VALUATION GROWING AT CAVANAUGH LAKE RESORT

Supervisor H. J. Dancer informs the Standard that since the assessment was taken one year ago, he has added to the roll, $34,000 increase in valuation for the improvements that have been made in the erection of summer homes on the shores of Cavanaugh Lake.

Mrs. Henrietta Glazier placed on the market last year, forty lots and sold twenty-seven of them during the year, and some of the purchasers built cottages on them the past year and other lot owners are making arrangements to build this season. Mrs. Glazier has had a fine gravel driveway built around the private lake on her property and contemplates having a plat made for an addition to her original subdivision. Most of the purchasers of the lots on this property are residents of Detroit and Wayne.

During the past year and this spring many new cottages have been built and all of the owners of property have had or are having improvements made to their premises.
Ransom Armstrong has under construction a store building on the corner of the Cavanaugh Lake road and the highway that leads past the Snow farm and when it is completed he will put in a stock of goods.

From the present indications, the building program as contemplated by lot owners for this season, will increase the valuation of the lake frontage fully as much if not more than last year.

Chelsea Good Wool Market.

During the past week large clips of wool have been delivered by the farmers of this community to the Chelsea buyers.

There are several buyers here who are representatives of firms in Boston, and they are all anxious to secure all of the wool that is possible.
The price has advanced some since the market first opened in March.

The price ranged during the past week from 37 cents to better than 40 cents per pound for A-1 quality of Delaine wool.

The farm bureau on the opening day for receiving wool here, received a limited amount of wool. Most of the farmers prefer to sell their wool at once rather than place it in the pool.

Ramsey Milholland

By BOOTH TARKINGTON

Most uncomfortably astonished, Ramsey took his hands out of his pockets, picked a leaf from a lilac bush beside the path, and put the stem of the leaf seriously into a corner of his mouth, before finding anything to say. "Well—well, all right," he finally responded. "I'll tell you—if it's anything I know about."

"You know about it," said Dora. "That is, you certainly do if you were at your 'frat' meeting last night. Were you?"

"Yes, I was there," Ramsey answered, wondering what in the world she wanted to know, though he supposed vaguely that it must be something about Colburn, whom he had several times seen walking with her. "Of course I couldn't tell you much," he added, with an afterthought. "You see, a good deal that goes on at a 'frat' meeting isn't supposed to be talked about."

"Yes," she said, smiling faintly, though with a satire that missed him. "I've been a member of a sorority since September, and I think I have an idea of what could be told or not told. Suppose we walk on, if you don't mind. My question needn't embarrass you."

Nevertheless, as they slowly went on together, Ramsey was embarrassed. He felt "queer." They had known each other so long; in a way had shared so much; sitting daily for years near each other and undergoing the same outward experiences; they had almost "grown up together," yet this was the first time they had ever talked together or walked together.

"Well—" he said, "if you want to ask anything it's all right for me to tell you—well, I just as soon, I guess."

"It has nothing to do with the secret proceedings of your 'frat,'" said Dora, primly. "What I want to ask about has been talked of all over the place today. Everyone has been saying it was your 'frat' that sent the first telegram to members of the government offering support in case of war with Germany. They say you didn't even wait until today, but sent off a message last night. What I wanted to ask you was whether this story is true or not?"

"Why, yes," said Ramsey, mildly. "That's what we did."

She uttered an exclamation, a sound of grief and of suspicion confirmed. "Ah! I was afraid so!"

"Afraid so? What's the matter?" he asked, and because she seemed excited and troubled, he found himself not quite so embarrassed as he had been at first; for some reason her agitation made him feel easier. "What was wrong about that?"

"Oh, it's all so shocking and wicked and mistaken!" she cried. "Even the faculty has been doing it, and half the other 'frats' and sororities! And it was yours that started it!"

"Yes, we did," he said, thoroughly puzzled. "We're the oldest 'frat' here, and of course—"he chuckled modestly—"of course we think we're the best. Do you mean you believe we ought to've sat back and let somebody else start it?"

"Oh, no!" she answered, vehemently. "Nobody ought to have started it! That's the trouble; don't you see? If nobody had started it none of it might have happened. The rest mightn't have caught it. It mightn't have got into their heads. A war thought is the most contagious thought in the world; but if it can be kept from starting, it can be kept from being contagious. It's just when people have got into an emotional state, or a state of smoldering rage, that everybody ought to be so terribly careful not to think war thoughts or make war speeches—or send war telegrams! I thought—oh, I was so sure I'd convinced Mr. Colburn of all this, the last time we talked of it! He seemed to understand, and I was sure he agreed with me." She bit her lip. "He was only pretending—I see that now!"

"I guess he must 'a' been," said Ramsey, with admirable simplicity. "He didn't talk about anything like that last night. He was as much for it as anybody."

"I've no doubt!" Ramsey made bold to look at her out of the side of his eye, and as she was gazing tensely forward he continued his observation for some time. She was obviously controlling agitation, almost controlling tears, which seemed to threaten her very wide-open eyes; for those now fully grown and noticeable eye-winkers of hers were subject to fluctuations indicating such a threat. She looked "hurt," and Ramsey was touched. There was something human about her, then, after all. And if he had put his feeling into words at the moment, he would have said that he guessed maybe he could stand this old girl, for a few minutes sometimes better than he'd always thought he could.

"Well," he said, "Colburn probably wouldn't want to hurt your feelings or anything. Colburn—"

"He? He didn't! I haven't the faintest personal interest in what he did."

"Oh!" said Ramsey.

because he'd jollied you about this pacifist stuff, and then—

"No!" she said, sharply. "I'm not thinking of his having agreed with me and fooling me about it. He just wanted to make a pleasant impression on a girl, and said anything he thought would please her. I don't care whether he does things like that or not. What I care about is that the principle didn't reach him and that he mocked it! I don't care about a petty treachery to me, personally, but I—"

Fraternat loyalty could not quite brook this. "Brother Colburn is a perfectly honorable man," said Ramsey, solemnly. "He is one of the most honorable men in this—"

"Of course!" she cried. "Oh, can't I make you understand that I'm not condemning him for a little flattery to me? I don't care two straws for his showing that I didn't influence him. He doesn't interest me, please understand."

Ramsey was altogether perplexed. "Well, I don't see what makes you go for him so hard, then."

"I don't."

"But you said he was treacherous—"

"I don't condemn him for it," she insisted, despairingly. "Don't you see the difference? I'm not condemning anybody; I'm only lamenting."

"What about?"

"About all of you that want war!"

"My golly!" Ramsey exclaimed. "You don't think those Dutchmen were right to drown babies and—"

"No! I think they were ghastly murderers! I think they were detestable and fiendish and monstrous and—"

"Well, then, my goodness! What do you want?"

"I don't want war!"

"You don't?"

"I want Christianity!" she cried. "I can't think of the Germans without hating them, and so today, when all the world is hating them, I keep myself from thinking of them as much as I can. Already half the world is full of war; you want to go to war to make things right, but it won't; it will only make more war!"

"Well, I—"

"Don't you see what you've done, you boys?" she said. "Don't you see there was something human about her, then, after all.

what you've done with your absurd telegram? That started the rest; they thought they all had to send telegrams like that."

"Well, the faculty—"

"Even they mightn't have thought of it if it hadn't been for the first one. Vengeance is the most terrible thought; once you put it into people's minds that they ought to have it, it runs away with them."

"Well, it isn't mostly vengeance we're after, at all. There's a lot more to it than just getting even with—"

She did not heed him. "You're all blind! You don't see what you're doing; you don't even see what you've done to this peaceful place here. You've filled it full of thoughts of fury and killing and massacre—"

"Why, no," said Ramsey. "It was those Dutch did that to us; and, besides, there's more to it than you—"

"No, there isn't," she interrupted. "It's just the old brutal spirit that nations inherit from the time they were only tribes; it's the tribe spirit, and an eye for an eye and a tooth for a tooth. It's those things and the love of fighting—men have always loved to fight. Civilization hasn't taken it out of them; men still have the brute in them that loves to fight!"

"I don't think so," said Ramsey. "Americans don't love to fight; I don't know about other countries, but we don't. Of course, here and there there's some fellow that likes to hunt around for scraps, but I never saw more than three or four in my life that acted that way. Of course a football team often has a scraper or two on it, but that's different."

"No," she said. "I think you all

Ramsey was roused to become argumentative. "I don't see where you get the idea. Colburn isn't that way, and back at school there wasn't a single boy that was anything like that."

"What?" She stopped, and turned suddenly to face him.

"What's the matter?" he said, stopping, too. Something he said had startled her, evidently.

"How can you say such a thing?" she cried. "You love to fight!"

"Me?"

"You do! You love fighting. You always have loved fighting."

He was dumfounded. "Why, I never had a fight in my life!"

She cried out in protest of such provocation.

"Well, I never did," he insisted, mildly.

"Why, you had a fight about me!"

"No, I didn't."

"With Wesley Bender!"

Ramsey chuckled. "That wasn't a fight!"

"It wasn't?"

"Nothing like one. We were just guys' kin about—about gettin' elbowed up, kind of, because he sat in front of you; and he hit me with his book strap and I chased him off. Gracious, no; that wasn't a fight!"

"But you fought Linski only last fall."

Ramsey chuckled again. "That wasn't even as much like a fight as the one with Wesley. I just told this Linski I was going to give him a punch in the sn— I just told him to look out because I was going to hit him, and then I did it, and waited to see if he wanted to do anything about it, and he didn't. That's all there was to it, and it wasn't any more like fighting than—than feeding chickens is."

She laughed dolefully. "It seems to me rather more like it than that!"

"Well, it wasn't."

They had begun to walk on again, and Ramsey was aware that they had passed the "frat house," where his dinner was probably growing cold. He was aware of this, but not sharply or insistently. Curiously enough, he did not think about it. He had begun to find something pleasant in the odd interview, and in walking beside a girl, even though the girl was Dora Yocum. He made no attempt to account to himself for anything so peculiar.

For a while they went slowly together, not speaking, and without destination, though Ramsey vaguely took it for granted that Dora was going somewhere. But she wasn't. They emerged from the part of the small town closely built about the university and came out upon a bit of parked land overlooking the river; and here Dora's steps slowed to an indeterminate halt near a bench beneath a maple tree.

"I think I'll stay here a while," she said; and as he made no response, she asked: "Haven't you better be going back to your 'frat house' for your dinner? I didn't mean for you to come out of your way with me; I only wanted to get an answer to my question. You'd better be running back."

"Well—"

He stood irresolute, not sure that he wanted his dinner just then. It would have amazed him to face the fact deliberately that perhaps he preferred being with Dora Yocum to eating. However, he faced no such fact, nor any fact, but lingered.

"Well—" he said again.

"You'd better go."

"I guess I can get my dinner pretty near any time. I don't—" He had a thought. "Did you—"

"Did you have your dinner before I met you?"

"No."

"Well, aren't you—"

She shook her head. "I don't want any."

"Why not?"

"I don't think people have very much appetite today and yesterday," she said, with the hint of a sad laugh, "all over America."

"No; I guess that's so."

"It's too terrible!" she said. "I can't sit and eat when I think of the Lusitania—of all those poor, poor people strangling in the water—"

"No; I guess nobody can eat much, if they think about that."

"And of what it's going to bring, if we let it," she went on. "As if this killing weren't enough, we want to add our killing! Oh, that's the most terrible thing of all—the thing it makes within us! Don't you understand?"

She turned to him appealingly, and he felt queerer than ever. Dusk had fallen. Where they stood, under the young-leaved maple tree, there was but a faint lingering of afterglow, and in this mystery her face glimmered wan and sweet; so that Ramsey, just then, was like one that discovers an old pan, used in the kitchen, to be made of chased silver.

"Well, I don't feel much like dinner right now," he said. "We—we could sit here awhile on this bench, probably."

Lasker L. Oddie, United States senator from Nevada, has had a career as odd as his name. He was born in Brooklyn, N. Y., in 1870. At sixteen he went to Nebraska for his health and was a cowboy three years. Then he went to New York, worked, studied law and was admitted to practice. In 1898 he went to Nevada for the Stokes family to investigate the handling of mining properties. He discovered, through private detective work exposing him to sudden death by lead poisoning, that the Stokeses hadn't suspected the half of the fraud. He cleaned up the swindlers, took his pay, got interested in mining for its own sake and went into the sagebrush a-prospecting.

He fell in with old Jim Butler. Together they discovered and located the Mispah mine of the future Tonopah, which they sold for $350,000 in 1900. Tonopah became rapidly one of the greatest mining camps in history, both gold and silver, and Goldfield came into being as a result of Tonopah.

Oddie got into politics about that time and was elected governor of the state in 1911. In 1920, running for the senate, he upset a strong Democratic majority. He delights in a big ranch in southern Nevada.

Sabina, Ohio.—"I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for weakness, nervousness, and irregularity. I was weak and nervous and could hardly stand on my feet long enough to cook a meal. I was this way for about a year and had tried several medicines and had a physician, but to no avail. My sister was taking your medicine and finally induced me to try it. Housewives make a great mistake in allowing themselves to become so weak and nervous that it is well-nigh impossible for them to attend to their necessary household duties.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound should be taken when you first notice such symptoms as nervousness, backache, weakness and irregularity. It will help you and prevent more serious trouble. Give it a fair trial. It surely helped Mrs. Hatfield, just as it has many, many other women.

Christmas as a Name.

There are 25 persons whose name is Christmas in the present London directory. "Their callings," he says, "vary from a stained-glass artist to a furniture broker." There have been some quite notable people whose name was Christmas. A Mr. Christmas was master carver in the navy in the time of Charles I and evidently had great privileges, even to the extent of impressing men for service on the ships. Then there was a Henry Christmas, for some years lecturer at St. Peter's, Cornwall; and a Miss Jane Christmas, a well-known author and zealous Protestant propagandist in the middle of the Nineteenth century.

DAIRY FACTS

FEEDING COWS ON ROUGHAGE

Interesting Test Made With Mature Holstein Cow on Government Farm in Montana.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

What will a dairy cow do in the way of milk and butterfat production when fed on roughage exclusively? Perhaps the consensus of opinion is that she will not do very well, but the United States Department of Agriculture has some figures that show what a few cows did that were fed on alfalfa hay and corn silage, without grain.

A mature Holstein cow was pastured on irrigated, tame grass at the department farm at Huntley, Mont. During the winter months she received nothing but corn silage and alfalfa hay. She was under test for 140.5 weeks and 98 nights she was on pasture. During the rest of the year she consumed 9,014 pounds of alfalfa hay and 8,885 pounds of corn silage, a rather large amount of bulky feed. While this ration was fed the cow maintained her weight at practically what it was at the beginning of the test, and produced 14,210.1 pounds of milk and 470.24 pounds of butterfat.

For the 12 months following the next freshening this same cow was milked three times a day and given, in addition to roughage, all the grain she would eat. The surprising fact is that she ate 7,056 pounds of grain and practically the same amount of roughage as before. The actual quantities of roughage were 10,068 pounds of alfalfa hay, 8,325 pounds of silage and 4,280 pounds of beets. She was on pasture 130 days and no nights. The milk production for the year was 25,490.4 pounds, and butterfat 823.11 pounds, and the gain in weight 200 pounds.

But notice the difference in the nutrients required to produce the product the first year and the second year, when 75 per cent more butterfat was produced. The first year, over and above maintenance and in addition to pasture, the cow consumed for each 100 pounds of butterfat 155.37 pounds of digestible protein and 558.09 pounds of total digestible nutrients, and for each 1,000 pounds of milk yielded she used 51.7 pounds of digestible protein and 184.8 pounds of total digestible nutrients.

The second year, when she received all the grain she would eat, she received above maintenance and in addition to pasture, in the production of 100 pounds of butterfat, 218.7 pounds of digestible protein and 1074.4 pounds of total digestible nutrients; and in the production of 1,000 pounds of milk she used 70.43 pounds of digestible protein and 345.9 pounds of total digestible nutrients.

From a nutrition standpoint the cow made a more economical use of the roughage ration than of the roughage plus heavy grain ration. No attempt was made to compare the relative economy of the two systems of feeding on a dollars-and-cents basis, as the relation between prices of roughage, grain, milk, and butterfat, which vary by localities and seasons, would be a large factor in determining this question.

There are now several cows on this farm that have records made on roughage alone. One made 477 pounds of butterfat in 350 days, and promises to have a record of 490 pounds at the end of her year, which will be within 45 pounds of the record made the year before when grain was fed. Another cow in the herd made 845 pounds of butterfat in 245 days without grain, and still another 195 pounds in 120 days. It is now planned to try some of them on moderate grain rations to make comparisons of the amounts of nutrients required to make butterfat and milk under all conditions.

Later and more complete figures on additional cows will show the effect on production of three plans of nutrition—no grain ration, light grain ration, and heavy grain ration. The relative prices of milk, butterfat, and feed will then determine the method of feeding most profitable for a given section.

Benefits of Limestone.

Place a shallow box of ground limestone where the cows will have to walk through it when entering the barn. This will clean their feet, keep them from slipping, and add to the value of the manure.

Increasing Milk Production.

Increasing milk production has to be taken into consideration in the feeding of dairy cows. The best way to increase milk production is to feed a ration that will give the cow the maximum amount of milk possible.

RADIO

THINGS BEGINNERS MUST LEARN FIRST

Explanation of Terms Used in Radio and of Its Basic Principles.

Due to the great interest taken in radio since broadcasting stations have been started, many radio terms are seen and heard that may be unfamiliar to the novice. Some of the most commonly used terms are explained and defined below.

Like light, heat and sound, radio energy is propagated in the form of a wave motion. Every one is familiar with the wave motion set up on the surface of a still body of water by the dropping of a stone into it.

Every time a point on the surface of the waves goes through a complete set of motions and starts to repeat those motions the wave is said to have gone through a cycle.

The number of complete cycles gone through per second is the frequency. The human ear is responsive to sound frequencies up to a few thousand cycles per second but is not capable of responding to the higher frequencies encountered in radio. Arbitrarily a frequency of less than 10,000 cycles has been called an audible frequency—one which can be heard—and frequencies above 10,000 cycles, radio or inaudible frequencies—because they cannot be heard by the human ear.

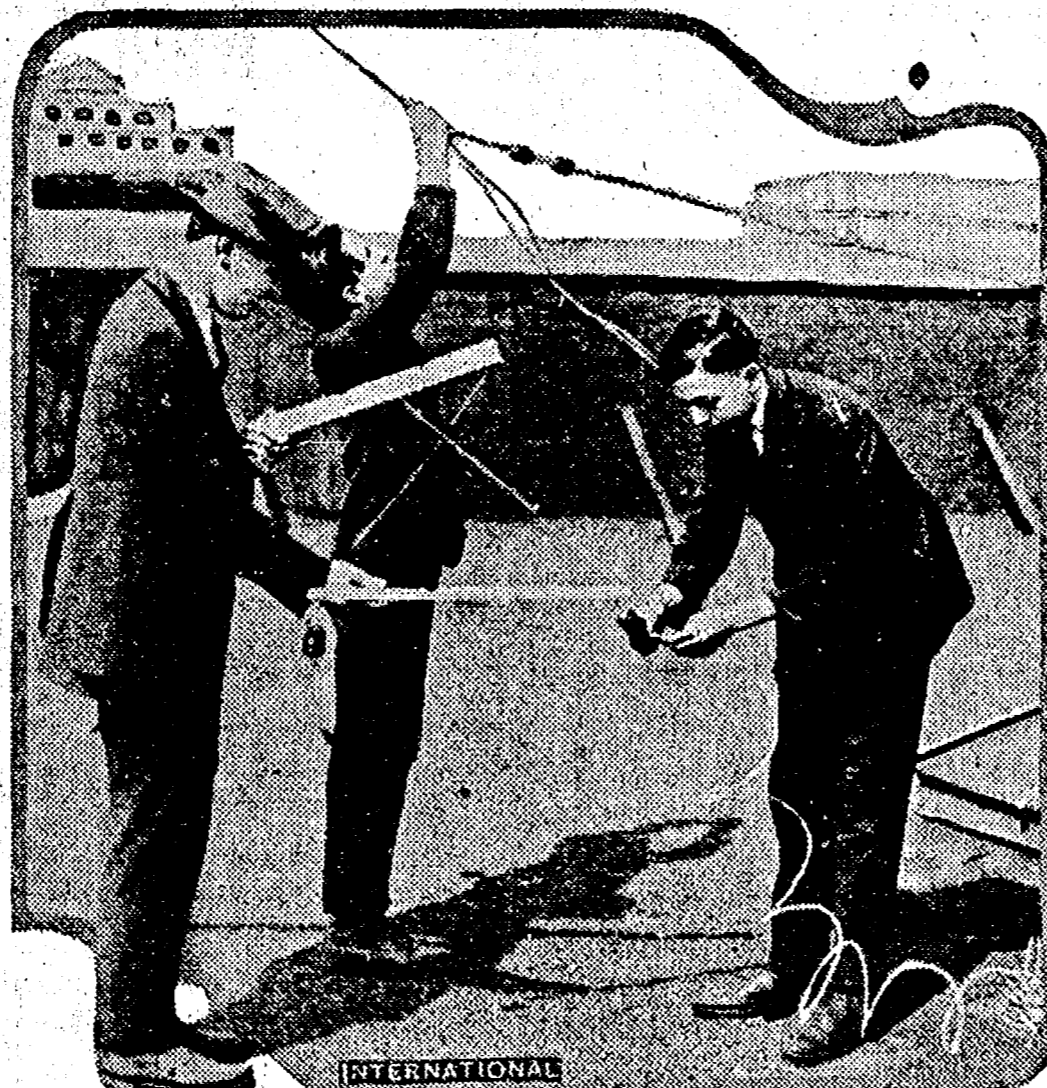

The particular type of wave which propagates radio energy is an electromagnetic wave. All of us have seen bits of iron and steel attracted by the little toy magnets made up in the form of horseshoes. This attraction of the magnet for the bits of iron and steel showed the existence of a magnetic

The high-frequency current is known as the carrier-wave and its function is to radiate into space in the form of electro-magnetic waves and by its variation in amplitude carry with it the variation in the tone at the transmitting station.

It is the frequency of the carrier-wave that determines the wave-length on which a radiophone station is transmitted. By experiment it has been found that electro-magnetic waves travel at the same velocity that light waves travel, that is, 186,000 miles per second. Wave-length is the distance between any two similar points on two successive waves; for example, the distance from crest to crest of any two successive waves in the same direction, measured in meters, a unit of length equal approximately to one and one-tenth yards. Converting 186,000 miles to meters, the equivalent is 300,000,000 meters. The length of an electro-magnetic wave is equal then to 300,000,000 divided by the frequency. Suppose a station was transmitting on a wave-length of 360 meters. The frequency of the carrier-wave would be approximately 835,000 cycles.

Just as a violinist tunes his instrument, that is, makes a certain string emit a note of higher or lower pitch, or, technically speaking, a sound wave of higher or lower frequency, by adjusting the tension on the string, so may the electrical constants of the antenna circuit of a radiophone transmitter be changed in order to have the station emit a carrier-wave of a different frequency.

If a tuning fork having a natural period corresponding to middle C is placed near a violinist who is playing, the fork will vibrate when the musician plays middle C, but all other times it will remain quiescent. This phenomenon of the tuning fork vibrating whenever the musician plays the corresponding note on the violin is known as mechanical resonance. If a radio receiver be adjusted so that electrically its natural period of vibration will be 835,000 cycles (360 meters wave-length) every time a station transmits on a wave-length of 360 meters, current will be set up in the receiver by field about the tips of the magnet and this same kind of a field propagates the electro-magnetic force, except that unlike the toy magnet, its power comes off in the form of wavy motions. This electro-magnetic force propagates radio energy in all directions.

The medium that transmits the electro-magnetic waves is the same medium that transmits light—the ether. This medium is supposed to fill all space, even that occupied by fluids and solids. Little is known about its properties.

In radio it is more common to speak of wave length than frequency. The wave length of any wave motion is the distance between any two successive crests in the same direction. The wave length depends upon the frequency. If the frequency is high the wave length is short. On the other hand if the frequency is low the wave length is long. Numerically the wave length is equal to the distance traveled by the wave in one second divided by the frequency. Suppose, for example, that it were desired to know the wave length of an electro-magnetic wave having a frequency of 835,000 cycles. Electro-magnetic waves travel at the same speed as do light waves, that is, 186,000 miles per second. Dividing the 186,000 by 835,000 the wave length would be .223 miles or 360 yards. In radio work it is measured in meters. A meter is equal to approximately 1.1 yards. Converting 360 yards into meters the wave length would be 360 divided by 1.1 or 360 meters. This is the wave length on which KDKA operates. It also means that the electro-magnetic waves sent out from this station have a frequency of 835,000 cycles.

FUNDAMENTAL PRINCIPLES

In a radiophone transmitter there are two requirements that must be fulfilled. First, there must be a source of high-frequency current, say, between 15,000 and 1,500,000 cycles so connected to an antenna and ground system that energy in the form of electro-magnetic waves will be radiated. Second, there must be some method of controlling this high-frequency current or modulating it so that the variations in the amplitude of the high-frequency current will be directly proportional to the variations in the sound waves to be transmitted.

electrical resonance. Stations transmitting on any wave-length other than 360 meters will not cause a current to be set up in the receiver.

The portion of a radio receiver that changes the wave-length at which it is electrically resonant is called a tuner. Suppose that "A" station transmits on a wave-length of 200 meters and "B" on a wave-length of 360 meters. By adjusting the tuner until the constants of the receiver make it electrically resonant to a 200-meter wave or a 360-meter wave, either of the two stations can be picked up, but both stations cannot be picked up simultaneously. This is the reason that more than one transmitter can be operating at one time and yet only one can be heard on a receiver without interference from the others.

The other necessary part of a radio receiver is the detector. The function of this portion of the receiver is to utilize the small currents in the tuner that are set up by a transmitting station and make them audible through the medium of a telephone receiver. If the telephone receiver were connected directly to the tuner the high-frequency current would not operate the diaphragm of the receiver and even if the diaphragm were set in motion it would be too fast a motion to be picked up by the human ear.

In a simple receiver the detector usually consists of two pieces of mineral in contact or a piece of mineral in contact with a metallic spring. Either combination is known as a crystal detector. A detector of this type is nothing more than a rectifier; that is, when an alternating current is applied at the terminals the current is allowed to flow only in one direction.

How One Editor Uses Radio.

The editor of a paper in an isolated town in the northwest is using the radio in a most ingenious and effective way. An amateur radio friend in a big city 50 miles away buys the latest editions of the city papers as soon as they are off the press, reads the beat news into his transmitter, and a typist in the country office copies the news as it comes in over the office receiver. The editor, through this ingenious plan, is always "First With the Latest" in his home town.

TWO RICH PRINTER'S "BULLS"

Postmaster General Has Preserved Specimens of Work of the "Inspired Composer."

Postmaster General Work has two choice specimens of typographical errors which he keeps on his desk handy to show to the discriminating. Like most everybody else in the world, Doctor Work appreciates that sort of thing.

Both of these "bulls" occurred in connection with printed portraits of Doctor Work when he was appointed to the highest position in the postal service. One of them bears the title: "Dr. Herbert Work, physician to the pope. Was with the late pope in his last illness." Evidently the inscriptions of the two photographs got mixed up, and nobody caught the error, on account of the title of doctor of both physicians.

The other sample was a picture of the postmaster general, and an inscription which should have read: "Colorado Man Appointed Postmaster General." But it got in like this: "Colored Man Appointed Postmaster General."

GOOD YEAR

MADE WISE CHOICE OF WIFE NOT CHICK'S TIME TO DIE

John Brown's Helpmate Apparently Ideal Woman for a Man of His Stern Disposition.

John Brown, whose body later on lay "moldering in the grave," once described the lady who afterwards became his wife as a "remarkably plain but neat, industrious and economical girl." These latter virtues seem to have atoned for her want of physical charm, for he and Dianthe Lusk were married when she was nineteen and he was only twenty.

Dianthe was a strong-minded woman, but she made John an excellent wife, and their twelve years of married life—terminated by her early death—were most happy. He was a man of decided and violent disposition, and his wife is said to have possessed the faculty of getting him to do as she wished and causing him to believe that it was his idea all along. She died in 1892, twelve years after their marriage and just after the birth of their seventh child.

Buttons Long in Use

John J. Jones, a waiter in the dining cars of the Pennsylvania railroad, asked the other day for a new set of brass buttons to use with his white duck coat. When he turned in his old buttons in exchange it was noticed that they were not only unusually bright, but also that much polishing and use had almost worn off the lettering and that the front of each button was actually worn through in one or more places. Asked how long he had worn the buttons, he replied: "About twenty-five years." They had been issued to him in 1892 by Maj. J. F. Trout, then superintendent of dining cars and restaurants.—New York World.

Here's Good Advice: Relieve Your Fatigue With Sleep. Avoid Stimulants

THERE is nothing in the world so reconstructive as sound, refreshing sleep. During sleep the system rids itself of the fatigue poisons that have accumulated during the day. The food elements are taken up by the various tissues that require rebuilding nutriment.

It is important that you get plenty of health-bringing sleep. Anything that interferes with your sleep hampers and hinders you—mentally and physically.

A common cause of physical weakness and mental depression is the reaction following over-stimulation by the drug, caffeine, and other elements found in both coffee and tea.

If you have an idea that coffee or tea drinking may be injurious to your health, why not stop it for a week or so, and drink delicious, fragrant Postum instead.

Postum is a rich, golden-brown, pure cereal beverage. It contains no harmful elements of any kind. You can drink Postum as many times a day as you or the children desire a grateful, refreshing beverage.

Your grocer sells both forms of Postum: Instant Postum (in tins) made instantly in the cup by the addition of boiling water. Postum Cereal (in packages of larger bulk, for those who prefer to make the drink while the meal is being prepared) made by boiling for fully 20 minutes.

Sixty-Fifth Birthday.

The Michigan Agricultural College celebrated its sixty-fifth birthday on Saturday, May 13, when alumni, students and faculty gathered on the college campus in recognition of M. A. C. Founders' Day.

Sectional alumni clubs of the college held simultaneous meetings all over the country, in honor of the anniversary.

President David Friday, new executive of the state school, delivered his first official message to M. A. C. alumni during the Founders' Day program. This talk was broadcasted by radio from the college station, in order that all the alumni clubs could hear the speech at first hand.

Policies which will govern the management of the college during coming years were outlined by President Friday, who told of new buildings to be erected on the campus, of courses of study which are to be revised and pushed, and of investigation work to be carried on.

"We are to start construction soon on new Home Economics and Library buildings," said Mr. Friday. "The next legislature will be asked for funds for the erection of a new Horticultural building, including cold storage and commercial greenhouse facilities."

"The engineering department, beginning next fall, will offer a new course in Engineering Administration. Work in horticulture and economics will be reorganized and expanded, in order to make M. A. C. a leader in these fields. Plans are under way for the establishment of graduate work in agriculture and science, to utilize the excellent facilities of the college for this work."

"In short, we hope, with the support of the alumni and friends of the college, to maintain the institution in the foremost ranks of American education."

Hot Lunches in Schools.

Through the efforts of extension workers of the United States Department of Agriculture and the State agricultural colleges working in co-operation with local organizations and school authorities, hot lunches are now served to 187,494 children in 3,808 rural schools; more than 10,592 children are buying milk for lunch, while 3,241 rural schools obtain milk and serve it to 115,111 children. Through this and other agencies the serving of hot lunches in rural schools is becoming widely extended and the influence of this work has followed the children into their homes, reports received by the United States Department of Agriculture showing that children in more than 6,000 rural families are given better food and care as a result of the information supplied to interested mothers by extension workers.

DON'T RISK NEGLECT

Don't neglect a constant backache, sharp, darting pains or urinary disorders. The danger of dropsy or Bright's disease is too serious to ignore. Use Doan's Kidney Pills. As have your friends and neighbors. A Chelsea case.

Jacob Houk, 211 Lincoln street, says: "I was in bad shape some years ago and had lumbago and rheumatic trouble. For awhile I was compelled to lay off work as the pains across my back were so severe. The rheumatic trouble was worse in the spring and in damp and cloudy weather, especially in my lower limbs. My kidneys didn't act regularly so I knew something had to be done. I saw Doan's Kidney Pills advertised and went to Penn's Drug Store and got two boxes. I used them until the trouble left entirely. Price 60c, at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Kidney Pills—the same that Jacob Houk had. Foster-Milburn Co., N. Y."

No War Tax

Effective May 8, 1922, the Excise Tax on United States Tires for passenger cars, both casings and tubes is absorbed by the makers and is not added to the selling price. United States Rubber Company.

To the Purchasers of a 30 x 3 1/2 Usco for $10.90

WHEN the "Usco" Tire announced its new price of $10.90 it carried this understood contract with the buyer—

A price reduction made in good faith—using all the U. S. advanced art of tire making not only to get the price down, but to keep the quality up.

Today $10.90 is not the uncommon price it was last November.

But the "Usco" Tire is still the uncommon tire value it always has been.

Because in carrying out the "Usco" price reduction in good faith, we learned something about raising the quality, too.

Parmelee as principal of the Central High school at Flint, at a salary of $4000 per year. Professor Courter had charge of the schools of Kalkaska for four years before coming to Howell—Democrat.

Manchester—Railroad travel thru here does not appear to be picking up much and we understand that there is talk of taking off a train or two if matters do not improve. A reduction in price of tickets would probably stimulate business somewhat, perhaps not enough to make up the difference. Crop Report.

Growing crops, except hay, on May 1 show a condition slightly above the average of the last ten years but several points below last year's crops on the corresponding date. The season is from two to three weeks later and the amount of spring work accomplished is less. However, the seeding of oats and barley was progressing rapidly at the end of April. A shortage of hay and some of the grains have lowered the condition of live stock. The mortality of spring lambs and pigs is above normal, heavy losses of the latter being an almost universal complaint throughout Michigan and adjoining states.

The monthly report issued today by John A. Doelle, Commissioner of Agriculture and Verne H. Church, Agricultural Statistician, United States Bureau of Markets and Crop Estimates also states that the supply of farm labor is not as great as promised earlier in the season. The renewal of industrial activity in the cities has shortened the supply, until farmers in some sections are unable to find a sufficient supply of suitable help.

Winter Wheat: The acreage that will be plowed up this year is almost negligible except in a few counties, mostly located in the central part of the Lower Peninsula. After deducting an abandonment of two per cent of the total acreage, there remains 905,000 acres to be harvested as compared with 857,000 last year. The condition of 84 per cent is eight per cent lower than on the same date last year, one per cent higher than one year ago and two per cent better than the ten year average. It presages a crop of 16,204,000 bushels. Frost injury occurred in some sections during the closing days of April, and some damage on flat lands resulted from water standing on fields.

Rye: The condition of rye is 90 per cent, two per cent higher than last month's figure and the ten year average, and four per cent below last year's crop on the corresponding date. The estimated acreage to be harvested is the same as that of last year, or 642,000 acres. If the present condition were to continue until harvest time, the production would be approximately 9,849,000 bushels. The early sown fields are generally good, but the stand is thin and less thrifty in many late sown fields.

Hay: Cool and dry weather has delayed the growth of meadows although the stands, particularly those of clover and alfalfa, are better than usual. The condition is rated at 86 per cent the same as the ten year average. Last year, the season was much farther advanced on May 1 and showed a condition of 95 per cent which was later reduced on account of heat and drought. The prospective acreage of tame varieties to be cut is 2,957,000, one per cent more than last year. The seedings are relatively the poorest in the northwestern counties of the Lower Peninsula because of injury by extreme dry weather last year. Last year's hay crop has been closely marketed and fed up, only nine per cent remaining on farms as compared with 17 per cent last year. The crop was short in many sections and farmers in the surplus districts sold in order to realize much needed cash.

Plowing, Sowing and Planting: The amount of plowing done to May 1 was 42 per cent as compared with 52 per cent last year, and 46 per cent the ten year average. The amount of sowing and planting done was 29 per cent as compared with 36 per cent last year and 32 per cent the ten year average.

Pastures: Pastures are backward and show a condition of 74 per cent against 94 per cent on May 1, 1921, and a ten year average of 78 per cent. Snow covered the greater part of northern counties until near the end of April, so that pastures had no opportunity to make any growth there.

Live Stock: The regular annual inquiry relative to the mortality of live stock shows the average losses per thousand during the past year to have been as follows: Horses and mules from disease, 13; cattle from disease, 15; cattle from exposure, 4; sheep from disease, 24; sheep from exposure, 8; lambs from disease and exposure, 54; and swine from disease, 28.

The condition of live stock is generally healthy, but much stock is thin owing to a shortage of hay and all kinds of grain except corn. Lack of cash has prevented many from buying the amount of hay and grains needed to provide a properly balanced ration. The condition in percentage of normal is as follows: Horses, 95; cattle, 94; sheep, 94; swine, 96. These figures are one per cent below the ten year average in the case of horses and sheep, two per cent below with respect to cattle, and the same as the ten year average as relates to swine.

What Thrift Is.

Thrift is not a matter of pinching pennies, cutting corners and going without the joys of life. It is not even a matter of skimping or saving. Thrift is spending sensibly—getting a dollar's worth for your dollar. It is buying things you really need—food, shelter and insurance—without extravagance. It is taking the surplus that is left and planting it as a seed is planted, where it will grow and multiply. It is looking at a dollar and remembering how the acorn will become the great oak if we'll plant it and give it a chance.

New Rural Credit System for Farmers?

WASHINGTON—President Harding's recommendation to congress of legislation providing farmers with credit facilities as favorable as those enjoyed by commerce and industry may lead to the establishment of a rural credits system entirely independent of either the federal reserve system or the federal land banks.

U. S. Shipping Board Is Attacked Again

CONGRESSIONAL investigation of the procedure followed by the United States shipping board in the settlement of claims growing out of wartime building contracts is demanded by Stiles E. Dodge of Cleveland, a special auditor of the board, who has been making a study of conditions in some of the Pacific coast shipyards.

Mr. Dodge said he had discussed the matter with several senators and representatives and was going to fight to get all the facts placed before the public. One contention he makes is that he can show that overpayments made and contemplated on the Pacific coast involved from $5,000,000 to $10,000,000. He says he is prepared to go before a congressional committee and present his case.

An investigation of the circumstances surrounding the release by the shipping board on April 19 of L. M. Stevens, acting general controller, is sought by Mr. Dodge. Mr. Stevens is from Pittsburgh, and Representative M. Clyde Kelly of Pennsylvania has written to President Harding for information concerning the removal of Stevens.

"If the conditions which Mr. Dodge describes exist," said Representative ready been established by federal legislation. That additional rural credits facilities are needed was urged in the report of the joint commission of agricultural inquiry, headed by Representative Anderson of Minnesota. The bill introduced by him in the house and by Senator Lenoir of Wisconsin in the senate, however, providing for credits of this nature through the federal land banks is meeting criticism. Objection is made to confusing this new type of agricultural credit with the long term loans on land which are provided by the federal land banks. A strong movement appears to be developing for the establishment of an entirely independent system.

Schemes for the creation of a new system are contained in a bill recently introduced in the senate by Senator Simmons of North Carolina and also in another bill just perfected which was presented in the senate by Senator Norbeck of South Dakota and in the house by Representative King of Illinois.

The Simmons bill creates what is called the National Agricultural Credits corporation, with a life of fifty years.

Kelly, "the facts should be known to the public. I do not want to take snap judgment, and I am going to wait and see what explanation is made. If I am not satisfied then, I shall introduce a resolution asking for an investigation."

Mr. Dodge was with the shipping board during the war and for a time was controller for the Great Lakes district. He has not resigned his present position as a special auditor, and said today he did not intend to do so.

When the attack made upon the board was called to the attention of Chairman Lasker, he said the facts would show that the actions of the present administration of the shipping board in the settlement of claims were not properly subject to audit.

"A 1922 Woman's Charter of Rights"

MISS MARY WINSOR of Philadelphia, member of the National Council of the woman's party, is drafting a "1922 Woman's charter of rights." The rights, which American women have not yet won, and are now demanding, will be listed in this charter, based on the charter of rights adopted by the first women's rights convention ever held in America, at Seneca Falls, N. Y., in 1848.

The charter of rights for Twentieth century women will resemble the 1848 document to a large extent, according to Miss Winsor, since, of all the rights claimed by those earlier women, only one—the right of suffrage—has been completely secured. Some of the resolutions in the 1848 charter, which may find a place in the new woman's Magna Charta are:

"Resolved, that all laws which prevent a woman from occupying such a station in society as her conscience shall dictate, or which places her in a position inferior to that of man, are contrary to the great precept of nature and therefore of no force or authority.

"Resolved, that the women of this country ought to be enlightened in regard to the laws under which they live, that they may no longer publish their degradation by declaring themselves satisfied with their present position nor their ignorance by asserting that they have all the rights they want.

"Resolved, that the same amount of virtue, delicacy and refinement of behavior that is required of women in the social state should also be required of man, and the same transgressions should be visited with equal severity on both man and woman.

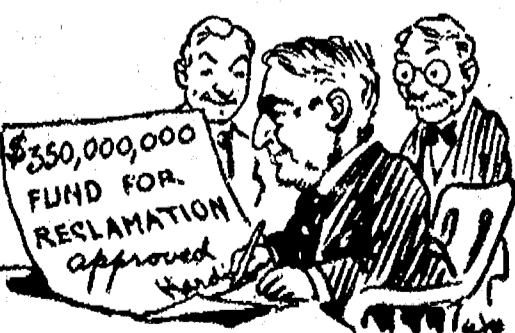

"Resolved, that the equality of human rights results necessarily from the fact of the identity of the race in capabilities and responsibilities.

"Resolved, that the speedy success of our cause depends upon the zealous and untiring efforts of both men and women for the securing to woman an equal participation with men in the various trades, professions and commerce."

Harding Favors Reclamation Projects

APPROVAL of President Harding for the McNary bill providing for creation of a $350,000,000 revolving fund to be used for development of Western and Southern reclamation and drainage projects, was given to a congressional delegation who called at the White House.

Members of the delegation, which was headed by Senator McNary of Oregon and Representative Smith of Idaho said the President expressed deep interest in the legislation which is pending in both the senate and the house. Mr. Harding indicated, delegation members said, that he would support the bill with hearty leaders on the mat-land and the national wealth had been increased approximately $800,000,000 and foodstuffs valued at $150,000,000 raised each year on these various projects in 14 states—all at an expenditure by the government of approximately $130,000,000 from the fund created from the sale of public lands and from land fees of various kinds.

President Harding was said by his visitors to favor passage of the legislation during the present session. The most difficulty, it was said, was expected to be in the house, and the Pres-

DISHES FROM PRESERVED FRUIT

In an emergency, even in season of fruit, one will find it convenient to use some of the fruit on the preserve shelves.

Plum Trifle.—Rub canned plums through a sieve. Add to each cupful of pulp the whites of three eggs beaten stiff and sweetened. Fill the cup two-thirds full of soft custard and heap the fruit meringue on top.

Berry Float.—Heat one quart of milk; add one cupful of sugar and one-eighth of a teaspoonful of salt; when boiling stir in a tablespoonful of cornstarch, thinned with a little cold milk; let it boil for five minutes, stirring often; then add the beaten yolks of three eggs; remove from the heat and beat while the mixture cools. Strain the juice from a pint of canned berries and sweeten to taste. Beat the whites of the eggs until stiff; add two to four tablespoonfuls of powdered sugar and some of the berry juice—very little to color. Spread the berries on the custard, then heap the meringue on the berries. Serve in glasses if so desired.

Pear Shortcake.—Make a short biscuit dough and roll it into two sheets one-half inch thick. Bake in buttered tins in a hot oven. Cut up canned pears, sweeten and flavor with lemon rind or juice. Spread the shortcake after covering well with butter, making alternate layers of cake and fruit.

Stuffed Fruit.—Place halves of fruit in a pan, fill the centers with orange marmalade, raisins, dates, figs, or chopped nuts. When thoroughly heated remove to a warm serving dish and pour over them a soft custard or melted marshmallows. Peaches, pears or apricots are especially good this way.

Pineapple Mousse.—Take one cupful of sugar or less, the juice of half a lemon, a tablespoonful of gelatin and one cupful of water. Soak the gelatin in cold water for ten minutes, then set in hot water to dissolve. Add the pineapple and lemon juice. Pack in ice until ready to serve. The jelly will harden if placed on ice.

Bran Fruit Roll.—Make a bran biscuit dough, roll out into two sheets. On one sheet, well buttered, place a cupful of raisins; place the other on top with a cupful of dates or figs. Roll the whole like a jelly roll, pinching the ends together. Bake for one hour. Serve with any fruit or cream and sugar.

It is nearly an axiom that people will not be better than the books they read.

GOOD EGG DISHES

Eggs all over the country have been reasonable in price and plentiful. As a food eggs are rich in nutriment and if liked may be prepared in many ways, just as eggs. For the member of the family who needs eggs but does not care for them, it is necessary to mask them with other foods. A piece of sponge cake will be eaten by the child who will refuse eggs; as this cake is rich in eggs it is good and wholesome.

Spanish Eggs.—Take one-half can of tomato, pour off nearly all the liquid and heat the tomatoes in a saucepan, seasoning with salt and cayenne, with a little chopped onion, and cook ten minutes. Then break in four eggs and stir with a fork until the eggs are cooked and have the consistency of scrambled eggs. Serve this immediately on rounds of buttered toast.

Supper Dish.—Spread slices of stale bread with butter, place in a baking dish, sprinkle each layer generously with cheese. Beat two eggs, add one cupful of milk, salt and paprika to season and pour over the bread. Bake in a moderate oven until the custard is set. More eggs and milk will be needed for a larger dish.

Macaroni and Eggs.—Cook macaroni of any kind until tender in boiling salted water. Drain and place in a well-buttered baking dish a layer of the cooked macaroni; over this put a layer of sliced hard cooked eggs, using five eggs for a dish serving six. Sprinkle with cheese, add a bit of onion juice or grated onion and then a layer of thick white sauce made by cooking together two tablespoonfuls each of butter and flour and one cupful of rich milk. Repeat with more macaroni, cheese, egg and white sauce and finish the top with buttered crumbs. Bake in a moderate oven until well heated and the crumbs are brown.

Egg Lemonade.—Prepare the lemonade as usual and just before serving beat up one or two eggs, add to the pitcher of lemonade and beat well with an egg beater. This is a refreshing drink and a good way for those who do not like eggs to take them in an active form.

CORRECT UTILITY SUITS; IN KNITTED OUTERWEAR

GOOD taste directs (and fashion approves) that women go about the ordinary affairs of life, outside their homes, in tailored clothes—the sort of clothes that their wearers need not have on their minds at all, after they are once put on. It happens that these, the least ostentatious of women's belongings, require the greatest amount of care and work on the part of their designers and makers, and are entitled to as much consideration on the part of every woman who aspires to dress correctly.

ers just as in people. True, once upon a time sweaters were, well, just sweaters. That, however, was before a genius in the knitting industry had a vision, before it dreamed dreams, which are no longer dreams but glorified realities in the form of exclusive knitted coat types which express consummate art and not mere manufacture.

The connoisseur in knitted outerwear looks for certain distinguishing qualities in the sweater de luxe. It must be full fashioned with tailor-fit

FAULTLESSLY TAILORED SUITS

The utility suit is the mainstay of the wardrobe, and must be made of reliable goods. It achieves distinction, not by differing in the style from other suits, but by expert workmanship and faultless tailoring. When successfully made it is a masterpiece in the art of dress, and it is economy to buy a good suit, even if one must save in other directions, in order to do so.

This spring has been unusually generous in the variety and attractiveness of its new "tailors," bringing two and three piece suits, in old and new favorites among fabrics, and making charming departure in colors. In the three-piece suits, a cape or coat accompanies a dress, usually with bodice of crepe in a color contrasting with the skirt and coat.

Covert cloth is with us again in all ting sleeves, cuffs, of cunning device knitted in one piece with the sleeve; the belt syving low into the fashionable hip line effect.

The last word in the all-silk knitted coat is color for the top with solid white below the waist line. The illustration to the right tells the story. The original model for this sketch happened to be in the delectable new shade of amberglow for the top, with pure white for the lower portion. However, many entrancing combinations are available, remembering that white is used always with the solid color. Notice the exquisite hand-wrought braid up the fronts and about the neck line. This is a French inspiration. The stitch with welt rib for the top is varied in the white portion with a handsome block weave.

The other tuxedo model is one of Its beautiful tan shades. Tweeds have made a sensational success in springtime colorings—leather mixtures in blue, lavender, green, tan, and in black and white mixtures. Tricotine and polart twill, in navy blue, still outdo their rivals in popularity. Navy tricotine makes the suit at the left of the two pictured. Its trim, straight lines are representative, and it acquires distinction by means of handsome embroidery in self color, on the coat. Another suit which may be taken as a criterion of good style for tweeds and homespun appears at the right. It is smartly simple, responds to the call for long coats and adds to the cheerfulness of springtime by its lovely shade of blue.

Given over by the sweater one the new zephyr-weight Shetland wool knitted coats, attaining almost cobweb delicacy in its lacy openwork stitch. These semi-transparent effects are the newest idea in sweaters. The master touch is imparted in fitted cuff fastened with crystal buttons to match the shade of the coat.

Happy the possessor of either of these adorable garments, be it pure silk of the new lightweight Shetland wool, and twice blessed is she who can afford them both, for fashion decrees that the sweater be tuned to the costume ensemble.

LEGION MAN, AID TO CUPID

Henry Sullivan, Phoenix (Ariz.) Organization Enthusiast, as J. P. Ties Many Knots.

Having secured plenty of experience in braving the perils of the deep while a member of the navy during the war, Henry J. Sullivan of Phoenix, Ariz., is now helping to launch the several ships of matrimony that set sail from his home city. When the service men of Phoenix start their wedding barks they seek out Justice of the Peace Sullivan to unship the lines of their single blessedness.

Mr. Sullivan is also the man who started the "Under one head, the American Legion" slogan which has been adopted by all the war organizations of his home county to advance the interests of the service men, carry on hospitalization work, eliminate drives and working generally for the benefit of the men who served their country.

As Mr. Sullivan himself expresses it: "All war organizations in the county have united under one head for the purpose of centralizing our work. We expect to lend our efforts largely to hospitalization work and in other ways serving the disabled service men by placing the responsibilities on the various departments of government where, they belong rather than by advancing their rights in a slipshod fashion."

FORCE PERSHING TO SPEAK

Legionnaires of Bement, Illinois, Hold Up Old Commander's Car and Demand an Address.

General Pershing was captured while attempting to pass through friendly territory by a group of American Legion men at Bement, Ill. The old leader of the A. E. F. started through the town on an interurban trolley car, but Legionnaires, aided by a powerful ally in the person of the trollyman, gathered in front of the trolley and demanded a speech.

The rear platform of the car was turned into a speaker's stage and "Black Jack" addressed the service men and their friends for ten minutes. The Legionnaires were marshaled together by Sidney Morgan, their post commander, who stood on the platform with his old general, and it was not until he had given the word that the former members of Pershing's command would give the trolley the right of way.

Adjusted Compensation Wins.

Adjusted compensation won a decided victory in the nation-wide referendum by the United States Chamber of Commerce—4,110 chambers voted favorably, 2,657 against the measure. The United States chamber has opposed the bill from the start. The commerce body in Toledo, O., protested the questionnaire which was sent out as being unfair in the way it presented the subject.

Carrying On With the American Legion

A community playground will be made by the Legion at Nashville, Tenn., the ex-soldiers bearing the expense of apparatus and upkeep.

In Korea, American ex-soldiers, most of them missionaries under the leadership of a Southern Presbyterian mission, have formed a post of the Legion.

During the war it cost Uncle Sam $800 to clothe each of his soldiers. The present doughboy is garbed in clothing costing but $189, the War department states.

The only woman field clerk in the army is Miss Jean Hodson of San Francisco, Cal., secretary to Major General Morton. She holds the rank of sergeant major.

The Legion in both North and South will henceforth observe the birthdays of Generals Lee and Grant, rival leaders of the Civil war. The birthday of General Grant was observed on April 27 this year and that of Lee will be observed January 10, 1923.
