WELL KNOWN WATERLOO RESIDENT PASSES AWAY

Henry Gorton was born in Waterloo township, September 26, 1844, and died at his home in Waterloo village, Tuesday, April 18, 1922, after a lingering illness of several years' duration.

He was united in marriage with Miss Almarant Beyer, November 20, 1865. Mrs. Gorton died March 10, 1901. For many years they were well known residents of Waterloo. When they left the farm they became residents of Chelsea, where Mr. Gorton was engaged in business for several years.

Mr. Gorton was a member of Olive Lodge, No. 156, F. & A. M., Olive Chapter O. E. S., and Olive Chapter, R. A. M., and the U. B. church of Waterloo.

Three brothers and one sister have preceded him in death. He is survived by two sons, L. L. Gorton of Waterloo, and Dr. F. R. Gorton of Ypsilanti; two granddaughters, Mrs. Ray Couiter of Detroit, and Mrs. Geo. Shank of Waterloo; two grandsons, Wendel V. Gorton of Cleveland, Ohio, and Eugene L. Gorton of Ypsilanti; two great grandsons; one brother, Lewis G. Gorton of Detroit; one sister, Mrs. M. N. Avery of Los Angeles, California, and several nephews and nieces.

The funeral was held, Thursday afternoon at the United Brethren church in Waterloo, Rev. Rhoads conducting the service. The service at the grave in Oak Grove cemetery, Chelsea, was conducted by the Masonic Order.

Farm Inventory.

The government has evidently begun gathering farm statistics that will thoroughly list up every farm, large and small, with a complete record of what use every acre is put to and the amount it produces. The system adopted is called a co-operative crop reporting service, and every supervisor in Michigan, at least, is furnished with instructions on how to proceed to get the information. Supervisor Dancer, of Sylvan, has shown the Standard his outfit. It will be a greater task to get this report than taking the regular annual assessment. Every acre of land must be accounted for and with the statement of what was raised on it in 1921. This report is said to be confidential and not for taxation purposes. Every man must answer the questions or his name will be reported to headquarters, and they will get the information anyway, so he might as well be cheerful about it. They want to know about every kind of grain raised, all kinds of fruit, how many head of horses, cattle, sheep, dairy cows, swine, etc. even to hives of bees. It doesn't say a word about wool or chickens, but they be after them later.

EPWORTH LEAGUE DISTRICT MEETING

Two Hundred Delegates Expected to Attend Convention to be Held in Chelsea April 28-29.

The Ann Arbor District Epworth League Conference will be held in Chelsea M. E. church, Friday and Saturday, April 28 and 29. Two hundred young people are expected to be in attendance. All sessions are open to the public, except the banquet Friday night. Through the efforts of the district cabinet the convention is to have one of the strongest programs ever arranged for a district convention of Epworth Leaguers in Michigan. Registration of delegates, movies in the Chelsea church and the "Melting Pot" will take up Friday afternoon with a big banquet in the evening. District Superintendent H. Addis Leeson will be toastmaster and the speaker of the evening, P. Ray Norton, state president of the Epworth League.

Mr. Freeman found that entrance to the store had been gained by forcing a door in the basement, at the alley, and as he could find no trace of the goods he notified the sheriff's department. All camera dealers and druggists in Ann Arbor and adjoining towns were notified by the sheriff to be on the lookout for persons offering cameras for sale.

Shortly after 8 o'clock Saturday evening the sheriff received a call from Crippen's Drug Store in Ann Arbor that a man was trying to sell cameras there, and Deputy Sheriff Carl Arnold placed the man under arrest and lodged him in the county jail.

R. M. Winn, of Chelsea, is the person under arrest and the charge against him is grand larceny. He had two cameras with him when the arrest was made.

Winn and his family moved here last October and have resided in what is known as the Conaty homestead on South Main street since they moved here. Winn has been in the employ of the promoters of the Peat plant here. He is a native of Cedar Rapids, Iowa, and has a wife and one child.

Deputy Sheriff Leigh Palmer, following the report of Winn's arrest, secured a search warrant and recovered four other cameras at the Winn home. Winn has made a confession and told the officers that he had an accomplice and said the reason for his stealing the goods was that he wanted to help his buddy.

Winn has been bound over to the May term of the circuit court.

FREEMAN'S STORE ENTERED BY BURGLARS FRIDAY NIGHT

Chauncey Freeman, when he opened his store Saturday morning, discovered that it had been entered by burglars some time during Friday night and six cameras had been taken from the store. This was the fourth time that the store had been broken into during the past few months, but the three previous entries has mostly been confined to taking small amounts of cash from the tills in the store. The value of the goods stolen Friday night is placed at $150.

Mr. Freeman found that entrance to the store had been gained by forcing a door in the basement, at the alley, and as he could find no trace of the goods he notified the sheriff's department. All camera dealers and druggists in Ann Arbor and adjoining towns were notified by the sheriff to be on the lookout for persons offering cameras for sale.

ARENA BATTLES FOR LEGION

Famous Castilian Matador, Ex-German Fighter, Stages Bloodless Confrontations With Angry Bulls.

To show that bull-fighting is really as simple, and as bloodless, and as refreshing as a quiet game of golf, Senor Charlot Molino, famous Castilian matador, has been staging arena battles all over the country for the benefit of the American Legion. Molino is an ex-German fighter, besides being a bull-fighter.

When he goes into the ring with his fire-breathing animal, he carries a small red cloth to make the animal wroth. He carries no sword and trusts entirely to his adroit footwork to save him from embarrassment at the horns of the bull. He wears a genuine costume of red velvet trimmed with gold, valued at $2,000.

The Legion has picked up the idea of "bloodless bull-fighting," and recently staged an encounter in the Jersey City stock yards with the matador armed with a fence picket. Although the matador had to jump the fence on several occasions in order to keep the true "bloodless" nature of the affair, he succeeded in putting on a good battle.

SKETCHES WON THE RECRUITS

Alvan Hadley, Crayon Artist, Now "Drawing" Some of the Prominent Legion Men.

Alvan C. ("Hap") Hadley, crayon expert and ex-marine, travels with a Greenwich Village troupe. He probably recruited more marines by his clever sketches, during the war, than any other individual. No one that ever looked very hard at one of his pictures ever stayed out of the marines, and no one that ever looks very hard now ever stays away from his show. He is at present busy sketching prominent members of the American Legion, outside of "hours," for publication in newspapers.

When "Hap" enlisted in the marine corps at Paris Island, a red-necked sergeant asked him what his occupation was. "Artist," said Hap. So the sergeant put him to work white-washing garbage cans. The crowning disappointment of Hap's life is that he never ran across that sergeant again.

JOB FOR EX-SERVICE MEN

Civic Organizations Co-Operating With American Legion to Find Work for Ex-Soldiers.

Civic organizations are co-operating with the American Legion in every city, town and hamlet throughout the country to put across the nationwide drive for employment for the 700,000 ex-service men now out of a job.

The Legion is aiming to get men into jobs by stirring up the industrial life in communities. Distribution of employment by changing men on daily shifts; pushing of engineering projects, bridge repair and county highway improvement; speeding up of municipal and public utility enterprises—woodyards, recreation centers, dredging, installation of telephones, paving, reforestation and reclamation projects; truck gardening, with the establishment of community gardens worked by ex-soldier labor; stimulating building of all kinds; encouragement of the "back-to-the-farm movement"—these and many more methods are being used to give the distressed jobless man a chance once more to do a day's work.

Returned Everything. "I am afraid it's all over between May and Jack. "She has returned his photographs." "You don't mean it?" "Also his letters." "Gracious!" "And his ring." "My! My!" "But there is still hope. He gave her a kiss as they parted on the lawn." "And what did she do?" "She—she returned that, too."—Pearson's Weekly.

Well Nourished. "Edith has a remarkably sweet voice." "She ought to have. It has cost me about sixty pounds of candy in the last six months."

Carrying On With the American Legion

With mingled feelings, Legion men read that the old yellow, groaning Paris taxi-cabs—the vehicles that took Gallieni's army off to fight on the Marne, are to be replaced.

A United States marine sold the United States superdreadnaught New Mexico to a retired farmer at Long Beach, Cal., for $100 cash. Navy officials, however, refused to deliver the ship.

An Oklahoma sheriff allowed three "killings" to take place without much opposition. Irving C. London, commander of the Ardmore post of the American Legion, was appointed his successor.

Varying conditions existing in the different parts of the country will largely determine what proportion of service men will desire cash payment, the Legion has learned from its referendum votes.

Blind beggars sometimes have good eyesight, the American Legion has found. One "ex-soldier" with medals bought from a hock shop was caught taking $60 an hour from New York's theater crowds.

PRETTY IS WHAT PRETTY WEARS; SPORTS HAT REVELS IN COLOR

EVEN as you and I, little daughter feels at her best when becomingly frocked. The big stores pay homage to her youthful highness by fitting out for her a realm of her very own. Here juvenile apparel is temptingly displayed to her childish heart's content. It is the popular idea nowadays that little daughter should have as complete a wardrobe as mother's very own.

Thus early in life, the little girl's education begins of dressing appropriately for the occasion. Designers are side and stream, tennis court and golf ground lure to sunshine and sport in the great outdoors.

We are remaining true to our first love, the fabric hat. While straws have come in strong for millinery in general, when it comes to the sports hat, fabric remains the thought supreme, although many sports hats have straw facings. There is, however, exceptions to the rule in the straw body hats and in the new tagal straw hats cut out of large plaques, just the same as of a material by the yard.

Dainty Garments for Little Daughter.

encouraging this thought by creating for school and morning wear dresses of checked and plaid gingham. The "composé" dress idea is carried out in the long waist of solid-colored chambray, with a sewed-on plaited gingham skirt.

For playtime hours cotton crepes in prettiest colors ever are hand embroidered in gay strands of wool and there are bloomers to match.

Preparatory to rows and rows of fancy hemstitching, mother, auntie, and sister dear are busily engaged in drawing thread after thread from soft colorful velle. These are being made up into adorable party frocks.

The dainty graceful crepe de chine which grown-ups love to wear, is just as adaptable to dresses for the little girl. Brown crepe de chine was selected for the little princess frock in the picture. It is enlivened with rose-colored flutings and braided girle. There is ever so much smocking, cross-stitch and Russian peasant embroidery

These tagal shapes, through the deftness of the designer, are embroidered over their entire area either with straw, angora or chenille. They are as pliable as the fabric cuff hat.

As to color, even the millinery vocabulary falls to convey the vivid charm of the light copper, shades or mimosa, yellow, paddy green, sage color, rose shades roman stripes, bluejay, amberglow and kindred sports tones.

Ribbon plays a very important part in sports millinery. A smart black and white effect, which combination is emphasized throughout sports millinery, is carried out in the top hat of this group. The entire crown and top trim is checkered in a kindergarten weave of black and white ribbon.

Smocking is used for the beige velveteen hat to the left. This is a new fabric just out which has a velvet pile, is all silk, summer weight and comes in new exquisite colors, including American beauty, Scotch thistle, partridge brown and cinnamon shade.

Some Models in Sports Millinery.

finest done in gay fast color cotton, on lining of sheer batiste, or on cross-hatched dimity. The newest pattern shows these little frocks fall straight from the shoulder just as is shown in the dainty slip worn by the little girl whose curls are hidden under a huge fine black milan hat with very impressive ribbon streamers. A panel of red, green, yellow and blue smocking extends from the neck to the depth of six inches or more. It is said that the yoke effect is again in fashion.

The sports hat's the thing! Away with millinery furbelows when hill-

Ritz cloth is a new straw fabric with corduroy welt. This is used in copper color for the hat which has the quill positioned so stylishly.

Roman stripes are a pronounced feature of the season. This effect in silk knit is stretched over an un-wired foundation for the final hat in the group.

By long wear, superior traction and freedom from skidding, and low final cost, this tire has won unquestioned leadership in its field. Alongside it is illustrated its companion, the 30 x 3 1/2 inch Goodyear Cross Rib. Both these tires are built in a factory devoted exclusively to manufacturing Goodyear Tires for small cars. More than 5,000,000 of the Goodyear non-skid tires have been sold in the last five years. Built of the same high grade Egyptian cotton fabric that goes into the All-Weather Tread Goodyear, with a long-wearing but differently designed tread, they have given remarkable service. PIPE NOW ORNAMENTS WALL Indiana Man Has No Further Use for It as a Medium for Enjoying Quiet Smoke.

An Indianapolis man whose work keeps him in his office all day long occasionally finds recreation in doing bits of odd jobs in woodworking. For three months he worked at spare times, and as the spirit moved him, at fashioning a Chinese pipe. Finally he finished the job and took it to a painter for the stains, filler and varnish. The painter did a good job, and the pipe was a beauty to behold—two feet long, brass knob and shaped bowl. It looked like a mandarin's favorite. He took the thing home and in a sort of a ceremonial fire filled it with his favorite tobacco, fired it up and drank deeply of its dream stuff. Deeply and dream stuff is right, because about half an hour later he lay sprawled unconscious on the floor of an upstairs hall until his wife revived him with cold towels. Now he knows all about the effects of the volatile substances in paints and varnishes. He also has a beautiful Chinese pipe, smoked once, hanging on the wall.

He Wanted to Know. "You'll be out in two weeks," said the eminent specialist, as he hesitated for a moment at the bed of a patient before making 267 other calls scheduled for that day.

"Thanks, doctor," replied the patient, feebly. "Out how much?"

Ramsey Milholland

By BOOTH TARKINGTON

Copyright by Doubleday, Page & Company

DORA YOCUM.

Synopsis.—With his grandfather, small Ramsey Milholland is watching the "Decoration Day Parade" in the home town. The old gentleman, a veteran of the Civil war, endeavors to impress the young star with the significance of the great conflict, and many years afterward the boy was to remember his words with startling vividness. In the schoolroom, a few years afterward, Ramsey is not distinguished for remarkable ability, though his pronounced dislikes are arithmetic, "Recitations" and German. In sharp contrast to Ramsey's backwardness is the precocity of little Dora Yocum, a young lady whom in his bitterness he denigrates as "Teacher's Pet." In high school, where he and Dora are classmates, Ramsey continues to feel that the girl delights to manifest her superiority, and the vindictiveness he generates becomes alarming, culminating in the resolution that some day he will "show" her. At a class picnic Ramsey is captured bag and baggage by Mills Rust, the class beauty, and endures the agonies of his first love. Ramsey's parents object to Mills and wish he'd taken up with Dora Yocum. Ramsey kisses Mills. Then Mills suddenly leaves town.

CHAPTER VII

He never saw her again. She sent him a "picture postal" from Oconomowoc, Wisconsin, which his father disengaged from the family mail, one morning at breakfast, and considerately handed to him without audible comment. Upon it was written, "Oh, you Ramsey!" This was the last of Mills. Just before school opened, in the autumn, Sadie Clews made some revelations. "Milla did like you," said Sadie. "After that time you jumped in the creek to save her she liked you better than any boy in town, and I guess if it wasn't for her cousin Milt up in Chicago she would of liked you the best anywhere. I guess she did, anyway, because she hadn't seen him for about a year then."

"Well, that afternoon she went away I was over there and took in everything that was going on, only she made me promise on my word of honor I wouldn't even tell Albert. They didn't get any wire from the uncle about the touring car; it was her cousin Milt that jumped on the train and came down and fixed it all up for Milla to go on the trip, and everything. You see, Ramsey, she was turned back a couple of times in school before she came in our class and I don't know how old she is and she don't look old yet, but I'm pretty sure she's at least eighteen, and she might be over. I didn't think such a great deal of this Milla's looks myself, but he's anyway twenty-one years old, and got a good position, and all their family seem to think he's just fine! It wasn't his father that took in the touring car on the debt, like she said she was writing you; it was Milt himself. He started out in business when he was only thirteen years old, and this trip he was gettin' up for his father and mother and Milla was the first vacation he ever took. Well, of course she wouldn't like my tellin' you, but I can't see the harm of it, now, everything's all over."

"All—all over? You mean Milla's going to be—to be married?"

"She already is," said Sadie. "They got married at her Aunt Jess and Uncle Purry's house, up in Chicago, last Thursday. Yes, sir; that quiet, little Milla's a regular old married woman by this time, I expect, Ramsey!"

When he got over the shock, which was not until the next day, one predominant feeling remained: It was a gloomy pride—a pride in his proven maturity. He was old enough, it appeared, to have been the same thing as engaged to a person who was now a Married Woman. His manner thenceforth showed an added trace of seriousness and self-consideration.

Having recovered his equipoise and something more, he entirely forgot that moment of humble admiration he had felt for Dora Yocum on the day of his fittest prostration. When he saw her sitting in the classroom, smiling brightly up at the teacher, the morning of the school's opening in the autumn, all his humility had long since vanished and she appeared to him not otherwise than as the scholar whose complete proficiency had always been so irksome to him.

"Look at her!" he muttered to himself. "Same ole Teacher's Pet!"

Now and then, as the days and seasons passed, and Dora's serene progress continued, never checked or even flawed, there stirred within him some lingerings of the old determination to "show" her; and he would conjure up a day-dream of Dora in loud lamentation, while he led the laughter of the spectators. But gradually his feeling about her came to be merely a dull oppression. He was tired of having to look at her (as he stated it) and he thanked the Lord that the time wouldn't be so long now until he'd be out of that ole school, and then he'd have to do he'd just take care to get out of his house. It was about five hundred students in the classroom when he noticed the boy and when he did it was Fourteen is about gone," he said to Fred Mitchell, who was still his most intimate friend when they reached the senior year. "Yes, sir; it's held together a good many years, Fred, but after June it'll be busted plum up, and I hope nobody starts a move to have any reunions. There's a good many members of the ole class that I can stand and there's some I can't, but there's one I just won't! If we ever did call a reunion, that ole Yocum girl would start in right away and run the whole shebang, and that's where I'd resign! You know, Fred, the thing I think is the one biggest benefit of graduating from this ole school? It's never seein' Dora Yocum again."

This was again his theme as he sat by the same friend's side, in the rear row of the class at Commencement, listening to the delivery of the Valedictory. "Thinks she's just sojime, don't she?" he whispered morosely. "She wouldn't trade with the President of the United States right now. Never mind! Just about a half-an-hour more and that's the last of you, ole girl! Yes, sir, Fred; one thing we can feel pretty good over: this is where we get through with Dora Yocum!"

Ramsey and Fred had arranged to room together at Greenfield, the seat of the state university, and they made the short journey in company the following September. They arrived hilarious, anticipating pleasurable excitements in the way of "fraternity" pledgings and-initiations, encounters with sophomores, class meetings, and elections; and, also, they were not absolutely without interest in the matter of Girls, for the state university was co-educational, and it was but natural to expect in so broad a field, all new to them, a possible vision of something rather thrilling. They whispered cheerfully of all these things during the process of matriculation, and signed the registrar's book on a fresh page; but when Fred had written his name under Ramsey's and blotted it, he took the liberty of turning over the leaf to examine some of the autographs of their future classmates, written on the other side. Then he uttered an exclamation, more droll than dolorous, though it affected to be wholly the latter; for the shock to Fred was by no means so painful as it was to his friend.

Ramsey leaned forward and read the name indicated by Fred's forefinger.

DORA YOCUM.

When they got back to their pleasant quarters at Mrs. Melga's, facing the campus, Ramsey was still unable to talk of anything except the lamentable discovery; nor were his companion's burlesquing efforts to console him of great avail, though Fred did become serious enough to point out that a university was different from a high school.

"It's not like havin' to use one big room as a headquarters, you know, Ramsey. Everything's all split up, and she might happen not be in a single one of your classes."

"You don't know my luck!" the afflicted boy protested. "I wish I'd gone to Harvard, the way my father wanted me to. Why, this is just the worst nuisance I ever struck! You'll see! She'll be in everything there is, just the way she was back home."

He appeared to be corroborated by the events of the next day, when they attended the first meeting to organize the new class. The masculine element predominated, but Dora Yocum was elected vice president. "You see?" Ramsey said. "Didn't I tell you? You see what happens?"

But after that she ceased for a time to intrude upon his life, and he admitted that his harassment was less grave than he had anticipated. There were about five hundred students in the classroom when he noticed the boy and when he did it was a distant glimpse of her on one of the campus paths, her thoughtful head bent over a book as she hurried to a classroom. This was bearable; and in the flattering agitations of being sought, and even hunted, by several "fraternities" simultaneously desirous of his becoming a sworn Brother, he almost forgot her. After a hazardous month the roommates fell into the arms of the last "frat" to seek them, and having undergone an evening of outrage which concluded with touching rhetoric, and an oath taken at midnight, they proudly wore jeweled symbols on their breasts and were free to turn part of their attention to other affairs, especially the affairs of the Eleven.

However, they were instructed by the older brethren of their Order, whose duty it was to assist in the proper maneuvering of their young careers, that, although support of the "varsity" teams was important, they must neglect neither the spiritual nor the intellectual by-products of undergraduate doings. Therefore they became members of the college Y. M. C. A. and of the "Lumen Society."

According to the charter which it had granted itself, the "Lumen Society" was an "Organization of male and female students"—so "advanced" was this university—"for the development of the powers of debate and oratory, intellectual and sociological progress, and the discussion of all matters relating to philosophy, metaphysics, literature, art, and current events." A statement so formidable was not without a hushing effect upon Messrs. Milholland and Mitchell; they went to their first "Lumen" meeting in a state of fear and came away little reassured.

"I couldn't get up there," Ramsey declared, "I couldn't stand up there before all that crowd and make a speech, or debate in a debate, to save my soul and gizzard! Why, I'd just keel right over and haf to be carried out."

"Well, the way I understand it," said Fred, "we can't get out of it. The seniors in the 'frat' said we had to join, and they said we couldn't resign, either, after we had joined. They said we just had to go through it, and after a while we'd get used to it and not mind it so much."

"I will!" Ramsey insisted. "I couldn't any more stand up there on my feet and get to spoutin' about sociology and the radical metempsychosis of the metempsychic bazoomum than I could fly a flyin' machine. Why, I—"

"Oh, that wasn't anything," Fred interrupted. "The only one that talked like that, he was that Blickens; he's a tutor, or something, and really a member of the faculty. Most of the others—just kind of blab-blahed around, and what any of 'em tried to get off their chests hardly amounted to terribly much."

"I don't care. I couldn't do it at all!"

"Well, the way it looks to me," Fred observed, "we simply got to! From what they tell me, the freshmen got to do more than anybody. Every other Friday night, it's all freshmen and nothin' else. You get a postal card on Monday morning in your mail, and it says 'Assignment' on it and—and—then it's got written underneath what you haf to do the next Friday night—oration or debate, or maybe just read from some ole book or something. I guess we got to stand up there and try, anyway."

"All right," said Ramsey. "If they want me to commit suicide they can send me one of their ole 'Assignments.' I won't need to commit suicide, though, I guess. All I'll do, I'll just fall over in a fit, and stay in it."

And, in truth, when he received his first "Assignment," one Monday morning, a month later, he seemed in a fair way to fulfill his prophecy. The attention of his roommate, who sat at a window of their study, was attracted by sounds of strangulation. "What on earth's the matter, Ramsey?"

"Look! Look at this!"

Fred took the card and examined it with an amazement gradually merging into a pleasure altogether too perceptible:

DIDN'T GET THAT SOVEREIGN

Probably Jenkins is Ready to Admit That Glue Had Remarkably Good Sticking Qualities.

Jenkins, who had gone to the shop that sold everything to make a few purchases, happened to notice a sovereign lying on the floor—a whole, round, golden eagle.

Quivering with excitement and glancing cautiously round to see that no one was watching him, he dropped—quite accidentally, of course—one of his gloves on top of the coin. Then, bending, he proceeded to pick up his glove; but the coin did not accompany it. It remained where it was—upon the floor. He made a second attempt to get hold of it, but with the same result.

As he was contemplating the wisdom of a third endeavor, a shopwalker approached him and said: "Good evening, sir! May I be allowed to show you a bottle of our famous liquid glue? As, no doubt, you are aware, its sticking powers—"

But Jenkins had fled.—London Answers.

TO PRESERVE HISTORIC PEN

That Used by Secretary of State Hughes on Important Occasion in Care of D. A. R.

The fagstaff penholder used by Secretary of State Hughes in signing the treaties agreed upon by the delegates at the recent conference on the limitation of armament in Washington will be preserved to posterity in the custody of the Daughters of the American Revolution, probably in Memorial Continental hall, where the treaties were signed.

The penholder is made of native woods, from 28 states and territories, and is decorated with miniature flags of 28 nations, including the nine represented at the conference and several of the allied powers in the World War. The woods were collected and fashioned into a penholder about 14 inches long by David Fairbanks of Chicago.

Two small pieces of wood used in its manufacture are of special historic interest. The section of cottonwood from Michigan was taken from a tree standing on the ground where the old Indian chief, Pontiac, fought his last battle with the British in 1763, and the piece of red cedar from South Carolina came from a tree planted by the statesman John C. Calhoun.

Beastly. "What beastly soap this is."

Oh, for a Whale! I was declaiming the death speech of Robert Emmett. I thought I was making a great impression on my audience; but when I was about half through I paused for a moment and took a step to one side. The audience, thinking I had finished, began to clap.

I gulped, looked embarrassed, and went on, "Be yet patient! I have but a few more words to say. I am going to my silent grave."

Every one burst into roars of laughter. I turned a brilliant crimson and finished my speech as quickly as possible, with my eyes on the floor.—Exchange.

The advice they gave him for getting on in the world was simple and familiar enough: "Keep what you have, and build on it. Be careful what you do and it will grow into more."

Number of Cattle Tested. According to the last issue of the Grass Lake News, the following is the result of the recent tests for tubercular cattle in Jackson county: The County Agricultural Agent, R. C. Decker, reports that, to date, the number of cattle tested in Jackson county is approximately 25,000. Of these there were 1350 reactors or 5.4 per cent. The county expended about $7,000. This was appropriated by the Board of Supervisors and the remainder spent by the Jackson County Bureau. The State Department of Agriculture has paid $20,000 for the tests. The county has paid $10,000 for the tests.

Spray Important On Apples.

Pre-pink spray of apples to control Apple Scab as well as the standard pink spray is advised this year by plant pathologists of the Michigan Agricultural College.

"The scab fungus is developing early this year," they declare. "There is every promise of spore discharge as soon as the buds push out a little more. Nearly mature spores have been found in material from Grand Rapids and Augusta, Michigan orchards. Lansing material is as yet considerably behind in its development as compared to the western localities."

Efficient control of apple scab, the pathologists explain, depends upon timeliness of application of protective sprays to prevent early infections. This is especially true with such varieties as Duchess and McIntosh.

The apple scab fungus winters on the fallen leaves and in the spring develops a spore stage which infects the unfolding leaves and developing blossoms. Leaves carrying the fungus have been obtained from various fruit-growing centers, and on examination it is found that the apple scab fungus has responded to the high temperatures of this spring and is developing extremely rapidly.

"The scab fungus gives every indication of producing infections very early this year," says Professor C. W. Bennett. "Ordinarily fruit growers depend upon a spray when the buds are in the 'pink' stage, but this year, judging from the advanced development of the apple scab fungus, a 'pre-pink' spray will also be necessary to secure best scab control."

If the early infections are not prevented, very serious spotting of the calyx of the fruit results. These early infections also give rise to severe infections. The advice to give the 'pre-pink' spray as well as the pink spray seems well warranted by the microscopic findings of this spring.

Treat Oats For Smut.

Every Washtenaw County farmer is thoroughly familiar with the disease known as Loose Smut Oats. The loss from this disease will vary from year to year depending upon the quality and source of the seed, together with seasonal and climatic conditions. The only way to be absolutely certain and avoid loss is to treat the seed oats before planting. This can be done by the use of formaldehyde at the rate of one pint to fifty bushels of oats. Put the oats on a clean floor well spread out, and spray the formaldehyde (using no water) into the oats with a small hand potato sprayer or atomizer. Hold the nozzle close to the oats and keep moving around them. At the same time have a helper shovel them over. When the formaldehyde is all sprayed on, shovel the oats into a pile and cover with a canvas for exactly four hours and no longer. Afterward spread them out to air. The oats may not be wet as with the old sprinkling method, and may be sown at once. Be careful not to put them into smutty sacks, and do not use a dirty drill. Disinfect both sacks and drill with formaldehyde. Smutty seed will produce smutty oats. Treated seed and clean sacks and drill will produce clean oats. Insist on the druggist giving you fresh formaldehyde and follow directions carefully. This will mean $5 per acre to your oat crop—and it may mean a good deal more. The formaldehyde will not cost more than three cents per acre per pint. Estimates have been made in the fields where smut occurred and it was found that the average loss for Michigan amounts to $5 per acre. Eternal vigilance is the price the farmer has to pay for good clean crops. It will not be well to neglect treating seed this season.—Farm Bureau News.

Weekly Editors Form Association. Seventy-five editors and publishers of Michigan weekly newspapers organized the Michigan Press Association during a conference held at the Michigan Agricultural College on April 14 and 15. The new organization, composed of rural newspaper men, is to function in the interests of the weekly or "community" press of the state.

While the Press Association is to be an individual organization in itself, members are understood to be retaining their affiliation with the Michigan Typothetae Federation, the parent organization for publishers and printers over the state. Officers of the newly organized group include: Fred D. Keister, Ionia County News, President; L. W. Feighner, Nashville News, Vice President; and Sim E. Wilson, Saline Observer, Secretary-Treasurer. Members of executive and special committees are to be appointed by the president.

Meetings in February and August of each year, the former at East Lansing and the latter at a place to be set each year, are provided for in the constitution and by-laws adopted. G. L. Caswell, field secretary of the Iowa Press Association and one of the country's greatest authorities on weekly press organization and business methods, was present during the two days of the conference, presenting talks on the work in his state. David Friday, new president of M. A. C. also addressed the meeting Saturday morning.

Does Nurse Pay Own Way?

It is an accepted fact that about ten per cent of the children in Michigan's schools, as in the schools of other states, are "repeaters," that is, children who take more than one year to make a grade. A county that has a school child population of 20,000, has approximately 2,000 repeaters. It is known that the most important reasons for this repeating are teeth, tonsils and adenoids, with tuberculosis and other defects as other causes. By medical inspection in the schools and by the employment of a county public health nurse the number of "repeaters" can be cut down considerably in any county. That this can be done is known because it has been done in some counties, says the Michigan Tuberculosis Association.

It costs at least fifty dollars a year for each child in school. Any county that by taking the necessary steps for medical inspection and nursing service cuts down the number of "repeaters" by one fourth, or 500 in a county of 20,000 pupils, thereby saves the neat sum of $25,000, which is vastly more than the cost of the service. A county public health nurse that cuts down the "repeaters" by so small a number as fifty, thereby more than saves the county her salary.

A movement is in progress in Michigan to have a public health nurse supported by the funds of the county appointed in thirty additional counties in Michigan. There are at present twelve county health nurses supported by public taxes, and the thirty proposed additional nurses will help materially to improve health conditions in Michigan. Appointing a public health nurse in a county is not a matter of philanthropy, according to the Michigan Tuberculosis Association, but a matter of hard-headed business sense.

WORN NERVES

Nervous troubles, with backache, dizzy spells, queer pains and irregular kidneys, give reason to suspect kidney weakness and to try the remedy that has helped your neighbors. Ask your neighbor.

Mrs. E. Hooker, N. East street, Chelsea, says: "I was in bad shape with kidney trouble brought on by hard work. There were times when I could hardly get about because of the sharp, shooting pains across my back and many a night I was kept awake with my back. I was so dizzy I had to catch hold of something for fear of falling and I felt tired and nervous which interfered greatly with my work. I read about Doan's Kidney Pills and went to Freeman's Drug Store and got two boxes. After using them I was better." Price 60c, at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Kidney Pills—the same that Mrs. Hooker had Foster-Milburn Co., Mfrs., Buffalo, N. Y.

"An Old Fashioned Boy"

He knew nothing at all about girls, and far less about babies. So fate threw him into the clutches of both—then doubled up with laughter. You will, too.

SURE TO HELP SICK WOMEN

Mrs. Baker, So Much Benefited by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, Anxious to Help Others

Lebanon, Indiana.—"I was completely run down from women's troubles and stomach trouble and for a long time was hardly able to do my work. I had some friends who had taken Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and they told me about it. I know what it has done for me and I recommend it to others, as I am sure it will be a great help to all sick women. It is a wonderful medicine, and I give you permission to use my testimonial and my photograph."—Mrs. EMMA BAKER, 310 S. East St., Lebanon, Indiana.

These letters recommending Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound ought to convince women of the great worth of this medicine in the treatment of ailments to which they are often subject. Mrs. Baker calls it "a wonderful medicine." If you are suffering from troubles women often have, or feel all run down, without any ambition or energy for your regular work, take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. It is a natural restorative and should help you as it has Mrs. Baker and many, many other women.

Ready Reply. Troops on a British barracks square were doing musketry drill. "I told you to take a fine sight," said the sergeant to a new recruit. "You ought to know what a fine sight is by now. What is it?"

"A very big boat full of sergeants sinking in midocean," answered the recruit.

The best advice is not the most pleasant but the most useful.

A Michigan Case
John H. Ingles, caretaker of Wood St., Harbor Beach, Mich., says: "I had an attack of lumbago, brought on by heavy work. I had quite a bit of pain, a redness of the small of my back and at night I was unable to sleep. I wasn't fit to do my day's work. When I stooped, a sharp pain shot down my back. I had awful headaches and suffered dizzy spells. By properly taking Doan's Kidney Pills, my back pain and dizzy spells left and my kidneys became normal."

Dull Headaches Put a Brake On One's Ambition

Thursday Health Talk No. 14,
by H. H. Beatty, Chiropractor

Nothing so holds back the ability to work and think as the dull form of headaches that are an invariable accompaniment of inactive bowels and indigestion. This chronic condition responds to chiropractic spinal adjustments. The cause is pressure on spinal nerves to the liver and stomach and when this pressure is removed health follows.

Suffered for Ten Years.

For ten years I suffered from dull headaches. For a long time I had very inactive bowels and indigestion. I was nervous a good deal of the time and had a weak back which would bring on a drawing sensation along the spine. At present, after having a course of twelve chiropractic spinal adjustments, I can say my physical condition is better. My headaches have left me, and my nerves are in much better condition."

The Unknown Bidder

By WINIFRED DUNBAR

Copyright, 1922, Western Newspaper Union

"Bob, I would give up my life to save you—can't I do something to help?"

Bob Ralston bestowed a fond and gentle glance upon the speaker. Never was there a more earnest, loyal friend than this same Ned Melvin, and no one knew it better than Bob.

"You are a royal good fellow, Ned," said Bob—"never a better. You can help me. The Leslie Art works are to be sold out at auction within an hour. I want you to take this pocket-book. There's a thousand dollars in it. I don't know what may be bid—maybe $1,000, maybe $5,000. If you find the bids running up, try all you can to hinder, to delay the sale."

With the words Bob Ralston flashed into an automobile and was gone, leaving Ned holding the pocket-book in his hand, looking solemn, worried, excited, all at once. Ned had heard that his cousin would be in the city that morning, and had spent his last cent coming over to greet the best friend he had in the world.

Ned did not at all understand the situation, for Bob had no time to explain. It was a peculiar one. Bob had arrived in town only two hours previous after an absence of a year, to claim pretty Ruth Leslie as his bride. Where he had expected to find joy and brightness he had been met with despair and gloom. Robert Leslie, the father of his prospective bride, was on a sick bed, slowly recovering from a severe attack of illness brought on by anxiety over his business affairs.

Mr. Leslie had for years owned the Art Metal works, a small but congenial business. An unjust claim had been foisted upon him by a rival—Tipton & Co.

"It is not the business, for it is only a small one, although it brought in a comfortable living," Ruth had sobbed on her lover's shoulder. "There are original designs and patterns, though, that represent half father's life tasks. If he should know that all these are swept away it would kill him."

Oh, if I had only known this before!" groaned generous, tender-hearted Bob, and he had hurried away to meet Ned, had given him rather forlorn, hopeless instructions and jumped into an automobile, and had offered the chauffeur double, triple, quadruple pay if he could make Taunton and back within the hour.

For while Bob had thousands invested in the West he could not hope to raise a dollar in a hurry. At Taunton, however, there was an old-time banking friend. It was a question of minutes.

A representative of the Tipton interest was on hand at the auction, as Ned found when he reached the works.

The auctioneer had made a platform of one box set flat, and a desk of another tilted on end. His hammer beat a tattoo as a call to order.

"The entire plant will be sold without reserve," announced the man with the gavel—"contents only and lease of the premises. Terms will be strictly cash. What am I bid?"

"Two hundred dollars."

An untidy man who suggested the typical junk dealer made this tender. The Tipton agent directed at him a withering and contemptuous glance and said coolly:

"Fifteen hundred dollars."

"Fifteen hundred dollars!" cried the auctioneer, hammer poised, "I am offered—"

"Sixteen," interrupted him.

"Four thousand," snapped the Tipton man.

"Five," came tranquilly from he of the grave visage.

"Six," as promptly proceeded from the direction of the fat individual.

The man from Tipton's hurriedly drew out his pocketbook. He glanced it over, frowned and bolted from the place.

"Six thousand dollars," rattled on the auctioneer. "Time and tide wait for no man."

"Twenty!" everybody stared. "Twenty!" he shouted. "Do I hear twenty-one? No? Then sold to—cash. Step up to my clerks, sir, and close the transaction."

"Were you speaking to me?" inquired the fat man.

"Certainly, you bid in this property—"

"Me!" ejaculated the fat man. "Nonsense! I haven't spoken a word since I entered this room."

There was a vast hubbub. It was ten minutes before it was guessed that some mischievous ventriloquist in the crowd had played a clever trick on the auctioneer.

Then the bidding was resumed. Ned had stepped forward again. Every minute gained was precious time for dear Bob, but the bids ran up beyond the thousand.

It was at $1,500 that the auctioneer's "Going!" going!" was echoing out, when there was a sharp whirl outside and a moment later Bob Ralston dashed into the room—"sixteen hundred," "eighteen hundred," "twenty hundred," "and sold to—" "Robert Ralston." The breathless representative from the Tipton's dashed into the place just as the hammer fell.

"I got all the money I needed from my friend," Bob related later, "but if you hadn't learned ventriloquism amid your varied travails, Ned, and delayed that auction sale, my dream of happiness would have been blasted."

"So I'm some good after all," said Ned Melvin proudly.

Board of Supervisors.

At the meeting of the Board of Supervisors held in Ann Arbor on Tuesday, the board voted to appropriate $7,500 for the use of the American Red Cross in Washtenaw county during the year 1922, providing a second injunction is not issued preventing the payment of the funds.

The board, at the afternoon session, elected Forrest Roberts, of Salem, as county road commissioner to succeed R. J. Bird, who recently resigned.

The board adjourned to meet on Monday of next week.

County Fair Notes.

The better business committee of the Ypsilanti Board of Commerce has voted $100 as Fair Premiums. This fund will be distributed over different departments of the Fair and can be competed for only by residents of the Ypsilanti trading radius.

Word has been received from a number of townships that voted $50 to encourage exhibitors from their township.

Supervisors from all townships voting the $50 are requested to notify the Fair office at once.

Work of getting the premium book ready is progressing rapidly and it is hoped it can be distributed in May.

Work is proceeding rapidly on the race track. Another big grading outfit has been added and it is expected the contract will be finished on time.

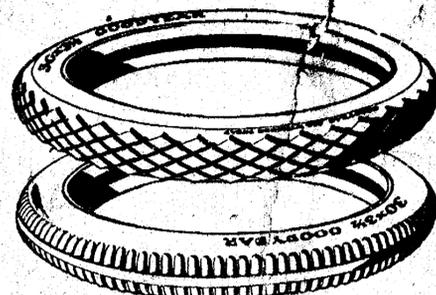

The first row of racing stalls is under construction.

Chelsea Near Training Camp.

The young men of Chelsea and vicinity who desire to do so this year will not be far from the annual citizens' military training camp conducted by the government, as it will be held at Camp Custer, Battle Creek, for four weeks, beginning August 2. Last year it was held at Camp Grant. The war department started these camps for the upbuilding of American citizenship and for the ultimate purpose of national defense in time of need.

All expenses, including transportation, subsistence, quarters, uniforms and other equipment, are paid by the government. The daily schedule calls for military drill, physical exercises, outdoor sports and games under expert supervision, with study and recreational programs for the evening. Hostess houses will be open for social gatherings; religious services will be held by army chaplains of different faiths; medical treatment with hospital care, in case of need, will be directed by army surgeons.

Young men from 17 to 25 without previous training are eligible for the red course; men who were at Camp Grant last summer may enroll for the white course, and men between the ages of 19 and 27, who are high school graduates and have had considerable military training may apply for the blue course. Full information and application blanks may be secured by addressing the Corps Area Commander, 1819 West Pershing Road, Chicago.
