

NINETEEN CRIMINAL CASES OCTOBER TERM

Circuit Court Docket Has Unusually Large Number To Be Tried:
Will Convene Monday.

Nineteen criminal cases are on the Washtenaw county circuit court docket for the October term, including the trial of the three Italians charged with the murder of George Burg and Henry Fuhner near Saline on July 15. The three men, Peter Orlando, Sam Moerri and Tony Spino, will be given separate trials.

Prohibition Cases.
Oswald Dietz, Bert Stoll, Walter Barth, Christian Frey and George Frey will face trial in connection with selling of so-called patent medicines with a large alcoholic content, while Sam Golden, Harry Cramer and Walter Armstrong will also face the charges of violating the prohibition law.

Stanley Sitka, medical student, charged with issuing medical prescriptions, will also face trial at the October term.

There are 57 issues of fact to be decided and 20 cases of chancery in the first class.

The October term will convene October 3, but the jurors will not report until 10 o'clock of the following day, Tuesday morning, October 4th.

LAFAYETTE GRANGE.

Lafayette grange will meet Thursday afternoon, October 6th, with Mr. and Mrs. George T. English. Following the meeting a scrub lunch supper will be served; bring dishes. The program follows:

Roll Call—What I can do to make our meetings more interesting.

The value of milk as a food and as a by product—Mrs. George W. Gage.

Marketing milk, cream and butter—Edwin Pielmeier.

Music.

Reading of the markets and comments thereon—George T. English.

Closing Song.

MRS. MARGARET GUINAN.

Mrs. Margaret Guinan, widow of the late Peter Guinan, passed away Sunday morning, September 25, 1921, at her home in Freedom. She was 81 years of age last March, but up until about two weeks ago had been up and around her home, and was unusually active for a woman of her age. On Saturday she seemed to feel better than for several days previous, and gathered the eggs, but the following morning she was found dead in bed by her son, Matthew, who had cared for her during her last years, devoting much of his time to her comfort.

Mrs. Guinan was born in Ireland, her maiden name being O'Brien. When only 12 years of age she accompanied her parents to America, settling in Freedom township. She was united in marriage with Peter Guinan when 17 years of age and since that time had resided on the farm where she died.

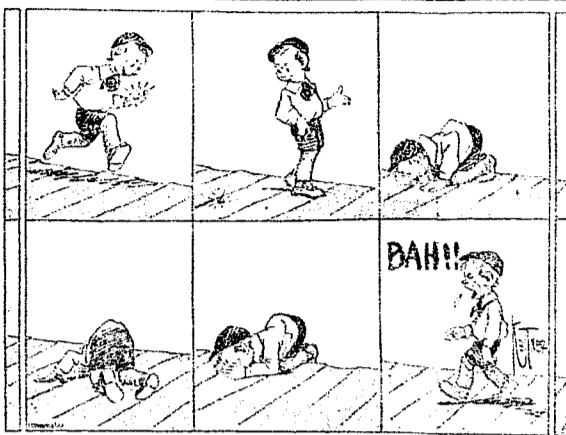

She was the mother of eight children, six boys and two girls, all of whom are living, as follows: Luke of Lyndon, Mrs. Alice Nordman of Lima, Matthew of Freedom, Edward of Cleveland, Frank and Mrs. Anna Hagen of Detroit, Eugene of Cleveland, and Tom of Detroit; also by 21 grandchildren, seven great grandchildren, one brother, Matthew Flynn of Dexter, and one sister, Mrs. C. E. Kennedy of Greenbush. Mr. Guinan passed away about 15 years ago.

The funeral was held Tuesday morning from St. Mary church, Manchester, her six sons acting as pall bearers.

NEWS OF THE GRADUATES.

Of last year's graduates from the Chelsea high school: David Beatty, Floyd Finkbeiner and Harmon Webb are attending the U. of M.; Anita Gramer, Elsie Heydlauff, Florence Vogel and Roena Waltrous have entered the Ypsilanti Normal; Marjory Mapes is attending Olivet college; and Pearl Finkbeiner, Phoebe Zeeb and Edna Hirth are taking courses at the Cleary Business college in Ypsilanti. Edna Koenigster, Catherine Giltner, Emma Barker and Lelah Ellsworth are teaching in this vicinity.

The End of a Perfect Day

FUTURE OF SMALL TOWN

Decentralization of Industry May Be Big Factor in Its Favor.

Within the next twenty years it seems certain that two movements will take place that will enlarge the small town.

One of these will be the migration of business and professional men and their families to towns of 5,000 to 20,000 located within a fifty-mile radius of cities in which they work during the day.

The other will be the decentralization of industry, and the movement of both factories and working forces from the city to the small town.

With improved living conditions, factories will favor small sites, figuring that they will thus reduce their labor turnover, and save enough in overhead, taxes, and interest on expensive city sites to more than compensate them for the disadvantages of doing business in a small town.

If this adjustment does take place it will solve many of our most perplexing problems, for there is no question that our cities are getting too big. A city, like a business, can get so large that the law of diminishing returns begins to operate. It is an established principle that when a business grows beyond a certain point the return on the capital invested decreases.

The same principle applies to cities. Big cities have such problems as transportation, housing, health, fire and police protection, from which the small town is largely free.

The factors which are doing much to hasten this decentralization are the automobile, the motion picture, and the talking machine, all of recent invention.

The automobile has shortened the distance between the small town and the big city by 75 per cent.

The motion picture has given the small town the cheapest and most popular form of entertainment ever devised, while the talking machine has enabled the people to hear the world's best music right in their own homes.

One other force has aided and is aiding the small town, and this is cheap printing and low postal rates. The newspapers, and some national weeklies, through their editorial and advertising columns have brought the world's news and markets to every door.

COUNTY TEACHERS' INSTITUTE.

Definite arrangements have been made for the County Teachers' Institute that will be held in Ann Arbor high school building, Monday, October 10th.

President C. C. Pearce of Milwaukee, Prof. M. S. Piattman, head of the rural school department of Ypsilanti Normal college, and Miss Edith Thomas, in charge of the Library Extension service of the University of Michigan, will furnish the literary program. Prof. George Oscar Bowen, musical director of the Ann Arbor schools, will lead the community singing.

There will be a noon banquet in the gymnasium of the high school.

"This institute," says Commissioner Evan Essary, "is for all the teachers of the county—rural, village and city."

AN HISTORIC OLD TAVERN

Daniel Webster Once Lodged There:
Also J. Fennimore Cooper.

Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Dewey have sold their home, known as the Old Walker Tavern at the junction of the Chicago and Monroe turnpikes in Cambridge township, near the village of Brooklyn, to Rev. Frederick Hewitt of Detroit, says the Exponent.

The Walker Tavern is known to all old timers of that section and is identified with all its early history. It was built at about the same time or before Michigan was admitted into the union as a state in 1837, probably two years before that time, and immediately following the completion of the Chicago turnpike.

Notables Lodge There.
In 1838 Daniel Webster and traveling party were lodged at the tavern and in June 1847 J. Fennimore Cooper, wife and daughters and two Indian guides stopped at the tavern for a period and made side trips from there. "Oak Openings," was written by this great author as a descriptive story of that part of Michigan.

In 1863 it became the home of F. A. Dewey and family, being occupied by them for over 30 years when it was purchased by W. C. Dewey, the present occupant.

Rev. Hewitt, the new owner is an antiquarian. He has a cottage at Evans Lake where he has lately spent his summers and has collected many quaint and historical items in the way of furniture, furnishings and agricultural equipment of the pioneer times. It is reported that Rev. Hewitt will now make his summer home at the old hotel and that he will collect and exhibit similar articles, giving the place so far as possible its old time appearance.

COOLING DRINKS ARE REFRESHING

Almost Any Fruit Juice in Season Is Excellent in Beverages in Hot Weather.

ARE VALUABLE FOR CHILDREN

Citrus Fruits Give Zest to Other Flavors and Can Be Used in Various Combinations—Recipe Given for Fruit Punch.

Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.

When there are only one or two large lemons on hand, with a large, thirsty family demanding prompt refreshment, why not serve a "fruitade" made by combining different fruit juices with the lemon? A small amount of lemon is needed to intensify other fruit flavors, but almost any slightly acid fruit can be used as the basis for a good summer drink. It is a practical plan to keep one or two bottles of water cooling in the ice box to dilute fruit juices readily. Charged water, such as apollinaris or ginger ale, help to convert a simple "fruitade" into a "punch" for occasions when a festive drink is appropriate, but the fruit juices, diluted with water only and well chilled, are very refreshing.

Special Recipe Not Necessary.

A special recipe is not necessary to make a fruitade. Any single predominant flavor may give it its name—raspberry, grape, pineapple or orange; often four or five fruits are blended in approximately equal quantities. The flavor of peaches combines well with pear juice, pineapple, orange and lemon; the juice of blackberries, raspberries, currants, blackberries, grapefruit, lemons and plums can be used in any selected combinations. Lemon is necessary (unless limes are used for the purpose) to make the drink sufficiently acid to quench the thirst on a hot day.

The amount of water added depends somewhat on the kinds of fruit used, and also on the preference of the "master." A preponderance of very acid juices—lemon or lime—will stand more dilution than the milder flavors. In general, one part of water to one of mixed fruit juice can be tried at first, and more water added if it seems desirable. Tea may be substituted for about one-third of the water if the punch is made for adults; if children are to have any, it is better to omit tea. The individual taste must be the guide in sweetening.

Sugar should be added to fruit drinks in the form of syrup, to get the best effect, as well as to use it in the most economical way. Two parts of sugar to one of water should be simmered for five minutes and then cooled before adding to the other ingredients. Sugar syrup can be prepared for several days at a time, and kept bottled in the refrigerator; leftover fruit juices may also be boiled with sugar and kept in a cold place for short periods until one has enough on hand to make up a good fruitade.

A thin slice or two of orange and lemon, some chopped bits of pineapple and banana, a few clove berries, invite attention to the bowl or pitcher of punch, and a sprig of mint both flavors and completes it. Professional caterers often include a slice of cucumber and a whole cucumber in a punch. When a fruit punch must be prepared for a large gathering of people—a dance, a social, or a picnic—it is helpful to have exact ingredients specified. About 40 persons can be served by the following recipe, which is recommended by the experimental kitchen, United States Department of Agriculture.

Fruit Punch.
1 can grated pineapple
1 cup boiling water
1 cup strongly made, strong tea
Juice of 10 lemons
Juice of 10 oranges
1 teaspoonful salt
1 quart grape, currant, loganberry, etc. or cool.

Cook the pineapple for 20 minutes in the boiling water and strain. Cool, add the remaining fruit juices, the tea, and the cooled syrup. It is better to make the punch a few hours ahead and let it stand closely covered on ice to chill and ripen. At serving time add the apollinaris, ginger ale, or water to dilute to the strength desired, garnish with thin slices of fruit and mint leaves.

Salt Intensifies Flavor.
It can be noticed that a little salt is called for in this punch. A "salt" of salt, as the French say, in oranges, the sweetness and the flavor of any fruit drink. Blackberry juice combined with lemon and a few grains of salt is recommended. Canned pineapple juice appeals to the whole family, but it needs a dash of lemon to give pungency. Orange juice is desirable in children's diet but it should not be limited to the children. There are many delicious drinks to be made with orange juice as a basis. The fresh oranges must of course be used. Commercial orange flavor will not answer the same purpose.

Grape juice may be canned at home for use in beverages. It is particularly refreshing combined with lime juice, and diluted with an equal amount of carbonated water. Loganberry juice, which has a fine flavor similar to raspberry, is commercially bottled in the West. The housewife who can get loganberries may well can some of this excellent fruit juice for home use. Nutrition specialists of the Department of Agriculture point out that fresh fruit drinks, especially those made from grape juice and the various citrus fruits, are important for children because they supply vitamins. A pitcher of orangeade or grape punch, therefore, is not a mere gratification, but a real contribution to the day's food.

CLUB YOUNGSTERS TO RAISE BEST RABBITS

Breeders' Association Donates Purebred Animals.

Recipients Were Selected by Various County Home Demonstration Agents—Aim Is to Encourage Rabbit Growing.

Members of the National Breeders' and Fanciers' Association of America recently donated thirty pairs of purebred and registered rabbits to Florida and girl club members in Florida. The youngsters who were the recipients were selected by the various county home demonstration agents in the state. The aim is to encourage the rabbit-growing industry and the young owners have been organized into a boys and girls' rabbit club.

The gift pair, in each instance, together with a litter, is to be shown at the South Florida fair this year. The youngsters are to give back to

A Club Member and Her Pet Rabbit. The home demonstration agent one pair of rabbits from the first litter for redistribution, thereby creating an endless chain. The following breeds were donated: New Zealand Reds, Belgian Hares, Flemish Giants, American Blues, Silver Fawns, and Gray Fawns.

WAYS TO SERVE VEGETABLES

If Supply of Fresh Product Is Not Generous Use Them With Juice in Which Cooked.

Serve most vegetables when cooked as a separate dish, either steamed, boiled, baked or stewed. If the supply of fresh vegetables is not generous, use with them the juice in which they are cooked, as far as possible, or put it into soups or stews.

Household Questions

Small fruits, as plums and cherries, should be preserved whole.

Never stir cereals with a spoon. It makes them pasty. Use a slotted silver fork.

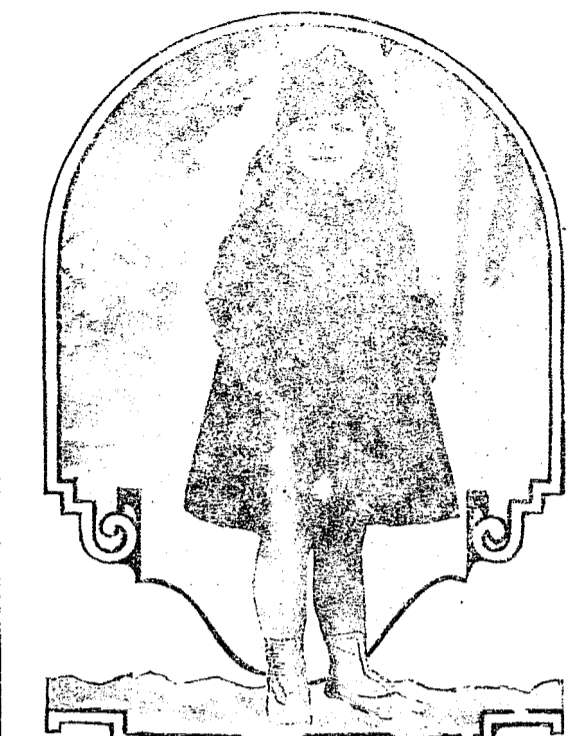

Serve jellied chicken ring on crisp lettuce and fill the center with diced pickled beets.

In cooking sweet potatoes always boil them with the skins on, then peel and use as preferred.

A lump of camphor placed in the china closet will prevent any silver which may be in it from tarnishing.

Very satisfactory underclothes can be made from pongee. Dry pongee garments thoroughly before ironing.

COATS FOR LITTLE MISSY ARE SIMPLE AND COZY

THERE are coats and coats for little persons from two years old up to twelve, most of them of warm, soft wool materials, simply designed and trimmed. The wool fabrics include daveny and similar cloths, broadcloth, velours, camel's hair, chinchilla—in fact, any good substantial and pliable wool; and many are the thrifty and resourceful mothers who make coats for their little girls from garments that are passed on by older members of the family. Velvet and silk become important when the smallest member of the family must be provided for; she is the proud owner of more than one coat—or may be. If her mother is clever with the needle, these little coats are not difficult to make by the patterns which pattern companies provide. Narrow bands of fur, or plush and simple needlework are used for their decoration. The coat of velours shown in the illustration, is representative of this season's models. It is cozy looking, with its close-fitting collar of fur, fur bands on the cuffs and pockets and big fur buttons. Nearly all children's coats are like it in outline, except those that take on a cape that reaches a little below the elbows. There are several models that introduce a yoke, especially among coats for tiny girls. Turned-back cuffs, often bordered with fur, and wide collars that fit snugly about the throat and are also edged with narrow fur bands, dispose of these two details in nearly all models.

WOOL SKIRTS AND SILK WAISTS MAKE FROCKS FOR SCHOOL USE

CHILDREN'S clothes have taken on new charm and much added importance since specialists in designing them have worked out their inspirations from season to season. This fall the modes for grown-ups appear to have little influence with them. Instead of making small replicas of older people's belongings these designers have almost forgotten them. They have eyes for the world of childhood and are making independent excursions into new fields—what they see is translated into clothes as fascinating as things that express childhood should be. Even the simplest frocks for school and play reveal the hand of genius in little original touches.

Just now mothers are concerned with school clothes, and manufacturers have foreseen the needs of school girls from the kindergarten stage on to the aspiring and critical, but often underachieving, high school senior. These manufacturers have taken over the responsibility of designing for the school clothes that she ought to wear and will like to wear.

For girls from about eight to twelve, frocks for everyday wear are shown made with taffeta bodices and plaid wool skirts like that shown in the illustration. In this case the skirt is red-and-black plaid, and the black bodice repeats the red, in small French knots of embroidery silk that edge the collar and cuffs and the plaid down the front of the waist. There is a belt of the plaid material that falls over and partly covers a sash of narrow black silk ribbon. This idea of a plaid skirt set on to a silk waist can be worked out in many pleasing color combinations, the waist being in the color that predominates in the skirt.

THE BACHELOR

By FLORENCE A. FRENCH.

The affair began on the beach. Colorless stretches of barren sand made perfectly splendid backgrounds for sun shades, and when the shade in question is a bathing trise and the beach is otherwise deserted, the effect produced is startling. I might have known I would be pestered by a woman sooner or later, but I scarcely thought the rividings sex would care to venture into this bleak and barren world of the woods.

I, Grey S. Payson, was anything but pleased at the prospect, for it looked as if this designing creature were settled for a comfortable morning in my favorite rocky retreat. Of course I could not risk getting acquainted with her, and remaining longer on the beach would most certainly mean getting acquainted. Not that I would be sorry of bringing it about, but she would probably fail or ask something from something or other. This the silly ways of all daughters of Eve.

A deep pity stirred my being. The injustice of it all! A ruined vacation, and the cause—a woman! I had a swift vision of being forced to accompany her on frequent rambles, helping her by her nervous, clinging hands over numerous rocks and exerting my manly strength in her behalf.

"Ye gods," I exclaimed wrathfully, "when is a bachelor safe?"

Generous fathers and beaming mothers bent on disposing of their son's daughters, had haunted me. Forward maidens had openly proposed to me, yet, thus far, I had escaped the horrible clutches of matrimony.

I loved my wild, desolate bit of northern coast, the barren fishing village and its simple fisherfolk. And now a woman from another world had invaded my paradise! I spent a most miserable morning avoiding her.

By so doing I acquired an aching head and a 24-hour growth, to say nothing of my splendidly blistered feet. Plodding wearily home I resolved to meet the enemy and ignore her. Having resolved upon this procedure, I was eager to begin it, and it was therefore with much delight that I glanced to come upon the annoying person, calmly seated upon my golden sands, gazing with vacant eyes upon my fuzzy ocean, the cerise parasol a most glaring evidence. Seating myself at a distance, I lit my pipe and turned my back on her. "I'll show her!"

To my amazement the enemy remained oblivious to my presence. I chuckled. Her indifference was too good to be true, and I only hoped it would last all morning.

It did.

It was noon when she arose gracefully and slowly made her way down the beach toward the village. I caught a full glimpse of the intruder, for she lowered her sunshade. In a flash it dawned upon me that a snapper attire would best become my manly figure. I had somewhat neglected my person during my solitary watch by the sea.

It was therefore with great pride that I made my appearance before breakfast, bedecked in cool white flannels.

Then I resolved to be nice to her. After all she was probably a very ordinary person. I had made a mountain out of a mole hill, and, by jingo, she wasn't bad looking! It was then I discovered that the lady had begun the ignoring method herself. She snubbed me openly. With eyes that seemed to look through me, yet saw me not, she passed me. I might have been a man of stone for all she seemed to care. Daily we occupied the same beach, breathed the same air, and yet I, Grey S. Payson, a bachelor of some importance, was ignored by a woman—with a cerise parasol!

A week dragged by. The intruder stayed on, and so did I, for why, pray, should this haughty person drive me from my haven? She should not! Her behavior puzzled me at first, so I shadowed her eagerly. I, too, could play my cards and the last trick would be mine!

Sunday dawned bright and glorious. The glittering sands and water beckoned to me, and likewise to a cerise sunshade. I spied it peeping over a boulder. I hastened eagerly, a song on my lips. I would approach the damsel, how gravely, pass the time of day and depart. I couldn't be too cautious. So, adjusting my nose glasses, I made boldly toward the flaming color.

I hesitated at the sound of voices. She was not alone. It was a masculine voice. At that moment she appeared, a flush on her pretty face.

"There he is, Reggie; the brute!"

I was rudely grasped by a tall, slim young man and shaken violently.

"Let me explain," I muttered feebly. "I've taught you to swim my wife?"

"You taught me to swim my wife?"

"You taught me to swim my wife?"

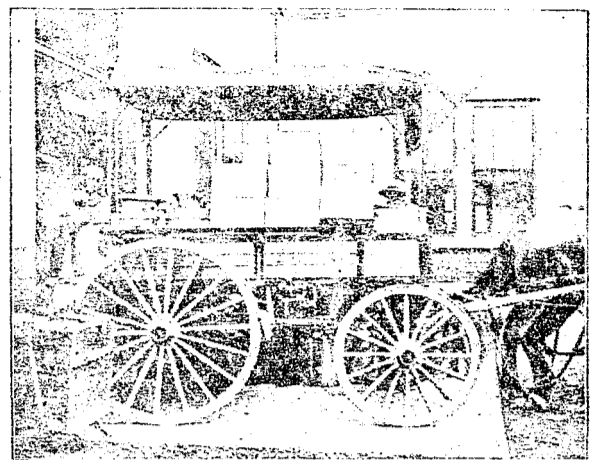

"You taught me to swim my wife?"

"You taught me to swim my wife?"

"You taught me to swim my wife?"

"You taught me to swim my wife?"

CO-OPERATIVE PRINCIPLES MUST BE FOLLOWED IN ORGANIZATION

A Creamery Which Gathers the Milk of Cream of Many Producers, to Manufacture Into Uniform High-Grade Dairy Products, Is One of the Best Examples of Successful Co-operation.

Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.

Specialists in the United States Department of Agriculture urge constantly the establishing of uniform standards for farm products, and declare that if these standards are maintained, the confidence of the public will be established, and the success of cooperative marketing more generally assured. Two many organizations are brought into being as a result of enthusiasm created by appeals to prejudice and by misconception. The proper foundation is through a well-recognized need for an organization.

"Co-operative principles," said a cooperative specialist of the bureau of markets, "must be adhered to in the organization and operation of farmers' marketing associations. The farmers themselves cannot be expected to have a vital interest in a marketing organization operated for the profit of and controlled by a few persons. Such an organization should be operated, of course, to effect savings and to render service and not to earn profits for distribution as dividends on money invested. A fair rate of interest is granted to the capital invested by the members, and the remainder of any surplus to be distributed should be divided in accordance with patronage, that is, the amount of business transacted with the organization.

Loyalty Is Essential.

"The membership should be open to producers only who desire to avail themselves of its facilities, and there should be safeguards to prevent the ownership and control of the enterprise from falling into the hands of a few persons. The success of the entire effort depends upon the loyalty of the members and their interest in the organization, the high standards they maintain, and their distinct understanding that as a business association it should be managed by a man or men able to earn a dignified compensation. Disloyalty has caused the failure of more than one co-operative organization, and it is a weakness which can be remedied only by the members themselves.

"The manager, of course, is the keystone supporting the business. The salary offered him should attract high-class ability as in any business looking to success, and he should have authority to support his work. An incompetent manager at its head.

"A cooperative marketing association may be likened to a typewriter, which is a very efficient machine, but useless until you have some one competent to operate it. The success of co-operative marketing depends almost entirely upon obtaining a sufficient volume of business, observing true cooperative principles, employing capable management, having thoroughly modern business methods, and finally, loyal membership."

Steady Growth Tends to Success.

Men who have traveled in every part of the United States observing the work of co-operative organizations of various kinds, believe that the success of widespread co-operative marketing may be endangered through a poorly conceived hope or expectation that a hard and fast organization of producers will make it possible to sell anything and everything at a predetermined price without regard to quality or conditions. This is a dangerous attitude to assume.

Men who have given close attention to the subject declare that there is a widespread feeling that it is possible to revolutionize completely the entire system of marketing and attain success from the outset. This, of course, is impossible because it is necessary to build upon a solid foundation and to work out the many problems involved carefully. Steady, substantial and healthy growth tends to permanency and success.

No one should believe that because he is a member of a certain co-operative association, unusual prices are assured.

TO INSURE HEALTHY CALVES

If Cow Does Not Receive Abundance of Palatable Feed, Weak, Puny Calf Results.

Poorly nourished cows give birth to weak, puny calves which are hard to raise. The feeding of the calf, therefore, begins before it is born. The food elements necessary for the development of the calf are taken into the stomach of the cow, digested, assimilated and transmitted to the calf through the umbilical cord, the connection between the mother and the calf. It is evident that if the cow does not receive food enough to keep herself in thrifty condition and at the same time develop her calf, say specialists of the United States Department of Agriculture, both she and the calf must suffer.

In endeavoring to raise good, thrifty calves many dairymen handicap themselves at the start by not properly feeding the pregnant cows. Such cows should have an abundance of palatable and succulent or juicy feed in order to insure good body flesh and healthy, thrifty condition at calving time. The calves will then be well developed, strong and sturdy, and ready to respond normally to proper feed and care.

In localities where they are especially well adapted, or which have disease-resistant qualities. This work is carried on in cooperation with the various state experiment stations, and in many cases has made profitable farming possible in sections in which agriculture was hazardous previous to the introduction of new crops or varieties particularly well suited to local conditions.

POULTRY AND DAIRY PROFITS

One of Very Best Ways Farmer Can Dispose of Surplus Milk Is to Feed It to Fowls.

The dairyman (or the farmer who runs a small dairy in connection with his farm) is in an enviable position to make the biggest proportionate profits from a flock of poultry. One reason for this is that the best feeds as milk producers are also excellent egg producers. For instance, clover, alfalfa, middlings, rye, etc., are all palatable and beneficial to cows and chickens alike, and so is an occasional mess of finely chopped straw.

Furthermore, the cows furnish one of the best of foods for laying hens, for milk is a valuable egg food in any form. One of the very best ways any farmer can dispose of surplus milk with profit is to feed it to the hens, or to growing young stock. It furthers just the materials needed for improving growth of eggs and down in a palatable, easily digested form. Hence it is an exceedingly valuable product as an adjunct to the grain ration, which often lacks essential elements.

PLANT PESTS CAUSE BIG LOSS OF WHEAT

Possible to Reduce Toll Much Below Present Figures.

Bureau of Plant Industry Working Out Preventive and Control Measures for Diseases of Different Cereal Crops.

Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.

If all the wheat now destroyed annually by pests could be saved and made into flour the United States Department of Agriculture says it would add approximately 20,000,000 barrels to the yearly output to the nation. The annual production of wheat in this country for the four-year period, 1916 to 1919, inclusive, was 783,800,000 bushels. The annual loss from disease during this period was 147,318,500 bushels.

While it is not possible entirely to eliminate wheat diseases, it is possible to reduce the toll much below what it has been in recent years, says the department.

One branch of the work of the bureau of plant industry is to work out the preventive and control measures for the diseases of all cereal crops. Another branch of the work of this office which is of equal importance in increasing production of cereal crops is the development and introduction of superior varieties of grain which produce better yields

LINER "ADS" EFFECTIVE.

One of the most effective forms of advertising is in the "liner" or classified column where a small investment of a few cents is certain to give prompt results. "Tribune liner ads are always run under the heading, "Wants, For Sale, To Rent," in the same position on the front page where they are easy to find and invariably catch the eye. Only five cents the line for the first insertion, 2 1/2 cents the line for each subsequent insertion. Next time you want to buy something, or have something for sale or rent, try a Tribune liner.

Hall's Catarrh Medicine

Those who are in a "run down" condition will notice that Catarrh bothers them much more than when they are in good health. This fact proves that Catarrh is a real disease. It is greatly influenced by constitutional conditions. HALL'S CATARRH MEDICINE is a Tonic and Blood Purifier, and acts through the blood upon the mucous surfaces of the body, thus reducing the inflammation and restoring normal conditions. All Druggists. ## A Grateful Letter.

It is in trying conditions like that related below by Mrs. Geo. L. North of Naples, N. Y., that proves the worth of Chamberlain's Colic and Diarrhoea Remedy. "Two years ago last summer" she says "our little boy had dysentery. At that time we were living in the country eight miles from a doctor. Our son was taken ill suddenly and was about the sickest child I ever saw. He was in terrible pain all the time and passed from one convulsion into another. I sent my husband for the doctor and after he was gone thought of a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic and Diarrhoea Remedy in the cupboard. I gave him some of it and he began to improve at once. By the time the doctor arrived he was out of danger." Adv.

TOWN PESTS

The Lady-Who-Had-An-Operation Is Rehearsing the Gruesome Details for the 307th time since the interesting event took place Three Years Ago, and Her Friends all feel like running when they see her Coming. For Pete's sake, Missus Lady, put on a New Record!

Homer, magic word painter, has Naissica, princess of Phaeacia, playing a game of ball with her maids of honor, which is said to have been the ancestor of modern tennis, after the usual changes and modifications that inevitably occur through the ages.

From Greece and Rome shortly thereafter a like game was taken into other European countries, and during the middle ages we find the royalty, especially the kings of England and France great players of the game.

In France players cried "Tenez," meaning "Take," supposedly meaning "take this ball," with great gusto as they swatted the little ball, and it is from that word that the game is supposed to have derived the name of tennis.

"Tenez" became successively "tenyse," "tenys" and then "tennis" in old English, after the usual procedure of corrupting words of foreign derivation.

For a time tennis was known in England as "rackets," getting that name through another line of nomenclature ancestors, beginning with the Arabian word "rabat," which meant "palm," and was supposed to apply to a game in which the palm of the hand was used as the bat. "Rabat" became "racchetta" in Italian, "racquette" in French and was Anglicized into "racket" or "racquet."—Chicago American

HOW SHE CAPTURED GEORGE

Proving That There Are More Ways Than One of Bringing a Dilettante Swain to Time.

"If you were going to propose to a girl," she said, "how would you go about it?"

"I haven't given the matter much thought," he replied, "but I am inclined to think I would get down on one knee, like this."

"Yes."

"And I would say: 'Darling, will you be mine?'"

"Oh, George," she exclaimed, "this is so sudden, but—but—yes, I will."

And all the way home he kept wondering how it happened, and whether he was quite as smart as he sometimes thought he was.

Letting the Club Do the Work.

The secret of the golf stroke is in letting the club do the work. We have watched many golfers, some of them champion buck passers. They have been letting other fellows do their work for years; whenever there has been anything to do so far as they were concerned, someone else could attend to it. But out on the golf course they are different. Then they persist in trying to do, themselves, the work which the particular club in hand was designed to do. In other words, the only time they should let something else do the work they stubbornly refuse, thinking they themselves can do it better. It is strange but it is hard to get into the average golfer's head that if the Lord had intended his shoulders to lift a ball into the air He'd have shaped them like a mallet.—Detroit Free Press.

WHEN I AM A SPIRIT.

When I am a spirit—leave me alone! I can't peek at the tough-planned riddle! Would you turn from a feast to know on a bone? Go, dine while the bellows addle!

Why lure me back to play the fool? To hear your heart beat loud's yearning With meadow talk through a haze fogged stool, With raps or table turning?

I'll lend no aid to an old dame's trance, As she peeks at the air with her me set. She'll but no split of mine to please— Let her chuck to the spook who lingers!

Oh, leave me alone! Go, drink your wine And look, to the moment's living; Lost you to your world, I'm mine, Lose precious drops of living.
