GETS CHAIRMANSHIP OF BOARD OF SUPERVISORS

Herman J. Dancer was elected as chairman of the Washtenaw County Board of Supervisors at the April session, held in the court house in Ann Arbor on Tuesday, for the coming year.

This is the first time in many years that Sylvan township has been awarded the chairmanship of the board, and the election of Mr. Dancer was without a dissenting vote.

The board met for the purpose of electing a county road commissioner, to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of R. J. Bird, who has accepted a position with the state tax commission.

At the afternoon session a heated discussion of about two hours was indulged in by Supervisors Cushing and Gaudy, and Geo. McCalla, chairman of the county road commissioners, over the condition of the affairs in the office of the commissioners. It was shown that an indebtedness of $127,000 exists.

After the usual routine of business was completed Tuesday afternoon, the board adjourned until Tuesday of next week, when action will be taken for the appointment of a successor to Mr. Bird. There are several men in different parts of the county who are candidates for the commissionership.

Piano Sale in Chelsea.

As announced in last week's Standard, Grinnell Bros' big piano sale opened with full force Saturday. They have a nice line of pianos, also sheet music and records for the accommodation of their customers, in their show rooms in the Wilkinsonia building, and many people, who are in the market for pianos, are taking advantage of the wonderful bargains that are being shown. Everyone is acquainted with "The House of Grinnell," and the line of pianos which they sell. During this sale, and in fact at all times, they are pushing the sale of their own make piano, which is superb in tone quality as well as workmanship. Don't fail to read their advertisement in this issue. It is of special interest to you if there is not a piano in your home.

A Class of Twenty.

Wednesday evening was a gala one for the Chelsea Odd Fellows, when Ann Arbor Encampment, No. 7, I. O. O. F., conferred the Golden Rule Degree on a class of twenty. The class was made up from members of the subordinate lodge here and other parts of this county and the work was witnessed by a large number of the members of the Order.

The work was exemplified by the Encampment degree team in Macabee hall and was well worth the time of the members of the order who witnessed the impressive ceremony.

At the close of the work a social session was held and a banquet was served.

New "Dollar a Year" Man.

A dispatch from Detroit says: The Methodist Episcopal church in Michigan has added another "dollar a year" worker to its forces in this state. He is Arthur J. Stock, Detroit business man, who will be area director of hospitals and homes. Although he cannot devote his full time to the job, Mr. Stock will spend many hours each week in looking after the interests of Bronson hospital at Kalamazoo, the Children's Home at Farmington, and the Old People's Home at Chelsea, the three Methodist institutions in this state.

Sent to House of Correction.

A. A. White, negro, who was arrested about three months ago in connection with the death of a negro woman at the Four Mile Lake plant of the Michigan Portland Cement Co., and who has been in the county jail at Ann Arbor since his arrest, pleaded guilty to a charge of illegal actions in the circuit court Saturday afternoon and was sentenced to the Detroit house of correction for 90 days by Judge Sample. Sheriff Pack took the man to the Detroit prison Monday.

May Get Appointment.

George W. Sample, judge of the Washtenaw county circuit court, is one of fifteen who are mentioned for the appointment of United States judge for the eastern district of Michigan. By a recent act of Congress, an additional judge is to be given Michigan.

Judge Sample has served on the Washtenaw county circuit court bench for the last five years and is well qualified to fill the position for which he is mentioned in the United States Court.

Big Resort Business.

The resort and tourist business of Michigan is estimated to be worth at least $100,000,000 a year, and thus it ranks fourth among the basic industries of the state—those such as mining, farming and others that involve a good deal of digging down.

Pioneer Resident of Lima.

Mrs. Amanda Whipple, aged 88 years, died Wednesday evening, April 5, 1922, at the home of her son in Battle Creek. Mrs. Whipple was born in Clyde, N. Y., November 24, 1833, her parents being Morris and Harriett Wells Owens.

The family came to Michigan in 1834. In 1853 she was united in marriage to Levi Whipple and they resided on the farm in Lima until his death in 1894. Since that time she had made her home with her sons and for the past seven years had lived in Battle Creek.

To Mr. and Mrs. Whipple were born four children. A daughter, Mrs. Clara Shaver, died several years ago. Mrs. Whipple is survived by three sons, Mason of Lima, Warren of Battle Creek and Edward of Chelsea; one brother, James Owens, of Omaha, Nebraska; nine grandchildren and four great grandchildren.

The funeral was held Sunday afternoon from the home of Mr. and Mrs. Mason Whipple, Rev. E. A. Carnes, pastor of the Chelsea Congregational church, conducting the services. Burial at the Porter cemetery, Lima.

Placed in Steel Cage.

Peter Orlando, charged with the murder of George Burg and Henry Volmer, is no longer the star boarder of the Washtenaw county jail. Like ordinary prisoners, Pete is now confined behind the steel bars of the first floor cell block.

The change in Peter's status came following the declaration by Judge George W. Sample that Orlando's trial, which was begun in circuit court last week, be called a mistrial, on testimony presented that one of the jurors, previous to being empanelled, had conversed with the respondent regarding its outcome.

To prevent a recurrence of the unfortunate circumstance which halted the last trial and cost the county unnecessary expense, Peter has been placed in a position where the possibilities of conversing with prospective jurors have been reduced to a minimum. Not that he has become less trustworthy, or fallen in the esteem of the officers, but simply for the foregoing reasons Peter has been actually placed behind the bars.

Dexter Village President Dead.

The dead body of Dr. Charles Earl Beeler, 38, newly elected president of the village of Dexter, and a dentist with offices in Detroit, was discovered Wednesday morning in his office. Death was caused by asphyxiation. The doctor's head was thrust into a hole, cut in a suit case, while a rubber tube attached to a gas jet entered the other side of the grip.

Dr. Beeler is survived by his wife and three young children. He was very active in the affairs of the village of Dexter, where he has made his home for some time.

When the family of the doctor received news of his death Wednesday morning they became prostrated with grief and could give no reason for the suicide, if such it were. During certain evenings in the week he has been accustomed to remain in Detroit to care for patients, and on these occasions he slept in his office.

To Hold Annual Reunion.

The 31st Michigan Volunteer Infantry association will hold its 21st annual reunion at Chattanooga and Knoxville, Tennessee, during the week beginning May 21. The reunion will be in co-operation with the first reunion of the First Georgia regiment.

The association will leave Detroit at 10 p. m., Sunday, May 21, over the Michigan Central, and will arrive at Chattanooga at 8:40 p. m. Monday. The return trip will be made from Knoxville, May 27, in which city the association will spend the last day of its visit to the south.

Twenty Trout Per Day.

Reduction in the limit of trout which may be taken from streams in the five northern rows of counties in the lower peninsula from 35 to 20 for a single day's catch, and from 60 to 36 in possession at one time, according to an announcement by the state conservation department may deter some of our trout experts from making their annual trip to those streams. This ruling covers the best trout fishing streams in the lower peninsula. It has been ordered by the state conservation commission in an effort to conserve the number of trout in Michigan streams.

Michigan Accepted by Cambridge.

University of Michigan men will be admitted to Cambridge University, England, on the same terms as students from affiliated universities, according to a notification just received by President Marion L. Burton. The privilege extended to Michigan students are the result of certain "graces" passed by the Cambridge University senate, March 4.

The institutes now enjoying the privileges of affiliated universities include such schools as Oxford, Edinburgh, Chicago, Yale, and Harvard.

PREPARATIONS BEING MADE TO FINISH ROAD WORK

The County Road Commissioners and Engineer Bailey have a force of men at work in the Chelsea yard getting everything in shape to begin operations on the territorial Federal Aid trunk line road.

The work is being done under the direction of Superintendent Kenneth Platt, and he started a force out Tuesday on the right-of-way, repairing the washouts on the shoulders either side of the driveway.

There remains to be done to complete the trunk line, considerable shoulder work and ditching, as well as putting the approaches in shape and given a dressing of gravel.

There is to be some work done on some of the roads that will be used for detours when the work of surfacing the paved way with asphalt is under way.

The work as laid out at present will undoubtedly give some of the unemployed men here work for a few weeks. It is expected that the work on the detours will be started about the first of the coming week.

Old Documents Preserved.

The University of Michigan has recently received a unique and valuable gift in the form of a collection of 114 original documents dating from the time of Christ and the apostles. John W. Anderson, of Detroit, made the presentation in the name of the Law Class of 1890, of which he was a member.

The documents are written in papyrus. Nearly all are in the Greek language, a few being in Demotic. They were discovered in 1921 in Egypt, and on account of the dryness of the soil in which they were found, are almost perfectly preserved. The collection was brought to the United States by Prof. Francis W. Kelsey, as a part of the manuscript material obtained by the University of Michigan expedition. The collection as a whole touches many aspects of the life of the time, and is full of human interest. It will throw new light upon economic, social and political conditions in the first half century of the Christian era.

Crop Report.

Winter Wheat: The damage to winter wheat from winter killing is not nearly as great as many had predicted nor as much as might have been expected under the existing conditions. The ground was bare throughout southern Michigan during much of the winter, but the weather was not severe at any time, particularly in March when the plant is most susceptible to injury. In central and northern Michigan, the ground was well covered with snow practically all the time. The joint State and Federal report issued by John A. Doelle, Commissioner of Agriculture and Verne H. Church, Agricultural Statistician, U. S. Bureau of Markets and Crop Estimates gives the condition of winter wheat as 83 per cent, seven per cent lower than on the same date last year and one per cent below the ten-year average for April 1. The condition for the United States as a whole averages 78.4 per cent, or nearly 13 per cent below that of last year and six per cent less than the ten-year average.

Rye: Rye suffered much less than wheat and the present condition equals the ten-year average of 88 per cent, although four points lower than it was one year ago. The poor fields are mainly the late planted ones. The average condition for the United States is 89 per cent, which is practically normal.

Breeding Sows: Better prices of hogs and a good corn supply have tended to renew interest in the industry, and the number of 'brood sows now on the farms of the State is estimated to be seven per cent larger than one year ago. This increase equals the decline that took place in the previous year. The demand has been strong in recent months in nearly all parts of the State, and good prices have been paid.

Farm Labor: The results of the inquiry relative to farm labor show that the supply is about normal, as compared with the usual, and nine per cent greater than it was one year ago. Some sections of the State report a very marked increase, but in other localities the supply has not materially changed.

The demand is ten per cent below normal and eight per cent less than it was one year ago. During the period when labor was scarce, farmers revised their farming methods in order to meet the situation, and now are returning to their former system only to a very limited extent. The acute financial conditions of the past year are preventing many from hiring that otherwise would do so.

Therefore, we have the unique situation of a practically a normal supply of labor, which exceeds the demand by approximately 13 per cent. There has been a marked reduction of wages in most sections, although some men are insisting on more than the prevailing price.

and we are a healthy,
happy family now"

— Louis Gingras

With abundant energy, appetites hearty, nerves strong and steady and their faces radiant with the glow of perfect health, the entire family of Louis Gingras, 9 Harvard Ave., Providence, R. I., are an eloquent tribute to the use of Tanlac, the greatest family medicine the world has ever known.

But Tanlac to the test four years in my own family and it has proved me once, declared Mr. Gingras. "My wife, my son and myself, as well as myself, have all built up from a half-sick, run-down set of people into a happy family brimful of new energy."

The experience of this family is typical of thousands of others. Statements are on file in the offices. Hardly a day passes without bringing scores of such messages of praise from every part of the United States and Canada from families where mother, father, son and daughter have all found health, contentment and the joys of living simply taking a course of Tanlac.

For instance, the case of John H. H. Roosevelt Ave., Los Angeles, Calif., who says: "My wife, my son and myself are now as healthy, happy as families you will ever see—all due to Tanlac."

That of Mrs. John Marquis and family of sixteen living in Manhattan, N. Y., at 292 Belmont St., who say: "Tanlac has been the only medicine used in our house for two years and it has kept every one of the family in the best of health."

Chicago, Frank R. Richards, of 1000 Wood St., writes: "We will never without Tanlac in our house. The remarkable way it has built up my wife, my son and myself to the very picture of health."

INDIANS' USE OF FEATHERS

Intense Religious Significance
All Tribes, Being Considered
Tantamount to a Prayer.

There have an intense religious significance for Indians, and are valued far more than for their ornamental use. To a Hopi, a feather is tantamount to a prayer, and the use of one or two feathers in a ceremony is considered sufficient to insure a favorable reply.

An Indian desires something and he will tie a feather to a stick and conceal it in a shrine which he has constructed. This is done extremely efficacious. Fifty feathers dangling from the rafters of huts by strings are sights. They represent prayers. Indians are always keep a stock of prayers on hand, so that they will be empty handed when an opportunity arises.

A departure from this custom accounts for the use of feathers. Squaws of tribes as far as Virginia were made with feathers, and the feathers also tell of coats made of feathers sewed so close and so close that the coat looked like satin.

AUNT CYNTHIA'S EASTER

By F. H. Sweet

A new minister had come to slow-moving, out-of-the-way Spruce Hill, and with his coming had appeared a spirit of change and improvement.

Among other innovations was the Easter sermon and church decoration. The new minister made the announcement one Thursday afternoon after prayer meeting, and added that he hoped all would be present, and that the ladies of the church would arrange for a tasteful and appropriate decoration.

After service the women stood about irresolutely, looking at each other with blank, questioning faces. "I guess you'll have to excuse me, Mr. Kent," one of them said at last, bluntly. "I ain't got any flowers except one geranium, which doesn't bloom; and, besides, I don't know anything about no decoration, an' ain't got no time, either."

"Nor me," "Nor me," "Nor me," came in rapid succession, and with evident relief from the other women. "Oh, come, come; this will never do!" expostulated the minister. "Surely each of you can spare a little time from work. And doubtless we can find a few callas and Easter lilies and narcissus, and perhaps some other white—"

"All the houses in the neighborhood couldn't scare up white posies enough for a button-hole bouquet," declared a woman aggressively. "As for Easter lilies, I ain't never seen one, an' narcissus I ain't even heard of. The idea o' decoratin' a whole church this time o' year!"

"I've heard Mrs. Bray speak o' narcissus," said a woman, reflectively. "She that was the florist's wife, you know. An' come to think, she's likely a master hand at this decoratin' business. She has spoke o' seein' big city churches filled with flowers."

"Who is Mrs. Bray, and where is she to be found?" asked the minister quickly. "Curious, I have not heard of her before."

"Oh, I don't know," dryly; "folks sort o' die away from the world after the minister. I am planning to have the church decorated for Easter; but the ladies of my congregation, including Mrs. Perry here, assure me that such a thing is utterly impossible. I have come to you as a last resort. Can you help me?"

The old woman, who had not had a caller in five years, looked from one to the other with a sudden yearning in her tender old eyes.

"It isn't easy to decorate without anything to decorate with," she said. "In the city we used to have palms and Easter lilies, and no end of ferns and delicate things to bank with."

"But there are the woods," suggested the minister desperately.

"Yes, the woods are useful around here in spring. I notice from the kitchen windows; and sometimes, before they get up, I take short walks. Her hands were still trembling, but into her eyes was coming an expression which Mrs. Perry remembered to have belonged to her old days.

"Do you mean for me to take charge of the decorating?" she asked.

"Yes, but of course with plenty of help. I don't know much about arranging flowers myself."

He turned hastily and glanced through the window. Something in the rapturous expression on the old woman's face made him lose command of himself for a moment.

"Well, I shall need help in gathering the decorations," she was saying as he turned back. "There will be things to cut and bring home, and boxes and boards to build up for the banking. Yes, I think we can do it very nicely. There are some bushes along the creek that I can fix up to look very much like palms at a little distance, and that dark moss below the ledge will make a beautiful bank on which we can arrange the early white flowers which are beginning to bloom. Then there are the pussy will-they go to the poor farm. I've heard the poor farm was stronger than the grave for hidin' folks."

"Well, we will find her," eagerly. "Will you go with me, Mrs. Perry?"

"Why, yes, I don't mind if I do. Cynthia Bray was as much of a lady as anybody round. Still, while 'twasn't her fault goin' there, it's hardy to be expected folks will keep on visitin', just the same."

The next afternoon the minister's backboard stopped in front of the paupers' home. Several men and boys were slouching about the yard, and on a bench near the door were four or five old women. Mrs. Perry glanced there.

"Not one o' them," she said; "Cynthia wouldn't grow to look like that." In answer to their knock a harsh-looking woman came to the door.

"Mis' Bray?" she repeated—"Oh, Aunt Cynthia, we call her. No, she ain't here, she's inside. Aunt Cynthia's a good worker, so we keep her in the kitchen. She scarcely ever gets to this side the house. I don't s'pose she's had a visitor afore in five years. I'll call her."

They were nodded into a front room. Five minutes, and a little old woman with a deprecatory manner slipped softly into the room.

"Did—did you wish to see me?" she asked, tremulously.

Mrs. Perry sprang forward in quick forgetfulness of the immeasurable distance between their social positions.

"Why, you poor soul!" she cried sympathetically. "How old you've grown! My hair ain't begun to turn yet, an' still I'm a lot older."

"It's been a long time since you and I were young," answered the old woman gently. Then she colored with sudden remembrance, and stiffened.

"Is there anything you wanted, for Mrs. Perry—anything?" she asked.

"Come, Cynthia, don't talk that way," remonstrated Mrs. Perry. "You know farmers' wives are always workin', an'—an' it's a good piece to—"

"The poor farm!" said the old woman, calmly.

"Well, yes, poor farm," deprecatingly. "But—but I'm callin' today, an' I've brung the minister. Do you know him?"

"No, we haven't met," said the old woman. "I generally stay in the kitchen."

"I must acknowledge this visit is a begging one, for help, Mrs. Bray," said went on, deprecatingly, "that I haven't seen the church yet. I ought to go there first and look around."

"Of course we will take you there this afternoon," volunteered the minister.

"And you can have my horse and wagon every afternoon," added Mrs. Perry, warmly, "an' my boy Tommy to drive and help."

"It will be beautiful," Mrs. Bray murmured—"like the world seemed when I was young." She was not thinking of the decoration now, but of the beautiful thing of not being forgotten that had come so unexpectedly to her. The minister gazed at her a moment, and then again turned to the window.

"There will be no failure in the church decoration," he remarked aside to Mrs. Perry.

Nor was there, nor in the beautiful thing that had come to the little old woman. During the decorating she was like a different creature, and her face came to be scarcely recognizable as that which had looked so deprecatingly at them that afternoon at the poor farm. When it was all over the minister went to her impulsively and grasped both her hands.

"I cannot tell you how much you have helped me," he said earnestly. "The decoration has been a perfect success, and it is all owing to you. But there is another thing I wish to speak about. My housekeeper is about to leave, and I need some one to take her place. Will you come and look after the parsonage—and me, too, for that matter?" with one of his frank, boyish smiles.

"My mother always said I wasn't capable of looking after my clothes and such things. I will try not to tax you too severely."

So the beautiful thing which had come to her was not of a day, but was to last through all the remainder of her years.

CHINESE IN CELEBRATION

Lines of Chinese, clad in garments ranging from the frock coat and "tile" of western ultra-civilization to the gorgeous silks of the Orient, marched last Easter Sunday in a great religious procession through San Francisco's Chinatown. The pageant and procession were followed by union services, Baptist, Methodist, Congregational, Presbyterian and Episcopalian church missions in Chinatown organized the celebration.

A feature of the day was the choral singing by young Chinese girls.

RESURRECTION

"He is risen! Would you know him, In the early light of morn; As the seals of sin were broken, And grim Death of strength was shorn?"

"He is risen! Would you know him, If you met your risen Lord? Would his loving, gentle accents In your heart find sweet accord?"

"Then, if He to you is risen, On this Holy Easter Day; Over sin, and death and sorrow You will triumph, in His way."

—Selected.

To Welcome Easter.

Let us welcome Master with joy. It is a day of commemoration of our redemption from sin and death, and which gives assurance of our immortality. Let us bring our tributes of roses and lilies, violets and jonquils and hyacinths, perfect first-fruits of earth's rarest blossoms of the spring-time, and types of the cleansed, purified perfection which we ourselves will show forth when we are "risen with Him," who is the Resurrection and the Life.

"I Cannot Tell You How Much You Have Helped Me."

HOW TWO WOMEN ESCAPED OPERATIONS

Doctor Advised Use of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Happy Results in Both Cases

St. Joseph, Missouri.—"Both of my sides swelled and hurt me so that I could not move or do any of my work. There was heavy pressure and pains through my lower organs and the doctor told me to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for these troubles. He said I had this one chance, and if the Vegetable Compound did not help me nothing but an operation would. After taking several bottles I felt it was helping me and now I am able to do my own work. If my condition will help others I shall be glad for them to read it and hope your Vegetable Compound will do them as much good as it did me." — Mrs. Wm. Lockman, 613 N. 4th St., St. Joseph, Mo.

White Plains, N. Y.—"I had such a pain that I could hardly walk and the doctor said that I needed an operation. I was sick for a year before I started taking your medicine and I could not work. I saw your advertisement in a little book and that is how I came to take Lydia E. Pinkham's medicine. I have been taking the Vegetable Compound and Lydia E.

Pinkham's Blood Medicine, also Lydia E. Pinkham's Liver Pills and used Lydia E. Pinkham's Sanative Wash and the capsules and prescription recommended. I am doing all my work and have gained twenty pounds. I am taking the medicines still, but I feel fine. You have my permission to use this letter for the good of others." — Mrs. Mary M. Some female troubles may through neglect reach a stage when an operation is necessary. But most of the commoner ailments are not the surgical ones; they are not caused by serious displacements, tumors, or growths, although the symptoms may appear the same.

When distressing ailments first appear, take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to relieve the present distress and prevent more serious troubles. Many letters have been received from women who have been restored to health by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound after operations have been advised by attending physicians.

Mrs. Charles Sparr of Prescott, Iowa

He was learning his ABC's at fifteen months!

THAT the well-nourished, healthy child is mentally alert and forward, has been the contention of child experts for years. Mrs. Sparr has had this experience with her young son, Villiar, now two and a half years old.

Eagle Brand Milk has always been Villiar's food. He has had constant good health all of his short life—"full of vim and pep"—his mother calls it. And he has been strong and well developed too. He walked at ten months, and at fifteen Mrs. Sparr began teaching him his ABC's. He has taken intelligence," she says, and "he learns exceedingly fast." Today at the age of two and a half he can use a tooth brush to perfection!

Of course, Mrs. Sparr is an unusually thoughtful mother and has given her child the best of care. But she insists that Eagle Brand deserves the credit for his splendid vigor.

If you wish your baby to get a fine start in life, don't experiment with his food. Thousands of other mothers have had Mrs. Sparr's experience. For Eagle Brand has been the accepted baby food for generations. Every day letters come in from grateful mothers testifying to its benefits. Doctors recommend it in difficult feeding cases—because of its digestibility.

Eagle Brand is always pure and safe, always uniform, on sale everywhere. It is a special boon to mothers in hot weather because the unopened cans keep indefinitely and you always have a ready supply.

Are you keeping your baby's history? Years from now it will mean much to you. Send for our cunning record book, "The Best Baby." We will mail it FREE with an Eagle Brand feeding chart.

Up on Arithmetic.

She isn't of school age yet—not by a year. But she knows her arithmetic.

The other evening a neighbor asked whether little Miss Wisdom knew her A, B, C's.

"I know only a few of them," was the reply. "I can count good, though."

"Oh, is that so? You can count—let's hear you."

There was a brief pause and then she began:

"One, two, three, four, five, six, seven, eight, nine, ten, Jack, queen, king."

Very Cursory.

A huntman called at the farmstead to settle for damages done by the hounds and found only the farmer's wife at home.

"Has your good man made an examination yet?" he asked.

"That he have, sir," replied Mrs. Hodge.

"Rather a cursory examination, I suspect?"

"Oh, dreadful, sir! Such language I never heard—never!"

And the dame held up her hands at the bare recollection.—Tit-Bits.

Sure Relief FOR INDIGESTION

Ramsey Milholland by Booth Tarkington

THE FIRST KISS.

Synopsis.—With his grandfather, small Ramsey Milholland is watching the "Decorations Day Parade" in the home town. The old gentleman, a veteran of the Civil war, endeavors to impress the youngster with the significance of the great conflict, and many years afterward the boy was to remember words with starting vividness. In the schoolroom a few years afterward, for remarkable ability, though his pronounced dislike for arithmetic, "Revelations" and "Declarations" in Ramsey's backwoods is the precocity of little Dora Yocum, a young lady whom in his bitterness he denominated "Teacher's Pet." In high school, where he and Dora are classmates, Ramsey continues to feel that the girl delights to manifest her superiority, and the vindictiveness he generates becomes alarming, culminating in the resolution that some day he will "show" her. At a class picnic Ramsey is captured by and baggage by Milla Rust, the class beauty, and endures the agonies of his first love. Ramsey's parents object to this, and wish he'd taken up with Dora Yocum.

Milla hung weightily upon his arm, and they dawdled, drifting from one side of the pavement to the other as they slowly advanced. Albert and Sadie, ahead of them, called "good night" from a corner, before turning down the side street where Sadie lived; and then, presently, Ramsey and Milla were at the latter's gate. He went in with her, halting at the front steps.

"Well, g'night, Milla," he said. "Want to go out walking tomorrow night? Albert and Sadie are."

"I can't tomorrow night," she told him with obvious regret. "Isn't it the worst luck! I got an aunt comin' to visit from Chicago, and she's crazy about playing 'Five Hundred,' and mama and papa said I haf to stay in to make four to play it. She's liable to be here three or four days, and I guess I got to be around home pretty much all the time she's here. It's the worst luck!"

He was doleful, but ventured to be literary. "Well, what can't be helped must be endured. I'll come around when she's gone."

He moved as if to depart, but she still retained his arm and did not prepare to relinquish it.

"Well—" he said.

"Well what, Ramsey?"

"Well—g'night."

She glanced up at the dark front of the house. "I guess the family's gone to bed," she said absently.

"I s'pose so."

"Well, good night, Ramsey," she said, but still did not release his arm, and suddenly, in a flutter, he felt that the time he dreaded had come. Somehow, without knowing where, except that it was somewhere upon what seemed to be a blurred face too full of obstructing features, he kissed her.

She turned instantly away in the darkness, her hands over her cheeks; and in a panic Ramsey wondered if he hadn't made a dreadful mistake.

"Scuse me!" he said, stumbling toward the gate. "Well, I guess I got to be gettin' along back home."

He woke in the morning to a great self-loathing; he had kissed a girl. Mingled with the loathing was a curious pride in the very fact that caused the loathing, but the pride did not last long. He came downstairs morbid to breakfast, and continued this mood afterward.

At noon Albert Paxton brought him a note which Milla had asked Sadie to ask Albert to give him.

"Dearie: I am just wondering if you thought as much about something so sweet that happened last night as I did you know what. I think it was the sweetest thing. I send you one with this note and I hope you will think it is a sweet one. I would give you a real one if you were here now and I hope you would think it was sweeter still than the one I put in this note. It is the sweetest thing now you are mine and I am yours forever kiddo. If you come around about Friday eve it will be all right. Aunt Jess will be gone back home by then so come early and we will get Sadie and Alb to go to the band concert. Don't forget what I said about my putting something sweet in this note, and I hope you will think it is a sweet one but not as sweet as the real sweet one I would like to—"

At this point Ramsey impulsively tore the note into small pieces. He turned cold as his imagination projected a sketch of his mother in the act of reading this missive, and of her expression as she read the sentence: "It is the sweetest thing now you are mine and I am yours forever kiddo." He wished that Milla hadn't written that. She called him that, and he was a little boy.

Pausing in an Alley, He Read Her Note.

considered himself unfit to be seen walking with her.

He had a long afternoon of anguishes, these becoming most violent when he tried to face the problem of his future course toward Milla.

He did not face it at all, in fact, but merely writhed, and had evolved nothing when Friday evening was upon him and Milla waiting for him to take her to the "band concert" with "Alb and Sade."

He made shift to seek a short interview with Albert, just before dinner.

"I got a pretty rotten headache, and my stomach's upset, too," he said, drooping upon the Paxtons' fence. "I been gettin' worse every minute. You and Sade go by Milla's, Albert, and tell her if I'm not there by ha'-past-seven, tell her not to wait for me any longer."

"How do you mean wait?" Albert inquired. "You don't expect her to come pokin' along with Sade and me, do you? She'll keep on sittin' there at home just the same, because she wouldn't have anything else to do, if you don't come like she expects you to. She hasn't got any way to stop waitin'!"

At this, Ramsey moaned, without affectation. "I don't expect I can, Albert," he said. "I'd like to if I could, but the way it looks now, you tell her I wouldn't be much surprised maybe I was startin' in with typhoid fever or pretty near anything at all." He moved away, concluding feebly: "I guess I better crawl on home, Albert, while I'm still able to walk some. You tell her the way it looks now I'm liable to be right sick."

And the next morning he woke to the changes of remorse, picturing a Milla somewhat restored in charm waiting hopefully at the gate, even after the half-past seven, and then, as time passed and the sound of the distant horns came faintly through the darkness, going sadly to her room—sighing weeping there. It was a picture to wring him with shame and pity, but was followed by another which electrified him, for out of school he did not lack imagination. What if Albert had reported his illness too vividly to Milla? Milla was so fond! What if, in her alarm, she should come here to the house to inquire of his mother about him? What if she told Mrs. Milholland they were "engaged"? The next moment Ramsey was projecting a conversation between his mother and Milla in which the latter stated that she and Ramsey were soon to be married, that she regarded him as already virtually her husband, and demanded to nurse him.

In a panic he fled from the house before breakfast, going out by way of a side door, and he crossed back yards and climbed back fences to reach Albert Paxton the more swiftly. This creature, a ladies' man almost professionally, was found exercising with an electric iron and a pair of flannel trousers in a basement laundry, by way of stirring his appetite for the morning meal.

"See here, Albert," his friend said breathlessly. "I got a favor. I want you to go over to Milla's—"

"I'm goin' to finish pressin' these trousers," Albert interrupted. "Then I've got my breakfast to eat!"

"Well, you could do this first," said Ramsey, hurriedly. "It wouldn't hurt you to do me this little favor first. You just slip over and see Milla for me, if she's up yet, and if she isn't, you better wait around till she is, because I want you to tell her I'm a whole lot better this morning. Tell her I'm pretty near practically all right again, Albert, and I'll prob'ly write her a note or something right soon—or in a week or so, anyhow. You tell her—"

"Well, you act pretty funny," Albert exclaimed, fumbling in the pockets of his coat. "Why can't you go on over and tell her yourself? But just as it happens there wouldn't be any use your goin' over there, or me, either."

"Why not?"

"Milla ain't there," said Albert, still searching the pockets of his coat. "When we went by her house last night to tell her about your headache and stomach and all, why, her mother told us Milla'd gone up to Chicago yesterday afternoon with her aunt, and said she left a note for you, and she said if you were sick I better take it and give it to you. I was goin' to bring it over to your house after breakfast." He found it. "Here!"

Ramsey thanked him feebly, and departed in a state of partial stupefaction, brought on by a glimpse of the instabilities of life. He had also, not relief, but a sense of vacancy and loss; for Milla, out of his reach, once more became mysteriously lovely.

Pausing in an alley, he read her note.

"Dearie: Thought I ought to call you up but over the 'phone is just nix for explanations as Mama and Aunt Jess would hear everything, and thought I might seem cold to you not saying anything sweet on account of them listening and you would wonder why I was so cold when telling you good-by for a while maybe weeks. It is this way Uncle Purv wired Aunt Jess he has just taken in a big touring car on a debt and his vacation starts tomorrow so if they were going to take a trip they better start right way so Aunt Jess invited me. Now dearie I have to pack and write this in a hurry so you will not be disappointed when you come by for the B. C. to-night. Do not go get some other girl and take her for I would hate her and nothing in this world would make me false for one second to my kiddo boy. I do not know just when home again as the folks think I better stay up there for a visit at Aunt Jess and Uncle Purv's home in Chicago after the trip is over. But I think of you all the time and you must think of me every minute and believe your own dearie she will never not for one second be false. So tell Sade and Alb good-by for me and do not be false to me any more than I would be to you and it will not be long till nothing more will interrupt our sweet friendship."

As a measure of domestic prudence, Ramsey tore the note into irreparable fragments, but he did this slowly, and without experiencing any of the revulsion created by Milla's former missive.

He was melancholy, aggrieved that she should treat him so.

UNDERTAKER HAD LAST SAY

Revised Version of Old Story Leaves Welshman the Winner Over Admittedly Canny Scotsman.

Admittedly, this may be an old story, but it has the distinction of possessing a new twist at the end:

A person died. He willed all his earthly possessions to be divided among an Englishman, an Irishman and a Scotsman. But the will was conditional; each of the legatees was to place five pounds in the testator's coffin. On the day appointed (by Fate) the Englishman placed a five-pound note as willed; the Irishman collected a number of coins somehow—shillings, pence and coppers—and made up his contribution of five pounds, which he placed on the Englishman's flyer. The Scotsman then made out a check for 15 pounds and, pocketing the 10 pounds already deposited, threw in his check, with the remark, "That's cash."

A month later, when the Scotsman perused his pass book he was surprised to find that his check had been cashed. The undertaker was a Welshman.—Philadelphia Record.

Sensible Question.

She had the money and he a small job. He wished to get married very badly, but she was rather undecided. One night as they sat talking about the future, he having coaxed her into a half-way engagement, he said:

"And we'll be very careful and not run into debt and have trouble as the Scotsman did. We'll always pay cash, won't we, dear?"

A suspicious look came into her face. Quickly she put forth the question: "Whose cash?"

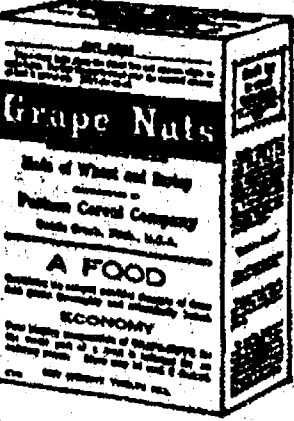

When Will There Be A Disarmament of Dining Tables?

Suppose everybody would recognize the fact that there's no gain but much loss in keeping up hostilities with the stomach!

Suppose the ancient aggravation of improper food on indignant digestive organs should be settled with guarantees of sensible diet and tranquil digestion!

The saving would be beyond all possibility of counting.

Yet millions go on declaring war on the stomach and accepting war in return—loading up on starchy, heavy, unbalanced and highly-seasoned food at breakfast or lunch—and wondering why comfort, happiness and efficiency are out of reach.

Grape-Nuts makes a friend of the taste and an ally of the stomach.

There's a charm and satisfaction to this delicious food which prompts appetite to say, "There's a meal!" and digestion to answer, "Thank goodness, here's peace at last!"

Grape-Nuts is the perfected nutriment of wheat and malted barley—sweet, crisp, and wonderfully nourishing. It digests quickly, and provides the necessary elements, including the vital mineral salts, for body, nerve and brain.

Order Grape-Nuts from your grocer today, and let a delighted taste pass a treaty of peace along to an enthusiastic digestion and assimilation.

Olive Is Ancient Fruit.

It is doubtful if there are many fruits that have been known to man longer than the olive. Records show it was cultivated by the Egyptians more than 4,000 years ago, and olives and the olive tree are mentioned often in the Bible and all ancient writings. Asia Minor is supposed to have been the original home of the olive. The trees often reach a great height and a very old age—some of them in parts of southern France being nearly 2,000 years old.

BUSY STREET CORNER SAFEST

Logical Reason Why There Are Few Accidents Where the Traffic Is the Heaviest.

"You must have lots of accidents here," said a friend of Traffic Commissioner Harriss the other day as they were passing one of the most congested corners of the city. "I'm not surprised either," he added as he saw a large touring car come suddenly to a halt less than half a foot from a passing pedestrian.

The commissioner shook his head. "That's where you're wrong," he replied. "Not only are there not more but there are actually less accidents here in proportion to the amount of traffic that goes by than almost any other place in New York. If you'll think a minute you'll see the reason for it, too. Where the street is more or less quiet and deserted a person crossing the road is less apt to look for approaching vehicles. Where they are always passing, however, he is always on the lookout. The theory works both ways. While the pedestrian keeps a close watch on the stream of traffic, the automobile driver also keeps tab on the continuous file of pedestrians in his way. On a comparatively quiet street both pedestrians and cars are exceptions and accidents are bound to occur."

Savings not earnings are the means of financial success. Time and labor saved are money saved. Proper care of Rugs and Draperies means money saved. People through the country have found it to be a real investment to have electricity in their homes.

Beating, sweeping or shaking Rugs the old way cannot remove more than the surface dirt, while it may break the warp and crush the nap.

Take any Rug that has been thoroughly broom swept and then go over it with a Hoover or Torrington Electric Vacuum Cleaner. You'll be astonished at the amount of grit, dirt and foreign matter brought to light and delighted to see how electric cleaning restores the crushed nap and brings out fresh and clean the original colorings.

Sparkling Programs.

The Twenty-ninth Annual May Festival of the University of Michigan, which will be given during the four days beginning Wednesday, May 17, with four evening concerts and two matinees, promises to provide patrons of this classic event an opportunity of hearing a variety of music offerings such as should afford delight to laymen as well as professionals. While the general program will follow along the lines of those which have been given so successfully for many years past a glance at the numbers to be offered and the general arrangement will indicate that a greater variety of offerings and selections of a more brilliant nature will be provided. Considerable attention has also been given to the building of programs which will be of a nature as to avoid musical indigestion. Sparkling orchestral selections will be provided by the Chicago Symphony Orchestra, which has participated continuously since 1905, while the numbers to be performed by the University Choral Union will be of a particularly attractive character. These two features which naturally form the basis of the festival will be materially assisted by the presence of a list of soloists of high rank. The artists who have been engaged contain many new faces of wide recognition and some who have appeared to great advantage on former occasions.

Two programs which may be termed "artist nights" will be provided on Wednesday and Friday evenings. On the first occasion Mario Chalmée, the renowned tenor of the Metropolitan Opera Company, will appear for the first time in Ann Arbor and will offer three arias.

The Friday evening concert will be of a similar nature and will serve to present to the public the vocal pyrotechnics of Frieda Hempel, the renowned coloratura soprano of the Metropolitan Opera Company.

Thursday and Saturday evening the University Choral Union will offer two attractive works.

On Saturday evening the climax of the festival will be reached when Wagner's "Tannhäuser" will be sung in English with a cast of celebrated artists.

The two afternoon concerts will be of a widely different character. On Friday the program will be built especially for the large chorus of school children which will appear under the direction of George Oscar Bowen.

On Saturday afternoon lovers of symphonic music will have an opportunity of hearing the Chicago Symphony Orchestra in Rachmaninoff's Symphony, No. 2, as well as other selections.

A unique feature of the program will be the offering on Friday evening by the Choral Union of a Paalmodic Rhapsody composed by Frederick Stock.

The entire festival program, with the exception of the children's program, which will be conducted by Mr. Bowen, and the New Life, which will be conducted by the Acting-Conductor of the Choral Union, Earl V. Moore, will be under the musical directorship of Frederick Stock.

Ruling Curbs Carrier Problem.

Persons contracting typhoid fever from now on, according to a ruling of the state department of health, shall be isolated "until specimens of feces taken at intervals of not less than one week after clinical recovery from the fever have been found free from the typhoid bacillus." Patients were formerly released on apparent recovery without any scientific proof that they would not spread the infection.

The purpose of this new health regulation is to restrain the release of "typhoid carriers"—patients who have recovered but are still capable of transmitting the infection—among susceptible individuals. Since all cases are carriers for at least a limited period after recovery and approximately 1 per cent of all typhoid fever patients become permanent carriers of the disease for periods of from 1 to 20 years, it is estimated that several hundred unknown carriers, potential foci of epidemics, are always at large in the state. Much of the typhoid which occurs annually is of carrier origin, authorities declare.

"It is this paradox of a personally clean people permitting the existence of typhoid fever," comments Dr. R. M. Olin, commissioner of health, "that occasioned Sir William Osler to liken the sanitary conditions of the smaller towns and rural districts of the United States to those of the Middle Ages and to contend that the question of controlling typhoid rests with the people themselves rather than with the medical profession. Closer attention must be paid to water, milk and food supplies, and the carrier problem in every community if typhoid is to be controlled this summer."

Forty-two counties have reported cases of typhoid since January 1, 1922. In January 69 cases of the disease were reported, in February 40 and in March 78. Twenty-four deaths occurred during the first two months of the year. The disease is now most prevalent in the counties of Ontonagon, Genesee, Saginaw, Lenawee and Wayne.

Be Kind to Animals.

Be kind to Animals Week, April 24th to 29th with Humane Sunday coming on Sunday, April 30, will be largely observed this year and why not when the Department of Agriculture declares that birds in the United States save the farmers the enormous sum of $400,000,000 a year.

NEWS REVIEW OF CURRENT EVENTS

British and French Premiers Given Votes of Confidence on Genoa Policies.

FORMER MAKES GREAT SPEECH

Russians Warned Partial Recognition Depends on Good Behavior—De Valera Trying to Upset Irish Free State—Progress of the Coal Miners' Strike.

By EDWARD W. PICKARD

HAVING triumphed over his enemies with a vote of confidence—372 to 24—in the house of commons, Premier Lloyd George, instead of resigning, has gone to Genoa to lay before the economic conference his plans for the regeneration of Europe. On the same day as the British test Premier Poincare laid his foreign policies before the French chamber of deputies, and they were approved by a vote of 484 to 78. Whereupon he also decided to attend the conference as soon as his official duties at home would permit. Both the British and the French have been growing more hopeful daily that good and definite results will come from the Genoa meeting.

Probably Lloyd George never made a more effective speech than that which preceded the vote of the commons. He spoke for an hour and a half, setting forth eloquently the conditions that his country and Europe generally face, and replying with humor and keen satire to the attacks of his opponents, who frequently joined in the applause. Defending the limitations placed on the scope of the conference, barring the discussion of revision of boundaries and of reparations, he argued that no one of his hearers would wish to go back on the clauses of the treaty of Versailles by which Alsace-Lorraine was restored to France, Poland resurrected and the independence of the Slavonic populations of Austria-Hungary recognized. Nor, said he, was there any use criticizing the reparations, since to alter these would simply transfer the burden from Germany to France, England and Belgium, but mainly to France. He asserted France should not be asked or expected to forego the right she won at such cost, or to submit to the judgment of a conference in which not only her former enemies but also neutrals are represented. Germany's ultimate capacity to pay, he added, must not be judged by her capacity at this moment. Discussing the main theme of the conference, the establishment of peace, credits, currency, exchange, transports and the machinery of international trade, the premier dealt largely with Russia and said he believed its present rulers had been brought into a new frame of mind by the famine and would now recognize the conditions imposed and accepted by civilized communities, acknowledging Russia's debts and promising to cease their attacks on the institutions of other countries. He pledged that there would be no full diplomatic recognition of the soviet government until the powers should be entirely satisfied that Russia was really endeavoring to carry out the terms of such an undertaking.

Mr. Lloyd George may have been over-optimistic about the repentance of the Russians. The soviet delegates became more and more cocky as they made their way toward Genoa, and in Berlin they arranged for close co-operation with the German delegation, reached an economic understanding with Chancellor Wirth and Foreign Minister Rathenau and made agreements with the representatives of German industry and finance. Rathenau explains that his accord with the Russians is due to the position taken by the allies on the reparations. Among the recent demands made on Germany by the reparations commission is the payment of 60,000,000 marks in increased taxation. This demand, it is said, the German government has rejected, claiming it is an invasion of Germany's sovereign rights.

In the anthracite field the conditions were more promising, for the miners' and operators' subcommittee was in continuous session in New York and both sides were submitting their cases. In non-unionized regions a good many mines were in operation, but the union organizers were busy and claimed to have made large gains there. The operators disputed the great majority of the strikers are notifying them that they must begin paying interest on their debts to her next October, or make some new arrangement then, so that Britain can pay the interest on what she owes the United States. The French believe this will cause the whole matter of inter-allied debts to be brought up in the Genoa conference.

MICHAEL COLLINS and his provisional government of the Irish Free State are facing a critical situation and it is a debatable question whether they will survive officially. This despite the fact that the British government is assembling large bodies of troops to go to their support in case of necessity. It is believed De Valera and the radical republicans are planning the establishment of a military dictatorship, and continuous raids and outrages by republican bands lend support to this belief. Murders, ambushes and seizures of arms are of daily occurrence, and in northwest Ireland it is said large districts which had supported the Free State have gone over to the republican camp. As was intimated in these columns last week, the peace pact between the Free State and Ulster is quite ineffective in restoring peace to the island. Catholics and Protestants, Free Staters and republicans, are in never ceasing conflict, and when they cannot do better the Irish get up "private fights."

CHARLES, ex-emperor of Austria-Hungary, who died of pneumonia at Funchal, Madeira, may have left a legacy of trouble for some of his former subjects. On the receipt of the news of his death, the royalists of Hungary got busy and started a movement to declare his son Otto, nine years old, king of that country. The legitimists in the parliament planned to introduce a measure for Otto's immediate return to Hungary and his education under Hungarian teachers. There is no likelihood that a majority of the Hungarian people would favor restoration of the Hapsburg dynasty, nor that the allies would permit it.

OPPOSITION to the allied plans for reviving the Turkish empire is growing in Greece. Thrace and Smyrna, especially protest against being restored to the sultan, the former demanding the status quo and the latter autonomy. The Thracian deputies in the Greek chamber have wired to President Harding, Secretary Hughes and the chancellors of other nations that "the Greeks in Thrace would sooner die than return to Turkish slavery." London hears that the Greeks of Smyrna are ready to revolt and set up an independent state rather than have the land turned over to Turkey. They have an active committee in London and are raising money among Greeks everywhere. It is believed the leaders in this movement may use Smyrna as an excuse for a coup to return Venizelos to power in Greece.

ALTHOUGH efforts to bring about agreements that will end the coal miners' strike are continuous, it cannot be said that they are meeting with any conspicuous success. The house committee on labor is taking the lead in these efforts and through its chairman, Representative Nolan, invited the miners and the bituminous operators of the central competitive field to a joint conference. The operators of western Pennsylvania and southern Ohio already had refused to take part in such a conference, but President Lewis of the mine workers said the men would accept the invitation if sufficient tonnage was represented. Then declarations were received by Mr. Nolan from practically all the other groups of operators, chiefly because they felt a conference of fragments of the central field would be unavailing. Besides, they asserted they had been and still were willing to meet the miners of their own states or districts for separate wage settlements.

In the anthracite field the conditions were more promising, for the miners' and operators' subcommittee was in continuous session in New York and both sides were submitting their cases. In non-unionized regions a good many mines were in operation, but the union organizers were busy and claimed to have made large gains there. The operators disputed the great majority of the strikers are enjoying their period of leisure and making plans for extensive fishing and camping trips. In Kansas the industrial court ordered that the present wage agreement be continued for thirty days, and the Southwestern Coal Operators' association agreed to this. The operators declare that the ultimate goal of the union miners is the nationalization of the coal industry, and of course they oppose this, though they are not able to refute the assertion that the industry is, as Secretary Hoover says, one of the worst functioning industries in the country. It is always in a chaotic condition, as regards both production and distribution. When President Lewis went before the house committee to present the case of the strikers, he said the miners could see no permanent solution of their difficulties without nationalization of the coal mines. But questions brought out that while he would favor the establishment of a governing board to bring about stabilization of the industry, controlling the production, distribution and price of coal, he would oppose the creation of a tribunal with power to fix wages. Naturally he did not get far with such a one-sided proposition.

ONE THOUSAND AND SIXTY-FOUR bodies, last of America's dead to be brought from the cemeteries of France, were landed last week at Brooklyn and the heroes were honored with a solemn parade and impressive funeral ceremonies at the army base there. Prominent army and navy officers, high representatives of the government, governors of several states and many other distinguished persons took part, and President Harding sent a message and a wreath.

IN THE presence of President and Mrs. Harding, cabinet members, high government officials and arctic explorers, a handsome memorial was placed Thursday on the grave of Rear Admiral Robert E. Peary in Arlington national cemetery. Following a suggestion made by Peary during his last illness, it is in the form of a huge spheroid of granite, representing the earth, with the North pole, which he discovered, marked by a gold star. The memorial was unveiled by Admiral Peary's daughter, Mrs. Edward Stanford, who has been in the Arctic regions and was long known as the "Snow Baby."

PRESIDENT HARDING has not yet yielded to the demand that he give specific reason for the sudden dismissal of Director Wilmethe and all division superintendents of the bureau of printing and engraving, merely stating that it was for the good of the service. Louis A. Hill was made director and a committee began checking up the stock of the bureau. Reports that there had been a wholesale duplication of Liberty bonds were at first denied, but later Mr. Hill admitted there might be basis for the rumor. This bureau cleanup started talk of impending wholesale dismissals in other departments.

SECRETARY OF THE NAVY DENBY has taken official notice of the activities of certain treasonable societies "having their origin in foreign countries" and has warned the officers and men of the navy to beware of their "sinister propaganda to undermine the morale of the navy and to insinuate into its personnel elements of disloyalty and disorder."

REPRESENTATIVE TINKHAM of Massachusetts, a consistent opponent of the Anti-Saloon league, made a hot attack on that organization on the floor of the house, denouncing its political activities and charging it and its subsidiaries have frequently violated the federal statutes by making false returns. He admitted it would be useless to ask a congressional inquiry because the league controls congress completely, and therefore he made a public request that the Department of Justice investigate the facts he had submitted.

MICHIGAN TOWN PERILED BY FLOOD

MELTING OF WINTER'S SNOW CAUSES LOST RIVER TO SWEEP OVER BANKS.

D. & M. TRACKS WASHED OUT

One Resident of Tower Loses His Life In Fight to Save Town from Complete Destruction.

Onaway, Mich.—One life has been lost and the entire village of Tower is in danger of being swept away, as the Lost river, already at the highest point in its history, rages behind the huge dam above the village.

Its banks are overflowed for miles, and surrounding country is inundated; periling hundreds of lives.

Scores of construction gangs from nearby points are battling madly to keep the water pent up and save the village from destruction. Guy Stanton, 34 years old, of Onaway, aiding this struggle, was swept from the dam and lost in the swirling waters.

Claud Post would have suffered a similar fate but for the bravery of his brother Alfred, who succeeded in rescuing him, but only after what appeared for many minutes to be a hopeless battle in the foaming current.

Five hundred feet of the D. & M. railway track has been torn away, and a huge water tower wrecked. Railroad ties, trees, fence posts and other wreckage are being swept down stream, adding to the peril of workers who are fighting to save the dam. In spite of the great danger, a ceaseless fight is being waged for the safety of the village, and there is still hope that the waters will be held back.

Damage already has mounted to thousands of dollars in the surrounding country, and is increasing steadily as the inundated area grows.

Heavy snow accumulations disappeared suddenly with the unusually warm weather and rain added to the torrent which suddenly poured into the river course, and rose rapidly above its banks.

Small buildings, fences, immense trees and other debris were wrenched loose. The 300 residents of Tower at first regarded it as the usual spring flood, but with the continued rise of the water they became alarmed and calls for help were rushed to surrounding points.

Carrying away of the water tower, and damage to the railway track, added to the fears of the villagers and added vigor to the struggle to save the little community.

BODY OF REV. REYNOLDS FOUND

Disappearance of Detroit Pastor Mystery Since Last November.

Detroit—Positive identification of the body found Sunday in the Saginaw river at Bay City by a fisherman as that of Rev. Henry F. Reynolds, Detroit pastor, missing since November 13, last, was made late Monday, according to Sheriff Theodore Trudell of Bay City. Identification was made by Edward F. Wunsch, an attorney, of Detroit, a member of the Church of the New Jerusalem, East Forest avenue, of which Rev. Reynolds was the pastor.

The search for Reynolds, which began nearly five months ago, extended through the United States and Canada. He was last seen early Sunday morning, November 13.

Belief that the young clergyman was a victim of amnesia was supported by the fact that he took with him no articles of clothing. A partially finished sermon was found on a table in his room.

NOT GUILTY PLEA FOR DODGE

Detroit Millionaire and Companion To Be Tried Next Week.

Kalamazoo, Mich.—John Duval Dodge, Detroit millionaire, and Ray Earl, his companion on a joyride March 11, will be tried in circuit court here next week on a charge of possessing, transporting and distributing liquor. The offense with which the two are charged is a felony.

A statement that the trial would start next week was made by Prosecuting Attorney Stephen H. Wattle, following arraignment of Dodge and Earl before Judge Weimer, Monday morning. Both Dodge and Earl stood mute on the advice of their counsel, Attorney Harry Howard, and a plea of not guilty was entered for them.

DAY CLEARED IN HONOR SLAYING

Coroner's Jury Gives Verdict of Justifiable Homicide.

Oklahoma City, Okla.—A coroner's jury, facing a sea of tense faces, strained to catch every word, freed Jean P. Day, former supreme court judge and oil millionaire, from blame in the death of Lieut. Col. Paul Ward Beck, pioneer army aviator, and commandant of Post field at Fort Sill.

The verdict read: "Judge Jean P. Day was justified for having shot and killed Lieutenant Colonel Paul W. Beck. He shot in defense of his life, wife and home, and was, the jury, recommended that any thought of criminal prosecution against him be dropped."

MARKETS

(Furnished by U. S. BUREAU OF MARKETS Washington, D. C.)

(For the week ending April 6, 1922.)

Grain. Prices unsettled during the week and averaged lower. Chicago May wheat down 5c, closing at $1.32 1/2. Chicago May corn down 1/2 cent at 58 1/2-1/2. Lack of buying support and unsatisfactory conditions in cash situation were outstanding market factors. Argentina reported Germany arranging for additional credit of $25,000,000 with that country to buy grain and beef.

Closing prices in Chicago cash market: No. 2 red winter wheat $1.32; No. 2 hard winter wheat $1.32; No. 2 mixed corn 57c; No. 2 yellow corn 58c; No. 3 white oats 38c.

For the week Minneapolis May wheat down 2c, closing at $1.40 1/2-1/2; Kansas City May wheat down 1/2 cent at $1.17; Winnipeg May wheat down 3/4 cent at $1.32.

Market generally firm because of light receipts. Prices advanced at Pittsburgh and Chicago. Demand mostly local and for immediate needs only. Good shipping demand at Minneapolis. Alfalfa wanted at Chicago. Some indications of large movement of country roads improve. Demand not broad and prices are likely to weaken with larger receipts.

Quoted April 6: No. 1 Timothy, New York $2.50; Philadelphia $2.50; Pittsburgh $2.4; Cincinnati $2.50; Chicago $2.7; Minneapolis $2.1; Atlanta $2.0; Kansas City $1.50; No. 1 alfalfa meal $19.50; Kansas City $17.50; Minneapolis $17.50.

Feed. Mill feed markets unchanged. Unfavorable conditions slightly firmer. Wheat and corn feed production rather heavy. Corns liberally offered, but demand held prices steady. Interior demand improved. Alfalfa meal steady. Domestic and export demand for corn meal negligible. Offerings light. Stocks at mills fair. Gluten feed and hominy feed prices unchanged. Demand for receipts stocks and movement good.

Quoted April 6: Bran $2.1, middlings $2.50; rye middlings $2.5; rye middlings $2.5; Minneapolis $2.5; Kansas City $2.5; Chicago $2.5; white hominy feed $2.75; Chicago $2.75; St. Louis $2.75.

Fruits and Vegetables. Potato markets weaker. New York and northern market round whites $1.15 @ 1.20 in leading grades. Carrots sales in Chicago down 10c at $1.00 @ 1.10 per 100 lbs.

Live Stock and Meats. Chicago hog prices advanced 15c @ 40c. Beef steers steady, but butchers' cows and heifers firm to 15c higher.

April 6 Chicago prices: Hogs top $10.00; bulk of sales $10.10 @ 10.30; medium and good $10.40 @ 10.50; heavy $10.60 @ 10.70; best cows and heifers $10.50 @ 10.60; feeder steers $10.40 @ 10.50; light and medium weight veal calves $10.30 @ 10.40; $12 @ 12.25; feeding lambs $11.75 @ 11.75; yearlings $11.75 @ 14.50; fat ewes $7.25 @ 10.50.

The trend of eastern wholesale fresh meat prices was upward. Pork loins led with an advance ranging from $1 @ 3 per 100 pounds. Lard $1.00 @ 1.05; firm to 1c higher; best steady at some markets and 50c higher at others; mutton unchanged. Pork chops $10.50 @ 11.00; lamb $12.50 @ 13.50; veal $10.50 @ 11.00; lamb $12.50 @ 13.50; veal $10.50 @ 11.00.

Dairy Products. Butter markets barely steady following a week of unsettled trading. Chicago higher than New York part of week with result that receipts at Chicago increased. Closing prices $2 score: New York $1 1/2-1 3/4; Chicago $1 1/4; Philadelphia $1 1/2-1 3/4; Boston $1 1/2-1 3/4.

DETOIT QUOTATIONS. Feed and Grain. Students Back Up Professor.

Gloucester, N. J.—Members of the sophomore and senior classes of the Gloucester High School, who went on strike in protest against the suspension of William Katcher, hygiene teacher, have returned to their classes. They announced, however, that they will continue to fight for the reinstatement of Katcher, who was suspended following charges that he spoke too frankly in lectures on social hygiene before mixed classes of the students.

Easter Wish

To those who bear a heavy load
Of sorrow, pain or care,
May Easter come with blessed hope
And help those ill to bear.

To those whose favored lot in life
Seems crowned with blessings rare,
May Easter whisper, "Seek the poor"—
Their griefs and trials share.

To those who quiver 'neath the smart
Of wrong unjustly borne,
May Easter bring the grace of Him
Who wore the crown of thorn.

HARRY WONG TI, LEGION MAN

One of China's Most Active Sons in New York, Worker for His Organization.

The long-tailed queues and honorable garb of the celestials, the dangerous dives and the ornate joss-houses are pointed out to sight-seers aboard New York's rubber-neck busses rumbling through Chinatown. But perspicacious persons realize that "China in America" is represented as often by clean-cut young men as by long-haired ancients. Harry Wong Ti, who served in the Seventy-seventh division, is one of China's most active sons in New York. One of three American-born Chinese ex-service men of the John Purroy Mitchell post of the American Legion, Ti is busily occupied in raising funds for a lean-to at the veterans' mountain camp in the Adirondacks. He also serves on the executive committee of his post.

In a recent round-up of slackers in Chinatown several Chinese ex-soldiers assisted the Legion "detectives" in the work of tracking their quarry, and in many other ways Chinese service men have proved to the Legion, by their progressiveness and their initiative, how worthy they are as patriotic citizens.

OLD GLORY AND UNION JACK

Great Arch Astride Canadian and

Astride the Canadian border at Blaine, Wash., is a great peace arch, celebrating a hundred years of friendly relations between Canada and the United States. Side by side float, the Stars and Stripes and the Union Jack—a symbol of our international good will.

The vista of peace which American Legionnaires saw in their mind's eye through this portal gave them the name of their "Peace Arch post" at Blaine. At the time of the unveiling of the monument the Legion took an active part in the ceremonies, and represented with their uniformed ranks the strengthening of the bonds of brotherly feeling with Canada which came as a result of the recent alliance against a common enemy for common ideals.

On the architrave of the monument are carved the words, "Children of a Common Mother," to perpetuate the idea of the triangular relationship between England and her two American offsprings.

Carrying On With the American Legion

A plan that all students at Nebraska university join the Legion "for the honor of the institution and the perpetuity of our country" has been made by Chancellor Avery.

The "Society of Military and Naval Officers of the World War" has come into existence in New York state. Plans are under way to make it a nationwide organization, with hereditary membership.

Ex-service men who ask for aid at Racine, Wis., receive no hearing unless they hold a letter of endorsement from the American Legion. "Impostors in bought uniforms" have brought on the move.

Influx of Japanese on newly opened farm land is opposed by the American Legion of central Oregon. George Shima, so-called Japanese potato king, has shares in a company which owns 17,000 acres of this land.

"To aid and to aid quickly" is the object of the Washington State association in New York City, which is checking up on Washington state soldiers in need. The Legion is asking other states to "do likewise."

"Wait two years until the gas gets working good," was no idle jest on the part of the Germans. Almost one-third of the 30,000 hospital cases in America are suffering from mental disorders, the Legion reports.

NATIONAL CAPITAL AFFAIRS

Doughboy and Cold Steel Are Winners

WASHINGTON.—The doughboy with a bayonet still is the basic combatant unit in battle in the virtually unanimous judgment of the American army. Aircraft, tanks, bombs, machine guns and cannon merely are valuable auxiliaries for the "infantryman in the bulk," armed with rifle and bayonet and each foot soldier armored only by his "own agility" and a steel helmet.

For "battle is normally determined by physical encounter with the bayonet or the fear thereof," the official conclusion of the army asserts. It is based on answers to a questionnaire sent to every officer down to the commanders of regiments.

The answers were unmistakable. There has been no change, soldiers who fought in France believe, in the age-old gospel of "cold steel" in war. As it was with Cromwell's grim host bidding for victory "with push of pike," with Napoleon's old guard that "dies but never surrenders," with Pickett's "flower of the South" at Gettysburg, so it was with Pershing's "buddies" in France. Cold steel was the ultimate arbiter. The statement says replies to the questionnaire showed:

That man remains the fundamental instrument in battle and, as such, cannot be replaced by any imaginable instrument short of something more perfect than the human body, including the mind.

That man in the bulk—meaning the greater portion of the armed forces—fights with greatest freedom of action and with greatest efficiency when on foot, not on horseback, in a tank, in an airplane, or in a fixed fortification; that to achieve decisive action he is best armed with the rifle and bayonet; that man is made least vulnerable when least clothed against the weather and armored by his own agility and with steel helmet.

That infantry is the basic combatant arm upon whose success depends the success of the army; the primary duty of other arms is to assist the infantry.

That no arm except infantry can be expected, under normal conditions, to destroy an approximately equal force of enemy infantry armed with rifle and bayonet.

Radio Panacea for Farmers' Troubles?

ADAPTATION of radio communication to the peace and service of agriculture will do more to revolutionize life on America's farms than any other single factor that has ever been known, according to W. A. Wheeler, chief of the radio news service, Department of Agriculture. He says that radio can bring to the farmer those things the lack of which has done most to make farm life both difficult and distasteful—news, market information, amusements and instructive entertainment.

There are more than $2,000,000 people on farms, comprising nearly one-third the total population of the United States. Most of these are located where they are practically cut off from immediate contact with the outside world. The radio is the only means of getting to them quickly either the economic information necessary in the proper conduct of their business or the general news of the day.

The Department of Agriculture broadcasts weather, crop and market reports from six radio stations of the Post Office department. Daily market reports on the live stock, grain, cotton, hay, feed, fruit and vegetable markets are broadcast over virtually the entire United States. Farmers located almost anywhere can receive them either direct or through the assistance of amateur operators. A number of state bureaus of markets and agricultural colleges are also broadcasting both local and national market and crop reports by radio telegraphy and radiophone.

The time element in dispatching weather, crop and market news is a big factor affecting the value of such reports. Prompt daily reports on the fruit and vegetable markets enables the farmer to determine when and where farm products are most needed and to arrange his shipments accordingly.

World's One Helium Plant Shut Down

Helium is one of the rarest of gases known to science. It is derived from two sources—one from volcanoes, the other from natural gas found in certain sections of Texas, Oklahoma and Ohio, with minor deposits in some parts of Europe. It is next to the lightest substance known, the lightest being hydrogen.

Although twice as heavy as hydrogen, helium has almost the same lifting power. Tests have shown that 1,000 cubic feet of hydrogen will lift 75.1 pounds; the same amount of helium will lift 69.59 pounds. But helium has the important advantage of being noninflammable. It cannot be ignited by any means, and therefore is the ideal gas for balloons.

As the natural gas piped from the Petrolia fields comes into the helium plant it is first run through lime, which removes the carbon dioxide; next it is subjected to very low temperature, which causes the gas to turn to liquid, leaving only nitrogen and helium. Still lower temperature is then applied and only the helium is left, which is then drawn off and compressed into long slim cylinders or bottles for shipment.

The Iconoclastic Mr. Mann of Illinois

PART of the South side of Chicago has been represented for thirteen successive terms by James R. Mann. They say in Washington that he probably bites the coins returned to him in change. Then he, doubtless, rings them on the counter. At least he manifests in congress a most complete disrespect for the political amonities. Nothing is better settled in American life than that the utterances and deeds, self-accredited to particular persons, are actually the products of their brains and brawn. It would be less majestic to suggest that some obscure $60-a-month clerk in a government department actually did the work. But Representative Mann seems to have rubbed against surrounding officialdom so much that he has rubbed all the glitter off.

Congress was considering a bill for the exchange between the federal government and New York city of sites for a post office and a courthouse. A high-sounding amendment provided that the secretary of the treasury, the attorney general, the postmaster general, the secretary of commerce and the secretary of labor, be named as a commission to confer and examine and finally arrange for the exchange. "Not one of these cabinet members will ever look at these sites," glumly suggested Mr. Mann. "It will be a subordinate official who recommends the change. If I thought the five cabinet members were to serve I would be against the bill; they have something better to do."

Another representative pointed out that it was the postmaster general's own suggestion. "Oh," continued the iconoclastic Mr. Mann, "the postmaster general has not been worth a five-cent piece. He does not know anything about the Post Office department, and for one, I am mighty glad he is getting out of it."

Mrs. Florence Coop

Kokomo, Ind.—"At one time I felt draggy and worn-out and greatly in need of a tonic, when a friend suggested to me to try Doctor Pierce's Favorite Prescription. I had taken other tonics but I never took anything that helped me so quickly as the Favorite Prescription. It was not an unpleasant medicine to take and my whole system seemed to be benefited. Dum Cold. Bert Acosta, the air champion, said at a banquet in Omaha: "It is so cold in an airplane when you reach great altitudes that if you try to describe the weather up there you feel like a liar. 'Yes, you feel like the farm hand who said: 'Yep, mighty cold day, but 'tain't nothin' to what I seen to hum woot in the Vermont mountains. Why, one day in pig-killin' time it was so dum cold that we had a little of blin' water settin' on the stove, and when we took it out in the yard it friz so dum quick the ice was hot.'"

If You Need a Medicine You Should Have the Best

Have you ever stopped to reason why it is that so many products that are extensively advertised, all at once drop out of sight and are soon forgotten? The reason is plain—the article did not fulfill the promises of the manufacturer. This applies more particularly to a medicine. A medicinal preparation that has real curative value almost sells itself, as like an endless chain system the remedy is recommended by those who have been benefited, to those who are in need of it. A prominent druggist says "Take for example Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, a preparation I have sold for many years and never hesitate to recommend, for in almost every case it shows excellent results, as many of my customers testify. No other kidney remedy has so large a sale."

"According to sworn statements and verified testimony of thousands who have used the preparation, the success of Kilmer's Swamp-Root is due to the fact that it is a natural remedy, it cures liver and bladder ailments; corrects many troubles and neutralizes the acid which causes rheumatism. You may receive a sample of Swamp-Root by Parcel Post. Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, and enclose ten cents; also mail paper. Large and medium sizes for sale at all drug stores. Advise."

She Didn't Want Much. The marine, serving at Pearl Harbor in the Hawaiian Islands, wrote to his sweetheart that he would soon be home, and that he would be glad to bring her a souvenir if she would only tell him what she wanted. Shortly afterward he received this reply: "Dear George: Don't go to any expense. Just bring me a nice string of pearls from Pearl Harbor, and I'll be more than satisfied."

Fortunately for the average man, brains are not on exhibition.

Egg-Rolling on the White House Grounds

All roads lead to the White House grounds for the children of Washington Easter Monday. Last year between 50,000 and 60,000 of the little ones, attired in their Easter best and carrying gay baskets of colored eggs, assembled on the grounds in the rear of the executive mansion in honor of the return to the time-honored custom of the capital—Easter egg rolling on the White House grounds.

Not since April 24, 1916, have Washington children been able to indulge in this annual merrymaking. In 1917, when the Easter egg rolling was suspended, the country had just entered into the war, and after the war the absence and ill health of former President Wilson had prevented the custom from being resumed.

Prepared for Event. The following description is of last year's egg rolling:

Young Washington had been preparing for the event for some time. The news and the invitation from the President and Mrs. Harding had reached them through the press and the mysterious but effective underground wires of childhood.

Long before 9:30 a. m., when the White House gates were scheduled to be open, a long line of impatient children had gathered in front of them. Promptly on the stroke of the appointed hour they swung open and a wild whoop rent the air. It was true. There had been no mistake, and in that moment Warren G. Harding became the children's President, with Mrs. Harding the good fairy that the little ones believed had suggested and made their joy day possible.

Before many minutes the grounds were dotted with children seeking the advantageous spots for the sport of the day—egg rolling. The scene presented in its vivid coloring, heightened by a multitude of toy balloons, a huge Happy Youngsters.

Easter eggs of a thousand hues. The children romped, danced, put their tiny hands in the rainbow-tinted spray from the big fountain in the center of the grounds and ate innumerable eggs.

Change Jam the Grounds. The grounds were literally jammed with children and conditions of the day were such that the President and Mrs. Harding could not be seen.

bring "little sister," from neat colored children, starched and scrubbed until they shone with cleanliness, to children of the diplomatic corps and Washington's exclusive circles, while the children of the cabinet watched the scene from the south portico of the mansion. One picturesque group of 80 children, each with a bright-hued and well-filled basket, came from St. John's Episcopal Orphan asylum in charge of several deaconesses.

One small boy boasted that it was a day when parents just had to overlook faults in little ones because they could not leave them home else the mother could not enter the White House grounds. A small child was the only ticket and price of admission. Small boys stood by ready to be borrowed—for a nickel—and one "chaperon" exhibited hands full of coins he had earned by this practice, which the genial policemen at the gate found it convenient not to observe too closely. While "small children" were the open sesame, in some instances the "children" were only such by a big stretch of the imagination.

Waiting for the President.

The tiny guests formed a line in front of the south portico shortly before 11 o'clock in the expectation that the President and Mrs. Harding would soon appear. That was to be the big moment of the big day. The first White House occupant to appear on the scene was "Laddie Boy," the President's alreadie—led on a leash by his proud keeper, Jackson. A cheer of delight went up from the children. "The President's dog," they shouted from one to another.

Laddie Boy behaved with the decorum due from a dog of such high estate, and proved that in the canine world as in any other, rank does impose obligation. He stood the ordeal of hundreds of pats, but refused all proffers of eggs and other titbits from the children's baskets.

The children watched for the President, and when he appeared in the window of the executive office with one mad dash they trooped across to the magic spot. It was really he, smiling, he waved his hands boyishly and kindly at the fluttering hands of the children greeting him. It was the big moment.

At 1 o'clock when the Marine band arrived, was another big moment, and then shortly afterward came the "big moment of the day." For on the portico appeared the President and Mrs. Harding and Laddie Boy. Cheer after cheer went up and gift eggs from many of the children were sent to the President and his wife, some the worse for the rolling process they had undergone, but all freighted with the love and thanks of the children of Washington for a red letter in their youthful calendars.

Gift for Mrs. Harding.

From the ranks of cheering children broke a small boy, Paul Mann, ten years old. He bore a small box in his hand and climbed over the low fence between the lawn and executive office and stood before the President and Mrs. Harding.

him. The egg inside was decorated with the shield of the United States, Boy Scout emblems and other insignia. The tiny guests were thrilled. He turned away from the window back to the burdens of state, still smiling and carrying the egg with care.

But where was Mrs. Harding? A number of ladies on the portico were identified in turn as she. Finally a little girl shrieked. "There she is—the lady in brown." "No," answered her feminine neighbor, aged eight, in scorn, "Don't you know she must wear Harding blue?"

Actors Amuse Children.

Striking contrast was brought into the scene by the sight of boys playing in and out of the empty sentry boxes that had sheltered grim sentinels of the President in war days.

Overhead came another reminder of the strenuous days now past in airplanes flying from Bolling field, the pilots of which were able to get an excellent panoramic view of the historic scene below.

During the morning "Alice in Wonderland" and the "White Rabbit," from the play now appearing in town, stood for a few moments on the south portico and greeted the children. The parts were taken by Mary Cummings, fourteen years old, and Donald, ten.

Afterward the actors mixed with the crowds and even deigned to roll a few eggs on their own account.

Egg-rolling as an Easter custom has existed in Washington since that part of it called Georgetown was full of stately colonial homes set in beautiful acres that sloped to the river, and down whose lawns the children of that day rolled their gaily hued Easter eggs, following the old English custom that had been brought to the new world by their pioneer ancestors.

The Easter egg rolling at the White House was instituted by President Grant when he discovered that Washington children had no central point where they could celebrate their annual festival. He invited them to the south lawn of the White House and appeared on the south portico with a group of cabinet and other guests to watch the sport. The President that followed him kept up the genial custom and after a while concerts by the Marine band were made a feature of the day.

Easter time in spring time. Spring time is planting time. Let us plant the seeds of our best minds.

Rheumatism Came to Live With Him at 14

Thursday Health Talk No. 13,
by H. H. Beatty, Chiropractor

At fourteen J. P. Brown got his first taste of sciatica and muscular rheumatism and it was bitter as every sufferer from either of these troubles can testify.

He tried many things, including a trip to Hot Springs, but nothing quite touched the case. He was unable to work and viewed his trouble rather hopelessly, until he heard of chiropractic spinal adjustments, and learned for himself that they do remove the cause and give Nature a chance to express herself normally, and that means healthfully. Mr. Brown says:

After The First Adjustment.

"After the first adjustment I felt relief from the pain along the sciatic nerve. Since taking several series of adjustments I can now say I am entirely pain free. I also had neuralgia of the eyes and head and this also has left me. I feel so much better since taking chiropractic spinal adjustments that I would not take any amount of money for the results already established."—J. P. Brown, Chiropractic Research Bureau, Statement No. 1306H.
