Near World's Record.

Coming within eight eggs of the world's record for her brood, and within twelve eggs of the "all-laid" record, Mary Ann II, a Barred Rock hen owned by the Michigan Agricultural College, has just completed a year's egg production which has won her a lasting place in the poultry Hall of Fame. Mary Ann laid the remarkable total of 302 eggs between November 16, 1920, and November 15, 1921.

Proof that "blood will tell" is given by the fact that Mary Ann II has four sisters who produced between 200 and 250 eggs last year. She is the daughter of Mary Ann I, the founder of the now famous strain of Barred Rocks owned at M. A. C.

The "Ann" family are to be on display for class room work during a special Poultry Short Course which opens at the College on November 28 and runs for four weeks.

"During the short course we will show how to raise hens capable of making such records, as well as how to handle them to make the records possible," says W. E. Newlin, Assistant Professor of Poultry at M. A. C.

An advanced Poultry Husbandry course is to be given at the College in January, according to the Winter Short Course program. The work of both courses is designed for the practical man who is actually engaged, or expects to engage in poultry raising.

Mrs. Edward H. Branch.

Mrs. Evalina Chase Branch, widow of the late Edward H. Branch of Brooklyn, N. Y., died November 17, 1921, at the home of her brother-in-law, I. N. Branch of Jackson, where she has been visiting for some time.

Mrs. Branch was a daughter of Stephen J. and Cordelia M. Chase, who were well known pioneer settlers of Sylvan township, and was born November 18, 1839, on the farm south of Chelsea, now owned by George Merkel. She was united in marriage with Edward H. Branch, October 29, 1867. Three children were born to this union, two of whom died in childhood. One son, Dr. G. Branch of Brooklyn, N. Y., survives her, and one grandson, Charles Branch, also several nieces and nephews, among whom are Mrs. J. N. Dancer and Miss Abbie Chase of Chelsea.

Mr. and Mrs. Branch were residents of Brooklyn, N. Y., for many years, where Mr. Branch was a very successful business man. Mr. Branch passed away July 26, 1920.

The funeral was held Saturday afternoon at the home of Mr. and Mrs. I. N. Branch in Jackson. The body lies in the receiving vault at Mount Evergreen cemetery, Jackson, awaiting further arrangements.

Women Making Comforts

The fact that much wool has proved unsalable except at a loss has caused many farm women to consider the home utilization of some of the wool on hand. A few months ago a home demonstration agent from the United States Department of Agriculture and the State Agricultural College gave a demonstration on the washing and carding of wool for comforters at a club meeting in Silverdale community, Kitsap County, Washington. As a result women all over the county have become interested in making wool comforters, and it seems as if there would be enough made to supply an entire future generation. Flour and sugar sacks have been found excellent for interlining.

SPEAKER AT LEGION MEETING

Tom May, the famous cartoonist, of Detroit, was the speaker at the meeting of The American Legion held in their rooms Monday evening. The attendance was not as large as it should have been, but those present had a very enjoyable evening.

Mr. May was introduced by Donald Bacon, and his address was full of humorous stories and his remarks applied mostly to the present day events, that held the attention of his audience from start to finish. At the close of his address, he told how he came to make his world renowned cartoon, "Forgotten." The picture has been used in almost every city in the United States and some of the larger cities of Europe.

The picture, which was published in The Standard last week, has been the means of forming in many of the cities of this country, organizations under various names, clubs that make it their point to see that little boy or girl of the poor families in their community are not "Forgotten" at Christmas time. Those who failed to attend this meeting missed a rare treat. Come again Mr. May.

At the age of 20 years she left her native country and became a resident of this country. She was united in marriage with Jacob Buehler December 20, 1860. Mr. Buehler died about 14 years ago. Following their marriage, Mr. and Mrs. Buehler settled on the farm in Lyndon which had been the family home all of the past years.

She is survived by four sons, John of Chelsea, Charles of Ann Arbor, Samuel of Saline, and Theodore of Lyndon; two daughters, Mrs. George Satterthwaite of Lima, and Mrs. John Forner of Chelsea; nineteen grandchildren, one great grandchild and one brother, Michael Mohrlock of Sylvan.

The funeral was held Monday in St. Paul's church, Rev. G. W. Krause conducting the services. Burial at the John Moore cemetery, Lyndon.

Mary Ann Glenn.

Mary Ann Glenn was born August 13, 1831 in the central part of New York state, and died at the home of her nephew, Rev. J. R. Knapp, on Wednesday, November 16, 1921. At the age of six her parents, George and Mariah Loun, migrated to Washenaw county, Michigan. They traveled by canal boat, over Lake Erie from Buffalo to Detroit and from thence by ox-cart and prairie schooner. John Loun settled near North Lake, became a farmer and continued his regular trade which was that of a blacksmith. When sixteen years of age Mary Ann was soundly converted and joined the Methodist church. Two years later she was united in marriage to Isaac Glenn, whose father's farm adjoined the Louns. After a few years on the old home place Mary and Isaac moved to Jackson county where they purchased a large farm. Here five children were born to them, three of whom died in infancy. Of the other two, Charles died at the age of 36 and Lucie, the first wife of Blarvin Wells Knapp and the mother of Anna R. and John F. Lucy Glenn Knapp died at the age of 34 in 1890. Anna R. Knapp died in 1905.

In 1886 M. W. Knapp's health broke down and Mrs. Glenn's home became the home of himself and wife and children for a number of years. For more than twenty years the Glenns attended the holiness camp meeting at Eaton Rapids, Michigan, where Grandma Glenn was a tireless altar worker, and those who know her best can testify that never during all the years from about 1875 to the present has she wavered in her constant walk with God and in the serene heavenliness of her life. In 1890 she and Mr. Glenn left their farm and removed to Chelsea. Mr. Glenn died in 1901 and since that time until one year ago last summer Grandma Glenn continued to reside here, going each winter to live with her grandson, John, at Cincinnati.

The immediate cause of her death was a fall suffered about seven weeks ago resulting in a fractured hip. The last few weeks she felt that her time had come and was constantly rejoicing in anticipation of meeting the Saviour and the friends who had gone on before. She is survived by one sister, Jane Backus, aged 92, living in Lansing, by her grandson, John F. Knapp and by a number of nephews and nieces in various parts of the United States. The last conscious expression was when she nodded her head in the affirmative in reply to the question, "Is Jesus with you?" She passed away Tuesday evening at ten minutes to twelve. The interment took place Friday morning at North Lake.

The Affairs of Anatol.

Unquestionably one of the greatest motion pictures produced in a decade is Cecil B. De Mille's tremendous Paramount production of "The Affairs of Anatol" which will be shown at the Princess Theatre on Wednesday and Thursday, November 23 and December 1. The picture, written by Jeanie Macpherson, and suggested by Arthur Schnitzler's celebrated play of the same name in which John Barrymore starred some years ago, makes an epoch in American screen production.

Interpreted by an all star cast including such screen celebrities as Wallace Reid, who has the leading male role, Gloria Swanson, a Paramount star who is seen as the leading woman, Elliott Dexter, Bebe Daniels, Monte Blue, Wanda Hawley, Theodore Roberts, Agnes Ayres, Louise Kossuth, Polly Moran, Raymond Hatton and Julia Faye, this production stands on the highest plane of artistry thus far achieved by Mr. De Mille. The story is satirical and filled with humor as well as moments that thrill to the core. The sumptuousness of the production, its ornate settings and wonderful gowns, not to speak of the artistry of the various character portrayals, place this Paramount picture in a class by itself.

Drain Tax Suit.

The suit of N. P. Dodge, Jr., against County Treasurer Lloyd Woodworth and others, was taken up in circuit court Friday morning, and following a day spent in taking testimony was adjourned until Monday morning.

Mr. Dodge seeks to enjoin Chauncey O. Worth, special drain commissioner, and the drain commissioners of Washtenaw and Hillsdale counties from assessing lands owned by plaintiff and alleged to be benefitted by the Grand river drain.

Mr. Dodge also asks that the sum of $1,537.52, the total assessment against his property, which he deposited with the Jackson county treasurer under protest, be returned to him with interest. He claims that his property receives no benefit from the drain.—Jackson News.

Lansing—The cost of maintaining the Legion hospital at Camp Custer during the first few months of operation will be borne by the state, out of the war preparedness fund vote in 1917, according to a resolution passed by the state administrative board. The state's plan is to care for the necessary expenses of the institution until the legion welfare committee is able to provide funds of its own.

Hemlock—Mr. and Mrs. Adrian Champlain, well to do farmers living a short distance east of this village were burned to death in a fire that destroyed their home. Fire apparatus from Hemlock and Merrill was called to the farm but was unable to do more than protect nearby buildings. The cause of the fire is not known. Richard Champlain, 22, son of the fire victims, saved himself by jumping from a second story window.

Flint—Plans to establish a cawm on the John Zimmerman farm on the Corinna road have been abandoned. Several months ago a rich vein of coal was discovered beneath the farm by geologists. The coal rights were leased to the Genesee Coal company. The company's lease expires September 1 and Mr. Zimmerman then leased the property to the school board. He says no further mining plans have been considered, although it may again be taken up in the future.

Grand Rapids—Addressing the Kenosha conference of social workers, prosecuting Attorney Cornelius Hofius said: "It looks as though it were the beginning of the end of society when girls of 14 and 16 years of age will accept the attentions of any male who may accost them on the street, particularly if he has an automobile. 'The present laws are entirely inadequate to care for a vast number of the cases. Marital relation ship and immorality cases' compose the large part of my work and conditions that I see are appalling."

NEWS REVIEW OF CURRENT EVENTS

Conference May Agree on Naval Armament Reduction Plan Within a Few Weeks.

HUGHES' PROGRAM APPROVED

Suggested Minor Modifications Are Being Discussed—China Pleads for Recognition as Independent Nation—League Council Gets After the Serbs—Progress on Tax Revision Bill.

By EDWARD W. PICKARD.

IT APPEARS that the prophets in Washington were all wrong. The great conference seemingly is going to reach and sign an agreement on limitation of naval armament without waiting to settle the problems of the Pacific and the Far East. This tendency is a result of Secretary Hughes' downright action in laying before the conference in its first session the American proposal as to navies. Briefly, that proposal is that the United States, Great Britain and Japan agree to suspend naval construction for ten years, and during the succeeding ten years build only for replacement; that all uncompleted capital ships and many other specified capital ships be scrapped at once; that the aggregate capital ship tonnage be limited to 500,000 tons for England and America, and 300,000 for Japan; that the sea power of the three nations be maintained on this basis. There are other features of the program, but every one is familiar with it by this time.

The conference, and the world, were it first astounded by this unexpected saying of the American cards on the table, and then the plan was greeted with loud and universal acclamation. The delegates of the other nations could not, if they would, refuse to endorse it, and at the second open session Great Britain, Japan, Italy and France, formally accepted it "in principle," with minor modifications, these as set forth then and later, were as follows:

By Great Britain—Limit size and number of submarines; permit construction of one capital ship a year during ten-year period to retain shipyard facilities; permit retention of more light cruisers and gunboats to police the high seas; reduction in number of naval ship building yards.

By Japan—Increase of Japan's naval strength to 70 per cent of British and America; cessation of construction of naval bases and new fortifications in the Pacific.

By France—Allowance of eight capital ships to safeguard French colonies.

By Italy—Allowance of six capital ships to protect Italian interests. A committee, of which Col. Theodore Roosevelt is chairman, set to work at once to study the plan and proposed modifications, and by the end of the week it was predicted an agreement would be reached within two or three weeks. Among the American experts there was considerable opposition to the British suggestions, and the Englishmen dropped the idea of one battleship a year.

Japan's proposition that there be no more naval bases or fortifications constructed in the Pacific was expected, and perhaps proves a bit awkward for the United States. It means the abandonment of work and plans in the Philippines, Dutch Harbor and elsewhere which have been considered most necessary for the safety of our possessions in the Pacific if not for that of our Pacific coast. But if Mr. Hughes' general program is accepted by the other powers it would seem the United States cannot well decline to accept this plan of Japan. In the ship-scrapping proposal America has been most unselfish and perhaps she can afford to be as generous in other matters.

When the time came to put forward plans for settlement of the problems of the Far East none of the great powers seemed ready with a program. But China, whose status is the crux of the situation, set before the committee on far eastern affairs the demands of the Asiatic republic. Dr. Alfred See, head of the Chinese delegation, was the spokesman and he held a preliminary conference with American officials and in his demands followed their advice in all except one point—the creation of a permanent court of arbitration in the Far East. China asks respect for her territorial integrity, restitution of seized provinces and regions, abandonment of special rights, monopolies, privileges and extraterritorial rights, and withdrawal of foreign troops from her soil and permission to direct her own domestic affairs and govern her own internal and foreign policies. She does not demand that all foreign monopolies and privileges in China be abandoned at once, but that she be given a chance to put herself on a level with other powers and that as time goes on and conditions warrant the economic and political fetters on her be loosened.

The British delegation approved the Chinese demands in general, especially the open door policy and the abandonment of "spheres of influence." The Japanese, it was understood, accepted the Chinese program in principle but would insist that withdrawal of interest in China should include all foreign powers. The Chinese delegates say they make their demands in behalf of all China, including the southern part where Sun Yat Sen holds somewhat precarious sway, and that Manchuria, Inner and outer Mongolia, Tibet and Turkistan are included in "the Chinese republic."

It is believed one result of the discussion of China's program may be the friendly abandonment of the Anglo-Japanese alliance, and the British would be glad to see this source of trouble replaced by some form of agreement by the great powers.

FRANCE, as has often been pointed out, is especially interested in the matter of reduction and limitation of land armament, and Premier Briand took the lead in this, though he had no concrete plan nor any working agreement with the United States delegation. In his speech he discussed the military situation in Europe, particularly as it affects France, set forth the number of men under arms in the various European countries and made plain the menace of the Red forces, especially in Russia. Nor did he neglect to call attention to France's peril from Germany which, he noted, is a nation of 65,000,000 while France numbers but 35,000,000. It is plain that the French will not consent to plans for radical military armament reduction until the Russian and Teutonic threats are removed.

OVER in Europe the League of Nations feels that its authority is being flouted by Yugoslavia, and it has determined to show that it can stop a year. Therefore it advanced the date of its Paris meeting and took up the matter of the invasion of Albania by the Serbians. The latter had been ordered to get out of Albania and to observe the boundaries of that state as established by the allied ambassadors, but in effect, at least, they disregarded both demands. They did, however, disown the troops in Albania, claiming they are irregulars over which their government has no control. Meanwhile those "irregulars" are said to be threatening Tirana, the Albanian capital, and the situation is about the same as at Vienna where the league scored a failure.

KARL and Zita, ex-rulers of Austria-Hungary, have been landed on their island of exile, Madeira. Portugal consented to care for them there but the expenses, reckoned at about $80,000 a year, will be paid by the states which formerly made up their empire if the plan of the council of allied ambassadors is carried out.

PRESIDENT Harding last Monday signed without any ceremony the proclamation of peace between the United States and Germany and there is much debate as to whom he will select for ambassador to Berlin. First choice among the guessers is Congressman Almon B. Houghton of Corning, N. Y. He was born in Massachusetts fifty-eight years ago, graduated from Harvard and the universities of Göttingen, Berlin and Paris, and speaks German and French.

Next January Germany is due to pay a reparations installment of $100,000,000, and in February a quarterly payment of about $30,000,000 on exports. Her financial experts are wondering where it is to come from and the allied reparations commission in session in Berlin is working over the problem. The commission believes the Germans can raise the money for those two payments and urge them to do so as a show of good will. There was reason to believe that if they did, the French delegates would consent to grant concessions for the rest of the year. The commission rejected a plan of the industrial leaders of Germany to pawn the country's industries as a guaranty for the reparations payments; instead it suggested that the industrial interests make sacrifices for their country instead of trying to profit from its misery.

That Germany is miserable in some respects is made evident by the riots in Berlin caused by the increasing cost of foodstuffs. Many shops were looted. High prices, of course, are caused by the decline of the mark.

ULSTER still stands firmly, or stubbornly, as you choose to look at it, in the way of settlement of the Irish trouble. Craig and his cabinet, after studying the English plan, rejected it as unfair to their part of the island and offered some kind of a substitute. This the British cabinet in turn rejected, and an exchange of notes between Lloyd George and Craig left the status unchanged. The Ulsterites reiterated their determination not to submit to anything considered a violation of Ulster's rights. The British premier's stand was strengthened by the action of the Unionist party in convention in Liverpool. The Irish negotiations are dragging out so that Lloyd George may have to abandon his contemplated trip to Washington to take part in the armament conference.

THE congressional conference committee on the tax revision bill has been ironing out the differences between the house and senate measures with considerable rapidity, both sides making concessions. One of the important actions was the elimination of the house bill provisions for the exemption of foreign traders and foreign trade corporations. On Thursday the conferees suspended their meetings to allow the house to vote on the question of surtax rates. The senate had fixed the maximum rate at 50 per cent and the house at 32 per cent. The "insurgent" Republicans of the house were determined to carry through the senate plan so the leaders turned to a compromise. Just before the house met President Harding took a hand in the affair by informing the house conferees that a maximum surtax rate of 40 per cent would be agreeable to the administration.

The house, however, by a vote of 201 to 173, instructed its conferees to accept the 50 per cent rate.

THE week in America was not without its serious labor troubles—few weeks are. The garment workers of New York went on strike in the piece work system. Their leaders said most of the 60,000 workers quit, but the employers asserted that 60 per cent of the workers had refused to go out.

In Chicago there was a short but lively strike of the teamsters accompanied by some violence. The men refused to accept a wage cut of $3 a week ordered by an arbitrator and accepted by the union officials. After being out two days they returned to work with the understanding that they should have a rehearing before the arbitrator.

Alexander M. Howat, for twenty years a leader of the Kansas miners and now their president, was expelled from the United Mine Workers of America for his refusal to obey the order of the international officers to end the strike in that state. About 4,000 Kansas miners also were suspended from membership. Howat and his crowd have fought uncompromisingly against the Kansas industrial court. The Colorado Fuel and Iron company's miners in Colorado struck and strikers were called out.

PARENTS' SLAYER BEGINS SENTENCE

CHAMPLAIN GIVEN LIFE TERM IN STATE PRISON FOR DOUBLE CRIME.

GIRL'S FAITH CAUSED QUARREL

Prisoner Tells Warden Stepmother Stirred Father to Keep After Him Continually.

Saginaw—The doors of Jackson prison closed on Richard Champlain, 22-year-old Hemlock boy, Saturday morning, and for the rest of his natural life at hard labor he will atone for shooting and burning his mother and father, wealthy and highly respected farm couple, at the farm home near Hemlock, on Nov. 14.

The departure of Champlain from Saginaw was without event. The day fitted into the picture. It was raining and cold. "Dick" was up at 5 o'clock, ate a hearty breakfast and was at the depot at 6 o'clock. His sister Frances and her husband, only relatives living here, bade him an affectionate farewell.

Clara A. Humpert, "Dick's" school teacher sweetheart, didn't show up to bid him good bye.

Parents' Religious Intolerance Blamed.

Jackson—Conflicting religious beliefs were given by Richard A. Champlain, in a statement after entering Jackson prison, as the real reason why he had killed his father and stepmother and burned their bodies in their home near Hemlock.

In answer to a question by Warden Hulbert, Champlain declared that his real mother was a Roman Catholic, and that he had been christened in that faith. He said that his mother had died when he was 3 years old, and that his father married again.

Questioned further, he stated: "Two years ago my sister was married to a Roman Catholic boy. My father, because she did this, disinherited her. My stepmother kept nagging him, and I believe she was responsible for the disinheriting of my sister. I have had several sweethearts. But three weeks ago I met Clara Humpert. I loved her. I do yet. I had intended to marry her. Of course I knew what my fate financially would be also. When my parents learned that I was courting a girl of another faith, my stepmother began to keep after my father about it, all the time stirring him up and goading him on.

"Kept At Me and At Me." "Monday evening the row began in earnest at the supper table. My stepmother kept at it and at it and at it. Then my father kept at me and at me and at me. It was not the sight of blood in France, as I told the Saginaw officers and newspaper men, that stirred me at this moment; it was solely because my stepmother was so bitter against the religious faith of my real mother. I got up from the table, and securing a revolver, I returned to the table, first shot down my father through the heart, then my mother."

ANOTHER CHANGE MADE AT M. A. C.

Addison M. Brown, Secretary, Requested by Board to Resign.

Lansing—Addison M. Brown, secretary and controlling influence at the Michigan Agricultural College for several years, has resigned at the request of the state board of agriculture. His resignation is to be effective January 1, which is the day of the beginning of the new regime at the college and the inauguration of David Friday as president.

The board of agriculture elected L. Whitney Watkins, of Manchester, as its chairman, to succeed William H. Wallace of Saginaw. Mr. Watkins also was selected as chairman of a committee to select and recommend a successor to Mr. Brown. He is to choose the other two members of the committee.

These two acts of the board of agriculture signalize the transfer of authority at the college to the farmers of the state after a political battle of many years' duration.

FLOOD MENACES TERRE HAUTE

Residents of City Flee Homes When Wabash Overflows.

Terre Haute, Ind.—Many families in the lowlands of the city were forced to flee from their homes and the entire western part of the city was threatened with inundation, as the waters of the Wabash river overflowed its banks early Sunday.

The river reached a stage of 16.5 feet.

Says Miss Farrar Beat Him.

New York.—Charges that Geraldine Farrar, grand opera singer, slapped and beat him, will be made by Lou Tellegen, actor, in his separation suit which will be filed in answer to his wife's divorce action. Harry Steinfield, attorney for Tellegen, was announced. He quoted the actor as saying: "I was continually beaten and slapped and my life made uncomfortable. I never knew when she would attack me. I shall charge extreme cruelty in my suit."

LEGION AND THE UNEMPLOYED

Organization Discourages Parades and Stunts to Attract Attention to the Jobless Men.

In assuming responsibility for the care of jobless ex-service men throughout the country the American Legion, through its national unemployment committee, has sent out the following messages:

"To the Public—Hire the soldier. He may have been restless at one time, but he is steady now.

"To Municipalities—Start now public works which you may have planned to put off until next spring."

"To the Soldier—Don't float around—the yourself down to a community and stick to your job when you get one."

The Legion's unemployment committee's survey revealed that about 900,000 veterans of the World war were out of work and many of that number in actual need of food and shelter. In its appeal to the 11,000 Legion posts to assist in giving relief to the needy ex-service men the committee discouraged charity—soup kitchens and bread lines. "Our buddies must have food and shelter without degrading their manhood or our country," the committee declared.

Parades and "stunts" to attract attention to the unemployed are discouraged by the Legion. The employment committees of the local posts are asked to bring the needs of the ex-service men directly to the attention of the employers and demand preference for America's defenders. The employer must be convinced that the restless noticeable among some service men at the close of the war has disappeared.

In Boston a parade of jobless ex-service men was headed by Frank Greenleaf, a New England doughboy, wearing four decorations for bravery in France.

Legionnaires with incomes have been asked to adopt an unemployed buddy and take care of him until he finds a job.

VOTED THE "HOMELIEST MAN"

Editor of Nebraska Veteran's Paper Draws Women's Decision at Department Convention.

Glenn H. Coffey, editor of the Mid-Western Veteran of Lincoln, Neb., was adjudged the "homeliest man" at the convention of the Nebraska Department of the American Legion, but his photograph reproduced herewith raises the question of what is meant by the homeliest man.

The candidates for the "honor" were lined up on the stage of the convention hall at Fremont, and five women decided their fate, based on the uproarious applause that greeted each of the contestants as he arose. The second honors went to Lum Doyle, state boxing commissioner of Nebraska.

"I am deeply sensible of the unique honor conferred upon me by the convention," Mr. Coffey said. "Some of the other contestants could hardly be classed as matinee idols, but I feel that I was elected entirely upon my merits."

ENDANGERS SECURITY OF U. S.

Manhattan Post of Legion Condemns Action of Navy Department in Releasing 200,000 Members.

That the security of the United States is endangered by the release by the Navy department of nearly 200,000 members of the naval reserve force, is the opinion of members of Manhattan naval post, American Legion, New York, who have adopted a resolution terming the dropping of the reservists as "breaking the back of the reserves."

The Manhattan post is composed of former navy enlisted men and officers. The post has made a careful study of naval affairs and has maintained a policy favoring complete naval preparedness.

The resolution points out that without the maintenance of a complete naval reserve force, the government lacks sufficient trained men to man the ships and stations of the navy in time of war.

Cause of Mirth.

When the young mistress of the house entered the kitchen she carried herself with great dignity. She had, incredible as it might seem, come to call the cook to account.

"Bridget," she said, "I must insist you have less company in the kitchen evenings. Last night I was kept awake by the uproarious laughter of one of your women friends."

"Yes, mam, I know," Bridget admitted cheerfully, "but she couldn't help it. I was telling her how you tried to make cake yesterday morning!"—American Legion Weekly.

Hurry, mother! Even a sick child loves the "fruity" taste of "California Fig Syrup" and it never fails to open the bowels. A teaspoonful today may prevent a sick child tomorrow. Ask your druggist for genuine "California Fig Syrup" which has directions for babies and children of all ages printed on bottle. Mother! You must say "California" or you may get an imitation fig syrup.—Advertisement.

COOKIE'S "HANT."

Synopsis—Jane Harding, respectable and conservative old maid, but never too old to think of marriage—with more money than brains—is involved by a strong-minded suitor, Miss Higgins. Brownie, into financing an expedition to hunt for buried treasure on Leonard Island. Her niece, Virginia Harding, undertaking to stop her, gets on the vessel and is unwillingly carried along. By no means concealing her distaste for the expedition and her contempt for its members, Virginia makes the acquaintance of the Honorable Cuthbert Vane, talking with Douglas Stark, leader of the expedition. Virginia very frankly expresses her views, practically accusing Shaw and the other members of the party, including a somewhat uncertain personage, Captain Magnus, and a shady "financier," Hamilton. It turns out to be a conspiracy to defraud Jane Harding. Landing on the island is a matter of some difficulty. Virginia being carried ashore in the arms of Cuthbert Vane. The party is well received. Virginia declares herself out of it. The dead sailor's map is produced.

(CHAPTER VI—Continued).

It was fortunate that Cookie knew nothing of the solitary grave somewhere on the island, with its stone marked with B. H. and a cross-bones, nor that the inhabitant thereof was supposed to walk. If he had, I think the strange spectacle of a lone negro in a small boat rowing lustily for the American continent might soon have been witnessed on the Pacific by any eyes that were there to see. And we could all have spared either boat or cook.

Yet even though unweary by this gruesome knowledge, after two or three days I noticed that Cookie was ill at ease. As the leisure member of the party, I enjoyed more of Cookie's society than the rest. On this occasion while the morning was still in its freshness he was permitting me to make fudge. But his usual joviality was gone. I saw that he glanced over his shoulder at intervals, muttering darkly to himself. Also that a rabbit's foot was stung conspicuously about his neck.

Having made my fudge and set the pan on a stone in the stream to cool, I was about to retire with a view to conducting a limited exploring expedition of my own. The assurances of Mr. Shaw—not personally directed to me, of course; the armed force under which we lived did not permit of that—had convinced me that I had not to dread anything more ferocious than the pigs, and the wildest of them would retire before a stick or a stone. Besides, I boasted a little automatic, which I carried strapped to my waist in a businesslike manner. Mr. Vane had almost got me to the point where I could shoot it off without shutting my eyes.

Thus equipped, I was about to set off into the woods. I had turned my back on Cookie and the camp, when I was arrested by an exclamation: "Miss Jenny!"

I turned to find Cookie gazing after me with an expression which, in the familiar phrase of fiction, I could not interpret, though among its ingredients were doubt and anguish. Cookie, too, looked pale. I don't in the least know how he managed it, but that was the impression he conveyed, dusky as he was.

"Miss Jenny, it mos' look lak yo' 'bout to go perambulating in dese yere woods?"

"I am, Cookie," I admitted.

The whites of Cookie's eyes became alarmingly conspicuous. Drawing near in a stealthy manner he whispered:

"Yo' bettah not, Miss Jenny!"

"Oh, nonsense, Cookie!" I said impatiently. "There's not a thing on the island but the pigs!"

"Miss Jenny," he solemnly replied, "der's pigs and pigs."

"Yes, but pigs is pigs, you know," I answered, laughing.

"Der's pigs and pigs, chile—live ones and—dead ones."

"Dead ones? Of course—haven't we been eating them?"

"Yo' won't nevah eat dis yere kind of dead pig, Miss Jenny. It's—it's a hant!"

The murder was out. Cookie leaned against a cocoa-palm and wiped his ebony brow.

Perpetually questioned, he told at last how, today and yesterday, arising in the dim dawn to build his fire before the camp was stirring, he had seen lurking at the edge of the clearing a white four-footed shape. It was a pig, yet not a pig; its ghastly hue, its noiseless movements, divided it from all proper mundane porkers by the dreadful gulf which divides the living from the dead. The first muttering Cookie, doubtful of his senses, had flung a stone and the spectral thing had vanished like a shadow. On its second appearance, having had a day and a night for meditation, he had known better than to commit such an outrage upon the possessor of ghostly powers, and had resorted to prayer instead. This had answered quite as well, for the phantom pig had dissolved like the morning mist. While the sun blazed, what with his devotions and his rabbit's foot and a cross of twigs nailed to a tree, Cookie felt a fair degree of security. But his teeth chattered in his head at the thought of approaching night. Meanwhile he could not in conscience permit me to venture forth into the path of this horror, which might, for all we knew, be lurking in the jungle shadows, even through the daylight hours. Also, though he did not avow this motive, I believe he found my company very reassuring. It is immensely easier to face a ghost in the sustaining presence of other flesh and blood.

For a moment I wavered in my determination. What if the island had its wild creatures after all? But neither lynx nor panther nor any other beast of prey is white, except a polar bear, and it would be unusual to meet one on a tropical island.

I decided that Cookie's pig was after all a pig, though still in the flesh. I thought I remembered having seen quite fair pigs, which would pass for white with a frightened negro in the dim light of dawn. I consoled Cookie as best I could by promising to cross my fingers if I heard or saw anything suspicious, and struck out into the woods.

For all my brave words to Cookie, I had no intention of going very far afield. From the shore of the cove I had observed that the ground behind the clearing rose to the summit of a low ridge, perhaps four hundred feet in height, which jutted from the base of the peak. From this ridge I thought I might see something more of the island than the limited environment of Lantern Bay.

As the woods shut out the last glimpse of the white tents in the clearing, as even the familiar sound of the surf died down to a faint, half-impaired whisper mingling with the rustling of the palms overhead, I experienced a certain discomfort, which persons given to hard and unqualified terms might have called fear. It seemed to me as if a very strong cord at the rear of my belt were jerking me back toward the inglorious safety of the camp. I fingered my automatic and marched on up the hill, trying not to gasp when a leaf rustled or a coconut dropped in the woods.

I gained the summit of the ridge, and stood upon a bare rock platform, scantily sheltered by a few trees, large shrubs, rather, with a smooth, waxy leaf of vivid green. On the left rose the great mass of the peak.

The thing now was to lure him back to camp and restore him to the happy service of his gods. With another alluring, "Here, doggy!" I started on my way. He shrank, trembled, hesitated, then was after me with a bound. So I brought him triumphantly across the Rubicon of the little stream, and marched him into camp under the astounded eyes of Cookie.

At sight of the negro the dog growled softly and crouched against my skirt. Cookie stood like an effigy of amazement done in black and white.

"Yo' de Lawd's sake, Miss Jenny," he burst at last, "am dat de ghos'-pig?"

"It was, Cookie, but I changed him into a live dog by crossing my fingers. Mind your rabbit's foot. He might eat it, and then very likely we'd have a ghost on our hands again."

"Yo' go long, Miss Jenny," said Cookie valiantly. "Yo' think I scared of any ghos' what lower himself to be a live white mongrel dog? Yere, yo' kyi, yo' bettah nek friends with ol' Cookie, 'cause he got charge o' de grub. Yere's a little fat na'ow hone what mebbe come off'n yo' own grandchile, but yo' ain' koin' to mind dat now yo' is transfigured dis yere way." And evidently the reincarnated ghost-pig did not.

"You are impatient. Let me pass!"

was, when, and where it was, so that I should not live to feel the teeth of the unknown thing sink in my flesh. I thought of my revolver and after an infinity of time managed to draw it from the case. My fingers seemed at once nervelessly limp and woodenly rigid. This was not at all the dantless front with which I had dreamed of meeting danger. I had fancied myself with my automatic making a rather pretty picture as a young Amazon—but I had now a dreadful fear that my revolver might spasmodically go off and wound the thing, and then, even if it had meditated letting me go, it would certainly attack me. Nevertheless I clung to my revolver as to my last hope.

I began to edge away crab-wise into the wood. Like a metronome I said to myself over and over monotonously, "Don't run, don't run!" I did not run. Instead, I stepped on a smooth surface of rock and slid downhill like a human toboggan until I fetched up against a dead log after a confused interval during which I vaguely believed myself to have been swallowed by an alligator. While the alligator illusion endured I must have lain comatose and immovable. Indeed, when my senses began to come back

The Strange Beast of the Jungle Was a White Bull-Terrier.

I was still quite inert. I experienced that curious tranquillity which is said to visit those who are actually within the jaws of death. There I lay prone, absolutely at the mercy of the mysterious white prowler of the forest—and I did not care. The whole petty business of living seemed a long way behind me now.

Languidly at last I opened my eyes. Within three yards of me, in the open rock-paved glade where I had fallen, stood the thing. Yes, there it was, only now it had put an ear back and was sniffing at me with a mingling of interest and apprehension.

The strange beast of the jungle was a white bull-terrier.

Abruptly I sat up. The terrier gave a startled sideways bound, but paused again and stood regarding me.

"Here, pup! Here, pup! Nice doggy!" I said in soothing accents.

The dog gave a low whine and stood shivering, eager but afraid. I continued my blandishments. Little by little the forlorn creature drew nearer, until I put out a cautious hand and stroked his ears. He dodged at first, but presently crept back again. Soon his head was against my knee, and he was devouring my hand with avid caresses. Some time, before his abandonment on the island, he had been a well-brought-up and petted animal. Months or years of wild life had estranged him from humanity, yet at the human touch the old devotion woke again.

The thing now was to lure him back to camp and restore him to the happy service of his gods. With another alluring, "Here, doggy!" I started on my way. He shrank, trembled, hesitated, then was after me with a bound. So I brought him triumphantly across the Rubicon of the little stream, and marched him into camp under the astounded eyes of Cookie.

At sight of the negro the dog growled softly and crouched against my skirt. Cookie stood like an effigy of amazement done in black and white.

"Yo' de Lawd's sake, Miss Jenny," he burst at last, "am dat de ghos'-pig?"

"It was, Cookie, but I changed him into a live dog by crossing my fingers. Mind your rabbit's foot. He might eat it, and then very likely we'd have a ghost on our hands again."

"Yo' go long, Miss Jenny," said Cookie valiantly. "Yo' think I scared of any ghos' what lower himself to be a live white mongrel dog? Yere, yo' kyi, yo' bettah nek friends with ol' Cookie, 'cause he got charge o' de grub. Yere's a little fat na'ow hone what mebbe come off'n yo' own grandchile, but yo' ain' koin' to mind dat now yo' is transfigured dis yere way." And evidently the reincarnated ghost-pig did not.

DAIRY FACTS

SUCCULENT FEED FOR COWS

Dried Apple Pomace Does Not Cause Decrease in Milk Flow Nor Yield of Butterfat.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Dried or "evaporated" apple pomace as a succulent feed for the dairy cow is the subject of a preliminary report from the bureau of chemistry and animal industry of the United States Department of Agriculture based on an experiment to determine the feeding value of dried-apple pomace, especially its suitability as food for cows in lactation. Preliminary results are reported because of a large number of inquiries on the subject.

The text of the report follows:

It appears there is a belief among dairymen that the dried product has a tendency to cut down the milk flow, or even cause cows to go dry, although apple pomace fresh from the cider press is generally recognized as being a good succulent feed for milk cows. To test the soundness of this belief a feeding trial has been carried out by the department. Only one cow was used in this test, and the total quantity of dried pomace fed was less than 400 pounds; therefore it must be borne in mind that the results obtained, while indicative, cannot be accepted as conclusive.

In this feeding trial the dried-apple pomace was fed wet and its feeding value compared with that of corn silage, since it is intended to be a succulent feed. The pomace was prepared by adding to the dry material three times its weight of water several hours before feeding, thus producing a feed similar in water content to that of corn silage.

For a period of 30 days the cow received a balance ration consisting of grain, hay, and corn silage. The silage was then replaced by the apple pomace for a similar length of time, following a ten-day transition period for the change in diet, and after a like transition period at the end of 30 days the original ration containing silage was resumed and continued for a third 30-day period.

The quantity fed—33 pounds of wet pomace, per day—was such that the total dry matter in the pomace equaled the weight of dry matter in the silage replaced. The quantities of grain and hay fed remained practically constant throughout the whole experiment.

While the data obtained are not sufficient to warrant the drawing of final and definite conclusions, the indications are that no bad effects follow the feeding of dried-apple pomace. There was no decrease in the milk flow nor in the yield of butterfat.

When fed as described the dried pomace appeared to be equal, pound for pound of dry matter, to good corn silage as a succulent food for this dairy cow. Owing to the property which it possesses of absorbing large quantities of water and swelling, it should never be fed dry, but should be allowed to soak in water for an hour or so before feeding. The pomace appears to be a palatable feeding stuff.

Caution is advised in feeding dried apple pomace, as there is a possibility that the feeding of large quantities, or of quantities containing excessive amounts of apple seeds, might prove injurious. It appears to be safe, however, to feed as much soaked pomace by weight (one part dried pomace to three parts water) as it would be to feed the same amount of pomace fresh from the cider press.

TO PREVENT DREAD DISEASE

Foot-and-Mouth Ailment Need Not Be Feared If French Serum Proves Reliable.

The dread foot-and-mouth disease will no longer be feared by cattlemen if the announcement of the discovery of a serum for the prevention of this disease by a group of French scientists, proves reliable and if this serum can be manufactured in sufficient quantities. Several outbreaks of the disease have occurred in the United States, the last of them several years ago, causing a great loss. The only effective method of stamping out the disease heretofore has been to slaughter all cattle affected and thoroughly disinfect the premises.

A hotel steward said to be known from the Atlantic to the Pacific, and for forty years an observer of people who eat in public dining rooms, is reported as saying at a convention of public food purveyors that "American women have forgotten how to cook." The gentleman speaks without knowledge of the facts. We may excuse him only because he has been penned up in public eating places for so many years that he has lost all sense of proportion and lacks facts for comparison. American women have not forgotten how to cook. Their good, wholesome, well-prepared food for home dining room feeds, and feeds amazingly well, 80 per cent of the population. So general is good home cooking that every man forced by circumstances to get his meals at public places regards himself as unfortunate because he cannot always eat at home, or at somebody else's home. This hotel steward is full of misinformation.—Chicago Journal of Commerce.

Thanksgiving

AND THOU shalt keep the feast of weeks unto the Lord thy God with a tribute of a freewill offering of thine hand, which thou shalt give unto the Lord thy God, according as the Lord thy God hath blessed thee.

AND thou shalt rejoice before the Lord thy God, thou, and thy son, and thy daughter, and thy manservant, and thy maidservant, and the Levite that is within thy gates, and the stranger, and the fatherless, and the widow, that are among you, in the place which the Lord thy God has chosen to place his name there.

AND thou shalt remember that thou wast a bondman in Egypt; and thou shalt observe and do these statutes.

THOU shalt observe the feast of tabernacles seven days, after that thou hast gathered in thy corn and thy wine;

AND thou shalt rejoice in thy feast, thou, and thy son, and thy daughter, and thy manservant, and thy maidservant, and the Levite, the stranger, and the fatherless, and the widow, that are within thy gate.

SEVEN days shalt thou keep a solemn feast unto the Lord thy God, in the place which the Lord shall choose; because the Lord thy God shall bless thee in all thy increase, and in all the works of thine hands, therefore thou shalt surely rejoice.

DAY EXPRESSIVE OF A NATION'S GRATITUDE

Turkey and cranberry sauce, crisp weather, a general sense of well-being and football are in the air at the very mention of Thanksgiving, writes Marguerite Samuels in the New Orleans Times-Picayune.

But football and too much dinner are not, in the final analysis, all of Thanksgiving. There is a deeper, inspirational side to the day set aside through three hundred years of American history as the great national celebration of gratitude.

Do you remember the simple story of that first Thanksgiving day as you read it in your primary reader? And the thrill of thankfulness for national greatness and goodness that came to you as your chubby fingers drew decorated turkeys and round-eyed Pilgrim fathers on the school blackboard?

It was in 1621, the fall following the landing at Plymouth, that the Pilgrims celebrated the first Thanksgiving day. The little colony, one hundred and two souls who had fared westward from England for their conscience's sake, had weathered the storms of the Atlantic and the worse hardships of a New England winter, and they had won through at last to a sort of tranquillity—comparatively speaking.

Back from the rocky coastline of Massachusetts, with its thunder of limitless waves, a little group of log houses crowded together behind the tall stockade, feeling safe in their nearness to each other.

Garnered corn filled the barns and the storerooms of the houses were pungent with ripe apples. The colony felt firmly established in the New World of its seeking. Even the silent-footed Indians had begun to understand that there was room for them and for the pale faces too. The day out Puritan spirit of the travelers in the Mayflower felt that there was sufficient cause for thanking God.

The First Thanksgiving.
And so it was that the first day of organized thanksgiving was set. The whole little colony, in its best buckled shoes and high hats, with blunderbusses across square shoulders, sallied forth from the stockaded homes through snow to the log church, there to give community thanks for the freedom of their stern lives.

Outside, the Indians crouched behind the firs and beeches, watching and wondering.

From the Pilgrim colony, the custom spread to others in the New England states. In 1630 the Massachusetts Bay colony set aside a day for thanksgiving, and frequently thereafter, until 1680, when it became an annual festival in the colony.

Connecticut appointed a day in 1636, and annually after 1647, except in 1675. The Dutch in New Netherlands set aside a day in 1644 and occasionally thereafter. During the War of Independence the Continental Congress appointed one or more thanksgiving days each year, except in 1777. President Washington set aside Thursday, Nov. 26, 1789, as a day of national thanks, and again in 1793 he called the country together for such a celebration. President Madison, at the close of the War of 1812, appointed a day.

In New York state, from 1817 on, the festival was annual.

In some of the southern states a national Thanksgiving day met with opposition as a relic of Puritanic bigotry, so utterly at variance with the Cavalier ideals of the southern colonies; but by 1858 proclamations were issued by the governors of 25 states and two territories.

Is New England Festival.

Perhaps it is natural that the South, so far in thought and experience from the colonizers of New England, should, even yet, be less whole-hearted in its celebration of Thanksgiving than is the eastern section of the United States. With its commemoration of hardships of 1620, with its ceremonies of the harvest, Thanksgiving is essentially a New England festival. And to see it truly carried out, you must see it there.

In Massachusetts, it is the signal for great family reunions. From California, from the high seas, from the neighboring town, the sons and daughters and cousins and aunts and uncles foregather at the old homestead on Thanksgiving day. With the first snowfall of the season, generally scheduled for the last week in November, the rummy sleighs and the vast bearskin rugs are hauled out of their summer mothballs; and from early morning until noon, there is a gay jangle of sleigh bells going and coming between the railroad station and the farmhouse.

After the dinner—a tremendous affair—the old people sit half drowsing about the open fires, telling stories of the New England that is gone.

"Do you remember?" says one; and they are off in a glorious revel of recollection of their own youth, when automobiles were unknown, and Boston might have been 1,500 instead of 15 miles away.

The young people of the family, deeply wrapped in fur coats and rugs, already had dashed off along the slippery roads to Cambridge and "The Game."

The Harvard stadium on Thanksgiving day was a view of serried rows of excitement never to be forgotten. The grey rhythmic curves of the coil-scurry across square shoulders, sallied forth from the stockaded homes through snow to the log church, there to give community thanks for the freedom of their stern lives.

A whistle—and the game is on. Tensely leaning forward, the $9,000 watch as if life and death were being decided in the arena below. At the first touchdown the winning side goes and with joy. Flags wave, arms and hats are promiscuously pitched about, perfect strangers put other perfect strangers on the back; and thrilled girls shake hands with boys they never saw before.

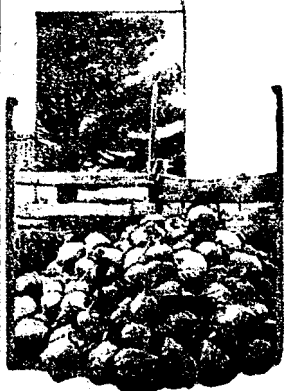

Meanwhile the snow comes down softly, in a powdery rain, and the final goal sees frozen hands and feet restlessly glad to race off to warm dormitory rooms, where the victory is celebrated in English breakfast, or the defeat drowned in orange pekoe, cakes and laughing chatter.

In Boston Thanksgiving morning great crowds fill Trinity, or whatever church has been designated for the union service. The pigeons in Copley square flutter over them—tame friendly doves of "peace on earth, good will to men."

Thanksgiving in New Orleans.

Here in New Orleans several of the churches hold special union services, and the day is commemorated in typical New Orleans fashion—thanking God by giving others something for which to be thankful. Magical basket dinners, containing everything from turkey to dessert, are given to the hungry poor of the city by the Elks, the Shriners, the Salvation Army, Kingsley house and other benevolent organizations. School children remember, with fruit and nuts, the sufferers at the Home for Incurables.

CHOICE INEXPENSIVE DISHES.

Serving the ordinary foods in an extraordinary way is a faculty worth cultivating.

Lamb chops with a little extra work may make a dish unusual and especially appetizing. Choose the loin chops and have them cut quite thick. Remove the skin and superfluous fat and with a sharp knife cut a pocket from the outside edge, reaching to the bone.

Into this pocket place a stuffing made of moistened bread, sage, butter, salt, pepper and onion juice. Sprinkle the chops with salt and pepper and place in a hot oven to bake twenty to thirty minutes. Make a gravy from the fat in the pan to serve with the chops.

Another and more elaborate as well as more delicious dish is made by cooking both sides of loin chops until well browned. Season and set away to cool. Make a thick white sauce, using four tablespoons of flour to three of butter and one cupful of milk. Season and add two tablespoons of finely minced ham. Spread the chops on both sides with this mixture, using the bone for a handle. Set away to become firm, then at serving time dip in egg and crumbs and fry in deep fat until a golden brown. This is one dish that will be often called for by those who have tried it.

Apples and Almonds.—Core and peel one-half dozen even-sized apples. Cook until tender but not broken, place in a baking dish and decorate with blanched almonds cut in quarters, the point inserted in the apple; use enough to make it look very much like a small porcupine. Sprinkle the apples with powdered sugar and set in the oven to brown the tips of the nuts. Serve hot or cold with whipped cream and sugar.

Cider Jelly.—Take two and one-half tablespoons of gelatin, add one-half of a cupful of cold water and let stand to soften. Pour one cupful of boiling hot cider over the gelatin and stir until dissolved, then add sugar to taste and pour into a mold. Serve plain or with whipped cream.

Think not so much of what you eat as of what you eat; but of the things which you eat, select the best and then select how eagerly they would have been received if you had not them.

SAVORY SALADS.

Salads are valuable because they are pleasing to the palate, and because they furnish mineral matter to the body in larger quantities than in almost any other form. Another reason for the popularity of the salad, from the housewife's standpoint, is that they give opportunity to exercise ingenuity in utilizing leftovers.

Salads are not modern dishes; the old Romans used condive covered with oil and strewn with minced onion, the whole covered with honey and vinegar. Leaves of mustard, cress, endive and lettuce are the common bases for most salads. When these greens are not obtainable, apples, oranges, grapefruit, peppers and tomatoes are used for receptacles, with a sprig of celery leaf or parsley for a bit of green.

The thrifty housewife always keeps a jar of salad dressing of some kind on hand; it may be the best mayonnaise prepared from the nutty olive oil or the cheaper corn oil, or it may be a bottled dressing. With the salad dressing made and ready, a salad is but the work of a few moments. There are still masculine members of the family who refuse to eat green salads. If they could be persuaded to learn that such food is healthful, provides the necessary elements which keep the body in good working order, and that even to eat salad as a medicine they would soon learn to enjoy it; it would save many hours of suffering.

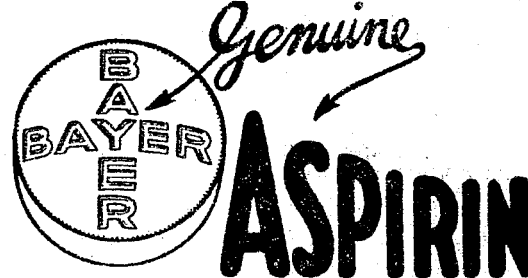

When celery is called for, and not on hand, a bit of apple cabbage, with celery salt, will do very well.

A well-made salad will give tone and substance to an otherwise slim meal, and by combining in proper quantities, and tasting, and again tasting, a dish of distinction may be achieved.

A can of choice salmon, with a half-cupful of cream and a few spoonfuls of chopped pickle, is another quick-to-prepare salad. Serve it in lettuce with a bit of boiled dressing or mayonnaise.

One of the quickest and also prettiest of salads is that of using canned pears. Lay a perfect half on a little lettuce, stick it full of blanched almonds cut in quarters lengthwise, and cover with mayonnaise. If no almonds are at hand, chop a few nuts and sprinkle lightly over the pears.

The Key to Success Is Work— There Is no Substitute for It!

In order to do your best work, you must be healthy. You must sleep soundly at night, your nerves must be strong, steady and under perfect control.

If you are accustomed to drinking tea or coffee with your meals or between meals, you may be loading yourself with a very great handicap. Your nervous system may be stimulated beyond what is natural for you.

For tea and coffee contain thein and caffeine. These are drugs as any doctor can tell you. They are known to irritate the nervous system by their action and to cause restlessness and insomnia, which prevent the proper recuperation of the vital forces.

If you want to be at your best, capable of doing the very best work that lies in you, why not stop drinking tea and coffee? Drink Postum, the rich, satisfying beverage made from scientifically roasted cereals.

Postum contains absolutely no drugs of any kind, but in flavor tastes much like rich coffee. It helps nerve and brain structure by letting you get sound restful sleep.

Postum comes in two forms: Instant Postum (in tin) made instantly in the cup by the addition of boiling water. Postum Cereal (in packages of larger bulk, for those who prefer to make the drink while the meal is being prepared) made by boiling for 20 minutes.

Another Clean Test.

Did you ever stop to think, when you pour your little one his cup of milk if the milk he is about to drink is from a healthy cow or one that is infected with disease? Do you think of your own health when you turn your cream into your coffee, whether or not the cow from whence it came is affected with Tuberculosis? How are you to tell?
There is only one way. Buy your milk from an Accredited Herd.
There are hundreds of herds like FRIESLAND under Federal Supervision. FRIESLAND has just passed another CLEAN TEST. Uncle Sam sends his inspector every so often to inspect our herd and test each animal for Tuberculosis. Is the milk you are using from a Tuberculin Tested Herd?

Quarts, 10c; pints, 5c; special prices to those who use milk in quantities. Whipping cream, butter, buttermilk. Absolutely pure.

VOICES

By Emanuel C. Frank

There's a wondrous thrill of pleasure
When you see the form and face,
Of some loved one in whose presence you rejoice;
But the joy there is in seeing
Can't compare with what takes place,
When you hear the magic music of her voice.

Be it mother, wife or sweetheart,
Be it sister, daughter, friend,
As within your waiting vision each appears;
While your heart may leap to see them
What is better in the end,
Than their eager voices sounding in your ears.

But remember as you listen
That these sweet and nameless thrills,
Find an echo and an answer rich and true,
In the hearts of cherished loved ones
Which alone your voice fulfills;
For when all is said, your voice is really you.

So when travel takes you from them
Let them feel how much you care,
Let them know you haven't left them all alone;
Let them feel in fullest measure
You, yourself, are standing there;
Let them hear the voice they cherish through [the 'phone.]

CECIL B. DEMILLE'S PRODUCTION

"The Affairs of Anatol"

BY JEANIE MACPHERSON SUGGESTED BY ARTHUR SCHNITZLER'S PLAY

Think of "Male and Female." Of "Why Change Your Wife?" Of "Forbidden Fruit." Then try to imagine a story greater than any of these—stronger, more unusual, more thrilling.
Imagine scores of settings, every one of them more elaborate, more daring, more luxurious than anything you have ever seen on the screen. Now imagine twelve of the best known players in America, working under the magic direction of DeMille.

If you can imagine one superlative picture with all this—and more—you will have a slight idea of "The Affairs of Anatol." People have been talking about it a year in advance. They'll be talking for ten years after.
