Will You Meet Defeat or Success In Tribune Campaign Saturday Night

COMPETITION COMES TO END THIS SATURDAY NIGHT AT EIGHT O'CLOCK.—HEAVY VOTING IN LAST COUNT MAKES MRS. VERN EVANS LEAD.—MISSSES BRADBURY AND PIELMEIER OVER THE MILLION MARK.—RACE SO CLOSE THAT WORK THIS WEEK WILL PROBABLY DECIDE THE WINNERS.—ALL SUBSCRIPTIONS AND RESERVE VOTES MUST BE DEPOSITED IN BALLOT BOX BY EIGHT O'CLOCK SATURDAY NIGHT.

In four more days the Tribune's Autumnales and Prize Campaign will come to a successful end and the cash-prizes awarded. Saturday night at 8 o'clock all reserve votes and subscriptions must be deposited in the ballot box before the official count is commenced.

In the last count of votes to be made by this office three contestants, Mrs. Vernie Evans, Miss Dorothy Pielemeyer, and Miss Merle Bradbury are all over the million mark with Mrs. Evans leading. Others in the race are so close that the subscriptions secured at the eleventh hour will decide the winner of the Studebaker car. There is only one safe way and that is to secure every possible subscription and get them for as long time as possible. Five- and ten-year subscriptions will count fast and help to win the big prize.

Manner of Closing

The campaign will come to an end Saturday, September 30, at 8 p.m. A locked ballot box has been placed at the Kempf Commercial and Savings bank, where it will remain until three o'clock Saturday September 30. At 3 o'clock the closing hour of the bank, the box will be brought to the Tribune office where it will remain locked until eight o'clock, when it will be turned over to the official judges who will open the box and make the official count of ballots and announce the winners of the prizes, according to the published rules of the campaign. All candidates will deposit their subscriptions secured this week in the ballot box. All subscriptions must be accompanied by cash, money order, or cashiered check as no personal checks for more than $20, and only one from any one person will be accepted during the last week. All will be set from now until the official count is made Saturday night Sept. 30.

Contestants may deposit their subscriptions in the box, at the Kempf Bank any time during this week up to 3 p.m. Saturday. After 3 p.m. the box will be at the Tribune office. All subscriptions and reserve votes must be deposited in box by eight o'clock Saturday night, September 30, before the final count is commenced.

COLLEGE LOVERS AGAIN FOILED

Ann Arbor, Sept. 22.—Betty Moran, 18, Ottawa, Ill., and James Martin, 19, Cincinnati, were freshmen in eastern colleges last year and fell in love with each other.

Before school closed they eloped to New York, it is said, where efforts to get a marriage license were frustrated by intervention of the school authorities.

Later, their respective parents decided to separate them by sending them to other institutions of learning. Unknown to each other, both families elected the University of Michigan. Both mothers escorted their charges to Ann Arbor Thursday.

Meanwhile, James and Betty had arranged a meeting. While the parents were otherwise engaged, the pair kept their tryst. Missing Betty, Mrs. Moran sought the aid of Chief of Police O'Brien. From the window of police headquarters, she saw James and Betty strolling by arm in arm. Mrs. Martin was notified and all four left Ann Arbor for their homes. Preparations for entering the University of Michigan have been canceled. Taken from Aurora Beacon News.

LAST CONCERT WEDNESDAY NIGHT

The last band concert of the season will be given Wednesday evening, September 27 by Smith's Band of Chelsea. This is to be the last and best concert of the season according to Wesley Smith leader of the band. If this weather continues it promises to be a rather cool evening but a large audience is looked for under any conditions.

MR KLAMMER'S SISTER DIES

Word was received early this morning by C. W. Klammer of the death of his sister, Mrs. Hannah Krauter. She died at the home of her sisters in Aurora, Illinois. She is survived by her two children and two brothers and three sisters. The funeral will be held Thursday, burial being made in Chicago. Mr. Klammer will leave tonight to attend the funeral.

CHELSEA WINS FROM MUNITH 5 TO 4

Crossman Pitches Chelsea to Victory

Chelsea captured a good game from Munith Sunday when they played the Munith team at Munith. It was a close game and a hard fight was put up by both teams. Chelsea had suffered one defeat in a 14-inning game with Munith and were determined to retrieve.

Had not several errors been made the score would not have been as close as it was. Both teams played close but untimely errors allowed scores.

The ball field at Munith was very poor, and a bad place to play ball. The color of the ground made it hard to see the ball, and the rough condition of the ground was in made it hard to judge. Considering these things the teams played mighty good ball. Another bad feature was an inexperienced umpire trying to umpire from behind the bat.

One of the spectacular plays of the game was made by Hankard when he caught a fly on the run, that everyone thought was good for two or three bases.

Chelsea started the scoring in the second inning when they brought in two runs. In the fifth Munith scored three runs and held their lead of one run until the seventh when Chelsea tied the score. Another run for Munith in the eighth and two for Chelsea was the last of the scoring. Crossman pitched fine ball striking out 14 men while Brogan fanned 8.

IMPRESSIVE FUNERAL SERVICES FOR REV. H. R. BEATTY

At the funeral service of the late Rev.

Beatty was one of the most impressive ceremonies ever held in Chelsea. The Methodist church was filled to overflowing with his friends and parishioners. The members of the various fraternal organizations of which he was a member came to the church in a body.

Mrs. A. Palmer sang "Faith of Our Fathers." Rev. Rice offered the prayer and Rev. Stalker gave the funeral sermon. The Knight Templars conducted their services in the church. Mrs. Palmer then sang "Lead Kindly Light."

The body was then taken to Williamson for interment where Olive Lodge F. & A. M. conducted the services at the grave. Forty-two of the Masonic fraternity accompanied the body to Williamson.

Members of the clergy from all the surrounding towns were either at the church or at the grave and numbered more than 25. In honored respect for the deceased the church bells of all the churches in Chelsea tolled after the service here. Business houses were all closed during the service.

Rev. Beatty was the first minister to have passed away while in Chelsea and the people mourn his loss. So suddenly was he called that his absence hardly seems possible. His good teachings and kindnesses live after him and he will be greatly missed by everyone.

REV. H. R. Beatty.

Death has called one of the most loved and honored members of the community from us. The death of Rev. H. R. Beatty, a young man and just in his prime took him from our midst so suddenly we can hardly appreciate his loss. As one of the leaders in better things for the community the late Rev. Beatty will always be remembered. Ever endeavoring to help where help could be given and always willing to lend a helping hand.

In the fall of 1919 he came to this community a stranger and yet he was quickly taken in by the people and loved for his bigness. In every activity of the people, or the country he had been one of the most enthusiastic leaders. Always trying to make this world a little better place to live in. His reappointment to this charge was taken with applause by all the people here.

Rev. Beatty will be greatly missed by all. His standing in the community can best be represented by the hundreds of people who attended his funeral. This expression of fellow-feeling revealed in but one way the love the people had for him. He served a life of self devotion and when called away was ready to answer the call.

SUMMER COLDS.

The summer cold is so prevalent in Chelsea and surrounding country that it has taken on almost epidemic form. Whole families are suffering with it and while few of them are under the doctor's care the suffering is no less real.

Along side with the summer cold is the seasonal affliction of hay fever which is caused, in the main, by the pollen of Autumn plants. Taken both together, the city is sneezing quite in agreement and disagreeing with great regularity.

Different authorities have different ideas as to the cause of summer cold. Some hold that the extreme hot weather has caused people to over-exert themselves more than they would ordinarily and that by going from a super-heated room into a draft they produce a congestion in the part of the body made suddenly cool when married itself in a cold.

Others say that the cold is a germ disease and that no one can catch it but from someone else.

There is perhaps some truth in both of the theories. In a sea-like life there must be full of cold germs and the sudden chill of the body from a heated condition prepares a favorable field for the development and growth of the cold germ.

The person suffering from the cold is not so much concerned with the theories as to how it fastened itself on him as he is on a practical pain to get rid of it. The latter is not such an easy matter. There are on the market various patent remedies and each one like to advocate in persons who claim to have been benefited by it.

Perhaps the doctor could do something for it. Few persons will go to the doctor. They may have heard that some persons never go to bed for a day or two, and they think that is the way to get rid of a cold. What most people do for their colds is to stay in bed. They let it wear out as most colds eventually do, but not all. Some doctors place colds, in their after treatment, among the deadly diseases of the human body.

"Don't catch a cold," they say, and those who are suffering from colds look for the way by which they could not fool with them.

THE MONTHLY PAYCHECK.

Uncle Sam sent a lot more to send out monthly instead of quarterly to the pensioners, but it is worth more to them and goes to the government.

The understanding person, not depending on his pension except to keep him, doesn't mind much when the pension comes.

It does come, but to the man who has lost out as old and infirmed and who is unable to earn anything it makes a great deal of difference whether he receives the money Uncle Sam sends him monthly or quarterly assessments.

The new state laws have been passed for a weekly payday loan and establishment. Men who work consider it a hardship to pay every two weeks instead of every week.

Perhaps it is too much to expect the weekly paycheck for the same amount as monthly paycheck will help out a lot.

INTELLIGENCE.

Walter Newman, shell shocked Canadian war veteran, sees a woman in an auto plunge over a cliff at Niagara Falls. The tragedy in part restores his memory, which had been a blank.

Brazen oddities like this make you wonder if dull people are short and intelligent "underneath" in the subconscious.

All brains are potentially keen. Science some day will learn how to unlock the doors that imprison intelligence and keep it from self-entrapment in earth life.

A room door is locked when a child says, sincerely, "I know the explanation but can't express it."

HOPEFUL.

French artists vote overwhelmingly to permit German and Austrian artists again to exhibit their paintings in Paris salons. Firmin Gémier, France's leading actor manager, says are international. He welcomes German performers back to Paris.

Hatred is dying out in Europe, you reflect.

It is—among the people. But not so fast among politicians. French government tells the league of nations that she cannot reduce her army, now 690,000. However, that is more fear than hatred, tho' the two are psychological twins.

DRAMATIC.

Theatrical sensation abroad is a satirical play, "The Life of the Insects." It is having a big run at the National theater of Prague. Brady, New York producer, has bought the movie and stage rights for America.

Characters in the play are made up like huge beetles and other insects. Allegorically they portray the three stages of man's existence—love, action and agony. Those three words accurately sum up every human lifetime.

MAY USE RIBBONS

Silk Strands Add Width Accessories Are Needed.

Batch of Beautiful Women Color Offer Inspiration to Designers of Modern Outfits.

Now the plant grows a new tow, these wavy ribbons to suitable points of her hair to wear, there are nothing like them. And it is in many cases a fashion winter in the New York Times, that costumes grow to be decorative. A dress cannot always contain every element that makes it attractive, and the ribbon can be a good addition.

These ribbons are being added about apparel accessories. That is that they are very easily overcome. It is well known that there is the result of the dress when used with a lace or a garter, the lace or a garter.

It is the way the dress and accessories are worn, who have not done this for many a long year, probably because the silk strands are much better looking. They seem to have been described with more care and attention to the purposes for which they are to be used. Ribbons are, of course, as old as life itself in the dress of women, but it did seem, for a time as though there was practically nothing new under the sun in this.

When new ribbons did appear there seemed nothing pertinent to be done with them. But now the eye of any designer, active or in embryo, turns to a piece of the newer ribbon because they see what smart and interesting fashions can be created with a bit of beautifully woven color for an inspiration.

The dress in the illustration is of a neutral gray crepe, banded in a clever manner with a metal crepe ribbon. This is a sort of ribbon which has a metal thread running one way of the weave and a brilliantly colored one running the opposite direction. Across the girdles in the skirt the ribbon runs in evenly arranged points. It is strong across the bateau neckline to repeat the color and then it is wound into the belt arrangement, where a strand of the gray crepe and a strand of the ribbon are twisted together to make one of those smart little rolls which accentuate waistlines.

CRYSTAL AND JET FAVORITES

Paris Proclaims Black and White the Favored Jewelry Combination for Fall Wear.

Black and white is to be the jewelry combination, according to advice from Paris and mansard and onyx, rhinestones and jet and pearl; crystal and jet are to be the leading combinations.

Bar pins are expected to regain their popularity this fall, the vogues of Peter Pan collars for blouses and dresses creating a demand for ornamental fastenings. A charming example of a bar pin pendant consists of a bar of rhinestones, with an onyx colored pendant in a rhinestone frame.

The combination of crystal, jet and pearls makes an interesting and attractive necklace. The contrast of the jet and pearls sets off the luster of the latter and the crystal makes the jet seem even blander. Pendants suspended from a cord like a picture, the drop being square with a center of onyx framed with rhinestones, are now and smart. A pearl tassel with a cap of onyx color, with side half-filagree, and half rhinestones makes a good-looking ribbon necklace.—Brooklyn Eagle.

Colorful Foulards.

Foulards are getting farther and farther away from the traditional simple silks such as navy, black and blue-and-white. At a smart gathering a foulard with a flame-colored ground was noticeable. It had an intricate spiral design in white. A rust-tone foulard seen at a fashionable restaurant flaunted in a splashy black design. Its wearer half-hat of black, embroidery of rhinestone proportions decorated with a ribbon rose almost the same color as the head, in tone of rust.

FINDS $800 DIAMOND IN 95 CENT TROUSERS.

AUTOMOBILE PAINTS

Paints Cannot Long Remain Intact When Highly Heated by Continuous Speeding.

A high-grade tire on a racing car will sometimes stand up as far as 500 miles, about one-twentieth of the life of a tire operated under ordinary conditions. This difference in tire service is due directly to a difference in the heat developed. Heat exerts a deteriorating effect on rubber in proportion to the intensity and length of time the rubber is exposed to it. Running at high speed quickly raises the temperature of a tire. This heat results from the internal friction set up in the tire carcass. Tires are designed to resist the effects of heat produced by ordinary everyday car operation, but they cannot long remain intact when highly heated by continuous speeding. The tire hills of the speeder are likely to be higher than those of the driver who proceeds at a moderate pace.

In summer the radiator has to be cleaned oftener than in other seasons because water evaporates more rapidly in the weather. At intervals it should be flushed out.

Turn out the car before going for a bump in the road. The car then merely crests over the mound, the shock is reduced, and the occupants are prevented from hitting the ceiling of the car.

Knowing in an engine is most commonly caused by loose bearings, carbon in cylinders, causing pre-ignition, and knocking at high speeds, resulting in the tire too quickly or driving with space too far advanced.

works wonders. Many a child has been crippled for life because in its baby days it had a fall which was neglected. Not from sheer neglect on the parents part, but because they did not know of the serious effects that might later follow. A good plan which many parents follow is to have their children's spines examined by a Chiropractor periodically, say every three months, and if there happens to be any trouble, have it adjusted immediately. If there is no trouble, then they allow another three months to pass and return for another spinal analysis. This is a good plan. Consultation and spinal analysis is without charge. SYNOPSIS

I-APPAL General factotum in the house of her sister Ima, wife of Herbert, a man in the small town of Warbleton, but has a dull, cramped existence, which she has reluctantly submitted to her lot, though her secret thoughts and aspirations have nothing to do with her brother.

Her brother, her sister nor her brother can comprehend. To Mr. Deacon's son, Bobby Larkin, recently graduated high-school youth, secretly cancered of Deacon's older daughter, Anna, an applicant for a job at the Deacon's home. He is surprised, his companion to keep the lawn in trim, the family is excited over the news of an unexpected visit from Deacon's brother, whom he had not seen for many years. Deacon jokes with Lulu, with subtle meaning, concerning the coming wedding.

II-MAY—chiefly because of the ripples he has caused, colorless existence which he has planned, Ninian will bring Lulu is interested, and speculative, meanwhile watching with some interest the boy and girl's coming of Bobby and Anna. Inevitably, Ninian arrives in Warbleton, at his business, end of the roasting. Thus he becomes acquainted with Lulu first and in a moment undercuts with her position in the house. To Lulu, Ninian is a much-traveled man of the world, and even the slight interest which he shows in her is appreciated; he guesses it is something new in her life.

III-JUNE—At an outing with the family, Ninian reveals his true colors. He expresses his dissatisfaction of her treatment as a sort of dependent in the Deacon home. Lulu has vaguely had the same thoughts; but her love for her sister and her own differences make Ninian's comments embarrassing. He declares his intention of getting a job, possibly in the city, offering to leave his parents. Diana and Bobby, in the course of "soft nothings," discuss the possibility of "adopting and surprising" the whole school. Lulu, despite herself, has also had to pleasant possibilities concerning Ninian's intentions towards himself, more so because hitherto he has been a practical nobody in the past, while Ninian has done with his social functions. The fact that Ninian has walked home with her causes all sorts of speculations to disturb her thoughts that night.

IV-JULY—Ninian redeems his promise of a "quiet time," and dinner in the adjacent room with the attentions shown by her brother-in-law, is a delight to Lulu. At supper, after the opening of the evening, she asks him to sit down. Herbert immediately suggests reading the funeral service as a rebuke for the dullness. Ninian, apparently jokingly urges the substitution of the wedding service, himself and Ima participating. As part of the job, Ima repeats the words of the civil ceremony with Ninian. The laughter continues. It is agreed that the wedding will be held in the state, and, inasmuch as he is a magistrate, Ninian and Lulu are legally wedded. The rest of the party is shocked, but Ninian declares he is perfectly happy. She and Ninian depart at once for their honeymoon, without returning to Warbleton. The Deacons lose to this, spreading the news in the home town, that the services of Lulu are really needed in the household.

"Not now," said Dwight. "Why, of course, she's dead if he thinks so." "I'll be sure," said Lulu. "At the church before this, Ima now said, "I might go upstairs to bed."

"I'm a quarter to," said Monroe, with a smile.

"Ima, I amma tell you."

"But—"

"She did, kissing them all goodnight and taking her time about it. Every night was suspended while she kissed them—and departed, walking slowly backward.

"Mary!" said Mrs. Bett with ready asperception. "Lulu, was your husband married?"

"Yes, Lulu said, "my husband was married, mother."

"Mabel," said Ima. "Think of anything else than in our family."

"Well, go on—go on!" Dwight cried. "Tell us about it!"

Lulu spoke in a monotone, with her old manner of hesitation:

"We were going to Oregon. First down to New Orleans and then out to California and up the coast." On this she paused and sighed. "Well, then in Savannah, Georgia, he said he thought I better know, first. So he told me."

"Yes, well, what did he say?" Dwight demanded irritably.

"Cora Waters," said Lulu. "Cora Waters. She married him down in San Diego, eighteen years ago. She went to South America with him."

"Well, he never let us know of it, if she did," said Dwight.

"No. She married him just before he went. Then in South America, after two years, she ran away again. That's all he knows."

"That's a pretty story," said Dwight contemptuously.

"He says if she'd been alive, she'd been after him for a divorce. And the doctor has been, so he thinks she must be dead. The trouble is," Lulu said again, "she wasn't sure. And I had to be sure."

"Well, but, mercy," said Ima, "couldn't he find out now?"

"It might take a long time," said Lulu simply, "and I didn't want to stay and not know."

"Well, then, why didn't he say so here?" Ima's indignation mounted.

"He would have. But you know how sudden everything was. He said he thought about telling us right there in the restaurant, but of course that'd been hard—wouldn't it? And then he felt so sure she was dead."

"Why did he tell you at all, then?" demanded Ima, whose processes were simple.

"Yes. Well! Why indeed?" Dwight

Herbert brought out these words with a curious emphasis.

"I thought that, just at first," Lulu said, "but only just at first. Of course they always think when a wife leaves her husband... They'll think you couldn't get along. That's all."

"I should hate that," said Lulu.

"Well, I should hate the other, let me tell you."

"Dwight, Dwight," said Ima. "Let's go in the house. I'm afraid they'll hear."

As they always think when a wife leaves her husband... They'll think you couldn't get along. That's all."

"I should hate that," said Lulu.

"Well, I should hate the other, let me tell you."

"Dwight, Dwight," said Ima. "Let's go in the house. I'm afraid they'll hear."

Mrs. Bett's lips moved, repeating the words. "Then that ain't so bad," she said. "I was afraid maybe she turned you out!"

"No, no, mother. She wasn't there."

Mrs. Bett moved, repeating the words. "Then that ain't so bad," she said. "I was afraid maybe she turned you out!"

"No, no, mother. She wasn't there."

Mrs. Bett brightened. In little matters, she quavered and resented, but the large issues left her blank.

Through some indeterminate sense of the importance due this crisis, the Deacons entered their parlor. Dwight lighted that high, central burner and faced about, saying:

"In fact, I simply will not have it, Lulu. You expect, I take it, to make your home with us in the future, on the old terms."

"Well—"

"I mean, did Nihian give you any money?"

"No. He didn't give me any money—only enough to get home on. And I kept my suit—why?" she hung her head back. "I wouldn't have taken any money."

"That means," said Dwight, "that you will have to continue to live here—on the old terms, and of course I'm quite willing that you should. Let me tell you, however, that this is on condition on condition that this disgraceful business is kept to one's self."

"He felt bad, too," Lulu said.

"He?" said Dwight. "He must have."

"It's you," Ima sobbed. "It's you. My sister."

"Well," said Lulu, "but—I never thought of it making you both feel bad, or I wouldn't have come home."

"Thank goodness," Ima broke in. "Nobody need know about it."

Lulu regarded her, without change.

"Oh, yes," she said in her mope.

"People will have to know."

Dwight's eyes narrowed. "My dear Lulu," he said, "are you sure of that?"

"Sure?"

"Yes. Did he give you any proofs?"

"Proofs?"

"Letters—documents of any sort? Any sort of assurance that he was speaking the truth?"

"Why, no," said Lulu. "Proofs—no. He told me."

"He told you?"

"Why that was bad enough to have to do. It was terrible for him to have to do. What proofs?" She stopped, puzzled.

"Didn't it occur to you," said Dwight, "that he might have told you that because he didn't want to have to go on with it?"

As she met his look some power seemed to go from Lulu. She sat down, looked weakly at them, and with her closed lips her head was slightly shaken. She said nothing. And, seeing on her skirt a spot of dust, she began to rub at that.

"Why, Dwight!" Ima cried, and moved to her sister's side.

FALSE HOPE

Sin on every side is growing bolder, and the very delusion contained in the statement, "The world is growing better," is of satanic origin—and is for the purpose of putting to sleep the forces of righteousness.

Human nature is incapable of moral improvement by any human process known to man. The only thing within the power of God that can change human nature is regeneration—Reformation cannot affect its character. Regeneration must precede reformation. Those who have been regenerated are of course growing better; they are improving; they are progressing; they are growing more sinful in the practices of life than ever before in the history of the world.

The corrupt are becoming more scientific in their corruption, and more determined to practice corruption.

There are three great, stubborn facts confronting us:

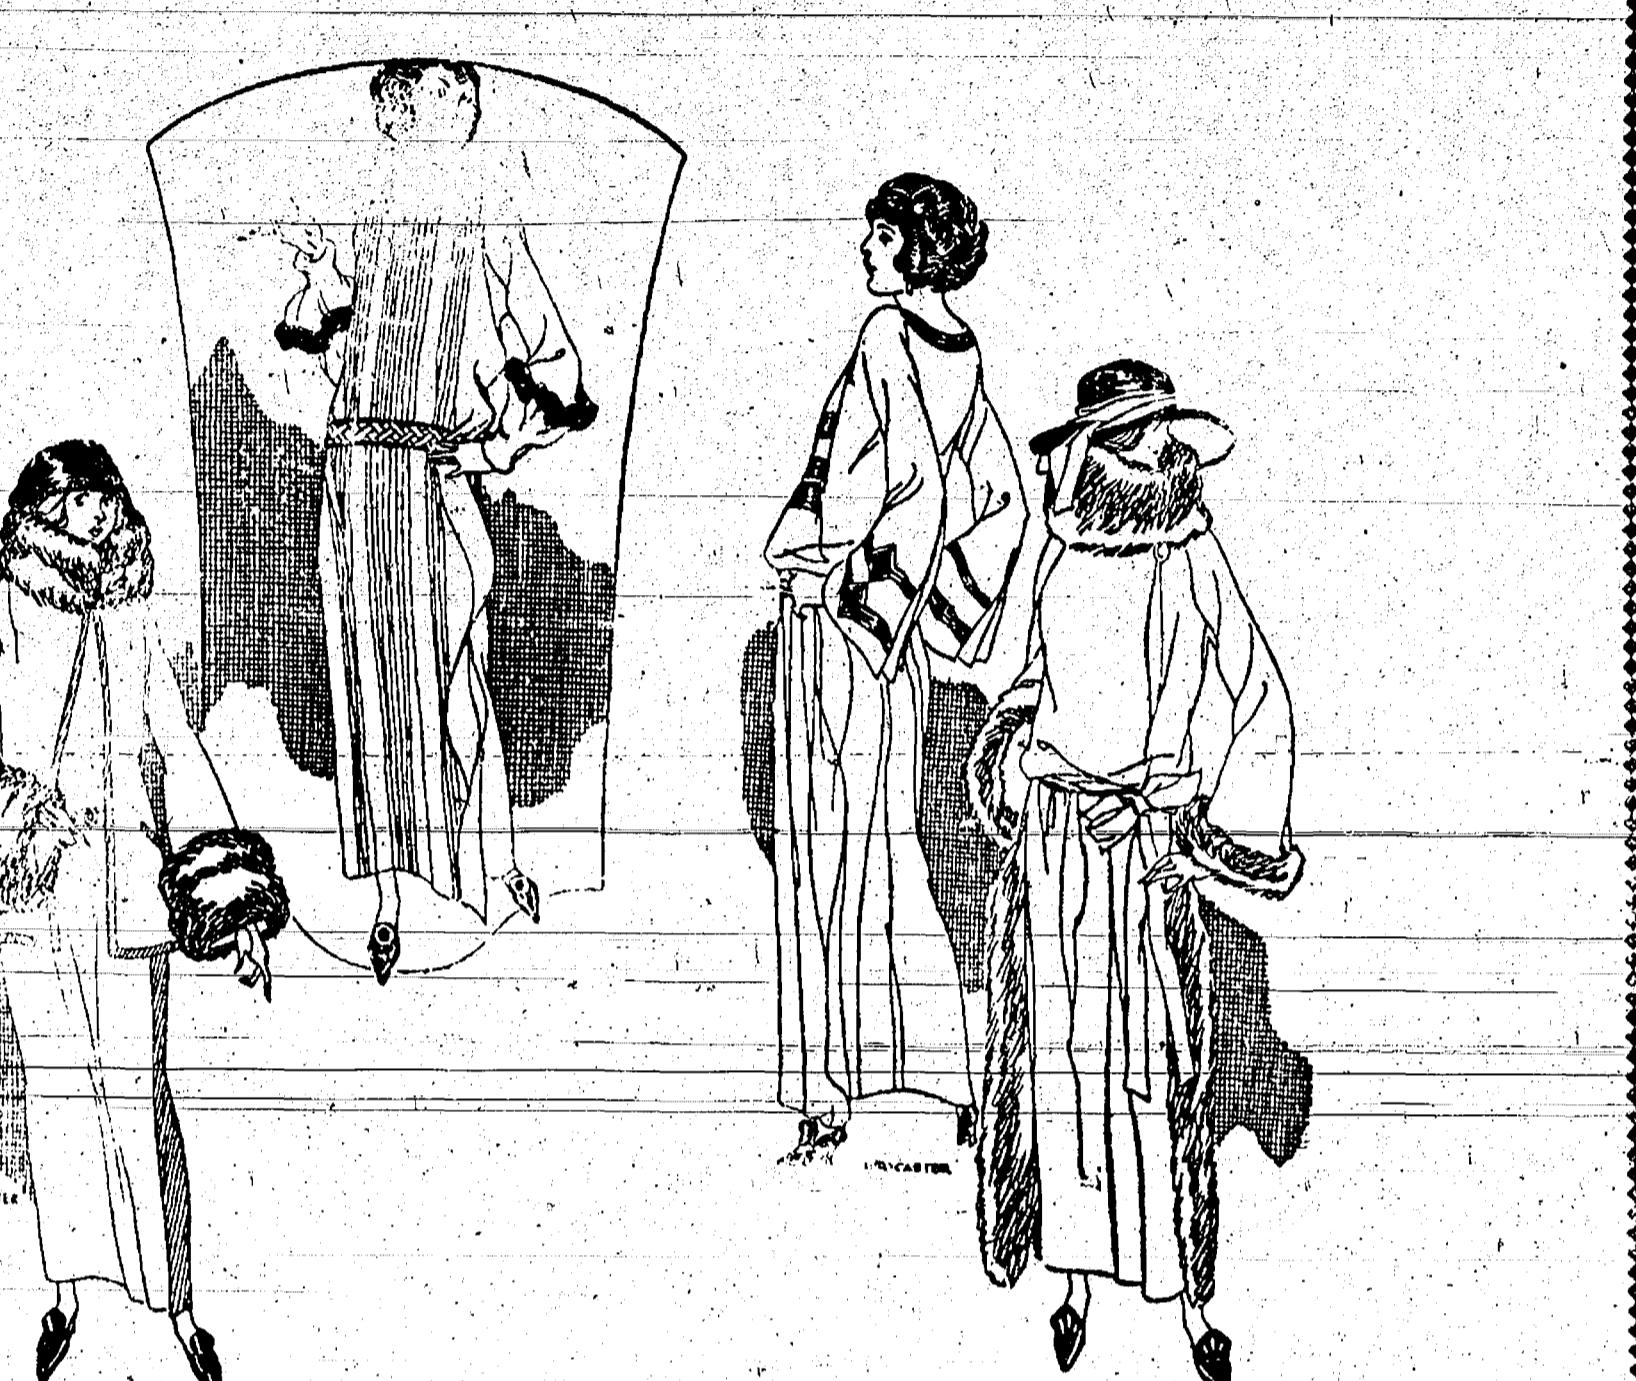

FIRST—The fact of sin. It is the most stubborn fact, and the most awful fact, and the most destructive fact in the universe.

SECOND—The fact of salvation.

THIRD—The stubborn fact of depraved, lost human nature. This great entity known as sinful man cannot be improved by external processes; he cannot be redeemed by education or evolution, or any other of the delusions. He can be saved only by the regenerating act of the Holy Ghost.

It is the duty of the church and of every minister of the gospel to preach the awfulness of sin, the absolute certainty and power of salvation, the judgment that awaits the unrepentant, and to denounce with all the power possible the hellish delusion that the world is growing better.

Awake! Strike! Preach! And reach the unsaved, for they are growing worse—not better.

The Key that Unlocks the Door Long Living.

The men of eighty-five and ninety years of age are not the rotund, well-fed, but thin, spare men, who live on a slender diet. Be as careful as he will however, a man past middle age will occasionally eat too much of some article of food not suited to his constitution, causing indigestion or constipation and will need a dose of Chamberlain's Tablets to move his bowels and invigorate his stomach. When this is done, there is no reason why the average man should not live to a ripe old age.—Advt.

STOCK WORTHLEES

Mrs. James G. Duran, aged and wealthy widow of Mr. Vernum, N. Y., paid $100,000 for stock certificates that were drawn in beautiful colors, but were worthless, according to testimony before the sheriff's jury. She bought them from a stranger. The sheriff said Mrs. Duran was incorporated in close touch with the "great world outside."
