KEEPS YOU ALIVE

Wheat, of the variety that was cultivated 15,000 years ago, is exhibited under glass cases at the Field Museum, Chicago.

It is the most important food ever discovered by man—so important that wheat bread is known in many languages as the staff of life.

Wherever man has carried his civilization on a large scale he has had to carry cultivation of wheat with him.

In 1520, the Spaniards brought overseas the seed that started the giant American wheat growing industry.

City folks give little thought to wheat, yet all eat it. Your body, through which your spirit manifests itself in this three dimensional world, is largely a transformation of wheat.

To millions of farmers the wheat seed is the key to livelihood. This year they will raise about seven bushels for every person in the United States.

Economists tell you that wheat is the chief regulator of our whole system of economics—from prices to health.

The crash in wheat prices since the collapse of the war boom has illustrated how fickle and unstable is our economic system. It has been so, all through history. In May, 1867, wheat hit a high mark of 2.11 a bushel in the cash market at Chicago. In May, 1870, the highest reached was 92 cents a bushel.

From this crash farmers learn that current price problems are nothing new, but merely a repetition of the endless series of up-and-down cycles.

You could devote a whole lifetime to the study of wheat, and still have only a faint conception of its importance in the world's prosperity, health, happiness and progress.

It is one of the things that are taken for granted, without the curiosity that prompts study, by a jaded civilization that trance-like is interested only in the startlingly new.

It excites less interest today than among the primitive people who evolved it slowly from the grasses they cultivated.

Yet the grain of wheat is the principal opening through which, into our three dimensional world, flows the mysterious current of life.

MISSING LINK.

Have scientists finally found the missing link, long sought as the connection between man and monkey in evolution?

A tooth that belonged to a primitive creature—neither man nor ape, but halfway between the two—is dug up near Agate, Neb., by a geologist.

The tooth, a scientific sensation, is said to be accepted by Dr. Henry Fairfield Osborn, of the American Museum of Natural History, as proof that man descended from the ape.

It is more logical to believe that the ape descended from man. A few of the lowest types of primitive man might very easily have strayed from home, become lost in the fern jungles, and degenerated into monkeys.

YELLOW.

Chinese armies battle along a 130 mile front. It is a real battle, with airplanes and artillery.

No American pays much attention to it, because the Chinese are fighting among themselves. It would be another story if the bullets were coming our way.

It was different 1,500 years ago, when an army of 20,000,000 Chinese pushed westward through Europe, to be defeated and driven back at the Marne. That excursion has almost vanished from our histories. But the impression it made on our ancestors still runs in our blood as an instinctive fear of the yellow peril.

AIR

Do you own the air above your property? The common law says, yes—that the land owner owns everything above as well as beneath his piece of land.

When flying machines become common, will property owners post "No Trespassing" signs? Griggs, founder of the American Flying club, fears so.

He tells aerial experts that congress will have to amend the law before cautious capital will invest enough money to develop aviation as it should be.

Sensible land owners will be satisfied, provided they are safeguarded against planes falling on their heads and homes.

HOOKY.

Five mothers in New York city are sentenced to two days in jail for not making their children go to school.

We move forward. Education now is compulsory, under the democratic system. A few generations ago, schools were almost exclusively for the children of the rich.

When autocracies were the rule instead of the exception, kings kept their subject people ignorant, knowing that education makes slavery of any kind impossible.

Democracy, wisely recognizing education as its most important defence, makes schooling compulsory.

THE FIRST STRAW HAT NEVER FIRST.

Somebody sees a straw hat in spring and gets excited about it. He thinks it is the first straw hat of the season. It seldom is. Nobody else comes along and takes the joy out of his life by deploring that he has seen a straw hat a week ago.

With our tropical winters it is quite possible to see fishers, janitors, golfers, and folks who don't give a hang about the straw hat does not cause the furore on the streets that it did a ago when men were more formal in their dress.

Often happens that a man's immorality is in direct ratio to the judgment from the outside; take off the mask.

Roundworm Causes Great Losses Each Year to Hog Growers—Parasites Shown Growing.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

The life and adventures of a worm would not seem to be promising material for a movie scenario, but a film recently issued by the United States Department of Agriculture proves that the doings of such a lowly organism as the roundworm that infests the intestines of swine may be absorbing. Ascaris lumbricoides is the scientific name for this parasite that causes great losses every year to swine growers, and the title of the educational picture is, "Exit Ascaris."

The screen story is built around two neighbor farmers, one of whom has success with his pigs and the other so much hard luck that he is discouraged almost to the point of giving up the business. The man with the untidy herd goes down the road to see the successful hog raiser about his troubles and is told that roundworms are the probable cause of his failure. But he is skeptical and remains unconvinced until a federal veterinarian is called in to diagnose the case.

The veterinarian brings a high power microscope and sets it up on a box in the hog yard where he shows the farmer and his neighbor that the soil of the lot is badly infested with the minute eggs of the roundworm. The eggs with the squirming young worms plainly visible within the walls are shown in the field of the microscope that is reproduced on the film. The entire life history of the worm is shown, from the time the egg is swallowed by the unwitting pig until the parasite is mature and one of hundreds in the intestines. The growing worms are shown to the owner right in his own sick pigs where there are plenty of specimens in various stages of development from the very small, newly hatched forms up to those that are full grown and more than a foot in length.

This film, "Exit Ascaris," will be sent to extension workers and field men of the department and the state agricultural colleges and to farm bureaus. Other organizations that are interested in improving the swine industry may get reels when they are available, and prints of the film may be purchased at cost by anyone who cares to own it. Inquiries should be addressed to the United States Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C.

MIXED INFECTION IN SWINE

Hog Industry Would Be Better Off If More Attention Given to Cholera, Says Expert.

Mixed infection in hogs is receiving too much notoriety. This name was invented by a biological house for the purpose of putting a new bacterin on the market. The new bacterin is supposed to prevent sayal of the complications of hog cholera, such as swine plague. From a scientific standpoint, the term "mixed infection" means nothing. If more attention were given to hog cholera and less to "mixed infection," the hog industry would be better off.—Dr. G. S. Weaver, South Dakota.

FEED FOR FATTENING LAMBS

Animals in a Dry-Lot Should Have Shelled Corn Twice Daily—Allow Plenty Salt.

To fatten feeder lambs in dry-lot allow them each a pound of shelled corn twice daily, two pounds of corn silage, with about one-sixth pound of oilmeal with the silage, and plenty of clover, alfalfa or soybean hay in the afternoon. Allow plenty of salt.

For growing lambs a good ration is made of equal parts of corn, oats, bran and oilmeal. Pursh plenty of good hay.

PROPER EXERCISE FOR EWES

Part of Roughage Should Be Fed in Field at Some Distance From the Barn.

Breeding ewes should get enough exercise. One of the causes of weak lambs is due to the fact that ewes have not adequate exercise. When it can be arranged, at least a part of the roughage should be fed in the field at some distance from the barn or the shed, and the ewes should be out every day that the weather is fair.

Odolites Evened Up.

MAIN BUSINESS OF THE DAY

WHEN MESS CALL SOUNDS AT AMERICAN LEGION HOSPITAL

When a person is suffering from tuberculosis, there are three great necessities—air, food and sleep. When the patients are former husky young men, but accents of the four. That is what the American Legion does at its tuberculosis hospital near Battle Creek.

The bed-patients are fed in their rooms, of course, but the boys who are still on their feet meet in the dining room for their three squares. No expense is spared to have the food extra-good, and plenty of it. Many cases are recorded of patients gaining 20 pounds within six weeks.

One of the members of the hospital board is Major John Emery of Grand Rapids, past national commander of the American Legion.

Building Stimulates Local Prosperity—Materials Plentiful and Prices Down

(Copyright 1922, by West Estate News, Chicago.)

Next to farming, local prosperity depends upon building activity. The reason is plain. Building is the country's second largest industry. It employs millions of workers directly, builds to make the materials for building and hundreds of thousands in building quarrying and hauling.

Everyone knows that a building shortage exists. One way to restore prosperity then, is by a lively resumption of building. Materials and labor now are plentiful. Costs are lower. Cement will serve as a good example because it goes into nearly all building.

For every ton of cement, 1 1/2 tons of raw materials and coal must be mined, shipped, assembled, dried, ground, weighed, mixed and then fused at about 3,000 degrees to a hard "clinker." This "clinker" must then be ground again, this time in a powder so fine that 78% will pass through a sieve having 30,000 holes per square inch. To make cement, one literally must "grind down a mountain and put it through a sieve." And yet cement sells at the mill for about $8.00 per ton. These facts caused the United States Geological Survey a few years ago to say that "one could not scrape the free sand from the gutter for much less cost per barrel."

Cement Competition Keen. That competition has been active is noted in government reports. According to the United States Geological Survey, the production of cement has steadily increased and the price declined. It shows that in 1920 cement sold at $4.00 a barrel, average at the mill; in 1921 at $2.02; in 1922 at $1.87. Now it is selling at many large plants as low as $1.50 a barrel, only half the average price in 1920, and less than the average for the 40-year period covered in the government report.

At one of the country's largest cement plants the price now is 43 1/2% higher than in the pre-war year 1914. The latest report of the United States Department of Labor shows the average price of "all commodities" as higher than 1913. Some of the items whose prices enter into this figure of 317, have undergone radical decreases, while others are very much higher than the average of 51%. For example, items of the former class enter into cement manufacturing costs, but several items of the latter class do affect the cement costs. In fact, the principal elements in these costs are labor, freight rates, coal and lime.

In February, 1922, the cement plant referred to paid for its coal at mines

Church Sent by Parcel Post.

It is almost unbelievable that a whole church was sent by parcel post, and yet it is so, and in northern California, in a place called Orleans. The church is now standing. The lumber was delivered by parcel post, as also the shingles, the bell, the stained glass for the windows, even a stove.

Bible, the hymn books, and hymns. In winter it takes from 20 to 30 days to get lumber, and the snow is on the ground, to reach Orleans from the railroad station, which is seven miles away. Seven miles of the journey have to be made on skis, and the lumber which carry the burdens have to have snowshoes specially made for them. It is a Herculean task to transport freight, but the Harco Indians were not daunted by such trifles, and after materials arrived at the station, rather, post office, they got busy, and now they have a cozy church in which to worship.

Coffin of Stalagmite.

Doctor Hrdlicka of the National museum was called to the Luray caverns to investigate some bones that had been discovered embedded in a stalagmite. With some difficulty the whole deposit containing the bones was removed in pieces, and the bones were found to be parts of a human skeleton; but the only trace of the skull was a portion of the lower jaw. The museum is studying the specimens.—Scientific American.

SYNOPSIS

CHAPTER I.—A wealthy and highly educated man, William MacHarg, who had been in the Chicago business world for many years, was one day called to a party by a friend. He was accompanied by a young woman, a friend of his daughter, who was also a friend of the hostess. They were in a large, ornate house, and the party was in full swing. MacHarg was looking over the guests, and noticed a young man, who was also a friend of his daughter, who was also a friend of the hostess. He was looking at him with a curious expression, and the young man was looking at him with a curious expression.

CHAPTER II.—Corvet's letter summons a young man, a friend of his daughter, who was also a friend of the hostess. He was looking at him with a curious expression, and the young man was looking at him with a curious expression.

He wanted the alternative to giving which was that Luke would "take" Blackmail, that meant, of course, blackmail which not only Luke had told of but which Wassquam too had admitted, as Alan now realized. Money for blackmail—that was the reason for that thousand dollars in cash which Benjamin Corvet always kept at the house.

Alan turned with a sudden shiver of revulsion toward his father's chair in place before the hearth; there for hours each day his father had sat with a book or staring into the fire always with what this man knew hanging over him, always arming against it with the thousand dollars ready for this man, whenever he came. Meeting blackmail, paying blackmail for as long as Wassquam had been in the house, for as long as it took to make the once muscular powerful figure of the father who threatened to "take" into the swollen whiskey-soaked bulk of the man lying now on the lounge.

For his state that day the man named Benjamin Corvet, Alan, forcing himself to think of the swollen face, shuddered at thought of the truth underlying that accusation. Benjamin Corvet's act—whatever it might be—destroyed not only him who paid the blackmail, but him who received it; the effect of that act was still going on, destroying, blighting. Its threat of shame was not only against Benjamin Corvet; it threatened also all whose names must be connected with Corvet's. This shame threatened Alan; it threatened also the Sheritts. What Sheritt had told Alan and even Corvet's gifts to him had not been able to make Alan feel that without question Corvet was his father, but now shame and horror were making him feel it; in horror at Corvet's act—whatever it might be—and in shame at Corvet's cowardice, Alan was thinking of Benjamin Corvet as his father. This shame, this horror were his inheritance.

TALE OF HEROISM AND NEGLECT TOLD

TOWNSEND VIGOROUSLY PRESSES BILL FOR RELIEF OF ONE OF MICHIGAN'S GREAT ST HEROES.

'BRAVEST MAN IN THE WAR'

Washington.—Through a bill recently introduced by Senator Townsend of Michigan, one of the most heroic exploits of the World War—and like-wise one of the most tragic examples of governmental red tape toward one of its heroes—has come to light. It deals with Robert Guy Robinson, of Ypsilanti, one of the two Michigan men to be awarded the Congressional Medal of Honor, and the nation's highest tribute to valor in action. Robinson's military record relates that Robinson was a marine aviator took part in an aerial raid over the German lines, and that as a result of this squadron breaking up, he was captured either to surrender or to fight his way back to the American lines through a German "circuit" of mine fields.

Determined to Fight.

He and his pilot determined to fight. At the first burst of German machine gun bullets, the goggles were shot from the pilot's eyes. Robinson received one bullet in the back and another in the elbow. But flying fast toward a German salient, the American plane fought its way through the enemy flyers, shooting down two of them. Robinson then hit upon the most daring maneuver of all. He directed his plane directly over the area of the salient where the anti-aircraft guns were located. Their aerial barrage was a trifle too late to catch his plane, but it so on, dangerous and delayed the enemy pursuers that the Americans gained their vantage, and volplaned to earth within the allied lines. But by this time, the pilot had received wounds from which he died, and Robinson had been struck by four more bullets. The report of the commander of the Belgian hospital to which he was assigned is that Robinson was the bravest man whom he encountered during the war.

Honors—Then Neglect.

Citations, honors and medals followed. And then came the governmental neglect of one of its heroes trapped to civil life. Under the law, Robinson was entitled to be retired as a lieutenant of marines, with pay. Inasmuch as he is still disabled, and his parents died while he was in service, he needed that money. But no notification ever was given him, and the first he ever heard of it was through the American Legion on the day of the burial of the Unknown Soldier. And under the law—that was 20 days too late to file his claim! The Legion took the matter up with Secretary Denby, but the latter was unable to unwind the red tape. However, he is co-operating with Senator Townsend to the fullest degree in having adopted a special act of Congress for Robinson's relief.

Where the News Comes From While Drivers Seek Fortune

INDIANAPOLIS, IND.—Every Memorial Day, when the stars of the speed world are battling for a pot of gold in the Indianapolis 500-mile race, the big press stand is a hive of industry. From the press pogo the wires of the press services carry the news of the progress of the race to all parts of the United States and by cable to Europe and Asia; special wires to metropolitan newspapers radiate from the stand and almost in a twinkling the name of the winner is flashed from coast to coast. Between two and three hundred men are engaged in gathering and disseminating the news of race day. In the inset is Steve Hannagan, seated in the shadow of the famous Wheeler-Schebler Trophy, the man who disseminates all the press race news from the speedway office.

In the Realm of Society

With the beauty of the day and the sentiment that enfolded it one could hardly help but think of Mother. It was a wonderful day and the churches were all packed. In every church services and special music were dedicated to "Mother".

The carnation, as well as the tulip and lily of the valleys were seen on the lapel of the thoughtful son or on the dress of the devoted daughter Sunday.

Grange Met.
The North Sylvan Grange met Friday evening in the I. O. O. F. hall. The regular meeting was held followed by a program. A representative of the Tribune gave a short talk. Following the program refreshments were served.

A Daughter.
Mr. and Mrs. Glenn Trouton are the happy parents of a 7½ pound daughter, Alta Harriet, born May 12.

Pythian Sisters.
The Pythian Sisters will hold their regular meeting Friday evening, May 19.

Pageant.
Sunday afternoon, eight automobiles full of children from the First Methodist church of Ann Arbor came out to the Methodist home and gave the pageant "The Spirit of Childhood." The children brought flowers with them which they gave to every lady in the home. After the program ice cream and cake were served.

Bake Sale.
St. Agnes Sodality will hold a bake sale, Saturday, May 20, at Fern's store.

Entertains Cythereans.
Mrs. Edward Vogel entertained the Cythereans at her home Friday afternoon, May 12.

The St. Paul's Auxillary will meet with Mrs. Reuben Grieb Friday, May 19, at 2:00 o'clock. Those who have no way of getting out should meet at the parsonage at 1:30 where there will be cars to take care of them. Bring dishes.

FRANCISCO

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Notten, Mr. and Mrs. Philip Schweinfurth and Mrs. Lina Whitaker and son spent Sunday afternoon at the home of A. Snyder of Pinckney.

The Cavanaugh Lake grange will entertain the North Lake grange Tuesday evening, May 16.

Emmet Dancer and family of Lima spent Sunday at the home of Henry Notten.

Mr. and Mrs. Will Kaimbach and daughter of South Lyons spent Sunday with Mrs. Emma Kaimbach.

Mr. and Mrs. George Boeman and daughter and Mr. and Mrs. John Dykema were callers in this vicinity Sunday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. John Bacon are spending some time at the home of the late parents, Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Klump.

Mr. and Mrs. Howard Boyce and family of Lyndon spent Sunday at the home of Chas. Reimenschneider.

Mr. and Mrs. Eric Notten visited the late sister, Mrs. Polly Mitchell at Ann Arbor, Sunday. Mrs. Mitchell underwent a serious operation at Dr. Cummings hospital, but at this writing is getting along as well as can be expected.

Albert Schweinfurth spent Sunday at River Junction.

CUREW IN MERIDEN.

The person who wrote "Curfew Shall Not Ring Tonight" could never have been in Meriden, Conn., for curfew is going to ring at 9:30 there every night to warn children off the streets. The movement was started by the Boy's Welfare league, composed of representatives of the Rotary club, Y. M. C. A., Elks' Boys' club and Boy Scouts, and indications are that the city council will pass the ordinance.

LUMBAGO.

This is a rheumatism of the muscles of the back. It comes on suddenly and is quite painful. Every movement aggravates the disease. Go to bed, keep quiet and have Chamberlain's Liniment applied and a quick recovery may be expected. Mrs. F. J. Dany, Brockport, N. Y., writes: "I can honestly say that Chamberlain's Liniment cured me of lumbago a year ago last summer. When I began using it, I was flat on my back in bed and could not turn to the left or right. I had a bottle of Chamberlain's Liniment in the house and this was applied to my back. It promptly drove away the pains and aches." Adv.

Concert at Church.

Albert E. Greenlaw, celebrated baritone soloist and Mae Wood Greenlaw, noted elocutionist, gave a fine concert and entertainment at the Congregational church last evening. Mr. Greenlaw had given several selections Sunday at the regular church services and many people heard his fine voice then.

The church was well filled with an appreciative audience. Although Mr. Greenlaw could not use the full volume of his voice, because of a cold, his songs were well given, showing a wide range of voice.

The selections by Mrs. Greenlaw were all well appreciated. Her humorous, as well as her dramatic selections were given with ease that showed training and experience. The concert was a fine success and the people who were able to hear these noted people were well pleased.

Visits Son at College.

Mrs. Charles Martin was in Hillsdale Sunday where she was the guest of her son John Martin at Delta Tau Delta Fraternity. Sunday morning the young man and his mother attended the Presbyterian church.

Dinner was served at the fraternity. The president of the college, Jos. W. Mauck and Mrs. Mauck were guests of honor. In the afternoon there was a long drive in the country and later tea was served. Music was furnished by the Collegian Five. A group picture of the eighty mothers and sons was taken in front of the residence house. This picture will be reproduced in the Detroit, Toledo and Jackson papers and will serve as a delightful reminder of the day.

Farmer's Club Entertained.

The Western Washtenaw Farmer's club will be entertained by Mr. and Mrs. John Jensen, Friday, May 19. The following program will be given:

"INCURABLES"

"While there's life there's hope." No truer statement ever was made. Every one has heard it and nearly every one believes it. But to judge by the pitiable lives of many one is inclined to believe that a large number fail to put their belief into practice.

There's another old proverb which says: "Substance that nothing is certain but death." And this is likewise believed by most persons, though at times one thinks the handwriting on the wall indicating that certain things are inevitable.

Nevertheless, the latter proverb is just as sound as the old one given at the beginning of this essay. Those would, therefore, be much more hopeful in the world if many more would live with both thoughts clearly in mind.

There is no sadder institution in the world than those devoted to the treatment and care of persons afflicted with incurable ailments. No one in the world deserves greater sympathy and comfort and aid than those who are suffering from illness which they believe cannot be cured. But there are entirely too many who are declared incurable and decide themselves that nothing can be done to bring them good health. Every community of considerable size has many such residents who make life unhappy for themselves and others, and many thousands of them may be found in the United States. Yet, thanks to the advances of medical science, only a very small proportion of these are actually incurable.

Wonderful would be the increase in the world's happiness if this fact were widely known and understood and believed. It is, therefore, a matter of great importance which should make every one glad that President Harding's personal physician, Brig. Gen. Charles Sawyer, is engaged in planning for the welfare department of the United States government. For Doctor Sawyer has devoted most of his life to seeking "incurables" and curing them, and he believes that the happiness and welfare of thousands of persons depends on teaching them that few are actually incurable and that most of the sick can be made well.

Beveridge Victory Called a Jolt

"Who says they never come back?" Not the friends of former U. S. Senator Beveridge of Indiana.

The defeat of Senator Harry S. New in the Indiana Republican primaries at the hands of Beveridge has caused a sensation in Washington administration circles. By astute politicians, the result is regarded as a protest against several of the appointments made by the President.

Beveridge is of independent mind, as advanced in his political ideas as he is in his head gear.

LEGION TO BUILD ORPHANS' HOME

WAR MEMORIAL, EVERLASTING IS PLAN OF STATE VETERANS ORGANIZATION—TOWNSEND IS FOR IT.

NOW LOOKING FOR RIGHT SITE

A "War Memorial Everlasting" in the form of a school and home for the orphans of veterans of the World War has been outlined by the state executive committee of the American Legion.

The committee decided that instead of a monument or other ornamental structure, it would establish in Michigan an institution of practical aid to the fatherless children of the war.

Townsend Approves Plan.

As the plan was proposed, the Legion itself would carry on the work without seeking the aid of any public funds.

Senator Townsend of Michigan has written from Washington his hearty approval of the plan, and will co-operate with the Legion in carrying it through.

"Our idea," said Paul A. Martin, State Commissioner, in presenting the plan, "is that the highest type of war memorial must combine the elements of useful help, permanency, and a just appreciation of the sacrifices of the dead."

"When the American Legion of Michigan undertakes this great work it will have assumed national leadership in a movement which cannot fail to catch the spirit of patriotic imagination and support everywhere."

"My idea is that the home should be located in the country, where the best combination of beautiful surroundings can be found."

"There is no need for us to decide just where. For there will be much competition among various communities to obtain this unique war memorial."

Ends Odd Family Compact.

The will of Miss Phoebe E. Muns, whose death at the age of eighty-three removed the last survivor of a strange family compact made sixty years ago by an brother and sister never to work for the common interest of all, distributed an estate estimated to exceed $500,000 among various churches and charitable institutions in the United States.

Aerial Lines in Europe.

Twenty aerial lines, with a total length of 6,000 miles, are in operation in Europe. France holds first place with lines covering 2,000 miles. Germany comes second with 2,000 miles, and England third. In addition to these lines there are many local lines, which daily leads with 1,200 miles.

In the Arctic.

Equipped with powerful wireless transmitting instruments, capable of a range of 8,000 miles in middle latitudes, the Quetz, Sir Ernest Shackleton's adventure ship, will be able to keep in touch with this country every day, for the nearer she is to the Pole the more effective will become the ether waves which carry wireless messages.

Had the pioneers of Arctic exploration been able to utilize the miracle of wireless communication, the tragic stories of the last century would probably never have been written. Franklin would, in that event, have been able to communicate his helpless condition and his exact location to those who for so long vainly braved the terrors of the Arctic in search of his lost expedition, the fate of which was only discovered after ten years.
