SEPTEMBER 18.

Council Votes Back Old Rates.

The council meeting to have been held last night was adjourned until this morning because of the lack of a quorum. At the meeting this morning the regular business was transacted and bills allowed.

The question of the water rates was brought forth and it was voted to return to the old rate on September 18. People who have desired to use the water under the low rate have aided in keeping down the dust and also in keeping their lawns green.

The council also voted to act as officials at the election August 29th. This is the election for the sale of the municipal power plant and the acceptance of the Consumers power.

TRIES SUICIDE WITH CARBOLIC ACID

John Zubir, who evidently spends his time in tramping, was discovered at the M. C. R. depot, Saturday evening, in a weakened condition, at first it was thought that he had had a little too much moonshine, but as no traces of any liquor could be found it was decided that he was either ill or had taken dope. The officers took him to Ann Arbor and there it was found that Zubir had taken carbolic acid in an attempt to end his life. Monday morning before he was released, he was asked if he would drink carbolic acid again, Zubir said, "No, it hurts."

Two Runs in Ninth Win For Dexter.

Dexter managed to out hit Chelsea Sunday and win one of the closest games seen on the local field. The game started with even playing on the part of both teams and not until the fourth inning was a score allowed. After that several breaks were made and each time Dexter was able to take advantage of them.

Chelsea made the first run of the game and after that Dexter came back and ran the score up to 4 to 1. In the last of the eighth Chelsea came back with three runs tying the score. In the ninth Dexter scored two runs giving them the margin with which they won the game.

An enthusiastic crowd followed every play of the game with good support. It was the largest crowd that has been out to a game on the local field. The friendly rivalry that exists between the two teams made the game very interesting.

JINGLE OF FIFTEEN
MILLION FARM DOLLARS IN MCCORMICK WEDDING

Son of Former Harvester King Splits Fortune and Unmakes Two Marriages To Wed Woman of His Choice.

Special to The Chelsea Tribune.
By ROBERT FULLER.

Chicago, August 21.—When Harold F. McCormick, son of old Cyrus McCormick, the inventor of the wheat binder, was married to Mme. Ganna Walska the other day, there echoed the clank of some fifteen million American farm dollars.

Country America is not much interested in the doings of millionaires, but the name McCormick is different because it is known in every farm yard in the United States. The McCormick millions are made up of dollars paid in for farm machinery during the last half century.

What Man Will Do For Love.

The marriage of Harold McCormick to the thrice married Polish opera singer, Ganna Walska is the story of a man of great wealth, swayed by love, who gave up one of America's greatest industrial positions, the presidency of the International Harvester Co., stripped himself of a large part of his huge fortune and unmade two marriages (his own and that of Mme. Walska), in order to wed the woman of his choice.

It is estimated that it cost him $15,000,000. These figures include the settlement with his former wife, a settlement of $5,000,000 on his new wife and the cost of the two divorces.

Harold McCormick's first wife was Edith Rockefeller, daughter of John D. Rockefeller, the world's richest man.

McCormick Finally Gets a Divorce.

The Rockefeller family is much opposed to divorce—still it was John D. Rockefeller, Jr., who finally went to Chicago and after a brief and vigorous conference with his sister, persuaded her to start action for divorce, which was granted just three days before last New Year. An outside property settlement was then made which was reported to be almost half the McCormick fortune.

McCormick still holds his former father-in-law, John D. Sr., in high regard and only recently said he was sure the former Oil King sympathized with him.

Harold McCormick met Ganna Walska in 1920. She called him on the phone and asked him to help her realize the ambition of her life to score a success on the operatic stage. "From that meeting began my acquaintance with the woman I determined to make my wife. I found that she was not only beautiful and talented, but possessed spiritual qualities such as I had never before recognized in any human being," McCormick is reported as having said.

Mme. Ganna Walska was first married to a Russian General who was killed in action. Next she married Dr. Frankel who died in 1920. Later she married Alexander Smith, a Cornell millionaire bachelor, from whom she recently was divorced by a French Court.

Ambition to Make Her Greatest Singer.

There is an old saying that the third generation of the rich are usually back in overall.

Will this prove true with the McCormicks?

Harold McCormick has sliced the Harvester King's fortune in half to wed the woman of his choice.

And he now says: "the ambition of my life is to see her recognized as the greatest woman singer in the world."

That means he will spend the rest of the McCormick millions if necessary for her success—or failure.

And there is the rub.

Edith Rockefeller McCormick, the spurned wife, from her high social throne can have a finger in the success or failure of her former husband's love bride when the latter is ready for her Grand Opera test.

But will she? Maybe it will not be necessary.

Maybe Harold McCormick, blinded and swayed by love, is following a will of the wisest idea—imagining qualities in a voice which do not exist.

What do you think?

WORD FROM REV. CARNES.

Bloomington, August 16, 1922.
Editor Chelsea Tribune and Friends.

I made a promise that I would write and tell you what I have been doing but time has gone so fast that I have thus far neglected to write.

I have just returned from Kalamazoo where we attended the "National Gladiolus Show." A wonderful collection of that most interesting flower. We also stopped at the "Lotus Road" at Vicksburg. The Lotus as you know is a very rare flower in this country, a native of the "River Nile," a most beautiful flower of very peculiar habits.

Last week we took a little time to visit the "Peter Vos and son" Gladiolus farm south of Grand Rapids. They have twenty acres of Gladiolus and a great variety and many new ones.

I have been spending most of my time doing carpentering and working out in this hot sun is taking some of the "fat" off me but that will put me in good condition for the race and work when I get back September 1st.

We had a most interesting day with Rev. and Mrs. Dieberger of South Haven Sunday, August 6. We went to church and heard a very interesting sermon and had a fine visit in the home in the afternoon.

Friday, August 4th was Mrs. Carnes' birthday. We had a very pleasant beach party at Glen, the spot where she had camped as a small girl twenty-five years ago. We enjoyed the pleasant experience of sitting on big boulders in the water and having the huge waves wash us ashore as the white caps came rolling in.

We have been having a good time on some evening fishing parties and we got them sometimes.

With very best wishes to all, I am sincerely yours,
E. A. CARNES.

SHIPS ENGINES.

Road building material is being shipped from here almost every day. The equipment in the yards on W. Middle street is slowly diminishing.

An order has just been received by Kenneth Platt to ship to P. J. Meagher at Sterling, Mich., one Day-cum engine. Just last week two gasoline locomotives were shipped to Mr. Meagher of the Arenac Co.

Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Wims, George Smith and Miss Blanche Yocum of Manchester, N. H. today on a motor trip to Lewiston, to visit Mr. and Mrs. H. D. Withersell.

The area of Turkey is about 695,000 square miles.

THE AX IN TAX

Discussing his recent pronouncement that 60 per cent of government clerks are inefficient, Gen. Charles Dawes, director of the budget, said: "Inefficiency means extravagance. Extravagance is what has put the ax on our taxes. I know a man who came home from a shooting trip the other day to be met at the door by his young son.

"Hellow, father!" said the boy. "Here are your corporation assessment papers, and your income tax forms came this morning. There's a man waiting to ask about your excess profits duty, mother wants to see you at once, and would you mind lending me four dollars?"

HE KNEW IT

Pat had been hurt. It wasn't much more than a scratch, but his employer, with visions of being obligated to keep him for the rest of his life, sent him to a hospital for examination. The house surgeon looked him over and then pronounced: "As subcutaneous abrasion is not observable, I do not think there is any reason to comprehend timental centrization of the wound."

"Ah," said Pat in relief, "ye took the very words out of me mouth."

TEACHERS TO MEET.

In a few days more the school bells of the county will call the children back to continue their quest for knowledge.

To get a general idea of our plans for the ensuing school year, I want to tell you for a conference at the place nearest your home. In case of teachers who live at a distance outside of the county I suggest they come to Ann Arbor if that is more convenient.

Place.

Dexter, high school, 2 p. m. Aug. 30; Chelsea, high school, 2 p. m., Aug. 31; Sailing, high school, 10 a. m., Sept. 1; Manchester, high school, 2 p. m., Sept. 1; Ann Arbor, Court Room, 10 a. m., Sept. 2.

You will note that the conference will last about two hours but every minute will be used. These five places and dates give every teacher an opportunity to attend and it goes without saying that you will attend one. The same program will be given at each. I want to announce 100% attendance when the last meeting is held. This is just an announcement. The subject matter will be given at the meetings.

Sincerely yours,

CHELSEAITES HAVE BIG TIME SUNDAY.

It was a happy day at Palmer Park Sunday when the Chelseaites all got together and had a big time at their picnic. The large crowd kept coming and going all day and to estimate how many were there would be impossible. Many an old friendship was renewed and all in all it was a most successful time. After dinner a ball game was started and a good crowd was on hand to cheer. Many races and contests were in order and made the afternoon a most pleasant one.

At the business meeting which was held the new officers were elected who are as follows: president, Ashley Holden of Highland Park; secretary, Dr. D. K. Roodel, of Detroit. No definite arrangements were made for the picnic next year.

Dr. H. H. Beatty will be out of town and his office closed until Monday, Aug. 28. 95tf.

A WARLESS WORLD.

The world abhors war as never before and yet much of the world is today as assiduously as ever fostering the causes of war. With an awful detestation of war we stubbornly persist in cultivating the feelings that make war inevitable. We pray for peace while we shout ourselves red in the face for the jungle patriotism that glories in slaughter.

In spite of much sophistry, learned and otherwise, as the fundamental axiom it must be recognized that the only way for nations to enjoy the blessings of peace is for the nations to be peaceable.

The principles of good religion, of sincerity, of confidence, of helpfulness, the principles that insure justice, liberty and security are vital to world peace.

In an editorial in The Christian Work, Dr. S. L. Gulick urges organized Christianity—the churches—to make a warless world "The New Crusade." In part he says: "The churches can stop war if they will."

"In every ecclesiastical gathering, in every school and conference of Christians, the practical steps to a warless world should be seriously studied. Tens of thousands of young people should be promptly enlisted in the Christian crusade to end war. Mission study classes and every kind of adult Bible study group should make the 'Warless World' a major topic for study and prayer.

"When in each denomination the ecclesiastical authorities, pastors and consecrated laymen and women and young people grapple as earnestly with the program for a warless world as they did with the war time commissions and their support of the government to win the great war . . . we may hope to accomplish real results.

"A warless world can be established when the Christians of the world really grapple with the task intelligently, and with the enthusiasm and determination of a new crusade.

The commission on international justice and good will of the Federal Council of the Churches of Christ in America is planning a large and strong program for the 10 year drive for a warless world. This commission invites the co-operation of all churches and Christians in America in the pressing task, this great and glorious crusade, to end forever the greatest menace now threatening mankind.

HAS THE NICKEL SMOKE PASSED OUT?

The Connecticut tobacco growers propose to fix the price of their product.

Contracts have been received by the Connecticut Valley Tobacco Association totaling more than 22,000 acres. The total stalk cut acreage of the association members in Connecticut and Massachusetts is only 27,895, so that the acreage signed up more than assures the formation of a state-wide cooperative tobacco farmers' association by which the farmer will market their crops at a stipulated uniform price after the manner of the California fruit growers.

The move has been a long time in arriving, but it is here at last.

The result undoubtedly will prove favorable to the tobacco growers, but it may raise the price of the five-cent cigar. Any added expense naturally will be passed along to dear old ultimate consumer, but, weary as he is of exploitations, perhaps he will not mind, provided nothing is added to the freight by the middleman, and the tobacco growers benefit by the move.

The nickel smoke, once so popular, today is almost unknown to men in even ordinary circumstances so any upward price will hit the poor alone, which would be regrettable. So far as the growers are concerned, they contend they have not received the worth of their product, the work and investment considered in any part of the country, though the price of the smoke has been steadily mounting.

EAT TOMATOES.

Scientists delving into the mysteries of life have dug up the vitamins and are holding it up to public view. This is quite figuratively speaking. As a matter of fact, no one has seen a vitamin, much less held one up to the public gaze.

Nevertheless they are quite positive that vitamins exist and they have named four of them, the fourth getting its name only a few days ago. They are now vitamins A, B, C, and D.

But, that is not the point just now. The vitamin, we may assume, is a reality, and the tomato, just coming on the market in its attractive wholesale price, is full of vitamins. Doctors say the tomato is as good for babies as an orange.

If it is good for babies it is good for older folks. Eat tomatoes in season and fill up on vitamins. And, while you are at it, eat a few hundred quarts. The tomato is one of the few food articles that does not lose its vitamins through cooking.

YOUR DOUBLE.

Prejudice against finger printing of bank depositors is vanishing. This is reported by postal savings officials. People no longer are averse to this kind of identification on account of its association with criminals. That prejudice was as senseless as it would be to take all locks off doors because locks are used on jail cells.

Somewhere on earth, you probably have an exact "double"—a perfect duplicate of you, except for finger prints. They are the only infallible form of identification. Every baby's prints should be taken at birth. For one thing, it would avoid mixups such as the kind that made "Pudd'nhead Wilson" famous.

DECLINE IN HORSE RAISING

Decrease Since 1915, of About 60 Per Cent in Number of Stallions in Service.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Comparative figures from 14 of the leading horse-producing states can be taken as showing the tendency in all parts of the country, there has been a decrease since 1915 of about 60 per cent in the number of stallions in service in the United States. Grades, crosses, breeds and scrubs have been falling behind at a greater rate than the purebreds, the latter decreasing a little less than 50 per cent. These statements are based upon a report, "Stallion Enrollment as Related to the Horse-Breeding Situation," just compiled by the United States Department of Agriculture from reports from 18 to 24 states having stallion-enrollment laws.

There has been a decrease in the total number of stallions and jacks every year since 1915, but the rate of decline slackened somewhat in 1921. Fourteen states having an enrollment of 30,127 stallions in 1915, had only 18,002 in 1921, a decrease of 39.8 per cent. Of the stallions in 1921, 74.2 per cent were purebred. In 1915, only 69 per cent were registered sires. As the numbers decrease the quality improves. Farmers are finding that it pays to raise only good horses and mules.

The number of stallions of the light breeds has been decreasing more rapidly than the number of draft stallions. The total of jacks has been increasing gradually until the last year, when there was a slight decrease. There has been a striking increase in the actual number of purebreds. The change in the ratio of jacks to stallions is a fairly accurate measure of the popularity of the mule. Twenty-nine per cent of the total number of stallions and jacks enrolled for public service in 15 states in 1921 were jacks, while in 10 states in 1915 only 3.8 per cent were jacks.

Several states have recently enacted enrollment legislation that should lead to further improvement of breeding stock and the general run of work.

Purebred Stallions of Size and Quality.

stock. Pennsylvania and Indiana now permit the use of only purebred stallions and jacks for public service. They also disqualify stallions and jacks that are unsound or of such inferior type or conformation that they may prove a detriment to the horse-breeding interests of these states. Michigan, also, has passed a similar law that will become operative January 1, 1923.

A copy of the complete report on stallion enrollment may be obtained by writing to the United States Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C.

BALANCED FEEDS MAKE MEAT

With Suitable Rations and Careful Supervision Farmer Should Make Hogs Pay.

There is no place on the farm where it will pay the farmer for keeping his weather-eye peeled, and his thumb-tank active, as when he is feeding his domestic animals. Balanced rations will help to turn coarse feeds into high-priced meat products, but along with balanced rations must go balanced personal supervision. With both, the farmer who can't make money raising hogs in these days has something to learn.

GIVE PIGS PLENTY EXERCISE

Animals Given Pasture Range and Plenty of Exercise Will Be Sturdy and Healthy.

Pigs that are shut in small, dry yards do not do as well as those that have pasture range. A pig that has plenty of exercise may not be quite as fat as his shut-in relative but he will invariably be much sturdier and healthier.

Lack of Protein.

The lack of protein causes animals to shed their hair into the spring, and causes them to fatten slowly during the early pasture season. The feeding of straw likewise causes this condition.

Good Mixture for Lambs.

Lambs should begin to nibble at grain when about two weeks of age. A good mixture is ground corn two parts, crushed oats two parts, linseed meal one part, wheat bran one part.

The discontinuance of a rural route leading from Mt. Clemens which previously covered the Shook and Ballor roads, has raised a storm of protest from more than 100 farmers. It is proposed to send a delegation to Washington to take the matter before the postmaster-general. The delivery was cut by the postoffice department to economize, it was reported.

Nomination and election is assured for the following who had filed petitions in Ladington when the time limit expired Aug. 12: Miss Agnes Peterson, county treasurer; John Peterson, register of deeds; Fred W. Reek, road commissioner; Chauncey E. Mitchell, surveyor; W. G. Alway, circuit court commissioner; E. M. Huston and Dr. W. C. Martin, coroners.

All-sugar beet crop records for the Thumb section will be surpassed this year, it was declared by L. R. Stewart, manager of the Caro plant of the Michigan Sugar company.

Elmer E. Dean, 81 years old, prominent in grange activities of the state, is dead. He had resided on his Caledonia township farm near Grand Rapids his entire lifetime.

Henry Swanson, living east of Big Rapids, ran a straw in his eyeball while operating a threshing, and his condition is critical.

Otsego's new library, said to be one of the finest in middle western cities, has been dedicated formally. The library is located in a building formerly used by the Ladies Library association. Mural paintings valued at thousands of dollars are among its expensive furnishings.

SYNOPSIS

April—General factum in the life of her sister, the wife of Herbert, in the small town of Washington, D. C., is a life of constant enmity, which she is constantly at enmity, apparently satisfied with her lot, but with a constant aspiration for a better one.

Grandma Gates, who is a rheumatic, and who lives next door, and when she is not out, is a constant enmity, which she is constantly at enmity, apparently satisfied with her lot, but with a constant aspiration for a better one.

Early, darling, early, her father called her. A faint recognition of his was somehow invested with the eternal.

"What's this?" cried Dwight Herbert Deacon abruptly.

On the clock she lay a letter, "Oh, Dwight?" was all his comment. "It came this morning. I for."

"I forgot it too. And I laid it up here." Lulu was eager for her share of the letter.

"Just it understood that my mail was waiting for me."

"Dwight's sense of importance was being fed in cups."

"I know, I'm awfully sorry," Lulu said, but you hardly ever get a letter.

This might have made things worse, but it provided Dwight with a greater importance.

"Of course, pressing matter goes to my office," he admitted it. "Still, my mail should have more careful."

He read, frowning. He replaced the letter, and they hung upon his motions as he tapped of the envelope and regarded them.

"Now?" said he. "What do you think I have to tell you?"

"Something surprising," Dwight said, looking at her.

"But, Dwight, is it nice?" from his chair.

"That depends. I like it. So'll Lulu." He looked at her. "It's a comment."

"Oh, Dwight," said Lulu, "What?"

"From Dwight," he said, frowning with his suspense.

"Your brother," cried Lulu, "Is he coming?"

"Yes, Ninian's coming, so he says," Lulu cried out again. She was excited, round-eyed, her moist lips parted, Dwight's brother Ninian, how long has it been? Ninian years. South America, Central America, Mexico, Panama, and all. When was he coming and what was he coming for?

"To see me," said Dwight. "To meet you. Some day next week. He doesn't know what a champion Lulu is, or he'd come quicker."

Lulu flushed terribly. Not from the implication, but from the knowledge that she was not a champion.

The clock struck. The child Monna uttered a cutting shriek. Herbert's eyes flew not only to the child but to his wife. What was this, was their progeny hurt?

"Bedtime," his wife elucidated, and added, "Lulu, will you take her to bed?"

Lulu rose and took Monna by the hand, the child hanging back and shaking her straight hair in an unconscious negative.

As they crossed the room, Dwight Herbert Deacon, strolling about and watching his fingers, halted and cried out sharply.

"Lulu, one moment!" He approached her. A finger was extended, his lips were parted, on his forehead was a frown.

"You picked the flower on the plant?" he asked, incredulously. Lulu made no reply. But the child Monna felt herself lifted and borne to the doorway and the door was shut with violence. On the dark stairway Lulu's arms closed about her in an embrace which left her breathless and quaking. And yet Lulu was not really fond of the child Monna, either. This was a discharge of emotion akin, but to slapping the door.

And the black fireplace there was Mrs. Bett to the life. Colorless, lifeless, and with a dust of ashes.

In the midst of all was Lulu herself, reflected in the mirror, her glass, bodiless-looking in her blue kimono gown, but somehow alive—natural.

This pier-glass Lulu approached with expectation, not because of her self but because of the photograph on its low marble shelf. A large photograph of a man with evident eyes, evident lips, evident cheeks—and each of the six were rounded and convex. You could construct the rest of him. Down there, under the glass you could imagine him extending, rounded and convex, with plump hands and curly thumbs and snug clothes. It was Ninian Deacon, Dwight's brother.

Every day since his coming had been announced Lulu, dusting the mirror, had seen the photograph looking at her with its eyes somehow new. Or were her own eyes new? She dusted this photograph with a difference. Lifted, dusted, set it back, less as a process than as an experience. As she dusted the mirror and saw his trim sun-balance over against her own bodiless reflection, she hurried away. But the eyes of the picture followed her, and she shrank it.

She dusted the south window sill, and saw Bobby Larkin come round the house and go to the woodshed for the lawn mower. She heard the smooth blue of the motor. Not six times had Bobby traversed the lawn when Lulu saw Dwight emerge from the house. He had been, caring for her camera and she carried her bird bath and went to the well, and Lulu decided that it had deliberately discarded the body kitchen tips. Lulu dusted the south window and watched, and in her watching was no quality of spying or of criticism. Rather, she looked out on something in which she had never shared, could not by any chance imagine herself sharing.

The south windows were open. Alas of May bore the soft talking.

"Oh, Bobby, will you pump while I hold this?" And again, "Now wait till I rinse." And again, "You needn't be so glum—the village salutation, stinging kindly attentions."

Bobby, now first spoke, "Who's glum?" he countered, gloomily.

The iron of those days when she had laughed at him was deep within him, and this she now divined, and said absently:

"I used to think you were pretty nice. But I don't like you any more."

"Yes, you used to," Bobby repeated derisively. "Is that why you made fun of me all the time?"

At this Dwight colored and tapped her foot on the well-spring. He seemed to have her now, and enjoyed his triumph. But Dwight looked up at him shyly and looked down at his feet.

"They were all teasing me about you," he said, looking at her.

"They were?" This was a new thought to him. Teasing her about him, were they? He straightened. "Huh," he said, in magnificent evasion.

"I had to make them stop, so I teased you. [—I never wanted to.] Again the upward look.

"Well?" Bobby stared at her. "I never thought it was anything like that."

"Of course you didn't." She tossed back her bright hair, met his eyes full. "And you never came where I could tell you. I wanted to tell you."

She ran into the house. Lulu lowered her eyes. It was as if she had witnessed the exercise of some secret gift, had seen a cocoon open or an egg hatch. She was thinking:

"How easy she does it. Got him right over. But how did she do that?"

Dusting the Dwight-like piano, Lulu looked over-shoulder, with a manner of speculation, at the photograph of Ninian.

G. W. Dickinson Invites Everyone In Michigan To See 73rd State Fair

To the Editor:

Will you please extend through the columns of your paper an invitation to all of your subscribers, which I would be happy to make, to personally visit the Seventy-third annual Michigan State Fair, Detroit, September 1-10.

The fair now is a part of the state government and, this, I believe, has had a tendency to increase the interest of everyone in it and, to build for it respect as an educational institution.

For the farmer, the fair is not only a school but a city of 10 days with 500,000 persons which will broadcast his plan of reasonable profit and for the industrial worker, the fair is an educator and intended to relieve the monotony of constant toil.

G. W. DICKINSON, Secretary-Manager.

James McGovern, 21 years old, well-known resident, died at his home at Bay City. He formerly was prominent in union labor circles. He leaves a widow and one daughter.

Michigan Happenings

Dr. Irving E. Sanders, proprietor of an alleged "baby farm" on West Fort street, Detroit, was found guilty of practicing medicine without a license, by a jury before Judge Henry B. Keldan.

The principal witness against him was Leola Somerville, 15 years old, of Nighthville, who testified she took her two-day-old baby to Sanders' place for treatment for an infection and in the expectation that he would find a home for the infant.

Galashire, Kalamazoo county's automobile death trap, claimed two more victims, when two Camp Custer soldiers, returning from a trip to Port Sheridan, were injured seriously as the car turned turtle on the western outskirts of the village. The soldiers, Sergeant Orin Egan and Louis Vickery, were pinned under their car and were rescued by passing motorists.

A recommendation from the state department of agriculture that $5,000 be set aside for a survey of Michigan's post resources, has been taken under advisement by a committee of the state administrative board.

According to a communication received by the board, there are extensive areas of post in the state which could be developed into valuable fuel resources.

Horizon County fruit growers are shipping direct to Chicago consumers—with no middlemen to share the profits. The gasoline boat-hopper is hauling the fruit, fresh from tree and vine, across the lake, making three trips a week. Its carrying capacity is 1,500 bushels a trip. It is understood that Mayor William Hale Thompson of Chicago is sponsor for the plan.

Mrs. Joseph Herman, of Ontario, Calif., has written Kalamazoo officials asking proof of her wedding 70 years ago for use in obtaining a pension in Washington. She says she was married in Kalamazoo Oct. 9, 1856. The records in the county office were destroyed by fire many years ago. She is too feeble to remember the name of the minister who officiated, the letter says.

Floyd E. Shook, 34 years old, Chadwell road worker, father of three small children, dropped dead on a township job within sight of his home, the result of intense heat. He had complained of feeling faint, and as a fellow-workman aided him to his automobile, he plunged from his grasp to the highway, dead.

Several thousand Oakland County farmers assembled at Mancel Lake, where in a natural amphitheater a program depicting the progress of farm organization was presented by men, women and children. A program of sports, followed by speeches by a number of candidates for public office, concluded the day.

In the final check at the office of the secretary of state three Democrats who filed Aug. 12 were disqualified. They were Robert H. Hayburn of Alpena, for congress in the Eleventh; John P. Fancher of Monroe, for state senate in the Nineteenth; and D. Van Court, state senate in the Twenty-third.

Sale of bad fish will be fought by the state. An investigation reveals that thousands of pounds of unfit fish are sold in Michigan markets and a thorough inspection of all commercial fisheries in the state will be undertaken by the state bureau of foods and standards.

Kicked by a horse and trampled to the floor as she directed her husband, who was driving their automobile, Mrs. A. D. Colford, Monrovia, was badly injured that she lived only two hours. The Colfords had just returned from a pleasure drive to a lake.

The State Athletic Board of Control, of which Thomas J. Jager was commissioner, was yesterday wiped out of existence when the board voted to pay all outstanding debts of the department and close its accounts.

Irving Ayres, of Pioneer, O., is near death in a hospital at Hillsdale where his right arm was amputated at the shoulder to prevent the spread of blood poisoning. His arm was injured in a friendly wrestling match in his home town.

Five-pound tomatoes are being raised in Flint by Frank Kidwell, in his back yard garden. All the tomatoes average three pounds, he says, the seed having been imported from Virginia this spring. He claims to be the champion tomato grower of this part of the state.

For the Newly Weds.

Everything would have gone off quietly at the Glazier, Whitaker, wedding last evening had not a crowd from here gotten together and made things interesting for them. Rumors of the wedding had been passed around and when it was found to be a certainty about 30 young people from here gathered and were on hand after the ceremony. The crowd waited outside the parsonage and greeted the newly weds with considerable rice and many cheers. The parade of cars followed Mr. and Mrs. Glazier from Francisco to Jackson, and the noise that they made let everyone know what it was all about. Mr. Glazier's car was well decorated and it was an easy mark to follow. Not knowing where the newly weds were going and because of the bad dust that was flying most of the cars gave up the chase outside of Jackson, but one car stayed and ended their trip at Cavanaugh where the couple are staying.

Richard Lloyd Jones says

Law enforcement is more generally practiced and respected in rural districts and small towns than in the larger cities.

All the great cities, were, by a large majority, opposed to the elimination of the saloon. And yet it was the saloon in the large cities that did the most of the soul- and body-destroying business.

Bad in any place the saloon was at its worst in the big towns. Yet the majority favored its retention and today register protest against prohibition. On the other hand, by a large majority, the small towns and the rural districts favor the laws of decency.

For this reason the smaller towns do not today experience, as do the larger cities, that which has been termed the crime wave.

The committee on law enforcement of the American Bar Association, headed by Judge William D. Swaney, of Chattanooga, Tenn., has recommended to the lawyers of the land that a very drastic national law be enacted which will prohibit the promiscuous sale of firearms.

This committee declares that the pistol serves no special purpose in the community today and that it should not be manufactured except so far as government and official needs may require under proper legal regulation and control.

The committee points out that there were nearly 10,000 unlawful homicides in this country last year and that burglaries have increased in the United States 1,200% in the last ten years.

The committee also maintains that deliberate murder, burglary and robbery will seldom be attempted unless the criminal is armed. It also points out that crime percentages in Europe are very much less, due to the fact that it is difficult for civilians to acquire firearms and the penalty is severe for carrying them.

Our big cities are so busy with what they regard as the pressing business of the hour, that they are less likely to weigh the moral worth of an issue than are the smaller towns and rural districts. Therefore, the moral support of a righteous redress against a wrong social tendency comes from the less populated places.

The big town men too often think they are the big idea builders. That is their big mistake. It is the small towns that both make and save the big towns.

It is the small towns and the farmers of the land who put across the big ideas.

Restriction of manufacture and sale and possession of pocket fire-pieces must come and it is rural America that will bring it.

Hall's Catarrh Medicine

Those who are in a "run down" condition will notice that Catarrh bothers them much more than when they are in good health. This fact proves that while Catarrh is a local disease, it is greatly influenced by constitutional conditions. HALL'S CATARRH MEDICINE is a tonic and acts through the blood upon the mucous surfaces of the body, thus reducing the inflammation and assisting Nature in restoring normal conditions.

MEIGHAN IS A SAILOR IN HIS BIG NEW PARAMOUNT PICTURE "CAPPY RICKS"

Thomas Meighan, athletic Paramount star, is a brawny sailor's mate in his latest starring vehicle, "Cappy Ricks," which will be the feature at the Princess Theatre Wednesday, August 23.

Mr. Meighan loves the sea and boats, and "Cappy Ricks" gives the star rare opportunities in sea scenes. The sea scenes were made in and near Boston and off the rocky Maine coast, where three sailing vessels and a tug, chartered by Paramount, were employed.

One scene of "Cappy Ricks" reveals a boat propelled toward the treacherous rocks by heavy seas and a high wind. A great risk was taken by the actors of this scene, as it was necessary to brave rough water and the possible danger of being stranded on the rocks.

Mr. Meighan and his crew learned something of navigation in "Cappy Ricks," for in the storm scenes the star was obliged to pilot the tug which went to the rescue of the distressed vessel. Agnes Ayres is leading woman and heads a strong supporting cast.

Same Old Story But a Good One. Mrs. Mahala Burns, Savanna, Mo., relates an experience, the like of which has happened in almost every neighborhood in this country, and has been told and related by thousands of others, as follows: "I used a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic and Diarrhoea Remedy about nine years ago and it cured me of flux (dysentery). I had another attack of the same complaint three or four years ago and a few doses of this remedy cured me. I have recommended it to dozens of people since I first used it and shall continue to do so for I know it is a quick and positive cure for bowel troubles."—Advt.
