Roads Will Cost $100,000,000.
The $50,000,000 worth of roads to be built by the state in the five year program authorized by the legislature will cost the people of the state about $100,000,000.
The reason is found in the fact that highway construction work is largely financed by bond issues. A majority of the highway bonds mature in twenty years and most of them bear interest at a rate around 5 per cent. If the bonds run their full term the interest will have cost as much as the original expenditure for highways.
The only solution to the problem of paying twice for road work is to devise some scheme whereby money for the highway department can be raised from the regular revenue raising sources of the state in advance. If this could be done the interest it would be eliminated and the highways would stand as costing just the amount expended for their construction.
The $50,000,000 program authorized by the legislature limits the issuance of bonds to $10,000,000 a year. Seventeen million and fifty thousand dollars worth of highway bonds are now outstanding. The highway department has planned a $13,000,000 program for 1922, of which the state will bear about $10,000,000 and the counties the rest.
Whether or not the state is getting its money's worth out of its highways, under the system which now governs their construction, is a topic that is coming in for more and more discussion. A recent convention of farmers at Lansing had that topic listed as one of the principal ones on its program. Other organizations have recently discussed the highway system and have written in asking for information concerning the state's activities in highway work.

Game Shipments Must Be Labeled.
The Bureau of Biological Survey, United States Department of Agriculture, calls attention to the fact that under Federal law all packages in which wild ducks, geese, and other migratory game birds are transported must have the name of the shipper and of the consignee and an accurate statement of the numbers and kinds of birds contained therein clearly and conspicuously marked on the outside thereof. Sportmen shipping game birds without proper markings are liable to prosecution in the Federal court and the birds to seizure and condemnation.

Lima Taxpayers.
I will be at the Lima town hall every Friday during December: Dexter Savings Bank, Saturday, December 18th, and Chelsea at the Farmers & Merchants Bank, Saturday, January 7, to receive the township taxes.
Paul D. Pierce, Treasurer.

WAREHOUSE WAS BURNED
LAST THURSDAY EVENING
The warehouse owned by H. S. Holmes, just east of the Michigan Central stock yards was burned last Thursday evening.

The blaze was discovered about 6:15 and had gained considerable headway when the alarm was turned in. The fire department was obliged to run a line of hose from a hydrant on West Middle street across the Winters property in order to reach the blaze. They succeeded in checking the fire and saved the two warehouses east of the burned building. The building was valued at $1,200 and was partly covered by insurance.

Holmes & Walker used the building as a storehouse for a line of farm implements and wire fencing, nearly all of which was ruined by the flames. Their loss is placed at $3,000 and is partly covered by insurance.

St. Mary Reserves Loss.
St. Mary Reserve team lost to the strong team Orions of Detroit, last Sunday in Detroit. This was the second defeat for the St. Mary Reserve team in three years, being defeated by the Detroit Orions last year during the Detroit City basketball tournament, by a score of 12 to 9.

St. Mary team has played 47 games and won 45, last year the team winning 24 straight games, losing the 25th. This year won 2 and lost 1.

They will play a return game with both these teams on the home court during February, when the full lineup will be used. The defeat was due partly to the lack of one player being out from injuries received during the last two weeks. They will go to Jackson to play the strong West Intermediate school team Friday.

Games for the rest of the season include Lansing, Owosso, Toledo, Canton, Ohio, Ypsilanti, Ann Arbor, Detroit, Jackson, Marshall, Battle Creek, and Kalamazoo. A game may be played with Chelsea high school.

Asks for Special Session.
John J. Cox, managing engineer of the board of county road commissioners, in a letter to the board of supervisors, addressed to L. O. Cushing, chairman, has requested that a special meeting of that body be had immediately to discuss the action taken by the commissioners in demanding the resignation of the engineer.

According to the letter Mr. Cox feels that the work on Washtenaw roads has already suffered, owing to the lack of cooperation between his office and the board of commissioners, resulting from resolutions passed by the latter demanding that he relinquish his duties.

If the managing engineer of the county road commissioners has left the roads in other parts of the county in the same condition that they are in Sylvan and Lima, that were used for detours and hauling material by the county road trucks for the construction work on new roads, each township where work has been done under his supervision will have a large road repair bill to pay the coming year.

Mothers Mourn Loss of Babies.
"No more pitiful letters come to my desk," states Dr. R. M. Olin, commissioner of health, "than those from heartbroken mothers mourning the loss of children who have died with diphtheria either because no physician was called, or because the use of antitoxin was disregarded."
A typical extract from one of the letters reads: "I was always so afraid of diphtheria and on November 9 John came in from play about 4 p. m. complaining of being tired. I gave fever tablets, but he passed a restless night and on looking in his throat Thursday morning and finding a white coating, different from anything he ever had before. I took him to a doctor at once. The doctor said we should try his medicine for 24 hours and then if he was not better to bring him up and have antitoxin given, but that he did not think it diphtheria, that he had antitoxin in his office, but did not believe in peddling it out unless necessary."

In writing to Michigan's 5,000 physicians and health officers and commenting upon this mother's letter—the child having died on November 20 after the physician delayed 9 days in giving antitoxin—Dr. Olin says:

"Even under the unfortunate circumstance in which antitoxin was not administered until the ninth day after the child was brought to the physician, its life might have been saved had a sufficient quantity of antitoxin been used. Five thousand units of antitoxin is not sufficient in an advanced case of diphtheria, and we are of the opinion that, if the facts are as stated in this letter, at least 20,000 units should have been used."

Card of Thanks.
Mr. and Mrs. John Liebeck and children wish by this means to thank their neighbors and friends for their many acts of kindness during the illness of their daughter and sister.

We wish in this way to express our sincere gratitude to the many friends who so kindly remembered us in our great sorrow. Mrs. Edith Constant and little daughter and Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Johnson.

Made Exhibits at Detroit.
Some Chelsea residents made exhibits at the Detroit poultry show and brought home with them some of the premiums in the various classes.

James Geddes had his White Holland Turkeys and his Bantams at the show and swept both classes. Robert Collins showed that he had staked the Single Comb White Leghorns, winning second cockerel and third old hen against the most severe competition in the show.

Chas. Stephenson had a display of rabbits and was a successful competitor.

The annual show of the Washtenaw County Poultry Association will be held in Ann Arbor, January 9 to 14.

Mrs. M. M. Campbell.
Miss Anna Maria Heeselschwerdt was born in Germany on July 18, 1845, and died at her home on Harrison street, Chelsea, Wednesday, December 14, 1921.

Her parents came to this country when she was nine years of age and settled in Sylvan, and she had been a resident of this vicinity since her parents located here. She was united in marriage with M. M. Campbell on November 25, 1865. Mr. Campbell died in April, 1901.

She is survived by two sons, William and Herman Campbell, one sister, Mrs. D. N. Rogers and one brother, Samuel Heeselschwerdt, all residents of Chelsea.

The funeral will be held at 2 o'clock Saturday afternoon from the home. Rev. E. A. Carnes conducting the services. Burial at Maple Grove cemetery, Sylvan Center.

Do Christmas Shopping Early.
Chelsea store windows have taken on their holiday dressing, reminding us that Christmas is only ten days away. Christmas shopping has already begun and the early shopper is getting the best of the assortment, which should remind you that it is good judgment to begin early. Don't wait until the last minute and take what is left, but start right in now, pick out your Christmas gifts and you will have the satisfaction of knowing that you're all set and don't have to worry. Again, the clerks are good natured now and can give you more time and better suggestions on what to buy. If you wait until the Christmas rush is on and everybody is tired out you won't have half as much fun in buying that present. Get busy and play Santa Claus early.

Is Your Child Well Nourished?
Malnutrition in childhood is one of the most serious causes of physical unfitness in later life. If the child is undernourished he cannot withstand childhood's infectious diseases. The well nourished child may not escape the disease, but he can at least escape disastrous after effects.

Many mothers fail to realize that their children are really ill, as a result of poor nutrition. They think the child is nervous, irritable, and obviously "underweight." They often describe his condition as run down, no appetite, frail, delicate, thin, skiny, sensitive, easily upset, growing too fast, or merely "not himself."

When these conditions exist, a child's condition is really serious. The delicate child must be made robust. Malnutrition makes the child susceptible to tuberculosis and retards his mental development.

If your child does not eat well, sleep well, study well, and feel well, it is time to make a serious study of his diet. Improper nutrition may be to blame.

Milk, as a regular part of a child's diet, insures proper nourishment. By Home Economics Dept., Michigan Agricultural College.

SUFFERED ALL A WOMAN COULD

Meyer Finally Found Relief and Health in Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Orange, Cal.—"I always feel very grateful to you, as some twenty years ago three doctors said I had to have a serious operation. I had a tumor, and ulcers which would gather and break. I had displacement so badly that I could hardly get down at times, and it seemed as if I suffered everything that a woman could suffer. Then some one advised me to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and I took it until I was cured and saved from the operation. I have told women of your wonderful medicine times without number, and I am willing that you should use these facts and my name if you like. I also used your Compound during the Change, and I can do all my own work but the heavy part, and can walk miles every day as I help my husband in the office."

Mrs. J. H. Meyer, 412 South Orange St., Orange, California.

It is quite true that such troubles as Mrs. Meyer had may reach a stage where an operation is the only resource. On the other hand, a great many women have been restored to health by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

EMBROIDERY ON SUITS; HATS FOR LITTLE FOLKS

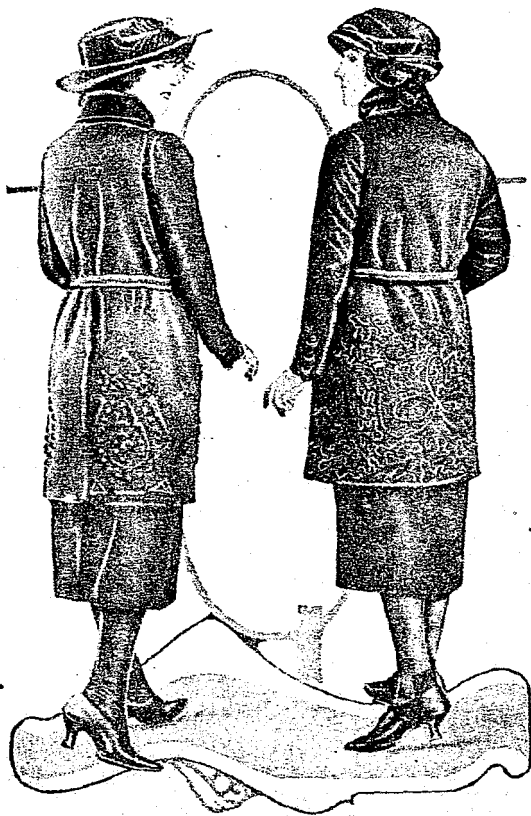

MADAM FASHION is growing broad-minded. She is making concessions in regard to the heretofore strictly tailored suit, permitting, yes, actually recommending, embroidery and interesting handwork on cloth.

In much of this modish embroidery done on heavy woven weaves in self-color, chenille, angora and yarn are used as frequently as silk floss.

For example, a caramel-colored cloth suit has big patches of zephyr em-er's hat upon her baby head with all the graces and satisfaction of a grown-up lady.

In specialized children's shops and departments great care is exercised in selecting designers who have the faculty of understanding juvenile requirements. Suitable headwear is always an important subject and there is discrimination to be observed between dress-up and school hats. For instance, there is a fine distinction between the ordinary yarn crochet tam brodery, conventional design, in perfectly matched color to the garment. Interwoven are a jillion number of dull gold threads. Black chenille embroidery on black cloth is immensely effective.

Of extreme advance mode are the new rayon suits, using angora and yarn handwork in the same heather and mixture shades as the cloth.

Two interesting suits, with ornamentation of handwork, were selected for the above illustration. The one shows an interlacing of crochet silk nail-heads in connection with solid floss embroidery. Chain-stitching features or cup for school wear and the exquisite silk chenille crocheted trim hat, such as is shown below. Choice models are also crocheted of chenille and the hand-crocheted viscose straw hat is promised for spring. Notice also the handsome angora wool crocheted hat, above. It is done in eart and hound red.

Here is a new item for broad ribbon streamers, such as you see on the elegant roll-brim heaver above. Interwoven is a cluster of cherries. Rare Greenway flosses, or colorful posies are now being hand painted on the wide ribbon ends.

the other suit. By the way, there is no town of embroidery so important just now as the simple chain-stitch. The design in our illustration also introduces an applied band or cord in the like pattern.

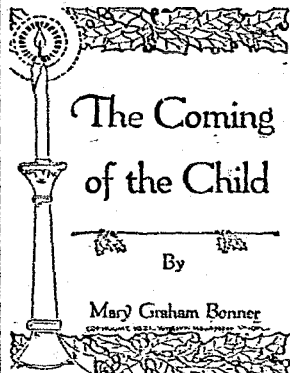

The love for pretty millinery is not confined to mother and big sister, no indeed! With wee daughter left in the room where mother's best hat is within tempting reach and where an inviting interior is within easy access, what happens? As charming a tableau as one would wish to see, of a little girl, courtesying to her own smiling reflection, promoting here and there as she poses moth-

The quaint black velvet bonnet shown above features a rose-pink silk shirred facing.

Older girls are wearing all-the-hats, squirrel being preferred because of its youthful appearance. The crown shapes are popular and the crown may be of black velvet, as is illustrated in this group, or of any desired shade to harmonize with the coat.

But one evening she came to him. "Gregory," she said, "I have so much to tell you. Let me begin from the beginning. I've been going to tell you this so many times."

"When I married you I lied to you. Now, don't interrupt me, dear. Yes, I lied about my age. I loved you. I was afraid I told you that perhaps I was too old to have children that you wouldn't marry me—that I would

The Coming of the Child

By

Mary Graham Bonner

"AND," Gregory Morse added, "as I've always said, I think people should be honest with each other before marriage. I don't approve of divorce—curious thing to be speaking of on the very evening I'm asking you to marry me, but it has a bearing on the subject. No," he emphasized, "I don't approve of divorce. Of course there are very extenuating circumstances at times. But I think most of them could be avoided if people talked openly and candidly before they were married."

He told her then that he cared for children, that they would mean a great deal to him.

She felt herself growing more and more tense. The whole of her ached for him. Yes, she had waited all her life for him, never mistaking in any of the others, the substitute for the real.

"I feel as you do," she said softly. "I love children!"

And she spoke the truth. Not yet a truth that was only half a truth. They were married, in the little village church on Christmas Eve and when later the carols pealed forth they felt as though even the carols were for their happiness alone!

They had been married several years. Closer and closer had they grown together. How glad she was she had waited until she was sure she loved. She had had so many proposals, and there were girls who had had so few. She had often thought of the girl to whom the simplest of pleasures had come as a complete and magnificent joy. This girl had had no attentions, her life had been almost aimless. At last came a man into her life, very slowly, very unemotionally, but each slow step along the way was one which thrilled her and which mounted up to huge and great proportions. It had to be a great deal to rouse Marjorie but Gregory had roused her fully.

She had always kept her fresh charm and her appeal though she had left youth behind. Her skin was smooth, her color good, her eyes dark and lustrous and her hair had no traces of gray.

But during this time no children had come to them. Gregory now didn't seem to care whether they came or not. He was quite content with her.

"People change their ideas after they marry if they really love the woman they marry," he used to tell her. "Before they have theories. Now if children came, all well and good. But I couldn't be any happier than I am now."

She knew he spoke the truth. She knew it. He was even jealous of her eagerness for children. Was this what it meant to marry, he some times asked himself. Did people forget about each other and sink their hopes and aspirations and ambitions and emotions and dreams into the coming of another generation when they had sworn and believed before God and man that they would only love each other. Did they love each other so little? Did they care only for the sake of the family? It couldn't be.

That was too cold a belief. Another year passed and they began growing apart. Marjorie had become restless, unhappy. Was it because of children? Gregory asked himself. Couldn't she have been happy with him? Was his marriage to be a disillusion?

One evening she came to him. "Gregory," she said, "I have so much to tell you. Let me begin from the beginning. I've been going to tell you this so many times."

"When I married you I lied to you. Now, don't interrupt me, dear. Yes, I lied about my age. I loved you. I was afraid I told you that perhaps I was too old to have children that you wouldn't marry me—that I would lose you. And I couldn't love you. Don't you see, it was because I loved you so that I lied to you?" she cried. "I loved you so," she repeated. "My darling, I'm so relieved," he said. "All I care about is that you love me."

"I know that," she told him. "But the heritage of my life has been punishing me. Even though I know you don't think now that children make any difference I know I cheated you, whom of all others I cared most for."

"Marjorie, Marjorie, dear," he caressed her, "I am so relieved that I know now what has been worrying you. I was afraid you had ceased to love me."

"It was never that. It was never that," she said. "You see, Marjorie," he went on, "if at first you had told me you were to have a child I would have been delighted—it would have seemed the conventional idea of the completion of married life which I had pictured in my mind. Afterward I realized that the most important of all was that I had you and loved you and that you loved me."

"Lately I've become very jealous of your desire for children because I thought I didn't count so much. How dreadfully we've groped in the dark even though we have been so close together."

She was happy then as she hadn't been before, happy in the love that he now gave her, the love for which she had braved a life.

And even as he held her close she thought of it—and life—so full of perplexing moral issues. Had she not lied to him would she have fulfilled their own happy destinies? Would they have not rather gone their separate ways, yet two more unhappy mortals whose lives were but a makeshift?

"And it's to be an Anniversary Child."

Yet she had lied and in that lie she had cheated him, the one whom of all others she had cared most for. She had cheated most completely. Perhaps he didn't care for children now. Perhaps he would never think of them again. Perhaps, oh perhaps a hundred conjectures!

But clearly standing above the others were these two fates—she had lied to win him and because of that lie she had cheated and played false to the one she loved.

A lie is a vigorous parent, imbuing its offspring with its ever powerful blood of doubt and worry. Always she felt, she would think from time to time that she had cheated him, and that in the deep recesses of her mind he would feel her love had been a very frail and weak thing.

Yet again and again reverted to her mind the knowledge that had it not been for that lie when she had spoken it Gregory and she would never have been happy.

And these doubts and worried thoughts were the heritage of a lie such as hers had been.

It seemed like a miracle. She had given up all hope. Still at times the lie she had told in the first place or all haunted her, because she felt she had cheated Gregory. He never referred to it. He seemed radiantly happy. But she had worried.

And then some time after she had told him, she knew. She was glad she had told him. She was glad that he knew her weakness and faults and all. Her happiness over the coming child was so much greater because she had told him.

"And it's to be an anniversary child!" The Christmas cards were peeping forth when a small boy opened his eyes upon the world so new to him.

"I'm sorry it's not a girl so we can call her Marjorie," Gregory smiled. "I'm delighted it's a boy and that we can name him Gregory," Marjorie whispered.

"Merry Christmas," Gregory said, a little later. The clock just struck twelve.

"Merry Christmas," Marjorie answered.

And the small boy gave a shrill little cry.

"That's his way of saying 'Merry Christmas,'" Marjorie added.

"I'm delighted to have it explained to me," her husband chuckled.

Freshening Rolls.

Frequently muffins, gems, cornbread, branbread etc., are a part of the evening dinner and seldom are all eaten during the evening meal, some being left over. The question comes to the conscientious housewife, "How can I serve them again in their original freshness?" It can easily be done. Grease a piece of brown paper, using plenty of grease. Wrap in it the muffins, bread, etc. Place in hot oven for ten or fifteen minutes, unwrap, serve, and, if you did not know, you would think they were just baked.

WESTERN CANADA Land of Prosperity

Offers to home seekers or "venturers" that cannot be secured elsewhere. The thousands of farmers from the United States who have accepted Canada's generous offer to settle on FREE homesteads or buy farms land in her provinces have been well repaid by bountiful crops. There is still available on easy terms

Fertile Land at $15 to $30 an Acre

—land similar to that which through many years has yielded from 20 to 45 bushels of wheat to the acre—also, hay and first class in great abundance, while raising horses, cattle, sheep and hogs is equally profitable. Hundreds of farmers in western Canada have raised crops in a single season worth more than the whole cost of their land. With such success comes prosperity, independence, good homes and all the comforts and conveniences which make life worth living.

CALL FOR MORE CHICKENS NOT MOVED BY LOVE ALONE

Poultry Supply Seemingly Has Not Kept Pace With Human Population in This Country.

City folks who move to the country—and most of them want to, but won't admit it—always want to keep chickens. It seems easy, it promises to be profitable, and anyhow there is something fascinating in the idea, to women as to men.

Under the circumstances, then, the United States chicken census of last year, report of which is just available, possesses sentiment as well as business interest.

There were 339,337,335 chickens on farms in the United States on January 1, 1920, as against 280,449,927, chickens three months old or more April 15, 1919. Inasmuch as many chickens are slaughtered and marketed each year between January 1 and April 15, comparison is difficult. The actual increase, if there was any, probably corresponds with that in egg production—3.2 per cent. In actuality the growth of fowl population does not keep pace with that of human beings. No wonder eggs and fried chicken come high.

Iowa leads with 27,746,510, with Illinois, Missouri, Ohio and Texas not far behind.—Beaumont Journal.

Great Botanist Had Another and Deeper Reason for His Selfish Act of Unselfishness.

The wife of the great botanist leaned at him across the supper table. "But these," she exclaimed, pointing to the dish of mushrooms that had been set before her, "are not all for me, Aristotle, are they?"

"Yes, Mabel," he replied. "I gathered them especially for you with my own hands."

She looked upon him gratefully. What a dear, unselfish husband he was! In five minutes she had demolished the lot.

At breakfast the next morning he greeted her anxiously. "Sleep all right?" he inquired.

"Splendid," she replied. "Not a bit of ailment—no pains?" he pressed.

"Why, of course not, Aristotle," she rejoined.

"Hurrah!" he then exclaimed. "I have discovered another species of mushroom that isn't poisonous!"

Pittsburgh Chronicle-Telegraph.

Not Vain.
"How long have you been indisposed, my poor fellow?" asked a kind-hearted visitor at a local hospital of a leg amputee who was strapped on to bed with an injured leg.

"This ain't no case 'tall, miss," answered the patient in tones of disgust. "Dis ain't merely the careless manner in which I got my leg hurt, it's the way they want to amputate it."

What Kind of a Day Do You Wish Yourself?

Suppose you could make a wish at the breakfast table and finally have the wish come true. Would you say,

"I want this to be a good day," or—"I am willing for this day to drag along?"

If you keep on wishing your days with the food you eat, finally the wish is likely to come true.

Grape-Nuts helps your wish for a good day. Nothing miraculous; just the natural result from right food with the right taste.

There is a charm of flavor and crispness in Grape-Nuts that is like the smile of a good friend at the breakfast table—

And Grape-Nuts, with cream or milk (fresh or tinned), is fully nourishing—feeding the tissues and glands, the bone and blood with just those elements which Nature re-creates—building strength without any "heaviness."

Grape-Nuts is the perfected goodness of wheat and malted barley, scientifically developed—ready to eat from the package. A Grape-Nuts breakfast or lunch is a practical wish for good luck.

TOO STARVED TO BE HUNGRY?

There Comes a Final Stage in the Horror, When Taste for Food is Lacking.

I cannot quite bring myself to tell tales of famine horrors—the monkey-faced, pop-eyed babies tugging hungrily at the cold breasts of dead mothers lying on the frozen ground; the piteous old women and the stoical men; the incredibly deformed, starving wretches whom I picked up outside of the city of Tsingkiangpu; the boy on the wall of Chinkiang who was carrying home a starved cat for food, and in response to a query, tried so hard to sell it to me as a delicate morsel, and such general concomitants as the incidence of smallpox plague with the famine. One of the unexpected aspects of work in the famine camps came when I was accompanying Mrs. Paxton of Chinkiang as she made rounds to distribute medicine to the sick among the hungry. As a matter of fact, relatively few persons ever die in a famine directly from actual hunger, but rather from diseases induced by malnutrition. Obligingly, Mrs. Paxton freely translated for me as we went along, and we found, in pathetic paradox, that the commonest request of these starving creatures was for medicine to give them an appetite! Even when they succeeded in getting a bowl of food from the relief station, run the repeated tale, they could not eat it, having no taste for food. To us this meant, obviously, that the sufferers had reached the final stages, where craving for food had passed away. They were not hungry, because they were starving!—William T. Ellis in the Outlook.

THAT DULL ACHING
Don't worry and complain about a bad back. Get rid of it! For weak kidneys, lame and aching backs, your neighbors recommend Doan's Kidney Pills. Ask your neighbor. Read this statement:
Mrs. W. D. Arnold, E. Middle St., Chelsea, says: "I am pleased to recommend Doan's Kidney Pills from the great benefit I received from their use. I suffered greatly from dull, nagging backaches and a distressing pain through my kidneys. My kidneys gave me a great deal of trouble. I used Doan's Kidney Pills from Fenn's Drug Store and they helped me wonderfully. They banished the backaches and pains and corrected the action of my kidneys. I am ever so much better in every way since I used Doan's." The above statement was given July 7, 1909 and on April 27, 1920, Mrs. Arnold added: "I have just the same good opinion of Doan's Kidney Pills as when I recommended them in 1909. They cured me and it has lasted. I am always telling my friends about the merits of this remedy." Price 60c, at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Kidney Pills—the same that Mrs. Arnold had. Foster-Milburn Co., Mfrs., Buffalo, N. Y.

BREVITIES

Dexter—Louis Egeler had the fingers of his left hand badly cut with a buzz-saw while sawing wood for Gus Eck on what is known as the Chas. Warner farm, Tuesday afternoon.—Leader.

Grass Lake—A. W. Davis, who so narrowly escaped death at the Lake street Michigan Central crossing seems to have fortunately escaped with cuts and bruises which are rapidly yielding to treatment. Mr. Davis was certainly fortunate.—News.

Pineknay—Miss K. Lucille McCluskey has completed her research work and taken her final examinations for a Doctor's degree in chemistry, at the University of Chicago. She was given a rating of "Magna cum laude" which represents the highest honors given by the University of Chicago.—Dispatch.

Ann Arbor—John Briscoe, sophomore engineering student from Pontiac, was found Monday to be suffering from a mild case of small-pox. All the men in the house since he has been ill are being vaccinated while Briscoe has been taken to the contagious disease hospital. His is the only case of the kind in Chicago.

Brighton—The congregation of St. George's Lutheran church has voted to move its place of worship from the landmark church in Genoa to the village of Brighton. Members have already subscribed $7,000 for the work. A committee, as follows: Herman Risch, Oscar Schoenhals, Con Weber, is at work on the details.—Argus.

Pineknay—John Hassenchall called up Monday and told Pineknay sportsmen that a flock of wild geese were trespassing on his corn crop on the James Harris farm. R. Day Bird and Ezra Plummer went out and shot two of the flock. Local hunters say they are the first wild geese killed in this vicinity in twenty years.—Dispatch.

Manchester—It surely is too bad not to have the Manchester hotel opened for the accommodation of the traveling public. The property has long been in the hands of real estate men and dealers and it is closed about half the time, and it will probably continue to be so until the Welfare Association takes an interest in the property for the good of the village.—Enterprise.

Manchester—Gen. Frank Baldwin is now in Washington and is expected to stop here on his return home to Denver. As has been mentioned in the Enterprise, this famous veteran of many conflicts with the Indians was born on the farm now owned by Hassen Leach, west of Iron Creek church, and he would be pleased to have the spot marked, if it is possible. Perhaps arrangements can be made with the owner to have it done.—Enterprise.

Brooklyn—Just at this time there is no definite announcement as to cash payment for popcorn from the International company, but officials of that company are at work on it following recent meetings of the entire board of directors at Detroit. Attorney Will Cook representing the growers is in touch with the situation and a telephone message from him on Wednesday morning said that he was encouraged to believe that arrangements would soon be announced.—Exponent.

Stockbridge—We know some people who are ambitious but who will not work. That may sound contradictory, but it's not. They are ambitious to have certain honors. They are not willing to work for those honors. Occasionally by rather sawed planning they manage to acquire some place in the sun, only to find that its light makes evident their selfishness. People are not long in getting an accurate line on these self-centered drones. In the end the prominence they craved has only served to make more glaring their shortcomings. Lasting honor comes to him who achieves and all achievements are the result of conscientious effort.—Brief-Sun.

Jackson—Jackson prison population has increased about 400 since the legislature made an appropriation for the institution on the basis of 1,200 inmates. The prison has a family of around 1,600, with a prospect that it will go to 2,000 within a short time if the present rate of increase should be maintained. The emergency act prohibits the board from making further appropriations for an item that is covered in an institutional appropriation bill. Attorney General Wiley has suggested that the board permit the prison to overdraw its appropriation, rather than take money from an emergency fund contrary to law.—News.

Brooklyn—The Community Chautauqua Association of Greenville, Ind., has started suit in circuit court to collect the price of a three day chautauqua from 22 Brooklyn citizens who signed for the coming of the chautauqua this year. The dates were not satisfactory and the association was notified in March. No change was made by the association and when the advertising matter was sent it was refused and the association again notified. The dates picked out by the association were in July including one Sunday and the 4th, and the talent was sent to Brooklyn. The talent did not show here but spent the time recreating. The local manager sent by the association became disgusted with the head office management of the chautauqua and quit the employ of the association while here. The association now seeks to collect on its contract for dates that were not accepted.—Exponent.

TWO feet deep of snow. Why, it's a regular Christmas gift for me!" observed Rolfe Darlon hopefully, as he awoke from a night of profound slumber and glanced out through the street window of the chilly bleak lodging house where he was one of wanderers who had no other home.

As he descended to the well-heated office room of the institution he paid little attention to the lounging crowd of idle and battered men. He paused only to address an old man with a pair of crutches by his side. He slapped him in a friendly, familiar way on the shoulder.

"If I can only get a snow shovel," he observed, "I will see to it that your meals and lodging are well provided for over Christmas."

"Bless you, my friend!" murmured the other gratefully. "You have been very kind to me," and Darlon left him with a genial good-by and started forth for a day of hard, earnest work.

Darlon was passing some cottages adjoining one another when the door of the nearest one was opened and a pleasant faced lady beckoned to him.

"You look as if you were seeking work," she said. "Would you clean off this sidewalk and a path to the coal shed for half a dollar?"

By the end of an hour he had his task completed.

"You must come in and share our lunch, if you will," invited the young lady. Chancing to glance through the window he noticed in the next yard a young girl battling with the heavy snow with a frail broom.

"She doesn't make much progress," he observed to his hostess. "If you will lend me your shovel I will soon clear a path around the house for her."

He lifted his cap politely, explaining his purpose. Alice Brill, young, frail, grateful, bestowed a winning smile upon the friend in need. She announced frankly that they could not afford to pay for the service offered.

"You needn't worry about that," he declared lightly. "It will make me feel the better for doing a little act of kindness, so near to Christmas."

Darlon regarded Alice Brill with more than ordinary interest. He had heard the girl and her father in the next house discussing their neighbor. It seems that the father of Alice had sold some store property in the town for over four thousand dollars, representing about all he had in the world.

He had hidden it in his bedroom, some one forced open the window and Brill awoke next morning to find his little fortune gone.

Darlon walked sturdily at sidewalk and garden paths and had pretty nearly completed his task when Alice came out on the rear step.

"I wonder if it would be too much to ask you to get the ladder and climb up to the kitchen roof and push off the massed snow there?"

Darlon was only too glad to grant the request. He was pushing the last shovel of snow over the eave troughs when he startled Alice, who had come out again to watch the progress of his work, by springing free of the roof, waving a dark object in his hand.

"I found it lodged in the gutter spout, where it must have fallen from the hand of the thief," he announced breathlessly. "It is a pocketbook filled with money."

Just that it was, and Rolfe Darlon, a welcome spectator to the wild delight of the Brills, lingered long in the house, blessed by the gratitude of Mr. Brill and his beautiful daughter. What more natural than that they should invite this cherished guest to Christmas dinner, for a royal one they were sure of now, but Darlon surprised them and congratulated himself in appearing neat, trim and in a new suit, for at the lodging house that evening he found an unexpected letter from his estranged uncle containing a liberal remittance and asking him to return to the home roof and forget that they had ever quarreled.

Merry Christmas, indeed it was for that little group, and when Rolfe Darlon bade Alice Brill good night after a day of rare enjoyment and happiness, he wondered if the ardent hope of his soul might become a reality before another yuletide celebration in his utopia of a Christmas home.

I'll bet Papa would like a new pair of house slippers too because his old ones are about worn out. Well Good-bye Santa, I will be a good boy.

A Christmas Movie

By ALDEN CHAPMAN

Copyright, 1921, Western Newspaper Union.

THE sweet voiced Christmas chimes were echoing out a chorus melodious and reverential and Mabel Durand sat in the parlor of her cozy little flat absorbed in reveries that the season naturally brought to her.

Her face was not a happy one, for her memories were freighted with a sadness that had shadowed her life for nearly ten years.

She had wedded Rodney Durand, a close friend of her brother, now dead, and both had been employed in the prosperous mercantile house of her father. He, too, had now passed away and Mabel was alone in the world, except for her little daughter, Erna, only ten years old. The little one came tripping joyously into the room at that moment.

"Oh, mamma," she cried, "what do you think? Our neighbor in the next flat, Mrs. Brynton, wants us both to be ready in an hour to go with her to the movies."

Mrs. Brynton had been a cheering element in the lonely life of Mabel Durand for over two months.

Mrs. Durand had more than once during their brief acquaintanceship conversed with the neighbor she seemed to especially like about her past history. It was a tragic one.

Two years after her marriage to Rodney Durand her husband had been arrested and sentenced to prison for embezzlement from her father.

"I loved Rodney and I always shall," insisted Mabel. "I must be some mistake in the charge they have brought against him."

"There is none," replied her father sternly. "He has disgraced us. He stole from me boldly."

Still Mabel hoped and waited and at the end of two years when Rodney was released from prison she bore silently the reproach of never hearing a word from him.

So Mabel had talked of her broken life and now it was Christmas time again and the occasion brought a sad remembrance of those days in the happy past when she and little Erna had known a tender-hearted husband and a gentle indulgent father.

Mrs. Brynton, chatted casually all the way to the theater and told her she had seen the picture play twice and was greatly impressed by it.

"It is the story of the life of a wronged, misjudged man," she said, "and I know it will interest you."

The screen outlined the course of business in a modern counting room. Then as there entered a new figure, little Erna pressed close to the side of her mother and exclaimed:

"Oh, mamma, that actor looks just like the picture you have of dear, absent papa."

Mrs. Durand gasped and tottered in plain view Rodney Destroyed it in her seat. The gentle, soothing hand of Mrs. Brynton steadied and quieted her.

"Do not be startled or excited, dear friend," she whispered. "I had a purpose in bringing you here, as you will soon know, perhaps gratefully. The principal of this movie is Rodney Durand, your husband and my brother. For his sake I have got acquainted with you; for both your sakes I have brought about this climax."

The story of the embezzlement crime was faithfully depicted and it showed another as the real criminal—her own brother. Her husband had taken his blame, bearing the penalty and reproach to save her brother from disgrace.

At a critical moment her brother had sent a full confession to Rodney, taking the blame for the crime. In plain view Rodney, in the action of the piece, destroyed it.

"Do you comprehend now?" questioned Mrs. Brynton softly.

"Oh, how we have wronged my poor, dear Rodney," sobbed Mabel. "Can you forgive him? Will he ever forgive me? Oh, that I could find him."

"You shall," and when they reached home, Mrs. Brynton left her friend for a few moments to reappear with her brother.

Higher swung the glad some chime bells, merrily echoed the happy sweet voices, and beside the little Christmas tree that had been trimmed for Erna, those three earnest souls joined in the joyous knowledge that their paths would lead together from the threshold of that Christmas eve into broad sunny pastures of love and happiness.

A man who has done much to speed up the world died in Ireland and the papers gave him a seven line notice. He was John Dunlop, inventor of the pneumatic tire in 1888. The pneumatic tire made bicycling popular, made the automobile possible and helped the airplane along. Because of his invention most of the world now rolls on rubber.

Poor Mail Delivery. Some of the Standard subscribers who get their mail through the Gregory postoffice complain that they do not receive their paper until Saturday and in many instances until Monday. "Mounties" in With Dominion Police. Under an act of parliament the Royal Northwest mounted police of Canada was merged with the Dominion police May 1, 1920, with jurisdiction throughout Canada, and known as the Royal Canadian mounted police.

The Dominion police was a small body of men, the uniformed members of which were employed largely in guarding the parliament buildings, the mint and other government structures in Ottawa. To it was attached a number of highly trained experts, skilled in dealing with international criminals and their schemes, and having knowledge of the finger print system. These are now all members of the Royal Canadian mounted police, under the command of Col. A. Bowen Perry.

The force is now recruited to its prewar average of 1,200. Canadian government officials hope soon to be able to decrease it far beyond that number, but the dominion's war debt has to date made that impossible.

Facts Concerning Eels. Whence the eel comes and whither it goes is the text for an erudite piece of which American Consul Dennis at London claims authorship in a cablegram to Secretary Hoover.

Quaint belief that the eels were miraculously born of horsehairs dropped into ponds from horses' tails is entirely dispelled by Mr. Dennis, who comments upon research work by Doctor Smith, Danish scientist.

The eel's life history, an unfathomable mystery twenty years ago, thus for the first time is made a wide open book, and Mr. Dennis warrants these facts:

The eel lives up to eight years in fresh waters. Adult eels, living their life span, go down to tide-water, where they spawn and die. Newly hatched eels live in a cold and gloomy depth of 500 fathoms. They reappear in late winter.

Bear Island's History. Midway between Norway and Spitzbergen, Bear Island thrusts its head, known as Mount Misery, above the cold waters. The whole island, save for moss and lichens, is almost destitute of vegetation. Long ago it was joined with the Spitzbergen archipelago; the continental shelf upon which the island sits shows a drowned valley deepening to 200 fathoms; this marks the course of an ancient river system that must have drained an area larger than the present basin of the Volga.—Scientific American.

NEWS REVIEW OF CURRENT EVENTS

Treaty Between Great Britain and Ireland Is Signed and Peace Is in Sight.

IRISH FREE STATE CREATED

Full Independence Within Empire Is Granted—Ulster Given Its Choice — Quadruple Understanding on Pacific Is Announced in Plenary Session of the Conference.

By EDWARD W. PICKARD

PEACE and unity between Great Britain and Ireland are in sight, after many a long year of bitter enmity and intermittent fighting. Just as the outlook seemed darkest, Lloyd George and the Sinn Féin delegates arrived at an agreement that solved the tangled problem and signed a treaty which creates the Irish Free State as a sister nation of the British empire like Canada, Australia, New Zealand and South Africa. Its constitution is to be based on that of Canada, and the representative of the crown in Ireland is to be chosen in the same way as the Canadian viceroy.

By clever juggling of words and phrases the peace delegates evolved an oath of allegiance that the Irish were willing to accept. It must be taken by every member of the Irish parliament and is as follows:

"I do solemnly swear true faith and allegiance to the constitution of the Irish Free State as by law established and that I will be faithful to his majesty King George V. and his heirs and successors by law, in virtue of the common citizenship of Ireland with Great Britain and her adherence to and membership of the group of nations forming the British commonwealth of nations."

Ireland is to have her own army and coast defenses and to control her own finances. She admits liability for a share of the British debt, and Britain retains the right to control certain ports.

As for Ulster, while speedily informed of the treaty, she is not even asked to consent to it. The northern counties are to be included in the Irish Free State, with local autonomy, but have a month to decide whether they prefer their present status, and during that time the powers of the parliament and government of the Irish Free State shall not be exercisable as respects northern Ireland. If Ulster elects to retain her present status, her boundary lines are to be fixed by a commission of three.

At this writing Ulster has not acted formally concerning the treaty, but it is predicted it will approve it. All Great Britain, except a very few of the most rabid Unionists, are enthusiastically for the pact and the southern Irish themselves seem fairly well satisfied and decidedly relieved. They should be happy, for they gain practically everything they have asked except actual separation from the British empire. The treaty is yet to be accepted formally by the Irish parliament and the Dail Eireann and by the British parliament, which has been summoned to special session. "President" de Valera declares himself against the agreement, but the real rulers of Sinn Féin are Arthur Griffith and Michael Collins, both of whom signed the pact gladly. Mr. Griffith said:

"These proposals give Ireland the control of her own destinies and place our future in our own hands. They enable us to stand on our own feet and to develop our own civilization and national distinctiveness. They constitute a regaining of Irish liberty after a struggle of centuries."

THE United States, Great Britain, Japan and France have reached an agreement for the stabilization of peace in the Pacific, and this first definite accomplishment of the conference in Washington was announced at a plenary session on Saturday. The plan already had received the indorsements of the governments in London, Tokio and Paris and the approval of the American administration, and it is assumed that it will be ratified by congress when submitted to it, since it is not drawn in the form of an alliance or entente which would be distasteful to a large element in the senate.

By this agreement the four powers recognize the status quo of the island possessions of each in the Pacific and undertake to settle by mediation or arbitration any disputes that may arise between two or more of the powers concerning those possessions and that are not settled by conference of the four powers.

Upon the ratification of the pact by the powers the Anglo-Japanese alliance is to be terminated, which will be pleasing not only to the United States but also to the British dominions. The abrogation of that alliance will make it safe for America to reduce its navy and will permit close co-operation between this country and Britain in handling questions pertaining to the Pacific.

Since the other powers are pledged, by the status quo agreement, to refrain from aggression against the Philippines the islands are virtually neutralized and the United States is relieved of the necessity of strengthening its defenses there and in Guam. The agreement also operates to record the recognition by America of the Japanese mandate over the former German islands that lie north of the equator, and it was understood that the United States and Japan had reached, outside the conference, a settlement of their disputes over communication and commercial rights, especially those pertaining to the island of Yap.

With this quadrilateral agreement reached, it is believed the other main problems before the conference will be speedily solved. The acceptance of the Hughes naval reduction plan is at hand, including the 5-5-3 ratio, for even Japan will not hold out against it now. The matter of the strength of the French and Italian navies will be settled at a future conference, as will be some of the problems relating to China. However, before adjourning, the conference will do all it can with the Chinese questions, and the Chinese, when the situation is fully understood by them, probably will have to be satisfied with this.

Japanese and Chinese delegates are not settling along so well as was hoped in their discussion of the evacuation of Shantung, and the latter may yet insist that the question be placed before the conference without preliminary settlement. The Chinese feel that they are getting the worst of things in the conference, and one or two important members of their delegation have resigned.

The conference committee on Far East questions has pledged that the nine powers it represents will respect the neutrality of China in future wars, and has agreed on a wireless convention by which the various government radio stations in legation compounds shall be used only for government messages, except when ordinary means of telegraphic communication are interrupted.

PRESIDENT HARDING gave voice to his optimism concerning the conference in two public addresses last Wednesday. In conveying the annual meeting of the Red Cross he said:

"I hope with all my heart that much of the big work which has been years in the past will never be asked of you again. It will be a wonderful thing for me and for you to have lived in a period when we have brought the conscience of mankind into an understanding where we shall have done something tangible to prevent calling upon you again for war service. And I like to say it to you, because I know whereof I speak. We are going to succeed beyond our fondest hopes; it is getting to be so pleasing to be able to say that things never done before we can do now."

To a delegation representing various farm organizations the President said:

"This conference will demonstrate the wisdom of internationally coming together—nations facing each other and settling problems without resort to arms."

JAPAN YIELDS U. S. YAP CABLE RIGHTS

KEEP MANDATE BUT FORTIFICATION OF ISLAND FORBIDDEN BY AGREEMENT.

JAPAN WILL MAINTAIN ORDER

Treaty Also Provides for Protection of American Property and Residents on Island.

Washington—Secretary of State Hughes announced Monday afternoon the conclusion of a treaty, with Japan by which the long controversy over the island of Yap has been brought to an end. The treaty removed the remaining bar to the signing of the Quadruple Pacific Union.

Briefly, the new American-Japanese treaty provides that the United States shall have equal rights with Japan and all other nations with regard to radio and cable communications to and from the island of Yap; that Americans need not have special licenses nor need they pay taxes for the operation of cables; that Japan will not exercise censorship.

The United States consents to the mandate of Japan over the island of Yap and other islands nearby which were awarded to Japan by the League of Nations. But these conditions are attached:

Slave traffic must be prohibited; traffic in arms and ammunition is to be controlled in accordance with regulations laid down in 1919 covering this subject in mandated territories; commerce or traffic in liquor is prohibited; natives must not be trained for more than normal police duties; missionaries shall have free access to and from the islands and religious freedom is granted, and no fortifications or bases of military character are to be erected.

Negotiations looking to a settlement of the Yap controversy were taken up by the Harding administration last March. The League of Nations had assumed the position that since the United States was not a member of the League, it was none of America's business what the League did in the way of mandates. Japan took the attitude that it was none of America's business what the League gave to Japan. But Secretary Hughes in identical notes to the League powers last April announced that inasmuch as the United States contributed to the defeat of Germany, America demanded the right to a voice in the distribution of the fruits of victory.

The announcement of Secretary Hughes was made as a part of the proceeding of the Far Eastern Conference, although the treaty affects only the United States and Japan.

Seattle, Wash.—Ten persons are known to have been killed, a number of others are injured and heavy property damage has been done by railroad accidents and landslides, due to the worst flood western Washington has experienced in years.

OUR IS MADE LEGION MAN

Distinguished Marshal Recipient of Ceremonial Badge From George Washington Post, No. 1.

Marshal Ferdinand Foch became a member of the American Legion the day he landed in America on his recent visit. He signed the application for membership immediately upon his arrival at Washington, D. C. The Marshal was met at the train by officials of George Washington Post No. 1 and escorted to the President's room in Union station. Here he was presented by Lieut. H. S. Fisk, U. S. N., commander of the post, with the American Legion ceremonial badge George Washington post No. 1 is the original American Legion post.

EX-SERVICE MEN RUN BUSESSES

Former Soldiers and Sailors Are Re-Employed by the Fifth Avenue Coach Company.

The Fifth avenue bus in New York is a national institution. It is as famous as Broadway, Fifth avenue, Brooklyn bridge and the Woolworth building. The busses which ply through one of the most congested thoroughfares in the world are manned largely by ex-service men. This fact was discovered recently when employees of the Fifth Avenue Coach company, operators of the busses, applied for a charter for an American Legion post.

"We have found the ex-soldier and ex-sailor to be excellent bus men," said John A. Ritchie, president of the coach company, in a recent interview. "The ex-service man may have been a little restless when he came out of service, but wasn't everybody a little restless after the war?" asks Mr. Ritchie.

Mr. Ritchie re-employed every man of his organization who had gone to war and in putting on new employees has given preference to ex-service men. His company recently started a "civility" campaign, the purpose of which was to bring about a more friendly relationship between the patrons and employees of the bus. The campaign has resulted in virtually eliminating complaints of passengers, and, according to Mr. Ritchie, proves that "there are two sides to nearly every complaint."

IS STRONG FOR AMERICANISM

St. Paul Newspaper Editor Lauds the First Task of the American Legion.

"Good American citizenship means making the most of ourselves and our opportunities as Americans, and helping our neighbors to do likewise," declares Harrison Fuller, the first department commander of the American Legion in Minnesota, who was selected by Legionnaires of that state to represent them on the recent "pilgrimage" to France and the battlefields.

"Americanism," continues Fuller, "as conceived by the American Legion, has for its first task the education of all elements of our population in the principles of American government and in the opportunities offered by our system to the humblest resident of our land."

Fuller is city editor of the St. Paul Dispatch and Pioneer Press. During his term as state commander, he organized 472 posts of the Legion in Minnesota.

RIFLES FOR LEGION POSTS

Arms and Ammunition for Use at Funerals Will Be Supplied by the Government.

American Legion posts wishing to stock up on obsolete rifles and blank ammunition for use in funeral ceremonies may obtain them from corps ordnance officers, United States army, under the provisions of an act of congress. No more than ten rifles and their equipment will be supplied to one post.

Legion state commanders must approve the application for the loan of rifles and the sale of blank ammunition. Upon receipt of the application bearing the endorsement of the state commander, the corps ordnance officer will supply a bond covering the penal value of the property. This bond, when properly executed, must be approved by the state commander and returned to the ordnance officer. Transportation must be paid by the post.

Corps ordnance officers are located as follows: First area, 90 Channey street, Boston, Mass.; second area, Governor's Island, N. ## Dad Start For a Boy.

The perpetrator of the numerous jobs of breaking into Saline business places and rifling the tills has become known, the culprit being a lad of about fifteen with more of a penchant for spending money than for earning it. First he tried to enter the Interurban waiting room, but did not succeed, and then had the nerve to try to break into Mr. Holt's room the same night, again being disappointed. A week later he succeeded in gaining entrance to the waiting room, stealing nearly ten dollars in small change from the tills of Mr. Uphaus and Mr. Holt. Getting away with this nicely the following week, taking advantage of the absence from the city of Mr. Parros, he entered his confectionery store and swiped what loose change Mr. Parros had left in the store. In the latter place the youth was obliged to force his way through three locked or bolted doors, evincing a persistence that would be commendable if devoted to proper pursuits. Just what will be done with this boy has not been determined.—Saline Observer.

Corn For Fuel.

Many people will remember hearing about corn being burned for fuel in Kansas a year ago. Secretary of Agriculture Wallace is authority for the statement that this winter is likely to see the same thing done on many western farms. At the present low price of corn in some sections of the west, it is actually a cheaper fuel than coal, taking into consideration the comparative heating value of the two. The only thing which would save large quantities of the cereal from being burned would be a decided advance in price.—Ex.

Watch Out For This Agent.

If a woman representing a Chicago book concern calls on you and requests you to accommodate her by receiving a set of books for neighbors to view, beware. A woman has been placing books on contract in Huron and Sanilac counties and The Herald permitted her to send a set here for showing. The agent gave instructions for the return of the set and the Chicago firm refuses to accept them from the express company and demands payment which has twice been refused.—Port Austin Herald.

A Big Lost Lake In Nevada.

During comparatively recent geologic time a great lake flooded a number of the valleys in northwestern Nevada. This lake has now almost completely disappeared, but geologists have named it, in its entirety, Lake Lahontan, in honor of Baron La Hontan, one of the early explorers of the headwaters of the Mississippi. At the time of its greatest expansion, according to the United States Geological Survey, Department of the Interior, this ancient lake covered 8,400 square miles. The deepest part of Lake Lahontan, which was 880 feet deep, was the site of the present Pyramid Lake, one of its remnants, so that its surface stood about 500 feet above the surface of Pyramid Lake. The ancient lake had no outlet except the one that led straight up, its waters being dissipated entirely by evaporation.

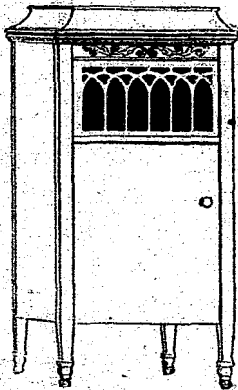

A large area a few miles north of Winnemucca, Nev., is covered with sand dunes that were formed since Lake Lahontan disappeared. These dunes are fully 75 feet thick, and their steeper slopes are on the east side, indicating that the whole vast field of sand is slowly traveling eastward. The march of this sand is irresistible, and its progress has necessitated a number of changes in the roads in the southern part of Little Humboldt Valley during recent years. In some places in this region the telegraph poles have been buried so deep that they have had to be spliced in order to keep the wires above the crests of the sand dunes. The sand is of a light creamy yellow color and forms beautiful fully curved ridges and waves that are covered with an artistic fretwork of wind ripples.

BE PREPARED

For three generations mothers have successfully used Foley's Honey and Tar as a safe remedy for the relief of cold, cough, croup and whooping cough. It is pure, wholesome, and children like it. Contains no opiates. Especially good for croup and whooping cough—the two terrors of childhood.

Mrs. W. H. Thornton, Little Rock, Ark., writes this: "My little boy had a severe attack of croup, but two doses of Foley's Honey and Tar relieved him, and he went back to sleep and was troubled no more. I would not be without it at any time."
