Mrs. Bertha C. Stephens.

Bertha C. Keyes Stephens died Saturday, February 4, at her late home on East Middle street, at the age of 62 years, 9 months, and 20 days.

Death was due to a stroke following an illness of only a few days. Mrs. Stephens was born in Lima township, in 1859, being the only child of Elijah and Betsey Carr Keyes and her childhood and youth was spent on the farm which she still held in her possession at the time of her death.

She attended the Chelsea high school, fitting herself as a teacher, and later teaching in the township of Lima, Freedom and Sylvan.

In 1884 she was united in marriage to Mr. Chauncey M. Stephens, of Lima, who passed away in 1917.

To this union there were born two children, Miss Blanche, who resided with her mother, and Mrs. Mildred Westminster, of Howell, both of whom survive their mother, together with four grandchildren. She was a member of the Methodist Episcopal church, President of the Helping Hand Circle of the ladies' organization, the Day View Reading Circle, and charter member of both the Pythian Sisters and Ladies of the Maccabees, having served as Finance Keeper of the latter organization for the past 10 years.

The funeral was held from the home at 2 o'clock Tuesday afternoon, Rev. H. R. Beatty conducting the services. Interment in Oak Grove cemetery.

Sweet Revenge.

In a hotly contested game, the St. Mary Regulars handed the Saline A. C. their first defeat on the Saline court Monday night, the score being 24 to 23.

The score was 16 to 14 in Saline's favor as the first half ended, but Chelsea's defense tightened in the last half, holding Saline to one field goal.

Jim Monroe was the star of the game, registering 6 field goals from different angles.

Brooks specialized in the foul shooting department, missing 2 out of a possible 6. In the last two minutes of play he decided the game by caging one from the foul line when the score stood 23 to 23.

Saline had previously beaten Chelsea at St. Mary hall by the same score. Arrangements are being made to play a third game on a neutral floor.

The Regulars will play the strong Apex Motors of Ypsilanti next Sunday, February 12, at 3 p. m. Kirk, star end on the I. of M. foot ball team is a member of this team, and a hard game is expected.

Pleasant Surprise Party.

The members of the Ladies' Aid Society of Zion church, Rogers Corners, met at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Fred G. Haist in Lima, last Sunday afternoon and gave them a very pleasant surprise party. There were about 75 in attendance. Rev. E. Thieme, in a few pleasant remarks, expressed their regrets at their removal from the home that they had occupied for so many years, and assured them that the church society and neighbors would greatly miss them.

Harold Eschelsbach and Elmarine Buss rendered several duets on a violin and piano. The leader of the Ladies' Aid Society served a "Dutch Luncheon."

The event was a very enjoyable one and on their departure for their homes, they wished Mr. and Mrs. Haist happiness in their new home in Ann Arbor to which they expect to move in a short time.

Reserves Busy This Week.

Fire Destroys Garage and Auto.

The garage and automobile at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Elmer E. Smith of Wilkinson street, was burned to the ground about 5:30 Wednesday afternoon.

W. P. Schenk discovered smoke coming from the building and an alarm was turned in to the fire department.

When Messrs. Smith and Schenk opened the door of the garage they found that the interior was a solid mass of flames. Mr. Smith had put the car in the garage about two hours before the fire was discovered.

The cause of the fire is unknown and it had gained so much headway that the fire department was unable to save the building or any of the contents. The property was insured, but not enough to cover the entire loss.

Monday afternoon Sheriff Pack, accompanied by one of his deputies, made a raid at the tenant house on the David Schneider farm in Lima.

The premises have been occupied for a few weeks past by a man named Hill, and his wife, who are said to have moved here from Ohio and the premises have been under suspicion for some time, which resulted in Monday's raid when two stills were captured. The officers also discovered in the woodshed adjoining the house, a horse in such a bad condition that he ordered it killed to relieve it of its suffering.

Hill was not at home when the officers arrived at the place. The family household goods were moved from the Schneider farm to Chelsea Wednesday.

Hill went to Ann Arbor Wednesday and surrendered himself to the sheriff. He is charged with violating the prohibition law. He was arraigned in justice court Wednesday, waived examination and was bound over to circuit court under $1,000 bail, where he was taken shortly afterward, pleaded guilty, and remanded to jail for sentence.

Lodges Start Contests.

Some 500 I. O. O. F. lodges in the state are watching with interest a degree-conferring contest which has just been started by the 13 I. O. O. F. lodges in Hillsdale county. The contest will cover a period of two years.

The plan is entirely new in degree work of any order, according to officials at the state headquarters at Lansing, who are urging other lodges to get together for similar contests.

R. W. Harrington of Hillsdale, conceived the contest plan as a means of promoting more efficiency in degree work. It was through his plan that the lodges of his county have organized for a systematic contest for a silver cup.

A regular schedule has been made out for each degree. Judges are appointed and all work is graded on the point system. The contest was opened by the Hillsdale lodge at Cambria Saturday evening, February 4.

The Hillsdale county schedule follows: Jonesville at Camden, February 18; Reading at Somerset, March 4; Litchfield at Jerome, March 18; Camden at Jonesville, April 8; Camden at Hillsdale, April 22; Jerome at Reading, May 6; Somerset at Litchfield, May 20. The schedule for the contest for the first degree honors will be made out to start after the hot weather for the summer, probably October 1.

DOES YOUR BACK ACHE?

It's usually a sign of sick kidneys, especially if the kidney action is disordered, passages scanty or too frequent. Don't wait for more serious troubles. Begin using Doan's Kidney Pills. Read this Chelsea testimony.

Chas. Hyzer, Madison Street, says: "I was a sufferer from kidney trouble and backache. Sharp, shooting pains through my kidneys made work a burden and if I stooped I could hardly straighten again. Finally a friend who had used Doan's Kidney Pills with good results told me to try them and after using them I was soon relieved. Three boxes cured me so I am glad to say Doan's are a fine remedy."

Mr. Hyzer gave the above statement March 1, 1913, and on April 27, 1920, he added: "I am glad to again recommend Doan's Kidney Pills and confirm my former statement. The cure Doan's made for me has remained permanent."

Price 60c, at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Kidney Pills—the same that Mr. Hyzer had. Foster-Milburn Co., Mfrs., Buffalo, N. Y.

Pontiac—Figures received from the United States Census Bureau indicate that Pontiac during the period from 1914 to 1919 led all cities of the state regardless of size in industrial expansion. The value of products manufactured increased 595.2 per cent and the number of persons employed grew 220 per cent. Manufactured goods for 1919 in Pontiac were in excess of $140,000,000.

Pontiac—Howard Coffin, vice-president of the Hudson Motor Car company, has offered to the city of Pontiac a tract of 60 acres of land east of the city for boulevard purposes, provided the city will adopt a definite plan for improvement. The land follows the Clinton river. Bridges already built by the company owning the land, in which Coffin and Roy D. Chapin are interested, cross the Clinton and a smaller stream.

Kalamazoo—When Charles Collier a year ago went to a clairvoyant, he was informed that his wife would get a divorce and marry "a dark man." The prediction was the chief cause of his own partial fulfillment, according to the testimony of the wife in her suit for a divorce, which was granted. Her husband, she declared, became violently jealous and suspected every dark man he met of being his wife's prospective second husband. A few months ago, she said, her husband took the children and left.

Flint—An explosive kind of hootch was discovered by detectives who raided the home of Eugene Arsenault. The officers say that as they entered the house Eugene heaved a bottle of hootch into the kitchen stove. There was a roar and Eugene was hurled about the face by the flames. He escaped out of the stove. After the fire had been removed Arsenault's wife said that she was in the kitchen when the hootch was thrown into the stove.

Lansing—If Michigan is to have a new prison it should be in the Upper Peninsula, where the inmates can be made to work in stone quarries to turn out highway material. Gov. Groesbeck, told members of the State Administrative Board and State Prison Commission.

Flint—David Webb, 40, was struck by a south-bound Grand Trunk train at Montrose, while driving in a Ford sedan. Although he was catapulted through the windshield and thrown a distance of 30 feet, he was able to walk to a doctor's office where several bad cuts were dressed.

Bellaire—Mr. and Mrs. George Gardner, 24 and 21 years old, respectively, were drowned Jan. 28 while skating on Torch Lake, when they skated into a fissure more than 14 feet wide. They were accompanied by Mrs. Gardner's brother, Alfred Berg, who made strenuous efforts to save them, but failed.

Lansing—Of the 397 deaths in Michigan in 1921 automobile accidents, 131 were reported from Detroit, 15 from Grand Rapids and 22 from the upper peninsula. This is a trifle more than the number killed in automobile accidents in 1920. Of the number, 129 were children under 16 years, 281 were males, and 116 females.

NEWS REVIEW OF CURRENT EVENTS

Settlement of Shantung Controversy Announced to the Arms Conference.

NAVAL TREATY IS APPROVED

Agreements on Poison Gas, Submarines and Chinese Questions Also Indorsed—Senate Passes Foreign Debt Refunding Bill—Senator Kenyon Is Made Federal Circuit Judge.

By EDWARD W. PICKARD

SECRETARY of State Hughes and Arthur J. Balfour accomplished a great feat of real diplomacy last week when they succeeded in persuading China and Japan to accept the compromise arrangement by which the long-standing and troublesome Shantung controversy is brought to an end. The settlement was announced on Wednesday to the fifth plenary session of the conference, and both the statesmen voiced their personal rejoicing over it because it was their own plan. Mr. Balfour went further and told something that aroused the conferees to cheers. He said that Great Britain had decided to enter at once into negotiations for the restoration of China of the territory of Wei-Hai-Wei, which it has held under lease since the time when Russia seized Port Arthur. Thus China will get back sovereignty over her most ancient and most thickly-populated province in its entirety.

In all major details the agreement between Japan and China is as was told in these columns a week ago. Japan is to get out of Tientsin and the salt fields within six months, and is to give up the Tientsin-Tsinanfu railway within nine months.

The one discordant note in Washington was sounded by Ma So, representative of the Canton government. He asserted the Chinese people would not recognize the treaty agreed upon in the conference.

Mr. Hughes presented to the conference the completed draft of the naval limitation treaty with the agreement on Pacific fortifications, and it was formally adopted. No material change in the treaty as already detailed had been made, and the Pacific agreement also stands in the main as formerly described. According to the fortifications clause the status quo must be maintained by America in the Philippine and Aleutian Islands; by Great Britain in Hongkong and the Pacific Islands east of 110 degrees east longitude; by Japan in the Kurile, Bonin and Loochoo Islands, Amami-Oshima, Formosa and the Pescadores.

In presenting the five-power naval pact, Mr. Hughes said: "This treaty absolutely ends the race in competition of naval armaments. At the same time it leaves the security of nations unimpaired. It is significant of far more also, because here we are talking of arms in the language of peace and have taken the greatest forward step to establish the reign of peace."

Albert Sarraut, head of the French delegation, took the opportunity again to correct misapprehensions concerning his country's naval policy. He said France had appealed for only what she must have to defend herself, and added: "The camouflaged ghost of Imperialistic France which German propaganda parades about the universe may still deceive a few artless minds, but it will soon evoke nothing but smiles."

Ellihu Root presented for approval the five power treaty outlawing poison gas and the use of the submarine against merchant shipping. He explained that it does not undertake to codify international law in regard to visit and search, but to state the most important provisions which already are a part of the law of nations.

"It does undertake," said Mr. Root, "to stop the violation of these rules and the doing to death of women and children and other non-combatants by declaring the wanton destruction of merchant vessels carrying passengers to be a violation of the laws of war."

and an act of piracy. This treaty will be supported by the greatest power known to history. It crystallizes in simple and concrete terms the opinion of the civilized world that already exists in order that hereafter no nation shall dare to do what was done when the women and children of the Lusitania went to their death by wanton murder on the high seas."

In completing a wonderful day's work, the conference gave its approval to resolutions relating to China, to be embodied in treaties, including declaration of the open door, publication of existing treaties, agreements and commitments with China, radio establishments in China, Chinese railways, withdrawal of foreign postoffices, withdrawal of foreign troops from Chinese territory, and reduction of Chinese military forces in the interest of economy and internal tranquility. These treaties, not yet drafted, are to be reported to the next plenary session of the conference, which probably will be its last.

The question of reducing their land forces by one-half was presented to the governments of two nations. By one it was rejected, and the same action is expected in the other case. To the central executive committee of the Russian soviet government, Lenin proposed that the Russian army be cut in half, with a view to meeting the wishes of the United States. Leon Trotsky spoke in opposition and the committee rejected the plan. In the Japanese diet the Kokuminto party brought forward the same proposition. The war office opposed it, having a plan of its own which contemplates reductions in personnel and the strengthening of armaments and equipment. The minister of war says the idea of halving the army is preposterous in view of the fact that the Russian army is still a million strong and can be transported easily with the restoration of the Trans-Siberian railway. It was considered that political reasons would prevent the adoption of the Kokuminto resolution.

WITH the exception of the United States all the nations asked to participate in the Genoa conference in March have accepted the invitation. The French government has announced that it will be represented, because it feels itself bound by the action of former Premier Briand at the Cannes meeting of the supreme council. Premier Poincare is devoting much attention to the German reparations problem and has asked the other allied governments to state their views as to the procedure that should be adopted in regard to the latest proposals made by Germany. He intimates that France prefers to leave the whole matter in the hands of the reparations commission, as the treaty of Versailles provides. Lenin has sent word to Italy that he personally will head the Russian delegation in Genoa.

THE senate of the United States passed the bill for refunding the foreign debt into securities maturing in not more than 25 years. The vote was 39 to 25, three Republicans—Borah, La Follette and Norris—joining the Democratic opposition. The measure is virtually as the administration recommended, though it was said President Harding didn't like some of its provisions. Senator Simmons of North Carolina offered an amendment providing for the use of the interest on the allied loans to pay a soldiers' bonus, and Senator Jones of New Mexico offered another providing for the payment of the bonus directly out of the treasury. Both were defeated. Senator McCumber stating a bill was now being prepared that would give adjusted compensation to the former service men. Senator Borah denounced the bill as a scheme whose ultimate purpose was the cancellation of the entire foreign debt.

PRESIDENT Harding and Senator Kenyon together furnished the country with a great surprise last week. The President nominated the Iowa statesman to be judge of the United States Circuit court, Eighth circuit, and Mr. Kenyon at once announced his acceptance. The senate was astonished, but did not hesitate to confirm the nomination. Democratic leaders pressed the belief that the President was one of the chiefs of the agricultural bloc. Mr. Kenyon himself issued this statement: "The President has known since our service together in the senate that political life did not appeal to me and that my ambition was to serve on the federal bench. I am deeply appreciative of the act of the President in appointing me to this position."

In Washington it was believed Representative Burton Sweet of Iowa would succeed Kenyon in the senate. An announced candidate for the place is H. O. Weaver, Iowa lawyer and farmer, president of the American Shorthorn Breeders' association and of the Iowa Agricultural society.

NEARLY one hundred persons perished when the roof of the Knickerbocker movie theater in Washington collapsed under the weight of a heavy snowfall. Nearly all the victims were killed instantly, but one, and perhaps the most prominent, survived several days. This was Edward H. Shaughnessy of Chicago, second assistant postmaster general. The house district of Columbia committee has under consideration a plan to purchase the site of the theater and transform it into a park in which shall be erected a memorial to those who lost their lives in the disaster.

This terrible accident in the Capital marked the worst storm that the Atlantic coast states have experienced in many years. Deep snow, high gales and severe cold almost paralyzed many cities and greatly hampered railway transportation.

IT is probable that before this is in the hands of the reader the successor to Pope Benedict XV will have been chosen. The sacred college began its conclave in the Vatican on Thursday with 52 cardinals present. Several others were on their way there. In accordance with ancient custom, the cardinals were cut off from communication with the outside world until their task should be completed, and the only sign of their doings was the periodical smoke wreath from the chimney of the Sistine chapel when each secret ballot was burned. Before the voting began both the Italian and French governments had denied having any favorite candidate. It was thought the successful cardinal would be one who would moderately continue the policies of Benedict, and many believed Gasparri had the best chance.

BECAUSE the Italian government saw fit to recognize the death of the late pope the opposition element were enabled to get together, and on Thursday Premier Bonomi and his cabinet announced their resignation. They had retained the support of only the Catholic party and a small group of reform Socialists.

SECRETARY of War Weeks submitted to congress Henry Ford's offer for the government projects at Muscle Shoals, Ala., "for such action as congress may deem appropriate." Mr. Weeks did not advise either acceptance or rejection, but he said if the proposal were accepted "the government must make new appropriations amounting to $40,000,000 to $50,000,000, of which Mr. Ford will have the benefit for approximately 100 years at 4 per cent."

In the event the offer be rejected, the secretary gave it as his "opinion that dam No. 2 (Wilson dam) should be completed by the government and that the power requirements for commercial purposes, the benefits to navigation, as well as the possible needs of the government would warrant this expenditure."

COAL operators last week declared there must be a radical reduction in the wage scale, which expires March 31. Mine union and railroad union leaders laid plans for co-operative action to prevent a lowering of miners' wages. Consequently a strike seems inevitable, and the national government, through Attorney General Dougherty, began planning to meet the crisis. What steps Mr. Dougherty contemplates is not known, but in discussing the matter he pledged support of unions as long as they are lawfully conducted, but questioned their right to impose the closed shop principle. An important part of the controversy is the proposed abolition of the eight-hour day under which union men are paid.

CARDINAL RATTI IS NAMED POPE

NEW HEAD OF ROMAN CATHOLIC CHURCH TAKES NAME OF PIUS XI

O'CONNELL ARRIVES TOO LATE

Archbishop of Boston Reaches Rome One Hour After Pontiff Had Been Chosen by College.

Rome—Cardinal Achille Ratti, archbishop of Milan, was proclaimed elected pope in succession to the late Benedict XV Monday morning.

He has taken the name of Pius XI. Cardinal O'Connell, archbishop of Boston, arrived in Rome at 12:40 o'clock Monday afternoon, an hour after the new pope had been elected.

The thousands waiting in front of St. Peter's for the wisps of smoke which would tell of the election of a new pope or the failure of the Sacred college to reach a decision gave a mighty shout at 11:35 o'clock, when a thin wisp of smoke came from the chimney leading from the Sistine chapel. It was then known that the Catholic church had once more a duly elected pontiff.

As soon as the two-thirds vote for Cardinal Ratti had been verified, Cardinal Vanutelli, as dean of the Sacred college, arose and proceeded to the throne of the chosen one, accompanied on either side by Cardinals Logue and Bissett, respectively deans of the cardinal priests and the cardinal deacons.

He was asked in Latin by Cardinal Vanutelli, in accordance with custom, if he accepted the election to be supreme pontiff, and the new pope answered with the formal: "Since it is the will of God, I must obey."

Then the purple canopies over the thrones of the cardinals were let down, one by one, until only that over the new pontiff remained. This was done to show that the whole sacred council-rendered obedience to the new head of the church. Dean Vanutelli thereupon asked the new incumbent what name he chose to take during his pontificate, and upon his reply "Pius XI," Monsignor Sincero, secretary of the conclave, verified his election to the papal chair.

The new pope was then escorted to the ante room within the Sistine chapel, where he was assisted by the cardinal's robes, assisted by the cardinals and the papal vestments, which had been held in readiness since the opening of the conclave, were placed upon him. The pontiff, fully vested in the papal garb and accompanied by his cardinals, thereupon returned to the throne he had occupied in the Sistine chapel.

The "fisherman's Ring" was placed on his finger, and he left the chapel, the whole assembly wending its way through the Sala Ducale and the Sala Regia, along the Loggia to the Sala Clementina, the pope's official residence. All along the way he received the homage of the attaches who served during the conclave.

LAUDS PARLEY ACHIEVEMENTS

President Tells Departing Delegates It Is First Step Forward.

Washington—The Washington conference on disarmament, in its truly great achievements, "has taken the first big forward step toward the permanent outlawry of war and the establishment of universal peace and concord among nations."

President Harding made this statement Monday in his farewell address, delivered to the thirty-odd world statesmen who had just concluded their three months' efforts by signing the conference treaties.

"The torches of understanding have been lighted," said the president, "and they ought to glow and encircle the globe."

The conference adjourned sine die at 11:15 a. m.

VOGEL & WURSTER

It will be very surprising if the perfectly delicious flavor of Brednut doesn't please your husband and your children.

For "new-idea" women

A "smart" food.

It adds flavor and subtracts expense three times a day.

IMPROVEMENTS and new ideas constantly come along. Certain women—natural leaders—are always quick to adopt such betterments.

Today you may be among the first in your neighborhood to try a new food—a new spread for bread. Brednut is its name. It has a delicious flavor and is as wholesome a food as you can imagine.

It's made from rich tropical nuts and pasteurized milk.

In far off tropical islands prodigal Nature grows a luscious nut with a pure white meat. These nut meats are brought to America. Here these snowy nuts are blended with pasteurized milk—under careful supervision. The result is Brednut—the new bread spread. Serve it three times a day.

Do you wonder now that the children so love Brednut, that Government bulletins speak so highly of the digestibility and energy value of such foods; that mere men quickly notice the delicate flavor of this new bread spread?

White, you know, is the color of purity. It is also the color of Brednut—made from rich nut meats and pasteurized milk. So you can actually see by its whiteness how pure your Brednut is. To color it to a golden yellow with the wholesome vegetable material given by your grocer is quick and easy.

Delightful with Brednut!

This olive, nut and celery sandwich

Mix equal parts of chopped nuts, olives and celery. Moisten with mayonnaise. Spread between slices of bread that have been spread with Brednut. See if you don't agree that Brednut has a remarkably fresh delicious flavor; that its spreading qualities are unusually fine.

PEOPLE TAKE TANLAC

Women All Over America
Suffering from Stomach Wrecks Simply Be-

for Food.

Run-down, nervous men and women should be strong, sturdy and vigorous, tingling through their veins and energy, if they would only profit by the experience of the United States and Canada, and the food they eat, by simply taking Tanlac.

People have not only
the most obstinate
and indigestion by
the most common remedies have been tried, but they are not
strong by its use.
Tanlac has been found by this frail
people that preparation is now being everywhere as the most effective
people eat does them
abundantly unless they digest it.
They suffer from indigestion, and other forms of stomach wreck, because food which is not properly digested stays in the stomach and causes pain, swelling, gas, shortness of breath, but the mouth, dizziness and other disagreeable symptoms.
This condition is permitted to run on indefinitely until the entire system becomes saturated with poisons, the patient becomes thin and pale and in time various complications
are apt to result.
Tanlac is a powerful reconstructive
tonic and quickly overcomes this condition by aiding nature to eliminate the impurities from the system in a natural way and enable the vital organs to properly perform their functions. That is why it is called Nature's Medicine.
In fact, there is not a single portion of the body that is not benefited by the helpful action of Tanlac, which begins its work by stimulating the digestive and assimilative organs, thereby enriching the blood and invigorating the entire system. Next, it enables the weak, worn-out stomach to thoroughly digest its food and convert
the nourishing elements into bone, blood and muscle. The result is you feel strong, sturdy and well with the proper amount of flesh, as Nature intended. Sold by all good druggists.

Saint-Gaudens' Lincoln, at Chicago

LINCOLN FORESAW POSSIBLE DANGER

URGENT NECESSITY FOR RESPECT FOR LAW AND ORDER.

Words of the Great Emancipator Especially Significant in the Turmoil
of the World Today.

In his first great patriotic speech,
now too little known, Abraham Lincoln
forecast many of the present day political and social conditions. The theme of this speech was the danger to American institutions that would come from within and the need for a greater respect for law and order.
"In the great journal of things happening under the sun," said Mr. Lincoln, "we, the American people, find our account running the date of the Nineteenth century of the Christian era. We find ourselves in the peaceful possession of the fairest portion of the earth as regards extent of territory, fertility of soil and salubrity of climate. We find ourselves under the government of a system of political institutions conducting more essentially to the ends of civil and religious liberty than any of which the history of former times tells us.

"We, when mounting the stage of existence, found ourselves the legal inheritors of these fundamental blessings. We toiled not in the acquire-ment or establishment of them, they are a legacy bequeathed to us by once a hardy, brave, and patriotic, but lamented and departed, race of our ancestors. Theirs was the task (and nobly they performed it) to possess themselves, and through themselves
us, of this goodly land, and to uprear upon its hills and its valleys a political edifice of liberty and equal rights; 'tis ours only to transmit these—the former unperformed by the foot of an invader, the latter undecayed by the lapse of time and untorn by usurpation—to the latest generation that fate shall permit the world to know. This task of gratitude to our fathers, justice to ourselves, duty to posterity
and love for our species in general all imperatively require us faithfully to perform.

"How, then, shall we perform it? At what point shall we expect the approach of danger? By what means shall we fortify against it? Shall we expect some transatlantic military giant to step the ocean and crush us at a blow? Never!
"All the armies of Europe, Asia, and Africa combined, with all the treasure of the earth (our own excepted) in their military chest, with a Bonaparte
for a commander, could not by force
take a drink from the Ohio or make a track on the Blue ridge in a trial of a thousand years.
"At what point is the approach of danger to be expected? I answer, if it ever reaches us it must spring up amongst us; it cannot come from abroad. If destruction be our lot we must ourselves be its author and finisher. As a nation of free men we must live through all time, or die by suicide."

After giving some examples of the evil effects on the innocent as well as the guilty, which occurred in the operation of mob violence, Mr. Lincoln continued:
"I know the American people are much attached to their government; I know they would suffer much for its sake; I know they would endure evils long and patiently before they would ever think of exchanging it for another —yet, notwithstanding all this, if the laws be continually disregarded and despised, if their rights to be secure in their persons and property are held by no better tenure than the caprice

of a mob, the alienation of their affections from the government is the natural consequence, and to that sooner or later it must come.

"Here, then, is one point from which danger must be expected.
"The question recurs, 'How shall we fortify against it?'"

"The answer is simple. Let every American, every lover of liberty, every well-wisher to his posterity swear by the blood of the Revolution never to violate in the least particular the laws of the country, and never to tolerate their violation by others. As the patriot of '76 did to the support of the Declaration of Independence, and so to the support of the Constitution and laws, let every American pledge his life, his property, and his sacred honor
—let every man remember that to violate the law is to trample on the blood of his father, and to tear the charter of his own and children's liberty."

"Let reverence for the laws be breathed by every American mother to the lisping babe that prattles on her lap; let it be taught in schools, in seminaries, and in colleges; let it be written in primers, in spelling books,
and in almanacs; let it be preached
from the pulpit, proclaimed in legislative halls, and enforced in courts of justice. And, in short, let it become the political religion of the nation; and let the old and the young, the rich and poor, the grave and the gay of all sexes and tongues and colors sacrifice unceasingly upon its altars.

"They (the Revolutionary fathers)
were pillars of the temple of liberty;
and now that they have crumbled away that temple must fall unless we, their descendants, supply their places with other pillars, hewn from the solid quarry of sober reason. Passion has helped us, but can do so no more. It will in future be our enemy. Reason —cold, calculating unimpassioned reason—must furnish all the materials for our future support and defense. Let those materials be molded into general intelligence, sound morality, and, in particular, a reverence for the Constitution and laws; and that we improved to the last, that we remained free to the last, that we revered his name to the last, that during his long sleep we permitted no hostile foot to pass over or desecrate his resting place, shall be that which, to learn, the last trumpet shall awaken our Washington.
"Upon this let the proud fabric of freedom rest, as the rock of its basis;
and as truly as it has been said of the only greater institution, 'the gates of hell shall not prevail against it.'"

Lincoln Memorial, Springfield, Illinois.

May Be Worn Unbelted.

Many of the new tailored frocks
that are cut on very straight lines are so fashioned that they may be worn unbelted or with a narrow belt merely caught loosely about the figure, or the belt may be tied very tightly and the frock pulled up so that it blouses around. For a very slender figure to caught up in blouse effect, and the figure developed figure the weather or the inclination of

The coat dress promises to be a favorite. The shops offer a number of frocks of this type; in combinations of fabrics, duvetyne and tricotine are extremely popular. There is a tendency to have side panels or underneath skirt of bright-colored fabric,
with coat of navy or black, the bright color playing a part in the development of the sleeves. Vests of bright color are frequently into collars that may be worn high or open, according to the weather or the inclination of the wearer.

WESTERN CANADA Land of Prosperity

Offers to home seekers opportunities that cannot be secured elsewhere. The thousands of farmers from the United States who have accepted Canada's generous settlement offers have been well repaid by bountiful crops. There is still available on easy terms
Fertile Land at $15 to $30 an Acre
—land similar to that which through many years has yielded from 20 to 45 bushels of wheat to the acre—barley and oats in great abundance, while raising horses, cattle, sheep and hogs is equally profitable. Hundreds of farmers in western Canada have raised crops in a single season worth more than the whole cost of their land. With such success comes prosperity, independence, good homes and all the comforts
and conveniences which make life worth living.

A FRIEND IN NEED A FRIEND INDEED

Writes Mrs. Hardee Regarding
Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Los Angeles, Calif.—"I must tell you that I am a true friend to Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I have taken it off and on for twenty years and it has helped me change from a delicate girl to a stout, healthy woman. When I was married I was sick all the time until I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I was in bed much of my time with pains and had to have the doctor every month. One day I found a little book in my yard in Guthrie, Oklahoma, and I read it through and got the medicine—Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound—and took eight bottles and used the Sanative Wash. I at once began to get stronger. I have got many women to take it just by telling them what it has done for me. I have a young sister whom it has helped in the same way it helped me. I want you to know that I am a 'friend indeed' for you were a 'friend indeed'."

CHAPTER XVI.

From Dead Hands.

At the head of the file, Capt. Tony advanced through the clearing, and what with his flowing black beard, his portly form and a certain dramatic swagger which he possessed, he looked so entirely Italian and operatic that you expected to hear him at any moment burst out in a sonorous basso. With a sweeping gesture he flung down upon the table two brown canvas bags, which opened and discharged from gaping mouths a flood of golden coins.

Slinker and the cross-eyed man shouted aloud. They ran and clutched at the coins with a savage greed. "Gold, gold—the real stuff! It's the doubloons, all right—where's the rest of 'em?" These cries broke from Slinker and Horny confusedly as the gold slid jingling between their eager fingers.

"The rest of 'em is—where they is," pronounced Tony oracularly. "Somewhere in the sand of the cave, of course. Well dig 'em up tomorrow morning."

"What was the point in not digging 'em all up while you was about it?" demanded Slinker, lowering. "What was the good of digging up jest these here couple o' bags and quitting?"

"Because we didn't dig 'em up," responded Tony darkly. "Because these was all ready and waiting. Because all we had to do was say 'Thankee,' to the feller that handed 'em out. We got these here bags of doubloons, as I says, without havin' to dig for 'em—once we had found the cave, which it's no thanks to old Washtubs we ain't looking for it yet. We got these here bags right out of the fists of a skeleton. Most of him was under a rock, which had fell from the roof and plumed him an'iships. Must of squashed him like a beetle, I guess. But he'd still kep' his hold on the bags." I turned aside, for fear that anyone should see how white I was. To the rest, these poor bones might indeed bear mute witness to a tragedy, but a tragedy lacking outlines, vague, impersonal, without poignancy. To me, they told with dreadful clearness the last sad chapter of the tale of Peter; Peter who had made me so intimately his confidante, whose love and hopes and solitary strivings I knew all about.

Vaguely I heard around me a babble of exclamations and conjectures. Murmurs of interest rose even from our captive band. Then came Slinker's voice, loud with sudden fear:

"Say, you don't suppose the—those Bones would of got away with the rest of the coin somehow, do you?" he demanded.

"Got away with it?" Tony contemptuously thrust aside the possibility. "Got away with it, how? He sure didn't leave the island with it, did he? Would he of dug it up from one place jest to bury it in another? Huh! Must of wanted to work it if he did. Now, my notion is that this happened to one of the guys that was burying the gold, and that the rest jest left him there for a sort of scarecrow to keep other people out of the cave."

"But the gold?" protested Slinker. "They wouldn't leave that for a scarecrow, would they?"

"Maybe not," admitted Tony, "but suppose that feller died awful slow, and went on hollering and clutching at the bags? Well, that cave wouldn't be a pleasant place to stay in, would it? And no one would have the nerve to snatch them bags away to bury 'em, 'cause a dying man, especially when he dies hard, can have an awful grip. So what they done was just to shove the sand in on the gold they'd hoveled away and light out quick."

"The ingenuity of this reasoning is more remarkable than its logic," said Slinker, who was the man to find a flaw in any argument. "But in the mean while, the gold is gone, and the cave is empty."

and had only to listen to its voice to enjoy in anticipation all the fruits of their iniquitous schemes. The sight of the golden coins intoxicated them. They played with the doubloons like children, jingling them in their calloused palms, guessing at weight and value, calculating their equivalent in the joy of living. Laughter and oaths resounded.

And now the night that I unutterably dreaded was upon us. But the pirates still thought of nothing but the gold. They had exhausted their own portable supplies of liquor, and were loud in their denunciations of our bonedry camp, as they termed it.

It was Tony who intercepted a tentative movement of Capt. Magnus in my direction, and ordered me into the cabin with my aunt and Miss Browne. Through the walls of the hut we heard loud and eager talk of the morrow and its certain golden harvest as the pirates made their dispositions for the night. Then the voices trailed off sleepily and silence succeeded, broken only by the ceaseless murmur of the waves around the island.

CHAPTER XVII.

Of Which Cookie Is the Hero.

Next morning I came out of the hut in time to see Mr. Shaw and his companion in duress led forth from the sleeping quarters which they had shared with their captors. They were moored as before to a palm tree, by a rope having a play of two or three feet, and their hands unbound while they made a hasty breakfast under the eye of a watchful sentinel. Then their wrists were tied again, not patiently, but with a firmness which made any slipping of their bonds impossible.

While the pirates were breakfasting a spirited dispute took place among them as to who should go to the treasure cave and who stay in camp to guard the prisoners. Slinker and Horny urged with justice that, as they had missed all the excitement of the preceding day, it was their turn to visit the cave. The right to see the Bones they passionately claimed. Tony supported them, and it ended with Chris and Captain Magnus being told off as our guards for the morning.

In leaving the cabin I had slipped into my blouse a small penknife, which I had found in Aunt Cayenne's bag. It was quite new, and I satisfied myself that the blades were keen. My own large sheath-knife and my revolver I had been deprived of at the suggestion of the thoughtful Magnus. I had surrendered them unprotestingly, fearful of all things that my possessions might be ransacked and Peter's diary, though hidden with much art at the bottom of the bag, be brought to light. For I might yet sell the secret of the Island Queen at a price which should redeem us all.

As the heat increased a voice of lamentation broke from Chris. He was dry—dry enough to drink up the condemned ocean. No, he didn't want spring water, which Cookie obsequiously tendered him; he wanted a drink—wouldn't anybody but a fool nigger know that? There was plenty of the real stuff aboard the schooner, on the other side of the—adjective—Island. Why had they, with incredible lack of forethought, brought along nothing but their pocket flasks? Why hadn't they sent the adjective nigger back for more? Where was the bottle or two that had been rooted out last night from the medical stores? Empty? Every last drop gone down somebody's greedy gullet? The adjectives came thick and fast as Chris hurled the bottle into the bay. He it swam bobbingly upon the ripples. Captain Magnus agreed with the gist of Chris's remarks, but deprecated, in a truly philosophical spirit, their unprofitable heat. There wasn't any liquor, so what was the good of making an adjective row? Hadn't he endured the equivalent of Chris's present sufferings for weeks? He was biding his time, he was. Plenty of drink by and by, plenty of all that makes life soft and easy. He bet there wouldn't many hit any higher spots than him. He bet there was one little girl that would be looked on as lucky, in case she was a good little girl and encouraged him to show his natural kindness. And I was favored with a blood-curdling leer from across the camp, of which I had put as much as possible between myself and the object of my dread.

But now, like a huge black Gany-mede, appeared Cookie, bearing cups and a large stone crock.

"It suitin' am a fact, Mistah Chris," said Cookie, "dat dey is a mighty unsprightly fluidity 'bout dis yere spring water. Down war I is come from no pussons of de Four Hundred ain't even 'customed to partake of such. But de sakesy I has been in lately round dis yere camp ain't of de convoluted ordah; de Cookie had to keep it dark dat he got his little drop o' comfort on de side. Dis yere's only home-made stuff, sah. Tain't what I could offer to a gennelmin if so be I is got the makin's of a genuwine old-style julep what is de beverage of de fust families. But bet'n as it is, it am mighty coolin', sah, and it got it like to be—hot made, but jes' enough to make a gennelmin feel lak he is one."

Cookie's tones dripped humility and prostration. He offered the brimming cup cringingly to the pale-eyed, red-nosed Chris, who reached for it with alacrity, drank deep, smacked his lips meditatively, and after a moment passed the cup back.

"Tain't so worse," he said approvingly. "Anyhow, it's drinkin'!"

Magnus suddenly began to laugh. "Seip me, it's the same dope what I laid out the Honorable!" he chorled. "Here, ducky, let's have a swig of it!"

Cookie complied, joining respectfully in the captain's mirth.

"I guess you-all is got stronger haid, den dat young gennelmin!" he remarked. "Dis yere ole niggah has help hisself mighty freely and dat prohibitionist Miss Harding ain't even found it out. Fac' is, it am puckerfick harmless 'cept when de haid is weak."

False, false Cookie! Black brother in peridy to Mr. Tubbs! One friend the less to be depended on if a chance for freedom ever came to us!

Cookie refilled the pirates' cups, and set the crock beside them on the ground.

"In case you gennelmin feels yerself a little thursty later on," he remarked. He was retreating, when Captain Magnus called to him.

"Blackie, this ain't bad. It's coolin', but thin—a real nice ladylike sort of drink, I should say. Suppose you take a swig over to Miss Jinny there with my compliments—I'm one to always treat a lady generous if she gives me half a chance."

Obediently Cookie hastened for another cup, set it on a tray, and approached me with his old-time ornate manner. I faced him with a withering look, but, unmindful, he bowed, presenting me the cup, and interposing his bulky person between me and the deeply quaffing pirates. At the same time his voice reached me, pitched in a low and anxious key.

"Bo' de Layd's sake, Miss Jinny, spill it out! It am mighty powerful dope—it done fumented twice as long as befo'—it am bou' to give dat trash de blind-staggahs shoit'ly!"

Instantly I understood, and a thrill of relief and of hope inexpressible shot through me. I put the cup to my lips and after a brief parade of drinking passed it back to Cookie, spilling the contents on the ground en route.

Gradually the rough disjointed talk of the sailors began to languish. Covering watching, I saw that Chris's head had begun to droop. The hand that held the cup was lifted, stretched out in the direction of the exclaiming far, then forgetting its errand fell heavily. After a few spasmodic twitchings of the eyelids and uneasy grunts, Chris slumbered.

Captain Magnus was of tougher fiber. But he, too, grew silent and there was a certain meal-sack limpness about his attitude. His dulled eyes stared dreamily. All at once, with a jerk, he roused himself, turned over and administered to the sleeping Chris a prod with his large boot.

"Hey, there, wake up! What right you got to be asleep at the switch? But Chris only breathed more heavily.

Captain Magnus himself heaved a tremendous yawn, settled back in greater comfort against his sustaining tree and closed his eyes. I waited, counting the seconds by the beating of the blood in my ears. In the background Cookie hovered apprehensively. Plainly he would go on hovering unless loud snores from the pirates gave him assurance. For myself, I sat fingering my penknife, wondering whether I ought to rush over and plunge it into the sleepers' throats. This would be heroic and practical, but unpleasant. If, on the other hand, I merely tried to free the prisoners and Captain Magnus woke, what then? The palm where they were tied was a dozen yards from me, much nearer to the guards, and within range of even their most languid glance. Beyond the prisoners was Miss Browne, glaring uncomprehendingly over the edge of her book. There was no help in Miss Browne.

I left my seat and stole on feet which seemed to stir every leaf and twig to loud complaint toward the captive pair. Tense, motionless, with burning eyes, they waited. There was a movement from Captain Magnus; he yawned, turned and muttered. I stood stricken, my heart beating with loud thumps against my ribs. But the captain's eyes remained closed.

"Virginia—quick, Virginia!" Dugald Shaw was stretching out his bound hands to me, and I had dropped on my knees before him and begun to cut at the knotted cords. They were tough strong cords, and I was lacking at them feverishly when something bounded across the clearing and flung itself upon me. Crusoe, of course!—and wild with the joy of reunion. I struggled a cry of dismay, and with one hand tried to thrust him off while I cut through the rope with the other

It is scientifically compounded from vegetable herbs.

It is not a stimulant and is taken in teaspoonful doses.

It is not recommended for everything.

It is nature's great helper in relieving and overcoming kidney, liver and bladder troubles.

A sworn statement of purity is with every bottle of Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root.

If you need a medicine, you should have the best. On sale at all drug stores in bottles of two sizes, medium and large. However, if you wish first to try this great preparation send ten cents to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., for a sample bottle. When writing be sure and mention this paper.—Advertisement.

Humility.

"It would appear," observes a Southern minister, that humility, as a virtue, is in some quarters at least, fast disappearing. Our fathers used to preach humility to us—respect for our superiors, contentment with our humble station and so forth. He who is down need fear no fall, said one of the old-timers to a ducky in his employ.

"Jest so, sub," answered the darkey, but he's shore to get sot on and walked over."—Milwaukee Sentinel.

"What may be your trouble, friend?" he said.

"I've got a glass rod in the middle of my back," the new lunatic answered.

"A glass rod in the middle of your back, eh?" And Solomon chuckled. "Well, friend, a glass rod in the middle of your back will bring you here, but you'll find that it will never take you out."

Hard to Make Civilized Indians Give Up Their Beliefs in Magic—Soul Transmigration.

Civilized Indians are very reluctant to give up their belief in magic. The idea of worshipping objects is quite a settled one among the tribes, and some stories which connect corn and flowers with beneficent deities are very pleasing and attractive.

Animals, too, are spoken of in a very singular and superstitious manner, and the different sizes of the beasts which are hunted is accounted for in a story of the creation, which has many variations, but always agrees that at the time of the creation all of the beasts clamored for priority in size.

Each was vain and dictatorial, and one after another was humbled by being made smaller than a hated enemy, the idea being that everything human and otherwise that was born had a prior existence and came into the world with the benefit of the experience thus derived.

Indians in many tribes believe in the doctrine of transmigration of souls, by which is meant that they believe souls, after the death of the bodies of animals that they have inhabited, pass into the bodies of others.—Detroit News.

Why does any healthy person want to be kicked into wakefulness in the morning?

Many people feel that they have to be agitated into wakefulness in the morning. They think that without the tea or coffee they take in the morning that they will not be able to meet the tasks and duties of the day.

Nothing could be more false than this reasoning. Any doctor can tell you this. For a healthy body does not require a stimulant. It gets all the stimulant it needs from food.

The thein and caffeine found in tea and coffee are irritating to the heart and nervous system. They jolt the nerves into undue activity. The result is a reaction. This is why regular tea and coffee drinkers think they must have their stimulant the first thing in the morning to wind them up for the day.

If you will stop using tea and coffee for a week, and drink

Postum, the pure cereal beverage instead, it will give Nature an opportunity to rid the system of the irritating substances that harass your nerves, upset digestion, increase your heart action, and make you nervous and irritable.

Many people who have tried Postum say that inside of a week they wake up in the morning without that "all gone" feeling that they used to have, and are full of energy, strength and endurance.

Order Postum from your grocer today and make it according to directions. Your first sip of Postum will surprise and please you.

DO NOT NEGLECT LUNG COLDS

Thursday Health Talk No. 3,
by H. H. Beatty, Chiropractor

When colds settle upon the lungs it is an indication of lung weakness which needs immediate attention. A lung cold, if neglected, may easily become lung congestion and from that pneumonia is but a step. Fatalities from pneumonia run very high, except where a chiropractor is called at the first inception of the case.

An area of nerve tenderness in the upper back, involved around the third dorsal vertebra, often the cause of the trouble. Quite often the nerve tenderness over one, or both sides of the spine. Usually the chiropractic spinal adjustment is not only at the third dorsal, but at stomach, liver, gall bladder, and other places also, as when these organs are of normal activity, they help to dispose of the wastes with which the lungs are charged, and which would otherwise add to the burden of the diseased lungs.

RETURN OF TUBERCULOSIS AFTER THREE YEARS

I was doctoring with medical men for six years and all said I was tubercular. Three years ago when I finally decided to try chiropractic I was so weak I had to be helped into the chiropractor's office. I began to improve after the first adjustment and after some months was entirely well. When I started with chiropractic the medical doctors said I would not live six months. In three years I have had no return of the ailment. —Hazel Martin Miller, Chiropractic Research Bureau Statement No. 2297H.

The great hurricane of joy and excitement, in

"The Mark of Zorro"

From the "All-Story Weekly" Novel, "The Curse of Capistrano" by Johnston McCully Directed by Fred Niblo.

Brings to the screen a wholesome, gingery mixture of melodrama and vigorous comedy, crammed with whirl-wind action, thrills, suspense and irresistible funny angles; with never a let-up in its headlong pace from the very start to the rip-roaring, rattling, eminently-satisfactory climax.
