Tornado in Bridgewater.

Several farmers in Bridgewater were the victims of a tornado last Thursday afternoon. Some of them had their barns and silos blown down and hay and grain stacks were scattered in all directions.

On the farm of Whitney Palmer, his barn was lifted from the foundations by the force of the winds and carried about 30 feet and when it struck the ground the force was sufficient to crush it flat. A large amount of hay was stored in the barn. The silo on this farm was also blown down.

The wind also carried the barn on the farm belonging to John Girbach, from its foundations and deposited it on the ground, a mass of debris. A calf and a horse in the barn were killed. Mr. Girbach had a quantity of wheat in the barn at the time the wind struck the place. The barns on both of the places visited were recently erected structures and the loss is said to be only partly covered by insurance.

The men on both farms were in the houses when the big wind struck and in this manner escaped injury, neither of the residences being touched. A garage on the Van Riper farm was also blown down and it is stated that a machine stored there was slightly damaged. A tool shed on the George Smith place was blown over by the force of the wind.

The tornado only struck a small strip of territory in Bridgewater. The crops that fell the force of the wind were completely flattened against the soil. It is said that the tornado hopped to the vicinity of Manchester, and did some damage there and caused some loss at Geo. Feldkamp's place in Saline township. The telephone lines in the stricken area were all down Friday morning.

A force of 150 men, neighbors of the farmers affected by the tornado, gathered there Friday morning to assist in clearing away the debris. The women of the community served dinner for them at the home of the Randall sisters.

Jerome R. Armstrong.

J. R. Armstrong was born in the state of New York, July 3, 1832, and died at St. Joseph's hospital in Ann Arbor, Sunday, July 17, 1921.

Mr. Armstrong's parents settled in Parma, Michigan, in 1848, where he resided until he reached young manhood. After leaving the family home he became a resident of Illinois, where he was clerk in one of the courts of that state. From Illinois he went to Shandoah, Iowa, where he owned a tract of land and became an extensive grower of corn. For the last 30 years he has made his home in Florida, for the last 20 years at Tampa. For many years he has spent some of the summer months at the home of his brother at Cavanaugh Lake, and was well known by many of the residents in this vicinity. His wife died about three years ago.

He is survived by one son who resides in Shandoah, two daughters and one brother, Dr. R. S. Armstrong, of Chelsea. The body was brought to Chelsea from Ann Arbor, to Stafran's undertaking rooms and shipped to Shandoah, Tuesday.

Bounties Paid.

Bounties paid on woodchucks by the county in the period from January 13 to June 30 totalled $2,901.50, according to figures compiled in the county clerk's office. Rats were second on the list, these rodents costing the county a total of $2,560.50. Sparrow bounties cost the county $890.36 and crows achieved a total of $871.95.

Hawks were fifth on the list, costing Washtenaw $545.25, and wasasels cost $378.50. Owls made a total of $237.80. Most of the hunting is done by small boys according to an official in the county clerk's office.

TWO MEN KILLED BY

BANDITS LAST FRIDAY

The killing of John Burg and his farm helper, Henry Volmer, in a sheepshed on the Burg farm in Saline township, last Friday forenoon, was one of the most atrocious crimes in the history of Washtenaw county.

Both men were working in the shed treating sheep for hoof-rot when they were shot down by the assassins. Both men were shot through the head and at close range as the powder marks near the wounds plainly show and their deaths must have been almost instant.

Miss Lucille Burg, sister of the dead man, when interviewed, said that about 10 o'clock a large grey sedan stopped in front of the house, and which contained six men. Some of them came to the well where she was and asked to get some water for the radiator of their machine. She directed them to the shed where the men were working, to get a pail.

About eleven o'clock she saw four men walking down the lane toward the shed and shortly afterward she saw the same men run down to their car and they hurried away.

Miss Burg said she thought nothing of their actions at the time but shortly afterwards when repeated ringing of the dinner bell failed to evoke response, she went down to the shed, where she discovered the bodies.

The Burg home is in a secluded locality and authorities believe the robbery theory is strengthened by the fact that a coil of new rope was found beside the bodies, leading to the belief that the men intended to tie up Burg and Volmer, and killed them when they resisted.

It was common talk about the neighborhood that Mr. Burg kept considerable money concealed about the house and that in the past he had been in the habit of employing foreigners on the farm as laborers.

The crime was discovered about a half hour after it happened and it was nearly an hour and a half before the sheriff's office received word of the murders.

Neither of the three sisters of Mr. Burg, the Misses Katherine, Manetta and Lucetta, heard the shots which were fired, although the shed is only a short distance from the house.

The first clue as to the whereabouts of the bandits which the authorities had to work on was the tip which a Detroit chauffeur who was driving a banker's supply man through Saline, gave to the sheriff late Friday afternoon.

The chauffeur reported that as he was leaving Detroit toward Saline, he met a grey sedan which whizzed past him at a high rate of speed. He recognized the car as belonging to a notorious band of Italians in Detroit which has been giving the Detroit police considerable trouble.

His description of the car was similar to the description given by Miss Lucetta Burg of the car which stood in front of the Burg residence in the morning.

According to residents of Saline, when the father of Mr. Burg died he left members of the family about $38,000 in money and it has always been neighborhood talk that at least part of the money was kept some place in the farm house.

This explanation fits well with the theory of the sheriff that robbery was the motive that the bandits figured that if they could tie up the two men it would be an easy matter to dispose of the three sisters of Mr. Burg, and as the farm house is rather secluded it would be an easy matter to ransack the house in search of the hidden money.

As the road south of Saline was under construction and very few motorists would be passing by the bandits probably figured that it would be an easy matter to rob the house and get away before news of the robbery could reach Saline.

No other motive than robbery can explain the tragedy as Mr. Burg was a well liked farmer, and as far as is known had never had any trouble with anyone. Little is known about Volmer but it is stated that he was a very quiet man and never was known to have been in trouble.

Mr. Burg was about 66 years old and besides the three sisters who resided with him, he had a brother who resides on another farm nearby.

Peter and Joseph Orlando, and Tony Flore were arrested by Detroit police shortly before noon Saturday and are being held on suspicion. The Detroit police arrested three more men Monday. The men are Tony Spano, Salvatore Mocerri, and Patsy Mercurio. Five of the men are in the jail at Ann Arbor. Mocerri is being held in Detroit by the police department.

Judge E. D. Kinne is seriously ill at his home in Ann Arbor and his recovery is considered very doubtful by his friends. He served as judge of the Washtenaw circuit court for 30 years and for 50 years he has been prominent in Washtenaw county affairs.

MILLER-QUINLAN WEDDING

A very quiet but pretty wedding took place in St. Mary church on Tuesday, July 19, when Miss Josephine Margaret, daughter of Mr. Edward J. Miller, became the bride of Mr. Frank E. Quinlan, son of Mr. and Mrs. James F. Quinlan, of Ann Arbor.

Promptly at nine o'clock, to the strains of Mendelssohn's wedding march, the bridal party took their places at the altar, which was beautifully decorated with baskets of pink and white roses and ferns.

The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Stanislaus Sprzycki, of St. Thomas church, Detroit.

During the marriage ceremony, Miss Margaret Burg beautifully rendered "O Promise Me," and at the offertory of the mass, Mr. George Condon, of Detroit, sang in a most charming manner, Schubert's "Ave Maria."

The bride was simply but beautifully attired in white duchess satin with pearl trimmings with a tulle veil, fashioned in cap shape, and held in place with small clusters of orange blossoms. Her shower bouquet was of white roses and swansanta. Her only attendant was the groom's sister, Miss Margaret Quinlan, who wore a gown of coral pink canton crepe with a large hat to match, and her arm bouquet was of butterfly roses tied with coral ribbons. Bernard E. Harkins, of Ann Arbor, assisted Mr. Quinlan as groomsmen and the ushers were John Dunn and Harry Steffey of Ann Arbor.

Following the ceremony, a four course breakfast was served to the immediate relatives at the bride's home.

The bride is a graduate of the Chelsea high school. She spent three years at the University School of Music at Ann Arbor, and for the past two years has been a very successful music teacher in Chelsea. The groom is a graduate of St. Thomas high school, Ann Arbor, spent three years at the University of Michigan, enlisted and served as a lieutenant in the recent war and after his discharge entered the University of Detroit, from which he graduated in June with the degree of L. B. and is at present practicing law in the city of Detroit.

Mr. and Mrs. Quinlan left on a brief eastern trip and upon their return will make their home in Detroit.

Series of Entertainments.

One of the events of particular interest in connection with the summer session of the University School of Music and the University of Michigan is the series of entertainments and concerts which are provided free of charge to the general public. An important feature in the general program consists in the free concerts which are given every Wednesday evening in Hill Auditorium at 8:00 o'clock by members of the School of Music Faculty and guest soloists.

The remaining concerts in this series will be given as follows:

Tells of Pioneer Days.

Mrs. Carrie Hackett, of Orland, Indiana, is a guest at the home of Mr. and Mrs. G. T. English. Mrs. Hackett was 91 years of age, February 14, 1921, and for the last 47 years has resided in her present home which is just across the state line between Michigan and Indiana. Mrs. Hackett was born in Canada and at the age of 23 she was united in marriage with Mr. Hackett in the state of New York, of which state he was a native. Mrs. Hackett is as active as many persons of less than one half of her years. She is quite fluent in her description of the early years she spent in Michigan when Branch county was almost a wilderness. Her husband has been dead for several years and for a number of years she has paid an annual visit to Mr. and Mrs. English, who were former neighbors of hers. She has two sons, two daughters, fifteen grandchildren and seventeen great grandchildren living.

G. R. Swift, of Adrian, has accepted the position as postmaster of the house of representatives at Washington, D. C. The appointment was tendered him through Congressman Michener, of this district.

All In a Day's Work

His gun held ready, his eyes glancing about eagerly, a man in hunter's garb moved silently through a North Michigan swamp. Suddenly the beat of flapping wings sounded. Quickly raising gun to shoulder, he fired. "A miss!" he growled disappointedly as the duck rose high into the air and disappeared from view. But—had the duck hunter missed?

In a telephone booth in a hotel 30 miles distant, that same evening, a brisk, alert-looking business man put in a call for Detroit. Ordinarily, ten minutes would suffice for the connection. The business man waited. Finally, with the explanation that the delay was due to poor transmission, the operator announced that Detroit was on the line. The operator then immediately notified the Repair Department of line trouble.

Called from his bed that night (it was raining) one of the repair men went out to investigate the trouble. Following the toll lead, he drove more than a score of miles in the darkness and rain and tramped additional miles through a swamp. Using a flashlight, he finally found the source of the trouble—an insulator that had been shot off.

Interruptions in telephone service, we repeat, may be due to a thousand and one causes. The foregoing is a statement of an actual incident. A thousand similar stories could be written. The point is just this: Through all such difficulties, night and day, regardless of weather conditions, the people of the Telephone Company are doing their duty to the public by being constantly on the job to keep service up to its high standard.

Jackson—Continued ill health is believed to have caused Mrs. Cora Fletcher Clarke, 52, to take her own life some time Sunday night by drowning herself in a cistern at the rear of her home, 110 Lansing avenue. Mrs. Clarke's body was found floating in the cistern about 7:30 o'clock Monday morning by her brother, Fred Fletcher.—News.

Manchester—L. Whitney Watkins and two other members of the state board of agriculture have been selected to choose a successor to Frank S. Kedzie, president of the agricultural college, who resigned in April. Among those mentioned for the place is Thomas E. Johnson, superintendent of public instruction, a son of Rev. H. J. Johnson of this village.

Pinckney—Two children of George Brita, a farmer near Pinckney, were killed by lightning late Thursday afternoon, but their father, who had sought shelter with them beneath a tree, escaped. Brita and the children were caught by the storm in the field about 5 o'clock in the afternoon. They tried to reach home, finally going under the limbs of a tree for shelter.

Ypsilanti—A heavy rain, accompanied by hail, blew down a silo on the Philip Schantz farm Wednesday night. Thursday morning 568 dead sparrows were found on the farm, according to Mrs. Schantz, who intends to get the bounty on them. Sparrows bring two cents a head.—Record. You have another guess coming Mr. Record editor, as there is no bounty paid on sparrows at this time of the year.

Brooklyn—Will Palmer stood by an open window at Will DeLamater's last Thursday evening when lightning hit the big locust tree in the yard only ten or fifteen feet distant. The proceedings in which Merlin Wiley, attorney general, is the petitioner and Herman O. Hane, owner of the land, is the respondent, is the final step toward the establishment of a 220 acre park touching the southern edge of Wampplers lake, and including portions of Lenawee, Jackson and Washtenaw counties.

Manchester—Wm. Sloan's auto is sporting new hood, fender, lamps, radiator, etc., as the result of giving John Hertke's horse a ride one night two weeks ago. Will was driving home from a fishing trip over in Freedom and when returning the young horse, which was evidently feeding along the roadside, jumped onto the car before Will saw him. The first Will knew the beast lay across the hood kicking vigorously at fenders and lamps. Luckily his feet were toward the front of the car, else the occupants might have suffered. The car was stopped at once and the horse scrambled off and ran down the road, seemingly none the worse for his experience.—Enterprise.

RAISE CHICKENS TO HELP INCOME

Excellent Means for Providing Needed Comfort and Home Beauty.

YOUNG WOMEN LEAVE FARMS

Home Demonstration Agents Exert Much Influence in Pointing Out Ways of Making Money or Producing Food for Family.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

The service of the home-demonstration agent, who is supervised by the United States Department of Agriculture and the State Agricultural colleges, is not confined to the house, but follows the woman into the garden, the poultry yard, and dairy to assist her in outside tasks when these contribute to home comfort.

Judgment as to relative values usually guide the home maker in determining the amount of outdoor work it is profitable for her to do either as a money-making scheme or as a means of producing food for the family table. Often when the woman lacks even small resources to bring needed comfort and beauty to the home, such industries as poultry raising and gardening provide the needed increase in income from which all the family may derive benefit.

It is poor business from every standpoint, however, if work out of doors means overstrained nerves and muscles resulting from an attempt to take on these duties without releasing any household tasks or if it means neglect of housework or sacrificing attention to children, thus lowering instead of increasing the standard of living.

Statistics show that young women are leaving the rural districts for the cities in larger numbers than young men. Where this is true, the influence of the home-demonstration agent has been most telling in helping young women to feel their economic importance in agricultural and home pursuits and in discovering ways of making incomes on the land equal to those that could be earned in shop or factory.

Work With Poultry.

Poultry work has been promoted in several states through demonstrations along lines of poultry selection, breeding, raising, feeding, housing, culling, canning, preservation of eggs, and co-operative selling of poultry products. Many flocks have been improved when farm women have found through culling demonstrations that 40 per cent of the average flock is non-productive.

Connecticut, Delaware, Idaho, Illinois, Missouri and Vermont, carried on intensive poultry culling campaigns in which the home demonstration agents played a prominent part. Schools of instruction were held so that those trained might not only eliminate their own non-producing birds but teach their neighbors through community demonstrations.

In Missouri, 73,755 birds were eliminated from 1,531 flocks culled with an estimated saving of $50,161. In the co-operative buying and selling of eggs, 8 cents a dozen more was received than on the local markets.

Fewer Nervous Breakdowns.

Community working and trading centers mean much to rural women, not only from the standpoint of economy, time, money, and effort, but as a means of persuading the stay-at-home to walk through her gate and down the road to join her neighbors.

In some task which is made lighter through co-operation, and from which she returns refreshed and encouraged with new ideas and plans not only for her own housekeeping but for the larger housekeeping of her neighborhood. No amount of socialized work, however, takes the place of real recreation, as it looks too earnestly toward a finished result. Care-free recreation for the delight of the moment eases nervous tension, promotes good fellowship, and is as necessary for the mental and physical pulse of men and women as it is for boys and girls.

Home-demonstration agents, where no other agency is meeting this need, are co-operating with farm families in home and community recreation which includes games, chorus singing, drama, and pageants.

Recreation Specialists.

The extension department of the Montana state college, realizing the importance of this, employs a recreation specialist whose work is stimulating a fine social-community spirit in many localities in that state, where homes are so far apart. Montana is thus putting into practice a conviction that is growing everywhere—that, while it is their first business to promote efficiency, this should be looked upon as a means of stimulating a richer and more satisfying rural life by freeing the homemaker's time and energy so that she may give attention to the attractiveness and comfort of her home, the training and companionship of her children, the enjoyment of books and neighbors, and the building up of recreational, social, and educational life of her community. This will increase the percentage of active thinking women of service to society and reduce the percentage of passive slaves of routine, whose tasks cease only to begin again with a new day.

FAVOR PLASTER FOR FARM KITCHEN WALL

Most Common and Generally Satisfactory Material.

Mortar Must Be Properly Mixed and Applied to Prevent Development of Cracks and Blisters—Light Colors Are Best.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

The commonest and most generally satisfactory material for the walls and ceiling of the farm kitchen is plaster. The mortar must be properly mixed and applied to prevent the development of cracks and blisters and injury to the surface finish. For the same reason freshly plastered walls should be allowed to dry thoroughly before the finishing surface is applied. Instead of plaster, some of the composition boards that do not warp may be used. They may be painted or papered and varnished, but before this is done nail holes should be filled with plastic filler made for the purpose. Steel wall and ceiling coverings are durable when they are kept well painted to prevent rusting by steam. Tile and vitrified brick, well glazed and matched, afford an excellent wall surface, but they are costly. Metal tiles are cheaper and nearly as satisfactory.

The most desirable finish for walls and ceiling is one that will not peel or crack and can be easily washed or very cheaply and readily renewed. A good oil paint gives general satisfaction; it can be brushed off with a dry wall brush or cleaned more thoroughly with a damp cloth and mild soap. Wall paper, unless varnished, is very easily loosened by the steam from cooking. A wall covering resembling oilcloth is somewhat more expensive, but it is more durable, and has a smooth washable surface. Water must be used very sparingly on a wall covering of this kind, for if it seeps in the seams the wall covering will become loosened.

The best color or tint for the kitchen walls is determined by the location and lighting of the room, say household specialists of the United States Department of Agriculture. Light colors are preferable for dark rooms because they reflect and diffuse the light into darker parts of the room, while dark colors absorb a much larger proportion of the light. Where the principal exposure is toward the south, greenish grays are desirable, but if toward the north or east, with little opportunity for sunshine, the light yellows or creams are better. Two shades of brown often give a satisfactory finish.

GIVE PLENTY OF VEGETABLES

Material Furnished to Growing Child for Forming Bone and Tissue—Mild Acids Helpful.

Vegetables and fruits are now considered a necessary part of the diet of the child. The reasons are many, but most of them may be summed up by saying that they furnish material needed to form bone and tissue and to regulate body processes. The mild acids which some of them contain help to prevent constipation; so, too, does the cellulose or fiber, especially when it is raw, though its value for this purpose may have been exaggerated in popular literature.

Green vegetables are also a valuable means of introducing into the diet mineral matters, particularly iron, in a form in which the body can utilize them. Even at city prices green vegetables have been shown to be an economical source of iron. Leaf vegetables, like spinach, beet greens, kale, etc., have recently been found to contain some of the growth-promoting substances that are found in milk.

All Around the House

All game should be soaked in salt water over night before cooking.

To prevent wool gloves from shrinking, put clothespins in the fingers while they are drying.

There is no better substitute for butter in cake baking than chicken fat. It may be used for any purpose for which butter is used except on bread.

Electric cooking devices that can be used at the table make the Sunday evening meal pleasant, and permit the serving of hot foods quickly and informally.

NEWS REVIEW OF CURRENT EVENTS

Harding's Plan for Armament Reduction Conference Is Well Received.

INVITED NATIONS ACCEPT

Pacific and Far East Problems Also Will Be Discussed—Irish Peace Meetings Begin—President Asks Senate to Defer Soldier Bonus Bill.

By EDWARD W. PICKARD.

The United States last week resumed its leadership of international affairs, and President Harding's world policy unfolded in a way that leads his warm supporters to believe his plans for an association of nations to preserve the peace of the world are on the eve of fulfillment. This comes about through the President's invitation to Great Britain, France, Italy and Japan to send representatives to a disarmament reduction conference in Washington, and his suggestion that the meeting, if held, also undertake a settlement of the Pacific and Far Eastern problems, China being asked to participate in that part of the conference.

Of course, the invitation was informal in nature, but the nations named have received it with acclamation, and all have signified their willingness to accept the formal invitation when it is issued, so it may be considered certain that the conference will be held, probably in the coming autumn or possibly early next year. All the world is evincing intense interest in the plan, and certain of the lesser powers are eager to take part in the great conference. That the discussion will not be limited to the subjects mentioned is almost beyond doubt, and there is reason to believe that the association of nations with which President Harding hopes to supplant the League of Nations will be born at the Washington conference.

Not only did the President forestall the action of congress, which was passing finally on the naval bill containing the Borah amendment asking the President to negotiate a naval holiday with Great Britain and Japan; he also went further than Borah and his followers desired and broadened the proposition to include land armaments. It was feared by many that Italy, and especially France, would refuse to reduce their military strength. France feels that she must be guaranteed against another attack by Germany, and Italy's main strength is her army. Borah and others thought the inclusion of land armaments might defeat the whole plan, but the administration thinks their fears are groundless and that an agreement for naval reduction may be reached if the question of reducing armies is found embarrassing. Indeed, the governments of France and Italy were as prompt as that of Great Britain to accept Mr. Harding's invitation. China's approval of the plan came next, and Japan, after carefully considering the Far Eastern phase of the matter, instructed its embassy at Washington to accept, so far as armament reduction is concerned.

Before President Harding issued the informal invitations, the leading statesmen of Great Britain were consulted by Ambassador Harvey and also by Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler, who was reported to be unofficially assisting Mr. Harvey in the matter. It is said they informed Washington of the psychological moment for taking action. Then Doctor Butler went to Paris and talked with French leaders, and told correspondents that President Millerand was highly enthusiastic over the American plan. "French and British statesmen agree with me that President Harding's proposal marks a turning point in the history of the world," said Doctor Butler.

Premier Lloyd George's announcement of the project to the house of commons and of the government's approval of it was greeted with prolonged cheering. A few days later there was talk in London of a separate conference there on Pacific matters before the Washington meeting, because the premiers of Australia and New Zealand said it would be impossible for them to go home and return to America almost immediately. When this suggestion reached Washington the administration let it be known that efforts to divert any part of the proposed conference from the American capital would not be acceptable.

It was said Lloyd George and Lord Curzon, foreign minister, would come as the representatives of Great Britain, and this stirred up an amusing row over there. The Times declared editorially that neither of those men is fitted "by his position, his temperament, and his past career to take a direct part in these negotiations."

The premier retorted with an order that representatives of the Times, the Daily Mail and the Evening News, all controlled by Lord Northcliffe, should be denied access to information given out to the press generally at the foreign office and by the prime minister's secretaries at 10 Downing street. How Lloyd George can justify such a blow at the liberty and independence of the press remains to be seen. Perhaps he will not try to do so.

It is interesting to note that a committee of the League of Nations met in Luxembourg on Saturday, under the presidency of M. Viviani, to consider disarmament. Officials of the league at Geneva assert the league is not yet considering abandoning its disarmament plans because of the action of the United States. It will be still more interesting to see what will happen if both the league and the Washington conference adopt different disarmament projects.

While the great powers are thus moving toward peace for the world, England and Ireland are moving toward peace for the British Isles. Eamon de Valera and other Irish leaders journeyed to London, and there the "President" and Premier Lloyd George on Thursday held a private preliminary conference to prepare the way for further discussions. The good intentions of both sides to put an end to the age-long discord were made evident, and there was a general feeling of hopeful optimism. "I am sure the atmosphere in England and Ireland is right for peace," said Mr. De Valera. "The only thing that is necessary now is for us to get down to rock bottom. This is simply a private conference with Mr. Lloyd George, instead of a long-range bombardment, to see what can be done at close quarters."

Sir James Craig, premier of Ulster, also went to London to act as spokesman for the northern Irish in case he is called upon. However, he has been bitterly opposed to any parleys between the British government and Sinn Féin. In Ulster alone the truce agreed upon has not taken effect. There has been a lot of fighting in Belfast and a number of persons have been killed since the rest of the island abandoned hostilities.

Only 12 members of the southern Irish parliament attended its session Wednesday in Dublin, and the lower house adjourned "until his majesty shall be pleased to declare his gracious will." Under the home rule act the parliament might now be dissolved and a crown colony government set up, but the British government will take no such step until the result of the peace negotiations is seen.

The god of war is devoting his attention these days mainly to Asia Minor, where the Greek offensive against the Turk nationalists is fairly getting under way. The wings of the Greek army advanced respectively from the Bursa sector on the north and the Ushak sector on the south. The movement converged on Kutah, on the main line of the Bagdad railway, and at last accounts the two forces were engaged in a desperate battle for possession of that town and the mountain heights nearby. The Greeks are using bombing planes with effect. Kemal Pasha, leader of the Turk nationalists, went to the front from Angora. He has warned the allied high commission at Constantinople that if there should be any evidence that the Greeks are making use of that city or of other points in the neutral zone in their operations, the nationalists will be obliged to avail themselves of the same privilege. Kemal told an American correspondent the nationalists would welcome arbitration by Secretary of State Hughes or some other American.

There was a report that White Russian volunteers, well armed, were restoring the old Polish-German battle lines and that the Polish irregulars under General Zeligowski were attacking them with armored automobiles. In the Vilna district, it was said, the entire peasant population was in revolt against Zeligowski's rule, and was making successful attacks on his forces.

Backing up the statements of Secretary of the Treasury Mellon, President Harding went before the senate and urged that action on the soldier bonus bill be deferred indefinitely. The reasons given by both the President and the secretary were purely financial, and both of them declared in effect that if the bill were passed tax reduction would be impossible and the financial stability of the country would be imperiled.

"I know the feelings of my own breast and that of yours and the grateful people of this republic," the President said. "But no thoughtful person possessed with all the facts, is ready for added compensation for the healthy, self-reliant masses of our great armies at the cost of a treasury breakdown, which will bring its hardships to all the citizens of the republic."

At the same time the President declared himself most emphatically in favor of the fullest measure of relief to the disabled veterans of the World War. He asked that the bonus bill be recommitted to the finance committee, and suggested that congress concentrate on tax and tariff revision, especially the former. He told the senate that "there is confessed disappointment that so little progress has been made in the readjustment and reduction of the war-time taxes."

The Democratic senators began a fierce fight against the motion to recommit the bonus bill, Senator Robinson of Arkansas assuming the leadership because Senator Underwood is opposed to the bonus. However, it was taken for granted that the motion would prevail.

The Sweet bill, providing for adequate relief for disabled veterans and for the consolidation of relief agencies was favorably reported by the subcommittee to the senate finance committee, but its progress was halted again when the senators heard Mr. Smoot's prediction, based on official estimates, that the probable increase of expenditure to carry out the provisions of the measure would be close to $300,000,000 annually.

Though the French declare the Leipzig trials of alleged war criminals are farcical, and have withdrawn from the commissions watching the proceedings, the trials are going on, and last week there was revived interest because two German lieutenants were arraigned charged with submarine frightfulness. They commanded the U-boat that sank the British hospital ship Landroversy Castle, and are accused of attempting to murder the entire personnel of the vessel, including the wounded and the Red Cross nurses, after they realized their mistake in sinking the ship. The defendants refused to testify, but members of the crew told how it was decided to hide all traces of the crime and how the overcrowded lifeboats were shelled and sunk. The court then surprised the allied watchers by calling a dozen Germans who testified to alleged British atrocities at sea, and made the charge that the steamship Baralong flew the American flag when it sunk the German submarine U-31. Some of them swore the British used lifeboats as decoys and carried troops and munitions aboard hospital ships. All of this was intended to justify the acts of the submarine commanders.

PRESIDENT WARNS OF BONUS PERIL

Harding Appears Before Senate to Ask Delay.

WANTS ACTION POSTPONED

Takes His Appeal Personally to the Senate and Delivers a Message Which Points in Anything but Glowing Colors the Economic Condition of the Country—Would Imperil Treasury.

Washington, July 13.—President Harding conveyed a solemn warning to congress that the condition of the nation will not permit the passage at this time, of legislation granting adjustment of compensation to soldiers who served in the World War.

For congress to pass contemplated legislation now, the President warned, "would hinder every effort of restoration and greatly imperil the financial stability of our country."

The President took his appeal personally to the senate and delivered a brief message in which he painted in anything but glowing colors the economic and financial condition of the country today. He pointed out that the nation now is engaged in a mighty struggle toward restoration, and he emphasized that this restoration can only be brought about by careful financing and reduced expenditures.

Urges Action on War Taxes.

The President's message deals chiefly with the bonus question and the nation's finances, but the President took occasion to warn congress that there "is much confessed disappointment that so little progress has been made in the readjustment and reduction of wartime taxes," and urged early accomplishment of this.

"I want to emphasize the suggestion that the accomplishment of the major tasks for which you were asked to sit in extraordinary session will have a reassuring effect on the entire country," the President said.

President's Address.

The text of President Harding's message to the senate in part was as follows:

"Mr. President and Gentlemen of the Senate:

"There has come to my attention the pending unfinished business before the senate and it is an imperative duty to convey to you the probable effect of the passage at this time of the proposed act, providing for adjustment of compensation to our service men in the World War. If this measure could be made effective at the present time without disaster to the nation's finances and without hindrance to imperative readjustments of our taxes, it would present an entirely different question than that which is before you. In a personal, as well as a public manner, which ought to be a plight of good faith, I have commended the policy of generous treatment of the nation's defenders, not as a part of any contract, nor as the payment of a debt which is owing, but as a mark of the nation's gratitude. Every obligation is to the disabled and dependent. In such reference as has been made to general compensation there has been a reservation as to the earliest consistent time for such action if it is taken. Even without such reservation, however, a modified view would be wholly justifiable at the present moment because the enactment of the compensation bill in the midst of the struggle for readjustment and restoration would hinder every effort and greatly imperil the financial stability of our country.

"Here, this menacing effort to expend billions in gratuities will imperil our capacity to discharge our obligations to those we must not fail to aid.

"I am addressing the senate directly, because the problem is immediately yours as your unfinished business, but the executive branch of the government owes it to both houses of congress and to the country frankly to state the difficulties we daily are called upon to meet and the added peril this measure would bring.

Had But One Thought.

"Our land has its share of the financial chaos and the industrial depression of the world. We little heed the growth of indebtedness or the limits of expenditure during the war, because we could not stop to count the cost. Our one thought then was the winning of the war and the survival of the nation. We borrowed and loaned—individuals to the nation and the government to other governments, and to those who served the nation—with little thought of settlement.

"It was relatively easy then, because national life was at stake. In the sober aftermath we face the order of reason rather than act amid the passions of war, and our own land and the world are facing problems never solved before. There can be no solution unless we face the grim truths and seek to solve them in resolute devotion to duty.

Three Problems Cited.

"After a survey of more than four months, contemplating conditions which would stagger all of us, were it not for our abiding faith in America, I am fully persuaded that three things are essential to the very beginning of the restored order of things:

"These are the revision, including reduction of our internal taxation, the refunding of our war debt and the adjustment of our foreign loans.

"It is vitally necessary to settle these problems before adding to our treasury any such burden as is contemplated in the pending bill.

"It is unthinkable to expect a business revival and the resumption of the normal ways of peace while maintaining the excessive taxes of war. It is quite as unthinkable to reduce our treasury to an additional obligation which ranges from $3,000,000,000 to $5,000,000,000. The precise figures no one can give.

"If it is conceivably true that only $200,000,000 a year will be drawn annually from the treasury to the few years immediately before us, the bestowal is too inconsequential to be of real value to the nation's defenders; and, if the exercise of the option should call for cash running into billions, the depression in finance and industry would be so marked that vastly more harm than good would attend.

Must Meet Obligations.

"Our government must undertake no obligation which it does not intend to meet. No government that will pay our bills. The exchanges of the world testify today to that erroneous theory. We may rely on the sacrifices of patriotism in war, today we face markets and the effects of supply and demand and the inexorable laws of credits to time of peace.

"At the very moment we are obliged to pay 5½ per cent interest for government short-time loans to care for government indebtedness, a rate on government borrowing, in spite of tax exemption, which ought to prevail in private transactions for the normal interest charges in financing our industry and commerce.

"Definite obligations amounting to seven and a half billions in War Savings certificates, Victory loans and certificates covering floating indebtedness are to mature in the two years immediately following, and the overburdening of the treasury now means positive disaster in the years immediately before us. Meticulous prudence calls out in warning.

"Our greatest necessity is a return to the normal ways of peace activities. A modest offering to the millions of service men is a poor palliative to more millions who may be out of employment. Stabilized finance and well-established confidence are to be essential to restored industry and commerce.

Slump War's Aftermath.

"The slump which is now upon us is an inevitable part of war's aftermath. It has followed in the wake of war since the world began. There was the inevitable readjustment, the inevitable charge-off, the unfailing attendant of losses in the wake of high prices, the inexorable deflation which inflation had preceded.

"It has been wholly proper to seek to apply government relief to mitigate the hardships, and the government has aided wherever possible, and is aiding now, but all the special acts ever dreamed of, all the particular favors ever conceived will not avoid all the distress nor ward off all the losses.

"The proper mental state of our people will commit us resolutely and confidently to our tasks, and definite assurances as to taxation and expenditure will contribute to that helpful mental order. The only sure way to normalcy is over the paths nature has marked throughout all human experience.

"With the approval of congress the executive branch of government has been driving toward that decreased expenditure which is the most practical assurance of diminished taxation.

"War is not wholly responsible for staggering costs; it has merely accentuated the menace which lies in mounting cost of government and excesses in expenditure which a successful private business would not tolerate.

Promises to Save Millions.

"I can make you no definite promise in figures today, but I can pledge you a most conscientious drive to reduce government cost by many millions. It would be most discouraging to those who are bending their energies to save millions to have congress add billions to our burdens at the very beginning.

"Even were there not the threatened paralysis of our treasury, with its fatal reflexes on all our activities which concern our prosperity, would it not be better to await the settlement of our foreign loans? At such a time it would be a bestowal on the part of our government when it is able to bestow.

"The United States participates in none of the distributable awards of war, but the world owes us heavily, and will pay when restoration is wrought. If the restoration fails, world bankruptcy attends.

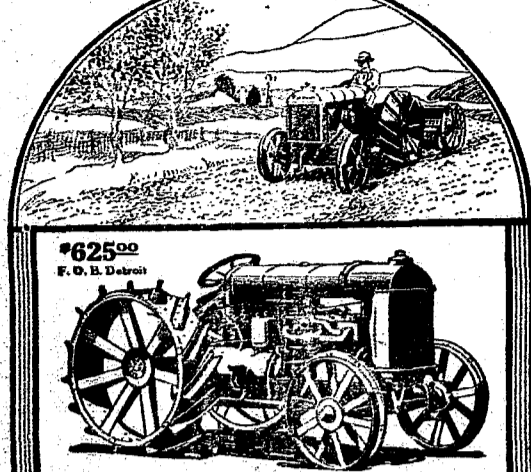

Work of War Risk Bureau.

"In view of some of the things which have been said, and very carelessly said, perhaps I ought to report officially some of the things which have been done. In the department of war risk insurance, there have been filed up to July 7, 1921, compensation and insurance claims numbering 818,442. Of these, 747,798 have been adjudicated, at an expenditure of $471,946,702. There were 200,000 claims pending when the war risk department was reorganized, late in April this year, and the number of pending claims has been reduced by 134,314.

"There have been requested $87,614 medical examinations and more than 14,000 await medical action.

"There has been paid out in allotment and allowances the sum of $378,405,003, and nearly $4,000,000,000 of government insurance is in force."

FARMER'S WIFE NEARLY STARVED

Mrs. Peterson Says She Was Afraid to Eat on Account of Trouble That Followed.

"I weighed just a hundred and three pounds when I began taking Tanlac, but now I weigh a hundred and twenty-two pounds," declared Mrs. Amy Peterson, the wife of a prosperous farmer of Lakeville, Mass., a suburb of New Bedford.

"I had acute indigestion," she said, "and no one knows how I suffered. I had cramping pains in my stomach that were almost unbearable, and I suffered no end of distress from gas and bloating. Why, I was actually starving to keep from being in such awful misery, and I lost thirteen pounds in weight. Sometimes I wonder how I lived through it all, and I just thought there was no hope for me. I was restless night and day and was easily irritated, and some nights I slept so little it didn't seem that I had been to bed at all."

"But now I feel as strong and well as if I had never been sick a day in my life, and I just know Tanlac is the best medicine in the world. I haven't a touch of indigestion now, and every time I sit down to the table I can't help but feel thankful to Tanlac. I have a wonderful appetite and have gained back all my lost weight and six pounds besides. I am simply overjoyed to be feeling so well, and I just praise Tanlac everywhere I go."

Tanlac is sold by leading druggists everywhere.—Advertisement.

Probably So, Probably So. George, seven years old, is one of a family of children. A neighbor found them home alone one day and asked George where his mother was.

"She's downtown, I guess," said George.

"Your mother's getting to be an awful gababout, isn't she?" said the neighbor.

"Well, don't you s'pose she gets tired of us kids sometimes?" explained George.

IS BUSY LEGION ORGANIZER

Vice Commander of Body in New York Perfects One of the Most Powerful Units.

Believing that the county organization is a vital part of the American Legion, William F. Deegan, first vice commander of the Legion in New York, has perfected one of the most powerful Legion units in the country.

Among the accomplishments of the Bronx county organization is the placing of bronze plaques on 850 trees as a memorial to the World War dead; employment provided for hundreds of ex-service men by the employment committee, and relief to sick and wounded veterans in New York city hospitals from the Legion's welfare committee.

Mr. Deegan, when asked to give some of his working principles, said: "I insist upon every post being represented at a county meeting held once a month. I visit every post at least once or twice a month and for the benefit of Legionnaires have arranged for a legal committee to take up the principal troubles of the boys, without cost. I find that Legion men have absolute confidence in their officers, provided they know that they do not seek political office at their expense. To that end I make every effort to keep the organization free from men holding appointive offices."

"Personal contact with your post is absolutely necessary—telling them what is going on, listening to complaints and abolishing wherever possible parliamentary procedure, because delegates oftentimes will come to meetings and fear to speak on a subject which is vital to the interests of the organization, because they do not know whether they are in order."

During the war Mr. Deegan was attached to the staff of Gen. George W. Goethals and was assigned to inspect the army bases along the Atlantic coast and inland army depots. He was discharged a major in 1919.

LEGION MAN ON LONG HIKE

Sergeant Sylvester of Indiana Is Scheduled to Walk 737 Miles to Boost Training Camps.

Former doughboys will reflect long upon the sad case of Sgt. Harley C. Sylvester, who likes the walking branch of the service so well that he voluntarily agreed to hike an average of 18½ miles a day for 40 days to tell the peaceful citizenry why they should learn to fight.

When officials of Fort Benjamin Harrison, Ind., looked about for the representative type of American soldier to advertise the citizens' military training camps to be held during the summer, they found Sergeant Sylvester, overseas veteran and member of the American Legion at the military post, still in the service.

Sergeant Sylvester is scheduled to cover 737 miles during the 40 days. He is visiting towns and cities in Indiana, Ohio and Kentucky. He carries light marching equipment and is the guest of his buddies in the Legion posts along the dusty route.

The American Legion will assist in obtaining recruits for the citizens' military training camps, according to a resolution adopted by the military policy committee of the ex-service men's organization.

TRANSFERS PAY TO LEGION

Permanently Disabled Yank, Propped Up in Bed, Signs Over Bonus Check to Post.

A striking example of the gratitude of the nation's disabled veterans for those who have aided them in their hours of suffering has come to the attention of Lee C. Prentice, post of the American Legion in Fairmount, Minn.

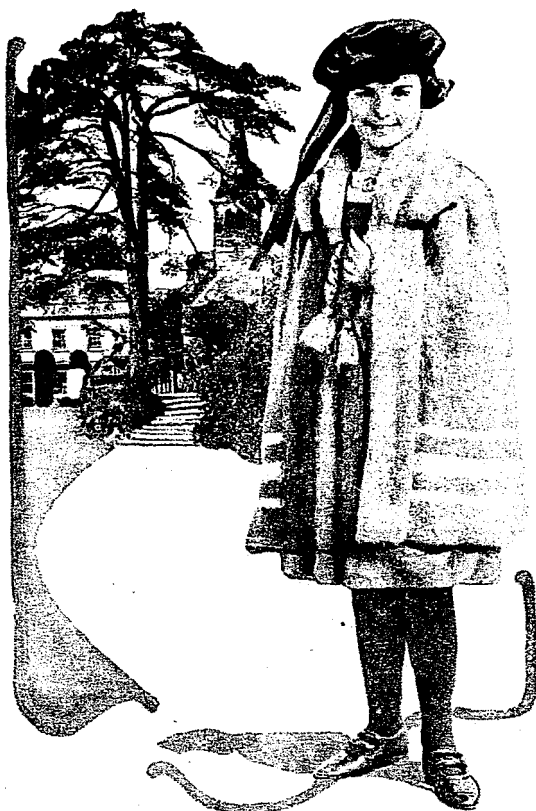

Cletus Lappin, a young soldier severely wounded on the battlefields of France and now in hospital, rated totally and permanently disabled, received a check in payment for the state bonus while taking treatment in a sanitarium at Fairmount.

Asking to be propped up in bed, Lappin endorsed the slip, good for several hundred dollars, to the Prentice post of the Legion. "When I needed help," said the boy who had given the best of his life to his country, "the Legion boys stood by me. Now I'm going to do my little bit to help them get those clubrooms they are after."

Consider the Young Girl

IT IS to be regretted that the dressing of the sub-debutante and younger girls in their teens is not so carefully considered as it should be. There is a charm that belongs to young girlhood that has been lost sight of in the last few seasons and obscured by allowing them to be overdressed or dressed beyond their years. Left unrestrained, it is natural, with their own sense of fitness undeveloped, that they should ape their elders, and the results are pathetic; they are neither fish nor fowl; have neither the charms of young girlhood nor those of young womanhood.

Much of the time of the young girl is spent in clothes suited to her sports—not distinctly sports clothes but sturdy things that are both pretty and practical. Jersey cloth is an ideal fabric for her daily wear, with gingham and other durable cottons for hot days.

Fine wool sweaters, in light weight, and plaited or plain skirts in wool or cotton, to wear with them, make her an ideal outfit. The new knitted suits are to be reckoned with and we shall see them come to the fore for fall. Already knitted capes with angora collars or capes entirely of angora, provide the young girl with the most convenient and appropriate of summer wraps. One of these is pictured above and its usefulness will outlast the summer.

Organdie, dotted swiss and other sheer cottons, in many gay and lovely colors, make dresses that youth delights in and is a delight in. It is something of a task to teach the younger girls restraint in this matter of dress, but it is essential, for a woman is easily forgiven for clothes too quiet, but for overdressing she is mercilessly condemned.

For Rivals of the Mermaid

THE maid so well equipped for swimming that she may undertake to battle with strenuous breakers or indulge in water sports must be clothed in some such fashion as that pictured here. She must go down to the sea in strong, elastic, knitted garments and wear a tight cap of rubberized cloth. All that she wears must be close-fitting and firmly adjusted or nothing will stay adjusted. This is the practical sort of suit for swimming in quiet waters also. A swimming outfit is completed by a cape or a coat of rubberized silk or other materials.

The knitted swimming suits are made usually in quiet colors, as dark green, blue, brown or black, and are banded with more vivid colors. Caps, capes and coats are as gay and bright as anyone can wish. They are pastime garments and there is a liking for making them somewhat bizarre or even amusing, especially for very young people.

For placid waters and play that is not a wrestling match with the waves, there are many sorts of bathing suits, and one is privileged to wear strong and vivid colors in them. The knitted suit of wool is the most popular made with trunks and a straight hanging overgarment reaching almost to the knees. Most of these suits are attractively banded with a plain color or Roman stripes on a ground of sea green, dark blue or gray. A girdle or sash, also knitted, gives them style, and this sash is sometimes of tulle or tulle silk makes many of the prettiest bathing suits; there are a few of crapes, and even gingham gives a good account of itself when made up in the right way.

DADY DAIRY

PROFITABLE DAIRY IN SOUTH

Home Demand Supplied for Products and Soil Fertility Built Up and Maintained.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

More than 9,500,000 pounds of butter was made by 93 creameries in the Southern states in the year ending December 31, 1919. Thirty of the 54 cheese factories scattered throughout the mountain region turned out 481,000 pounds of Cheddar cheese. Silos, modern dairy barns, and purebred dairy cows are becoming common. "Fifteen years ago dairying as an industry had been scarcely started in the southern states," said a specialist in the dairy division, United States Department of Agriculture. "The South probably has made more progress in the last 13 years than any other section of the country. The increase in the number of dairy cows from 1907 to 1920 was more than 50 per cent. The increase for the entire United States during the same period was 33.8 per cent."

While the increase in number of cows has been large, it is pointed out by men working co-operatively with the federal government and the state agricultural college that the improvement in quality has been of even greater importance. Purebreds have been shipped in every year in large numbers, and great interest has been shown in the use of purebred sires. There are now 48 bull associations in these states. The latest census figures available show there are 5,184 head of purebred dairy cattle in South Carolina and 9,880 in Virginia.

"Dairy development began in the southern states shortly after 1900," said one of the specialists, "but the improvement was slow at first. It was difficult to convince growers in any territory that there was anything for them in dairying. But an object lesson was found that finally convinced them. On one side of a road was a field of cotton that yielded two bales per acre; on the other side a field gave half a bale. The farm that grew two bales to the acre had kept cows for five years, and the manure had produced the change. Farmers were taken from miles around to see these two fields."

"This little demonstration illustrates the purpose for which dairy cows were recommended in sections of the South—not to make dairying a major industry, but rather to establish a system that would supply the home demand for dairy products, and at the same time build up and maintain soil fertility, both by supplying manure and by enforcing a proper rotation of crops. This would make possible the production of cotton and other staple crops at greater profit. This was the aim of the southern dairy extension work, the first large scale extension project attempted, which was started under the direction of the dairy division of the Department of Agriculture in 1906, and carried forward co-operatively by the department and the state agricultural colleges.

One of the first things corrected was the poor feeding methods. Cottonseed meal and hulls formed the basis of the ration; farmers had no knowledge of balanced rations; silos were few in number, and it was not known generally that they could be built by farm labor. A few silos were erected in 1906 as demonstrations, and the idea began to grow slowly in popularity.

The value of silage compared with cottonseed hulls was very striking, even in the days when hulls were only $4 or $5 a ton. A dairy farm near Biloxi, Miss., where 40 tons of silage were fed instead of cottonseed hulls, reported a saving of $250 for the winter.

"From a local standpoint," writes one of the federal agents of the dairy division, "the establishing of dairying in the boll-weevil districts of Mississippi has been one of the greatest achievements. Anyone acquainted with the dependency of farmers in 1912 in southern Mississippi, and who was enabled later to see the change wrought by the dairy cows, will agree that enthusiasm for dairying is well founded in a region that was floundering for some means of a livelihood, now changed to a country in which the farmers are supplying whole milk for New Orleans and other points. This means good methods are being used."

WOMEN NEED SWAMP-ROOT

Thousands of women have kidney and bladder trouble and never suspect it. Women's complaints often prove to be nothing else but kidney trouble, or the result of kidney or bladder disease. If the kidneys are not in a healthy condition, they may cause the other organs to become diseased.

Pain in the back, headache, loss of ambition, nervousness, are often times symptoms of kidney trouble. Don't delay starting treatment. Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, a physician's prescription, obtained at any drug store, may be just the remedy needed to overcome such conditions.

Get a medium or large size bottle immediately from any drug store. However, if you wish first to test this great preparation send ten cents to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., for a sample bottle. When writing be sure and mention this paper.

In a Thirsty Place. A countryman was inscribing the name of a highly respected, recently departed deacon on a tombstone. The stone rested on an empty beer barrel in his shop. A friend of the late worthy called in to see how the sculptor was proceeding with the work, and objected to his friend's tombstone resting on a beer barrel, remarking: "Do you know, John, that my dear departed friend never drank a drop of beer in his life?"

"Well," replied John, "I bet he would give something for a pint now!" —Chicago American.

WHAT ST. PAUL REALLY SAID

Englishwoman Declares Men Have Deliberately Twisted the Words of the Great Apostle.

Men translated the Bible—and twisted St. Paul's remarks about women to suit their own ideas. That is divulged by Miss K. Raleigh to the British Women's Freedom league.

The apostle's remarks about women, she said, were badly twisted in translation, and it could be proved by the removal of a few dots and commas, that St. Paul did not: Forbid women to preach; command them to obey their husbands; insist that forever and aye, whatever the fashion of the country, they should wear hats in church, say that they should never wear jewelry and fine clothes.

"In the sentence, 'Women obey your husbands,' said Miss Raleigh, 'the correct translation of the word 'obey' is 'be considerate to.'"

Doctor—What's the matter with him?

Wife—Oh, he worries so.

Doctor—About what?

Wife—About his money. Can you please do something for him?

Doctor—Why send him around to me. I'll relieve him of some of his troubles.

He Said Too Much. Young Wife—The dentist pulled my wisdom tooth today, so you mustn't be surprised if you find me stupid.

Hub—Nonsense! The idea that a wisdom tooth has anything to do with wisdom is absurd. Why, you wouldn't be any stupider if you had every tooth in your head pulled.—Boston Transcript.

FROM THE LAND OF WONDERS

Shasta County, California, Comes Proudly to the Front With Eggs That Dance.

Shasta county, California, is the land of wonders. The latest is the dancing egg, relates London T. H. H. It is laid by an as yet undetermined insect on the leaves of oak trees. Masses of these eggs cling to the under side of the leaf, and as they advance toward maturity they drop to the ground and dance about.

By holding an oak twig containing any number of eggs to one's ear a crackling sound may be heard, like the splitting of electric sparks. The shell contains a tiny grub, working for release.

In many towns collections of the eggs are on exhibition. When laid on a table these eggs bound about and spring into the air, sometimes to a height of 18 inches. They are particularly active in the early morning. This latest insect novelty takes rank with the sulphur bug, which is at home in the red-hot roaster piles.

Thomas Wall Gets Old Job Back.

Thomas Wall of Ann Arbor, who for several years has been assistant postmaster of the house of representatives, has been reinstated in the postal inspection service by executive order of President Harding.

He is one of 40 postal inspectors of long service who were removed from office soon after the Democrats came into power in 1913, all of whom have now been reinstated. Mr. Wall was for 24 years in the postal service of the country, 16 of which was in the inspection division. The order of reinstatement gives him the same civil service status he had at the time of removal. He has not yet been assigned to duty, but hopes it will be in Michigan territory. He has been prominent in politics, having been a candidate for the Republican nomination for congress from the Second Michigan district in 1916.

Mr. Wall is well known in Chelsea and is a frequent visitor here. He owns a farm in Dexter township, near North Lake.

Farm Profits Are Coming Back.

It is a law of nature that action is equal to reaction in the opposite direction. For instance, a pendulum always swings almost as far one way as it went in the opposite direction on the preceding swing. A slight tap when it starts back may send it farther than it went on the up stroke.

Business has its ups and downs as does the pendulum. In many respects business expansions and depressions are almost as regular as is the ticking of the clock. When business reaches the peak of its climb we can always rest assured that there will be a decline at least nearly as far. The world war really served as a vigorous push rather than a light tap on the business pendulum of the world and sent it up and up almost to its zenith. In fact, many feared the force of the impact would cause it to dash from the beaten path and crash to destruction. But the upward swing stopped before the break, and for the last year and a half we have been witnessing the backward swing.

Many facts indicate that it is now about time for the business pendulum of the United States to return in the direction of business recovery. And in the revival of business, which is sure to occur, we anticipate that farming will be one of the first lines of business to be benefited.

There are several reasons why the farmer now should take an optimistic view of his business situation. The wheat carry-over from this season has been the smallest in years. The latest information indicates that the 1921 crop is no larger than the 1920 crop.

Stocks of wheat at terminals and in country elevators are reported to be more than 50 per cent lower than a year ago. The visible supply is the smallest in eighteen years.

The supply of flour in the hands of merchants as well as consumers is very low. There was 20 per cent less flour manufactured during the year ending June 1 than during the preceding year.

Of vital interest to farmers is the fact that there is a decided shortage in livestock. If per capita consumption of meat and meat products were suddenly to return to normal, the demand for meat would be far greater than the supply.

During the first five months of 1921 there were 7,716 business failures in the United States as compared with 2,678 for the corresponding period of 1920. An expert statistician estimates that at present there are about three million persons ordinarily employed in industries in the United States out of employment. It has been demonstrated that the family of a man who has employment consumes three times as much of the things people eat, wear and use, as it does when the head of the family is out of employment. Latest information indicates that the number of unemployed has probably reached the maximum and that unemployment is now on the decline.

One can readily see that as workers in textile mills, shoe factories, automobile factories, furniture factories, etc., are resuming employment, their requirements will be proportionately increased. Certainly this means a greater demand and better prices for all the things which are produced by farmers. Lack of employment cannot be improved until utilization of products produced is resumed.

Add to all this the determination of the farmers of this country to take a hand in the marketing of their own products, which most assuredly will result in farmers getting better prices or at least getting a larger percentage of the final selling price of their stuff, together with the probable reduction in freight rates, and we have ample reason for feeling optimistic in regard to the situation the farmer will find himself in a few months hence.

There are other favorable signs and we will admit a few clouds on the horizon, but taking it all in all the situation warrants reasonable optimism. Better times for agriculture are coming, and coming soon. The farmers who profit most during the next few years will be those who keep eyes and ears open for every bit of information that will help them to judge what is best for them to do in the conduct of their own business.

Buy the things you need to enable you to produce crops and livestock economically. If you can cut the cost of producing a bushel of wheat by 10 cents, that is equivalent to getting 10 cents a bushel more for it.

Sheriff to Kill Dogs.

The county treasurer last Thursday turned over to Sheriff Pack a list of 700 owners of dogs in the county who have not paid the license for 1921. Under the state law the sheriff will have to have the animals killed.
