HELP EFFICIENCY OF HORSE

Numerous Inquiries Received at Missouri College of Agriculture for Hitches.

TARIFF OUT OF POLITICS.

Elbert H. Gary, head of the U. S. Steel Corporation, and president of the American Iron and Steel Institute, puts much thought into few words when he states that revision of the tariff is an intermittent disease—that it appears if not with every session of Congress, certainly with every change in the administration.

The tariff seems to be an important political question, but it ought not to be a political question at all. It should, as the steel man points out, be decided strictly upon scientific principles and from the standpoint of fairness to every part of the country, to every department of human industry, to every line of employment and to the public welfare.

There is nothing novel in this thought. The National Tariff Commission, at great expense to the country, studied the problem, gathered data enough to sink a ship, prepared reports, made recommendations and went through the usual multitude of inquisitorial gymnastics that mark practically every official "probe," and when it was all over, everyone said it was splendid and then promptly went to sleep. The tariff being no longer needed as a pressing political issue, was set aside and forgotten. Now we have it bobbing up again, with the forces all set and primed to upset the business conditions of the country. Surely, it is time the public took the matter in hand to put an end, once and for all, to this perpetual economic menace. Regardless of whether men believe in high tariff, low tariff, tariff for revenue only, or no tariff at all, certainly they must unite in the conviction that mingling tariff with politics is as vicious as it is disastrous. When all is said and done, tariff schedule advocates always are selfish. They fight for their own interest. There may not be much amiss with this because in the last analysis, obedience to intelligent selfishness is armed with a political black jack. By all means get the tariff question out of politics.

WEISENHEIMERS.

Paris is amazed at a hotel porter who steps forth as an authority on the Einstein theory. It develops that he is highly educated, trained for one of the intellectual professions. He says he prefers being a porter, because it pays more money.

The machine shops of America probably have more men who understand Einstein than so called highbrow circles. Some of the best and most philosophical brains in our country are running lathes. Astronomy and other sciences get more discussion over the dinner pail than ever the noon day lunch table of the expensive hotels.

The plain people do a lot more thinking than their leaders give them credit for. That is the chief reason the bulk of our great men and women are produced from poverty and obscurity.

"DAD."

No machine shop or mill is complete without an old, white haired dinner pail carrier whom every one calls "Dad."

In our country are 276,550 "dads"—wage earners past 60 years old. Maybe some of them wish they could have saved enough in youth to enable them to spend their old age without toil.

But work, like opium, is a habit. The man who works until he is 60 usually would as soon be dead as without something to do. The system gets us all. The truly "richest" old man in America probably carries a dinner pail, measuring his wealth in health and happiness, not money.

BOBBED.

Bobbed hair is only a fad, and will die out next fall. Charles M. Kozlay, president of the National Hairdressers' association, says this in Philadelphia.

Fashion show models, sitting nearby, shook their heads and predicted that bobbed hair is here to stay.

Twenty years ago, when women were slaves to style, men like Kozlay had the power to make or end fashions by a word. It is different today, with women doing their own thinking. Style authorities, trying to bring back the long skirt, have found this out.

Bobbed hair is sanitary, sensible and comfortable. Those three words are the regulators of modern feminine styles.

BOOM TO FOLLOW

Money always goes where it can earn the most, safety considered. The latest government loan was taken readily at the low rate of 3 1/2 per cent. There is no doubt that investors generally are not satisfied, however, with this low rate of interest and will turn more and more to industrial enterprises. Then will we have a boom in all lines of production. It is while watching for opportunities in industry that people put their savings into government securities even though the returns are small. But when the wheels begin to hum loudly they won't be satisfied with that return.

JOKER

There seems to be a joker in nearly everything. American farmers in March, latest month for which Uncle Sam has compiled complete figures, exported 22,668,000 bushels of corn, compared with only 18,371,000 bushels in March 1921.

That looks like big news. Here is the joker. Corn exports increased 70 per cent in bushels, but total money paid for corn increased only 33 per cent. Win on one hand, lose on the other.

Why is it every summer convention is held in a town whose normal summer climate is so blistering that you can fry eggs on the sidewalks?

LINE HAS NO LABOR TROUBLE

Suburban Railroad Near Washington Does Business With One Man as Its Sole Employee.

A certain little suburban car line near Washington is unique in having the owner of the road as president, motorman, conductor, general utility man and bureau of information.

There are 32 curves in the three miles covered, and when the motorman is collecting fares the little car glides unassisted around the shortest curves with perfect ease and safety—at least so far.

It is also a most accommodating car. Certain customers take the 7:30 every morning. Everybody knows everybody else, and a social time is enjoyed each day. The conductor-motorman also knows each passenger by name, and when the car is ready to start, if Miss Jones happens to be late, which is often the case, the car is delayed while Miss Jones sprouts breathlessly down the hill and is helped on by two or more polite gentlemen.

One day last spring, when the car was crowded with government clerks hurrying to office, the president-motorman stopped the car while passing through an old field and politely asked permission of the ladies aboard to shoot a very troublesome hawk which had killed many chickens in the neighborhood. After the shooting, the only other wait was for Mrs. Smith to send her little boy back home for her glasses, which she had forgotten.

FUTURE OF "BARREN LANDS"

History May Repeat Itself and Tracts Prove to Have Distinct Commercial Value.

We are conquering the difficulties of the North faster as time goes on. It was more than a thousand years from the time when the Romans thought that no civilization could exist north of the Alps until the civilization of the Alps was really on a par with that of Italy. But it was only a century from the time when Benjamin Franklin thought that the little island of Guadeloupe was worth more than all of Canada till the time when second rate cities in Canada had become more important than the whole island of Guadeloupe. It was only a few decades from the time when even Seward's friends tacitly admitted that "Seward's Folly" was the correct name for Alaska until the Republicans began to "point with pride" to the purchase and to rank it among the glorious achievements of the party. By analogy we may expect that it will require only a decade or two for the same progress in knowledge and revolution in sentiment with regard to the northern prairies that are still called "Barren Grounds" and are still supposed to be worthless.—Vilhjalur Stefansson, in World's Work.

War Gas Made Useful. By mixing tear gas, developed for war use, with deadly but odorless hydrocyanic acid, a powerful disinfectant, the chemists of the chemical warfare service have made a combination that can be used safely in sanitary work. Since the hydrocyanic acid gas kills the eggs of vermin as well as the vermin, it is one of the most effective disinfectants known. As it has no taste or smell and produces no discomfort when breathed; the first indication of its presence in the atmosphere is the collapse of the person breathing it. Tear gas is detected instantly by its irritant effect on the eyes, even when the air contains only minute amounts, and the combination of the two can thus be escaped before the hydrocyanic acid has a chance to act.—New York Evening Post.

An order has just been issued by the public utilities commission in Lansing to show cause why interstate rates should not be cut approximately 14 per cent. The recent action by the interstate commerce commission in cutting interstate rates is the basis for the state commission's action. The state is ready to enforce this ruling.

THE HOME RADIO

How to Make and Use It By A. HYATT VERRILL

I. RADIO AN OUTGROWTH OF THE WAR

We usually think of the great war as a disaster and as having done an incalculable amount of harm to the world and its people, but it is very doubtful if the war did us much harm as good. Within the few years it lasted it resulted in immense benefits to mankind in the tremendous discoveries, inventions, improvements and advancement of medicine, surgery, chemistry, aeronautics, mechanics, engineering, metallurgy, and wireless communication, and the loss the toll of life, the destruction of property, the devastation of lands, the loss of art and the bankruptcy of nations are all temporary and will soon be replaced and forgotten, the scientific progress and discoveries, which were a direct result of the war, will endure forever and will continue to benefit mankind.

Of all the arts and sciences which received an unprecedented impetus by the war, none is of greater interest or has a more far-reaching effect to the average person than radio telephony. Before the war wireless telephony was well established, universally used and a fairly exact and well-understood science; but wireless telephony was scarcely more than a dream—a visionary, uncertain thing, complicated, little understood and literally in its infancy.

But today, so incredibly rapid have been the strides made in the development of this science, that wireless telephony is an every-day affair: a simple, easily understood thing—far simpler than telegraphy—and in constant use, not only commercially, but by countless thousands of amateurs. In a way, however, the war merely launched practical radio telephony on its career and far greater progress has been made in commercializing, simplifying and cheapening it within the past four months—October to February, 1921-22—than within the previous six years. Indeed, so rapid has been its advancement, that it seems to have come upon us almost overnight, and within a few short weeks it has leaped from an obscure, scientific curiosity to an almost universally used means of entertainment and profit.

Today thousands of mere boys are using wireless telephones—many of the instruments made by the boys themselves—and in department stores, electrical supply stores and elsewhere sets for receiving may be purchased for a few dollars. From various stations, music, crop reports, market reports, weather reports, speeches, songs, operas, plays, stories, official time, racing and baseball returns; shipping news and countless other interesting matters are sent broadcast through the air, free to anyone who possesses a wireless telephone receiving set. Thus, the farmer, miles from the nearest town, the sailor at sea, passengers on ships, guests in hotels, crowds about bulletin boards and people in their own homes can listen to the voices of famous men, the music of bands and orchestras, the singing of famous operatic stars, the dialogues of plays and countless other things, from far-distant points and as clearly and plainly as though no space intervened.

Truly, radio telephony is the great modern miracle; a dream more fantastic and fairy-like than the Arabian Nights; a more marvelous actuality than the fabulous lamp of Aladdin or the flying carpet, and, best of all, it is within the reach of everyone, while the "music in the air" is free to all who care to listen in.

It is certainly a strange, almost incredible, thing to think that the air about us, even within our dwellings, is constantly filled with sounds, voices, music, messages and songs which are so inaudible to us as they are invisible, but which may be caught and delivered to our ears by means of a few wires and batteries and a few minutes so simple that even a child may use them.

And the limit is far from being reached. Within a few years or even months, the range of wireless telephony will be increased by hundreds or even thousands of miles, antennae or aerials will be entirely done away with and the instruments for sending and receiving will be so improved, simplified and reduced that one may carry them in one's pocket, for while radio telephony has already become highly perfected, widely used and absolutely practical, yet it is still hardly out of its infancy and no man may prophesy what its future may be.

Class Day Exercises

The Class Day exercises of the class of 1922 of Chelsea High school were held Wednesday evening, in the Methodist church here. An audience that filled the church was present and enjoyed the fine exercises. The old customs of the church were reenacted, the class will, the prophecy, oration, salutatory and valedictory were all given by members of the class. All of the program was well given and showed a great deal of work on the part of the students.

As is always expected the class prophecy attracted considerable interest. In acting out the meeting several years from now a realistic idea of the kind of a convention that no doubt will be held between members of the class of '22 was given. It is no easy task to predict the whereabouts nor the probable status in life that members of such a class will be in a few years hence. But the folly of it all was pleasingly presented. It was a well satisfied audience that left the church after the program, and they left with the satisfaction of knowing that the public schools with the high grade of educational work that is being turned out each year with the graduating class is a success and deserves the support of all.

The program was as follows:
 Music..... Organ
 Invocation..... Rev. H. R. Beatty
 Salutatory..... Dora Chandler
 Class History..... Dorothy Haselswerdt
 Cornet Solo..... Kenneth Broesamle
 Essay..... "Responsibility"
 Oration..... "Blanche Wickner"
 Oration..... "American Ideals"

CHELSEA HIGH SCHOOL

Graduation Exercises

The commencement exercises held last evening in the Methodist church was without a doubt one of the finest ever given. With a fine class of 29 graduates appearing on the stage, the girls dressed in white and the boys in dark gave a most impressive appearance. The audience which filled the church came with a look of satisfaction and the parents and relatives of the graduates had reason to be proud of the fine showing made by the pupils. The program was given with a smoothness and finish that made the evening a most enjoyable one. The commencement address was given by E. F. Gallup who was formerly superintendent of schools in this village. He told before the students the facts of what was before them as well as what was expected of them. He assured them of their duties and warned them of their dangers. The ceremony of awarding the diplomas was very pretty. Superintendent E. I. Clark awarded the diplomas to the graduates. Music of the evening was furnished by an orchestra. The decorations and many pretty flowers at the church gave a most pleasing appearance. The members of the class whose pictures appear below are to be highly congratulated upon their achievements and urged to strive on with their education to help develop and increase the educational part of this world.

Short History of Chelsea High School

It was a good many years ago, in 1879 a class of six was graduated. Three years elapsed before another class was graduated. In 1882 a class of two was graduated. From that time on classes were graduated each year with increasing numbers showing a growing school and community.

The fine new building that is now used by the pupils was erected in 1909 and 1910. The class of 1911 had the honor of being the first class to be graduated from the new building. At the time of its erection it was considered one of the best that could be erected. It appears now that additions will have to be made as each year the classes are growing and it will not be long before the space will be inadequate.

To those who have spent days there it will ever be a dear place. And as each succeeding generation passes through the rooms and corridors of the building it will hold more honors and more names of fame.

WORKING FOR TUBERCULOSIS

Tests Show That Eradication Work Can Be Carried on Without Destroying Industry.

Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.

That testing cattle for tuberculosis and the cleaning up of infected herds are having a permanent effect in reducing the extent of the disease is shown conclusively by figures recently collected by the United States Department of Agriculture from inspectors in charge of the eradication work in various parts of the country. The inspectors were asked to supply figures on the results of three or more tests on badly diseased herds, those that had not less than 10 per cent of reactors on the first test. The first test on more than 58,000 cattle in these bad herds showed that 20 per cent had tuberculosis. Another test six months later on the same herds, from which the reactors had been removed, showed only 6.9 per cent of the disease. By another six months the percentage had gone down to 2.8. A fourth test on more than 25,000 of these cattle showed only 1.5 per cent of tuberculosis.

The reports from which these figures were taken show that under normal conditions herds very badly diseased may be established as tubercle free in a short time. They also show that eradication work can be carried on without destroying the cattle industry as is sometimes

BOYS' AND GIRLS' CLUB PROJECTS STARTED.

During the past month 8 Poultry Clubs were organized in different sections of the county and approximately 3500 day-old chicks were distributed among the club members. 5 Pig Clubs have been organized during the past month. 2 Sewing Clubs are also carrying on their project during the summer. Several Canning Clubs have been started and canning demonstrations will be held Thursday, Friday and Saturday of this week. Three Corn Clubs are in operation this year and the boys have already planted their corn. Six Garden Clubs were also organized. During the next month Calf Clubs will be completed and time will be spent largely with livestock and canning clubs. Plans are also under way for the Club Camp at Camp Birkitt the first and second week in August. Approximately 400 boys and girls are now enrolled in club work in the county. County Club Agent Watt has been kept busy the last few weeks in getting these club projects started for the summer.

Michigan farmers are finding it as hard to get help as in 1920, when it was necessary to hold farmhands in the fields to save the crops. W. A. Harper, of Middleville, secretary of the West Michigan Holstein Breeders' association, declared, Mr. Harper said that $20 a month and board was not enough to hold farmhands, now that city conditions have afforded labor abundant opportunities once more.

PREVENT ANIMAL DISEASES

By Taking Proper Precautionary Measures Many Ailments Could Be Thwarted.

Many of the diseases suffered by live stock on the farm could be prevented by proper precautionary measures, according to Dr. Robert Graham of the University of Illinois. Nearly all diseases to which animals succumb are preventable, he declares, and the surest way to keep your animals healthy is to adopt such health measures as will prevent them from getting sick.

The continuous use of old food lots year after year without regard to rotation is one way to spread disease. Each class of live stock has its own regular ailments, which may be entirely eliminated by the rotation of food lots.

Keep your feet as to what diseases are prevalent in your neighborhood and then do everything in your power to keep your own live stock from getting them.

INDIAN DRUM

and Edwin Bolmer

Copyright by Edwin Bolmer

CHAPTER I—Wealthy and highly placed in the Chicago business world, Benjamin Corvet is something of a mystery to his associates. After a stormy interview with his partner, Henry Spearman, Corvet seeks Counselor Sherrell, daughter of the attorney who secured from her a promise not to marry Spearman. He then disappears. Sherrell's daughter Corvet has written to a certain Mrs. Corvet, in Blue Springs, Mo., and established a connection over the matter.

CHAPTER II—Corvet's letter summons Corvet, a youth of unknown parentage, to Chicago.

CHAPTER III—From a statement of Corvet's illegitimate son, Corvet has deduced his house and its contents to Alan.

CHAPTER IV—Alan takes possession of his new home.

CHAPTER V—That night Alan discovers a man ransacking the desks and bureau drawers in Corvet's apartments. The appearance of Alan is immediately taken as a threat and raves of "the Miwaka." After a struggle the man escapes.

CHAPTER VI—Next day Alan learns from Sherrell that Corvet has deduced his entire property to him. Introduced to Spearman, Alan is introduced to the man who he is the man whom he had found in his house the night before.

CHAPTER VII—Alan tells no one of the strange encounter, but in a private interview takes Spearman with the fact. Spearman laughs at and despises him.

CHAPTER VIII—Corvet's Indian servant, Wasequan, tells Alan he believes the legend of the Indian Drum, which according to old superstitions, beats once for every life lost on the Great Lakes. Twenty years before, the great freighter Miwaka had gone down, leaving the inference that one person had been saved, since it was a general belief that the drum never ceases. Pursuing a stranger, who had made a disturbance, Wasequan is killed and his body was found unconscious.

CHAPTER IX—Corvet recovers, and the affair remains a mystery.

CHAPTER X—Alan learns from Wasequan that it was Corvet's habit to keep the sum of $100 in his pocket, and to meet the demands of a certain "Luce" who appeared periodically in the presence of Wasequan. Alan goes to the house, demanding to see Corvet. He is evidently in a dying condition, due to alcohol and exposure. Corvet tries without avail to get him to explain his connection with Corvet. The man dies. Wasequan gives Corvet a paper on which is a list of names.

CHAPTER XI—From the document Alan thinks he may have a clue to the mystery surrounding Corvet's life and disappearance. He leaves Chicago to visit Lake Michigan ports in search of the person whose name was on the list.

CHAPTER XII—Constantine receives a package wrapped in a muffer which she recognizes Corvet was wearing on the day he went away. Constantine's wedding ring, which she believes to have been the property of Corvet, and accepts them as a proof of his death. Spearman urges Constantine to marry him. She consents, but refuses his demand for an immediate ceremony.

"Seeing the ships made me feel that I belonged here on the lakes," he reminded her. "I have felt something—not recognition exactly, but something that was like the beginning of recognition—many times this summer when I saw certain places. It's like one of those dreams, you know, in which you are conscious of having had the same dream before. I feel that I ought to know this place."

They landed only a few hundred yards from the cottage. After bidding good-by to her friends, they went up to it together through the trees. There was a small sun-room, rather shut off from the rest of the house, to which she led him. Leaving him there, she ran upstairs to get the things.

She halted an instant beside the door, with the box in her hands, before she went back to him, thinking how to prepare him against the significance of these relics of his father. She need not prepare him against the mere fact of his father's death; he had been beginning to believe that already; but these things must have far more meaning for him than merely that. She went in and put the box down upon the card table.

"The muffer in the box was your father's," she told him. "He had it on the day he disappeared. The other things," her voice choked a little, "are the things he must have had in his pockets. They've been lying in water and sand."

He gazed at her. "I understand," he said after an instant. "You mean that they prove his death."

She assented gently, without speaking. As he approached the box, she drew back from it and slipped away into the next room. She walked up and down there, pressing her hands together. He must be looking at the things now, unrolling the muffer. What would he be feeling as he saw them? Would he be glad, with that new gladness which had mingled with her own sorrow over Uncle Benny, that his father was gone—gone from his guilt and his fear and his disgrace? Or would he resent that death which thus left everything unexplained to him? He would be looking at the ring. That, at least, must bring more joy than grief to him. He would recognize that it must be his mother's wedding ring. It told him that his mother must be dead. It would tell him that she had been married, or had believed that she was married!

Suddenly she heard him calling her. Miss Sherrell! His voice had a sharp hint of excitement.

She hurried toward the sun room. She could see him through the doorway, bending over the card table with the things spread out upon its top in front of him.

"Yes."

"He straightened; he was very pale. Would you like to see them? They're all here."

"She ran and bent over the card table. She was pale. "Twenty years ago," she said, "I was twenty years old."

"Save the Miwaka! What Do You Mean, Alan?"

"Disappeared!" she repeated. Her veins were prickling cold. What did he know, what could any one know of the Miwaka, the ship of which nothing ever was heard except the beating of the Indian Drum? She tried to make him say more; but he looked away now down to the lake.

"The Chippewa must have come in early this morning," he said. "She's lying in the harbor; I saw her on my way to the telegraph office. If Mr. Spearman has come back with her, tell him I'm sorry I can't wait to see him."

"When are you going?"

"Now."

SPECIAL-SIX TOURING CAR $1635

In Performance, in Appearance, in Economy —An Unusual Car at an Unusually Low Price

THE reason for the remarkable value of the SPECIAL-Six can be summed up in the statement that it would not be possible to offer it at its present low price were it not for the fact that it is built complete in Studebaker factories.

It is easy to appreciate that when Studebaker manufactures its own motors, bodies, axles, transmissions, steering gears and other vital parts, these materials can be passed on to you in the form of the completed car at a far lower price than would be possible if Studebaker were forced to pay middlemen's profits on these parts.

That is why Studebaker is able to offer the SPECIAL-Six at its present low price. That is why it is possible to equip the SPECIAL-Six with a 50-horsepower motor of remarkable smoothness and flexibility and with a degree of freedom from vibration usually found only in extremely high priced cars.

In performance, in appearance, in riding comfort, in economy of operation—from every angle from which you may judge motor car values, the SPECIAL-Six stands out prominently as an unusual car at an unusually low price.

See the SPECIAL-SIX. Ride in it. Drive it. Let it demonstrate the value that Studebaker is able to put into a car at this remarkably low price.

They're Going Fast
Since our Underwear and Night shirt sale started we have sold many more garments than we expected to
It goes to show that quantities of merchandise can be moved if the value exceeds the price.
