and Detroit and that 4 of them were between Jackson and Ann Arbor. Read extracts from rules of company which stated that when a train was running in two sections the switch should be left open but in a one-car train they should be closed after the car had entered the siding.

Albert Schneider, of Lima, stated that he was a passenger on the yellow car and was on the rear platform when the green car was coming and was on the lower step when the green car hit them. First saw green car come around curve at Finkbeiner's and did not think it slowed up; estimated the speed 35 or 40 miles per hour.

PRETTY HOME WEDDING

A very pretty home wedding took place at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Geo. A. Runciman, Saturday evening, June 25, when Miss Sylvia Isabelle Runciman was united in marriage with Mr. Arthur B. Bitten, of Brighton. The ceremony was performed by Rev. H. R. Beatty and was witnessed by about 50 of the immediate relatives and close friends of the young couple.

The couple were attended by Miss Thelma Bitten, sister of the bridegroom and Mr. Lyle Runciman, brother of the bride.

The bride was gowned in white dutchess satin, with an overdress of dream crepe, trimmed with white pearls, and carried a shower bouquet of white roses.

The bridesmaid wore a dress of pink Swiss organdie and carried a bouquet of pink roses.

The bride is a graduate of the Chelsea high school and the State Normal College at Ypsilanti, and for four years has been a successful teacher in the schools at Brighton and Lansing. The bridegroom is engaged in the mercantile business at Brighton.

The bride was the guest of honor at several social functions and the couple were the recipients of many handsome gifts.

Following the ceremony, a five-course wedding dinner was served to about 50 guests and seven of the bride's former classmates acted as waitresses. The home and tables were handsomely decorated with pink and white roses and ferns.

Guests were present from Detroit, Lansing, Brighton, Williamston, Dexter, Flint, and Dayton, Ohio.

The couple left on a trip up the Great Lakes and upon their return will make their home in Brighton.

Garden Notes.

Plants of late celery, cabbage and cauliflower are commonly set during the first two weeks in July.

A good distance for planting the late large growing varieties of cabbage and cauliflower is 2 1/2 by 3 1/2 feet.

The soil should be moist and well prepared for planting, otherwise transplanting from the seed bed into the garden or field may not be successful unless the plants are carefully "watered in."

White or light colored stalks of celery are secured by blanching, which consists of growing the plants in darkness so that the coloring matter of the stem is destroyed. Blanching also makes the stalks more crisp and tender and improves the quality.

Early celery is most easily blanching by setting up boards about 12 inches wide against the plants each side of the row. On a small scale in the home garden each individual plant may be carefully wrapped by hand with good heavy paper. The blanching operation usually requires about 2 or 3 weeks. When blanching in this manner a distance of 2 1/2 feet is sufficient.

Late celery is best when blanching by banking with soil. Commonly, the plants are set 6 inches apart in rows not less than 3 1/2 or 4 feet apart, but you will find that 5 or even 6 feet is better especially for the large growing varieties.

Chinese cabbage or "celery cabbage" is best grown as a fall crop. Seed should be sown during the latter part of July so that the crop will mature during the cool fall months.

Advances a New Theory.

Dealing with a theory of mental phenomenon that is declared to have electrified base audiences of the East, Marshall Neilan's latest production "Go And Get It" comes to the Princess Theatre, Wednesday and Thursday, July 6 and 7.

"Go And Get It" is a newspaper story in which an energetic team of reporters unearth a mystery of startling nature. Back of the entire mystery plot is the pertinent question of the day: Is the substitution of new human organs practicable so far as the prolongation of life is concerned?

The audience will be mystified and thrilled by the unusual events that line the path of the reporter who is told to "Go And Get It."

The entire plot of "Go And Get It" which will be shown at the Princess Theatre is based on this scientific phenomenon although the story is a most truthful picture of a newspaper reporter's work.

The title is taken from a quartet of words that strike home in heart of every newspaper man—"Go And Get It."

The raiding party was composed of Sheriff Larabee, Undersheriff Kutt, Deputy Sheriffs Julian, Miller, LaDue and Walter Larabee, State Food and Drug Inspectors Loomis and Bradley and State Policemen Kelley and Serfimer.—News.

Jackson—Construction will start immediately upon the First M. E. church building program. The general contract for the remodeling and rebuilding of the edifice on West Main street was awarded Friday evening to Koepke Bros. of Flint. The improvement when completed, with equipment and furnishings, will cost $250,000. Only the general contract was let that evening. At the earliest possible moment, the partial wrecking of the old structure will be commenced and Koepke Bros. said that the work of rebuilding would be pushed rapidly.—News.

BREAD OUGHT TO BE BAKED RIGHT

Recipes for Short and Overnight Methods Recommended by Kitchen Specialists.

IDEAL LOAF IS ATTRACTIVE

Any Woman Who Desires to Establish Reputation as Good Cook Will Wish Particularly to Excel in Bread Making.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

No other single article of food is as frequently placed on the table or taken as prominent a place in the average diet as bread. In some form or other it is served at practically every meal, and many times is the chief article. Properly balanced with milk, butter, fruits, vegetables, eggs, cheese or a little meat bread may well form a considerable part of our daily food. Bread and other cereal products are also among the least expensive of our foods.

As it occupies so prominent a place in the diet, bread ought certainly to be well made, well baked, and properly cared for. Moreover, any girl or woman who desires to be known as a really good cook, will wish to excel particularly in bread making. An ideal loaf of bread is attractive in appearance; crust smooth, tender and golden brown in color; the loaf itself light and well-rounded on top; the crumb spongy and tender; and the whole delicious in flavor.

Methods for Making Bread.

There are two general methods for making bread, one known as the straight-dough process and the other as the sponge process.

In the straight-dough process all the ingredients are mixed at one time and the dough is made of the proper consistency before rising. Either compressed or liquid yeast may be used for this, but not dry yeast.

In the sponge process only half the total amount of flour is used at first, with all or nearly all the liquid, the yeast, and frequently the salt and the sugar. Compressed, dry, or liquid yeast may be used for this. This mixture is similar to a soft batter, and after the first rising the remainder of the flour, the shortening, and any other desired ingredients are added. It is then kneaded until of the proper consistency and smoothness.

Decreasing Time of Process.

The sponge process usually requires less yeast than the straight-dough method, because of the softer consistency of the mixture which favors the growth of the yeast, and also because it is generally given more time. However, by using larger or smaller amounts of yeast one may shorten or lengthen the time required for rising. In a similar way the straight-dough process may be shortened or lengthened by increasing or decreasing the amount of yeast used. Great care should be taken with a sponge or dough which stands a long time—as the overnight straight dough or the overnight sponge—to keep it much cooler than when the quicker methods are used, since the former have a greater chance of becoming sour.

The following bread recipes are given by specialists of the United States Department of Agriculture:

Short Process, or Straight Dough.

4 cupsful (1 quart) lukewarm liquid.
4 teaspoonfuls of salt.
2 tablespoonfuls of sugar.
2 tablespoonfuls of shortening, if desired.
1 or 2 cakes of compressed yeast, or half to 1 cupful of liquid yeast.
3 to 4 quart of sifted flour.

If milk is used it should be scalded and cooled until lukewarm before using. When liquid yeast is used its volume must be deducted from the other liquid called for. This makes four loaves.

Soften the yeast with a small amount of the lukewarm liquid. To the rest of the liquid add the salt, sugar and shortening. Add the yeast and mix all together. Measure the sifted flour into a bowl and blend with this the liquid. If too soft to knead, add more flour until of the proper consistency. Knead for five to ten minutes, or until smooth, elastic and no longer sticky. Cover with a lid or plate and place where it will be away from drafts and at a uniform temperature of 60 to 68 degrees F. Let rise until about double its original bulk or until a slight touch of the finger leaves an impression. This should happen within one to two hours if the yeast is in good condition and the temperature right. Knead and set aside again in the same warm place until it doubles its bulk. Then knead and shape into loaves; let rise again until double in bulk and bake.

Overnight Sponge Method.

4 cupsful (1 quart) of lukewarm liquid (half cupful less if potato is used).
4 teaspoonfuls of salt.
2 tablespoonfuls of sugar.
2 tablespoonfuls of shortening (if desired).
1 cake of yeast (dry or compressed), or half cupful of liquid yeast.
1 cupful mashed potato (if desired).
3 to 4 quart of sifted flour.

If dry yeast is used, soak it for 20 minutes to one hour before mixing the sponge and mix the sponge earlier than if compressed or liquid yeast is used. When liquid yeast is used, its volume must be deducted from the other liquid called for.

Blend the yeast with a little of the lukewarm liquid. If potato is used add it to the salt, then the yeast mixture, the remainder of the liquid, and finally one-half of the flour. Beat until smooth, cover, and set to rise where it will be at 60 to 70 degrees F.

In the morning, break up the sponge, add sugar, the melted shortening (if used), and enough flour to make a dough of the proper consistency. Knead until the dough is smooth, elastic and no longer sticky to the bowl or fingers. Cover and set to rise until at least double in bulk. Knead down, mold into loaves, let rise again until double in bulk and bake.

FERMENTED CORN IS HANDY FOR CHOWDER

Recipe Recommended by Household Specialists Given.

It Will Be Found Most Satisfactory to Remove All Acid Flavor—Rinse Thoroughly and Soak for Four or Five Hours.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Some fermented and salted vegetables like cucumbers, are eaten raw; others, like cabbage (sauerkraut), are usually cooked. In general the fermented and salted products may be prepared for the table in much the same manner as the fresh vegetables, except that before being cooked they should be soaked in fresh water for several hours or longer. If necessary, to remove the salt, the water being changed several times. In some cases it may be necessary also to change the water once or twice during the boiling of the salted vegetables. In this one should be guided by taste.

To prepare the fermented or salted corn for the table, rinse it thoroughly and soak for four or five hours, changing the water frequently. In general it will be found more satisfactory to remove practically all the acid flavor from the fermented corn. After soaking, place the corn in cold water and bring to boil, pour off the water, add fresh cold water, bring to boil again, and cook until tender. The cooked salted or fermented corn may be used in many ways. The following recipe for corn chowder is recommended by household specialists of the United States Department of Agriculture:

Corn Chowder.

½ pound cold beef, or 1 cupful tomatoes.
½ pound salt pork or 2 tablespoonfuls of bacon.
2 potatoes.
1 cupful milk or 1 onion.
1 green pepper.
1 teaspoonful salt.
½ cupful cooked corn, or more.
½ teaspoonful pepper, corn, or more.

Cut the beef or pork into cubes; cover well with water. Add the tomato and cook slowly for about two hours. Then add the potato, onion, pepper, corn and seasonings. Mix the flour with a little cold water, add to the other ingredients, and cook slowly for five or ten minutes. Add the milk or cream. Serve hot.

HEM IN WORSTED MATERIALS

Almost Invisible Hem Easy to Press Can Be Made in Heavy Cloth by Means of Cat-Stitch.

A secure, flat hem, almost invisible and easy to press, can be made in heavy worsted materials by means of cat-stitch. Do not turn the edge of the hem, but press hem flat and cat-stitch over the raw edge and into the skirt, taking up but one thread in each stitch. Double silk thread is used for the work.

OF INTEREST TO THE HOUSEWIFE

Make two or three desserts at one time and save time, labor and fuel.

Breaded mullions can be sewed across the worn toes of satin slippers.

Odds and ends of old bread made into a well-seasoned dressing is a great addition to any roast.

Threads drawn from old Brussels carpet can be used for mending rugs. Wool, of course, should be used for mending a woolen rug.

I ought to know I grow tobacco

You can't beat a Camel, because you can't beat the tobacco that goes into Camels.

That's why Camels are the choice of men who know and love fine tobacco. They know what makes Camels so smooth, so fragrant and mellow-mild.

They'll tell you that the expert Camel blend of choice Turkish and Domestic tobaccos makes a cigarette smoke you can't equal—no matter what you pay.

But it doesn't take an expert to tell Camel quality. You'll spot it the very first puff. Try Camels yourself.

Michigan News Tersely Told

Owasco—Herman B. Sturtevant, lumber man and leader in civic and church affairs here, is dead after an extended illness.

Eaton Rapids—Mrs. Ruth Young, wife of an overseas soldier, took her life here by swallowing poison. She leaves a young son.

Owasco—A membership drive to bring its membership up to 12,300 in this state was launched at the convention of the State Arbeiter Bund here. The society has 10,000 members in Michigan.

Muskegon—Alfred Kookakap, 11 years of age, was drowned while bathing at the municipal beach. Two hundred companions failed to note his disappearance until his body was found by divers.

Owasco—An automobile owned by Freeman Land, of Pontiac, and stolen about two months ago, has been found here. Sheriff Sproule declares that it stood on the streets here for six weeks without being noticed.

Ann Arbor—Visiting nurses and training school instructors for six states, who attended the two weeks' institute of the Michigan League of Nursing association here, have urged the holding of a similar institute next year, to which the state league has agreed.

Grand Rapids—"Hello, old man," I'm feeling fine now, thanks." That was the last statement of Joseph Hoffer, 45, cigarmaker, to Detective Gertrude who a moment later picked him up in his automobile. A blood vessel had been ruptured. Hoffer died immediately.

Petoskey—One of Uncle Sam's submarine chasers which helped make life miserable for the enemy under water craft will be used in removing brook trout from Lake Superior and transporting them to various points along the Michigan coast for breeding purposes.

Port Huron—The activities of the St. Clair County Community Board will be continued under the direction of the National Community Service. The latter organization, it is stated, is supported by men of means who desire to have community service work reach every city in the nation.

Grand Rapids—The Ottawa Indians are not going to carry on their fight to recover Michigan lands, including the site of Grand Rapids. This proceeding was ended in district court when William J. Musquy, an aged Indian, changed his plea to guilty of impersonating a federal officer.

Grand Rapids—Frank Likienta, 9, who had been missing from his home was found under some lumber which had fallen on him. Lumbermen discovered the boy, who had been imprisoned all night and was unconscious when found. He was badly bruised and had a skull wound, but is expected to recover.

Kalamazoo—A divorced couple here, Clyde Baker and his former wife, eloped to save living expenses. He was paying her alimony. A note left for friends said they had departed for Mishawaka to begin housekeeping. Baker was recently brought into court on a contempt charge for failure to pay monthly allowances.

Hart—J. J. Estrada, who came here from Muskegon to paint the smokestack on the Roach Canning factory, lost his hold when within five feet of the top, or up 85 feet, and fell to the ground, breaking a leg and injuring his back so that he was paralyzed. He was rushed to the Ludington hospital, but died soon after reaching there.

Grand Rapids—After saving his sweetheart, Florence E. Clement, 26, Raymond S. Knight, 26, was drowned in Grand river, when their canoe capsized. Knight, who was unable to swim, managed to keep afloat until the girl was rescued by other canoeists, and then, exhausted, sank in the deep water at the mouth of Mill creek.

Flint—Action taken by the city council barring jitney busses from streets on which street cars are operated, and laying down strict operation regulations, including that the busses take indemnity insurance, prompted 27 bus owners, operating on the Saginaw street route to turn in their licenses to the city, asking for a refund of their license fee.

Grand Rapids—The seller's viewpoint of the grape situation in Michigan is encouraging, according to R. W. Dunham, Grand Rapids broker, who has just completed an investigation into crop and market conditions. Mr. Dunham says the crop will average about 20 per cent less than that of last year and there will be a willing market because of this shortage.

Lansing—A plan to initiate by popular petition a constitutional amendment to make the state superintendent of public institutions an appointive office and increase the membership of the state board of education from three to six, has been launched by prominent educators of the state. The plan as tentatively outlined would give the enlarged board the appointive power, and would virtually make the superintendent of public instruction a seventh member of the board, in a secretarial and advisory capacity.

Adrian—Dr. Harlan A. Freeman was re-elected president of Adrian College at the meeting of the trustees here.

Pontiac—The Pontiac board of education has arranged to purchase $50,000 of the district's own bonds from a sinking fund.

Cadillac—Charles Clock of Farwell died of injuries received when run over by an Ann Arbor train after falling from the top of a car.

Manistee—The most improved still ever seen by the police was confiscated when the home of John Werlowski was raided. Four quarts of liquor and 12 gallons of mash were found.

Holly—Charles Crosby, 58, a farmer residing two miles south of Holly, was killed by lightning. Crosby was returning from the barn to the house and paused for a moment to watch the storm.

Adrian—Theodore Odell, 12 years old, of Clinton, was probably fatally injured when his small truck was struck by a New York Central passenger train at the Main Street crossing and demolished.

Kalamazoo—Michael Brennan, charged with passing fraudulent checks made out to "John Chapman" and signed by "L. W. Sutherland," is under arrest here. Many merchants accepted the checks.

Lansing—Mrs. George Finnie, of Lansing, charged with aiding her husband to escape from the county jail at Mason, was bound over to the next term of the Circuit Court after an examination in justice court.

Owasco—George Anthony, 73 years old, of Owasco, was given a decree of divorce from Hanna Anthony, 64, to whom he was married in 1905. He charged that she stayed out nights. They have not lived together since 1905.

Pontiac—Oscar Johnson was drowned in the Milford millpond when he dived from a springboard into the deepest portion of the pond. The body failed to come to the surface, but was recovered after repeated attempts by Lionel Grant.

Flint—An underground cavern reached only through a tunnel and guarded with elaborate camouflage, which was found on the farm of Louis Carpel, near Duffield, by Sheriff Vette and deputies, revealed one of the biggest moonshine plants ever seized here.

Owasco—Officers all over the state and particularly along the Canadian border, have been asked by Shiawassee county officers to watch for Earl Ritter, 35, a farmer, living near Bancroft, who, it is charged, has mulcted three banks in the county out of approximately $5,000.

Bay City—Godfrey Kuback, a tin-smith, forgot that his truck was in gear when he cranked it in front of a Water street business place. It ran over him, causing severe bruises and cuts and then crashed into the large plate glass windows of a shoe store, doing several hundred dollars' damage.

Kalamazoo—Lost out of a car driven by William Thompson, William Reed, 13 months old, was severely injured. The child was riding on the rear seat and either climbed out or was bumped out on the rough pavement. The driver did not notice the baby's absence until after it was taken to the hospital.

Lansing—Dr. R. L. Olin, Michigan commissioner of health, has been elected secretary and treasurer of the conference of state and provincial health authorities of North America. He also has been chosen as secretary of the executive council, succeeding Dr. C. St. Clair Drake, commissioner of health of Illinois.

Baldwin—A 150-pound buck got his horns tangled in the woven wire railroad fence a mile east of here and was found by section men just after he had broken his neck. They skinned the carcass and salted the meat, but before they could divide it a game warden learned of it and confiscated the hide and meat. The meat was sent to the poor house.

Kalamazoo—Provision making it illegal for a foreigner to become a city official or an employee of the city government was written into the new charter by the commission which was elected last April to revise the city's fundamental law. An amendment permitting department heads to employ aliens who have declared their intention of becoming citizens was adopted.

Manistee—Oil failed to pacify troubled waters in this instance. Instead it caused trouble. Because, it is alleged, he permitted waste oil and refuse to seep into Manistee river from the gas plant of the Michigan Light company, of which he is manager, Charles S. Krossier was arrested by Police Chief Gray, who, as harbor master, was empowered by the city commission to take whatever steps were necessary to stop the flow. The action followed a verbal clash at the council chamber.

Saginaw—George F. Higgins, of Detroit, unanimously was elected president of the Michigan State Aerie, Fraternal Order of Eagles, at the annual election of officers which closed the state convention held here. Other officers elected were, vice-president, Charles Crandall, Owasco; secretary, Robert Graham, Grand Rapids; treasurer, John N. Richter, of Saginaw. Eschmaba was chosen as the location for the 1922 convention. The convention went on record as favoring a state or national system of old age pensions.

NEWS REVIEW OF CURRENT EVENTS

Government Is Trying to Solve the Mystery of the Twenty Missing Ships.

MAY BE WORK OF PIRATES

Admiral Sims, Home, Tells Secretary Denby He Was Misquoted—Britain Determined to Crush Irish Revolt—Dawes Made Director of National Budget.

By EDWARD W. PICKARD.

The interest of the world was excited and its imagination stimulated last week by the remarkable story of the 20 lost merchant ships, the mystery of whose disappearance our government is trying to solve. Not since the days of the German U-boats has there been any such a series of maritime disasters, nor was there any such before the war. A number of these 20 vessels which have disappeared within a few months were American or sailing from American ports. The most mysterious of the instances was that of the American schooner Carroll A. Deering, which ran ashore off the North Carolina coast last January with all sails set and every member of the crew missing, as were its small boats. More than two months later the following message in a bottle was picked up near Cape Hatteras:

"Deering captured by oil-burning boat, something like chaser; taking off everything, handcuffing crew. Crew hiding all over ship. No chance to make escape. Finder please notify headquarters of Deering."

Naturally the favorite theory concerning these events is that a pirate craft is operating in the Atlantic. Rear Admiral Nulton, commander of the Philadelphia navy yard, inclines to this view. He says:

"It would be possible for an outlaw craft to run wild for a short time, and it could do considerable damage to shipping. If there is a pirate craft, it was or is operating with forged ship's papers. It is always necessary, when a ship enters a port, to have its papers examined, and this craft could operate for a short time with forged papers, but in the end it would disclose its identity."

"It is true, also, that by stripping vessels of provisions and fuel the outlaw could continue operations a long time, but eventually it would have to put into some port for repairs. Machinery, you know, cannot run forever without being overhauled and repaired. If such a craft is operating it will have to return to port at some time, and when it does, I assume there will be interesting developments."

Another theory is based upon the fact that about a year and a half ago the New York police seized documents which revealed a plot which the United States and Canada were forming to get their members to Russia. Those members who were out of work were being instructed to ship on vessels in sufficient numbers to seize the vessels at sea and steer them into Soviet Russian ports.

The Departments of State and Commerce, however, hold to the plain pirate theory and a world-wide lookout for the missing ships and their crews has been ordered.

Admiral Sims, recalled from England by an order from Secretary Denby that sounded especially severe, arrived in Washington Wednesday and reported to the head of the navy Thursday. In reply to Mr. Denby, he asserted that he had been misquoted in the reports of his London speech, and the secretary called on him for a correct text of what he said. Mr. Denby said to the correspondents:

"Admiral Sims has denied the accuracy of the statements attributed to him. He stated that he was incorrectly quoted. I gave him a written memorandum setting forth those statements and asking him to inform me in writing where he was misquoted and to tell me, if he could, what he did say in that speech."

At this writing the outcome of the affair, so far as the admiral is concerned, is not known. What is known, however, is that the incident of his speech, the attack on him by some of the Irish-Americans and the possibility of his being disciplined for what he said has aroused a general feeling against hyphenates in America comparable to that that existed during the war. Senators, representatives, Secretary Denby and even President Harding were almost swamped with letters and telegrams protesting against any punishment of the admiral and endorsing the sentiments he had expressed. The pro-Irish were silent, by any means, but the communications from admirers of Sims were largely in the majority. Neither side was permitted to make a demonstration in New York when the admiral landed, fully a thousand police being massed to prevent such action.

The Ulster parliament, which was organized recently, was formally opened Wednesday by King George, who, with Queen Mary, journeyed to Belfast for the purpose. No least part of the elaborate ceremonies usual on such occasions was omitted, the Irish republicans created no disturbance and everything passed off in orderly manner. The king in his speech from the throne said he spoke "from a full heart," but he uttered nothing but platitudes, to the disappointment of those who had expected some sensational pronouncement on the Irish question.

In the parliament in London more important statements concerning the Irish troubles were made. For the first time the government admitted that there is real war in Ireland, and Worthington Evans, secretary of war, more than intimated that it would be a war to the finish. He said the government was sending troops continually to the island and would continue to send them as quickly as possible, and that these troops would be given every support. Lord Chancellor Birkenhead spoke to the same effect, and even more emphatically, making it plain that unless a settlement is reached and the southern parliament functions, there will be a military domination campaign much like that employed against the Boers in South Africa.

The most spectacular exploit of the Sinn Feiners last week was the kidnapping of Earl Randon, for many years the king's lieutenant of County Cork, and the burning of his castle in Bantry. Colonel Lambert of the crown forces was killed near Knockroghery, and in reprisal the entire village was burned.

The allies, while still determined that the Turkish nationalists shall not get possession of Constantinople, have now requested, or ordered, the Greeks to defer their offensive against Kemal's forces until an attempt has been made to mediate between the two nations. King Constantine, it is said, consented to wait until some time in July. Lord Curzon, Premier Briand and representatives of Italy arranged for this postponement and promised that if Greece were amenable the three big powers would lift the financial embargo and permit Greece to arrange its fiscal affairs. The French undertook to persuade Kemal Pasha to make concessions leading to an amicable settlement.

The Japanese and Bolsheviks in Siberia, who have been on the point of hostilities for some time, are reported to have had a fight near Nikolayevsk. The government of the Far Eastern republic at Chita has mobilized its forces and has been promised active aid by the Moscow government. It reports the complete defeat of a body of troops permanently commanded by Gen. Baron von Ungern-Sternberg, anti-Bolshevik leader. This is denied by dispatches from Harbin, which credit Ungern-Sternberg with repeated successes. Japan has presented to the Chita government eight rigorous conditions as a basis for recognition—so harsh that they will be hardly acceptable.

Three anchored submarines were destroyed by the United States forces last week—but the layman will not easily perceive the value of the exploit, except that it proved our aerial bombers and destroyer gunners are pretty good marksmen, at least when the target is stationary and helpless. The first test was made by a bombing squadron of the air forces, and the submarine was speedily sunk. Then a bunch of destroyers charged on two U-boats, at full speed, and filled them full of shells in quick time. Other tests are to follow. Of course, the targets were submarines that once belonged to Germany.

Gen. Charles G. Dawes of Chicago has been persuaded by President Harding to take the place of director of the new federal budget system and is already on the job. He had an interview with the President and then announced that he would ask a number of experienced business men to serve in the budget bureau without pay. The first of these is William T. Abbott of Chicago, whom General Dawes invited to serve as assistant director. He also requested that Brig. Gen. George Moseley and Col. Henry Smith be detailed to help him. Both of them distinguished themselves in organization work during the war.

Mr. Dawes made some cutting remarks about the inadequacy of the budget legislation, adding: "One might as well be handed a toothpick with which to tunnel Mike's peak. It is evident that if this, the greatest business crisis which our government has ever confronted, is to be properly met, chief reliance will have to be placed upon something else than the pitiful machinery provided by law with which to exercise the wide powers extended to the budget bureau. I am, therefore, accepting the position of director of the budget only with the idea that the patriotism of the bureau chiefs and the country as a whole can be aroused in this emergency that it will be met as was the emergency of war four years ago."

With its mind set more firmly on present economy than on adequate national defense, congress last week made up its mind that the United States could get along safely with a very small army and navy personnel. Despite the utmost efforts of the advocates of preparedness and contrary to the known wishes of the administration, the army is to be reduced to 150,000 men by October 1, and the enlisted personnel of the navy is to be cut to 100,000. At least 50,000 men must be discharged from the army, regardless of their enlistment terms, in addition to the normal discharges, which are estimated at 20,000. Senator New of Indiana declared the 50,000 can sue the government for their salaries if the terms of their enlistment contracts are thus ignored.

The senate in this yielded completely to the demands of the house, and in return received assurance that the Dornh disarmament amendment would be adopted by the house in substitute for the Porter resolution. This, too, will be distasteful to the administration. It may be President Harding can and will do something to prevent this return to a state of unpreparedness by interposing his veto.

Secretary of the Navy Denby has taken steps to check the tendency to introduce soviet methods into the navy, believing them to be subversive of discipline. There have been two known instances of this so far, and in both cases Mr. Denby has removed from command the chief officer responsible. In the first, Capt. C. D. Stearns has been detached from command of the battleship Michigan for permitting the enlisted men to form a committee to pass upon disciplinary measures among members of the crew. In the other case, the crew of an unnamed vessel was permitted to express its preference by vote as to where the ship should be taken to go into dry dock; the commander, also unnamed, was detached from his command.

In disapproving the sentence of dismissal imposed by a naval court-martial on Lieut. Commander Athol H. George, United States naval reserve force, convicted of disobeying an order of the commanding officer of his ship, who is a medical officer of the navy, Secretary Denby has established the rule that no line officer is subject to the command of a staff officer of superior rank.

SLAYS DIVORCED WIFE AND FAMILY

OHIO MAN, JEALOUS OF FORMER SPOUSE'S HAPPINESS, CARRIES OUT DEATH THREAT.

OFFICIAL HAS NARROW ESCAPE

Deputy Sheriff Fired Upon When He Enters Home to Investigate Cause of Shooting.

East Tawas, Mich.—Henry Wilkinson, a one-armed man of Bellsire, Ohio, made good his threat to "get" his former wife and her husband.

His jealousy aroused by the happiness that his former wife met in her second marriage, Wilkinson came to East Tawas Monday and killed Mr. and Mrs. Riley Griffiths, shot their two-year-old son Edward, and was himself wounded. Wilkinson was shot by Griffiths just before the latter died. Deputy Sheriff Arthur Dillon narrowly escaped death when he came to the Griffiths home to investigate the shooting.

The tragedy occurred in the dining room of the Griffiths' house a few moments after the family had been seated at the dinner table.

Without even knocking, Wilkinson entered the dining room and, brandishing a revolver, he shouted: "Now, I've got you all where I want you. This is the happiest moment in my life. For two years, I've felt all the pain and anguish that a man deserted by his wife can feel. Now it's my time to be merry."

Before he had even completed his last sentence, the fusillade from his gun began. Mrs. Griffiths was the first to fall under his fire.

Then came Griffiths. A bullet in the chest was the penalty Wilkinson visited upon him. Summoning all his strength, Griffiths crawled to a bureau, where he got a gun. From behind a chair, he shot at Wilkinson, the bullet entered the abdomen. This was Griffiths' last act before he died.

But Wilkinson's firing went on and the next victim was the innocent two-year-old baby. A maternal smile came over his face, as in pendulum fashion, he raised his gun up and down and snuffed out the lives of his "enemies."

Just as Deputy Dillon came through the door of the little home, Wilkinson's strength seemed to have deserted him and he fell to the floor with a heavy thud. Wilkinson and the baby were taken to East Tawas hospital, where little hope for the recovery of Wilkinson was held out. The baby may recover, it was said.

Wilkinson's matrimonial troubles began in Bellaire a little more than three years ago, when his wife obtained a divorce on the grounds of cruelty and nonsupport. Wilkinson, it is said, threatened to kill her if she obtained a decree. When she obtained one, she came to East Tawas and was married to Griffiths.

When Wilkinson learned of her second marriage, his anger assumed fanatical proportions. He wrote letter after letter, commanding her to return and take her place in his home as his wife.

FLAYS PLANS TO AID EUROPE

Chicago Banker Criticizes U. S. Effort at "Artificial Aid."

Washington.—George M. Reynolds, of Chicago, chairman of the board of the Continental and Commercial National bank, touched off a verbal bombshell at the dinner given by President Harding to western bankers at the White House last week.

Mincing no words, he attacked as fallacious, chimerical and destructive of American prosperity, many of the schemes of domestic and foreign financing being urged upon the president by members of his cabinet and by powerful Wall street interests.

"Improvement in Europe is not worth buying at the price of America's impoverishment," said Mr. Reynolds, when the discussion was at its height.

BEER AND WINE VOTED DOWN

House Passes Measure to Forestall Palmer Beer Edict.

Washington.—The house by a vote of 250 to 93 voted that beer and light wines shall not be used as medicine in the United States.

It passed the Willis-Campbell bill, supplementing the Volstead prohibition enforcement act, to forestall execution of regulation providing for prescription of beer and light wines as medicine held by former Attorney General Palmer to be within the law.

MICHIGAN FLYER KILLED IN FALL

Flying Cadet Page, of Union City, Meets Tragic Death.

Sacramento, Cal.—Flying Cadet Harold E. Page, of Union City, Mich., and Joseph W. Weatherly, of Fort Davis, Texas, were killed instantly when their aeroplane crashed to earth near Visalia, approximately 200 miles south of here. The men were starting a flight from Visalia to Sacramento when the plane fell.

LEGION MAN OBTAINS PATENT

Twice Wounded, Engineer While Confinement to Hospital, Works Out Bronze Tablet.

Wounded by the explosion of a high explosive shell in the Vosges mountains, Private R. G. Quehl, 18th Engineers, lay on a hard cot in a hospital and wondered about his chances of getting home. He recovered, however, went into action, and on November 2, was again wounded.

Brought back to America and placed in the base hospital at Camp Lewis, Wash., Quehl worked out the details for a bronze memorial tablet. While awaiting his discharge he drew up the plans, and in civilian life again, he has obtained a patent on an invention which he calls the individual war memorial.

It is a plaque of bronze with the figure of a private in war uniform. Around the plaque in raised letters are the names of the allied countries. A plate to be engraved with the service record is in the center. Orders are pouring in so rapidly that he has been forced to enlarge his working force.

SHOULD FILE CLAIM AT ONCE

Disability Demands Required on War Risk Insurance Forms to Gain Attention.

"If you have a disability which you feel is due to your military or naval service during the war, you should as a matter of duty to yourself and your country immediately file a claim for disability," reads an article in the American Legion Weekly.

"To make the claim, obtain from your local post, the National Service Division of the Legion, or the Bureau of War Risk Insurance the following forms: Numbers 329, 330 and 343. In addition, make a detailed statement of your condition and occupation prior to service, injury or sickness during service, where treated, and physical condition since discharge. Obtain a like statement from one or more persons who were with you and knew of your disability during service. Get a statement also from one or two persons who have known you since discharge, particularly your employers and other disinterested persons.

"Last and most important, get statements from all the doctors who treated your case and from the hospitals where you were confined. These must all be sworn to before a notary public and forwarded to the Bureau of War Risk Insurance, where, after consideration of your health record, your military record and your present condition, an award should either be made or disallowed.

"If you are among the 100,000 whose claims are hanging fire, the National Service Division of the American Legion will make it its personal business to get a decision on your claim."

What would have happened if, not many months ago, doughboys had seen a real live general wrestling with a refractory nut during a session of fatigue detail?

Bogus "Funds."

Declaring that there have been many funds started which were said to be for the benefit of ex-service men and women and which were used illicitly, the Los Angeles, Cal., Advertising club has voted to withhold contributions and endorsement from any future campaign until the local American Legion posts have investigated.

Fordson TRACTOR

F. O. B. Detroit

"Yes
I've more
Time for Myself
Since
I Got
Fordson"

The Fordson Tractor is taking much of the drudgery out of farm life; it is solving the labor problem; it is reducing the cost of preparing land by almost one half of what it was with horses; and it is saving one third to one half of the farmer's time; and making farm life more attractive.

The Fordson will run your threshing machine—and at the most opportune time for you. It will operate the milking machines, saw your wood, fill your silo, pump the water, and take care of every kind of belt work.

And don't forget—it will plow six to eight acres in a ten hour day, handling two plows with ease.

Thus the Fordson is the ideal year-round tractor. It will pay for its fall and winter keep in many ways.

There's a big story to tell you about the Fordson—and a true one—come in and get the facts. Or, if you prefer, telephone or drop us a card and we will bring them to you.

CONDUCTOR EXONERATED AT INQUEST HELD FRIDAY

miles per hour; conductor of yellow car was in telephone booth when he last saw him.

R. A. Lamb, Ypsilanti, conductor on green car, stated he was in the front part of the car at Ward hill did not talk to motorman; had verbal orders to take siding at Warsaw; observed that car was going too fast but did not know the cause; had reminded motorman that they were to take the Warsaw siding; considered motorman a competent man; was in front watching for car from west; could not state whether brakes were applied or not.

A. H. Cady, Ann Arbor, superintendent of the line, was next called, stated that motormen were usually left to see that the machinery was in proper working order; did not know whether motorman Winchell had reported car out of order or not; stated that when the brakes were partly out of order the motorman usually proceeded if he considered that he could reasonably control the car; motorman was to use own judgment as to safe condition of car; was not violating rules of company if he thought brakes were out of order. Stated that green car was owned by the Michigan United Railway and that the emergency brakes on the car operated different than on the D. J. & C. cars.

Dr. G. W. Palmer, Chelsea, stated that himself and his son were the first physicians to arrive; he had examined the dead body of A. C. Pierce some time after he had administered first aid to several of the injured; had also seen Mrs. Pierce and thought she was dying when he reached her side. Stated that Mr. and Mrs. Pierce had been looked after by Dr. S. G. Bush before he saw them.

E. A. Root, Ypsilanti, motorman of yellow car, stated that he had orders to stop at Warsaw, that the train was run in two sections, that they left Ann Arbor at the same time, being between 500 and 600 feet apart; and that rear section had the same orders he had; gained time, had been on siding at Warsaw between 3 and 5 minutes when struck by rear section; he read section from rule book of the company; he stated that his orders were written but those of the second section were verbal.

B. A. Winchell, Ypsilanti, motorman on green car, stated he had orders to stop at Warsaw instead of Egeel, the regular stop; took charge of the car at Ypsilanti; after leaving the car barns and before reaching the Ypsilanti waiting room, the motorman who brought the car from Detroit told him the breaks were not working properly and that he began operating them farther back than usual; stopped at Lake Shore railway crossing and the regular stops in Ann Arbor; the power was not good when he applied brakes; that the emergency brake on the green car worked with a lever, working like a pump handle and made two notches at a stroke but that D. J. & C. cars had hand brakes; had trouble making brakes hold at all stops; commenced to set brakes 2,000 feet back of Warsaw siding; when within 600 or 700 feet of siding, began applying emergency brakes but that they did not take hold; could have stopped if brakes had been same as on yellow car; thought he could make Jackson with the car; stated that the green cars were often out of order and that the brakes were often out of order.

The jury, in their verdict, exonerated Conductor Fletcher, and so far as Motorman Winchell was concerned, they left the matter of blame open.

Farewell Sermon.

A large audience attended the union service in the Congregational church Sunday evening, at which time Rev. P. W. Dierberger delivered his farewell address, bringing to a close, a pastorate of nearly five years in that church. During the residence of Rev. and Mrs. Dierberger here, they have gained many friends and both have been active in church and civic work. Rev. and Mrs. Dierberger and family leave for South Haven today, where he will fill the position as pastor of the First Congregational church of that city and they take with them the best wishes of a host of friends here, for their success in their new field of work.

Ruth Law Flying Circus.

The Jackson County Agricultural Society has secured at great expense, the Ruth Law Flying Circus to appear on their grounds in Jackson on Saturday, July 9, in conjunction to the automobile races that are to be staged on that date. Miss Law has never been seen in Jackson before, and W. B. Burris of the Fair Association is to be congratulated for securing an attraction of this high standard for the public.

For further details and announcements, watch the next week's issue of this paper.

Big Circus at Ann Arbor.

The focus of all amusement interest and activities will lie at Ann Arbor on July 5 for that's the day when John Robinson's circus parades and gives afternoon and night performances in that city.

Now on its ninety-eighth annual tour of the United States and Canada, the John Robinson circus will steam into Ann Arbor on four trains, with 1,200 people, 550 horses and 400 zoo animals on board. In no time at all the greatest spread of canvas seen in America within twenty years will be looming against the skyline on the show grounds. The big top will seat 12,000 people. Nearly 400 of the best steeple circus stars in America and Europe will be seen in the three rings, on the two stages, in the air and on the hippodrome track. Such stellar notables as the Nelson family, Irene Montgomery, the Nelson Sisters, Nettie Dill, John Hodgini, Madame Bedini, Madame Hodgini, Cecil Lowanda, the Lomonds, the Ben Ali Blancs, the Onotwans, the Du Brules, the Castenas, the Coronadas and the Jan Bakks are among the feature acts. The riding, acrobatic and aerial acts this season are not to be equaled, while the clown numbers, produced by Johnny Lowlow, Jr., and forty-nine assistant funmakers, will be up to the usual John Robinson high standard. The two-mile street parade, actually 22 city blocks in length, will leave the lot at 11 a. m.—Advertisement.

IT IS TO LAUGH.

Synopsis.—In December, 1918, four men gathered in a hotel in Berlin and heard one of the quartet outline a plan to paralyze Great Britain and at the same time seize world power. The other three, Hocking, American, and Steinman, and Von Gratz, German, all millionaires, agree to the plan, providing another man, Hiram Potts, an American, be taken in. The instigator of the plot gives his name as Count de Guy, but when he leaves for England with his daughter, he leaves to use the name Carl Peterson. Capt. Hugh Drummond, a retired officer, advertises for work that will give him excitement, signing "Sapper." As a result he meets Hiram Potts, a young woman who answers his ad. She tells him of strange murders and robberies of which she suspects a band headed by Peterson and Henry Lakington. She tells her father is involved. Drummond goes to The Larches, Miss Benton's home, next door to The Elms, Peterson's place. Peterson and Lakington stop his car and look him over. With a flourish of Phyllis and her father Drummond leaves The Larches and explores The Elms. He discovers Lakington and Peterson using a thumbcrew on Hiram Potts, who signs a paper. Drummond secures half the paper, rescues him after a struggle and takes him to his own home. Peterson calls and demands the half of the torn paper and Potts. Hugh laughs at him.

CHAPTER III—Continued.

There was something so incredibly menacing in the soft, quiet voice that Drummond looked at the speaker fascinated. He had a sudden feeling that he must be dreaming—that in a moment or two he would wake up and find that they had really been talking about the weather the whole time. Then the cynical gleam of triumph in Peterson's eyes acted on him like a cold douche.

"Your candor is as refreshing," he answered gently, "as your smiles are apt. I shudder to think of that poor little girl, Mr. Peterson, especially with your chauffeur grinding his gears to pieces." He held open the door for his visitor, and followed him into the passage. At the other end stood Denny, ostentatiously dusting a book-shelf, and Peterson glanced at him casually. It was characteristic of the man that no trace of annoyance showed on his face. He might have been an ordinary visitor taking his leave.

And then suddenly from the room outside which Denny was dusting there came a low moaning and an incoherent babble. A quick frown passed over Drummond's face, and Peterson regarded him thoughtfully. "An invalid in the house?" he remarked. "How inconvenient for you!" He laid his hand for a moment on the soldier's arm. "I sadly fear you're going to make a fool of yourself. And it will be such a pity." He turned toward the stairs. "Don't bother, please; I can find my own way out."

THREE.

Hugh turned back into his own room, and lighting a particularly noisy pipe, sat down in his own special chair. He was under no delusions as to the risks he was running. Underlying his opponent had never been a faint of his, either in the ring or in France, and he had no intention of beginning now. The man who could abduct an American millionaire, and drug him till he was little better than a baby, and then use a thumbcrew to enforce his wishes, was not likely to prove over-scrupulous in the future.

After a while he began half-unconsciously to talk aloud to himself. "Two alternatives, old buck," he remarked, "stopping the air with his pipe. 'One—give the Potts bird up at Berners street; two—do not. Number one—out of court at once. Preposterous—absurd. Therefore—number two holds the field.' He rang the bell.

"James," he said, as the door opened, "take a piece of paper and a pencil—if there's one with a point—and sit down at the table. I'm going to think, and I'd hate to miss out anything."

His servant complied, and for a while silence reigned.

"First," remarked Drummond, "put down—They know where Potts is. Two—They will try to get Potts."

"Yes, sir," answered Denny writing busily.

"Three—They will not get Potts. Now, James, you've got to do something else. Rise and with your well-known stealth approach the window, and see if the watcher still watches without."

The servant took a prolonged survey, and finally announced that he failed to see him.

"Then that proves conclusively that he's there," said Hugh. "Write it down, James. Four—Owing to the watcher without, Potts cannot leave the house without being seen. Five—Potts must leave the house without being seen."

I went him, James. I want him all to myself. He shall go to my cottage on the river, and you shall look after him."

"Yes, sir," returned James dutifully.

"And in order to get him there, we must get rid of the watcher without. How can we get rid of the bird—how can we, James, I ask you? Why, by giving him nothing further to watch for. Once let him think that Potts is no longer within, unless he's an imbecile he will no longer remain within. Now trot along over, James, and give my compliments to Mr. Darrell. Ask him to come in and see me for a moment. Say I'm thinking and haven't moved."

James rose obediently, and Drummond heard him cross over the passage to the other suite of rooms that lay on the same floor. Then he heard the murmur of voices, and shortly afterward his servant returned.

"He is in his bath, sir, but he'll come over as soon as he's finished." He delivered the message and stood waiting. "Anything more, sir?"

"Yes, James. I feel certain that there's a lot. But just to carry on with, I'll have another glass of beer." As the door closed, Drummond rose and started to pace up and down the room. The plan he had in his mind was simple, but he was a man who believed in simplicity.

"Peterson will not come himself—nor will our one and only Henry. Potts has not been long in the country, which is all to the good. And if it falls—we shan't be any worse off than we are now. Luck—that's all; and the more you tempt her, the kinder she is." He was still talking gently to himself when Peter Darrell strolled into the room.

"Can this thing be true, old dog?" remarked the newcomer. "I hear you're in the throes of a brain-storm."

"I am, Peter. I want you to help me."

"All that I have, dear old fellow, is yours for the asking. What can I do?" "Well, first of all, I want you to come along and see the household pet." He piloted Darrell along the passage to the American's room, and opened the door. The millionaire looked at them lazily from the pillows, and Darrell stared back in startled surprise.

"My God! What's the matter with him?" he cried.

"I would give a good deal to know," said Hugh grimly. Then he smiled reassuringly at the motionless man, and led the way back to the sitting-room.

"Sit down, Peter," he said. "Get outside that beer and listen to me carefully."

For ten minutes he spoke, while his companion listened in silence. Come completely was the rather vacuous-faced youth clad in a gorgeous dressing-gown; in his place there sat a keen-faced man nodding from time to time as a fresh point was made clear. At length Hugh finished. "Will you do it, old man?" he asked.

"Of course," returned the other. "But wouldn't it be better, Hugh, to get splendidly, to whip up two or three of the boys and have a real scrap? I don't seem to have anything to do."

Drummond shook his head decidedly. "No, Peter, my boy—not this show. We're up against a big thing; and if you like to come with me, I think you'll have all you want in the scuffling line before you're finished. But this time, low cunning is the order."

Darrell rose. "Right you are, dearie. Your instructions shall be carried out to the letter. Come and feed your face with me."

"Not today," said Hugh. "I've got quite a bit to get through this afternoon."

As soon as Darrell had gone, Drummond again rang the bell for his servant.

"This afternoon, James, you and Mrs. Denny will leave here and go to Paddington. Go out by the front door, and should you find yourselves being followed—as you probably will—keep your heads. Having arrived at Cheltenham, say good-by to Mrs. Denny in an impassioned tone, and exhort her not to miss the next train to that delectable inland resort. Then, James, you will board the train for Cheltenham and go there. You will remain there for two days. You will then return here, and await further orders. Do you get me?"

"Yes, sir."

"Your wife—she has a stator or something, hasn't she, knocking about somewhere?" "She's a palsied cousin in Cumberland, sir," remarked James with justifiable pride.

"Magnificent," murmured Hugh. "She will daily until eventually with her palsied cousin—if she can bear it—and then she must go by underground to Ealing, where she will take a ticket to Goring. I don't think there will be any chance of her being followed—you'll have drawn them off. When she gets to Goring, I want the cottage got ready at once, for two visitors."

He paused and lit a cigarette. "Above all, James—must be the word. As I told you a little while ago, the game has begun. Now just repeat what I've told you."

He listened while his servant ran through his instructions, and nodded approvingly. "To think there are still people who think military service a waste of time!" he murmured. "Four years ago you couldn't have got one word of it right."

He dismissed Denny, and sat down at his desk. First he took the half-torn sheet out of his pocket, and putting it in an envelope, sealed it carefully. Then he placed it in another envelope, with a covering letter to his bank, requesting them to keep the inclosure intact.

Then he took a sheet of notepaper, and with much deliberation proceeded to pen a document which afforded him considerable amusement. Judging by the grin which appeared from time to time on his face. This effusion he also enclosed in a sealed envelope, which he again addressed to his bank. Finally, he stamped the first, but not the second—and placed them both in his pocket.

With the departure of the Denny's for Paddington, which coincided most aptly with the return of Peter Darrell, a period of activity commenced in Half Moon street. But being interior activity, interfering in no way with the placid warmth of the street outside, the gentleman without, whom a keen observer might have thought strangely interested in the beauties of that well-known thoroughfare—seeing that he had been there for three hours—remained serenely unconscious of it. His pal had followed the Denny's to Paddington, Drummond had not come out—and the watcher who watched without was beginning to get bored.

About 4:30 he sat up and took notice as some one left the house; but it was only the superbly dressed young man whom he had discovered already was merely a clothes-peg calling himself Darrell.

The sun was getting low and the shadows were lengthening when a taxi drove up to the door. Immediately the watcher drew closer, only to stop.

At one o'clock the car swung up to The Elms. For the last ten minutes Hugh had been watching the invalid in the corner, who was making frantic efforts to loosen his gaze. His eyes were rolling horribly, and he swayed from side to side in his seat, but the bandages round his hands held firm and at last he gave it up.

Even when he was lifted out and carried indoors he did not struggle; he seemed to have sunk into a sort of apathy. Drummond followed with dignified calmness, and was led into a room off the hall.

In a moment or two Peterson entered, followed by his daughter. "Ah! my young friend," cried Peterson affably, "I hardly thought you'd give me such an easy run as this."

He put his hand into Drummond's pockets, and pulled out his revolver and a bundle of letters. "To your bank," he murmured. "Oh! surely, surely not that as well. Not even stamped. Engage him, Irma—and with his hands. My very dear young friend—you pain me."

"I wish to know, Mr. Peterson," said Hugh quietly, "by what right this dastardly outrage has been committed. A friend of mine, sick in bed—removed, abducted in the middle of the night: to say nothing of me."

With a gentle laugh Irma offered him a cigarette. "Mon Dieu!" she remarked, "but you are most gloriously ugly, my Hugh!"

Peterson, with a faint smile, opened the envelope in his hand. And, even as he pulled out the contents, he paused suddenly and the smile faded from his face. From the landing upstairs came a heavy crash, followed by a flood of the most appalling language.

"What the devil," cried Drummond furiously, "is the meaning of this?"

With a faint smile as he saw two men get out of it. One was the immaculate Darrell; the other was a stranger, and both were quite obviously what in the vernacular is known as oiled.

"You prishless ole bean," he heard Darrell say affectionately, "tish blinckin' calsh my show."

The other man hiccupped assent, and leant wearily against the palms.

"Right," he remarked, "ole friend of me youth. It shall be ash you wish."

With a tolerant eye he watched them tack up the stairs, singing lustily in chorus. Then the door above closed, and the melody continued to float out through the open window.

Ten minutes later he was relieved. It was quite an unostentatious relief. Another man merely strolled past him. And since there was nothing to report, he merely strolled away. He could hardly be expected to know that up in Peter Darrell's sitting-room, two perfectly sober young men were contemplating with professional eyes an extremely drunk gentleman slinging in a chair, and that one of those two sober young men was Peter Darrell.

Then further interior activity took place in Half Moon street, and as the darkness fell, silence gradually settled on the house.

Ten o'clock struck, then eleven—and the silence remained unbroken. It was not till eleven-thirty that a sudden small sound made Hugh Drummond all up in his chair, with every nerve alert. It came from the direction of the kitchen—and it was the second he had been waiting for.

Swiftly he opened his door and passed along the passage to where the motionless man lay still in bed.

"Hiram C. Potts," he said in a low, coaxing tone, "sit up and take your ammonia. Force yourself, ladde, force yourself, I know it's nauseating, but doctor said no alcohol and very little meat."

His voice died away, and he rose slowly to his feet. In the open door four men were standing, each with a peculiar-shaped revolver in his hand.

"Cut it out," cried the leader contemptuously. "These guns are silent. If you utter—you die. Do you get me?"

The veins stood out on Drummond's forehead, and he controlled himself with an immense effort.

"Are you aware that this man is a guest of mine, and sick?" he said, his voice shaking with rage.

"You don't say," remarked the leader, and one of the others laughed. "Rip the bed-clothes off, boys, and gag the young cock-sparrow."

Before he could resist, a gag was thrust in Drummond's mouth and his hands were tied behind his back. Then, helpless and impotent, he watched three of them lift up the man from the bed, and putting a gag in his mouth also, carry him out of the room.

"Move," said the fourth to Hugh. "You join the picnic."

A large car drove up as they reached the street, and in less time than it takes to tell, the two helpless men were pushed in, followed by the leader; the door was shut and the car drove off.

"Don't forget," he said to Drummond solemnly, "this gun is silent. You had better be the same."

At one o'clock the car swung up to The Elms. For the last ten minutes Hugh had been watching the invalid in the corner, who was making frantic efforts to loosen his gaze. "Hiram C. Potts," he said in a low, coaxing tone, "sit up and take your ammonia. Force yourself, ladde, force yourself, I know it's nauseating, but Drummond leaned back in his chair and regarded his host with a faint smile.

"I must come to you for lessons, Mr. Peterson. Though I frankly admit," he added genially, "that I have never been brought up to regard the forcible abduction of a harmless individual and a friend who is sleeping off the effects of what few people call a jug as being exactly typical of that admirable quality."

Peterson's glance rested on the disheveled man still standing by the door, and after a moment's thought he leaped forward and pressed a bell.

"Take that man away," he said abruptly to the servant who came into the room, "and put him to bed. I will consider what to do with him in the morning."

"Consider he d—d!" howled Mullings, starting forward angrily. "You'll consider a thick ear, Mr. Blomming. Know-all. What I want to know—"

The words died away in his mouth, and he gazed at Peterson like a bird looks at a snake. There was something so ruthlessly malignant in the stare of the gray-blue eyes that the ex-soldier who had viewed going over the top with comparative equanimity as being part of his job quailed and looked apprehensively at Drummond.

"Do what the kind gentleman tells you, Mullings," said Hugh, "and go to bed." He lit a cigarette, and thoughtfully blew out a cloud of smoke.

"Stop this fooling," started Peterson. "Where have you hidden Potts?" "Tush, tush," murmured Hugh. "You surprise me. I had formed such a charming mental picture of you, Mr. Peterson, as the strong, silent man who never lost his temper, and here you are, disappointing me at the beginning of our acquaintance."

For a moment he thought that Peterson was going to strike him, and his own fist clenched under the table.

"I wouldn't," my friend," he said quietly. "Indeed I wouldn't. Because if you hit me, I shall most certainly hit you. And it will not improve your beauty."

Slowly Peterson sank back in his chair, and the veins which had been standing out on his forehead became normal again. He even smiled; only the careless tapping of his hand on his left knee betrayed his momentary loss of composure. Drummond's fist unclenched, and he stole a look at the girl. She was in her favorite attitude on the sofa, and had not even looked up.

"I suppose that it is quite useless for me to argue with you," said Peterson after a while.

"I was a member of my school debating society," remarked Hugh reticently. "But I was never much good. I'm too obvious for argument. I'm afraid."

"You probably realize from what has happened tonight," continued Peterson, "that I am in earnest."

"I should be sorry to think so," answered Hugh. "If that is the best you can do, I'd cut it right out and start a tomato farm."

The girl gave a little gurgle of laughter and lit another cigarette.

"Will you come and do the dangerous part of the work for us, Monsieur Hugh?" she asked.

"If you promise to restrain the little fellows, I'll water them with pleasure," returned Hugh lightly.

Peterson rose and walked over to the window, where he stood motionless, staring out into the darkness. Hugh realized that the situation was what in military phraseology might be termed critical. There were in the house probably half a dozen men who like their master, were absolutely unscrupulous. If it suited Peterson's book to kill him, he would not hesitate to do so for a single second.

For a moment the thought crossed his mind that he would take chances by remaining in the house; that he would rush Peterson from behind and escape into the darkness of the garden. But it was only a momentary—gone almost before it had come, for Hugh Drummond was not that manner of man—gone even before he noticed that Peterson was standing in such a position that he could see every detail of the room behind him reflected in the glass through which he stared.

Both Hugh and Peterson narrowly escape death in the dark.

Washington's Religion.

There has been considerable controversy over the extent to which religious belief entered into Washington's character. His own chronicles show that most of his Sundays, except during the presidency, when he felt obliged to set an example, he spent in answering letters, going over his accounts, hunting or doing any business that those with whom he was negotiating had no scruples. In choosing people to work for him he set up no barriers of creed, judging men from the standpoint of honesty, industry and ability.

How Kisses Came.

Of course it doesn't really matter who invented kissing—but the legend of the Greek Sapphoes who found an apt on one of the hills near Athens, and wishing to give it to a young shepherd whose mules were over-cupped, let him take it from her lips with his own. Is one of many stories which give Greece the honor of the very first kiss.

After a man has made a fool of him self he realizes what a far-seeing eye of acquaintance he has.

DAIRY POINTS

GOOD OF BULL ASSOCIATIONS

Animals Are of Better Quality Than Ordinary Run of Sires Privately Owned.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

A survey recently made in connection with the "better sire—better stock" campaign carried on by the United States Department of Agriculture shows a general ratio of 1 bull to every 18.9 cows. Experience, however, in Pennsylvania, the state which leads in the number of bull associations, shows that 33 bulls are sufficient for the 5,004 cows belonging to members of the bull associations, or an average of about 1 bull for every 50 cows. These figures are taken from the bull-association directory recently issued by the dairy division, United States Department of Agriculture.

If the members of these associations owned their bulls individually, at the usual ratio of 1 bull for every 18.9 cows, they would need 236 bulls instead of 33. Yet the 33 bulls give the required service as effectively as 236 would do, and in fact better, because the resulting offspring are better. The association bulls are of better quality than the ordinary run of sires privately owned, and their daughters are apt to be better-producing cows.

Even this does not tell the whole story. After an individually owned sire has been used for about two years it is usually necessary to get a new one. In eight years, therefore, these Pennsylvania farmers, if they owned their bulls separately, would have to provide themselves with four times 236 bulls, or 1,184; whereas in the bull associations at the end of two years they simply move each bull to another herd. The original 33 bulls, if they all live and do well, can be used for the whole eight years. There is quite a difference between the cost of 33 bulls and that of 1,184, to say nothing of the difference in their usefulness.

The members of bull associations sometimes pay less and always receive more for their money than cow owners who go it alone.

Promote Friendly Rivalry.

Milk and Cream Contests Are Important Feature in Improvement of Supplies.

Friendly rivalry among milk producers and among dealers is an important feature in the improvement of the milk supplies of cities. United States Department of Agriculture experts assert. Any factor which encourages this rivalry must be given careful consideration by sanitarians and all milk authorities. Since the inauguration of milk and cream contests, in 1900, this method of promoting friendly rivalry has been recognized. At this time, besides State and National contests, a number of cities use such means for grading milk supplies.

Milk and cream contests promote competition among the dairymen, lead to the grading of milk supplies, and through publicity encourage the efforts of producers as well as educate the consumers regarding the value of good milk and where the best can be obtained.

Are You All Worn Out?

Do you suffer daily backache and stabbing pains—feel worn out and dispirited? You shouldn't! You want to be well and the best way to get well is to find what is making you feel so badly. You should look then to your kidneys. When the kidneys weaken you suffer backache, rheumatic pains and urinary irregularities; your head aches, you are tired, nervous and depressed. Help the weakened kidneys with Doan's Kidney Pills. Doan's have helped thousands. They should help you. Ask your neighbor!

A Michigan Case

William Gentz, 61 Olden Ave., Manistique, Mich., says: "I had sharp pains in my side and back, and I couldn't sleep nights. Mornings I felt stiff and lame and was always tired. I was often dizzy. My kidneys were so irregular that I had to get up during the night and the secretions were painful in passage and badly colored. Doan's Kidney Pills have cured me."

To Encourage Salvage.

Following the policy of rigid economy laid down by the secretary of war, and with his approval, the quartermaster corps hereafter will teach enlisted men salvage work. A school for training the personnel in the repair of clothing and shoes has just been established at Camp Jackson, S. C., and another school for the repair of typewriters at Fort McDowell, Ga. This training of the men will be part of the routine work of the salvage shops, and additional schools will be established as soon as possible at convenient points in other corps areas. In this way much material bought for the war can be repaired and utilized for the peace-time needs of the army, saving thousands of dollars to the taxpayers.

Knew All About Caruso.

A musician brings a pleasant story from New York regarding Enrico Caruso, at whose recovery from a severe illness recently the whole world rejoiced.

A gentleman was discussing the illness of the great tenor with a friend, his small son being present.

"Caruso is certainly a sick man," he said.

The child's countenance brightened; the light of knowledge shone in his eyes.

"Why, Caruso isn't a man!" he replied. "He's a photograph record."

An Appropriate Name.

Farmer Kornstass—Wah, it's too bad you received the notice of my little darter's birth too late to put it in the paper. Say, kin yer think of a good name for her?

Editor of the Hingtown Bugle—Sure; call her Ad. delayed.

Relic of the Past.

"This, I presume, is the portrait of one of your former admirers."

"Don't be foolish, hubby. That is a photograph of yourself when you had hair."

Missed His Step.

Orville Gault—It is my intention to marry your daughter, sir. I have considered the step I am about to take.

Old Billy—You have, eh? Well, I have an idea you're going to take about eight steps without touching them.

Drawing Distinctions.

"Who is your favorite author?"

"What do you mean? The one whose pieces I like to read or the one whose picture looks cutest in the advertisement?"

SIGNING DECLARATION

This photograph of the famous painting in the capitol at Washington of the signing of the Declaration of Independence gives you a glimpse of the birth of the American nation. That Declaration, penned by Thomas Jefferson, was signed and became effective on July 4, 1776.

In Regular Order

The Declaration of Independence had its place in the regular order of business of the Continental congress on July 4, 1776, and it gave way to other matters of far less importance, which evidently were considered with extreme care.

For instance, Secretary Thomson abruptly begins his record of July 4, 1776, with a resolution regarding a supply of flints for the New York troops; also requesting Maryland and Delaware to rush their respective forces for the flying camp.

Then "agreeably to the order of the day"—see how parliamentary the proceedings—"the congress resolved to take into a committee of the whole to take into their further consideration the Declaration."

After some time consumed in the deliberation of the various features of the document President Hancock resumed the chair and Chairman Benjamin Harrison of Virginia (the great-grandfather of the President of the United States of the same name) reported an agreement upon a "Declaration" which the committee had instructed him to report to the congress.

"The Declaration, being read," says Secretary Thomson, "was agreed to as follows." Thereupon follows a copy of the historic document, and at the end thereof are appended the names of the signers.

After ordering the Declaration to be circulated throughout the colonies the congress considered the matter of hiring a vessel for privateering purposes possibly—and a committee was appointed to attend to the business.

Then came a letter from Gen. Washington, a measure to consider the safety of Philadelphia, some more instructions regarding flints, the election of Indian commissioners for the "middle department"—New York and Pennsylvania principally—and Dr. Franklin and other delegates were instructed to inform successful candidates of their election.

Set Forth Truths

Jefferson did not need to create the Declaration. He had but to express the sentiments which were common to the mass of freedom-loving men. In after years, when enemies declared that the authorship of the Declaration of Independence displayed a lack of originality and that every idea in it was "backed up" and was to be found in half a dozen earlier publications, Jefferson replied with perfect wisdom and fairness, "I did not consider it as any part of my charge to invent new ideas altogether and to offer no sentiment which had been expressed before."

It is this fact that has led some historians to allege that Thomas Paine may have had a hand in the writing of the Declaration of Independence, for without doubt there were expressed in some of his previous writings ideas of liberty and justice that of necessity animated many of the sentiments embodied in the document as written by Jefferson. But there seems to be no adequate foundation for the truth of the statement that Paine had any direct hand in its framing.

Jefferson set forth in precise terms the reason for the colonies' withdrawal from British rule. In the classic with which every schoolboy is familiar. The original draft in his handwriting is now in the State department archives at Washington. It shows trifling alterations, interlined in the handwriting of Franklin and Adams; otherwise it came before congress precisely as Jefferson wrote it.

Jefferson's own account of the drafting of the Declaration bears out this opinion. According to his statement, when the committee came together he was pressed by his colleagues to undertake the draft; that he did so; that when he prepared it he submitted it to Dr. Franklin and Mr. Adams, separately, requesting their corrections, "which were two or three only, interlined in their own handwritings"; that the report in this shape was adopted by the committee and a "fair copy," written out by Jefferson, was then read.

Henry's Defiance

The house of burgesses of Virginia of which Patrick Henry was a member went into a committee of the whole on May 20, 1775, to consider the Stamp act, seven resolutions were introduced on that occasion, which brought forth a "bloody" debate. Five were passed.

Moses Colt Tyler in his life of Henry, writing of the orator's defense of the resolution says, "Reaching the climax of a passage of fearful invective on the injustice and the impolicy of the Stamp act, he said in tones of thrilling solemnity, 'Caesar had his Brutus; Charles the First, his Cromwell; and George the Third, 'Treason,' shouted the speaker. 'Treason,' 'treason,' rose from all sides of the room. The orator paused in stately defiance till these rude exclamations were ended, and then, rearing himself with a look and bearing of still prouder and fiercer determination, he closed the sentence as to baffle his accusers, without in the least flinching from his own position,—and George the Third may profit by their example. If this be treason, make the most of it." He was elected from Virginia, to be a member of the first Continental congress, which met in Philadelphia in September, 1774. This meeting brought him into national prominence. Silas Deane of Connecticut wrote to his wife about Henry, "He is a lawyer and the completest speaker I have ever heard."

It is not generally known that in the first organization of the Revolutionary army in Virginia, the chief command was given to Patrick Henry. However, he saw no action because the committee of safety made it easy for him to resign.

He was an inspiring and prominent member of the second Continental congress. In the "Declaration of Rights" passed by the Virginia convention in June 12, 1775, it is interesting to note that the declarations having to do with political and religious rights were drafted by Patrick Henry. This convention drew up a constitution and elected Henry governor.

As governor a second time he had the opportunity to prove his undying loyalty to Gen. Washington when some few people plotted against the supreme commander as head of the army.

The Nation's Debt to France

The phrase "our debt to France" means far more than most of us think when we use it, says the Boston Herald. Our histories have touched on the matter in such general terms, or so inadequately if they mentioned details, that few Americans realize the nature or the extent of the help that France extended in our struggle for Independence. Now that we have finally squared that account in such splendid fashion it is desirable to know more of the early items. Just what did France do?

To begin at the end, rather than at the beginning, the force that compelled the surrender of Cornwallis at Yorktown consisted of 7,000 Americans, 6,000 French soldiers under Rochambeau and 5,000 sailors landed from the French fleet, the whole 16,000 men being under command of Washington. In man-power these figures represent virtually all that France contributed, and if the force looks small in comparison to the numbers that this country sent to France in the World War let the relative forces engaged and the other circumstances be considered.

Lafayette in 1777.

If the 9,000 French soldiers and sailors were on hand in 1783 to help in giving the knockout blow, only French money and munitions had enabled the Americans to keep the struggle going from 1776 to that time. After the war our government officially stated that the loans and supplies received from France during the Revolution amounted to $33,000,000 francs. That was a far larger sum than the figures indicate today, but it does not include the many millions that the French king gave from his private purse.

How little most of us know of Beaumarchais! The glamor of the chivalrous Lafayette has perhaps obscured the fame of the other. Yet the colonies would have made but a pitiful showing indeed had it not been for the dozen shiploads of war supplies that he sent early in the struggle, muskets and ammunition for 25,000 men, 200 brass cannon, clothing, boots, etc. All that was at his own expense, and he even fitted out a ship of war to act as convoy for his supply ships. He did it all because the new world struggle for freedom appealed to the romantic nature of the man who rose from a humble watchmaker to great wealth and power. His only reward was a letter of thanks from our congress, but after his death, when his family was in poverty, congress sent it $100,000—a sum, in the estimation of Hamilton, less than one-seventh of what was due.

House at southwest corner of Duke and St. Asaph streets, Alexandria, Va., in which Lafayette was entertained during his visit to America, in 1824.

The country has put so much stress on the help of Lafayette, a major general in our army before he was twenty, and who gave his wealth as freely as he did himself, that the other items he had too little prominence. Nor is it to be forgotten that Hamilton's critical time was on the personal endorsement of the king of France. And it is to be considered that what the French government did officially was largely inspired by jealousy of England. It was nevertheless pure friendship for America and its cause that led Lafayette and Beaumarchais and their associates to contribute the help that counted most.

Greatest Event in History.

We have not the military mastery of the world, like Rome, nor have we put other kingdoms and empires under our heel, as did Egypt, Babylon, Assyria, Persia, Greece and Rome, but in the evolution of civilization those were as nothing compared with what has resulted from the signing of that great Declaration in Philadelphia, July 4, 1776.

Are You Human?

A little baby. A little child. Don't they appeal to you? Doesn't your heart yearn to pick them up, to cuddle them close to you, to shield them from all harm? sure it does else you're not human. Being human you love them. Their very helplessness makes you reach out in all your strength to aid them. In health there's no flower so beautiful. In illness there's no sight so black.

Save them then. Use every precaution. Take no chance.

When sickness comes, as sickness will, remember it's just a baby, just a child and if the Physician isn't at hand don't try some remedy that you may have around the house for your own use.

Fletcher's Castoria was made especially for babies' ills and you can use it with perfect safety as any doctor will tell you. Keep it in the house.

Exact Copy of Wrapper.

Children Cry For

Fletcher's CASTORIA

Do the People Know?

Do you know why you are asked to call for Fletcher's Castoria when you want a child's remedy? why you must insist on Fletcher's? For years we have been explaining how the popularity of Fletcher's Castoria has brought out innumerable imitations, substitutes and counterfeits.

To protect the babies: to shield the homes and in defense of generations to come we appeal to the better judgment of parents to insist on having Fletcher's Castoria when in need of a child's medicine. And remember above all things that a child's medicine is made for children—a medicine prepared for grown-ups is not interchangeable. A baby's food for a baby. And a baby's medicine is just as essential for the baby.

The Castoria Recipe (it's on every wrapper) has been prepared by the same hands in the same manner for so many years that the signature of Chas. H. Fletcher and perfection in the product are synonymous.

SWAMP-ROOT FOR KIDNEY AILMENTS

There is only one medicine that really stands out pre-eminent as a medicine for curable ailments of the kidneys, liver and bladder. Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root stands the highest for the reason that it has proven to be just the remedy needed in thousands upon thousands of distressing cases. Swamp-Root makes friends quickly because its mild and immediate effect is soon realized in most cases. It is a gentle, healing vegetable compound.

Start treatment at once. Sold at all drug stores in bottles of two sizes, medium and large.

However, if you wish first to test this great preparation send ten cents to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., for a sample bottle. When writing be sure and mention this paper.

CUSTOMS FIFTY YEARS AGO

Who among us would say to-day, "I never use a Dentifrice, I never have to?" Yet fifty years ago, odd as it may seem, not one person in 1,000 used a Dentifrice—or even a tooth brush.

So to-day, after more than 30 years of persistent publicity of Allen's Foot-Ease, the Antiseptic Powder for the Feet, not many, well-turned-out people care to confess, "You know I never have to use a Powder for the Feet!"

More than One Million five hundred thousand pounds of Powder for the Feet were used by our Army and Navy during "the war."

The reason is this: Increasing and confining the feet in Leather or Canvas Shoes is bound to create friction, more or less. Allen's Foot-Ease removes the friction from the shoes, and freshens the feet. It is this friction which causes smarting, callouses, corns and bunions. You know what friction does to your motor-car axle. Why not remove it from your footwear by Shaking into your Shoes to-day, Allen's Foot-Ease, the cleanly, wholesome, healing, Antiseptic powder? Get the habit, as millions now have it.

If one can't be wholly independent, he need not make an exhibition of his subjection.
