GARY ATTACKS THE FARM BLOC.

Wall Street loses no opportunity to level its guns at the farmer, nor does it hesitate to fire when the big chiefs give the word. At present, of course, the assault is directed at the farm bloc, and it is an assault as determined and yet as subtle as it will prove fruitless. After reiterating the well worn platitude that the law of the land should be made to apply with even justice to every man and every industry, Judge Gary, of the Steel Trust, tells us that during the last few years, there has arisen a disposition "to pass laws which measurably exempt labor organizations, and recently farmer associations, from government investigation, supervision and control against wrong. Not only are they exempted from certain restrictive provisions of the existing statutes, but they are affirmatively permitted to do certain things prohibited to others," he says. "To permit labor associations or farmer organizations to do, as the result of combination, things that are claimed to be beneficial to them which are denied to others, is to create a class to favor some of them and to injure the whole body politic."

Surely this is spurious logic of the first water, but unfortunately, it is hidden in the cloak of seeming justice. The basis of American liberty is government by the majority, the plain duty of government is to guard and protect its fundamental industries and the labor upon which the life of the nation depends. Presumably it is all right in the eyes of Judge Gary to permit certain special rights to railroads, the practical right of condemnation of property and other privileges denied to individuals for example because the railroads are public institutions, but the farmer who is the fundamental public institution of the world, must sit back satisfied to be ignored. It would seem that Judge Gary answers himself when further in his recent address he says: "It is a trite saying that often the man who cries stop thief in the loudest tones has the stolen goods in his pocket."

WOMAN'S VOTING LOGIC A PUZZLE.

Party leaders, who for policy or other reasons, were loud in their cheers for woman suffrage are now rapidly coming to believe they have repeated history and staged a modern siege of Troy. They have taken the wooden horse within the walls of the city and now they can't get it out. What is more, the wooden horse shows signs of life and has started to kick, all the little soldiers are coming out and all kinds of ructions are expected. From every state comes word of the growing political independence of the women folk. They are all "staunchly attached" to their respective parties, of course, but they insist on voting for "the best man," even if he does belong to the other side, and no argument has yet been advanced to alter this rather general view of civil and political duty. It is up to the party leaders to obtain the best man, and there you are. What could be simpler, what more logical? Certainly the intuitive vote seems likely to cause surprise at the fall elections.

It will be many years before mjlady can be brought to vote at the crack of the whip or see the supposed wisdom of electing the poorer candidate on the better platform rather than the better man on the poorer platform, on the theory that principles rise above individuals. If the politicians are to get anything like a grip on the women-folk they will have to sell them very thoroughly on platforms as against personalities, and this is quite an undertaking. It is difficult to submit the goods for examination. Platforms seem to vanish into thin air soon after the count, so what can the poor leaders do?

WOULD YOU DO IT?

Paul Willard, young shoe factory worker at Brockton, Mass., has one of the strangest jobs in the world, as a sideline.

Seven years ago a woman in his factory caught her hair in belting that dragged her into a piece of machinery. As an act of mercy, to replace the woman's lost scalp, Willard gave 24 square inches of his skin for grafting purposes.

It dawned on him, that here was an opportunity to make pocket money on the side. Since then, Willard has sold 54 square inches of his skin at $1 a square inch, and eight pints of his blood for transfusion at $25 a pint.

Primarily, his purpose is humanitarian. But it reveals that many opportunities, often of a peculiar nature, are lying around loose in the world, waiting to be discovered by sharp eyes that sense their possibilities.

NOISE

When you enter a theater in China it's like going into a boiler factory. Music is discordant. House lights never go off. The audience talks loudly, never stopping its chatter, regardless of what is happening on screen or stage. In front of each theater seat is a shelf for ten and nuts.

That is the picture brought back by Mekins, movie export expert.

Pass the good word along. Maybe it will induce a great exit Chinaward by American movie goers who annoy their neighbors by peanut munching and loud whispered reading of subtitles, along with running conversation about "I says" and "he says."

SUCCESS

How long to rise to the top of the ladder? Harvard business college claims its graduates usually reach an executive desk in six months.

The average successful business man will look back and recall that it took him from 6 to 12 years to become executive after leaving high school and striking out for himself.

Young men, now graduating and ready to begin the battle of life, can make a short cut to success by realizing that this is an age of specialization, with victory quickest to the man who trains for a definite goal. Drifters usually fail.

Subs joy of a kind act is from the same source as that of any Chelsea done—it is all in the doing and not in the gratitude of the donee.

VETS' HOSPITAL IN MICHIGAN SURE

May Go to Ann Arbor, But Other Cities Make Offers of Large Sites.

Detroit—Prospects for the erection in Michigan, probably in Ann Arbor, of a government hospital for ex-service men with mental diseases, brightened with the announcement of Senators Townsend and Newberry that President Harding now favors Michigan over Illinois in his plans for hospitalization of World War veterans.

President Harding's original plan called for the erection of this hospital at Great Lakes, Ill., despite the fact that Illinois already has far more government hospital facilities than Michigan.

That the hospital will be located in Michigan is due to the earnest efforts of the American Legion.

President Harding told Senators Newberry and Townsend that he would instruct the hospitalization committee of the treasury department to expedite plans for constructing such a hospital at Great Lakes, Ill.

Dr. Frank H. Broderick of Detroit, state welfare officer of the Legion, announces that a site of approximately 200 acres is needed. The Ann Arbor Chamber of Commerce has pledged co-operation with the Legion in securing such a site near Ann Arbor, and other cities are expected to make similar offers.

Barrett to Aid. Dr. A. M. Barrett, head of the university psychiatric hospital, at Ann Arbor, one of the greatest authorities on nervous diseases in the country, has agreed to work with the government and the Legion if the hospital is built there.

It has been necessary to send disabled veterans from Michigan to Illinois, Wisconsin and other states for treatment. Michigan has the greatest percentage of disabled veterans in proportion to its military strength in the war of any state.

LAUDS HOSPITAL IN BATTLE CREEK

Legion Commander Says Attacks Are Without Foundation.

Detroit—No man who attacks the American Legion's hospital at Battle Creek as "a hot-bed of Legionism," Paul A. Martin, state commander of the Legion, told members of Charles A. Learned post here.

"Attacks such as have been made recently are absolutely without foundation. All that these in charge ask is that you come and see for yourselves."

"A visit will convince all that the Legion hospital is more than a hospital. It is a home for the ex-service man making the hard journey back to health."

Learned Post, the largest in the state, is installed in its new home, in the Wheelman's club.

Commander Martin complimented the post on its growth, and referring to the recent differences between Learned Post and the Wayne County Council, expressed his thanks for the action of the post in standing behind the constituted authorities of the Michigan Legion.

Fred Z. Pantlind of Grand Rapids is chairman of the Legion hospital committee. Other members are John G. Jemery, former national commander of the Legion, and Alton T. Roberts of Marquette, Frederick M. Alger of Detroit, Wilbur M. Brucker of Saginaw, Clarence V. Spaw, M. D., of Benton Harbor, and O. G. Johnson, M. D., of Postoria.

EFFECT OF POISON GAS IMPAIRS VOICE

Stricken Veterans Urged to Have Throats Examined.

Washington—Poison gas inhaled by American soldiers in France is beginning to show its effects by causing service men to lose their voices. The bureau has asked the American Legion to inform gassed veterans whose ability to speak is becoming impaired to report to the nearest Bureau physician, for examination. American Legion posts will give information as to where these may be found.

The bureau states that a large number of young veterans have recently been found suffering from tumors of the vocal cords, apparently in their inception. The growth prevents vibration of the cords, due to pressure, and thus affects the voice.

The Legion is asked to spread the information and to get service men suffering from a growing inability to speak to go before Veterans Bureau doctors for prompt examination. If the case warrants, the Bureau announces, the former soldiers will be sent East for operations.

A post of the American Legion was organized at Teese, Michigan, on February 10th by "Mike" Murray, District Welfare officer. The post has already secured an enrollment of 57 members.

Edward V. Rickenbacker, America's foremost ace, has started on a three-months "coast-to-coast" aerial survey of the country. After visiting about 75 of the larger cities in the nation, Rickenbacker will finish at Detroit about Sept. 1. Rickenbacker, on completion of his flight, will also make a report to the United States air service on aeronautical conditions. Edward Stinson, Lloyd Hertaud, flyers, and Steve Hannigan, writer, will accompany Rickenbacker.

The State Administrative Board opened bids on $125,000 worth of bonds to be sold to provide money for highway purposes and retire outstanding bonds and highway notes. A potato campaign will be conducted in Kent county during the latter part of September under the direction of County Agriculturalist K. K. ## SYNOPSIS

CHAPTER I.—Wealthy and highly placed in the Chicago business world, Corvet is something of a reclusive and a mystery to his associates. After a stormy interview with his partner, the young man, Corvet seeks out his daughter, Sherill, who is a business partner in her own right, and she promises to marry him.

CHAPTER II.—Corvet's letter summons Corvet to a youth of unknown parentage, to Chicago.

CHAPTER III.—From a statement of Sherill, it seems probable that Corvet has been deceived by a man who has been deceiving him for some time.

CHAPTER IV.—Alan takes possession of his new home.

CHAPTER V.—That night Alan discovers a man ransacking the house and fleeing. Alan is introduced to the man, who is a stranger to him.

CHAPTER VI.—Next day Alan learns from Sherill that Corvet has been deceived by a man who has been deceiving him for some time.

CHAPTER VII.—Alan tells no one of the strange encounter, but in a private interview takes Sherill into the fact.

CHAPTER VIII.—Corvet's Indian servant, Wassaquin, tells Alan he believes the man who has been deceiving him is a man who has been deceiving him for some time.

CHAPTER IX.—Conrad recovers, and the affair remains a mystery.

CHAPTER X.—Alan learns from Wassaquin that Corvet's habit of keeping the sum of $1,000 in the house, apparently for the purpose of a ransom, is a habit which has been deceiving him for some time.

CHAPTER XI.—From the document Alan finds, he learns that Corvet's life and disappearance are connected with a man who has been deceiving him for some time.

CHAPTER XII.—Constance receives a package wrapped in a muffled which she recognizes Corvet was wearing on the night he was killed.

CHAPTER XIII.—Alan says among these looking on, the bright dresses and sport coats of summer visitors who had come to watch the figure of a girl among these caught his attention, and he started, and then he told himself that it was only his thinking of Constance Sherill that made him believe this was she.

But now she had seen him; she paled, then as quickly flushed, and leaving the group she had been with, came toward him.

He had no choice now whether he would avoid her or not; and his half-remembered feeling her hand in his, holding her, was a feeling which he never forgot.

Her eyes were very bright and with something more than friendly greeting, there was happiness in them too. His throat shut together as he recognized this, and his hand closed warmly over the small, trembling hand which she put out to him. All his conscious thought was lost for the moment in the mere realization of her presence; he stood, holding her hand, oblivious that there were people looking; she too seemed unconscious of that. Then she whitened again and withdrew her hand; she seemed slightly confused. He was confused as well; it was not like this that he had meant to greet her; he caught himself together.

Cap in hand, he stood beside her, trying to look and to feel as any ordinary acquaintance of hers would have looked.

CHAPTER XIII.

The Owner of the Watch.

"So they got word to you?" Constance exclaimed; she seemed still confused. "Oh, no—of course they couldn't have done that! They've hardly got my letter yet."

"Your letter?" she asked.

"I wrote to Blue Rapids," she explained. "Some things came—they were sent to me. Some things of Uncle Bonny's which were meant for you instead of me."

"You mean you've heard from him?"

"No—not that."

"What things, Miss Sherill?"

"A watch of his and some coins and a ring." She did not explain the significance of those things, and he could not tell from her mere enumeration of them and without seeing them that they furnished proof that his father was dead. She could not tell him of that, she felt, just here and now.

"Tell you about that later. You—you are coming to Harbor Point to see us?"

He colored. "I'm afraid not. I got as near as this to you because there is a man—an Indian—I have to see."

"An Indian! What is his name?"

"You see, I know quite a lot of them."

"The Indian?"

"No, I don't know him."

"I've the most curious feeling," she said, "as if I were the most curious person in the world."

"What do you mean?"

"I mean that I feel as if I were the most curious person in the world."

"What do you mean?"

"I mean that I feel as if I were the most curious person in the world."

"What do you mean?"

"I mean that I feel as if I were the most curious person in the world."

He assumed, and they went down to the water where the white and brown power yacht, with long, graceful lines, lay lazily in the sunlight. A little boat took them out over the shimmering, smooth surface to the ship; and from a narrow platform swept under the beautiful, burnished "crane" causing it to roll lazily as they boarded it. A party of nearly a dozen men and girls with an older woman came aboard them, and after the shade of an awning over the after deck, the young man and his father and mother sat down.

As they sat, a young man came upon the deck, and he went to the young man and his father and mother.

"What do you want?" he asked.

"I want to see you," he said.

"What do you want to see me for?" he asked.

"I want to see you," he said.

The Truth in Business

A MESSAGE FOR YOUNG MEN

BY DR. FRANK CRANE

If you have a store rented for a week only and purpose to conduct a sacrifice sale of goods that will make everybody disgusted who buys them, then perhaps you may hear or exaggerate with a high head and a stretched-out grin, and get away with it.

But if you are in business to stay, and want regular, returning, increasing, satisfied and friendly customers, it will pay you to stick to the old-fashioned truth.

Exaggeration is lying. It does not take long for the people to get the habit of discounting twenty-five per cent of all you say.

If you continually overstate and vociferate you must keep on getting louder, until you soon become incoherent.

But if you habitually state only what is soberly, honestly, true, by and by everything you say will be away above par.

A man's reputation for truthfulness is as much a part of his capital as are his store and stock; so much so that he can raise money on it.

All are candidates for reelection except Rep. Brennan of Detroit and Patrick H. Kelley of Lansing, and the latter is seeking a seat in the Senate.

Many Prospective Teachers.

According to statistics gathered by the Institute of Public Service, one in every fifteen students in forty-two American colleges is studying with a view to entering the teaching profession.

The figures are based on a survey covering more than 20,000 undergraduates.

First Known Englishman.

The first known Englishman, according to scientists, was the Piltdown man, so called from a part of a skull found at Piltdown, in Sussex.

The brain capacity is equal to the smaller human brain of today.

He assumed, and they went down to the water where the white and brown power yacht, with long, graceful lines, lay lazily in the sunlight.

A little boat took them out over the shimmering, smooth surface to the ship; and from a narrow platform swept under the beautiful, burnished "crane" causing it to roll lazily as they boarded it.

A party of nearly a dozen men and girls with an older woman came aboard them, and after the shade of an awning over the after deck, the young man and his father and mother sat down.

As they sat, a young man came upon the deck, and he went to the young man and his father and mother.

"What do you want?" he asked.

"I want to see you," he said.

"What do you want to see me for?" he asked.

"I want to see you," he said.

"What do you want to see me for?" he asked.

"I want to see you," he said.

"What do you want to see me for?" he asked.

"I want to see you," he said.

"What do you want to see me for?" he asked.

When my husband goes away from home he always takes a bottle of these tablets with him. Whenever I have that heavy feeling after eating, or feel dull and played out, I take one or two of Chamberlain's Tablets and they give me a new lease of life. Mrs. Newton Venable, Minn., N.Y. Hall's Catarrh Medicine. Those who are in a "run down" condition will notice that Catarrh bothers them more than when they are in good health. This fact proves that while Catarrh is a local disease, it is greatly influenced by constitutional conditions. HALL'S CATARRH MEDICINE is a home and acts through the blood upon the mucous surfaces of the body, thus relieving the inflammation and assisting Nature in restoring normal conditions. All Druggists. Circulars free. F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio.
