

BODY CHELSEA'S HERO ARRIVES TODAY

Funeral Services Corporal Herbert J. McKune Will Be Held Monday Morning At 9:30 O'clock.

The body of Corporal Herbert J. McKune, late of the 67th Co. 5th U. S. Marine Corps, who was killed overseas, is expected to arrive in Chelsea some time this afternoon, having been shipped from New York at two o'clock yesterday afternoon. A telegram received last evening said that the body would reach Chelsea this morning on the 9:55 (Central time) train, but it did not arrive, although it will probably come on a later train this afternoon or evening.

Funeral Services Monday Morning.

The funeral services will be held Monday morning at 9:30 o'clock from St. Mary church, in charge of the Herbert J. McKune Post No. 31 American Legion.

Mass will be celebrated by Rev. Father Henry VanDyke and Rev. Father John Hackett will deliver the sermon.

Business Places Will Close.

All business places will be closed from 9:15 to 11:15 a. m. Monday as a mark of respect to Chelsea's war hero. It is probable that both the public and parochial schools will participate in the general ovation, although definite arrangements had not been made this morning. The interment will be in Mt. Olivet cemetery.

BACK FROM TEXAS.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Messner, former residents of Lyndon who removed to Mercedes, Texas, last spring, visited Chelsea relatives the first of the week and left Wednesday for Bryan, Ohio, where they expect to remain for some time and where Mr. Messner has secured employment.

They drove from Mercedes in their automobile, the trip taking three weeks, and had many adventures en route. In Oklahoma, two horsemen, heavily armed, stopped them with a considerable show of arrogance in a remote and sparsely settled section of country, but finally allowed them to proceed. Mr. Messner believes the men intended robbery, but were hindered by the fortunate presence of another auto party, halted by tire trouble, a short distance ahead.

For three days they travelled in deep mud, in some places hub deep, and were obliged to drive for miles at a time on low gear. Nevertheless, they averaged about 100 miles per day.

They did not raise anything on their land this year owing to the fact that the land company failed to furnish water for irrigating, without which the land is worthless.

Mr. Messner and about 50 others who purchased similar land, will sue the company for failing to furnish the water as promised.

Advertising is the hyphen that brings buyer and seller together.

All ex-service men are requested to meet at the American Legion rooms at 9:00 a. m. sharp, on Monday, Sept. 12, to attend in a body the funeral of the late Corp. Herbert J. McKune.

RAILROAD SIGNS WILL COST $4,000

New State Law Requires County To Place Standard Warnings On All R. R. Approaches.

A recently enacted state law, No. 270 of the public acts of 1921, will cost Washtenaw county about $4,000 for new railroad signs and posts, according to figures prepared by the county road commissioners.

The act is one which provides for improvement in railroad crossings in the counties of the state and requires that standardized sign posts be placed about 600 feet from every railroad crossing.

The board of county road commissioners hasn't the money available to erect the signs, as the law requires, and the matter will be placed before the board of supervisors at its next meeting.

The act provides that the improvement on the tracks must be paid for by the railroads and that the county shall keep up the approaches. Standardized metal disks will be erected on each side of the track, the disks being provided by the railroad companies and the posts and labor necessary to put these warning signals in place being paid for by the different counties.

The disks are interesting, being marked with two capital "R's" and a cross. They must be placed on a post seven feet from the ground.

Washtenaw has 130 railroad crossings outside of the cities. The law provides that one-fifth of these be improved every year after the passage of the measure. Some of the crossings are already marked by signs, so that it looks like a waste of time to provide 255 warnings, but, as an official of the county road engineers office explained, the new law will make it plain that a railroad is being approached, not a city or a slow curve. Twenty-six is the number of signs which the county will probably fix during the first period, and some of this work may be done this fall.

OUR NEIGHBORS' DOINGS

What's Happening In Neighboring Towns and Localities.

MILAN—A carrier pigeon was found at the Washash station Wednesday by Elmer Weller. The bird is sightless in one eye and it is yet unable to fly. On the left leg is an aluminum band with the figures 1921, No. 5.

JACKSON—Floyd Hale, who with Hugh Parks is said to have confessed to tire thefts from garages in Hillsdale, Jackson, Brooklyn, Grass Lake and Saline, was taken to Dearborn, Tuesday, in an effort to secure an identification of him by a Dearborn tire dealer as the man who sold tires in that village. Both Hale and Parks are on parole from the state prison at Jackson.

MASON—A contract for the Love lake drain cleanup has been let to A. S. Gibson for a total of $12,463.50 for the construction work. The drain, which is nearly seven miles long, was let in two sections; section No. 1, 927.27 rods in length was let for $5.78 per rod, and section No. 2, which was 1193.93 rods, was let for $5.93 per rod.

JACKSON—William Wethers, 17, Herman Wethers, 16, and Leon Piper, 26, confessed Tuesday to the sheriff that they robbed F. C. Sackrider of Woodville of $45 last Saturday night, after breaking into the Sackrider home, attacking their victim and binding him. A sack tied over his head prevented his cries being heard by neighbors. A fourth member of the gang is said to have escaped.

HOWELL—Sheriff's forces of Genesee and Livingston counties collaborated Tuesday in a liquor raid at Lohell lake, where a still, a quantity of mash and alleged contraband liquor were seized and Frank Wiles and Harry Croft arrested on charges of prohibition violation. The arrests and seizures were made on the Livingston side of the line, the still having been moved there from Genesee county, it is said, on Monday.

YOUNG MEN IN HISTORY.

We are in the habit of thinking that our age is notable for young men being in charge of large affairs.

As a matter of fact, though, the average of the men in George Washington's cabinet was under forty years.

Hamilton was thirty-two, Jefferson forty-six, Randolph thirty-six, General Knox thirty-nine, and Samuel Osgood forty-one.

At thirty, Alexander the Great longed for more worlds to conquer. Buddha, Mohammed and the Nazarene were in their thirties when they founded their respective religions.

The pictures that come down to us of great men of former centuries were usually made in their old age—not during the period of accomplishment and activity. This leads us astray.

Young men have always done big things.

STATE TAX RATE $4.08

Increase of Over 14 Per Cent Is Due To Soldier Bonuses And To Interest Items.

The state tax rate for 1921 will be $4.08 per $1,000, according to a report filed with the administrative board Wednesday by Auditor General O. B. Fuller.

The rate of $4.08 is based on an equalized valuation for this year of $5,000,000,000, and compares with a corresponding rate for last year of $3.56. The actual rate last year, figured from the assessed valuation of the state, which was more than $5,300,000,000, was $3.26, and a corresponding rate this year, figured on the new tax total and the actual assessed valuation, which is more than $5,400,000,000, would be $3.72.

The total state tax will be $20,441,333.79, an increase of 11.88 per cent, or slightly more than $3,000,000 over the 1920 tax. The advance is accounted for by the interest items, including those involved in the payment of bonuses to ex-service men. The report shows that if these items are deducted the amount to be raised by taxation for actual general operating expenses of the state is less by $593,244.50, or 3.35 per cent less than last year.

Amounts to be raised by taxation for interest are $300,000 for $5,000,000 worth of 6 per cent one-year soldier bonus notes; $1,293,750 for $15,000,000 worth of 5 1/2 per cent bonus bonds (already sold); $862,000 for $15,000,000 worth of bonus bonds (still to be sold), and $1,200,000 on highway bonds and notes. The administrative board is given $150,000 of the tax money, $36,873.29 is set aside for the enforcement of the James compulsory education law, and $34,847.25 for carrying out the rehabilitation compensation law.

The Coming Contest.

"I see your town is going to vote on the question of issuing bonds for a water works system," said a guest. "What do you anticipate will be the outcome?"

"Hard to tell," replied the landlord of the tavern at Tunnicliffe, Ark. "The young people are mostly for it, and the folks that have trusted and like to stick off, and the newcomers from the North, and so on. But the old-timers are unanimously against it. They say they've never gone swimming in a house yet and it's too late now to learn old-time tricks, and anyhow, they've opposed to paying for the privilege of coming into Tunnicliffe's free water. So it looks like a stand-off."—Kansas City Star.

WOMEN NEED SWAMP-ROOT

Thousands of women have kidney and bladder trouble and never suspect it. Women's complaints often prove to be nothing else but kidney trouble, or the result of kidney or bladder disease.

If the kidneys are not in a healthy condition, they may cause the other organs to become diseased.

Pain in the back, headache, loss of ambition, nervousness, are often times symptoms of kidney trouble.

Don't delay starting treatment. Dr. Kiefer's Swamp-Root, a physician's prescription, obtained at any drug store, may be just the remedy needed to overcome such conditions.

Get a medium or large size bottle immediately from any drug store. However, if you wish first to test this great preparation send ten cents to Dr. Kiefer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., for a sample bottle. When writing be sure and mention this paper.—Advertisement.

CATARRHAL DEAFNESS

Is greatly relieved by constitutional treatment. HALL'S CATARRHAL MEDICINE is a constitutional remedy. Catarrhal Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed deafness is the result. Unless the inflammation can be reduced, your hearing may be destroyed forever. HALL'S CATARRHAL MEDICINE acts through the blood on the mucous surface of the system, thus reducing the inflammation and assisting Nature in restoring normal conditions. Circular free. All Druggists. CHAPTER VIII.—Continued.

"Your position is unanswerable. I will tell you all I can, but that may not be much."

"You mean I am to question you?" "You may try, but I warn you: I am a very difficult subject. I may answer and I may not. If I refuse, still you must pretend to be content. Are the terms too rigorous?"

"It sounds like a test."

"It is a test. I must remain a mystery, not from any real desire to conceal my identity from you, but because of a duty to others. Now I will tell you all I can."

"You greet me as Philip Severn tonight, yet last evening I told you my name was Harry Daly. How did you know I lied? And how did you discover who I really was?"

Her eyes sparkled with enjoyment. "I knew that would be your first question. The answer is extremely simple. Did you wonder why I did not denounce you to those men in the other room? Oh, you did! You knew you were there surreptitiously, in disguise, under a false name, masquerading as a friend of that fellow Horner. You knew it—well, so did I."

"But how could you know that?" "What gave you such a suspicion? And, knowing it, why should you desire to protect me?"

"I'll waive your last question; that can wait its own answer." She leaned toward me and her extended hand touched a ring I wore.

"Because men who wear a Yale signet of 1890 are not going to be connected with that kind of a gang," she said gravely.

"But," I exclaimed, bewildered, "how did you recognize the signet?" "My brother wears one."

"Your brother? In my class? You will not tell me his name?"

"No, Mr. Severn. I have reason to believe you know him very well, or did a few years ago. However, that was why I trusted you so suddenly. I planned my faith on the honor of old Yale. That is why I kept silent and asked you to call at 247 Le Comptre street."

"I did call," rather indignantly. "And was informed there was no 'Miss Conrad' residing in the house."

"I suspected you might make some such discovery. Yet your coming was appreciated; it afforded me the opportunity I sought to discover where you were stopping and under what name you registered. To confess the truth, this was my sole object in the sudden invitation of Miss Conrad."

"Then there is no such person?" "I would hardly go as far as that; undoubtedly there is; in fact, I know a very estimable stenographer by that name, but she does not reside on Le Comptre street."

"But how could my inquiry there have brought you the information desired? I was not asked my name."

"A boy got into the car with you at the corner, did he not—a Jewish boy? You paid no attention to him after that; you had no conception that he got off also where you did and was not far behind you when you entered the hotel. He did not remain long, merely long enough to assure himself that you were given a key from the box and went upstairs. That proved you to be a registered guest. Ten minutes later he met me outside and told me what he had learned. Then I paid him and he went away. Not at all complicated, you see."

"No, but even then your information was incomplete."

"Yet I found it quite easy to fill in the details. Do you recall your class picture, with the names printed below? I copied those names—it was quite a task—and, in a way, memorized them. With these in mind I ran back over the hotel register until I came to 'Philip Severn, Washington, D. C., G-145.' Then I knew I had found you." She laughed softly.

"Then you did not return to Washington?" "There was really no need. Besides, circumstances compelled me to change my plans."

"The answer instantly brought back to my mind those circumstances—might be. Her immediate presence, her ease of manner and happy mode of speech had for the moment obliterated the dark crime with which she was associated."

"You knew of Alva's death, I presume?" I asked, endeavoring to put the question carefully.

Her lips were grave again, but her clear eyes met mine frankly. "I read what the papers said. It was very terrible. Who do you suppose did it?"

"The police seem to have no clue." I answered, astonished by her calmness. "I wondered if you knew anything. He asked you to ride down with him, did he not?"

"Why, yes, he did make such a suggestion, but I never liked the man."

Of course, I only met him that night—you remember in the saloon, but he was very disagreeable even during the short time we were together. I would not have ridden alone with him at that hour for worlds. Mr. Krantz and I came downtown together on a street car—he was the old man, you may remember. I asked him to escort me."

"I am very glad to hear you say that."

"Glad! Why, what do you mean?" her eyes widened, with sudden apprehension. "You did not suppose I was with Alva when he was murdered, did you?"

"Yet is it so strange, after all? I defended, rather indignantly. 'In a way it seemed impossible enough to connect you even indirectly with such a crime. But I have only known you as an associate with these men. In truth, I know very little more regarding you, even now. You meet them secretly, bearing credentials and orders from high junta conspirators, who are plotting against the very life of their country. You know their plans and are aiding them. Why, under such conditions should I make an exception in your case—merely because you are a woman?"

"So you actually believed me capable of that atrocity? Perhaps you are justified, if you think me a Chilean."

"Are you not?" "No, I am not a Chilean, Mr. Severn. I am an American girl, as loyal to my country as my ancestors. Will you accept my word for this?"

"I certainly do, more gladly than you dream."

"Then let us talk no more about it," she glanced at her wrist watch. "You have a story to tell me—how you came to be present last night?"

"A mere accident put me in possession of certain information that a coterie of South American conspirators in this country were receiving a large sum of money from friends in London." I explained briefly. "This money was to be expended either in the purchase of arms or the killing of certain Chilean officials, leading to an overthrow of government. My knowledge was extremely vague—not sufficient, you understand, to warrant my making any report to the United States authorities. I had no proof beyond a rather vague suspicion. In truth, about all the clue I actually possessed was that these fellows met secretly at a certain number on Gans street. I was half a day in learning that Gans street was located in Jersey City and I went over there that evening to seek blindly for further information."

"You knew the names of those involved?" "Only casually. I had heard of Alva; that the agent bringing the boodle from England was known as Horner and that the actual money exchange was to be made through Adolph Krantz, the banker."

"You had never seen any of these men?" "Only Krantz; I knew him by sight."

"Then it was my meeting with Alva which led you to the factory?" "Yes, I had dropped into the saloon because it was the only place to get out of the rain. When Alva arrived, it was perfectly plain to be seen you two had never met before. You went out together and I could not help but connect the whole affair together. The maid enabled me to trail you down the alley and good luck enabled me to gain entrance to the factory with no detection. That is about the whole story."

She sat motionless, with hands clasped in her lap and eyes fastened upon me. The depth of her interest in my recital was very apparent.

"Then you were not really a friend of that Horner? You told me you were."

I laughed, the absurdity of the recollection coming suddenly home with full force.

"I had to account in some way for my presence; that was the only inspiration which came to mind. It happened that Horner had adopted me and even given me a rechristening, which I was compelled to accept."

"Harry Daly, the name you gave me?"

"Yes. He ran across me prowling about in the dark and flashed an electric light in my face. Before I could move the fellow thought he recognized me and jumped at once to the conclusion that I was there on the same job he was."

"What was that?" "Robbery."

"The—English money which was to be paid over?"

"Of course—it looked easy; all cash and no one would dare go after it by law."

"And Horner was in it—the agent? Why didn't he help himself before?"

"How could he? It was a mere letter of credit to be cashed in this country. He had to wait until it was transmitted into currency. Besides, this fellow was not the real Horner; he is an American thief who has been operating in London. The real Horner has been put out of the way."

"Good heavens! I am beginning to see a ray of light. Who, then, is the man?"

"George Harris—'Gentleman George' they call him."

"And he actually mistook you for one of his kind?"

"He certainly did; extremely flattering, wasn't it? I am supposed to be one of the fraternity, in good standing—Harry Daly, whoever he may be. Unfortunately I am not up in criminal biography."

Her glance left my face and swept the room; then sought her watch again.

"I am so glad you told me all this," she said gravely. "It is going to be a wonderful help when I have time to think. You are still willing to go where I ask, without questioning?"

"I am even pleased to be asked—and trusted."

"Then we will go now. Perhaps it will be better if you depart first and wait for me outside at the entrance."

She arose when I did, turning slightly so that the back of her broad-brimmed hat became visible for the first time. There, bravely displayed, was the ornamental dagger hilt I had believed hidden in my valise at the hotel. The sight of it there vanquished my last suspicion.

CHAPTER IX.

Perond's Cafe.

A thousand questions were upon my lips as I waited just outside the door, yet when she appeared, wrapped from head to foot in a raincoat, I asked nothing. The pressure of her hand on my arm guided me across Broadway, into the quieter streets beyond.

It was a dark, cool night, cloudy but without rain, and we walked rapidly, entering a region with which I was unfamiliar. Here was a strange situation indeed, acting as escort to a woman about whom I knew next to nothing; voluntarily accompanying her on a mission of peril, with no conception of its nature, or the purpose she had in view. I glanced aside at her profile revealed by the gleam of a street lamp, but she appeared indifferent to my presence, intent only upon whatever object she had in mind.

We were in the gloom of the deserted block beyond, when she spoke abruptly, startling me with the inquiry: "Do you know a Russian named Waldron?"

"No. I have heard of him; that is, if you refer to the agitator, the socialist. That was his wife, wasn't it, where you sent me this afternoon?"

She turned toward me in surprise. "How did you chance to learn that?"

"I stopped on the corner, at the delicatessen store, and made some inquiries."

She laughed, one of her soft laughs, with an odd suggestion of music in the tone.

"Why, really, you are developing wonderfully. I must give you credit. Well, then it may interest you to know that I am going now to meet Ivan Waldron. The place where I believe him to be is not altogether safe for a woman without an escort. Your mere presence will be sufficient protection, however; it is not necessary that you encounter him. By the way, what has become of your friend—Horner, alias Harris?"

"Dropped completely out of sight," I admitted, "since early this morning. That chances to be why I feel some interest in this man Waldron. It was a note from him, left at Costigan's saloon, which caused Harris to leave so hurriedly."

"Who brought the note?" she stopped suddenly, and faced me in the dim lamp light.

"A Jewish boy, known as 'Sy Levy.'"

CHARLIE

By ADDIE GRAVES.

The four girls stood in the open gateway of "Aunt Carrietta's" summer boarding house.

"I'll bet you'll marry Hiram Green inside of three months," exploded Alice.

"I can see, in his eyes, that you will," added Marie.

"And I see it in the set of his jaws," continued Jessie.

"And," supplemented Marie, "I can also see it in your own eyes."

"Me marry 'Wheelbarrow' Charlie? You girls must have escaped from some feeble-minded institution. I am going to cut up the selectmen and have you returned to where you belong."

"You can't do that. Hiram happens to be the first selectman in this town," informed Alice.

"His hair is like his carrots; his cheeks are like his beet; with wheelbarrow he peddles all kinds of greens for cats."

None of the four imaginative misses noticed a curly, redheaded young man sink out the back door of the hall that reached through the house. Hiram strode energetically down to the Hunter garage.

"Say, Bob, have you got a good 'in Lizzy' to sell this morning?"

"I got a brand new one—came last night—want it?"

"Yes, right now. Hadn't intended to get one till next month. Changed my mind. You know I got a license—used to run Uncle David's truck last winter in the city. No one knows it around here, though."

In less time than it takes to tell it, Hiram's car was loaded with garden truck and back to the gate where had stood the four girl vacationists. "Aunt Carrietta" preceded four pop-eyed gladders to select dainties for dinner. Cantaloupes, a watermelon, green corn, tomatoes, cucumbers and bright red horticultural beans filled the arms of the crowd, who gazed at the luscious fruit and fresh vegetables with longing.

The next day was "Town Picnic" day. "Aunt Carrietta" hired Hiram to take her guests and herself to the festivities. Hiram arrived minus his thick red curls, having had a short cut. His white shirt, white silk hose and new Panama were immaculate.

Marie, the wit of the crowd, whispered: "He ought to have a white wheelbarrow and peddle pond lilies." Estelle registered rebuttal.

"Oh, you're softening fast, aren't you?" sneered Alice.

While the picnicers were gathering, the younger element enjoyed a few dances. After watching Marie and Hiram steal through a sweet, old-fashioned waltz, the "bald-headed carrot" glided over to Estelle and led her into a maze of modern, newest fancies. Soon it required all the concentration she possessed to follow him.

There was no time to wonder until he led her to a far corner of the grove by the water. Unable, then, to withhold her curiosity, she ventured:

"Where did you learn to dance like that?"

With quiet tones of concealed conquest, he replied: "I am a dancing teacher, winters. But I thought I would try dancing with a wheelbarrow on a farm—scientific dancing—so I came to the old place to experiment. I find it very interesting—in more ways than one," with a sly glance out the corner of his eye.

Just then some one came asking Hiram to take him home.

Estelle had seen—what in Hiram's big brown eyes? Whatever it was, it caused her to get into the boat and row a short distance to an island in the lake.

No one saw her depart. When the excursionists started for home, the verdict was that Estelle had stolen a march on them, or a ride. After driving his passengers home, and not finding Estelle there, Hiram returned to the boat landing.

The boat was floating near the shore, having drifted near its stake. Estelle's amateur knot had not held. A forlorn little figure stood waving on the island.

Hiram removed the white shoes and socks, waded to the boat, and soon reached the shore of the island. He did not land, however, but dropped the stone used for an anchor, pretentiously laid the oars in the bottom of the boat, and folded his arms.

Estelle looked at him in amazement. "Aren't you going to take me ashore, Mr. Green?"

In a fine tenor, he sang to his own improvement:

"His hair is like his carrots; His cheeks are like his beet; With wheelbarrow he peddles All kinds of greens for cats."

Estelle's face gradually grew "like his beet."

"Say, Estelle, will you ever have a use for my old wheelbarrow?" Estelle turned and fled to a clump of spruce and threw herself on a rock.

Soon a pair of strong arms grasped her thigh. A voice whispered gently: "I'm not quite as hard as that rock—but if I take you home, will you marry a bald-headed carrot and have tiger lilies in the flower garden? Will you be Mrs. Charlie Wheelbarrow?"

Estelle couldn't see the freckles, for her eyes were shut and her head buried into a blue silk shirt. Her hands were reaching for red curls that were gone and could not be pulled.

THE TRIALS OF A HOUSEWIFE

How They Have Been Endured and How Overcome by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Experience of a Providence Woman

Providence, R. I.—"I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for a female trouble and backache. It began just after my baby was born, and I did the best I could about getting my work done, but I had awful bearing-down pains so I could not stand on my feet. I read in the papers about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and the good it was doing other women, and I have got dandy results from it and will always recommend it. You can use these facts as a testimonial if you wish." Mrs. HERBERT L. CASSEN, 18 Meni Court, Providence, R. I.

Ohio woman for three years could hardly keep about and do her housework she was so ill. Made well by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Fayette, O.—"For about three years I was very nervous and had backache, stomach dragginess, nervousness, could not sleep at night, and had no appetite. At times I could hardly do my housework. I got medicine from the doctor but it did not help me. I saw Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound advertised in a newspaper and took it with good results, and am now able to do my housework. I recommend your medicine to my friends and you may publish my testimonial." Mrs. CHESTER A. BALL, R. 15, Fayette, Ohio.

An Illinois woman relates her experience: Bloomington, Ill.—"I was never very strong and female trouble kept me so weak I had no interest in my housework. I had such a backache I could not cook a meal or sweep a room without raging with pain. Rubbing my back with alcohol sometimes eased the pain for a few hours, but did not stop it. I heard of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and six bottles of it have made me as strong and healthy as any woman; and I give my thanks to it for my health." Mrs. J. A. McQUITT, 610 W. Walnut St., Bloomington, Ill.

The conditions described by Mrs. Cassen, Mrs. Ball, and Mrs. McQuitty will appeal to many women who struggle on with their daily tasks in just such conditions—in fact, it is said that the tragedy in the lives of some women is almost beyond belief. Day in and day out they slave in their homes for their families—and beside the daily routine of housework, often make clothes for themselves and for their children, or work in their gardens, all the while suffering from those awful bearing-down pains, backache, headaches, nervousness, the blues, and troubles which sap the very foundation of life until there comes a time when nature gives out and an operation seems inevitable. If such women would only profit by the experience of these three women, and remember that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is the natural restorative for such conditions it may save them years of suffering and unhappiness.

There is hardly a neighborhood in any town or hamlet in the United States wherein some woman does not reside who has been restored to health by this famous medicine. Therefore ask your neighbor, and you will find in a great many cases that at some time or other she, too, has been benefited by taking it, and will recommend it to you. For more than forty years this old-fashioned root and herb medicine has been restoring suffering women to health and strength.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Private Text-Book upon "Ailments Peculiar to Women" will be sent to you free upon request. Write to The Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Massachusetts. This book contains valuable information

Hall's Catarrh Medicine

Those who are in a "run down" condition will notice that Catarrh bothers them much more than when they are in good health. This fact proves that while Catarrh is a local disease, it is greatly influenced by constitutional conditions.
HALL'S CATARRH MEDICINE is a Tonic and Blood Purifier and acts through the blood upon the mucous surfaces of the body, thus reducing the inflammation and restoring normal conditions.

Electric Light & Water Commission

ANNOUNCEMENT

September 2, 1921.

Mr. Edsel B. Ford, President of the Ford Motor Company, makes the following announcement:

"We are making another reduction in the prices of Ford cars and the Ford truck, effective today. The new prices average $70.00 under former prices, and are the lowest at which Ford cars and trucks have ever been sold. List prices, F. O. B. Detroit are now as follows:

	New Price	Old Price	Reduction
CHASSIS	$295.00	$345.00	$ 50
RUNABOUT	325.00	370.00	45
TOURING CAR	355.00	415.00	60
TRUCK	445.00	495.00	50
COUPE	595.00	695.00	100
SEDAN	660.00	760.00	100

"These prices do not include War tax. Prices on Chassis, Runabout and Touring do not include starter and demountables.

"This is the third price cut during the past twelve months. On September 23, 1920, the price of the Ford touring car was reduced from $875 to $440; June 7th to $415, and now to $355, making total reductions in this type of $220, or 28 per cent. The same proportionate reductions have been made in all other types. One year ago the price of the Ford Sedan was $975; today it lists at $660 with the same equipment.

"We are taking advantage of every known economy in the manufacture of our products in order that we may give them to the public at the lowest possible price, and by doing that, we feel that we are doing one big thing that will help the country into more prosperous times. People are interested in prices, and are buying when prices are right.

"The production of Ford cars and trucks for August again broke all previous high records with the total reaching 117,696. This is the fourth consecutive month in which our output has gone over the hundred thousand mark, the total for the four months being 463,074, which has gone a long way in making possible the present reductions. June this year, with an output of 117,247 was the previous record month.

"One noteworthy feature of our sales is the increased demand for Ford trucks and cars for salesmen. This class of commercial business has been gradually increasing the past sixty days and we interpret it as a very good sign of improvement in general business.

"No reduction has been made in the price of the Fordson tractor and none is contemplated."

Go over these new prices; see how little it costs to become the owner of a Ford car or a Ford truck. Can you really afford to do without one longer?

Let us tell you more about it, and advise you regarding the delivery of the particular type of car in which you are interested.
