Record Ford Sales.

According to a report just receive of Detroit, a daily average of 5,210. retail sales of Ford cars and trucks had been reached by the close of April in the United States alone.

Ford sales of cars and trucks for the month, including both domestic and foreign, totaled 127,249. This establishes a new high record, exceeding the largest previous month, June 1921, by 15,467.

The sale of Fordson tractors has also been steadily climbing. A total of 11,181 Fordsons were sold during April in the United States, a daily average of 469 having been reached by the end of the month. This gives the tractor a new high sales record, and shows 100 per cent increase over the best month in 1921.

The Ford Company is enjoying a anner year in all departments. Output of Ford cars and trucks for mates, will exceed 1,100,000, which represents a ten per cent increase

The Ford factory at Detroit is now operating at full capacity, having a force of more than 40,000 men on the payroll. The scheduled output for May will probably reach 135,000 Chelsea 0 0 1 0 1 0 2 1 0 0 0 1-6 cars and trucks, which will be ap-

To Pronounce Invocation.

Seventy years ago next October. Seth Reed, circuit rider in Michigan o for the Methodist Episcopal church, pronounced the invocation at the dedication exercises of the Michigan State Normal School in Ypsilanti, first institution of its kind established west of the Alleghenies.

Next month, Rev. Seth Reed, of Flint, his locks silvered after more than 98 years of life, the greater part of which has been devoted to the Methodist ministry, will offer the prayer at the 1922 commencement, the seventieth in the history of the school.

Mr. Reed's first prayer 70 years ago was a supplication that from the Normal "might flow streams of knowledge in all directions until they shall reach all parts of our state, and bless every school, family and child."

The venerable minister's prayer next month will be a paen of thanksgiving because he, in common with others who have watched the develplied against orders approximating innings, Eiseman 4 in 8, A. Frye 6 opment of Normal, believes the prayer 70 years ago, has been more than answered.

Seventy years ago Mr. Reed helped to dedicate a small building in which all the classes of the school were to be conducted. When he returns to Ypsilanti in June the minister will find a group of magnificent structures that stand as a symbol to the growth of the institution, Graduates from all parts of the country are expected in Ypsilanti for the commencement exercises to take place Tuesday and Wednesday, June 20 and 21.

Rev. and Mrs. Reed were former residents of Chelsea. They came here as superintendent and matron of the Methodist Home when it was first established with headquarters in the home on South street owned CHAPTER X.

Ramsey kept very few things from Fred Mitchell, and usually his confidences were immediate upon the occasion of them; but allowed several weeks to elapse before sketching for his roommate the outlines of this adventure.

"One thing that was kind o' funny about it, Fred," he said, "I didn't know what to call her." Mr. Mitchell, stretched upon the window seat in their "study." and looking out over the town street below and the campus beyond the street, had already thought it tactful to ambush his profound amusement by turning upon his side, so that his face was toward the window and away from his companion, "What did you want to call her?" he inquired in a serious. voice. "Names?"

"No. You know what I mean, I mean I had to keep calling her 'you'; and that gets kind of freaky when you're talkin' to anybody a good while like that. When she'd he lookin' away from me, for instance, or down at the river, or somewhere, and I'd want to start sayin' something to her, you know, why, I wouldn't know how to get started exactly, without callin' her something. A person doesn't want to be always startin' off with 'See here.' or things like that."

"I don't see why you let it trouble you," said Fred. "From how you've always talked about her, you had a perfectly handy way to start off with anything you wanted to say to her." "What with?"

"Why didn't you just say, 'Oh, you Teacher's Pet!' That would-"

"Get out! What I mean is, she called me 'Ramsey' without any bothit seems funny I got stumped every time I started to say 'Dora.' Some way I couldn't land it, and it certainly would 'a' sounded crazy to call her 'Miss Yocum' after sittin' in the same room with her every day from the baby class clear on up through the end of high school. That would 'a' made me out an idiot!"

"What did you call her?" Fred

"Just nothin' at all. I started to call her something or other a hundred times, I guess, and then I'd balk. I'd get all ready, and kind of make a sort of a sound, and then I'd have to quit." "She may have thought you had a cold," said Fred, still keeping his back turned. "I expect maybe she did-though I don't know; most the time she didn't seem to notice me much, kind of." "She didn't?"

"No. She was too upset, I guess, by what she was thinkin' about." "But if it hadn't been for that," Fred suggested, "you mean she'd have certainly paid more attention to who was sitting on the bench with her?"

"Get out! You know how it was Everybody those few days thought we were goin' to have war, and she was just sure of it, and it upset her. Of course most people were a lot more upset by what those Dutchmen did to the Lusitania than by the idea of war: and she seemed to feel as broken up as anybody could be about the Lusitania, but what got her the worst was the notion of her country wantin' to fight, she said. She really was upset, too, Fred: there wasn't no puttin' on about it. I guess that ole girl certainly must have a good deal of feeling, because, doggoned, after we'd been sittin' there a while if she didn't have to get out her handkerchief! She kept her face turned away from mejust the same as you're doin' now to keep from laughin'-but honestly, she cried like somebody at a funeral. I war." felt like the darndest fool!"

"I'm not laughing," said Fred, but he did not prove it by turning so that his face could be seen. "What did she say?" "Oh, she didn't say such an awful lot. She said one kind o' funny thing hated her so."

"Yes," said Fred. "It wasn't flattering i" "Well, sir, it isn't, kind of," Ramsey agreed, musingly. "It certainly isn't when you look at it that way." "What did you say when she said that?" Fred asked.

or anybody any good, and all war was to help her." wicked, no matter what it was about, and nothin' could be good that was founded on fear and hate, and every to that?" war that ever was fought was always founded on fear and hate. She said ought to go to meet them and tell them we wouldn't fight."

Copyright by Doubleday, Page & Company.

"What did you say?" "Nothin'. I kind o' started to-but what's the use? She's got that in her head. Besides, how are you goin' to argue about a thing with a person that's crying about it? I tell you, Fred, guess we got to admit, after all, that ole girl certainly must have a lot of heart about her, anyway. There may not be much fun to her-though of course I wouldn't know hardly any way to tell about that—but there couldn't be hardly any doubt she's got a lot of feeling. Well, and then she went on and said old men made wars, but didn't fight; they left the fighting to the boys, and the suffering to the boys' mothers." "Yes!" Fred exclaimed, and upon that he turned, free of mirth for the moment. "That's the woman of it, I guess. Send the old men to do the fighting! For the matter of that, I guess my father'd about a thousand times rather go himself than see me and my brothers go; but Father's so fat he can't stoop! You got to be able to stoop to dig a trench, I guess! Well, suppose we sent our old men up against those Dutchmen; the Dutchmen would just kill the old men, and then come after the boys anyway, and the boys wouldn't be ready, and they'd get killed, too; and then there wouldn't be anybody but the Dutchmen left, and that'd be one fine world, wouldn't it!"

"Yes." said Ramsey, "Course I hought of that."

"Did you tell her?"

"No."

"What did you say?" "Nothin'. I couldn't get started anyway, but, besides, what was the use? But she didn't want the old men to go; she didn't want anybody to go."

"What did she want the country to do?" Fred asked, impatiently.

"Just what it has been doin', I suppose. Just let things simmer down,

"No. I Started To, but-Shut Up!"

and poke along, and let them do what they like to us.'

"I guess so!" said Fred. "Then, afterwhile, when they got some free time on their hands, they'll come over and make it really interesting for us, because they know we won't do anything but talk. Yes, I guess the way things are settling down ought to suit Dora. There isn't goin' to be any

"She was pretty sure there was, though," Ramsey said, thoughtfully, "Oh, of course she was then. We all thought so those few days."

"No. She said she thought it prob'ly wouldn't come right away, but now it was almost sure to come sometime. though: she said she was sorry she | She said our telegrams and all the talk | couldn't quite control herself, but if and so much feeling and everything anybody had to see her cry she minded showed her that the war thought that it less because it was an old school- was always in people somewhere had mate. What struck me so kind o' been stirred up so it would go on and funny about that is-why, it looks as on. She said she knew from the way if she never knew the way I always she felt herself about the Lusitania that a feeling like that in her would never be absolutely wined out as long as she lived. But she said her other feeling about the horribleness of war taught her to keep the first feeling from breaking out, but with other people it wouldn't; and even if war didn't break out right then, it would always look at the pretty posy!" "Nothin'. I started to, but I sort of the ready to, all over the country, and balked again. Well, we kept on sitting | sometime it would, though she was there, and afterwhile she began to goin' to do her share to fight it, hertalk again and got kind of excited self, as long as she could stand. day, you know, the way people do. It was balf-past nine when we walked back to town, and I was commencin' to feel kind of hungry, so I asked her if she wasn't, and she sort of laughed and seemed to be ashamed of it. as if it was a disgrace or something, but she said she guessed she was; so I left her by that hedge of liluca near the observatory and went on over to the "Teria and the fruit store, and got some stuffed eggs and olives and halfa-dozen peanut butter sandwiches and a box o' strawberries kind of girlfood, you know-and went on back there, and we ate the stuff up. So then she said she was afraid she'd taken me away from my dinner and made me a lot of trouble, and so on. and she was sorry, and she told me good-night-" "What did you say then?" "Noth- Oh, shut up! So then she skipped out to her Dorm, and I came on home."

"When did you see her next, Ram-

"I haven't seen her next." said Ramsey. "I haven't seen her at all-not to speak to. I saw her on Main street twice since then, but both times she was with some other girls, and they were across the street, and I couldn't tell if she was lookin' at me-I kind of thought not- I thought it might look sort o' nutty to bow to her if she wasn't, so I didn't."

"And you didn't tell her you wouldn't be one of the ones to help her with her pacifism and anti-war stuff and all

"No. I started to, but Shut up!" Fred sat up, giggling. "So she thinks you will help her. You didn't say anything at all, and she must think that means she converted you. Why didn't you speak up?"

"Well, I wouldn't argue with her," said Ramsey. Then, after a silence, he seemed to be in need of sympathetic comprehension. "It was kind o' funny though, wasn't it?" he said, appealing-

"What was?" "The whole business." "What whole bus'--"

"Oh, get out! Her stoppin' me, and me goin' pokin' along with her, and her-well, her crying and everything. and me being around with her while she felt so upset. I mean. It seemswell, it does seem all kind o' funny to

"Why does it?" Fred inquired, preserving his gravity. "Why should it em funny to you?

"I don't mean funny like something's funny you laugh at." Ramsey explained laboriously. "I mean funny like something that's out of the way, and you wonder how it ever happened to happen. I mean it seems funny I'd ever be sittin' there on a bench with that ole girl I never spoke to in my life or had anything to do with, and talkin' about the United States goin' to 'war, What we were talkin' about, why, that seems just as funny as the rest of it. Lookin' back to our class picnic, f'r instance, second year of high school, that day I jumped in the creek after-Well, you know, it was when I started makin' a fool of myself over a girl. Thank goodness, I got that out o' my system; it makes me just sick to look back on those days and think of the fool things I did, and all I thought about that girl. Why, she- Well, I've got old enough to see now she was just about as ordinary a girl as there ever was, and if I saw her now I wouldn't even think she was pretty; I'd prob'ly think she was sort of loudlookin'. Well, what's passed is past, and it isn't either here nor there. What I started to say was this: that the way it begins to look to me, it looks as if nobody can tell in this life a darn thing about what's goin' to happen, and the things that do happen are the very ones you'd swear were the last that could. I mean-you look back to that day of the picnic-my! but I was a rube then-well, I mean you look back to that day, and what do you suppose I'd have thought then if somebody'd told me the time would ever come when I'd be 'way off here at college sittin' on a bench with Dora Yocum-with Dora Yocum, in the first place—and her crying' and both of us talking about the United States goin' to war with Germany! Don't it seem pretty funny to you, Fred, too?" "But as near as I can make out,"

Fred said, "that isn't what happened." "Why isn't it?"

"You say 'and both of us talking' and so on. As near as I can make out, you didn't say anything at all."

"Well, I didn't-much," Ramsey admitted, and returned to his point with almost pathetic persistence. "But doesn't it seem kind o' funny to you, Fred?"

"Well, I don't know." "It does to me." Ramsey insisted, "It certainly does to me."

"Yes," said Fred cruelly. "I've noticed you said so, but it don't look any funnier than you do when you say

Suddenly he sent forth a startling shout. "Wow! You're as red as a blushing beet!" "I am not!"

Records Show That Large Animals

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Figures collected from various cow-to confirm the previous conclusions of the department that within the breeds, so far as they were represented by these animals, which were mostly producers of dairy products and are also the most profitable. The evidence seems to point to the fact that in the individual farmer's herd it will be found that on the average the larger cows are more profitable than the smaller ones, although there are some indications that this may not hold true in the case of herds of native cattle

The cows whose records have been used by the department have been sorted out so that only mature animals were used for these comparisons; thus eliminating any differences that might have been caused by the immuturity

In one group for which figures have

Special Care of Baby.

That Baby should have a bed of its own all are agreed. Yet it is more reasonable for an infant to sleep with grown-ups than to use a man's medicine in an attempt to regulate the delicate organism of that same infant. Either practice is to be shunned. Neither would be tolerated by specialists in children's diseases.

Your Physician will tell you that Baby's medicine must be prepared with even greater care than Baby's food.

A Baby's stomach when in good health is too often disarranged by improper food. Could you for a moment, then, think of giving to your ailing child anything but a medicine especially prepared for Infants and Children? Don't be deceived.

Make a mental note of this:- It is important, Mothers, that you should remember that to function well, the digestive organs of Your Baby must receive special care. No Baby is so abnormal that the desired results may be had from the use of medicines primarily prepared for grown-ups.

When Hungry Little Muscles Say, "Please Help Me"

DID you ever stop to think who it really is that's talking, when childish voices raise a clamor, "Mother, I'm hungry?"

It's really muscles and bones and nerves and cells worn in the stress and strain of play—that are calling for rebuilding material.

What kind of an answer? The right thing, or just anything? It makes a big difference.

Grape-Nuts, so deliciously crisp and appetizing to taste, and so quick and convenient to serve, is a splendid food for rebuilding young bodies. All the wonderful nutriment put in wheat and barley by Nature, including the vital mineral elements, is there - and Grape-Nuts digests easily, quickly and completely. Served with cream or milk, Grape-Nutsis exceptionally nourishing.

"That's splendid!" says appetite. "That's just the need!" say the hungry muscles, nerves and bones.

Ready to serve right from the package - always crisp and fresh. A favorite dish with all the family. Sold by grocers.

Our Frozen Millions

Business begins and ends with the Final Buyer—the man who lays his dollar down on the counter for a dollar's worth of goods.

If the Final Buyer dosen't plank down his coin, the dealer doesn't order from the factories and the manufacturers tells the raw material salesman "there is nothing doing."

In these United States of ours there are more than one hundred million of us Final Buyers and we own more millions of dollars than were ever stacked up in our banks before. Frozen millions—waiting unspent for lower prices, while lower prices are only possible by a general resumption of business, which means the circulation of the frozen millions.

You see—it's a deadlock and it's up to every one of us to play our part as Final Buyers and help business boom at the

If every person in the country started to buy wisely and cautiously the things he or she needed—the greatest of prosperity waves would hit this country.

When he came back he prophesied that in eight hundred years she would come back to him, and he would recognize her and rise out of the grave and pardon her."

There was a newcomer at dinner-Caldwell. He was a young fellow just down from Cambridge, and evidently an old friend.

"I'd have known you for a Caldwell any day," he said to Merton. "Do you know you are the exact image of Sir Roger?"

After dinner the squire took him aside. "I ought to tell you," he said, innocently, "that Mr. Caldwell and Lucy are to be married next autumn. They have been engaged for a year. So if they are a little inhospitable you-you'll understand, eh?"

"Yes," answered Merton, dismally. An hour later he was in the Norman church, beside the tomb. He must

PLEA FOR THE SMALL BIRDS Writer Calls Attention to Their Vast Services in Staying the Ravages

He is no sportsman, and a vandal sort of butcher, who shoots the small birds, which no stretch of ingenuity can bring within the definition of game.

of insects,

In some European countries such shooting is termed sport, and some immigrants have brought the bad habit with them. All hunters and sportsmen should discourage, or when possible, without resorting to too severe measures, put a stop to such butchery. And that not simply because we ought to, and sensible folk do like to hear and see the little things about, but also because of the actual benefits they confer upon mankind.

Michelet, the French naturalist and historian, says in his "Insect Life" that if all the birds were destroyed man could not live on earth more than nine years. He believed that without birds to check the ravages of insects, the insects would first destroy the growing crops of grain, next the grass and the foliage, which would leave nothing on which to feed cattle, hogs, sheep or poultry. The crops having been destroyed, all domestic animals would perish for want of food, and man in his extremity, in a barren and desolate world, would be driven to the necessity of living entirely on fish. When the supply of fish was exhausted he would starve.—Montreal Family Herald.

Hague Park Now Open. Knowing the conditions of the country the last few years and general depression of things. Mr. Odell, General Manager and owner of Hague Park, Jackson, is opening the famous resort earlier than usual, to have us forget the past and be for the future and present, and as there is no better proposition than the Resort that has made Jackson famous, where we can enjoy ourselves more and at very little expense than at Hague Park. The rides have all been reduced, buildings remodeled, new concessions, dancing hall enlarged, bathing beach all overhauled, new suits and towels. The restaurant is conducted by a local man and wife who will give you home cooked meals. The hamburger and waffle stand will use all electric cooking devices, and in fact everything has been overhauled and all appears as new although this is their 15th anniversary. Automobiles are parked free of charge, there is no admission charge at the gate, and the roads

RENEWED TESTIMONY

No one in Chelsea who suffers backache, headaches, or distressing urinary ills can afford to ignore this Chelsea man's twice told story. It is confirmed testimony that no Chelsea resident can doubt.

John Kelly, W. Middle street, says: My work started my kidney trouble. The secretions which were highly colored and contained sediment passed irregularly and were painful in passage. I suffered from rheumatic pains in my back and got sore and stiff. Mornings I felt tired and it took an hour or so to get limbered up. I was often nervous and dizzy, especially when I stooped. I used different remedies but received no relief until I saw Doan's Kidney Pills advertised and tried some. Donn's completely relieved me of all the trouble with my kidneys, and back." (Statement given March 1 1913.)

On April 27, 1920, Mr. Kelly said: 'Doan's Kidney Pills are all right and I gladly confirm the statement I gave some years ago." great wrong eight hundred years ago, 60c, at all dealers. Foster-Milburn Summer Farmers' Day.

Farmers' Day at the Michigan Agricultural College, made an annual event by recent action of the State Board of Agriculture, will be held on August 4 this year, according to announcement issued from the office of Dean R. S. Shaw. Farmers' Day, which takes the form of a big outdoor conference on the college campus, has been increasing in scope and poplarity among Michigan farmers each year, more than 3,000 gathering for the event last summer.

The custom of holding a summer meeting started in 1918 with a special Wheat Day. The next year a Soils Day was called, and since then the meeting has been known as Farmers' Day, all branches of the college agricultural division taking part in the program and exhibits.

Plans for special entertainment features are being made by the committee in charge for the August 4 conference. Agricultural exhibits, including the various crop experiments growing on the college farm and the extensive M. A. C. livestock equipment, will be on display. Prominent speakers are being scheduled for the general afternoon meeting, and new features generally will be provided.

Increasing Space for Cattle.

Space for housing cattle exhibits at the Michigan State Fair grounds is being increased 50 per cent this year, it is announced by George E. Dickinson, secretary-manager of the Fair association. When the additions to the cattle buildings are constructed it will be possible to show between 900 and 1000 herd of cattle, every one of them described as a Leoni-After nine interruptions, loader in its division, at the grounds during fair time. Genoa Conference Ends After Planning Parley on Russia at The Hague.

America Declines invitation to Partic pate in the New Meeting-Good Work by League of Nations' Council-Pinchot's Victory in Pennsylvania.

By EDWARD W. PICKARD

NOTAL results from the Genoa conference that was to bring about the regeneration of Europe, economically and financially, and which has adjourned, appear to be: Plans for new negotiations for a settlement of relations with Russia, to be carried on by commissions which will nieet in The Hagne in June; a truce of eight months between all the soviet republies and the other European powers; a clearer comprehension on the part of the world of the arrogant attitude and extravagant demands of soviet Russia: and a repeated affirmation of the position of the United States, that it will not participate in the political wrangles of Europe and will not enter into dealings with the Moscow government until the latter recognizes its international obligations.

The last mentioned result came when the Genoa conference invited the United States to take part in the proposed negotiations at The Hague, virof America's financial resources any agreements for the commercial regeneration of Russia would be useless. Secretary Hughes' reply, after expressing the deep sympathy of this country for the people of Russia and its deway, continued:

"This government, however, is unable to conclude that it can helpfully continuance, under a different nomendestined to encounter the same difficulties, if the attitude disclosed in the seeds, as well as moral support. Russian memorandum of May 11 remains unchanged.

"The inescapable and ultimate question would appear to be the restoration of productivity in Russia, the essential conditions of which are still herself."

A CCORDING to the accepted plan, the nations represented at Genoa will send delegates to The Hague, and from them will be selected a commisthe recognition of soviet Russia, but not with political affairs. The findcommission will begin conferences with a commission of Russians. Meanwhile the eight months' truce with the soviet republics will be in effect and the powers will not enter into separate treaties with Moscow or back their nationals in trying to obtain property them before the soviets came into a truce in the Far East or to continue the state of war in Siberia. Viscount Ishil's swift reply was that regardless of past differences among the Rusdans which had necessitated the presence of Japanese troops in Siberla to protect the property of their nationals, Japan was now ready to conclude a non-aggression pact in the Far East if the Chita republic also complied with the truce. Tchitcherin then squabbled with the Poles, Rumanians and others over alleged plans of anti-Bolshevik leaders to organize expeditions against Russia, but was again squelched. When he asked that what is left of General Wrangel's army be removed farther from Russia, Mr. Lloyd George retorted: "Who wants them? We don't." The British premier severely scored Tchitcherin's defense of Russia as an "Innocent, patient, and tolerant model of all the Christian virtues," and in concluding said. "Speaking after 16 years as a minister, longer than anyone else here. I believe the hest, we can do is to mind our own business. Organizing an expedition under General Wrangel to convert the heathen in Russia or under MM. Tchitcherin and Litvinoff to convert the heathen in our country will only bring trouble."

The Russian delegates have been trying hard to "save their faces" and It is predicted they will not be enthusiastically received by the more extreme communists at home. They have the treaty with Germany to their credit, but they have failed to obtain recognition for their government, and. what hurts more, they haven't the ghost of a show of getting the huge loan which was demanded.

OCTOR WIEDFELDT, the recent: ly arrived ami assador from Germany to the United States, just before he left Berlin concluded a contually admitting that without the aid tract by which the Krupp establishment was granted a concession of 56,000 acres of land in Russia to be used in raising food supplies for the Russians. Berlin says this concession gave rise to the "false report" that the Russo-German treaty contained a sire to aid them in every practicable secret military clause including Krupp delivery of war materials. The last thing the council did was to decide to support Germany in her protest to the league against the treatment of more than a million Germans residing in Poland, They were harred from citizenship by a ruling that Germans must prove continuous residence in Poland for six years. Nearly all of them were serving in the German army during the war and so are deprived of citizenship. The council determined to urge strongly on Poland the reconsideration of the ruling.

IN PASSING upon the constitutionality of the grain exchange law the Supreme court of the United States found that the taxing features of the City. measure are unenforceable. Therefore the agricultural bloc in congress, under the leadership of Senator Capper of Kansus, is drawing up a revamped bill to overcome the objections. In place of the taxing power the new bill will probably provide for federal control over exchanges by declaring their activities to be a form of interstate commerce and therefore subject to government supervision.

THE Supreme court knocked out another piece of legislation last week, holding that the child labor law, passed in 1919, is unconstitutlonal, as an attempt by congress to regulate through its taxing power something entirely within the jurisdiction of the various states in the exercise of their police power. The law was designed to regulate the employment of children in any mill, cannery, workshop, factory or manufacturing establishment, under the age of fourteen or in any mine or quarry under sixteen years by imposing an excise tax of 10 per cent upon the net annual profits of those employing such labor. The Supreme court ruling is in effect another victory for the mill owners of Southern states,

PROGRESS in the senate debate over the tariff is outrageously slow, despite the fact that night sessions are being held. This is by no means due altogether to the Democratic opposition. Republican members are so lax in their attendance that Senator McCumber felt called on to take them to task, telling them if they couldn't keep on the job they should resign. The Democrats attack especially the section of the bill which gives the President power to raise or lower duties within a range of 50 per cent and to proclaim American valuation. This, they assert, is unconstitutional.

A NOTHER battle in conference beis presaged by the action of the senate appropriations subcommittee in agreeing that the army for next year shall consist of approximately 140,000 enlisted men and 12,530 officers. This represents a cut of 10,000 from the strength asked by the War department, but is an increase over the house bill of 25,000 men and 1,500 of-

BOATS FROM CANADA WATCHED

Dry Navy Will Make It Hard for Bootleggers if Judge Tuttle Permits Searching.

Detroit-Federal Prohibition Director James R. Davis is not at all concerned as to the doubts raised about the legality of any seizures made on waters adjacent to Detroit by the boats he expects to put into commission this week to patrol the river and put down smuggling.

"If we have to come back to shore for a search warrant before we can seize a whisky smuggling craft we might as well take off the boats," he said.

"I hold that if we see cases that look like whisky on any river craft and it fails to stop upon signal, that is probable knowledge of the commission of a felony. If that is not enough we can take a customs officer with us and such an officer has a right to search any craft putting in to the American shore. If he finds any contraband on board he has a right to seize the boat and arrest the crew.'

"Probable knowledge" was the plea set up by the prohibition officers who seized John Draver's boat without a search warrant recently. At the examination before Commissioner J. Stanley Hurd, Deputy Prohibition Director Royal E. Decker testified that he had seen cases, marked "whisky" on board the boat. This he claimed to be probable knowledge that a felony was being committed. The commissioner adjourned the case for a week to study authorities before giving a decision.

Judge Arthur J. Tuttle's decision that officers making a seizure must have a search warrant was intended to apply to seizures on land. At that time there was no boat seizure before him. Consequently it is not known whether his ruling will apply to seizures on the high seas. Judge Tuttle is at present holding court in Bay Coroner's Jury Investigates Stashing of Infant's Throat.

Dowagiac-A new-born baby was found with its throat slashed in an outhouse of the farm of Frank Nash. near here. Monday. It died a few minutes later. Berthe Nash, 18-year-old daughter of Nash, has confessed that she is the mother of the baby, according to the authorities. She is unmarried.

Other members of her family denied knowledge of the cutting. Bertha is being detained at her home, but no charge has been made against her. Sheriff Wyman said he was convinced it was a case of murder. A coroner's jury will sit on the case and no charges will be made until it hears the evidence, it was announced, Neighbors discovered the baby. Its screams attracted them from a nearby farm.

FREIGHT RATE CUTS LOOKED FOR

President's Recent Conference Is Thought To Have Had Effect.

Washington-Freight rate reductions, without waiting for the Interstate Commerce Commission to act, are expected in some quarters. It is believed that as a result of the president's recent conference with the railroad magnates the directing heads of the roads are making reasonable efforts for voluntary reductions.

It is realized by the administration that a move to relieve the thousands of farmers, merchants and manufacturers from burdensome transportation rates would be extremely valuable, as a political asset.

One mile west of Chancellorsville is a little monument in the woods by the roadside which marks where Stonewall Jackson received the wound from which he died in a plain little farmhouse near Guinea station, 11 miles south of Fredericksburg. One mile west of the solemn little monument In its lonely site is Wilderness church. About two miles northwest of the courthouse is a battle area once so strewn with dead and so littered with wounded men that for 50 years it has been called Bloody Angle, and that name will never be effaced from the tragic ground. Something more than mile from Bloody Angle, at the fork of two old roads that are full of steep and bumpy hills and closely bordered by thick woods, is a monument that marks where General Sedgwick-Maj. Gen. John Sedgwick, United States Nolunteers, commanding the Sixth Army corps—a corps commander under Grant, was killed in action on the morning of May 9, 1864.

This description points out some of the landmarks, some of the "high spots," as it were, of a section of that country in which the battle of Fredericksturg was fought in December, 1862, in which the battles of Chancellorsville and Salem Church were fought in May, 1863, and in which the battles of the Wilderness and Spottsylvania Courthouse were fought in May, 1864-a little patch of country that has been appropriately called "the cockpit of America."

Still the Wilderness.

It there are such things as ghosts there must be armies of them in this tangle land, for many, many thousands of young men who were the blue and many many thousands of other young men who wore the gray were shot what bayoneted to death in this wild north end of the position, two miles to get between Lee and Richmond, A country. Much of that country west above the courthouse, was a salient Confederate force moving around the policylvania Courthouse, which was mile, and in places was half a mile but it cost them about a thousand men

Grant's plan of campaign was to put all the armies of the Union, east and west, into offensive operations at tered commands and built up the Army of the Potomac to a strength which he believed would overwhelm Lee, who faced him across the Rapidan astride the Orange and Alexandria railroad and maintained touch with the Richmond and Fredericksburg railroad 35 miles to the east. Victory Long in Balance.

The fighting spread along a front of four or five miles. One side drove the other back, and then was driven back. Hancock's corps was driving Hill's fast. Gregg's Texans, only 800 strong, rushed against Webb's brigadt of Hancock's corps, lost half theil men in killed and wounded, but checked the Union advance in that part of the line, and Longstreet's corps, with Kershaw's division leading, was coming into line. Longstreet sent Mahone with several brigades-brigades were pititfully small then-around the Federal left, which had advanced far west of the Brock ordered back, but the attack came too road, on which it had been marching soon. Some guns got back, but not south from Germanna ford. Mahone in time to help much in repelling the brought his men at right angles to the attack. There was all the valor on advancing federal left, attacked it, and it shriveled back to the Brock road. There in the Wilderness the land and dotted with dead.

Lee's plan had succeeded in part, failed in part. He had inflicted on Grant much heavier losses than he had sustained, but he had not hurled the Army of the Potomac into confusion and disorder.

Gallant Sedgwick's Death.

On May 8 Sedgwick and Warren's corps were thrown against Anderson and Early, and thrown back was spent in reconnoitering, intrenching, sniping, sharpshooting and small firing here and there along the lines. as marching bodies became exposed within range. On the morning of the 9th Sedgwick was killed by a Confederate sharpshooter. The ball struck him in the left cheek heneath the eye. He had gone to an exposed part of the line. Shots were coming over now and then. He was warned. "Why," he answered, "they could not hit an elephant at that distance." He fell dead a minute later.

The Confederate lines were very irregular, adopting themselves to the broken contour of the land. At the happening, Grant was starting south Chancellorsville and northwest of that bulged northward for nearly a Union right had got that information. light the Wilderness before and dur- across. Again news came that Grant was preparing to make a southward rush to reach the North Anna river, first. Lee ordered back much of the artillery that defended one time. He brought together scat- the north salient and set the trains in motion. A false alarm.

The salient was again threatened. The men near the top of it went out into the field and brush before them and brought back muskets and cartridge boxes from the Union dead. Of course they brought back all the food found in the haversacks. Coffee and sugar were priceless luxuries. Bread and bacon were worth risking life for, A pair of shoes from a dead man! Why, the dead man had no use for them and many a soldier in the Army of Northern Virginia had not had shoes on his feet since the Gettysburg campaign the year before! These men bringing back Union muskets and ammunition from Union dead loaded all the muskets and lay down with perhaps half a dozen by their side. There were no repeating rifles and not many breech-loaders. Another attack on Bloody Angle was coming. The artillery that had been withdrawn was both sides that man can put into fighting. The line at one part of the salient was broken and Hancock's men held the ground.

Hand-to-Hand Struggle.

General Johnson, twenty guns and 2,800 men, nearly his whole division, were captured. Early's division came forward and the Blues were driven back. Another part of the salient was assailed and the line broken. General Perrin was killed. General Daniel was killed. General Ramseur was wounded. Lee was sending all availwith heavy loss. The day of the 9th able troops and the Confederate line was partly restored and all gaps closed. That was the 12th of May, All day and far into the night the fighting went on. At one part and then at another part of the salient it was hand-to-hand fighting. The Confederates constructed a shorter line in the rear of the salient and fell back to it on the 18th. Both armies had been marching and fighting since the 4th of May. There was a lull until the 18th, when two corps of Grant's army, the Second and Sixth, attacked again, but the Confederate line held and the attack cost Grant many men. On the 10th strange things were Spottsylvania was the immediate objective of both armies.

STAIN REMOVERS

In removing stains from fabrics one has always to remember that delicate colors may be faded by careless handling. Use the safest methods first. If starch is applied to a spot of blood while it is still damp, and the starch is allowed to dry, then the spot rubbed, the starch will bring away all color from the fibers of the cloth. This is especially good when cleaning wool. Other stains may be absorbed in the same way, so it is always safe to try chalk. flour or starch and blotting paper is very useful to absorb a spot if treated while damp.

All solvents will not remove all stains. For grease use alcohol, chloroform or ether for delicate fabrics and colors. Other solvents are benzine, gasoline and turpentine.

In removing grease spots from a fabric place a blotting paper under the spot to absorb the diluted fat, so that when the solvent is evaporated there will not be a ring.

A fresh grease spot may often be removed by putting a blotter under it and pressing with a hot iron. The grease goes into the blotter.

All these solvents are highly inflammable and should never be used around an open flame.

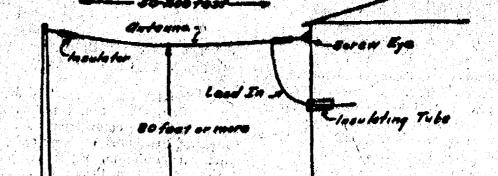

Machine oil may be removed with soap and warm water. Hot water sets grease. Vaseline, so often staining pillow cases, cannot be removed after the linen has been bolled. Sponge with ether, or turpentine when the stain is fresh.

Lampblack will respond to the same treatment given for tar. If the stain occurs on a rug or carpet, or delicate fabric, rub with starch, salt or flour, to remove as much of the soll as possible before treating.

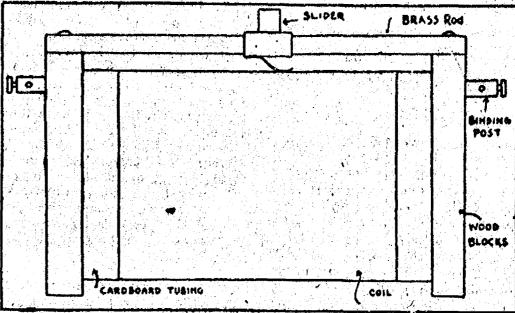

Grass stains will come out if washed in paphtha soap. If obdurate, rub with a little lard to soften, then wash. Cream stains-Wash in soap and warm water after soaking in cold wa-Paint and varnish may be removed with turpentine. If the fabric is delicate in color use chloroform. If the stain is old, soften by using equal parts of ammonia and turpentine.

In order to pick up sufficient energy with the simple radio receiving set it is necessary to connect one terminal to an antenna consisting of one or more wires suspended in the air and insulated from all grounded material and the other terminal to a ground, usually the water supply pipe. If the builder will construct most of his apparatus he will appreciate it much more and probably will under | British Scientists Have Some Success stand more about its operation than if he buys a set already made. However, for those who have not the ability or the time to spend constructing their own apparatus the following description will not only give the details as to the construction of each component part of a receiver but also what standard ready-made parts can be purchased and used in its stead.

The material can be purchased at any electrical supply store.

In erecting a simple antenna for use with the receiver shown in the diagram, the antenna proper and the lead-in are of stranded hard-drawn copper wire, strand No. 22, costing about 1 cent per foot. The two insulators are of molded material and can be purchased for about 25 cents each. The antenna shown is supported between a house and a pole. It may be found more convenient to support it between a tree and a house, two houses or even between two chimneys on the same house. In bringing down the lead-in care should be taken that it is kept as far away from grounded material as possible and when bringing through the wall or under the window into the house it should be brought through some sort of an insulating bridged the Atlantic, was generally betube, such as rubber or bakelite.

In making the ground connection the same kind of wire can be used as was purchased for the antenna. You can clean a section of the waterpipe thoroughly and solder the ground wire
