SENIOR CLASS PLAY

The senior class of the Chelsea high school will present a three act drama "Anne of Old Salem" Thursday and Friday evenings of this week. The cast has been working hard on the play and it promises to be a fine production. The play deals with the period of 1692, and it was during this year that 19 persons were hung for witchcraft. The cast composed of 13 characters is under the direction of Miss Gardner. Tickets will be on sale for both evenings and seats can be reserved. A large house at each performance is hoped for.

A STUDY OF THE PUEBLO FLOOD.

The principal known facts relative to the causes, magnitude, and effects of the flood in Arkansas River above Pueblo, Colo., on June 3-5, 1921, have been compiled by the United States Geological Survey and published in its Water-Supply Paper 487. This flood was remarkable for the very small area covered by the rainfall that was its chief cause and for the rapid rise of the river to an unprecedented stage and its almost equally rapid fall. Although the total discharge of the main flood was relatively small—less than 90,000 acre-feet—the damage was greater than that done by any recorded flood in the valley. The stage of this flood may have been exceeded, however, by a flood that occurred long ago, probably in 1844, before the valley was settled by whites.

MOURNS HIS LOST MUSTACHE.
MORE THAN HIS $26.50.

Dallas, Tex.—Loss of a mustache he had worn for eight years apparently worried a man living northeast of Dallas more than having $26.50 taken from him by highwaymen. The man accepted a proffered ride in a motor car. He said he was attacked and robbed when a few miles from the city. In the struggle he was hit in the mouth, and doctors had to shave off his mustache to sew the wound.

CHELSEA BAND
GROWING FAST

Plan Summer Concerts For The People. If Fund Can Be Raised.

Open air band concerts by a band made up of Chelsea boys. That may sound strange to the ears of many but such a thing will be made a reality if the people of this community want it and will support it. At present a band of 22 pieces is practicing under the leadership of Wesley Smith. They have been working hard and show great skill. The first appearance of the band will be on Memorial day when they will play during the services, to be held in the morning here in Chelsea. The band has also been engaged to play at Grass Lake the afternoon of the same day. A third appearance of the band will be on June 11th when they will play for the memorial services of the Old Fellows. With the material at hand, why cannot Chelsea have a band? The thing is that they need support and from all the people. The idea at the present is to put on a series of concerts during the summer months for the people. These can be given in June, July and August and everyone can enjoy them during the evening. When given in town they bring many here. It furnishes the people a fine place of the best kind of entertainment.

People of Chelsea can enjoy these entertainments if the money to support the band is raised. Just what method will be used is not known yet, but it is hoped that the people will not shun the hat if it is passed nor forget to donate if asked.

PIECE OF NEEDLE IN
WOMAN'S EYE FOR 40 YEARS

Butler, Pa.—When Mrs. Katherine Shideman, 44 years old, was 4 years old she fell and a knitting needle entered the socket of her right eye. An older sister pulled the needle out. The sight of the eye was not impaired and little attention was paid to the injury at the time. Later the eye caused trouble and treatment brought no relief. A few weeks ago Mrs. Shideman came to Butler, and her brother-in-law, Dr. C. E. Imbrie, had an X-ray photograph made. The picture showed an object about an inch long imbedded back of the eye, near the top of the nose and a little below the brain. An operation was performed and the object removed. It proved to be a piece of the knitting needle. It was not discovered at the time of the accident that the needle had been broken.

Happenings

Cook, former cashier of the Farmers Merchants bank of Grand Rapids and former county official, who was taken to prison to begin his seven year term for forgery, refused to accept the demand of the county auditors to return $400 he collected as his salary as county purchasing agent during his suspension after the forgery charge was preferred against him. Congressman Vincent M. Brennan, of the Detroit West Side Congressional District, has surprised his friends with the announcement that he would not be a candidate for re-election. He stated that personal and entirely non-political considerations made it necessary for him to make his residence in Detroit, where he will resume the practice of law. Rep. FREIGHT.

Pessimists, who instinctively bite the silver lining of every cloud to see if it's counterfeit, suggested that the huge freight traffic during March was due to heavy movement of coal, getting stocked up ahead of the strike. The roads now report that in the first week of the coal strike ended April 8, they loaded 714,268 cars of revenue producing freight, against 694,881 cars in the corresponding week a year ago.

And this gain was made despite a falling off of 115,496 cars of coal, compared with the week before.

HABIT.

Andrew Kock, 64, is back in the lumber business at Allentown, Pa. He retired from active affairs 34 years ago, but finally admits that he cannot stand a perpetual vacation.

Is work more of a virtue than a habit? Activity is basic in nature—from planets moving in their orbits to the perpetual movement of water.

We are machines within machines, animated by the eternal flow of energy. Idleness is opposed to natural law.

P. S.—Let's go fishing.

BALANCING.

Speaking of henpecked husbands and rooster pecked wives, why is it that a person with a blessed disposition often has a close imitation of Satan for a mate?

Biologists answer, "For the same reason that little men gravitate to big women and diminutive women to large men."

Nature is the original believer in "normalcy."

She hates extremes, including brilliancy, and is constantly fusing "opposites" to restore the balance or normal type.

It's a wise scheme. Otherwise, a few hundred super people soon would have all the others in slave chains.

SCATTERING.

New York learns that its congestion of population has been reduced by the subway, which enables city workers to live far out and get back and forth at fast speed.

Some future Henry Ford will go a long step further, marketing a cheap flying flivver.

That day will begin the gradual breaking-up of the big cities. They will be reduced to groups of factories and stores. Homes will be in the country—fresh air and plenty of playground for the children.

SQUEEZER.

In one year 12 federal reserve banks have reduced their commercial loans from $1,224,533,000 to $362,662,000. The reduction is more than two-thirds.

There seems little human interest in these cold statistics. Back of them, though, is the greatest tragedy melodrama of our generation—the story of deflation, brain the hurricane of desperation, fear, loss, despair and necessity.

COMING.

When the first railroads were built, people smirked when any one suggested that steam coaches would displace stage coaches.

When a passenger train jumped the tracks, folks nodded knowingly and said, "See? I told you so."

Today the man who would ride in a stage coach on a long trip, when he could get to the same place by train, would be considered peculiar.

Airplane travel seems risky now. Later it may be safer than train travel. Surely, it will be more common.

REJOICING.

Factories again are pouring out smoke. Folks are going back to work. This makes more talk even than the weather.

Everybody occasionally curses work. But have you noticed the smiles on faces of men as they start out with the old dinner-pail again, after months without jobs?

Are we hypocrites when we curse work, or is it just a form of autohypnosis? Work is like everything else—we want it most when we don't have it.

WIVES.

Henpecked husbands will chuckle at the verdict of a jury, which included five women, at Hackensack, N. J.

A husband sued a rival for $50,000 for alienating his wife's affections. Jury awarded him six cents damages.

How much is a "lost wife" worth?

To one man, she might be worth less than six cents. To another, her perfect mate, her value would be infinitely into the millions. All values are relative.

BRAINS.

World famous Dr. George W. Crile, who operates as skillfully with one hand as the other, compares the human body to a dry with liver the negative pole, brain the positive.

Anything that affects the liver will also affect the brain, says Crile.

Indirectly, therefore, it appears that the intellect is partly in the liver. Sluggish liver frequently is the cause of stupidity. A course in calomel sometimes is worth more than a course in school.

DOLLING.

How much do you spend a year on perfumes, toilet preparations and the like? The average is only 75 cents for each American, according to an estimate at New York convention of national association of perfume manufacturers. And the average person uses toilet soap to each 75 cents of cosmetics.

Wrinkles, for smoothing out facial wrinkles, are used by women, say the perfumers.

Uncommon Sense

By JOHN BLAKE

INSPIRATION

A RECENT Sunday newspaper printed a picture of the head of one of New York's biggest banks. He was in a baseball uniform, and but for a moustache—an ornament now discarded by ball-players—looked like a professional.

The picture was taken at an outing of the Bond club. The banker served as pitcher for the New York team. The type below recited the fact that he got his first job in an Albany bank because he was a crack ball player, applied himself to banking as eagerly as he had applied himself to baseball, and in a few years was well on his way to his present position.

It is needless to say that this particular baseball player didn't put all he had into the game. He was usually pitched as a pitcher, and might easily have got into one of the big leagues, too.

But he had the good sense to know that baseball was not a steady business, and that banking was. And instead of seizing an opportunity to make fairly big money early in youth, he was content to try the banking business on a small salary.

Of course there are a good many men who started in the banking business when they were young, and are still about where they were when they started. But at least they still have steady jobs. If they had taken to baseball they would not be doing as well.

Our object in referring to this particular case is to call attention to the fact that if you want inspiration in your work you can get it in the newspapers—plenty of it.

Brief bits of biography such as the one we have cited appear almost every day. A prominent man's name mentioned in connection with an important affair that you do not learn something about how he started and why he succeeded.

If you want to read about the failures and the horrible examples, you can read about them, too.

While this man was rising from a bank clerk to a bank president, another man who started as an important official of a bank—chiefly because his father owned most of it—was preparing to travel in the other direction. He made the journey, and has just arrived at the point he started from.

All human history is epitomized in the daily news.

Read the papers. Think about what you read. After that if you don't succeed, it will not be because nobody told you how.

Systematic Accumulation.
"How did prices get to be so high in the first place?" inquired the plain citizen.
"Well," replied Mr. Dustin Stax, "the more profit you made the more money you had to pay and the more money you had to pay the more profit you had to make."

THE CHEERFUL CHERUB

I like to walk on summer nights.
The air with mystery just teems,
And rushing past me I can feel
The sleeping people's coming dreams.

Don't Go to Great Auto Derby If You Must Have Pet Worries

INDIANAPOLIS, IND.—If you'll watch the crowd at the International 500-mile race at the Indianapolis Motor Speedway, Tuesday, May 30, you'll see some mighty interesting things. People climb on top of costly automobiles, sedate women point, children hang to barbed wire fences, never murmuring, while men jostle their way through dense throngs of humanity—all to have a better look at the best drivers and cars of Europe and America push their way to victory and fame or defeat.

There is an eminent psychologist who, turning "the race" every year, watching the crowd and taking pictures. He never even leaves track, but he is the one exception. For every body else wants to be near the track, and on it if possible.

Tourists from every section of the state will welcome the announcement by G. W. Dickinson, Secretary-Manager of the Michigan State Fair, of the establishment of a tourist camp at this year's fair, in Detroit, September 1 to 10.

The camp will be supervised by J. H. Brown, of Battle Creek, who, for years, has successfully conducted the annual Michigan Farmers' Automobile Tours. A plot of ground at Palmer Avenue and Fifth street, just south of the Women's building, will be given over to the tour camp, Mr. Dickinson announced.

The State Fair tourist camp is being established in response to scores of requests from farmers and business men throughout Michigan who seek a safe and convenient spot to park their automobiles, a sanitary place in which to erect tents and an opportunity to enjoy a visit to the state fair.

It is planned to conduct the camp similarly to those established on the Michigan Farmers' Automobile Tours. Each tourist will be allotted ample space to park an automobile and erect a tent.

With the establishment of the Michigan State Fair Tourist Camp, police protection will be provided, relieving the tourist of all the worry about his property and affording an opportunity for really enjoying the State Fair. Sanitary conditions also will be carefully guarded and nothing left undone so tourists who participate in the fair camp will enjoy themselves.

The Fair tourist camp is an outgrowth of the annual Michigan Farmers' Automobile Tours, the second tour of which will be concluded this year at Ithaca City, August 30, when many of those already registered for the trip are planning to head a pilgrimage of machines to the fair grounds.

Tourists who plan to visit the State Fair will have the opportunity to take advantage of the advance sale of tickets which will be put on at reduced rates in all cities in the state and will continue until the opening day of the fair.

It is the plan of Mr. Brown to provide those who intend to participate in the Michigan State Fair tourist camp with windshield posters if these tourists will address a letter to him at Battle Creek.

SYNOPSIS

CHAPTER I.—A wealthy and highly educated Chicago business world, Benjamin Corvet is something of a reclusive and a mystery to his associates. He is a man of many talents, a keen observer, a keen thinker, a keen worker. He is a man of many talents, a keen observer, a keen thinker, a keen worker. He is a man of many talents, a keen observer, a keen thinker, a keen worker.

CHAPTER II.—Corvet's letter summons Conrad, a youth of unknown parentage, to Chicago.

CHAPTER III.—From a statement of Conrad, it seems probable that Conrad is Corvet's illegitimate son. Corvet has decided to marry and the child is to be his.

CHAPTER IV.—Alan takes possession of his new home.

CHAPTER V.—That night Alan discovers a man ransacking the desks and bureau drawers in Corvet's apartments. The appearance of Alan is immediately arrested by the intruder, who appears to think him a thief and raves at the "Miwaka." After a struggle the man escapes.

CHAPTER VI.—Next day Alan learns from Corvet that Corvet has decided his entire property to him. Introduced to Spearman, Alan is introduced to the discovery that he is the man whom he had found in his house the night before.

CHAPTER VII.—Alan tells no one of his strange encounter, but in a letter to his father, Alan tells him of the fact. Spearman laughs at and denies him.

CHAPTER VIII.—Corvet's Indian servant, Wessington, tells Alan that he believes his employer is dead. He also tells him the legend of the Indian Drum, which according to old superstitions once for every life lost on the Great Lakes. Twenty years before, the great freighter "Miwaka" was wrecked and went down with twenty-five on board, but the drum had sounded for twenty-four, leaving the inference that one person had been saved since.

CHAPTER IX.—Conrad recovers, and the affair remains a mystery.

CHAPTER X.—Alan learns from Wessington that the "Miwaka" had been wrecked, and that the drum had sounded for twenty-four, leaving the inference that one person had been saved since.

"How Should I Know Who He Is?" He Asked.

Alan followed them to the door and closed it after them. He spread the blankets over Luke's head, and then he went back to his room. He was alone.

But Luke had said nothing about Spearman. It had been Corvet and Corvet alone, of whom Luke had spoken. It was Corvet who had given him money. Was it possible that there had been two strangers in Corvet's room? That one of those events concerned the "Miwaka" and Spearman and some one else, some one with a hidden love above the eye, who had "lost" Corvet; and that the other event had concerned Luke and something else? It was not conceivable, Alan was sure; it was all one thing. If Corvet had to do with the "Miwaka," then Luke had had to do with it too, and Spearman? But if Spearman had been involved in that guilty thing, had not Luke known it? Then why had not Luke mentioned Spearman? Or had Spearman not been really involved? Had it been, perhaps, only evidence of knowledge of what Corvet had done that Spearman had tried to discover and destroy?

Alan went to the door and opened it, as he heard Spearman upon the steps again. Spearman waited only until the door had been closed behind him.

"Well, Conrad, who was the idea of bringing Miss Sheriff into this?"

"I don't know, I tried to keep her out, but she came in."

"You know better than I do. You know exactly what it is. You know that man, Spearman; you know what he came here for. I don't mean money; I mean you know why he came here for money, and why he got it. I tried, as well as I could, to make him tell me; but he wouldn't do it. There's a disgrace of some sort here, of course, I think, you too. If you're not guilty with my father, you'll help me now; if you are guilty, then, at least, your refusal to help will let me know that."

"I don't know what you're talking about. I told you this man may have been a wheelman on the Corvet; I don't know more about him than that."

"I don't even know that certainly. I know Ben Corvet was paying blackmail; I've known for years that he was giving up money to some one, I don't know who he paid it to, or for what."

"The strain of the last few hours was telling upon Alan; his skin flushed hot and cold by turns. He paced up and down while he controlled himself."

"That's not enough, Spearman," he said finally. "I've felt you, somehow, underneath all these things. The first time I saw you, you were in this house doing something you ought not to have been doing; you fought me then; you would have killed me rather than not get away. Two weeks ago, some one attacked me on the street—for robbery, they said; but I know it wasn't robbery."

"You're not so crazy as to be trying to involve me in that."

"There came a sound to them from the hall, a sound unmistakably denoting some presence. Spearman jerked

AGRICULTURAL NEWS

Regarding Crops.

Growing crops, except hay, on May 1 show a condition slightly above the average of the last ten years but several points below last year's crops on the corresponding date. The season is from two to three weeks later and the amount of spring work accomplished is less. However, the seeding of oats and barley was progressing rapidly at the end of April. A shortage of hay and some of the grains have lowered the condition of live stock. The mortality of spring lambs and pigs is above normal, heavy losses of the latter being an almost universal complaint throughout Michigan and adjoining states. The monthly report issued today by John A. Dooley, Commissioner of Agriculture and Verne H. Church, Agricultural Statistician, United States Bureau of Markets and Crop Estimates also states that the supply of farm labor is not as great as promised earlier in the season. The renewal of industrial activity in the cities has shortened the supply, until farmers in some sections are unable to find a sufficient supply of suitable help.

Winter Wheat.

The acreage that will be plowed up this year is almost negligible except in a few counties, mostly located in the central part of the Lower Peninsula. After deducting an abandonment of two per cent of the total acreage, there remains 905,000 acres to be harvested as compared with 857,000 last year. The condition of 84 per cent is eight per cent lower than on the same date last year, one per cent higher than one year ago and two per cent better than the ten-year average. It prosages a crop of 15,204,000 bushels. Frost injury occurred in some sections during the closing days of April, and some damage on flat lands resulted from water standing on fields.

Hay.

Cool and dry weather has delayed the growth of meadows although the stands, particularly those of clover and alfalfa, are better than usual. The condition is rated at 86 per cent the same as the ten-year average. Last year, the season was much farther advanced on May 1 and showed a condition of 95 per cent which was later reduced on account of heat and drought. The prospective acreage of tame varieties to be cut is 2,957,000, one per cent more than last year.

The seedings are relatively the poorest in the northwestern counties of the Lower Peninsula and portions of the Upper Peninsula because of injury by extreme dry weather last year. Last year's hay crop has been closely marketed and fed up only nine per cent remaining on farms as compared with 17 per cent last year. The crop was short in many sections and farmers in the surplus districts sold in order to realize much needed cash.

Live Stock.

The regular annual inquiry relative to the mortality of live stock shows the average losses per thousand during the past year to have been as follows: Horses and mules from disease, 13; cattle from disease, 15; cattle from exposure, 4; sheep from disease, 24; sheep from exposure, 8; lambs from disease and exposure, 54; and swine from disease, 28.

The condition of live stock is generally healthful, but much stock is thin owing to a shortage of hay and all kinds of grain except corn. Lack of cash has prevented many from buying the amount of hay and grains needed to provide a properly balanced ration. The condition in percentage of normal is as follows: Horses, 95; cattle, 94; sheep, 94; swine, 96. These figures are one per cent below the ten-year average in the case of horses and sheep, two per cent below with respect to cattle, and the same as the ten-year average as relates to swine.

CARRY SAWDUST THRU PIPE LINE

When recently a lumber company in Ohio built an addition to its plant, situated at a distance of 700 feet, there arose the problem of how to handle the sawdust and refuse of both plants efficiently as a unit. The difficulty was overcome by connecting the two plants with 15 inch pipe line. In connection with this is an air pump which conveys by suction the sawdust and refuse from each plant along the line to a spout that is about 25 feet above the roof of one of the plants.

Most perfect rule: The most perfect rule is to eat a little of everything. This is a very dangerous disease, particularly to children under five years of age, but when no paregoric, codeine or other opiate is given, is easily cured by giving Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. Most people believe that it must run its course, not knowing that the time is very much shortened, and that there is little danger from the disease when this remedy is given. It has been used in many epidemics of whooping cough, with pronounced success, and is a pleasant to take.

WES BARRY IN NEW SCREEN PLAY.

Freckled Movie Celebrity Will Grace Silver Sheet in "School Days."

Freckle-faced Wesley Barry, the inimitable movie celebrity, will grace the screen of the Princess Theatre Wednesday and Thursday in his latest starring vehicle, "School Days," made from the Gus Edwards classic of the same name.

The very mention of the words "School Days" holds an appeal for young and old, and it is said that every mother who has boys, every man who remembers his boyhood, every human being who can thrill to the joys, the disappointments, the pranks and the glory of boyhood will gloat over the trials and tribulations of Speck Brown, better known to the screen world as Wes Barry.

Briefly, the story centers around a small town boy who loves the old swimmin' hole and his dog, Hippo, better than anything else in the world. He meets a wealthy uncle who sends him East to get an education. Here he meets many youngsters of wealthy parents, and he finds himself out of the social swim. He is beset by many trials and tribulations, and finally he goes back home to his faithful dog and his little country sweet heart via the freight train route.

There are said to be many other interesting high lights in the picture, in addition to a cast composed of a number of players who have graced the screen in scores of productions.
